Mild Isn't a color

You can't judge a cigar by its wrapper. Some dark cigars are mild and some "light" cigars are strong. If the pure food law applied to cigars—the word "mild" wouldn't be used so promiscuously. To be safe—smoke this blend of mild Havana and mild domestic—

SENSATIONAL SALES OF CIGARS

The Tremendous Effectiveness of the New Glass Lids has created marvellous results in the sales of Cigars aside of the old fashioned, bulky metal framed lids.

The new lid is now becoming a monopoly on the Cigar Counter. Dealers are discarding the antiquated clumsy metal framed lids, which detract the eye from the cigars by their cheap metallic effect and prove detrimental to their sales, while the give cigars a cheerful and appetizing effect, by their distinctive, refined and classy charm so inviting to smokers. These lids are revolutionizing cigar sales, and placing them on a higher plane. The new lids are the limit of perfection and are up-to-date.

NEW ALL GLASS OR STEEL WIRE EDGED LIDS

Brunhoff Jump Spark Lighter with Automatic Cutter

Operates with an excellent jump spark coil. The main feature is that the lighter uses electricity only for an instant. No current used or wasted on return into position. This is most important. It saves your batteries—gives them longer life. The front is for your ad or for a mirror. The handle is convenient to light from, for the shortest or the tallest. Pull the handle to you, slow or fast, "you get a light every time."

If you want the best lighter ever made, send us $12.00 and state if wanted with glass or mirror front. Send label if you want us to insert it.

CIGAR LEAF ASSOCIATION VOTES TO FIGHT BONDED STAMP RULING

Charles Fox Elected President for Ensuing Year— Convention Favors Anti-Coupon Bill and Freight Increase—May Take Bonded Factory Law Into Supreme Court

ATLANTIC CITY, May 12, 1914.

AMONG the many important matters upon which action was taken by the convention of the National Cigar Leaf Association, which has been convened here, was its pledge of moral and financial help to the extent of $1000 in a campaign against the recent ruling on the Bonded Stamp controversy, and its indorsement of the Underwood Anti-Coupon Bill.

Following the opening of the session on Monday morning, President Aaron B. Hess read his address, which will be found on another page. After a vote of thanks had been tendered Mr. Hess, the chairman of the Credentials Committee offered his report showing the officers, delegates and alternates present. Joseph Mendelsohn then read the report of the Committee for the Establishment of a Credit Bureau. This report voiced the opinion that it was not an appropriate time to introduce such a feature and recommended that the matter be held under advisement until such time as the Association should number a greater membership.

A Resolutions Committee was named by President Hess to consist of Felix Eckerson, Charles Fox, Moritz Neuberger, L. B. Haas and Joseph Mendelsohn.

The afternoon session opened with the report of the Resolutions Committee. A resolution was introduced to take steps to provide that the government reports of tobacco stocks on hand be so worded as to show the quantity of leaf in the hands of manufacturers and dealers respectively. The resolution was lost by a majority of one vote.

The next resolution considered provided for the indorsement of the Stevens Bill by the Association. This bill provides that it shall be legal for the manufacturers to establish a minimum price at which their articles shall be sold. This resolution was carried.

To oppose the unlimited importation of cigars from the Philippines was the nucleus of the next resolution presented, and this was adopted also.

A resolution providing for a contribution of $1000 by the Association to any city that should invite the convention to convene there, to assist in defraying the expense of the same was unanimously adopted after some argument.

A resolution prepared by Joseph Mendelsohn committing the Association to the contention that the "Made in Bond" law should merely cover the origin of the tobacco and not the workmanship on the cigars was next presented. It called for the Association to give its moral and material support to the manufacturers who may see fit to make protests regarding the interpretation of the law to cover the workmanship on cigars; it further provided for a committee of three empowered to confer and act with a committee of manufacturers; that the sum of $1000 be set aside for

Senate Helps Tobacco Bug Fight

Senator Bryan, of Florida, pushed through an appropriation bill on last Thursday, giving the Department of Agriculture a tidy sum to assist in combatting the pest of the tobacco bug in the United States. In support of his measure, Senator Bryan explained that this pest is in the habit of laying its eggs in the leaves of growing tobacco and that after the tobacco has been cured and made into cigars or cigarettes, as the case may be, the eggs hatch out into small worms, which promptly start boring their way through the cigar or cigarette.

The appropriation did not get through the Senate without some caustic comment on the part of the non-smokers of the august body, and Senator Reed of Missouri was much wrothed at the appropriation and stated that his belief "that under a liberal construction, I have no doubt the Government could go into the business of breeding grey cats. How long, O Lord, is this to continue?"

A glance at the Internal Revenue statistics for the last few years might impress Senator Reed and others of his colleagues, with the urgent necessity of nursing in every way, the American Golden Goose, which is represented by the tobacco industry.

Senator Bryan has been a most consistent and intelligent friend of the tobacco industry of the United States, not only of his own State, but of the country at large, and it was probably due to this, that he obtained the appropriation desired.

The New Leaf Officers

As was surmised, the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association elected an entirely new board of directors at their convention in Atlantic City, closing a few days ago, and the present roster includes the names of men who should most capably continue the good work which the association has carried on for some years past.

The election of Charles Fox, of New York, as president, was merited by hard and conscientious work, which Mr. Fox has rendered the association as its secretary for several terms. The vice-president, S. Major Newburgh, of Hamilton, O., gives this thriving tobacco section well-deserved representation; and in the hands of Jos. Mendelsohn, of New York, the secretarial duties of the association will, most assuredly, be most creditably performed.

After a number of years as watch dog of the association funds, ex-Treasurer F. E. Cranz has finally induced the members to accept his annual resignation, and he turns over a handsome balance of more than $5,000 to his successor without any bills payable. George M. Berger, of Cincinnati, was chosen to succeed Mr. Cranz, and the finances have again fallen into honorable and careful hands.

Riker & Hegeman Company Lease Another Store

The Riker & Hegeman Drug Company which leased during the past twelve months stores on the south side of Chestnut Street, west of Juniper Street, and on the south side of Market Street, west of Twelfth, also has leased, through Mears & Brown from Katharine L. Wiener, the drug store at the northeast corner of Sixteenth and Chestnut Streets.

With Henry Ford backing up Thomas A. Edison and waging a war on cigarettes there is no alternative for the American Tobacco Company but to start a campaign against the debilitating consequences of motoring and listening to the phonograph.—Exchange.

NEW YORK MANUFACTURERS MAY SEEK TO ENJOIN ADVERSE RULING ON BONDED STAMP

May Carry Case to Supreme Court if They Do Not Win—Treasury Department Now Investigating— Decision Expected Within a Few Days—Dispute Now Waxing Warm

New York, May 12, 1914.

THE question as to the meaning of the word "character" employed in section 4, paragraph M, of the "Made-in-Bond" law of October 3, 1913, is creating quite a turmoil in the Treasury Department at Washington, and New York manufacturers are anxiously awaiting a decision. Whether the word refers to the "character" of the tobacco, as to its origin, or to the method of working the tobacco into cigars, or both, is the puzzle that is now being unravelled. New York manufacturers who use "team work" object to a discrimination and an interpretation in favor of the "Spanish method." This latter method is used by the manufacturers of Key West and Tampa, and it is their claim that the manufacturers who use the former method are not entitled to use the same form of Government guarantee stamp.

The recent ruling by the Federal officials that only such manufacturers as employ the strict "Spanish method" shall enjoy the full benefits of the bonded stamp provision, which was strongly protested against by more than a score of important local Havana cigar manufacturers as discrimination in favor of the Tampa manufacturers, is expected to be modified within the next few days.

The dispute as to the interpretation of the wording on the bond stamp, which has been in progress for the past two or three months between the local trade and the Tampa interests, is waxing stronger as the days go by without a decision from the Treasury Department. Charges of misrepresentation have been freely exchanged by both sides. The New York interests have been flooding the Treasury Department with demands that they be given rights equal to those granted to the Tampa manufacturers.

In the event that the prospective ruling of the Treasury Department does not so modify the bonded stamp regulations as to allow the so-called "team work" manufactured cigar to be labeled as "hand made," which the local interests insist it may properly be marked, an appeal will be made to President Wilson. Should these efforts prove unfruitful, a legal action seeking to restrain the Treasury Department from definitely defining the word "character" as contained in the last tariff act may ensue.

Special agents of the Treasury Department have been busily engaged for the past three weeks in making tours of investigation in the various principal Havana cigar manufacturing centers of the country, obtaining information as to the different methods pursued at the factories which may yet seek "made-in-bond" privileges from the Government. Public hearings were held at Chicago recently relative to the matter and the local trade leaders declare their contention for equal rights for the so-called "team work" cigar as those granted to the "Spanish method" product were strongly supported by the Chicago manufacturers.

KNICKERBOCKER.

"Greysolon" a New Cigar

The ever-progressive house of Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, with headquarters in Duluth, Minn., announces a new cigar, "Greysolon," made exclusively for them by the Greysolon Cigar Company. This cigar is said to be of absolutely clear Havana tobacco with a wrapper of the finest grade of Java.

"Optimos" Holding Their Own

QUITE a business is being done at the present time on the "Optimo" cigar, the worth-while product of A. Santaella & Company. Reports received at the company's office from the corps of salesmen now on the road are very encouraging, being backed up with orders of no mean proportions. "Optimos" are represented in New York State by M. Whitebone; Chicago is now being taken care of by Joe Carlisle, while R. Donovan is looking after the trade in Shreveport, La. New York City is taken care of by William Frisch. From present indications the season of 1914 gives promise of much success.

"Hamlet" New Waldorf-Astoria Company Brand

A new clear Havana brand made in Cuba for the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company has just been sent to the trade, and from reports the cigar is taking well with the consumers of high-grade cigars. This new piece of goods is called "Hamlet," and already a number of Chicago clubs have taken it on. "Hamlet" is made in fourteen sizes and sells at prices ranging from $120 to $340. Price lists have been sent out and inquiries are coming in rapidly.

"First Consul" Little Cigars

The New York market is receiving its first introduction to "First Consul Entre Actos," in packings of ten, retailing at a quarter a box. This innovation by P. Pohalski & Company seems to be meeting with favor throughout the city, judging from the initial sales. The package contains a miniature reproduction of the well-known "First Consul" label. In the little cigars the "First Consul" standard is well maintained.

Another "First Consul" packing that has met with favor is the "Paquetas," a blunt shape retailing at fifty cents a package, five in a foil-wrapped bundle.

Charles Landau Back From Long Trip

Charles Landau, United States and Canadian representative of H. Upmann & Co., has recently returned to this city after a long trip through parts of the United States and Canada. He brings with him the opinion that business is picking up and that the jobbers are re-stocking, having allowed their orders to be held up during the dull season. As a whole Mr. Landau seemed to think that trade conditions are showing much improvement, although admitting that there is still room for much more.

Mr. Landau's last stop was Montreal, where he placed some nice business for his lines.

The "Becker New Humidor Glass Box Lids" have recently been adopted for the "Charles Denby" cigar, which is produced from one of the largest factories in the world. This new feature which H. Fendrich, the manufacturer, has added will no doubt give a tremendous impetus to the sale of "Charles Denby." From previous experience it has been found that the lid gives an artistic touch of refinement which makes a strong appeal to smokers.

J. M. Diaz Goes Abroad

JOSE M. DIAZ, president of the Preferred-Havana Tobacco Company, sailed for Europe on the "Olympic" on Saturday, May 9th, to be gone about two months. Previous to his departure, Mr. Diaz stated that it was his intention to make strenuous efforts, both in Great Britain and on the Continent, to further extend the distribution of his company's well-known brands, which are now among the most popular in Europe.

Mr. Irijoa, who is South American representative for the Eden factories and the Preferred-Havana Tobacco Company, arrived in New York on the first of this month and sailed the day following for Havana, where he will get his new samples ready for their exclusive trade in South America.

F. Rodriguez Returns to Cuba

Felipe Rodriguez, proprietor of the Elite factory in Havana, left New York on Tuesday, May 12th, for his home in Havana, going by rail.

Mr. Rodriguez made his trip to New York strictly from a social standpoint, being desirous of visiting his mother, whose health had not been very good.

He was delighted to find that she was very much improved when he arrived North, and this, added to a good business report, sent him home in fine spirits.

Liggett & Myers to Sell Chewing Gum

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has closed a contract with the Wrigley Chewing Gum Company, whereby the latter will manufacture several brands exclusively for the tobacco company. The Liggett & Myers Company will sell these brands through the same channels that now handle the tobacco brands for the tobacco manufacturers.

Less Cigars, More Cigarettes.

Statistics concerning the output of tobacco products, inclusive of snuff, in the First, Second and Third Districts of Greater New York show that in the first four months of this year there has been a gain of about 250,000,000 in the production of cigarettes, as compared with production in the corresponding period a year ago. The actual figures are 2,438,032,880 for 1914, and 2,185,049,824 for 1913. The production of little cigars also showed a big gain, there having been 32,195,520 of these "smokers" turned out this year, against 17,853,586 in the first four months of 1913. Big cigars, on the other hand, fell off sharply, the current year's production to May 1st showing a total of 16,000,000 less than that of last year. Manufactured tobacco, however, fell off about 350,000 pounds.

C. K. Andrews to Represent "Arabesca" Cigarettes

The Arabesca Cigarette Company, has accomplished a fine deal in acquiring Charles K. Andrews, for many years one of the managers of the various United cigar stores, to represent "Arabesca" cigarettes. Mr. Andrews is widely known among the trade in New York and will undoubtedly be able to add many new accounts to their already wide list of distributors.

Many folks are born pessimists and are glad to air their views wherever an opportunity offers, but a calm consideration of the general conditions in the United States today, affords grounds for real worriment in an industry like that of tobacco.

Some of the Causes.

The withdrawal of thousands of soldiers and sailors to Mexico and Southern waters, removes a host of steady tobacco users, and it is to be hoped that their stay will not be long. Our military folks, both officers and men, are liberal spenders and thousands of dollars of Uncle Sam's salaries come back to the handlers of cigars and tobacco. The labor troubles in Colorado are also a factor which has already made itself distinctly felt in the orders received by numerous houses, who have enjoyed good trade in that territory.

The many thousands of hands which the railroads have recently laid off, together with the very large percentage of idle workmen in the textile industries, are all real facts which have not, by any means, helped the general condition of trade.

We are not calamity shouters in the least sense of the word, but it is to be sincerely hoped that a general revival of all branches of commercial life may be speedily affected.

The latest protest in regard to the "Made-in-Bond" law has created quite a turmoil and, despite a ruling which upholds the protest, the Treasury Department is giving the matter its fullest attention.

The Bonded Stamp Controversy.

It was brought to the attention of the authorities at Washington that manufacturers who are using the Government guarantee stamp, which specifies "Spanish method," are not using that process of manufacture, but rather "team work," which requires the labor of two men, one who makes the bunch, and another who works exclusively on the wrapper. The "Spanish method" requires only one man who works the bunch and the wrapper as well.

Tampa and Key West manufacturers who use the "Spanish method" object to the manufacturers who use the "team work" procedure, being allowed to use the Government stamp, which stipulates "Spanish method." They claim that trade usage does not recognize "team work" as producing a strictly hand-made cigar, and therefore are making every effort to have the letter of the law fulfilled.

Much of the argument rests on the word 'character," as to its meaning and use in the wording of the law. Some claim that it simply refers to the tobacco, its "character," as being guaranteed as to its origin. Others claim that it refers to both the origin of the tobacco and the method under which the cigar is produced.

Tampa manufacturers hold that any attempt to include "team work" in the terms, "hand-made" or "Spanish method" or "Made-in-Bond," is a deception as the former term cannot be included under the provisions of the guarantee stamp.

Definite action in the matter is expected within a few days, and meanwhile considerable capital is tied up by the recent ruling of the Treasury Department, upholding the protests of the Tampa and Key West manufacturers.

Should the Southern manufacturers be upheld permanently, it will work a hardship for a number of firms who have bonded their factories with the idea that working their tobacco into cigars by "team work" was permissible. The "Spanish method" is conceded to be a more expensive way of manufacturing cigars than by "team work," and a decision in favor of the "Spanish method" will place a number of manufacturers who have already gone ahead with the bonding process in a predicament. An adverse decision will undoubtedly considerably reduce the number of manufacturers who might take advantage of the new law.

Benjamin Duke in Apartment Deal

Benjamin N. Duke, the tobacco man, brother of James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company, and now head of the British-American Tobacco Company, recently paid $1,350,000 to the Paterno Construction Company, of which Dr. Charles V. Paterno is president, when he bought the new fourteen-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street. Duke is one of the largest real estate holders in New York City, having invested several million dollars in the last year or so.

The tobacco man's last purchase is the property at No. 200 West Fifty-eighth Street, which occupies a plot of four lots at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue. It is classed by architects as one of the finest apartment buildings in the world. It is to be held for investment, the rent roll being more than $125,000 a year. A. C. & A. L. Marks were the brokers in the transaction. Stoddard & Mark represented Dr. Paterno in the deal.

Tobacco Merchant in Panama Scandal

Following upon the sensational removal by Colonel Goethals of John Burke recently, who was the official purchasing agent for the Government in the Panama Canal Zone, the United States Grand Jury in New York, returned a number of indictments on last Thursday in which Burke is accused of accepting more than $10,000 in commissions and conspiring with certain agents who sold the Government supplies for use in Panama. Included in the indictments in this case, is one against Jacob Salas, a wealthy tobacco merchant, who has his home in New York at 1944 Madison Avenue, but who does not maintain any office in Manhattan. Mr. Salas is charged in the indictment as having made three payments to Burke totaling $8,200, in order to obtain contracts for furnishing tobacco used in the Canal Zone. Judge Hand, of the Federal Courts, issued a warrant for the arrest of Salas, and the defendant immediately appeared before the Court accompanied by his counsel and surrendered himself. Upon a demand from the United States District Attorney that Mr. Salas was likely to leave the jurisdiction of the Courts, bail was fixed at $10,000, which was furnished. Mr. Salas branded the charges against him as absurd and contends that his dealings with Burke were thoroughly regular. He has never charged more than the regular market price for tobacco, and that furthermore he is still selling tobacco down in the Canal Zone, though Burke has been out of there some six months.

Fred Griffin in Cuba

Fred V. Griffin, of the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, was a passenger on the "Saratoga," sailing for Havana on Saturday, May 2nd. He was accompanied by Mr. Lederer. This is Mr. Griffin's first trip to Cuba, and reports received from him since his arrival are to the effect that he has met with a royal reception on the island. Before leaving he stated, that this had been the very best year in the history of their business and that the crop in Connecticut had been sold down to the last pound. Mr. Griffin will return home in about a week. The only drawback to his trip was the fact that he would miss the convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association in Atlantic City, which gathering he has regularly attended for fourteen years.

A. L. Cuesta Cartooned

A. L. Cuesta's face smiles out at one from amongst the Shriners cartoons of the "Atlanta Journal's" issue of last Sunday. With embellishments about the drawing of the head of the "Truly Spanish House," a line of Shriners coming along the line, smoking Cuesta-Rey cigars and freely declaring it to be "Some Smoke," the picture cleverly cartoons the man.

Mr. Cuesta is pleased with the picture, apparently, for he is smiling all over. Perhaps the reception accorded the Shriners in Atlanta, and the reception they gave the Cuesta-Rey cigars, may account for his good humor.

Singer Creditors Offered 25 Per Cent.

A meeting of the creditors of the L. Singer Cigar Company, of Jersey City, N. J., was held recently, at which an offer of settlement was made by Samuel C. Burstein, head of this jobbing house. Most of the creditors were inclined to accept the 25 per cent. offered in settlement of all claims, but a few object to accepting the offer made.

The L. Singer Cigar Company filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy a few weeks ago, scheduling liabilities of about $14,000 and assets of about $12,000. At the first meeting of creditors it was said that the liabilities would be larger.

Wrapper Humidor for Cigarmakers' Tables

The Liberman Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, has invented and patented a wrapper humidor that can be attached to cigarmakers' tables. This humidor, it is expected, will effectually do away with the cloths which are pretty generally used to contain wrappers, while in the hands of cigarmakers. One of the chief advantages claimed for the wrapper humidor is absolute sanitation. It keeps wrappers in perfect condition for several weeks at a time. The moisture is regulated so that they are neither too dry nor too moist. Neither can they become streaked or full of fuzz, as generally happens to wrappers when they are rolled up in a cloth that is kept damp for several weeks. Wrappers after being in the humidor for several weeks at a time are in as fine condition as when put in.

Another feature of the wrapper humidor is its saving of labor. The lid of the humidor works automatically, and thus saves the time used in opening and closing a cloth whenever a wrapper is wanted. It also saves the time consumed wetting cloths several times a day. The humidor can be attached to the Liberman Suction Table in place of the old wrapper shelf or any wooden non-suction table in common use in factories.

The Liberman Manufacturing Company offers to send one of the wrapper humidors on trial to any responsible manufacturer.

Liggett & Myers Announce "Picnic" Chewing Gum

The following is the official announcement of Liggett & Myers regarding their arrangements with the William Wrigley, Jr., Company, for a house brand to be known as "Wrigley's Picnic Chewing Gum."

To our Customers:

We have arranged with Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company to manufacture for us a brand of chewing gum, which will be known as "Wrigley Picnic Chewing Gum," of the very best materials to be had—genuine chicle, genuine peppermint—both of the highest quality.

We solicit your orders for Picnic Chewing Gum, both for stock and for drop shipments. Our price is 55c. per box, subject to trade discounts of 10 per cent. and 5 per cent. deducted from face of invoice, and 2 per cent. discount for cash.

The wrapper from a five-cent package of Wrigley's Picnic Chewing Gum is a whole coupon, and may be assorted with our tags and coupons in securing presents shown in our catalogue.

Each box of Picnic Chewing Gum will count as one pound, and is subject to the same deals that apply on our various brands of tobacco, and may be included with tobacco both in orders for stock and for drop shipments.

Our salesmen will solicit orders for Wrigley's Picnic Chewing Gum from the retail trade along with tobacco in drop shipments and from your stock, and we will appreciate it if you will promptly order a small supply for your stock, so that the orders they take may be filled promptly.

Our salesmen will be instructed under no circumstances to quote a price to the retail trade less than 55c. per box, subject to two per cent. discount for cash.

All orders subject to acceptance by us.

No employee of this company has authority to change this, or any other circular, or any price list or letter of this company.

Very truly yours,
Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Getting Ready for Business

The Towe-Lemons Manufacturing Company, of Cedar Hill, Tenn., a $50,000 corporation recently chartered, has begun to install the machinery in their plant and expect to open for work within the next two weeks. The company will manufacture two types of tobacco sprayers, the invention of Messrs. Towe and Lemons, of Cedar Hill.

Straus & Dean Sell Former Stand

H. Crohn, of Astoria, Ore., recently purchased from Straus & Dean their cigar store at the corner of Twelfth and Commercial Streets. Straus & Dean recently secured the retail stand of Wm. Madison, and so decided to dispose of their former holdings.

New Feature for Demuth Pipe

Wm. Demuth & Co. have introduced a decidedly attractive feature in connection with their line of 50-cent pipes. Each pipe is packed in an individual sealed box, thus preventing the pipe from exposure to dust and dirt, insuring absolute cleanliness.

"Mi Hogar" cigars, E. P. Cordero & Co., are finding quite a demand through the efforts of J. H. Rankin, 117 State Street, Boston.

Ohio District Shows Decrease

The collections made from the cigar and tobacco manufacturing industry of the First Ohio Internal Revenue District during the month of March, followed up by the month of April, show a considerable decrease compared with the corresponding month last year. A comparison of the figures representing the production of cigars and tobacco for the expired portions of both the current fiscal and calendar year also reveals the fact that neither branch of the industry is as active as it was a year ago. A good many of the manufacturers are optimistic as to the future, but manifest considerable anxiety over the Mexican situation and the possibility of a war tax being saddled upon their products, which, in view of the prevailing industrial conditions, would not be conducive to a rapid expansion of trade in the immediate future.

The total collections from all sources on tobacco in the First Ohio District during the month of April, 1914, was $257,583.45, as contrasted with $273,234.82 the corresponding month last year, making a decrease of $15,651.37, or six per cent.. The total collections for the expired ten months of the current fiscal year amounted to $2,452,936.42, as against $2,630,399.49 the corresponding period of the last fiscal year, making a decrease of seven per cent.

During the month of April there were produced 14,281,-647 cigars, which was a decrease of 210,679, or two per cent. The production of smoking and chewing tobacco totaled 2,684,229 pounds, an increase of 62,351 pounds, or a little more than two per cent. Manufacturers of smoking and chewing tobacco may derive satisfaction from the fact that the April production was the largest of any single month since June, 1913, affording some ground at least for the hope of a better showing for the industry as a whole before the calendar year has expired.

Cyclone Damages Wisconsin Crops

The prospects for increasing the acreage of the 1914 tobacco crop in Wisconsin, are again handicapped by a disastrous tornado, which swept across the southern part of Dane County Monday morning, through the very heart of the large tobacco growing sections of the State, demolishing curing sheds that will be hard to replace the present season. Probably not less than 300 or 400 sheds have been razed, broken and reduced to kindling, involving a loss running close up to half a million dollars. Aside from the pecuniary loss the growers have sustained, they can neither secure the help, nor devote the time to repairing all the damage before a new crop can be raised. Some intended acreage must be reduced.

"Camel" Cigarettes in Buffalo

J. H. Flynn, of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, has been busy in Buffalo lately spreading the good news of "Camel" cigarettes. The California Shriners who were in Buffalo recently were the recipients of samples of this new cigarette. The camel is part of the lodge's insignia, and the distribution proved quite appropriate. Mr. Flynn's work is being effectively backed up by extensive newspaper advertising.

Hoffman Brothers Make Big Purchase

One of the biggest shipments of York County leaf tobacco made from York, Pa., for some time, was recently loaded at the Northern Central Railway freight warehouse and shipped to Bainbridge, Lancaster County. Hoffman Brothers, of Bainbridge, are named as the purchasers of the shipment, which included two carloads amounting to about 50,000 pounds.

A Liggett & Myers Booster

B. C. STONE

Herewith is presented a picture of B. C. Stone, who represents Liggett & Myers, and who has recently been giving Pittsburgh a good argument on "Velvet" and "Tam-Tam" cigarette papers. This healthy young man is quite popular in the "Smoky City," and has secured some very satisfactory results for his firm.

Western Pennsylvania has taken very kindly to the products of Liggett & Myers, and Mr. Stone usually has a busy time wherever he goes.

"Velvet" has been making quite a hit in this section and his order book has been well filled with many duplicate orders.

From Cigar Clerk to Speedway Pilot

From cigar clerk to contender on the speedway for the largest purse ever offered for an automobile race is a record of which Arthur Klein, youthful pilot of the King car in the Indianapolis speedway race, is very proud, relates Edwin M. Stone, King dealer Toledo, O. From handing out two-fors to competing for a share of the $50,000 purse in the greatest race of the ages, is a long jump. Young Klein, for he is young and in fact the most youthful of the sixty drivers who will take part in the race, always liked machinery and motors fascinated him. He attended college, and after leaving school took a position with the Peerless Motor Car Company, Cleveland, where he became road tester. This was his first racing experience. Since he has risen rapidly.

Pastor Won't Cease Use of Tobacco

The Congregational Church at Portland, Ind., will accept the resignation of the Rev. G. M. Griffiths, of Akron, O., who only a few months ago accepted the pastorate. Mr. Griffiths has returned to Akron.

He left the Portland church, it is reported, because members waited on him recently, urging him to cease the use of tobacco, which he declined to do.

William C. Hiles

William C. Hiles, a well-known tobacco man, died recently at his home, 608 Philadelphia Street, Cincinnati, O., after a lingering illness. Mr. Hiles had been an inspector on the brakes in Cincinnati for many years, and was probably one of the best-known men in Kenton County. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and one son.

Monument to Founder of Ybor City

TO commemorate the memory of V. Martinez Ybor, the man for whom Ybor City was named, and who founded the great Havana cigar busines in that place, there is a movement on foot to erect a statue to him in some place in Ybor City district, to be selected by City Councils.

V. Martinez Ybor was a native of Valencia, Spain, and later went to Cuba where, at the age of seventeen, he was in business as a commission merchant. In 1853 he started in the manufacture of cigars, with a small factory in Havana. There Ybor cigars were manufactured, up to the Ten-Year War, which broke out in 1868. The year before he had moved to Key West and opened his factory there. It was Mr. Ybor who "boomed" Key West as a center for the manufacture of cigars. After the big fire in Key West, Mr. Ybor came to Tampa and started a factory there.

When the new factory was built and moved into V. Martinez Ybor & Co. was organized, Mr. Ybor taking in with him his eldest son, Edward Martinez Ybor, and also Edward Manrara, who had started out as a clerk in one of the early Ybor factories. At the death of Edward Ybor the company was reorganized and became the V. Martinez Ybor & Manrara Company.

Mr. Ybor had many other business associations, and was the founder of the Florida Brewing Company, the Ybor City Land and Improvement Company and of the original street railway here, which operated with steam locomotives —"dummy" engines they were called. He died in 1896, at the age of seventy-eight years.

It is proposed by those who are back of this movement, and they are among the prominent business men of Ybor City, to build this statute by public subscription plans for the collection of which will be made shortly. The City Council has endorsed the movement, and when the proper time comes, will also aid in the selection of a suitable place for its erection.

The movement is along the lines of the city beautiful idea, those who started it being of the opinion that one of the best ways to bring about a city beautiful is to have statues to the memory of those who were the first to aid in the upbuilding of the city of Tampa.

American Tobacco Company Shows Increase

The American Tobacco Company has shown a big increase in business in all departments during the first four months of 1914. Cigarette sales increased 20 per cent. in January and February, and March and April also showed a large gain.

On March 1, the company received 27½ per cent. in dividends in the final windup of its holdings in the Imperial Tobacco Company, which amounted to $500,000. Even without this, it is expected that the company will do better in 1914 than in 1913 when it earned over 28 per cent. on the common, on which 20 per cent. is now being paid.

The three year period during which the original twenty-nine defendants in the tobacco dissolution case are forbidden to increase their holdings, will expire in November and this is expected to have some effect on the market prices of the shares of the largest money earners of the former combination.

Russia's tobacco acreage was appreciably reduced, owing to the increasing value of land and the greater wages of labor and the low prices brought by the tobacco when produced.

Riker-Hegeman Board to Meet May 20th

A meeting of the Riker & Hegeman Corporation will be held on the twentieth, when the new members representing the Whelan interests, will go on the board of directors. It is expected that an announcement will be made regarding stock distribution and possibly announcement will be made of the purchase of coupons from the recently formed United Profit-Sharing Coupon Company.

E. C. Berriman Coming to New York

E. C. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, the "Jose Vila" makers, who has been calling on the Pacific Coast trade, is now on his way East, and will reach New York shortly. The "Jose Vila" cigar has been going along nicely in the Far West, and the general trade has been up to expectations. Last week the New York Berriman offices were moved to the third floor of the building they have been in, at 1170 Broadway.

LEAF HELD BY MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS ON APRIL 1, 1914

712,252,744 and 396,520,908 pounds, respectively, and in the 1,359,252,597 pounds for April 1, 1913, 825,350,781 and 533,901,816 pounds, respectively. Allowance should be made for shrinkage on the amounts for which "marked weight" was reported in order to ascertain the actual weight.

(2) The 62,259,478 pounds of imported tobacco shown for April 1, 1914, the 55,721,559 pounds for October 1, 1913, and the 51,762,509 pounds for April 1, 1913, include the total amounts reported by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce as remaining in bonded warehouses April 1, 1914, and October 1 and April 1, 1913, plus the imported tobacco withdrawn from bond and held by dealers and manufacturers of the class covered by the law.

Trade Jottings

John W. Merriam, of John W. Merriam & Co., is expected home shortly after an extended trip through the Middle West.

Edward McCann has purchased the Brunswick cigar and billiard store on North Main Street, Kenton, O., from Glenn Brothers.

"Tuval," the clear Havana product of Marcelino Perez & Company, is holding its own, it being stated at the factory that orders are arriving from a number of points throughout the country.

Charles Winkelman has connected with Bilbin Brothers and will boost the company's "Elisardo" brand. Mr. Winkelman is at the present time assisting Ed Sachs in the Middle West and will look after certain territories for the company.

Edward C. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, is at the present time making his headquarters at the Imperial Hotel, Portland, Ore. Mr. Berriman plans to spend some time in Portland territory in the interests of the magnetic "Jose Vilas."

In addition to meeting with much success in the introduction of the Cado Company's new fifteen-cent brand of cigarettes in Cincinnati territory, where he spent a few days, Willis A. Andrus, of the Cado Company, also succeeded in listing some orders on the popular "56," which is well liked in Cincinnati.

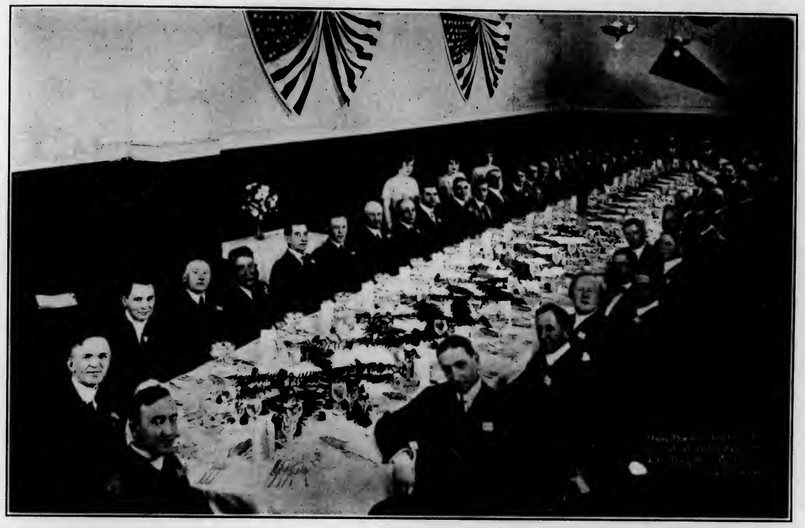
Paying Tribute to "Don Remo" in Los Angeles



"Don Remo" banquet, held April 25th at the Hollenbeck Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal., H. W. Hoyt and Joseph Goldsmith tendering this affair to the salesmen of M. A. Newmark & Co., representing A. Davis' Sons & Co., and the "Don Remo" cigar.

Standing at the side are the Misses Anderson, Rogers and Arling, who furnished the evening of entertainment with jolly song numbers.

ON April 25th was held the banquet tendered the salesmen of M. A. Newmark & Co. Messrs. Hoyt and Goldsmith had charge of the affair and, to their credit, it must be stated they conducted the banquet in an orderly and tactful manner. Not one was present last night who left the banquet room of the Hollenbeck Hotel but who had his fill of the best of "eats," drinks and smokes.

J. W. Hoyt, representing A. Davis' Sons & Company, of Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of the "Don Remo" and "J. B." cigars, handled by Newmark & Company in this territory, gave this banquet, together with Joseph Goldsmith, representing M. A. Newmark, & Company, in appreciation of all that the salesmen of the house of "Newmark" have done for the "Don Remo" cigar.

Mr. Hoyt answered calls for a speech by giving a resume of the work done on "Don Remo" since he came to the coast and commented on the spirit of the men present. He had nothing but praise for the men who have put "Don Remo" to the front in such a short while.

Joseph Goldsmith responded, saying: "The success of the 'Don Remo' cigar up to this time can be attributed to the splendid sales force of the company of 'Newmark.' I propose that we use as our slogan the words, 'Two Million "Don Remos" in 1915.'"

The following telegram was received by Mr. Hoyt from Allen Davis while the latter was in New York on business. It was read amid hurrahs and cheers for A. Davis & Company:

"Extend my greeting to our friends. I am with them in spirit, tell them. It's our aim to merit the confidence and co-operation of the house of Newmark. May each of those gathered know that we mean to affiliate with them. Accept and offer my sincere best wishes.

Allen Davis.

Herbert Flatau spoke in regard to the credit allowed M. A. Newmark & Company by A. Davis' Sons & Company, as regards to "Don Remo" cigars. He made a most favorable impression on those present.

The following is the letter of greeting to the House of M. A. Newmark & Company received prior to the banquet tendered the firm by Messrs. Hoyt and Goldsmith:

Cincinnati, O., April 15, 1914.

Greetings to the House of M. A. Newmark & Co.

Gentlemen:

The makers of "Don Remo" regret that they are not present on the significant and happy occasion of this gathering.

This gathering in honor and for the fame of "Don Remo" is important. We hope it will establish new friendships and strengthen old ones. It represents for us the expression of the centralized-condensed purpose of the selling of the most influential and best-known institution in Southern California.

Do you realize that the house of M. A. Newmark & Company has grown to the proportions of an institution?

It is known in every hamlet, village and city, which for hundreds of miles in every direction looks to Los Angeles, metropolis of fashion, progress and commerce—for the foremost products of the times! Therefore those of you who are calling on the trade for M. A. Newmark & Company—daily—represent—(consciously or unconsciously) the weight and influence which the name of M. A. Newmark & Company carries with it—for every merchant and tradesman within the broad scope of Los Angeles' trade circles.

With this vast advantage at the outset, it remains with each of you personally, to put the force and vigor into the work of presenting the wares of your firm! This would especially apply to those articles and brands of goods which are controlled by your concern.

To properly present an article—it is necessary to talk it—eloquently—often—always—and with the knowledge that the experience and judgment of your concern is back of it!

Work on the basis that "If it comes from the house of Newmark—it must be right!"

Here's where we come face to face with "Don Remo," a cigar—"in a class—separate," with our guarantee and your firm's endorsement back of it! We ask you to do your important share in making this the most prominent—best selling cigar on the broad face of that God-favored land of sunshine and prosperity—wherever you travel. "Don Remo" has the quality, you have the ability and we ask you to make this a personal issue to sell "Don Remo" and to talk it!

"He who has goods to sell, and goes and whispers down a well,
Is not so apt to reap the dollars, as he who climbs a tree and hollers."

Through our esteemed representative, Mr. Hoyt, we express our appreciation and kind regards to each of you—and we thank you in advance for the "Don Remo" sales totals, which we hope will be matters of proud record and history sixty days hence.

Yours,

A. Davis' Sons & Company.

Cigar Department of G. & R. McMillan, Detroit

This department is owned by Bert Johnson, one of the "livest wires" in the Automobile City. He can be identified in the accompanying photograph by the big smile—that's Bert. In the foreground, Al Neff, his faithful clerk, is also showing the effects of good business.

Chicago

Retailers Think Business Good—Jobbers Find Season Backward—Chicago to Be as Dry "As the Hinges of Kingdom Come" is Prediction—J. G. Davis Advertising "Tom Keene"

WHILE the cigar and tobacco business has not escaped in a measure the general depression which has existed in all lines here during the past few weeks, nevertheless few complaints are heard among the trade, and some of the retailers have gone so far as to say that they have had one of the best trades in many years during the spring season. With summer on the threshold, and with the amusement parks opening and the baseball and vacation seasons near at hand, the retailers feel that they need not have any fear as to the future. Jobbers have been booking the usual number of orders for this time of the year. In fact, if it were not for the unfortunate labor situation in this territory it would be safe to say that conditions are a little better than normal.

While the labor trouble does not exist in the trade, the unrest which is created in labor circles is bad for business. In the first place 125,000 bricklayers are now out on a strike, and at the present time it does not look as if any permanent settlement was in sight. In addition to the bricklayers, a determined strike has been made by the waitresses of the leading restaurants of the city. While at first this strike was regarded with some amusement by the public, a more accurate knowledge of the conditions under which the girls allege they must work has resulted in a wide-spread boycott of the restaurants which have fallen under the displeasure of the girls. Girl pickets, carrying the American flag over the shoulder, take turns in parading in front of the restaurants, and there is no question but that the public for the most part believes that they ought to be granted the few modest demands which they are making of the proprietors.

Of course all this is bad for the cigar business. A place like Henrici's, which is one of the storm centers of the strike, sells many thousands of high-grade imported and domestic cigars a month. Trouble of this sort means that the number of cigars sold is much less than under normal conditions. Orders are not placed with the jobbers and thus business is made dull all along the line back to the leaf man.

While troubles in the city during the past few weeks have done some harm to the trade, other troubles which were not so closely limited have been making for slow trade in the smaller towns of the Middle West. Local option has almost eliminated the saloon from the countryside. The writer saw a wet and dry map of Illinois the other day, and was surprised to find what a small portion of the state remained wet. With the exception of Peoria, East St. Louis and one or two other points besides Chicago, the entire map showed dry.

"In five years," said a prominent liquor dealer of this city, "Chicago will be as dry as the hinges on the gates of kingdom come."

One of the other things which has worked against the jobbers of cigars during the past month has been the fact that license time has just passed. Forking out $500 in license money, for which no return other than a neatly engraving scroll bearing the picture of the City Hall is received, does not tend to make the saloon men order cigars until they are quite certain that the last box has been sold.

J. G. Davis & Company, distributors for Bondy & Lederer, with "Tom Keene" cigar as a leader, are using a successful advertising campaign in the Middle West, according to Mr. Davis. Sitting in the office of the company in the Masonic Temple, Mr. Davis told the details of the plan. The road salesmen of the company work in crews. Prior to the time that they enter a town a gigantic advertising campaign is started in that immediate vicinity. Newspapers, billboards, hand bills and every other form of publicity is used. In this manner when the sales force enters a town the merchants, as well as the people, are prepared to investigate "Tom Keene" cigars. Mr. Davis as an advertiser has much of the "keenness" which distinguished Colonel Davis, his father, who was formerly connected with the business and who was said in his day to be one of the best advertising men when it came to cigars who ever conducted a business in this city.

The property at the northeast corner of North Clark and Maple Streets, for many years owned and occupied by Liggett & Myers as a tobacco factory, has been leased for ninety-nine years at a net annual ground rent of $2000. Capitalized on a five per cent. basis this gives a leasing value of $40,000, which is at the rate of a little over $615 a front foot. Since being vacated by Liggett & Myers the factory has been occupied by the Enterprise Broom Works. The place is well known to most of the tobacco men of Chicago and is a land mark on the north side.

Frank Cowley, formerly with the Ruhsstrat-Cowley Company, and manager of the cigar department of Franklin MacVeagh & Company, has gone with Grommes & Elston as a city salesman.

The cigar concession for White City, one of the largest and most popular summer resorts in the city, has been obtained by I. B. Berger and E. O. Daitch. Both are experienced more or less in the cigar business, and if the weather is seasonable expect to make a big thing of their chance. White City opens this week.

William A. Vorhauer & Company is the name of a new Chicago jobbing house which has been established at 206 West Randolph Street. The firm will distribute the goods of the Bolano factory. Among other brands which will be handled by the house are "Lucia y Elgardo," which is also made by the Bolano factory, and the "Royal Banner," a Detroit product. The company will start business with the following experienced sales force: F. C. Vorhauer, Fred Brunton, E. H. Lee and F. B. Schrader.

Joe Wertheim, of E. M. Schwartz & Company, made a flying visit to Chicago last week. Albert Korn, representing S. H. Furgatch, was also a visiting cigar man.

"Business has been fair among the leaf men of the city from all I have heard," said William Taussig, prominent Chicago leaf man. "Collections from the country are good and I look for a fair volume of business this summer, as the manufacturers are buying wisely, if not as heavily, as some of us might wish."

G. W. WHITCOMB.

Saginaw Cigar Company Elect Directors

At a meeting of the Saginaw Cigar Company, Saginaw, Mich., recently, directors were elected as follows: C. E. Lown, Peter Beck, William J. Mertz, William F. Hemmeter, S. S. Novak, George Petre, Henry Steller, Joseph L. Weigl and Edwin Kersten. The directors elected the following officers: President, C. E. Lown; vice-president, William J. Merz; secretary, Edwin Kersten; treasurer, Peter Beck.

Terry & Duncan Boosting "Savarona" Cigars

TERRY & DUNCAN, Philadelphia distributors of "Savarona" cigars, are giving the patrons of that brand an opportunity to become better acquainted with that likeable bit of Porto Rican goods and are distributing that splendidly illustrated brochure called "Scenes in Savorona Land." This booklet has been prepared and printed by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company for the purpose of educating the consumer in regard to "Savorona" cigars. Everything that has any bearing on the manufacture of this cigar, from the growing of the weed to the inspection of the goods before shipment, is illustrated or described in this book.

It is needless to say that Terry & Duncan are doing nicely with the brand.

J. G. Atherholt to Open New Store

J. G. Atherholt, formerly at 111 South Broad Street, has announced that he will shortly open a cigar store at 223½ South Broad Street, occupation of these quarters being delayed by renovation work and the installation of new fixtures.

Following the plan which made the former stand a success, Mr. Atherholt will stock all the well-known brands of clear Havana houses, as well as Tampa and Key West goods. Popular brands of Philadelphia-made goods will also receive careful attention.

Yahn & McDonnell Take on "Garcia Grande"

The distribution of the "Garcia Grande," manufactured by J. Klorfeim, 45 Fulton Street, New York, has recently been acquired by Yahn & McDonnell. This cigar is a newcomer in the local market and is making a strong bid for recognition among the smokers of mild Havana cigars. Yahn & McDonnell are carrying it in four sizes.

Acker Selling Gene-Vall "Cubans"

The Gene-Vall Cigar Company, Inc., 801 Third Avenue, New York City, have placed their well-known "Cubans" in the Acker stores in Philadelphia.

This is a nickel cigar of Havana seconds and has won considerable attention for the cheaper grade of smokes.

That the "Alona," also the product of the firm, is continuing in demand is evidenced by the case display which the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store is making on the brand, under the direction of J. Durbin Acker.

Philadelphia Notes

Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, was looking after the interests of that company in Philadelphia last week.

Henry Reisenberg, who is travelling through Wisconsin and Illinois in the interest of "Bold" cigars, is receiving many duplicate orders.

Isadore Mayer, representing the brands of Jeitles & Blumenthal, started West on his regular trip on May 6th. His first stop was Peoria, Ill.

Sidney Kane was in Philadelphia this week with the well-known smile of E. Regensburg & Sons, and did splendid business on the "American," and other brands of the firm.

"Statesmen" cigars, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, are duplicating nicely and jobbers are taking them on in good quantities.

W. P. Bushell, the Jose Lovera representative, left Philadelphia on May 12th for a trip through the South. The smoke that will receive the greater portion of attention is the "Banderos," a clear Havana cheroot.

A splendid demonstration on "Strafford" cigars, manufactured by the El Draco Cigar Company, appeared in a window of the Rumsey-Borel Drug Company, Fifty-second and Market Streets, last week. The display was very attractively gotten up and as a result drew a large crowd of admirers.

L. M. Waters, who is at present in the Middle West, is blazing a trail for "Bold" cigars that establishes a record for him in that territory. His orders show a big increase over his previous trips, and from the size of those which have come to the factory this week there is every indication that business is taking a decided turn for the better.

E. G. Walthall, representing the El Draco Cigar Company, is at present in St. Louis doing missionary work for the Myers Brothers Drug Company, on the "Stratford" brand. Business in Missouri is moving nicely and a good increase is expected as a result of the efforts now being put forth by Mr. Walthall.

the purpose of obtaining relief if the manufacturers will take some action in providing for meeting and propaganda in those sections where the industry is affected. The resolution in part will be found elsewhere.

Mr. Mendelsohn spoke at some length in support of his resolution, and after some debate it was carried.

The next matter taken up by the convention was a resolution indorsing the Underwood Anti-Coupon Bill which has recently been shelved by the Ways and Means Committee in Washington. The resolution was adopted and a committee appointed to take charge of the matter.

On Tuesday the delegates considered a resolution relating to the distribution of free tobacco seeds by the government authorities. This provided that the government authorities be requested not to distribute tobacco seeds except of strains of approved types acceptable to packers and leaf dealers of the particular section in question. This was amended to include cigar manufacturers as well and was passed. An amendment to include growers failed.

John R. Young took the floor in regard to a ruling of the Internal Revenue Department requiring that all leaf tobacco sold by one dealer to another should be in quantities of not less than a bale, case or hogshead and that the factory number of a purchaser who was a manufacturer should be entered in the record book, as well as his post-office address. Mr. Young explained that the attempt to enforce this ruling led to the organization of the National Leaf Association sixteen years ago. Mr. Young further stated that there was no warrant of law for this ruling. Felix Eckerson explained that the portion of the ruling relating to the minimum amount of tobacco that could be transferred at a sale had been rescinded. The Association went on record as opposed to the original ruling as the strict enforcement of the same would prevent the use of samples in making sales.

Charles Fox next outlined a plan for the securing of new members for the Association. The report which he presented and which follows was adopted.

"We recommend that the country be divided into territories by selecting a number of the principal cities and constituting these the central points of a territory within a convenient radius of same. To explain, select, for example, Boston, Hartford, New York, Philadelphia, Lancaster, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Dayton and others. Appoint one man for each of these territories, said man to be selected by the president from members of this association, preferably such as will volunteer their services, and said appointee shall have the power of naming assistants.

"It shall be the duty of these representatives or committees to call upon the leaf dealers, tobacco growers and packers in their respective territories, also upon cigar manufacturers who have a leaf dealer's license, and endeavor to prevail upon them to become members of the National Association.

"All legitimate expenses of the committees or representatives to be paid out of the funds of the National Association.

"In such cities or territories where a local leaf organization exists it should be the endeavor of the committee or representative to induce said organization to affiliate with the National Association.

"Where a territory embraces a sufficient number of dealers, packers or growers to warrant same, it shall be the endeavor of the committee to induce these dealers, packers and growers to form a local organization and have such local organization affiliate with the National Association.

"Whenever it is not possible to induce a local organization to affiliate with the National Association, then it shall be the endeavor of the committee to induce as many individuals as possible to become members of the National Association.

"We further recommend that the membership committee be the central committee, to the chairman of which all local committees shall make reports and to whom all accounts for expenses incurred shall be submitted for audit and order for payment.

"The membership committee shall also be empowered to, in their judgment and discretion, inaugurate a publicity campaign."

The delegates accepted the invitation of Dayton, O., to hold the next convention in that city.

Following is the list of officers and delegates and alternates present:

The preamble and resolution in regard to the Bonded Stamp controversy, prepared by Joseph Mendelsohn, in part follows:

To The National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, Greetings:

. . . "and the boxes or packages containing such cigars shall be stamped to indicate their character, origin of tobacco from which made, and place of manufacture."

Character is a quality applied both to persons and things. A suit of clothes made by a Fifth Avenue tailor does not make a gentleman out of a loafer, any more than a suit from the Bowery can make a loafer out of a gentleman.

One has to come in contact with man to judge his character, his quality, and one has to taste or eat a meal before judging its quality.

So it is with the cigars. The character of a cigar can only be determined by the smoking of it: where it was made or how it was made is not the determining factor. The origin of its material establishes its character whether made good, bad or indifferent, according to the conception of the smoker. It seems, therefore, clear that the intent of the law, reading its character and origin, should be taken as one and the same thing.

To define on the bond label anything else but the fact that cigars are made of tobaccos from one country is a violation of the law and should not be tolerated.

The entire creation of the bonded factory was an unnecessary measure. Manufacturers have in their label and trade-mark laws sufficient protection against the imposters, and furthermore, it works a hardship on such manufacturers who neither have the buildings or means to comply with the requirements as imposed by the government. It furthermore stigmatizes manufacturers who really make genuine clear Havana cigars with a cloak of doubt in their honesty if they do not bond their factories. While, on the other hand, it gives the unscrupulous manufacturer who bonds his factory a chance to work off on the unsophisticated public a cigar made of the most inferior tobaccos cloaked and protected by the patent given it by the bonded stamps.

In view of all these facts, we are unalterably opposed to the proposition that labels assigned to bonded factories should carry any other notice than that the cigars are made in bond and contain tobacco from one country only, and shall neither in wording or color of label indicate that the cigars were made by various methods of workmanship.

Be it Resolved, That this association will give its moral and material support to the manufacturers who may see fit to make the proper presentations and protests before the administration at Washington, and furthermore

Be it Resolved, That a committee of three, appointed by the chair, shall have power to confer and act with a committee of the manufacturers. Furthermore

Be it Resolved, That this association set aside a sum, not exceeding $1000, for the purpose of obtaining the desired relief, providing the manufacturers interested will take the initiative in providing for the necessary meetings and propaganda in all sections where their industry is affected by this legislation. Furthermore

Be it Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the proper authorities in Washington and be published in the trade papers, and also be sent to as many manufacturers as the committee to be appointed may deem advisable.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH MENDELSOHN.

The opening address of President Hess follows:

The National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association has completed the sixteenth year of its history, and here within the sound of the tireless waves of the Atlantic we are again assembled in annual convention. The experience of our organization during the sixteen years was not unlike the restless deep. There have been times when the tranquility of our organization has been rent and torn by fierce storms of earnest agitation, as honest opinions differed on issues that confronted us. There were times when the sky was dark and when ominous clouds hung low on the horizon, as waves of greed and avarice and acts inspired by motives that were not well supported by the principle of the golden rule seemed to threaten the industry we have the honor to represent. We have passed through severe storms and heavy seas, but not without profit. It was during these trying times that there arose from among the crew of our membership heroes, who sprang eagerly into the conflict and gave cheerfully of their energy and their substance, and strove valiantly to do their part in carrying our craft through the troubled waters into the harbor of a larger industrial freedom and a broader conception of the general good. It was during these times, when our membership stood shoulder to shoulder, that we became solidly welded into a bond of fellowship that should and does insure a long and prosperous future for the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.

Then again there have been times when we have settled down like the sea, when storms are o'er, when each one is busied following the path of his own business. The past year has been one of that kind. There have been no great new issues confronting us and we have all been absorbed with the affairs of our individual business. Still there are many issues that we can discuss with profit during the sessions of this convention.

In our deliberations of the past the tariff has played so important a part that it seems natural to look to it to find a topic of interest. You will recall that when we assembled here one year ago the Underwood Tariff Bill had passed the National House of Representatives and was referred to the Senate for its concurrence. You will recall that in the report of your officers at that time attention was called to a section in that bill, which provided that all articles, the growth or product of or manufactured in the Philippine Islands from materials, the growth or product of the Philippine Islands or of the United States or of both, or which do not contain foreign materials to the value of more than fifty per cent. of their total value or twenty per cent. in case of manufactures of tobacco, shall hereafter be admitted free of duty. You will recall that after an exhaustive discussion we adopted a resolution embodying a vigorous protest against the passage of this provision as embodied in paragraph C of section IV of the tariff bill. You doubtless know that in spite of our protest the bill was passed with this provision in it, and the following figures show clearly the wisdom of our position taken one year ago. They should serve to maintain our vigilance in endeavoring to have the provision sighted above repealed or modified whenever an opportunity is afforded. In 1910 there were imported into the United States from the Philippine Islands 82,470,300 cigars. You will recall that this was under the Act of 1909, and the cigars were made from Philippine tobacco, which did not appeal to the taste of the American smoker. As a result of which the importation of Philippine cigars during the following year of 1911 decreased to 44,219,470, a decrease of more than eighty per cent. During the year 1912 the importers of Philippine cigars managed to increase the importation by improving the cigar to 63,852,600. During the year 1913 we find that the importations increased to 123,014,110, or nearly three times the amount that were imported during the year 1911. This is still a small quantity, as compared with the entire amount consumed in the United States, but with the privilege of using tobacco grown in the United States and a proportion of tobacco grown outside of either the Philippine Islands or the United States and with the advantage in labor offered in the Philippine Islands these importations are likely to increase to such an extent as to seriously interfere with both American labor and the business of our membership, and the issue is by no means a dead one. I leave it to the good judgment of this convention to take such action as they think proper.

Another issue that has been inherited from a preceding year is that of leaving a tax on tobacco coupons and on gifts accompanying the sale of tobacco products. At our convention one year ago we passed a resolution indorsing such legislation. On April 23, 1914, a bill was introduced by Mr. Underwood in the National House of Representatives. The title of this bill is:

"A bill to levy a tax on tobacco coupons and on gifts accompanying the sale of tobacco products, and to prohibit the inclusion of certain articles in tobacco packages."

This bill was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, who accorded all parties interested a hearing, subsequent to which it was referred to a sub-committee. The sub-committee reported it back to the committee with a favorable recommendation. But on April 28th, by vote of ten to seven, the committee postponed further consideration of the bill until the next session of Congress, which begins in December and terminates on March 4, 1915. This was a complete surprise and a disappointment to the many friends of the bill, who hoped that it would be reported to the House with a favorable recommendation without further delay. This need not deter this convention from taking aggressive action in its support and I submit it to you for your consideration.

On February 12, 1914, Mr. Stevens, of New Hampshire, introduced a bill to prevent discrimination in prices and to provide for publicity of prices to dealers and to the public. This bill is intended to permit a manufacturer to prescribe the price at which goods manufactured by him under a trade name or trade-mark shall be sold. It has provoked wide discussion. I believe it to be a measure of more than ordinary importance to the cigar and leaf trade; in fact, I believe that if this bill is enacted into law it will result in greater benefit than any legislation of recent introduction and I submit it to you for your consideration.

I also submit for your consideration a suggestion in reference to the reports of stock on hand made semi-annually by the Bureau of the Census in the Department of Commerce of our National Government. Would it not be beneficial to all branches of the trade if the department would classify the tobacco on hand at the end of each six-month-period by separating the tobacco owned by manufacturers, who have a dealers' license, from the tobacco held by those who are dealers only. In other words, I suggest that we endeavor to have the act amended so that the report will show what amount of tobacco is held by manufacturers and what amount is held by dealers.

The foregoing is a review of the legislative activities that have effected our industry during the past year. There are possibly other measures, such as the Panama Canal tolls, the situation in Mexico, the action taken by the Attorney General versus the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, etc., that exert more or less influence on the business we represent, and they are each submitted to your consideration for such action, if any, as you may see fit to take. Permit me to suggest that it has at times occurred to me that we are inclined to specialize too much on the legislative needs of our trade, and that in doing so we are inclined to lose sight of other vital commercial needs. As an organization and as individual members of a great industry, we should be vigilant in our watchfulness of proposed legal measures and should be ready and willing at all times to lay before the members of our legislative bodies, who are frequently men who do not understand our needs, the results of our experience. Yet we should be equally vigilant in supplying our commercial needs. There is a large field of opportunity open to our association entirely outside of the legislative field. When we planned for the establishment of a credit bureau and for the distribution of literature intended to assist the growers in growing a better product, and when we planned to promote a higher standard of honor and responsibility between the members of our trade, we entered a field that is fundamental and I trust that efforts in these and many other directions will be continued until our industry will be placed upon a plain as high as its magnitude and importance deserves.

In conclusion, permit me to thank each and every member for the advice and assistance that has been so freely given during my incumbancy in office. I can wish no greater gift to my successor than that you will stand by him in the same steadfast manner that you stood by me. Many things have occurred during this period that have made a lasting impression on my mind and that memory will often recall with satisfaction and pleasure as the years go by. I wish to assure you of my heartfelt appreciation of the honor you have thrice bestowed upon me. Permit me to say that, while we have most likely made some mistakes, they were mistakes of the head, and not of the heart. We have conscientiously persued such policies as we believed to be for the best interest of our association. May the same spirit of hearty shoulder to shoulder co-operation ever characterize the future of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.

AARON B. HESS,
President.

A splendid banquet was held at the Marlborough-Blenheim on Tuesday evening. The Banquet Committee included Major Newburg, Ferdinand Cranz and M. Rosenthal

The new directors elected are: Ferdinand Cranz, of New York; A. B. Hess, of Lancaster; J. F. Cullman, Jr., of New York; B. L. Haas, of Hartford; Felix Eckerson, of Philadelphia, and Henry Kraus, of Baltimore. The directors who have another year to serve are Carl W. Wobbe, of New York; Fred W. Miller, of Cincinnati; L. A. Wheeler, of Troy, O.; Samuel Jaskulek, of Cleveland; E. J. Joel, of Boston, and I. H. Weaver, of Lancaster. KNICKERBOCKER.

OBITVARY

George J. Light

George J. Light, secretary and treasurer of Whelan Brothers, Incorporated, and identified with the C. A. Whelan Company, a corporation operating a string of cigar stores in New York State, ended his own life Thursday night, April 30, at his home, 1027 East Genessee Street, Syracuse, N. Y. Death was caused by cyanide of potassium poisoning. Deceased, while only 37 years old, had complete charge of the five retail stores conducted by the Whelan Brothers in Syracuse. During the entire week preceding his demise he had been exceptionally active because of the presence in Syracuse of auditors in the employ of the company. The owners of the Whelan stores in Syracuse are said to be planning several changes in its management, and Mr. Light was engaged in this work. The late Mr. Light who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Light, of 103 West Raynor Avenue, Syracuse, was educated in Syracuse and when a young man entered the employ of Whelan Brothers as a clerk in one of their stores. His rise was rapid and for the past several years he had been in charge of all business done by the company in Syracuse. Ten years ago he married Miss Beatrice Gustadt, and their only child, George, now is only one year old. Deceased was a member of Syracuse Lodge No. 501, F. and A. M., the Elks, Odd Fellows and the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. For many years he had taken an active part in the affairs of the Temple Society of Concord. Besides his parents and his wife and son the late Mr. Light is survived by two brothers, Jesse and Mandel Light, and one sister, Miss Belle Light, all of Syracuse, N. Y. During the funeral services, which were held Monday, May 4th, at the home in Syracuse, the five stores of the Whelan Brothers in that city were closed.

James William Dean

James William Dean, for fourteen years chief clerk for D. D. Smith, the tobacconist, on Fairfield Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., died recently at the home of his parents, 297 Madison Avenue. "Billy," as he was popularly known, was the friend of thousands of Bridgeporters. His characteristics were such as to inspire the confidence of all who knew him, and there is genuine regret at his passing. He was thirty-five years old and unmarried.

Aaron W. Hexter

Aaron W. Hexter, of San Francisco, chief city salesman for the firm of Boltz, Clymer & Co., Philadelphia and Tampa, died suddenly in that city recently. The deceased was about fifty years old and had been an outside salesman for Boltz, Clymer & Co., for a number of years. He had previously conducted a retail cigar business.

Michael J. Malloy

Michael J. Malloy, a widely known tobacconist, of 32 Canisteo Street, Hornell, N. Y., was found dead at his home, 3 Main Street, on May 5th. Heart disease was given as the cause of his sudden demise.

Mr. Malloy was a manufacturer of cigars and operated a retail store as well. He was born in New York. At one time he operated a factory in Albany, but later came to Hornell, twenty-six years ago, and opened a cigar factory. The deceased was fifty-seven years old.

Mr. Malloy is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Sol Rosenor

Widespread regret in the trade, we are sure, will follow our chronicling of the death of Sol Rosenor, the well-known and well-liked vice-president of the Jose Lovera Company and E. M. Schwartz & Co., whose sudden death, due to an attack of apoplexy on board an Eighth Avenue street car at Central Park, West and Eighty-sixth Streets, New York City, occurred on May 12th.

Mr. Rosenor had been allied with the tobacco trade practically all of his life, and for a number of years bore an enviable reputation as a cigar salesman. When the Havana-American Company was formed, in 1900, by the amalgamation of some ten or more clear Havana cigar firms of prominence, Mr. Rosenor occupied a distinctive connection with that company, which he used to advantage in the interests of James B. Duke and his associates, when the Havana-American Company was later taken over by the American Tobacco Company interests. Mr. Rosenor was first vice-president of the Havana-American Company, which position he relinquished about four years ago to join the forces of the Jose Lovera Company and E. M. Schwartz & Co., with which houses he continued up until the time of his death. Extensively acquainted in the trade, embracing many sections of the United States, Mr. Rosenor was instrumental in the accomplishing of many business deals for the concerns with which he was associated. Mr. Rosenor was a member of many clubs and organizations of a social nature. He is survived by a widow and a young son. Interment will be made at his old home in Louisville.

Colonel Louis Schaffner

Colonel Louis Schaffner, an old resident of Chicago, died May 5th, at 610 Fullerton Parkway. He was 87 years old. He was born in Alsace on July 25th, 1827, and came to America when 9 years old. He served in the Civil War and later was lieutenant colonel of the One Hundred and Fifty-third Illinois Volunteer Infantry.

He went to Chicago after the war and was for many years a tobacco merchant. He served as alderman of the old Fourteenth Ward in 1871.

Samuel Baker

Samuel Baker, aged 70, a pioneer tobacco merchant, of Chicago, died recently in Baltimore, Md., where he had lived for the past ten years. Mr. Baker was one of the founders of the firm of Spauling & Merrick, tobacco manufacturers, at 820 South Kildare Avenue, Chicago. Mr. Baker sold his interest in 1893 and for several years did not engage in any business. For the past two years he has been an invalid.

The deceased is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters.

George Albertson

George Albertson, fifty-one years old, a cigar dealer, who had been in business in Kensington for many years, died on Monday at his home, 1764 Frankford Avenue, following an attack of kidney trouble, from which he had suffered since March.

For years he had been an active Republican worker in the Nineteenth Ward. Mr. Albertson was noted in Kensington as a friend of children. During the summer months the front of his place of business seemed to be a headquarters for the younger folk of that section. His widow survives.

Samuel H. Wells

Samuel H. Wells, a well-known tobacco grower of Hazardsville, Conn., died on May 9th, as the result of a shock which developed into pneumonia. He was seventy-six years old. Mr. Wells is survived by a son and a daughter.

Where "First Consul" Campaigns Are Planned

This photograph shows E. R. Lincoln, of the firm of Lincoln Brothers, proprietors of P. Pobalski & Co., in the foreground. This firm has an established reputation for the standard maintained by "First Consul" cigars, which are smoked by lovers of high-grade goods throughout the entire United States.

NEW HOME FOR "ZIG-ZAG" CIGARETTE PAPERS

Reports From France Tell of New Factory—C. Drucklieb, Inc., Represent Braunstein Freres in United States

THE agent and representative of Braunstein Freres, makers of the famous "Zig-Zag" cigarette papers in the United States, C. Drucklieb, Inc., of New York, recently received word from the manufacturers that this well-known Parisian firm has begun the erection of a new factory for the manufacture of cigarette papers.

The new plant is along the banks of the Seine, and from the river and surrounding country those who look about may read the words "Zig-Zag" in white enameled brick prominently displayed on the one hundred and ninety-foot chimney which rises above the factory power house.

The buildings are now completed—the eight boilers are lying in front of them—the turbine and immense dynamo are being installed and two paper machines are being erected. All that work is made easier by a siding from the railway station coming right into the mill and by an electric railway taking the materials unloaded by a powerful crane on the bank of the River Seine.

The two paper machines are fitted with the latest improvements which science and modern invention has perfected, and the arrangement of the whole mill is unequaled in Europe.

Two motor boats on the River Seine connect that mill with their other mill at Gassicourt, where five paper machines are in operation, and with Havre, where the goods are shipped in large quantities to all parts of the world, including the United States. The production of the seven machines will be ten tons of cigarette paper every twenty-four hours, a quantity sufficient to make 250 million cigarettes daily.

The building of this second mill at Elbeuf-on-the-Seine is a far-sighted move on the part of Braunstein Freres. Having two mills at such distance apart, prevents them from being disabled in case of strike by working men or mishap to one mill.

Tobacco Association of the United States to Convene

According to current reports, the annual meeting of the Tobacco Association of the United States, which will be held in Louisville, Ky., June 16th and 17th, moving on to Lexington June 18th, is to be a very important one in addition to being one of the most elaborate ever held. It is expected that five hundred tobacco men, in addition to bankers and sellers of tobacco supplies, will attend. Secretary G. E. Webb, of the Association, is hard at work with his assistants taking care of the details of the forthcoming gathering and states that plans are on foot to entertain the members in a manner commensurate with the importance of the occasion.

Concerning the Association, all tobacco men are eligible to membership. Manufacturers and dealers in tobacco supplies, tobacco, machinery, bankers in tobacco cities and towns and transportation men are welcomed to its ranks. To protect the tobacco interests of the country against adverse legislation, to endeavor to take advantage of every opportunity offered for the betterment of the trade and to promote fair dealing and insure close and personal connections among its members are the laudable objects of the Association. Compilation of statistics and information relative to the trade, embracing both foreign and domestic, for promulgation among members, is a work also carried on by this commendable organization.

J. R. Cummings and L. L. Harves, of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, have recently been visiting Red Wing, Minn., in the interests of "Stag" smoking tobacco.

With its factories for making cigarette paper books in Paris and in Rouen, and its mills at Gassicourt and St. Aubin, the Société Anonyme des Anciens Etablissements Braunstein Freres, employing 1800 hands, is the largest cigarette paper manufacturer in the world. The product is entirely pure textile fibres and has received the following awards:

Grand Prix: St. Louis, 1904; Liege, 1905; Saragosse, 1908; Buenos Aires, 1910; Brussels, 1910. Hor Concours: London, 1908; Tunis, 1911; Roubaix, 1911; Turin, 1911; Gand, 1913.

TAMPA TIPS

Local Campaign on "La Mega"—"London Life" Making Many Friends—Addition to Jose Escalant Factory Begun

TAMPA, May 11.

ALWAYS "looking forward," V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, manufacturers of the well known "La Mega," have started a campaign of local advertising on this sterling brand, and are meeting with much success. Though located in Tampa for more than twenty years, this company never really sought after local trade, but the response already received as the result of their efforts has been of such a gratifying nature that the company will continue its good work locally.

"Night Rider" tobacco has arrived. This new tobacco is being featured in a display in the Court Square Pharmacy and is attracting quite a bit of attention. The product is manufactured by the Tampa Tobacco Company and is intended for pipe smokers, combining Tennessee or Kentucky with Cuban tobacco, this method, it is stated, thus imparting a Havana flavor.

P. Rey, the well known cigar manufacturer, and family left here recently for New York via the Atlantic Coast line.

John W. Biggar, of West Tampa, has begun work on a set of plans for a $12,000 addition to the Jose Escalent, a cigar factory at Palmetto Beach.

Free distribution of "London Life" cigarettes recently by B. S. Tippe, who has been in Tampa for quite a while in the interests of "London Life," was the means of making many friends for the brand in this territory. Mr. Tippe was ably aided by Sam Bennett, Eli Witt's popular salesman.

PERFECTO.

City Jottings

Yahn & McDonnell, through their traveling representative, Frank M. Winslow, are meeting with very good success on their clear Havana, "Regreso" brand, which is made in twenty-five sizes.

The territory of Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland are re-ordering in quantities to demonstrate that these cigars have met the approval of the smokers who desire a high-grade cigar of uniform quality and strength.

The "George Fox" cigar in Londres, Blunts and Club Perfecto shapes is a new line of $8.00 cigars which the Finley Acker Company are featuring, and for which they are the jobbers.

This cigar is a Philadelphia-made cigar, the product of one of the best-known factories, and from duplicate orders which have come in is being well received by the consumer.

Despite the adverse weather conditions at the National League Ball Park, the demand for "Sintoma" and "All Alike," the Portuondo brands on sale there, has been very satisfactory. The J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company have the cigar privileges at the National League Park this season.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, has taken on several new brands since the store has been under new management.

The "Perfecto" of Garcia Brothers, in eleven sizes, which are now manufactured in bond, is probably the best known, but the "Generalidad," a three-for-a-quarter, and "Critico," a two-for-a-quarter, manufactured by the H. C. Nolan Company, occupy a high position.

"Don Remo" Banquet at Los Angeles

Other speakers of the evening were: Mr. Chapman, H. M. Motzkus and W. P. Baker, the oldest gentleman with M. A. Newmark & Company, in point of service.

Herbert Flatau acted as toastmaster, by request, and performed nobly.

"Don Remo" cigars were smoked by those present, together with "J. B." cigars, Corona shapes, "Jose Vila," champagne size, and "Pall Mall" cigarettes.

The guests present were: C. Seligman, Marco Newmark, S. S. Kauffman, William Newmark, Alfred Newmark, R. W. Reynolds, Charles Guenther, W. R. Reynolds, J. J. Jones, Otto Rumage, E. Van Brieson, F. W. Behning, A. F. Leslie, Frank Morgan, J. B. Badgley, J. C. Rhodes, Bert Smith, R. Robinson, J. A. Nathan, Fred Cowell, F. L. Carver, Bush Corder, W. R. Smith, Ben Foote, William Toomy, C. W. Lash, R. Enterprise Cigar Company Has New Vice-President

The readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD, will no doubt be pleased to learn that Walter H. Jones, well known among the trade in New York, and elsewhere, has recently been elected vice-president of the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, N. J. This company manufactures the "Lord Stirling" cigar, sold all over New Jersey, as well as in other parts. New Jersey smokers swear by "Lord Stirling," and wherever you find them at a cigar counter you are almost sure to hear a call for "Lord Stirling."

Penn Tobacco Company Elects New Officers

To fill the vacancy caused by the death of Russell Uhl, former president of the Penn Tobacco Company, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the directors convened recently and elected Henry Wiegand as president of the firm. John H. Uhl, son of the former president, has been elected to the position of vice-president, while William B. Schaffer, representing the local banking interests, succeeds Mr. Uhl on the board of directors.

T. C. Cash has purchased the cigar stand in the lobby of the Simpson Building, Atchison, Kansas, from Jake Auslinger. Mr. Anslinger will follow the "back to the farm" movement and will raise fruit.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 14

OLIVE STREET ENTRANCE, ELKS CLUB, LOS ANGELES

(This is the fourteenth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.

No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.
No. 9—The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit.
No. 10—University Club, Chicago.
No. 11—Hamilton Club, Chicago.
No. 12—Commercial Club, San Francisco.
No. 13—Chicago Automobile Club.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 30, 1914.

THIS club, better known as B. P. O. E. No. 99, is one of the many firmly established clubs in this section of the country, being known highly for the character of its members and its "all in all" entertaining ability. The Elks Club of Los Angeles has enrolled such names as F. B. Silverwood and Mr. Frankenstein, musicians of note throughout the country, and who jointly wrote the lyric and music for the already famous "I love You California" song. Ed Maier, baseball magnate of this city, owner of the Venice Tigers, of the Pacific Coast League, is one of the many notables, and every once in so often Mr. Maier tenders the club "boys" a real old Spanish barbecue at his famous Santa Susanna Rancho, and it might be added here that upon these premises, located in Ventura County, is being fitted up the most complete baseball training quarters in the country. It is Mr. Maier's purpose in doing this to bring major league teams to California to get the benefit of the excellent climate while training and in the meantime to play exhibition games with other teams. This form of spring training always draws large crowds here.

The Elks Club was established in the year 1888 and originally had a membership of only thirty-three members. Members have been coming to enroll continually, and in this year of 1914 the Elks Club can boast of a membership of fifteen hundred full-fledged members.

Exalted Ruler, L. L. Broodeen; Esteemed Leading Knight, M. G. Shannon; Esteemed Loyal Knight, W. G. Salter; Esteemed Lecturing Knight, C. G. Pule; Secretary, E. B. Lovie; Treasurer, T. Q. Hall; Tyler, H. L. Mull; Trustee, G. A. Melsing; Chaplain, W. A. Woodis; Esquire, B. D. Rose; Inner Guard, L. P. Tappeiner; Organist, Sibley G. Pease.

The club building is situated on a very elevated location, being at the top of what is called the Angel Flights, a cable railway carrying the members to and from the club building, a structure of modern architecture, seven stories in height and containing a spacious roof-garden. By means of the cable cars one is given an exhilarating ride up into the clouds and the spot is very quiet and peaceful to the tired business man and one seeking rest

On the second floor there is located the magnificent dining room, and here Elks are given the best foods to be had. Noon day and Sunday luncheons are served here for club members and their friends. As one enters the foyer on the main floor, a turn to the left shows one the elegant smoking room, and farther to the back is seen the bar where concoctions of the "classiest" sort are given patrons.

On the same floor is located the billiard and pool room. Here is also the cigar department, of which Charles Morgan assumes charge. Mr. Morgan is an amiable and friendly personage and is very popular with the club members, which is one of the reasons for the great success of this department. Mr. Morgan reports sales exceeding 8000 clear Havana cigars per month, very seldom dropping below this number. Here is carried a complete line of clear Havana cigars, some of which are as follows: "Lovera" de Luxe and "Presidents" being their leading brand, having sales increasing due to the qualities of this brand alone. Other brands of clear Havana cigars handled at the cigar department are "Cuesta Rey," "St. Elmo," "Webster," "El Sidelo." In cigarettes the Elks Club can boast of an exclusive brand of cigarettes named after their lodge name, "B. P. O. E." these cigarettes being manufactured by Surbrug Company, who also manufacture "Milo" and "Duke of York" cigarettes and others. "Milo," "La Marquise," "Pall Mall," "56," "Melachrino" and their own brand make up the supply of cigarettes.

Within the confines of the building are many places for one to enjoy himself or herself, women being permitted to enter into the entertainments and such. There is a card room fitted up most lavishly, and the best of service is accorded those wishing to enjoy a few hours of cards.

A spacious banquet room for social functions and the like is on an upper floor of the building, and here is held many a happy evening. Billiards, reading in the library and writing room and bar room with smoker offer the members much cause to rejoice in being a member of the renowned Elks Club.

The club boasts of having as members only those gentlemen who have a reputation as being of good habits, character and those traits that go hand in hand with character and morality.

Are Cigars Medicine?

One of the Examiners of the Ohio State Bureau of Accounting, while going over the books of one of the institutions the other day, ran across a bill of $14 for 200 cigars, listed as "medical supplies."

In attempting to answer the question for the State, State Auditor Donahey has been delving into innumerable treatises on medicine, etc., but thus far has been unable to find cigars listed under the head of medicine. As the bill has been paid, the auditor is seeking now to establish a ruling for such items in the future.

Save Your Coupons; Get Silk Stockings

The McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, of Detroit, recently announced in a newspaper advertisement that thirty-five whole tickets or tokens taken from their smoking tobaccos, accompanied by a clipping of the ad. would entitle the holder to a pair of silk stockings, either women's or men's. Without the ad. it would be necessary to present one hundred coupons in order to secure the premium.

DETROIT, MICH., May 10, 1914.

WITH the warm weather as an assured fact for the next four months and the opening of the convention season, retailers now look forward to business to be at its highest until late in September. The number of conventions booked for Detroit is equal to the record of last year, if not a trifle in excess, although the majority of them are among state affiliations. J. Lee Barrett, secretary of the Detroit Convention Bureau, predicts that 1915 and 1916 will probably be the greatest years for convention gatherings in the history of Detroit, as the city will then have ample facilities for handling the large association meetings, which it is unable to do at the present time.

Frank Forrest, chief clerk at the E. M. Harris store on Woodward Avenue, Detroit, and who operates a soft-drink stand in the lobby of the Dime Savings Bank Building, has found business so prosperous in the year that he has been established that he recently took the adjoining store and installed a marble counter for serving his patrons with beverages. Frank says he is doing much better than he expected and naturally has every reason to "pat himself on the back" for his judgment in starting such an emporium, in spite of the fact that many of his friends predicted "failure" for the place.

Corporation Counsel Richard L. Lawson is scheduled to go before the Detroit Common Council on health and city hospitals Tuesday night, May 12th, and rule that a $100 license fee for the sale of cigarettes is excessive and therefore illegal. An ordinance was introduced sometime ago providing for drastic regulations on the cigarette traffic; the two main provisions require a $100 license fee, and prohibits the sale of cigarettes within six hundred feet of a schoolhouse. "The high license fee would drive the small dealers out of business, and would give the wealthy tobacco dealer a monopoly," is the expression made by several councilmen. "The license fee is excessive," said the corporation counsel. "There is no need to prohibit the sale of cigarettes by a regulatory measure." This will be a victory for the small dealers if the council committee vote as most of them have promised, namely, "no." If there is to be any fee at all, it most likely will be $10 instead of a hundred.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, Detroit, after being home a few weeks from the Pacific Coast, left for Portland, Ore., on Sunday, May 10th, to be on hand when the first shipment of "S. & W. Hand-mades" arrive, so that he can assist in their distribution. This time he will be gone about four to six weeks. In addition to the West he will stop at Salt Lake City and points in the South before returning home.

Sandy Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, has returned from a business trip through the West, and Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, is back from his two weeks' stay at French Lick Springs.

During April of 1914 a total of 21,614,276 cigars were manufactured in the first district of Michigan, as compared with 24,148,080 for the same month in 1913. In dollars and cents these figures are $64,842.83 and $72,444.24. The receipts for tobacco this year in April were $182,240.49, as compared with $186,300.13 in 1913. The difference of approximately two million less cigars being made this year for April was due to the fact that the usual lay-off in the cigar factories on account of the sacred Polish holidays came in April this year, while last year they came during March. The result was that most of the Detroit cigar factories were closed for ten days in April this year, while last year they were all running to capacity the entire month.

Ernest O. Hensley, of Detroit, is in view as general manager of the reorganized Lakeside Club in Grand Rapids, which will probably open the season the week of May 25th. The club will have a charter membership of 1000. The club will have a fine dancing floor, new dining room, etc.

Gilbert Smith, who has been representing the Harry W. Watson Company, of Flint and Detroit, as representative in the latter city, has resigned, and has not as yet announced his future plans.

The San Etta Cigar Manufacturing Company, Detroit, has engaged A. W. Rogers as its Middle West representative, and he will make his headquarters at Fort Smith, Ark. The San Etta Company has brought out some new cans in bright red that are very attractive. Charles A. LaFond, of the concern, states that the "San Etta" cigar is doing splendidly not only in Detroit, but in a number of cities where it has recently been taken on by live jobbers.

Al McCrea succeeds the late Mr. Somerville as manager of the A. C. Dietsche store at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Larned Street. Mr. McCrea was formerly connected with the Ford cigar stand at 97 Woodward Avenue.

Burns & Johnson, retailers at 20 Monroe Avenue, have added a second store at 242 Woodward Avenue. Tommy Burns will manage the new stand, while Mr. Johnson will look after the Monroe Avenue place. Mr. Burns is having a number of changes made to his stand and hopes to make it equally as successful as the Monroe Avenue emporium, which certainly has been doing "some" business since Messrs. Burns and Johnson took it over some months ago.

The Harry W. Watson Company, of Detroit and Flint, which now controls fourteen retail stands in Detroit, has added a fifteenth one at 15 State Street, and inside of twelve months hopes to have at least ten more retail places. The Watson Company recently took over the lease on the Hotel Metropole, and at the expiration of the present lease of Charles H. Clements a number of important changes will be made to the hostlery, and it is more than likely that the cigar stand will be added to the Watson chain. This company is surely getting a monopoly on the best stands in Detroit, it now practically controlling all of the best at the hotels outside of the Hotel Pontchartrain, which is operated by the hotel itself.

William Higgins, of Park & Tilford, spent a few days with us in the past two weeks, and as usual Bill told some new humorous stories and took away some nice orders for imported cigars.

George Stocking, representing Marcelina Perez & Company, was here late in April. He spent a day in Saginaw, where his firm has a jobber on the "Tuval" cigar through Bert Johnson, of Detroit. Mr. Johnson accompanied Mr. Stocking on the trip.

A campaign is soon to be started against the cigarette in the factories of the Ford Motor Company, according to an announcement made by Henry Ford, head of the concern, although no time has been set for this action. This announcement comes as a result of a letter recently sent to Mr. Ford by the noted inventor, Mr. Thomas Edison, and attention is called to a substance called "Acrolein," which comes from the burning paper wrapper of cigarettes and is said to have a permanent degenerative effect. Copies of the letter are to be distributed among the young men at the factories, who will be urged—not compelled—to discontinue the use of cigarettes.

Moore's Cigar Store, in Saginaw, which is under the management of G. S. Skimin, is one of the most popular places in that city. It is headquarters for all sporting events as well as the baseball games. The store has a splendid box trade. A good line of Havana and domestic cigars are carried in stock.

Charles H. Stout has opened a cigar store in Belding, Mich., and is operating a lunch room in connection with the same.

A. E. St. Clair has succeeded M. J. Hallinan as manager of the Pontiac branch of the J. L. Marcero Company business, wholesale tobacconists, owing to Mr. Hallinan having left the city on account of poor health. The change took place May 1st. Mr. St. Clair was formerly traveling representative in Michigan for the P. Lorillard Company.

E. P. Harkins, who has been representative for the cigarette department of P. Lorillard Company in Houghton for the past year, has been changed to Butte, Mont., where he will be in charge of the state for the same concern. During the time that he was in the copper country he made many warm and personal friends, who very much regretted to have him leave.

The business of the Princess Juliana Cigar Company in Grand Rapids will hereafter be conducted by Joseph Steghuis, who has taken over the interests of his partner, John Jaspers.

At the northwest corner of Warren and Mitchell Avenues, Detroit, a fine factory is in course of construction for the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, which is to be four stories high, 60 by 101 feet in size. General and private offices and vaults will occupy the first floor, together with lockers, dining room, coat room and receiving room. The second floor is reserved for the cigarmakers, the third floor for the drying and stripping departments and the fourth floor for packing and humidors. In the basement are storage, casing and sweat rooms.

The Phoenix Club, corner of John R. and Erskine Streets, Detroit, are having a summer club house built at Redford which will have a cigar department. It is expected to be ready this summer.

O. E. Bunker has recently engaged in the cigar business at White Cloud, Mich.

O. M. Chandler succeeds F. E. Pilbeam in the cigar business in Middleville, Mich.

The firm of Diekman & Peck, cigar dealers in Monroe, Mich., has been dissolved by mutual consent and the business taken over by Howard Peck, who will continue the same. Mr. Diekman will take a rest for a while.

Mr. Ben Block, district manager for Philip Morris cigarettes, paid us a flying visit on April 29th. Mr. Edward Lichtig, Michigan representative, is now on a trip through the state.

The Exchange Cigar Store on West Fort Street, directly across from the postoffice, Detroit, announces its retirement from business and is disposing of the stock on hand at wholesale prices.

There have been an unusual large number of tobacco men here since the first of May, including Alfred E. Penner, Fred Singer, Harry Nathan, Joe Cullman, Jr., Mr. Loeb, Howard Kinney, Abe Hirsch, Jules Marquzee, Henry Fisher and Leonard Cohen. As yet there have been no worth-while sales reported.

Factories Dull With Little Prospects Before Fall—Immigration Officials Help Settle Gato Strike—Havana-American Company Preparing to Work in Bond—President Wardlow Back from the West

KEY WEST, FLA., May 10, 1914.

BUSINESS is still dull and there is now no very great prospects for a revival until the fall season opens up, as summer is always the dullest period of the year. Shipments are very small, but would have been much larger if the strike had not existed at the E. H. Gato Cigar Company's factory. As that has been amicably settled, shipments in my next report will no doubt show an increase.

Trade is fair at the factory of the Martinez-Havana Company. Don Luis Martinez, accompanied by his daughter Senorita Aurora, arrived in town this week from Havana and left for a visit to New York City. Upon the arrival of Don Luis at Northern headquarters he will hold a business confernce with James D. Conner, secretary of the company, at which the matter of handling the factory will be discussed and decided. At the factory the manager has for some time been working their stocks of tobacco down with this end in view. Shipping Clerk A. D. Silveria is receiving the condolence of his many friends in the death of his only son, which occurred recently. Letters received at the factory office announce that Richard B. Cowlen, the company's new roadman, had left Philadelphia, Pa., for his territory and results from his campaign are expected at a very early date. Advices received from Sol. Arkush, Northwestern representative, state that business is slowly but surely improving in his territory.

A well attended meeting of the board of trade was held on the evening of the 28th ult., at which a committee from the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, a number of prominent citizens and many cigarmakers were in attendance. The matter of the strike at the Gato factory was taken up for discussion. The committee from the Cigar Manufacturers' Association stated plainly that, while at all times they were willing to treat with their employees on the matter of prices or material, they wanted it distinctly understood that they would allow no one to run their factories but themselves and that any demand made upon them for the discharge of a department head would be utterly ignored.

On the 29th ult. Secretary Thomas H. Gato and Foreman Lorenzo Lopez, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, returned from a short trip to Cuba. The foreman was held up by the immigration officials, and after an examination by the port health officer was declared physically unfit to re-enter the United States and was ordered deported. Thus the chief stumbling block in the way of the settlement of the labor troubles at this shop was removed. Secretary Gato and Lorenzo Lopez returned to Cuba next morning.

On May 2d Vice-President E. H. Gato, Jr., and Secretary Thos. H. Gato returned from Cuba and on the 4th inst. the strike was settled and George Maloney was appointed foreman and has entered upon his duties. On Monday morning next the cigarmakers are scheduled to return to work.

George L. Harris, the genial Southern salesman of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, was a caller recently on the retailers here in the interest of the many brands of cigarettes and smoking tobaccos of his house.

C. L. Knowles, president of the Alonso Reijas Ca., is back from a business trip to Western and Northern sections.

The bubonic plague scare is subsiding, and now that it is learned that the sanitary officials of Havana have agreed that should it be necessary to fumigate any tobacco warehouse, tobacco stems will be used instead of chemicals. This method has been proven by many tests not to injure tobacco, as does the fumes from sulphur. Holders of leaf stocks now stored in the warehouses of Havana now breathe easier and importations have fallen off this week as a consequence.

M. J. Bloom, the leaf dealer of New York, was a caller on the local trade recently.

The Havana-American Company will shortly bond their entire building and manufacture all their products, both here and Tampa, under government supervision. As soon as the stocks of tobacco now on hand are worked up they will close down for a few days, and when they reopen it will be under the new system.

While a large force of strippers have been at work preparing material in the bonded portions of the M. Perez Company and the Mi Favorita Cigar Company, there has not as yet been any cigars made in bond. The Mi Favorita Cigar Company, who bonded one-half of their factory recently, have decided to put their whole building under government supervision and closed down on the 1st inst. in order to remove partitions and put their shop in order. When they resume a few days hence it will be under the new system, and their famous "Mi Favorita" brand that are shipped out henceforth will bear the government stamp.

Chief Inspector of Customs Max N. Oberdoffer was in the city this week on official business. He has since left for Jacksonville, Fla.

Sol. M. Gans, of Max Gans & Son, leaf dealers of New York City, was a caller on his trade in this city this week. J. Waller, of Joseph S. Gans & Son, was also a recent trade visitor. Juan Diaz, representing Selgas & Company, of New York and Havana, dealers in leaf tobacco, also paid our manufacturers a visit during the week.

Rosenthal Brothers Open New Cigar Factory

Rosenthal Brothers, 353 East Seventy-third Street, New York, opened a cigar factory in Corning, N. Y., on May 4th. This firm has several factories, the new one being No. 5. The new factory will work up to one hundred hands during the first six months with the hope of being able to employ at least two hundred and fifty by the end of a year.

Morris De Lara, of New York, who has formerly been in charge of several departments of the Detroit branch of the American Cigar Company, and who has had thirty years' experience in practical cigar making, will have charge of the new factory.

Should the new factory prove a successful venture, a new building will be erected to care for the business.

Hill Brothers Open Fourth Store in Miami

The fourth store of Hill Brothers, Miami, Fla., has recently been opened at Avenue C and Eleventh Street. Many alterations have been made and the equipment of the new stand will maintain the standard that this progressive firm has established. The new cigar and news store will also install a soda fountain.

W. L. Peacon and W. O. Peacon, of the cigar manufacturing firm of W. L. Peacon & Company, of Miami, Fla., were visitors to this city this week while en route to the leaf markets of Havana.

A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, was also in town this week, being en route to Cuba.

Julius Wolf, of S. Wolf's Sons, left on Saturday for New York, from whence he will make a tour of the North in the interest of his house. He was accompanied by his family.

President John Wardlow, of the Ruy Lopez Ca., who has been touring the North and West in the interest of his house, got back yesterday.

H. H. Pinder and Walter Pinder, the cigar manufacturers of Miami, Fla., arrived in town this morning for the purpose of purchasing stock for their factory.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, May 9, 1914.

OUR plague, as far as mortality is concerned, does not amount to anything worth worrying about, as during the two months of its existence there have been only 18 proven cases, and of which 3 died, 13 were cured or are so far improved that there is no longer any danger, while 2 remain still under treatment. There were a number of suspected cases, but upon medical examination they turned out to be due to other sicknesses. The strict measures taken by our board of health to extirpate the plague have caused not only a great deal of annoyance, but positive losses of a financial nature, and paralyzing business more or less. However, we have reason to be thankful that the same is of such a mild nature and seems to yield readily to treatment.

Dry weather in the country is preventing the opening of the escogidas in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido districts, while on the other hand it is a blessing for the veguenos in the Santa Clara province, as the late cut tobacco thus has a chance to dry. None of our leaf dealers appear to be in a hurry this year to buy in the country, as the outlook for business in the United States is by no means rosy looking; on the contrary, the threatening war cloud between Mexico and the United States acts as a damper upon speculation. Notwithstanding the present uncertainty of the future, if this year's crop should be purchased upon reasonably lower prices, it may yet turn out to have been a blessing in disguise.

Our leaf market has ruled dull, as only a few buyers from the North have made their appearance in our market. Fortunately a few buyers from Tampa arrived in town this week, and their purchases have prevented an utter stagnation. Some moderate transactions also have taken place for Europe, Buenos Aires, and on the part of our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, therefore the total is a trifle better than the previous fortnight. However, we do not look for any real revival until the new crop will come to our market. All the lots that have come forward so far have consisted of the very lowest grades, which have had no real fermentation in the piles, and are only fit for cigarette purposes. It would be also a folly to judge the crop by these early arrivals, and it seems a pity that a few German houses continue to forward sample bales of unripe leaf to Germany, unless they desire to create a bad impression of the new crop in Germany, thereby exercising a pressure upon our market, and causing a fall in prices. The holders of last year's leaf appear to be in bad straits, as heavy losses are staring them in the face, unless, as some people assert, that the real good part of the 1914 growth is after all only limited, which, if true, might create a better demand for the good part of the 1913 crop.

Buyers were: Americans, 1752; exporters to Europe, 532; shippers to Buenos Aires, 510, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 876 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from April 20th to May 2d, both days inclusive, amounted to 34,135 bales, which were distributed as follows, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 32,928; to Bremen, 284; to Hamburg, 232; to Liverpool, 16, and to Buenos Aires, 675 bales.

Cigars.

We beg to submit the following figures of the exports of cigars from the port of Havana, as per our official customhouse returns, during the month of April, 1914, and the comparison with the same month of the previous year:

From April 1 to April 30, 1913,	18,431,837 cigars
From April 1 to April 30, 1914,	17,537,281 "

There are ten countries which show decreases, thus:

Great Britain and Ireland	721,487 cigars
Australia	535,814 "
Chile	197,102 "
Germany	121,312 "
Panama	94,700 "
United States	89,104 "
Uruguay	58,840 "
Argentine Republic	57,627 "
Peru	49,500 "
Brazil	30,058 "

There are four countries that show increases, as follows:

Spain	557,884 cigars
Canada	343,645 "
Austria	105,585 "
Spanish Africa	77,715 "

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana for the first four months of this and last year now compare, as follows, viz.:

From January 1 to April 30, 1913,	59,356,592 cigars
From January 1 to April 30, 1914,	55,210,848 "

There are five countries which show decreases of importance, viz.:

United States	1,797,359 "
Chile	682,817 "
Argentine Republic	629,399 "
Canada	408,219 "

Spain is the only country which shows an increase of importance during the above period, with 1,864,379 cigars, as Australia has gone back in her importations, and only stands now with 185,892 cigars in excess of last year.

Business at the moment in our factories is very quiet, as there are very few orders to be filled yet, and new ones are coming forward in only very limited quantities. However, as we are now in the dullest period of the year, it ought not to create any particular wonder, if we could only manage henceforth not to slide back any more, as compared with last year.

Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., Por Larrañaga, Castañeda & Fonseca, Sol, Eden, Flor del Fumar, La Flor de A. Fernandez Gargia and La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez are all busy, as far as the circumstances will permit it, but did not give us any particular news, when we called upon them.

Leaf Tobacco and Other Notes of Interest.

Manuel Garcia, of Perfecto Garcia & Brother, of Tampa, has been a buyer of 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido for their factory, which surely indicates that business must be fair with them.

Edgar J. Stachelberg, the vice-president of Sanchez & Haya, of Tampa, has been a buyer in our market during this week, and we have heard that he shall have purchased quite extensively, although not knowing whether he has registered all lots already we abstain from publishing any number of bales.

Don Ramon Cifuentes, the senior partner of Cifuentes, Fernandez & Company, who are the owners of the Partagas factory, had a very exciting time in Vera Cruz on the 22d ulto., when he as a guest of the Hotel Diligencia was right in the line of firing between the Mexican and American troops. In fact, as the Mexicans claimed, or thought, that somebody had fired from the roof of the hotel on the Mexican troops, the commander issued an order to bring all the inmates to the Mexican encampment. When the order was to be executed, and Don Ramon was at the head of the ten or twelve inmates at the hotel entrance, a Mexican marine officer inquired into the matter and stated that absurd orders ought not to be executed. At the same moment a bomb fell from the American fleet, within a few feet of them, but miraculously did not wound any of them, so they were permitted to remain in the hotel until the next morning, when the Americans had become masters of the city, and after waiting for some days in the harbor on board the Spanish man-of-war "Carlos V," Don Ramon finally could leave by the Spanish S. S. "Montevideo," arriving here without any further mishap on the 4th inst.

Don Ramon Cifuentes and Don José Fernandez (Maquila) expect to sail on the 14th inst. by the German S. S. "Kronprinzessin Cecilie" for Spain. The latter will be accompanied by his family, while the former expects to bring his family back from Spain to our city.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, the president of the Por Larrañaga factory, expects to leave on the "Saratoga" the 10th inst. for a short trip to the United States.

M. P. Troy, the representative of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., for the United Kingdom, arrived here from London, via New York, and L. Stewart Houston will leave by the "Saratoga" on the 10th for New York, in order to catch the German S. S. "Imperator" for England and Germany, his usual annual vacation voyage, combined with business.

Manuel Garcia Pulido, the owner of El Ambar cigar factory, and who has a leaf warehouse at 6 and 8 Revillagigedo Street, has had the misfortune that one of his men has caught a mild form of the pest and was carried to the hospital. In consequence thereof the health officers fumigated his warehouse yesterday and will flood it today to kill off the rats. We hope that the necessary precautions were taken not to injure his stocks of leaf tobacco.

Messrs. Behrens & Company, the owners of the Sol factory, have finally purchased the brand "La Devesa de Murias," which they had been working for the past two years under a lease. This brand was the pet of the late Pedro Murias, who when he sold out his factory to the Trust, kept this one for himself. After his death his nephews did not pay the attention to it which it deserved, owing to their many other interests, but now Messrs. Behrens & Company intend to bring this brand back to its former high standard.

Mark A. Pollack	5,658 bales
Maximilian Stern	3,449 "
J. Bernheim & Son	2,188 "
I. Kaffenburgh & Sons	2,145 "
Manuel Suarez	2,118 "
Leslie Pantin	2,069 "
M. A. Suarez & Company	1,655 "
Virgilio Suarez	1,451 "
H. Upmann & Company	1,276 "
Selgas & Company	1,222 "
Bridat & Company	1,178 "
Ernst Ellinger & Company	1,041 "
Menendez & Company	1,035 "
Jorge & P. Castañeda	1,016 "
Perez, Capin & Company	988 "
M. A. Gunst & Company, Inc.	930 "
Garcia & Company	620 "
E. H. Gato Cigar Company	440 "
Y. Pendas & Alvarez	405 "
J. F. Berndes & Company	365 "
Sidney Rothschild	335 "
José H. Cayro & Son	200 "
F. Rocha & Company	200 "

ORETANIV.

Fifth Inscription at Amsterdam

At the fifth inscription, which took place at Amsterdam on May 8th, between 3400 and 3500 bales were purchased for the American market. The buying was featured by the purchases of cigar manufacturers; Otto Eisenlohr & Brother and the Deisel-Wemmer Company were among those who bought quite heavily. Among the purchases made the following quantities were reported: A. Cohn & Company, 950 bales; H. Duys & Company, 650 bales; E. Rosenwald & Brother, 580 bales.

Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 8, 1914.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh is picking up a little, due to the warm weather we have had the last couple of weeks. Some few stands are complaining, but the majority are doing very well.

T. V. Wilkinson, formerly under Mr. Clark, of the P. Lorillard Company, has been made head of the P. Lorillard Company in West Virginia.

Mr. Norbert, of the American Tobacco Company, is in town putting on a new deal whereby they give the dealer a fifty-cent rebate on 3500 of the American Tobacco Company's cigarettes, providing these 3500 cigarettes contain 500 of Butler & Butler brands.

One of the most novel forms of introducing a cigar ever seen in this territory is being used by Mr. Sprague and Mr. Sharples, of the Shipley-Massingham Company. Four small Shetland ponies hitched to a cart, gayly decorated and driven tandem is the medium. The ponies and cart are covered with blankets emblazened with the words "Rey Oma Ponies, the Biggest Value in Little Cigars." The entire outfit is driven up in front of the merchant's door, a trumpet is blown, "Rey Oma Ponies" are given away, and the whole town talks "Rey Oma ponies and cart are covered with blankets emblazoned with the words creating not only talk, but business for the Shipley-Massingham Company.

The Walnut Lunch, a new up-to-date cafe, has opened in McKeesport and installed an elegant cigar department. They carry all sizes of "Cuesta-Rey," "Saramitas," "Rey Omas," "Chas. Denby," "Bachelors" and "Rey Oma Ponies."

"Saramitas" are being heavily advertised in the Pittsburgh papers and are enjoying a nice sale.

H. Schiffman, representing the Denby factory, is doing some elegant work in this territory.

J. B. Galvin, of McKeesport, has remodeled his store and painted the front with "Cuesta-Rey," "La Saramita" and "Chas. Denby."

Sol. Cohen, representing the High Grade Department of the American Tobacco Company, was on his second trip to Pittsburgh. Reports business good. Their "Blue Boar" brand of tobacco is showing a big increase in this market.

I. L. Delaney, of Waynesburg, is successor to Flowers & Delaney, having purchased the interest of his partner, J. B. Flowers.

The "Velvet Joe" advertising in the Pittsburgh papers is causing favorable comment. "Velvet" is growing in this territory.

"Oasis 20's" cigarettes are being advertised very extensively at present in the Pittsburgh territory. The five whole coupons of one-half cent value in each package are making a strong appeal to the consumer.

The Afco Cigar Company have the new Mexican Fatima poster prominently displayed, and it is attracting considerable attention.

The following visitors were in town: R. N. Paris, Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Company, Baltimore, Md.; Henry Ottenberg, importer of Manila cigars, New York; Geo. Becker, A. Lopez & Company; M. M. Siers, Kingston, Pa., first time in Pittsburgh for six years, representing factories in Ninth District; Raymon Rey, Tampa, Fla.; E. G. Dunlap, San Martin & Leon Company; W. A. Charles, G. S. Nichols Company; Nate Shapiro and Val. Keogh, M. A. Gunst & Company; N. E. Nichols, Benson & Hedges, New York; Hall Martin, J. S. Haggerty Company, Fairmont, W. Va.; Herbert W. Jones, M. Melachrino & Company, New York; N. E. Spear, Emze Cigar Company, Philadelphia; R. B. Cowley, Martinez-Havana Company, Key West; M. L. Weiss, Weiss Indies Cigar Company, New York.

Petition Filed Against Scranton Firm

A. V. Bower, attorney-at-law, of Scranton, Pa., representing several out-of-town creditors, has recently filed a petition in the United States Court asking that the Lackawanna Cigar Company, 142-144 Franklin Avenue, Scranton, Pa., be declared bankrupt. In his statement Mr. Bower alleges the concern owes upwards of one thousand dollars.

Hood River Manufacturer Increases Output

F. M. White, who opened a cigar factory in Hood River, Oregon, the latter part of 1913, has recently stated that the demand for his goods is showing a steady increase and that his output is growing rapidly. Altogether the factory is now turning out six brands. "White's Panatella," a nickel smoke, is the latest product.

San Francisco

Jobbers May Reduce Cash Discount—Oakland Retailers Opposed to Prizes—"Tuxedo" Sales Show Increase—Gus Simon Resigns From M. A. Gunst & Company

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 5, 1914.

THE question of reducing the cash discount to dealers from three to two per cent. was discussed at several meetings of the San Francisco cigar jobbers, but no conclusion has been reached as yet. All the wholesale cigar merchants around the bay are decidedly in sympathy with the present movement concerning the reduction of the discount to the scale universally adopted in the United States with the exception of California, namely, two per cent. in thirty days; but somehow nothing definite has been consummated. Only a short time ago the whole Pacific Coast was paying three per cent., but lately Oregon and Washington have adopted the universal two per cent. scale, so that now California is the only exception. Nobody seems to know why, but the fact remains as stated.

The custom of giving away all sorts of prizes with cigars and cigarettes, and advertising these inducements in the show windows, does not seem to be favored by many Oakland retailers. They are building up an organization whose main object will be to do away with all such "illegitimate" tricks and temptations. Although some of the San Francisco merchants are in sympathy with this view, most of them maintain total indifference while asserting that, be it as it may, something has to be done to enliven the business and to down the competitor. The April business is reported as having been the most satisfactory since the beginning of this year, and the jobbers as well as the retailers believe that the quiet times are at last over and that the rush season is nearing rapidly.

One of the cheering items of news in the San Francisco tobacco world is that B. R. Jones, a popular local cigar man, has just completed the building of his seven-room bungalow in Piedmont Heights, Oakland.

On April 14th Gus Simon, the popular vice-president and director of M. A. Gunst & Company, resigned from the firm with which he has been connected for over a quarter of a century. In accepting his resignation the board of directors adopted resolutions showing the great esteem in which the retiring officer is held by his associates. Mr. Simon is sixty odd years young—a husky, healthy and hilarious boy whom all his friends wish many years of happiness and contentment.

M. A. Gunst has donated $15,000 to the clinic fund of the Mount Zion Hospital for a new building where free medical aid will be given irrespective of creed. Mr. Gunst made this donation in memory of his two sons.

H. L. Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, has left for the Travelers' State Convention in Fresno, Cal. He will also attend the encampment of the G. A. R. in San Diego. This trip to Southern California is the only kind of vacation Mr. Judell could be induced by his family to take.

The Union Cigar Manufacturers' Home Industry League held a meeting on April 27th to promote the sale of home industry cigars. There were fifty-six concerns represented and officers were elected.

Max Schlueter has purchased from C. H. Noland the cigar store situated at 132 Fourth Street, San Francisco.

Chas. Friesenhausen has sold out his cigar store located at 544 Clement Street, in the Richmond district, to M. Umland.

La Strada Cigar Company has been incorporated in San Francisco by B. Stranders, C. P. Stranders, H. A. Van C. Torchiana, Jr., I. H. Hymas and T. D. Wilson, with a stock capital of $50,000.

W. B. Schrader, one of the largest tobacco planters in the Hawaiian Islands, has left San Francisco for Grass Valley, in Nevada County, Cal. This county's advent into the tobacco growing industry has attracted the attention of American tobacco investors. Mr. Schrader will spend some time assisting the Nevada County Tobacco Company in its scientific experimental work in tobacco culture. Thousands of plants will be set out in all parts of the county. Mr. Schrader represents the Kona Tobacco Company, one of the biggest tobacco concerns in the Hawaiian Islands.

Philip M. Forristall, of Waitt & Bond, Inc., of Boston, has been in San Francisco looking for a distributor in this territory.

The Court Cigar Company has been incorporated in San Francisco with a stock capital of $50,000 by H. Schwarz, B. Stone and W. A. Stone.

William Wagner has bought the stand on Front and California Streets from C. Maxwell, and now is making a fine showing of the "Webster" in his window.

A fire this week destroyed the Orange Cigar Store in Porterville, Cal., causing a loss of $2700, fully insured.

Jackson's Cigar Store was destroyed in a conflagration which swept the business district in Globe, Ariz., causing a total loss of $20,000.

Detectives a few days ago arrested John O'Day after he won five hundred cigars from the clerk at a cigar store in Ellis Street. The clerk was astonished when the detectives showed him that O'Day had substituted loaded dice for those provided by the store for a "26" game.

J. C. Day, of Manteca, Cal., has sold his pool room and cigar business to Lester Sanford.

The Combs Brothers, of Red Bluff, Cal., who for many years maintained a cigar store with a side line of men's furnishings, have outgrown their present quarters and are going to occupy the building formerly leased to the Brass saloon.

The Tobacco Company of California reports a decided increase in "Tuxedo" sales owing to the liberal leather pouch offer of the American Tobacco Company.

Ed. Marshall, representing Sig. Mayor & Company, manufacturers of "El Wadora" and "Rey Oma" cigars, has left San Francisco for Los Angeles on a prolonged business trip.

Kaskaskia Tobacco Company Incorporated

The Kaskaskia Tobacco Company, which occupies rooms at the corner of South First and Morgan Streets, Shelbyville, Ill., has received articles of incorporation. The incorporators are Martin Mochel, C. B. Garvin and Henry Pauschert, and the capital stock is $10,000, with 500 shares at $20 each. Of this amount $8460 has been paid in. The principal portion of the stock is held by the three incorporators. Other stockholders are Fred H. Pundt, J. C. Willard, F. D. Crook, H. Briggs, William H. Hoehn, J. Y. Hamlin, H. J. Hamlin, R. J. Frazier, George L. Dearing, George E. Korrer, W. S. Middlesworth, Frank Stone, Michael Kessel and M. O. Finks.

At a meeting of the stockholders the following directors were elected: Martin Mochel, Henry Pauschert, C. B. Garvin, J. C. Willard, Frank Stone and George L. Dearing.

Establishment of a Tobacco Monopoly in Ecuador

According to a report from Consul General Frederic W. Goding, Guayaquil, Ecuador, a government monopoly of the manufacture and sale of tobacco in Ecuador was authorized by a law of November 3, 1913.

By the provisions of this law, the government is to buy tobacco in the leaf, contract for its manufacture, fix prices and market the manufactured product. Such quantities as are not consumed at home are to be sold abroad through the consular service. The net proceeds from the tobacco monopoly are to be used in the construction of roads and railways.

Tobacco Expert Chosen From Kentucky

J. A. Hatter, a student at State University, Lexington, Ky., has been notified by the Department of Agriculture at Washington that he has been selected to fill the position of tobacco expert in the Philippine Islands. Mr. Hatter, whose home is in Franklin, is a senior in the College of Agriculture, and has made a special study of tobacco. He will have charge of the agricultural experiment station in the islands and will have supervision over all experiment work.

To Remove Tobacco Factory to York

Efforts of the York Chamber of Commerce have resulted in the decision of H. A. Stoothoff Company, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., to move their tobacco factory to that city. They are engaged in the manufacture of tobacco products, including tobacco dust, siftings, tobacco powders, scraps and nicotine, most of which are shipped to South America and to Mediterranean seaports. Thus York is to have an addition to its diversity of manufactures. The company has leased the four-story brick warehouse on East Clarke Alley, at the rear of No. 43 East Market Street, from the David E. Small estate. The plant at Mount Vernon will be dismantled, beginning July 1st, and this equipment will be moved to York a once. The company will bring a number of experienced employees along, but employment will also be given to York people.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Fay Lewis & Brothers Company Display "Harvester"

FAY LEWIS & BROTHERS COMPANY, of Milwaukee, are now inaugurating a campaign on "Harvester," their leading house brand. The window displays being used are of a new type and entirely strange to the tobacco trade. Rich colors and luxurious surroundings feature the window decorations. "As good as a mild cigar can be" is the slogan that has become synonymous with "Harvester" cigars, and this is being well displayed along with the smokes. Flowers, too, seasonable ones, are tastefully arranged in some of the decorations, and the attention that these window demonstrations are attracting is indicated by the cash registers in the stores where "Harvester" cigars are sold. Floyd Byrum is credited with the design and execution of the displays.

Joseph P. Manning Company Featuring "Charles Carroll"

Joseph P. Manning Company, well-known jobbers of Boston, are at present engaged in a campaign on the "Charles Carroll" cigar, made by S. I. Davis & Company, of New York. The brand is carried in a number of sizes and is Sumatra-wrapped. The smoke seems to have found favor with the consumers of Boston and much duplicate business has been secured. The manner in which "Charles Carroll" has been received in Boston has encouraged the house to continue its efforts to further increase the sales on the brand.

The Klingenstein Company is Campaigning

"Cinco" cigars are still receiving considerable attention in the campaign which the Klingenstein Company, of Los Angeles, is carrying on at present. There are some splendid window displays on this cigar about the city and the brand still continues to grow in favor.

The "La Preferencia" cigar is being widely advertised in the newspapers and the company reports that some healthy results are being secured.

Parker-Gordon Cigar Company Has Novel Humidor

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Louis, has a brand-new novelty in the way of a glass-top humidor. This is being distributed for the display of "Osceola" cigars. The feature of this new humidor is the ringing of a bell whenever the lid is lifted. When the clerk hears the bell ring his attention is attracted to the customer who has opened the box.

Business Good With J. Lanoff

Business continues good with J. Lanoff, jobber and distributor, as well as importer, at 1015 South Halsted Street, Chicago. He is carrying a full line of Havana and Manila cigars, and is one of the biggest jobbers in the West of Pennsylvania-made cigars. "El Massey" is the leader among his clear Havana goods. Considerable success was attained by the use of an automobile by the head salesman of the firm, and it is now stated that the house contemplates adding more automobiles for the use of their selling force.

New Jobbing House Opens Doors

WILLIAM A. VORHAUER & COMPANY has opened a new jobbing house at 206 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill. As it is to be the distributor for "Bolano" goods, it has already a rapidly growing trade to handle, and with its well-equipped sales force, there is no reason why there should not be a rapid growth on this line. Among the lines which the house will handle are "Flor de Bolano," "Elgardo y Lucia," "Royal Banner," and "Original Handmade," a five-cent brand made for the firm by Spietz & Worth, of Detroit. The sales staff, which starts with the house at the opening, is composed of Fred C. Vorhauer, F. B. Schrader, Robert Brunton and E. H. Lee. These men are well known in the trade circles of Chicago.

Two Firms Buy Astoria Cigar Business

A deal involving about $25,000 was recently consummated in Astoria, Ore., when William Madison disposed of his wholesale and retail cigar business to two local firms. The wholesale stock was taken over by Ross, Higgins & Company, who will transfer it to their establishment on Bond Street. This firm has been conducting a wholesale tobacco business for some time and with the addition of this new stock they will be able to give their patrons the best of attention.

Straus & Dean, who at present conduct a retail store at the corner of Fourteenth and Commercial Streets, have purchased Mr. Madison's interests in the retail store. This will give the firm two stores.

The Madison store is a long-established stand, having been opened nineteen years ago. It has remained in the same location for the entire period. Mr. Madison has been forced to dispose of his interests owing to failing health. He has decided to go to California for several months, where he hopes to recuperate.

Boom for S. Monday & Sons

S. Monday & Sons, the Brooklyn jobbers, have made big increases in their trade since they were placed on the "direct" list, and became out and out competitors of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

Their New England representatives are sending in many orders and their wagons can be seen on the streets of Greater New York almost any time of the day, while the Westchester County motor truck has been kept going all the time on orders for that county.

This house also manufactures little cigars and their "Brand M," "Hunters" and "Imperialettes" are receiving proper recognition from the trade.

Yahn & McDonnell are featuring their "Trade Mark" cigars throughout their several stores, and meeting with good success. This is marketed especially to meet the requirements of box trade desiring a good smoke for $5 the box.

Los Angeles

Klingenstein Company Reports "Cinco" Going Big—"Lovera" Making Tremendous Headway—Weather and Business Conditions Good

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 7, 1914.

WILLIAM VEITH, city salesman for Haas-Baruch & Company, is doing a very fine bit of work on "Lovera" Banderos. He has placed them with all of his trade and they are repeating very fast. Haas-Baruch & Company report "Lovera" cigars as the greatest creators of satisfied customers they know of, which is verified by the repeat orders being received at headquarters every day.

The Klauber-Wangenheim Company have been conducting an unusually strong campaign on their leading brands of cigars. They have been receiving "Optimos" in bond every week, and the "Optimo" cigar is in big demand in their territory on account of the very fine quality of this popular brand. "Chancellor" cigars are constantly gaining over the Klauber-Wangenheim territory and "Chancellors" are surely one of the best big sellers in Los Angeles.

The Klingenstein Company have furnished their country salesman, Abe Goldring, with a Studebaker delivery car, and it is one of the handsomest of cars seen hereabouts. Mr. Goldring is very much pleased with this car.

The Exchange Building Cigar Store

The illustration herewith shows the cigar store of the Exchange Building, operated by E. L. Bashford, 321 West Third Street, Los Angeles, where a high grade of cigars are continually in stock.

H. H. Manley was here last week and was very much pleased with the manner "La Preferencia" cigars are going.

"Milo" and "Duke of York" cigarettes are the cause of increasing sales every day report the Klingenstein Company.

C. W. McCormack, representing the Pendas & Alvarez Company, manufacturers of the "Webster" cigars, is spending a few weeks with the Klingenstein Company.

Geo. J. Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, has done some elegant work on "Y-B" and "Spana Cuba" cigars, the Klingenstein Company being the sole agents of these two splendid brands.

Louis Eisenlohr, of the firm of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, is here calling on the Klingenstein Company and is very much pleased with the way "Cinco" cigars are selling. There are some elegant window displays on "Cinco" cigars about town these days.

Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company report increasing demand for the "Reynaldo" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa. This cigar was just recently taken over by this firm and they have shown steadily increasing sales daily. It is an excellent piece of goods and is bound to come to the front soon. They also report "Piquant" cigars as moving nicely.

ALKALI.

The Dan Forrest Cigar Store, Kenton, O., has been removed to the Kenton National Bank Building. Growing trade made it necessary for the store to have larger quarters.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., May 11, 1914.

THE latest advancement which Cleveland has made is the adoption of Eastern time, giving everybody the advantage of one hour more of daylight. The new time has met with a general success and is being adopted by all the surrounding towns.

George B. Scrambling, head of the George B. Scrambling Company, 1422 West Third Street, was in Washington recently conferring with the war officials regarding the Mexican situation. Mr. Scrambling is captain of the Cleveland Greys and in case of war with Mexico this company would be one of the first to be called from this section.

J. W. Klein, representing Louis Brothers Company, of Richmond, Va., has been working in Cleveland on the two popular brands, "Edgeworth" and "Quboid." These brands are certainly showing an enormous increase through this section, due to Mr. Klein's efforts. He has been putting in some very attractive window displays and placing a lot of attractive show cards in all sections of the city. These brands are bound to stay on the increase, as Mr. Klein does not overlook anything to keep them on the jump. He will leave for Western Pennsylvania next week and expects to be gone about six weeks.

F. Cofall, 10,507 Euclid Avenue, who has taken over the cigar store formerly run by the Unger Cigar Company, has been steadily increasing his business and is constantly adding many features to make his stand the talk of the corners. He has already got the boys coming and should make a live-wire stand out of it.

A. C. Wertheim and L. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, manufacturers of "La Saramitas," will spend a few days in Mt. Clemens.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, has just returned from Cincinnati and surrounding towns, and has succeeded in placing his brands with Henry Strauss for that section.

R. Rosenberg, who formerly owned the cigar store in the Adams Hotel, 90 Public Square, has bought the hotel of Eddie Clifford and expects to secure a license and run a high-grade cafe in connection with the hotel.

M. Halper, who purchased the cigar store from R. Rosenberg, is already well under way in making a big showing for a new comer. Mr. Halper manufactures "Halper's Stogies" and "Uncle Joe Stogies," which are enjoying a big run in all parts of the city.

The Shields-Wertheim Company reports business as being very good. "La Saramita" and "Saramita Fives" are being displayed in all sections of the city. Their many and varied show windows have created much comment and are assisting in winning many new friends to these two popular brands.

Pittsburgh was the scene of another heavy campaign both in the selling end and window work on the "Saramita" brands. The campaign was put on by Shipley-Massingham Company, assisted by Fred P. Shields, the factory man.

Jack Curry, the popular tobacconist, has joined forces with the Fred G. Gollmer Cigar Company and is operating their stand at Twenty-fourth Arcade. Jack should make a big success of this stand, as he has a host of loyal friends.

Verne Owen, who is operating the Rathskeller stand for the Fred G. Gollmer Company, is setting a fast pace for the rest of the stands to follow. He has nursed this stand along and made it one of the leaders of its kind in the country. This is due in part to his genial personality and furthermore by the excellent selection of stock carried. Among the brands featured are "Somellos," "El Modelos," "Henry the Fourth" and "La Saramita."

The Consumers No. 2 Stand, located on lower Superior Street, and operated by Al Cohen, is coming along slowly but surely, and it will be only a short time before it is one of the most popular stands in that section of the city.

George Bassett reports business as steadily increasing. He has shown a big gain over last year and promises to have one of the most popular stands in town. His stock of cigars, tobaccos and smokers' articles is hard to equal and is proving to be a big drawing card. Mr. Bassett showed the writer a sample of tobacco which was raised on his land in the Isle of Pines. Mr. Bassett is anxious to get down on his island property and get started raising tobacco on a big scale as several expert tobacco men have told him that his land should produce an excellent crop of tobacco.

The several stores in the M. Glucksman chain are coming along nicely. Business has opened up for them during the spring and they are proving to be the livest stands in the downtown section.

The Euclid Hotel Cigar stand, formerly operated by Frank Keyes, has been taken over by the hotel management and is being operated by them.

JERRY.

E. G. Fidler, Womelsdorf, Pa., manufacturers of the "Peyton Randolph," a ten-cent cigar of admirable qualities, and "El Rocco," a nickel cigar of renown, closed some attractive business when in Philadelphia this week.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. Some Decision for North Dakota

The long continued fight between the users and non-users of tobacco as to the personal rights of the one to breathe pure air and the other to befoul it with smoke has reached the Supreme Court of North Dakota and that judicial body has set a precedent which, if followed by other State courts will result in much trouble for the man who chews and smokes.

"The courts can take judicial notice that the use of tobacco in any form is uncleanly, and that its excessive use is injurious, that the use of tobacco in any form by the young is injurious.

"The courts can take judicial notice of the general fear in their community that drugs and opium are, and can be, mingled with snuff and be less readily detected than in other forms of tobacco.

"Police statutes can only be set aside as unreasonable interference with the right to liberty and property, if it can be said that they cannot possibly have any reasonable relation to the public health, morality or the real public welfare."

From the wording of the above opinion, it may be assumed that the State of North Dakota has passed some statute as a police regulation, looking to the remedying of the free use of tobacco by minors, and in the legal contest that followed the Supreme Court of that State has widened the authority of the statute to include all users of the weed.

Detroit Cigar Factories Show Gain

That Detroit-made cigars are popular all over the country is shown by the March record. During that month the factories produced 24,000,000 cigars, which is a gain of 2,000,000 over the same month in 1913.

Reports of the tobacco factories show that they did a good business in March with an increase over last year. It is expected that 1914 will see a new record in tobacco manufacture in this city.

Toledo

Work Being Rushed on the Toledo Club Building—J. B. Moos Company Campaigning on "Permit"—Movement to Close All Stores on Sunday

TOLEDO, O., May 11, 1914.

A NEW cigar store has been opened in Toledo on Summit Street by C. L. Paine.

Ben Block, of the Philip Morris Company; G. W. Hardee, of the Gonzales & Sanchez Company; also Charles Baswitz, of the same concern, and Charles Morris, of the "La Integridad" factory, were late visitors to the Maumee City.

Joe Threm has opened a new cafe and restaurant at the corner of St. Clair and Jackson Streets. A bowling alley is conducted in connection therewith. A large variety of cigars are handled.

Fred E. Dunham is the new traffic manager of the Pinkerton Tobacco Company, which has its main plant in Toledo. Mr. Dunham was formerly chief clerk in the freight department of the Hocking Valley Railroad.

Business at the stores of Stark & Hawkins, located in the Ohio, Spitzer and Nicholas buildings, is reported to be very favorable. All three establishments are very popular among the business men of Toledo, due partly to the courteous treatment of the various managers and clerks and partly due to the fine stock of cigars which is always kept on hand.

The fine new home of the Toledo Club at Madison Avenue and Fourteenth Street is beginning to take form. Nearly all the steel frame-work is in position, and when this is completed the rest of the work will be rushed so as to get the building opened this year, if possible.

An active campaign is on here in connection with the "Permit" cigar through the branch of the J. B. Moos Company, distributors. It is a five-cent cigar.

A strenuous movement is on to close all stores on Sundays owing to the recent prosecution of a few owners of meat markets who have been keeping open on the Sabbath. The butchers and grocers are actively interested in the matter and state if they must close they shall expect the cigar stores to do likewise.

ODEL.

E. F. Tinney, who recently bought the R. F. Carnes store, in Keystone, Ind., destroyed all the tobacco he found in the place and refuses it to be used in his place of business. This news will probably bring joy to Dr. Pease and Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

Baltimore Leaf Tobacco Men Hold Election

The Leaf Tobacco Association of Baltimore held its annual meeting recently in the State Tobacco Warehouse, at Baltimore, and re-elected its officers for the year. In the annual report it was shown that the 1914 crop already marketed was small and that the prospects were that the entire year's crop would be small, but with good prices for the better grades.

The new crop tobaccos already marketed were said to be heavy in character and the ground leaf crop the smallest on record for several years.

Winston-Salem Market Shows Good Increase

Sales on the Winston-Salem, N. C., leaf tobacco market for the month of April, 1914, aggregated 1,265,656 pounds for which $134,428.42 were paid. The sales in April, 1913, amounted to 110,019 pounds, for which $9790.46 were paid. Gain over last April, 1,155,637 pounds and $134,637.96.

For the season beginning August 1, 1912, and closing May 1, 1913, 23,341,239 pounds were sold for $3,149,940.70, against 28,617,711 pounds at $4,427,111.44 for the season from August 1, 1913, to May 1, 1914, a gain of 5,276,472 pounds and $1,277,170.74 for this year.

Pattersons Have Self-Moistening Humidor

The Pattersons are at it again. Doing the unusual is the usual thing with them. Mr. M. C. Patterson, president of the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, Inc., while discussing the matter of keeping smoking tobacco moist after it reached the consumer, told of a new departure in humidor construction he has just adopted.

Mr. Patterson said that the wetted sponge has been the accepted solution of the dry tobacco problem, but "a sponge is a dead animal, and when wet, slowly decomposes and decays. It is bound to harm the flavor of smoking tobacco."

"Blotting paper," he says, "is far preferable to the sponge, but even blotting paper has its defects. It is of a vegetable composition, and deteriorates when wet."

The Pattersons have adopted a new one-pound "Patented Pottery Self-Moistening Humidor" for putting up "Whip" and "Queed" tobaccos. The cover is left unglazed on the inside. You simply run water on the inside of the cover and the unglazed surface soaks it up. You then clamp the cover on the humidor and the tobacco is kept just moist enough for good smoking. The cover being of special baked clay, has no taint or odor and the purity as well as the condition of the tobacco is perfectly preserved.

The humidor is a handsome example of the potter's art. Its perfectly green color and handsome glazed surface, together with its graceful proportions, are sure to win it a warm welcome from every pipe smoker, as well as being a very useful vessel for many purposes around the house after the tobacco has been used.

New Warehouse for J. C. Hauer's Sons

Ground has been broken by J. C. Hauer's Sons, the tobacconists, of 845 Cumberland Street, Lebanon, Pa., for a large warehouse in the rear of their present buildings. The new building will have a width of 33 feet and a depth of 112 feet. A portion of the building will be two stories high, while the remainder, 95 feet, will be one story high. The structure will be of brick.

New Cigar Company for Gary

A cigar company to be headed by Mayor R. O. Johnson, is in the course of formation in Gary, Ind. The company will be capitalized for $15,000 and will engage in the manufacture of high-grade cigars.

The concern will be a closed corporation with the following officers: R. O. Johnson, president; C. L. Johnson, vice-president and secretary; Henry Wellner, treasurer.

The new concern will operate at the Wellner factory at 1408 Broadway for the present. As soon as the increase in business demands larger quarters will be acquired. Twenty experienced cigarmakers are to be employed at once in turning out the three "Mayor Johnson" brands and the two new brands to be manufactured by the company.

The name of the new concern has not yet been definitely decided upon. Mayor Johnson will finally determine the name under which the concern will operate.

Only the highest grades of imported leaf tobaccos are to be used in the manufacture of the company's products.

Cigar Manufacturers Bankrupt

Henry J. and William H. Wagner, manufacturers and retailers of cigars, as Henry J. Wagner & Son, 24-26 East Fifth Street, Dayton, O., recently filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. Their schedules, filed with the petition, list the liabilities and assets of the partnership at $5836.24 and $2851.57 respectively. Neither partner has any individual indebtedness or assets.

Among the larger unsecured creditors are John Staun Company, Cincinnati, $1161.60; J. B. Moos Company, Dayton, $761.96; Landis Leaf Tobacco Company, Dayton, $366.27; Charles Keyer, Cincinnati, $269.58; M. J. Schwab, Dayton, $194.72; the L. W. Keyer Company, Dayton, $17.47; N. Gunther, Cincinnati, $120.04; and the First Savings and Banking Company of Dayton, $2500. All of these creditors, with the exception of the Dayton bank, hold accounts for merchandise. The bank's claim is on a promissory note.

The assets of the partnership include stock in trade, valued at $1400; tools and machinery, $400, and debts due on open accounts, $1051.71.

New Home of Banner Cigar Company Started

Foundations are now being laid for the new home of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, Warren and Mitchell Avenues, Detroit, Mich. The company has the reputation of building the first modern cigar factory in Detroit, that being the one at Randolph and Congress Streets. The Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company is one of the oldest manufacturers of high-grade cigars in the West.

The new factory will be more conveniently located for the workmen and will seat 600 hands. The new building will cost $60,000. It is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by next August.

The officers of the company at present are: Com. M. B. Mills, president and treasurer; Card Garrison, secretary; T. B. Gaghan, assistant treasurer.

C. D. Zuber, a well-known cigarmaker of Litchfield, Ill., is planning to erect a cigar factory at 816 North Jackson, where he will shortly open up for business. The work is under way and it is understood that the factory will be thoroughly modern in every respect.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

This year potatoes will supplant tobacco in many parts of Lancaster County, a number of districts reporting that the tobacco acreage will be curtailed fully twenty-five per cent. Should this rate of decrease be very general it would cut down Lancaster County's area in tobacco to about 12,000 acres.

Local packers are hopeful that this will be the case, as a shortage in Lancaster County's output would help them sell their old goods, of which they have large stocks in their warehouses. The bulk of the 1913 crop sold, put at about sixty per cent. of the output, is held by local packers, who are rather anxiously waiting for it to go through the sweat in order to get a line on its qualities, which well mean its possibilities for them in the way of doing business.

As 1911 and 1912 packings are bringing sixteen cents and under, none of the dealers look for gilt edged prices for the new tobacco, unless a boom takes place in the cigar industry, now greatly depressed.

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The young tobacco that has been in the beds under glass or under cloth has been severely damaged by the continued unfavorable weather and it is the opinion that it will mean the sprouting of new seeds or the purchasing of plants from some of the more fortunate growers. Except where the soil is more or less sandy there has been little plowing done and it is believed from present conditions that the crop will be at least a month later this year than is the average. Some of the growers look on this as a favorable condition, as the tobacco would then be in the fields during the latter part of August, when the rainy and sultry spell generally makes its appearance, instead of in the sheds where it has every chance to pole-sweat. Other growers hold the opinion that early frosts are apt to catch the crops if the season is late.

THE CAROLINAS.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

For some reason or other tobacco for the past three years has sold higher during the first and middle portions of the season than at the end. The tobacco farmers seem anxious to sell their tobacco as soon as they can get it to the markets after it is cured. For this reason there is a demand on foot for an increase in the sales forces by several of the larger markets.

The larger buyers are opposed to any increase in the number of sales, as they argue that they will be unable to handle their purchases properly.

WISCONSIN

MADISON, WIS.

Prospects for good prices have never been better than this year, owing to the scarcity of Wisconsin binder leaf in the market, and many growers no doubt will take advantage of conditions and increase their acreage, wherever shed room is sufficient. Should Wisconsin double its output there would be no reduction in price, and it would mean $12,000,000 to the Badger State against $6,000,000 this year. Wherever tobacco is grown land sells at the best figure.

STOUGHTON, WIS.

The tobacco warehouse season is closing, with a few operators still doing business. The United Cigar Manufacturers at Portage have packed about 7000 cases of 1913 and others have been doing up the crop of last year. The leaf has proven satisfactory to the trade and owing to scarcity of binders it will soon be utilized for cigar purposes. The big concerns will hold what they need for their own factories and very little surplus will remain for others. An effort is being made this year to select the best seed for 1914, to avoid damage of the goods while passing through fermentation. An even, though smaller leaf, will be sought by the dealers.

FLORIDA.

QUINCY, FLA.

The outlook for a good crop of tobacco in Gadsden County is unusually propitious. The farmers of all the region have been busy for some time setting out their plants and the greater portion of the plants are now set and are growing nicely. The tobacco grown in that section is of two varieties, or rather it is grown in two different ways, under shade, which is called "shade" tobacco, and in the open, which is called "sun" tobacco. It is said that while the prospects for both kinds are good that for the sun tobacco is unusually excellent.

Leslie Benfer, of Vinton, Ia., has recently leased a property on Main Street, Shellsburg, Ia., and will shortly open his cigar factory there. Mr. Benfer has been engaged in the cigar business for a number of years and has several established brands to begin work with.

Bock-Stauffer Company Lease New Quarters

The greater part of the four-story building at 1111-1119 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, has been leased by M. Arnfeld & Sons to the Bock-Stauffer Company. Some time ago the lessees took over the entire business of the R. & W. Jenkinson Cigar Company. The Arnfeld Building, for many years a retail store and office structure, will be remodeled. The Bock-Stauffer Company will remove from its present quarters at Liberty Avenue and Twelfth Street about August 1st.

The 1100 block of Penn Avenue is attracting much attention in realty circles of late. The removal of Arnfeld Brothers to Fifth Avenue and Market Street, vacated the largest building in the square, where the other improvements consisted mainly of old and small structures little fitted to the needs of modern business. This year, however, the Pittsburgh Bakers and Confectioners' Supply Company leased the Hoeveler warehouse, at 1150 Penn Avenue, the Bock-Stauffer lease being the second largest contract of the kind in the same square.

Linder Brothers, who operate a cigar factory on East Main Street, Merrill, Wis., will soon remove to Second Street, where Walter Linder has purchased a property.

CRESSMAN'S COUNSELLOR 5¢ CIGAR

Countless Consumers Confidently Consume Cressman's "Counsellor"

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

Not until you stock up on this cigar in the right way and push it by "putting your shoulder to the wheel", will you realize to the full what a prolific source of profit it is.

Sell the Consistent Counsellor Cigar. It pays.

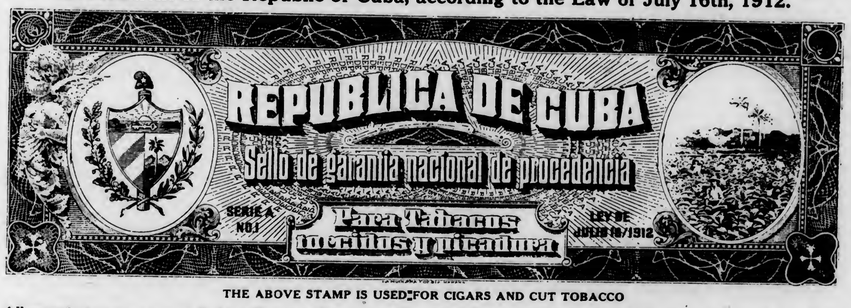
Exact Fac-simile of the Government Stamps on Cigars, Cut Tobacco and Cigarettes, issued by the Government of the Republic of Cuba, according to the Law of July 16th, 1912.



THE ABOVE STAMP IS USED FOR CIGARS AND CUT TOBACCO

All manufacturers are compelled to affix these Stamps on all boxes of Cigars, packages of Cut Tobacco, as well as packs of Cigarettes, which are manufactured by them, and which constitute an absolute guarantee to the smokers, that the Cigars, Cut Tobacco or Cigarettes contained therein, are of Genuine Cuban Origin, made by Expert Havana Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers.

THE ABOVE STAMP IS USED ON ALL PACKAGES OF CIGARETTES

The COLOR of THE ABOVE STAMPS is GREEN.

M. E. Canle, 156 Water Street, New York, Representative for the United States, of the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, is duly authorized to prosecute any falsification, or colorable imitation of the above stamps by law with the assistance of the Cuban Minister at Washington.

ARTHUR LUCK
Conductor of the Philadelphia Harmonic Orchestra, says:
"Tuxedo is easily my favorite smoke—giving greater fragrance, mildness and coolness than I have found in any other tobacco. Never stings or bites the tongue. Tuxedo doubles my enjoyment of pipe smoking."

Arthur Luck

A. H. GRIFFITH
Director of Detroit Museum of Art, and Lecturer, says:
"Like Omar I sometimes wonder what the makers of Tuxedo buy, one-half as precious as the stuff they sell. It's the greatest ever."

A. H. Griffith

VICTOR P. ARNOLD
Member of the Chicago law firm of Northrup, Arnold & Fairbank, says:
"After a battle in the court-room, there is nothing like retiring to your private office, sitting back in your chair with your feet on your desk and enjoying a fine smoke of Tuxedo. It is immense!"

Victor P. Arnold

Maintain Your Efficiency

By Smoking TUXEDO—The Mildest, Pleasantest Tobacco Made

FOLKS are talking physical efficiency in modern business life. The idea is, that modern business keeps a man just about as occupied as the fabled one-armed paperhanger with the hives. And if you want to join in with the Gimp Bros. and travel with the Pep and Ginger crowd, you want to cut out a lot of things that make your day's work go wrong.

Take the item of smoking, for instance. It's much better not only for you but for your job if you smoke a light, soothing pipe tobacco like Tuxedo. Get a pipe and try Tuxedo awhile. You'll see the difference.

Your whole efficiency make-up will respond right away to the gentle and cheering influence of Tuxedo.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

gives you this moderate and reasonable refreshment because it is primarily a pure, light, mild selection of the highest grades of Kentucky Burley tobacco.

Tuxedo can't bite your tongue. It can't irritate you in any way. There's no drag or sag in it. Simply pleasant, whiffable, aromatic, easy smoking.

Tuxedo has all these splendid qualities because it is made by the original Tuxedo Process of treating Burley leaf. Many other manufacturers have tried to imitate the Tuxedo Process—but never succeeded. Hence there is no other tobacco "just as good."

If you've tried the imitations, just try the original. At the end of one week you'll find yourself in line with the thousands of famous business men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, singers, athletes, who endorse Tuxedo as the one perfect tobacco.

YOU CAN BUY TUXEDO EVERYWHERE

WILLIAM COLLIER
Popular comedian, recently starring in "A Little Water on the Side," says:
"My pipe is always Tuxedo-filled. I tried other tobaccos before I discovered Tuxedo. Now there IS no other."

William Collier

JAMES R. HAYES
Owner and Manager of the Wayne Hotel, Detroit, Mich.; Park Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark., and Park Hotel, Sault Ste. Marie, says:
"Sports afield and afloat appeal to me, but the day would not be wholly enjoyable without the evening pipe of Tuxedo, my favorite smoke."

J. R. Hayes

PATRICK H. O'DONNELL
A prominent lawyer of Chicago, says:
"A canvass of my friends would show that Tuxedo is most popular with them. Many say it is the only pipe tobacco."

Patrick H. O'Donnell

WASHINGTON STATE SUPREME COURT SAY ANTI-COUPON BILL IS VALID

Highest State Court Sustains New Act—Case May Be Appealed—Meanwhile Coupon License Costs $6000 a Year—Thirty Days Grace Will Be Allowed to Dispose of Coupon Bearing Goods.

DESPITE the fact that the Washington State Legislature passed a law at the last session making it necessary for all companies using trading stamps and coupons to take out a license costing $6000 annually, decisions in the lower courts invalidating the law caused the coupon givers to believe that the matter was at an end.

The case was appealed, however, and now the State Supreme Court has just rendered a decision upholding the law and its constitutionality. It is expected that the case will be carried to the United States Supreme Court very soon, but meanwhile the companies using coupons are going to be allowed only a short time to dispose of coupon-bearing goods, or to be subject to a license for the use of the same, costing $6000. Not a whole lot of retail cigar stores feel like separating themselves from that much money; in fact, the number that could afford to do it is very, very small.

The case decided this week by the state grew out of the arrest of F. S. Pitney, of the staff of the United Cigar Stores Company in seattle. The United stores continued to give coupons, without making arrangements for expensive licenses, after the law took effect. The first trial of the matter resulted in the law being declared unconstitutional, but appeal was taken and attorneys for the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers were active in presenting testimony and rounding up local authorities. It has been asserted that the anti-coupon bill merely represents extension of police power, which may not be abrogated under the constitution.

As it will take some months for the matter to be digested by the United States Supreme Court, should it reach them, coupons and premiums will have to pass up Washington State for the present from the looks of the situation.

A large number of jobbers are carrying premium and coupon-bearing goods, and while they will probably not be prevented from disposing of their goods outside of the state, they will be affected in this territory.

The jobbers feel that their interstate commerce will not be interfered with and a number of them have stated that they intend to comply with the law as regards to Washington State.

Meanwhile independent dealers are highly pleased with the turn of affairs and state that they expect to see that the law is enforced.

EDISON'S ATTACK ON CIGARETTES BRINGS CHALLENGE FROM HILL

CIGARETTES not tolerated. They dull the brain." This notice conspicuously posted about the electrical shops of the Thomas A. Edison plant in West Orange, N. J., together with a statement by Mr. Edison to the effect that the analyzation of twenty brands of cigarettes showed that the paper in which they were rolled contained poisonous matter, has precipitated an argument of intense interest to the cigarette industry.

Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, recognizing the influence of such a statement from a man of the prominence of Mr. Edison, promptly replied to the inventor and asserted that if he would make a statement regarding their brands of cigarettes in such a form as to permit legal action, the American Tobacco Company would be delighted to bring suit for damages and devote the proceeds to some designated charity.

If Mr. Edison has made answer, it has not been given to the public as yet.

In addition to Mr. Hill's letter, dated May 18th, more than five hundred employees of the Edison plant held a mass meeting on May 17th, at 130 East Seventh Street, and adopted resolutions condemning not only the action of Mr. Edison, but also the reported intention of the Ford Motor Company to take a similar action.

President Hill talked with a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD last week, and from his earnest manner it was quite evident that he meant every word that he wrote to Mr. Edison.

Many of the agitators of the anti-cigarette movement throughout the country are shouting for Mr. Edison to accept the challenge, but Mr. Edison seems to be in no haste. Perhaps he prefers to thoroughly examine the ground on which he stands before entering the lists.

Tobacco Stocks Pile Up In Bond

An interesting fact revealed by the regular monthly report of the Bureau of Statistics at the Custom House here is that the tariff provision enabling the cigar manufacturers to manufacture Havana cigars in the Government bonded factories has resulted in a tremendous increase in the importation of Havana leaf and wrapper tobacco for storage or use in the bonded factories.

The stocks of leaf tobacco in the warehouses on May 1st amounted in value to $18,045,321, compared with $16,260,067 on April 1st and $15,562,760 on March 1, 1914. The stocks of tobacco for wrappers remaining in the warehouses on May 1st amounted in value to $5,246,821, compared with $4,879,079 on April 1st and $5,036,604 on March 1, 1914.

Just as the indiscriminate abuse of spirituous liquors has brought condemnation on the whole industry, so have the excesses of cigarette smokers kept alive a continuous agitation against that form of smoking.

Cigarettes and Mr. Edison

Despite the fact that by far the larger proportion of medical and scientific men refuse to uphold the charges brought against the cigarette, men and women of far less accurate knowledge continue to blame illness and fatalities, mental depravity and sterility on cigarettes; charges which scientific investigation does not verify.

Only last week a physician widely known as a specialist in nervous diseases said: "Of all the forms of smoking the cigarette is the lightest and least injurious."

If this statement be true, then Mr. Edison's brilliant mind has been little dimmed by the use of tobacco, as he is said to not only smoke cigars but to chew tobacco as well.

Outside of bragging about the fact that they do not smoke, we have yet to notice any multitude of great men rising from among the ranks of the anti-smokers.

Some have interpreted Mr. Hill's statements to mean that he can prove that cigarette smoking is not harmful to youths. We can deduce no such meaning, and further it is quite possible that if cigarette smoking is so terribly detrimental to young boys, the same would apply to the pipe and cigar. Because youth shows a leaning toward the cigarette, that form of smoking has been made the object of bitter and vicious attacks. If boys showed a tendency to prefer the pipe or cigar, then, in all probability, either of those forms would have been just as heartily maligned.

As a matter of fact scientific evidence largely favors the cigarette, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Edison will satisfy himself one way or the other, and act accordingly. If he finds that he has grounds for arguing the matter legally, well and good. In view of the widespread publicity of Mr. Edison's attack on the cigarette, and Mr. Hill's reply, a legal decision at this time will have great weight. Obviously the cigarette will not be the loser.

Importation Figures Withheld from Trade Reporters

Practically from the beginning of the cigar industry the trade paper representatives at this port have always been extended by the customs official the courtesy of the figures of the leaf importations and withdrawals.

A new ruling by the department has put an end to this concession. As the ruling seems quite arbitrary, Collector Griggs has been written to on the subject and it is hoped that the objectionable law will be revoked.

"Ramado" Manager on a Vacation

Following a trip to Indiana and various other territories, combining pleasure with business, Charles L. Rader, manager of the National Tobacco Products Company, has returned to New York, much revived in spirit and much gratified with the number of orders booked in Indianapolis, Pittsburgh and other outlying points. Particularly enjoyable was the bass fishing in which Mr. Rader indulged on the Terre Haute lakes.

Western Trip Postpones Vacation

Sidney Cahen, of E. Regensburg & Company, New York and Tampa, opened several new accounts while in Philadelphia last week.

Mr. Cahen travels as far west at Omaha, Neb., and will leave shortly on the last trip before the vacation season.

It is the custom of Mr. Cahen and his family to occupy their summer residence at Monmouth Beach from about June 1st until September 1st, but the contemplated trip West will postpone Mr. Cahen's sojourn about one month.

"Chicos" Going Good

Announcement was made some weeks ago, that the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, had started packing "Chicos," their leading five-cent cigar, in tin packages.

This departure was primarily for the dealers in the South and Southwest, but customers throughout New York and the Keystone State have been quick to seize upon this packing as being well suited to vacation business, and the twenty-five cigars make an attractive and convenient carriage for the vacationist.

Carlos Fernandez & Co. Fail

THE petition in bankruptcy filed this week by Carlos Fernandez & Company, 121 East Twenty-fourth Street, New York, importers of Manila cigars, estimates their assets at $5980 and liabilities at $9053. There have been rumors in the trade that the company was either going to sell or close up their affairs and discontinue. Following the death of the president a few months ago, Charles Jacobs, who died suddenly, Mrs. Jacobs became president, continuing the business since that time.

"Cosmos" New Krinsky Product

Composed of pure selected Turkish tobaccos of a special blend, the "Cosmos," a fifteen-cent cigarette recently launched by I. B. Krinsky, the well-known Brooklyn manufacturer, should meet with instant success, if arduous labor and painstaking care in bringing it to perfection is to be a criterion. The "Cosmos" comes plain or cork tips, just as the smoker wishes, and is sold at ten for fifteen cents, and is regarded by the firm as one of their best products. In order to insure publicity and to have it acquire as much prominence as possible, the "Cosmos" is being displayed in the Metropolitan District with ten-box cartons.

B. F. Alexander Covers Vast Area

Fifteen thousand miles in ten weeks is going some, but B. F. Alexander, representative of the A. Fernandez Garcia and Tomas Guttierez factories, Havana, Cuba, has accomplished the feat, the giant task having been undertaken in the distribution of his company's brands. In this connection, Mr. Alexander is very much pleased with the work performed. Mr. Alexander not only covered the states, but gave a fair amount of attention to the larger trade centres of the Dominion.

Club House, a New "Charter" Size

E. M. Schwarz & Company are much elated over the success which is attending the sales of the new "Club House" size of their "Charter" cigar, retailing at five cents. Formerly the "Charter" came only in the Londres and Progress sizes, the latter a Perfecto shape. Larger than either of the others, the "Club House" is reputed to be a splendid smoke, the quality being just as well maintained. Over one million of the new size has already been disposed of.

Fred B. Griffin and Fred Lederer have returned from their recent sojourn in Cuba in the interests of the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company. Reports from Brookville, Conn., to which district Mr. Griffin proceeded after his return, in order to start the work of setting out the plants, state that the plants are splendid and give promise of much encouragement. The plants already set include both open air and shade grown tobacco. From the New York office it is stated that there is an increasing demand for dark and medium tobaccos.

First "Made-in-Bond" Cigars Sent Abroad

CHARLES THE GREAT cigars have the honor of being the first of the made-in-bond smokes to be shipped abroad. The first consignment of its kind left New York this week, bound for Merrie England.

The order for these cigars was placed by the J. B. Regan Importation Company, who have not divulged the name of the consignee. It is known, however, to be a house which has facilities for marketing a United States product made under the Government guarantee.

The cigars were made in the Tampa factory of Salvador Rodriguez.

Berriman Brothers Established in New Offices

Many favorable comments are being heard in the trade concerning the new offices of Berriman Brothers, located on the third floor of the building at the southeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street. The new situation is excellently lighted and ventilated and is well suited to the aims of the company. Near the entrance is located the private office, with the departments for salesmen and bookkeepers, not to omit mention of the splendid humidor, established along the north windows. Berriman Brothers have seen to it that the appointments of the new offices shall spell for their customers and visitors, the last word in "convenience." Entrance to the shipping room may be made from the main hall of the building, it being separated from the office quarters.

M. Gilberg Goes to West End

M. Gilberg has been placed in charge of the tobacco department of Park & Tilford's branch store at West End, N. J., for the summer months. Before going to West End, Mr. Gilberg was in charge of the company's retail department in the headquarters store, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street.

Joseph P. Perez, son of Marcellino Perez, of M. Perez & Gotham, and buyer of leaf tobacco for Morris Rosenberg & Company, New York City, was a recent guest at the Hotel El Reguladora, Havana, Cuba.

"Bandero," a five-cent Havana cigar, distributed in the trade at $37.50 per thousand and manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company, is going big in the trade and is making friends wherever it appears. The manufacturers report that they are greatly oversold, and find it difficult to turn out the orders coming across. The "Bandero" was placed on the market but a short time ago.

Thomas Q. Atkins, representative of P. Pohalski & Company, reports that "First Consul" cigars are taking well with the retailers of Washington and Oregon, and that he has succeeded in placing some first-class factory shipments throughout that territory. He states, also, that he was very successful in the placing of "Resagos," a Havana smoker packed in tins.

PHILADELPHIA.

El Draco Company's Business Shows Increase

REPORTS from the manufacturers of the "Stratford" cigars indicate that their business is showing a revival and that the demonstrations here in this city have helped them considerably. They have traced a large number of out-of-town inquiries to customers from out of the city who saw the demonstration and told their tobacconist about it when they returned.

Chas. H. Heath has recently been at Scranton working the Pocono and Water Gap sections for Hine & Myers, the local distributors.

E. G. Walthall, representing the El Draco Company in the West, is now in Ohio, where he is doing some splendid business on "Stratfords" in several sizes. This week he is working Toledo and Cleveland.

"Bold" Cigars Featured on Columbia Avenue

The cigar store of William J. Kammer, Dover & Columbia Avenues, has recently attracted much attention with displays on "Bold" cigars and "Buddies Discriminators" in five-cent goods, and "Discriminators" in the ten-cent line. Both are products of the Bobrow Brothers factory.

The store is a very popular one and practically all the well-known five-cent lines are carried, as well as a choice selection of Tampa and Key West goods.

Although in this location a little more than three years, Mr. Kammer has been very successful and enjoys a steadily growing trade.

Louis Bythiner, Old Leaf Broker, Retires

Louis Bythiner, for more than thirty-five years a well known figure in Third Street, is going into temporary retirement, and is closing his office at 308 Race Street, where for nearly a quarter of a century he has been actively engaged in the leaf brokerage business. Mr. Bythiner's health has not been of the best and a recent illness caused him to make the decision to withdraw from business activities for the present at least. The business, however, will be maintained in other quarters by a son, William Bythiner.

"Dick" Bythiner, another son, is probably as widely known as his father. He is a representative for the well known leaf house of E. Rosenwald & Brother, and is a familiar figure in Water Street, New York.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, have added the Garcia and Vega lines and will carry these well-known brands in thirteen sizes.

Starr & Reed Cigarettes Going Well

B. RILEY, representing the Starr & Reed Tobacco Company, has recently completed a canvass of Pittsburgh and has succeeded in opening a number of fine accounts.

The distribution of these cigarettes in that territory have been placed with the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company.

Starr & Reed cigarettes have recently been well placed in New York and adjacent territory, and this is the first effort on the part of the firm to secure wider distribution for their brand. The early success which has greeted these cigarettes augurs well for the future.

Mr. Riley, who is representing the firm on the road in the West, has a wide acquaintanceship and is well and favorably known.

Bayuk Brothers Have Successful Month

Bayuk Brothers Company have closed their books on the most successful month's business on "Havana Ribbons" ever experienced before in May during the firm's experience; the final figures showing a material increase over any attained before in a similar period.

Reports from the different territories are very satisfactory, all of the men finding conditions most favorable to the brand and the jobbers reporting a steady increase in "Ribbon" sales.

Dave S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania-New York representative, was a visitor at headquarters last week for the purpose of endeavoring to secure more prompt shipments for the jobbers throughout his territory.

J. C. Revercomb, Southern representative, is just completing a trip through Virginia and West Virginia, where he found the brand moving to the satisfaction of the jobbers and secured some attractive standing orders for summer business.

E. C. McAllister, North Jersey representative, is conducting a sales campaign in favor of Schwarz & Son, "Havana Ribbon" distributors for the Newark territory. Mr. McAllister reports an excellent business on the brand and has succeeded in placing same in some very prominent stands throughout the city of Newark.

Morris D. Neumann, of Neumann & Mayer, is now in the West, where he is securing some fine orders on "Bella Munda" and "El Tello," two brands that are enjoying widespread popularity. Mr. Neumann expects to be gone at least two weeks. Omaha, Neb., was his first stop.

"Stratford" Demonstration That Has Made a Hit

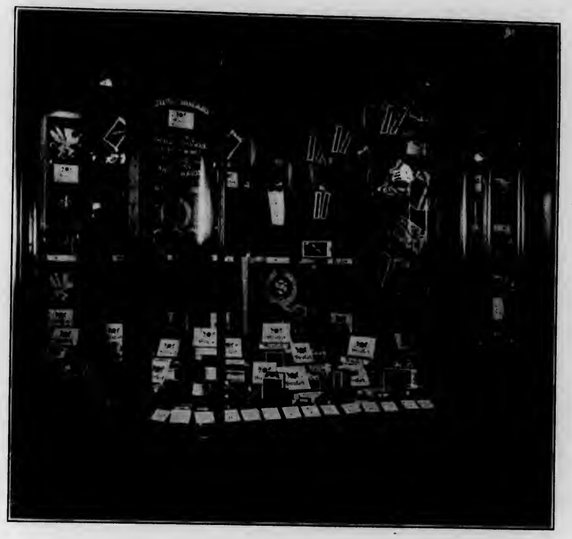
As a result of this work the sales on the brand in many sections have more than doubled.

The El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company is so pleased with the success of this idea that they are planning even bigger things along this line.



"Stratford" Cigars the Talk of the Town

One of the most unusual demonstrations in connection with the selling of cigars is now running in full blast in this city on the "Stratford" brand, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company.

The display is made up of the different sizes and packings of "Stratford" cigars, while a demonstrator stands in the window doing clever card tricks, and from time to time exhibiting cards extolling the merits of "Stratfords."

The packings are tastefully arranged in the windows and are backed up by handsome red velvet banners embossed with the word "Stratford" in gold. Beautiful screens covered with a red material and embossed with the "Stratford" label and crest in gold added to the attractiveness and effectiveness of the unusual display.

Last week the demonstrator worked in the window of the George B. Evans drug store at 1012 Market Street, and Mr. McCracken, the store manager, states that it was one of the most successful demonstrations that has ever been held there. He added that the sales on "Stratfords" more than doubled and that the business has held up above the average ever since. The crowds were so great that the police were forced to station reserves there to keep the people from blocking up that side of Market Street. The same success is attending the demonstration now going on this week at 1223 Market Street.

Reports from the Symons-Kraussman Company, concerning their new "Little Baltimore," recently placed before the trade, are to the effect that thus far the sales on the brand have been very gratifying. The "Little Baltimore," which is a five-cent cigar, comes in a very attractive package, and quality rather than quantity has been the aim of the manufacturers in the creation of the new product.

Philadelphia Notes

Sam Frank, who knows everything worth knowing about pipes, visited the trade in Philadelphia last week.

J. G. Atherholt first opened the doors of his new store, 223½ South Broad Street, on Thursday, May 21st. Mr. Atherholt will carry and make a specialty of clear Havana goods, with an especially strong appeal for box trade.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, have just received a large order through their Middle Western representative, Isadore Mayer, for their "Flor de Jeitles" cigars, for delivery in Sioux City, Iowa.

The Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of the Finley Acker Company has taken on the "Manatia" clear Havana cigar, made by Corral, Wodiska & Company, Tampa, Fla.

This line will be carried in five sizes, ranging in price from $7 to $12 the hundred.

A new brand which the Finley Acker Company stores are featuring, is their private label known as "Ackers Invincible," which is a Philadelphia-made cigar of superior quality which retails for $5 the hundred.

As an active member of this order, Mr. Bullock is Generalissimo of St. John's Commandery No. 4, State of Pennsylvania.

"John Ruskin" Window in Rankin, Pa.

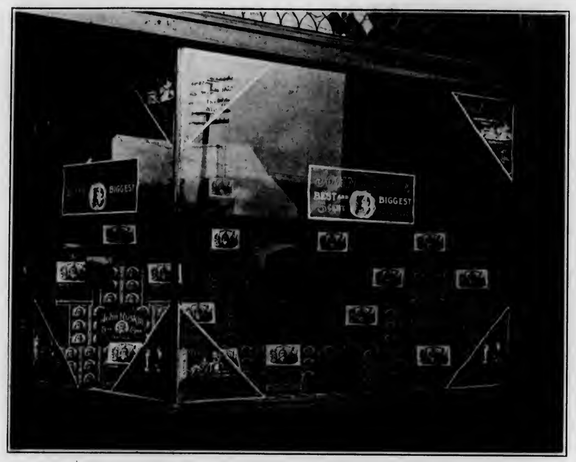
This is one of a series of displays that are being made throughout Western Pennsylvania by Ben Dripps, who represents the manufacturers of "John Ruskin," I. Lewis Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Newark, N. J.

Mr. Guttridge says that "John Ruskin" is one of his leading nickel brands.



Tampa

TAMPA, FLA., May 27, 1914.

IF not the first, the Jose Llanza Company are numbered among the first who have started the manufacturing of cigars "in bond." This company, whose factory is located at Twelfth Avenue and Fourteenth Street, have received the necessary authorization to "bond" their cigars which are to be distributed, it is stated, among very exclusive trade. Without doubt success will attend the efforts of the Jose Llanza Company, inasmuch as its personnel is composed of gentlemen thoroughly experienced in the manufacture of Havana cigars. Additions to the present building will be made as warranted.

The numerous friends of Salvador Rodriguez, the head of the "Charles the Great" factory, will be glad to learn that he is around again, following an illness of a few weeks which was serious enough to prevent his attention to business. A week at Pass-a-Grille, however, was somewhat beneficial in its effects, and Mr. Rodriguez says that he is feeling much better.

H. E. Houser, better known among the Southern States as "George Washington," and reputed to be one of the finest tobacco salesmen in the trade, has been appointed division manager for South Florida for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Mr. Houser's headquarters will be at the store of Eli Witt, this city.

F. Lozano, of F. Lozano, Son & Company, is back again in the city after several weeks spent in New York on business.

Fernando Rodriguez, son of Salvador Rodriguez, of "Charles the Great" factory, is back again in Tampa, after a visit of some duration to Havana.

Quite encouraging are the reports emanating from the factory of P. Verplanck & Company, who state that there has been a steady increase in business since the first of the year, each succeeding month, showing an advance over its predecessor.

June 1st has been the date set by the Morgan Cigar Company for the occupancy of their new addition. This will give them just double the capacity they now enjoy.

The shipping department of San Martin & Leon has been kept on the jump since the recent return of Jorge Leon, of the firm, from his two months' trip extending over the East and Middle West. Very gratifying to Mr. Leon was the way in which he was received, and the orders turned in are certainly a confirmation of the success on the company's brands.

Though he has been deprived of the assistance of his able lieutenant, Mr. Torres, Ed J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez & Haya Company, is going along merrily, taking care of the orders which are steadily increasing on the Sanchez & Haya goods. Mr. Torres expects to summer in Spain.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., May 27, 1914.

CLEVELAND the past week was a scene of one of the most disastrous fires the city has ever known. The damage totaled considerably more than a million dollars. The fire started in the lumber yards and devastated everything in its path, including the central viaduct across the Cuyahoga River, of which a large section collapsed necessitating all traffic over the bridge being re-routed, and repairs will not be completed for several months.

Stace & Vincent are coming to the front by leaps and bounds. Their stores are showing a steady increase and their jobbing business, at the head of which is "Burn One" Vincent (as his friends call him), is taking on large proportions. They are especially strong on "Percy Haswell's" and "Stavina's."

Victor Thorsch, of "New Bachelor" fame, stopped off in Cleveland on his way to New York.

Harry Bachia, manufacturer of "Bachia" cigars, has been in town the past several days going over the trade conditions with the Pyle & Allen Company, and reports business is exceedingly good. Mr. Bachia is on his way to New York City.

Mr. Sanborn, of the Pyle & Allen Company, reports that retail business is coming along very nicely and they have added the Phelps candy line to their 746 Euclid Avenue stand, and it is coming ahead fast. The wholesale end of their business is very good and they are highly elated over the fact due to the season of the year.

Mr. Johnson, state representative, reports conditions are very good throughout his entire territory.

Mr. Boasberg, of Kaiser & Boasberg, visited the trade here on leaf tobacco and left with many nice orders.

A. C. Wertheim and L. B. Shields, of the firm of Shields & Wertheim, builders of the famous "La Saramita" cigar, just returned from a ten days' trip to Mt. Clemens, Mich., where they combined business with pleasure. The correspondent just had a talk with thes egentlemen that they had sold every dealer in that city and also the road houses on the outskirts through their distributor, Waltzer & La Pointe, and by the way received the largest order that Waltzer & La Pointe ever placed on a single brand with any factory. Messrs. Waltzer & La Pointe were so enthused over the gigantic business received on "La Saramita's" that they stated that they would have a photograph taken of their gigantic shipment of "La Saramita's," so that they could always look back on the order placed and the business done. These two popular men at Mt. Clemens control five retail stands and they have built up a wonderful jobbing business.

Hiram Hammer, of Corral y Wodiska Company, was in Cleveland for the past week.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, just returned from a trip through the Northwest and was very successful. Business with the above mentioned concern is steadily improving and they are well satisfied with the outlook for summer business.

Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 26, 1914.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh for the last two weeks has somewhat improved in some sections, but business in general is very poor.

N. J. Tropauer, representing the American Tobacco Company, is working on "Hassan" cigarettes in Pittsburgh. He has a crew of twenty men with him and is assisted by District Managers Messrs. Levin, Rains and Morgenstern. They are giving a large rug free with each package of "Hassans."

E. J. Webb, formerly with Stephano Brothers, is now with Goldsmit Brothers. He is doing very nicely with this firm. Mr. Webb has charge of the down-town trade.

Bock-Stauffer Company have a very nice display on "Iroquois Club" cigars in the Fifth Avenue Arcade. This display was put in by H. V. Merriman, who has charge of the down-town trade for this firm.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand has a very nice window display on "John Ruskin" cigars.

Leo J. Spuhler is featuring "Bold" cigars in both his stores.

The Amacehat Club held a beef steak dinner at the Frosin Club Monday, May 11th, under the direction of Mr. Hanwright. Among the invited guests were: C. A. Bock, of the Bock-Stauffer Company; C. A. Gibbs, of C. A. Gibbs Company; A. J. Fleischauer, representing THE TOBACCO WORLD, Philadelphia; W. C. Mussellman, of H. Anton Bock Company; S. P. Coe, Acker-Merrall & Condit Company; H. J. W. Jones and E. A. Hackett, of the Products Company, and J. B. Riley, of the Starr & Reed Tobacco Company, and the following members—J. D. Walsh, manager Fort Pitt Hotel cigar stands; J. Edwards, manager Pittsburgh Athletic Association; A. J. Handwright, manager Duquesne Club cigar stands; F. N. Craig, F. J. Doolittle and E. J. Cattell. Mr. Handwright entertained at the piano and Mr. Mussellman and Mr. Coe were telling the funny stories. Altogether we had a very pleasant evening and every one enjoyed themselves.

"Camp" cigarettes, made by the Camp Importation Company, New York, have been very well distributed in the down-town stands by R. S. Sudgen, who is district manager.

G. W. Stocking, of the Marcelino Perez Company, has been in town a few days visiting the trade in the interest of "Tuval" cigars.

"Girard" cigars are selling fine in Pittsburgh. This brand is made by A. Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia, and is distributed by the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company.

The Afco Cigar Company have a very nice window display on "Robert Burns" cigars, distributed by Siller-Narten-Barnes Company.

C. A. Gibbs & Company have a very nice window display on "Perfecto Garcia" cigars made-in-bond.

J. B. Riley, representing Starr & Reed Tobacco Company, has placed "Starr & Reed" cigarettes in the following down-town stands: Afco Cigar Company, Jenkinson Stores, United Cigar Stores, Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Fort Pitt Hotel, Duquesne Club and Union Club. These cigarettes are distributed by Siller-Narten-Barnes Company.

About the most consistent and extensive advertising campaign noticeable in Pittsburgh is that on "Red Man Scrap" tobacco. This brand is showing steady growth in this city.

H. Weil, treasurer of the San Telmo Cigar Company, Detroit, spent Sunday visiting Mr. Sharples, of the Shipley-Massingham Company.

Pittsburgh windows are trimmed profusely with "La Saramita" displays, fifty being put in last week.

F. P. Shields, of the La Saramita factory, was in town last week.

The "Rey Oma" Pony team continues to attract attention in the down-town district of the city.

The following visitors were in the city: C. L. Staples, Park & Tilford; W. D. Kolillerg, Guedalia & Company; Stephen Herz, Bustillo & Diaz Company; Victor Lopez, Garcia Grande; Mr. McBurney, V. Mancelo Munia & Company; E. W. Ackerman, Y. Pendas & Alvarez, "Webster" cigars; S. P. Koenemann, Baum Brothers, Philadelphia; Nathum Baum, Baum Brothers, Philadelphia; J. H. Bissinger, United Cigar Manufacturing Company; Mr. Berning, F. H. Berning & Son, Cincinnati, O.; Jack Planco, New York; N. M. Neff, Blue Peter Cigarette Company; T. F. Healy, Ramones Allones imported cigars; Robert Dorning, G. W. Faber, Inc., New York; E. J. Murray, A. Frankau & Company, B. B. B. pipes.

Jones Cigar Business to be Continued

Announcement has been made that Frank Hartley and George Black will continue the cigar business of the late John F. Jones, of Wilmington, Del., for Mrs. Jones.

SMOKERS TO BE CHASED TO HADES ON A HOP, SKIP AND A JUMP IF VOLIVA HAS HIS WAY

Hell to be a Cold Storage Plant Compared to Zion City—Sect Leader Promises to Manufacture Imitation Better Than the Real Thing—Promises World-Wide War on Tobacco

VOLIVA, who succeeded Dowie in Zion City, is down on smoking and smokers and he does not care who knows it. This person never loses a chance to express his opinions on the subject and his latest tirade is a gem.

Not long ago the Supreme Court at Springfield, Ill., refused to uphold the Zion City Fathers when they had a man arrested and fined for smoking in the city limit. The presiding judge ruled that the ordinance is unreasonable interference with the private rights of citizens and must be held void.

Voliva was somewhat perturbed by this decision and following he made an announcement just to show what he intended to do about it. If Voliva ever gets his own way in the matter smokers are going to have an unpleasant time.

"I want to say that any man who will undertake to smoke in Zion City will find hell a cold storage house in comparison to Zion City. We will organize a procession and we will carry our banners and we will cry:

"'Down with the dirty stinkpots, down with the buzzards, and the hounds who want to stink up Zion City and make it unfit to breathe.'

"We will keep them on the hop, skip and jump till they reach hell, where they belong.

"I believe we can by ordinance declare these tobacco users 'skunks.' If necessary we will turn 500 women on them and drive them into the lake.

"I'm going to launch a national world-wide war on tobacco users and stinkpots.

"I'm going to advocate a law the penalty of which shall be a fine, and further, that they shall be stood up in a tank of tobacco juice up to their Adam's apple for 72 hours, and that for smoking a cigar, cigarette or pipe they shall be confined in a room with no windows or doors, air tight, and that 600 pounds of smoking tobacco shall be put into a kettle in the room and the offenders be left there 106 days, and at the expiration of their time they be taken out and buried in the skunk yard."

Voliva should remember that Chicago is a derivative of a word meaning "habitat of the skunk." Why not emulate the Japanese in the matter of respecting one's ancestors?

Why stand the offenders in only up to their Adam's apples; why not up to their ears? According to reports, some of the smokers nowadays have no Adam's apple, and in case an offender of that sex was convicted some Portia might insist on a strict fulfilment of the law.

Frank R. Ball Marries

Frank R. Ball, president and manager of the Ball Cigar Company of Salt Lake City, Utah, was secretly married recently to a Mrs. Westbrook. Mr. Ball is well known in business circles and is a member of several organizations.

Chicago

CHICAGO, May 26, 1914.

CONDITIONS in the local cigar and tobacco trade during the past two weeks have shown some improvement and the general tone of the business is one of optimism. Trade on all lines has been good. With the opening of the summer season more cigars are being sold. The number of people leaving the city on vacations is equalized by the number which is being brought by the excursions to the various amusement parks, which are now running full blast.

Among the leaf men conditions are considered good. Most of the smaller "buck-eyes" throughout the country are buying in small amounts, but with wisdom. They are paying their bills as they go, and this is more pleasing to the leaf men than large orders and slow collections. Local trade in both cigar and tobacco lines has been harmed by labor troubles. In particular the strike of the brick makers and allied trades, involving thousands, of men, has been one of the contributing causes to poor business in such sections of the city as are affected by outbreaks of this sort.

"Redolencia," a ten-cent seller of high quality, has been added to the excellent line of Reid, Murdock & Company. The cigar is made by the Grill Brothers Company, of Evansville, Ind. The salesmen of the department report that the initial campaign which has been started on the cigar here has been making good progress. The cigar has the intrinsic merit which makes a good seller, and there is little doubt but that in "Redolencia" the line of the company has received a valuable asset.

Fred Newmann, of Newmann & Gach, who has been ill, has returned to his desk, and is once more his old cheerful self. Newmann & Gach have entered upon a year which is destined to prove one of the most successful in the history of the firm, judging from the start which has been made.

Recent failures in the catering business in Chicago include the Union Hotel and Restaurant, operated for many years by the Hermann-Weber Company in West Randolph Street. The establishment was considered one of the finest specimens of the German eating house in the West, and was a heavy user of high grade cigars, purchased for the most part from local jobbers. The failure of the company was due to the reluctance of the management to heed the spirit of the present day, which demands music and dancing along with meals. Mr. Weber was confident that his trade did not want such things, but in this he was mistaken, for competitive places soon captured the cream of his trade. Another failure which should be recorded is that the "Nikko-Tendon," a Japanese restaurant started last winter, which went to the wall with a resounding crash last week. The managers tried to introduce tendon, a Japanese dish which is much like chop suey. The Chicago public refused to approve the substitution, "rather preferring evils that are known than desiring to leap to evils that it knew not of." After making a game struggle the restaurant was no longer able to stave off an involuntary petition in bankruptcy.

Best & Russell have been making an early summer campaign on all of their leading brands in local territory, featuring the "Owl" brand among the five-cent sellers. Figures which have been recently compiled show the year just completed to have been one of the best in the history of the company, and the present year thus far gives indication of surpassing all previous marks.

J. A. Stein, of the Pera Cigarette Company, was a visitor to the city last week.

F. E. Johnson, vice-president of the American Cigar Company, was shaking hands with his friends in the local trade last week.

Several of the fashionable down-town stands have been featuring "Partagas" and "Ben Beys" this week.

The cigars from the factory of John W. Merriam & Company have been the subject of much attention from the trade during the past two weeks owing to the fact that they have been pushed by John J. Dolan in all of his stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel I. Davis arrived here last week on their way East from the Pacific Coast.

"Permit," the five-cent cigar of the J. & B. Moss Company, has been widely advertised to the local trade through the medium of newspapers and window displays during the past few weeks and unusual sales have been the result.

"Ben Bey" Cubans, in the two-for-a-quarter size, manufactured by Grommes & Elson, Chicago, are gaining in popularity and now have a wide distribution. The cigar seems to have found a particular niche in the favor of the public, which it is holding by sheer merit alone. The advertising of the company on this cigar has not been extensive.

One of the newest cigar stores in the city was opened by Schermerhorn last week in the New Continental and Commercial National Bank.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

A new cigar and candy store will soon open at 70 West Washington Street, Marblehead, Mass. It will be conducted by Arthur Rix.

NEW HOME OPEN FOR REID, MURDOCH & CO.

Building of Reinforced Concrete and Nine Stories High—Cost More Than One Million and a Half Dollars—Cigar Humidor One of the Largest in the World

COVERING an area of 322 feet on the river with a depth to North Water Street of 100 feet, practically an entire block, the new home of Reid, Murdoch & Company, wholesale grocers of Chicago, situated between Clark, La Salle and North Water Streets that city, worthily ranks with the other great buildings which have been reared in the Windy City. Nine stories in heighth and constructed of reinforced concrete at a cost of $1,600,000, it combines the artistic with the practical, and will doubtless be an incentive to adjacent business houses to emulate the example of this well known firm. Colonial red brick has been used for the facing of the street and river elevations, while the trimming of the building has been done in dark red terra cotta. An attractive feature of the building is a tower 180 feet in height, surmounted by a clock whose dials alone are 15 feet in diameter. The clock is to be illuminated in the evenings. A gigantic water tank in connection with the sprinkler system used by the company has been installed in the tower. Across the front of the building extends a wide dock of concrete, above which is a balcony, to which access may be had both from streets and dock.

The interior of the new structure covers 425,000 square feet of floor space, and leaves nothing to be desired. In the first sub-basement are located the boiler and engine room, refrigerating plant, olive packing, fish packing services and storage. The refrigerating plant serves the departments for dried fruit and cheese on the upper floors. The building also has in the sub-basement its own powerful fire pumps.

The second floor, which practically corresponds with the basement, is used as a general shipping and receiving room. The third floor, which is on the street level, is given over to the use of the offices and salesrooms, the entire length of the river frontage of the building being devoted to the purpose. The salesrooms occupy the eastern half of this space.

On this floor, also, is what is said to be one of the largest, if not the largest, cigar humidors in the United States, or even possibly in the world. It boasts a capacity of no less than 4,500,000 cigars. In addition to their extensive grocery business, Reid, Murdoch & Company conduct a large cigar department in which is done a splendid jobbing and distributing business.

The fourth and fifth floors are for general storage. The sixth floor is devoted to general storage and label rooms. The seventh floor is given over to the storage of cheese and its packing, with also space for general storing. On the eighth floor takes place the cleaning and packing of dried fruit, and here are coffee packing rooms, while on the ninth floor is conducted coffee roasting and sugar milling, as well as spice grinding.

York Manufacturer Doing Good Business

Friends in the trade of B. A. Shaffer, who conducts a cigar manufacturing plant at York, Pa., will be glad to learn that business with Mr. Shaffer is exceptionally good. In a recent statement Mr. Shaffer said so great has been the demand for his product during the past year that he has found it impossible to fill all the orders on hand. Mr. Shaffer also states that his factory has been running continuously during the past year and a half.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

"Bold" Cigars With William A. Stickney Cigar Company

BOLD cigars will be distributed in the future in St. Louis and adjacent territory by the William A. Stickney Cigar Company. As this house is one of the links in a chain of jobbing houses distributed throughout the West, the advantages that will accrue to Bobrow Brothers through this connection will be many.

Congratulations have been sent to Henry Riesenberg, Western representative of Bobrow Brothers, for the excellent way in which he handled the matter.

Wholesale Branch Opened at Grand Junction, Col.

Recently, the J. S. Brown Mercantile Company, Denver, Col., opened at Grand Junction, Col., a wholesale branch which is intended to supply all retailers in that section, instead of having the goods shipped from the parent concern at Denver, as heretofore. The new branch is the third operated by the Brown Company in Colorado, the others being at Denver and Colorado Springs. Much attention is being given by the company to the "Little New York," a five-cent cigar, which is a smaller size of their well-known "New York Havana," manufactured for them by the American Cigar Company. The new brand is giving good returns and promises to shortly take its place among the nickel headliners of the Brown Company.

Niles, Moser & Rogers Cigar Company July 1.

According to reports, Niles, Moser & Rogers Cigar Company will be the new name of Niles & Moser, on July 1. About a year ago Niles & Moser acquired the cigar business of George Rogers in Omaha, Neb., and Mr. Rogers was continued in Omaha as local manager.

It is announced that the articles of incorporation of the Niles & Moser Company are to be amended to admit Mr. Rogers' name. The change will take place July 1, according to present plans.

It is stated that plans are being made for a larger and more commodious home for the Omaha branch of the firm.

"Osmundo" Selling in Rochester

"Osmundo," a brand manufactured by Seidenberg Company, is having the attention of the tobacco department of Brewster, Gordon & Company, Rochester, N. Y., Edward Loughney, manager. The "Osmundo," which comes in various sizes, is being placed in the principal stands of Rochester, the campaign in this end of the state being directed by Jim Schooley, of the company. The cigar was much in the limelight at the Elks' Fair which closed here recently.

J. J. Dauntler & Son Prospering

The firm of J. J. Dauntler & Son, wholesale and retail dealers in cigars and tobacco at Dixon, Ill., report that business is moving nicely with them. This firm was established in 1896 and in 1912 was forced to take new and larger quarters in order to care for their rapidly growing business. They carry one of the largest stocks in the Middle West.

Hemenway & Moser Open in Ogden City

THE Hemenway & Moser Cigar Company formally opened its No. 1 store in the David Eccles Building in Ogden City, Utah, on May 16th, giving souvenirs to all persons who visited the store. To everyone who attended the opening a rose or carnation was given and to those who made purchases, souvenirs in the form of aluminum sanitary drinking cups, boxes of choice candies and fancy decks of playing cards.

The new No. 1 store is admirably fitted up to take care of the patrons of the company, the floor being of tile and the walls beautifully tinted in a light shade of green and the ceiling of cream. The equipment is up-to-date in every respect and the installation of electric fans, and a large wall loungs adds much to the comfort of the patrons.

The store will be in charge of the well-known clerks, Lon Olson and George Carr.

"El Dallo" Taken on by Bakrow Brothers

Bakrow Brothers, Louisville, Ky., are much pleased with the success attending their recent acquirement of the "El Dallo," Manchester Cigar Company, Baltimore, which they have taken on as a jobbing line. Manny Bakrow, of the firm, reports that the first two days he was out with "El Dallos," that he placed the brand with more than eighty retailers, disposing of them in lots of from 100 to 750.

Jobbers' Jottings

"R. & S. Perfecto," a cigar being put up in tins, is one of the latest acquirements of the Rothenberg & Schloss Company, Denver, and is proving a big seller. Some boosting is also being done by the same company on T. J. Dunn & Company's "New Bachelor," twenty-five bands from these cigars entitling the holder to a cigar cutter free.

So great has been the demand in Tacoma, Wash., and vicinity, represented by Charles Young, for "Lovera Banderos," that Messrs. Schwabacher Brothers & Company, Seattle, find themselves somewhat handicapped in trying to keep up with the demand.

"La Verdad" cigars are being boosted by the Kingsbaker Cigar Company, of Kansas City. They are very much elated over the reports of the recent trip of Sam Kingsbaker, of the company, to Nebraska, who states that business looks very encouraging owing to the promise of a good harvest.

Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo., report a good trade on "La Mega," the popular brand of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company. Mr. H. C. Culbreath, the company's representative, recently spent a couple of weeks in local territory boosting the brand.

Some of the papers and reformers are calling upon Mr. Hill to show scientific evidence that cigarettes are not harmful to boys. So far as we can learn, the argument has nothing to do with boys and the cigarette habit. It concerns the numerous attacks that are being made on cigarette smoking in general, and that cigarettes are harmful.

KNICKERBOCKER.

At the mass meeting held at No. 130 East Seventh Street, New York, N. Y., on Sunday, May 17, 1914, at 3 P. M., of over five hundred Bohemian, Polish, Hungarian, Slovak and other workingmen, most of whom are employed at the Thomas A. Edison plant at West Orange, N. J., and their friends, which meeting was presided over by Rev. C. L. Orbach, of Passaic, N. J., addresses were delivered by Louis N. Hammerling, president of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers, Inc., New York; Rev. C. L. Orbach, of Passaic, N. J., and Leon F. Wazeter, of New York.

This meeting was held for the purpose of denouncing the notice recently posted at the Thomas A. Edison plant at West Orange, N. J., prohibiting the use of cigarettes by employees of the said plant.

After due discussion the following set of resolutions was adopted:

WHEREAS, A notice has been posted at the shops of the Thomas A. Edison plant at West Orange, N. J., to the effect that the use of cigarettes will not be tolerated among the employees of the said plant, and

WHEREAS, The said notice directly affects and vitally concerns our people employed at the plant of the Thomas A. Edison Company, and

WHEREAS, This tendency on the part of employers to interfere with the personal affairs and freedom of their employees will tend to bring about and encourage in this country the obnoxious and unjust conditions of oppression and restriction of individual freedom, to escape from which we left our native countries, and

WHEREAS, If this tendency is not denounced and eliminated it may grow to such an extent as to dictate what we shall eat, what we shall drink, how we shall dress and how we shall live; now,

Resolved, That the undersigned are hereby authorized to act as a Committee representing those gathered here in mass meeting at No. 130 East Seventh Street, New York, N. Y., on Sunday, May 17, 1914, to draw up those resolutions as expressing the unanimous sentiment of the said mass meeting, and be it further

Resolved, That we protest most earnestly and emphatically against the notice posted at the Edison plant as an infringement upon the personal freedom and cherished privileges of liberty of man, and be it further

Resolved, That this attempt to dictate and direct the relaxations and personal pleasures of the employees of the Edison plant is un-American and contrary to those provisions of the Constitution of the United States, guaranteeing freedom to mankind and also an unwarranted step towards destroying the high ideals of the relationship existing between employer and employee, and be it further

Resolved, In view of the well founded report that the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, Mich., contemplates the issuance of a similar order prohibiting the use of cigarettes among employees, the Committee have a copy of these resolutions sent to every Priest, Minister and Rabbi of the different nationalities in the United States, with the urgent request to publicly condemn from the pulpit the tendency evinced by the notice of the Edison Company and the reported intention of the Ford Motor Company to interfere with the personal liberty of man, and be it further

Resolved, That we hereby appeal to all of our people throughout the country to voice their disapproval of the action of the Edison Company through their societies, and that wherever possible mass meetings be held for the purpose of passing resolutions similar to these, and be it further

Resolved, That any steps taken by the Committee to secure publicity of those resolutions among our people are hereby approved.

Committee:

(Signed) REV. C. L. ORBACH,
Chairman.

(Signed) LEON F. WAZETER,
Secretary.

New York, N. Y., May 17, 1914.

Mr. Hill's letter to Mr. Edison follows:

May 18, 1914.

Mr. Thomas Alva Edison,
West Orange, New Jersey.

Dear Sir:

Statements relative to cigarettes, accredited to yourself and Mr. Henry Ford, have appeared in the newspapers recently.

These statements are so erroneous and so misleading that in justice to the millions of intelligent men who use cigarettes we are compelled to resent your unjustified attack. Slander of the cigarette by parties of less prominence than yourself attract no attention, certainly from us. Since your prominence and fame give your words greater weight than the words of men of no importance there is imposed upon you a corresponding responsibility to make no statement reflecting on a product—and on the millions of users of such product—without investigation and the certainty that comes from investigation.

The form of your statement is of a character that denies us an opportunity to demonstrate its falsity, and to prove the harmlessness of our product in a court proceeding. If you see fit to make a statement of the harmful effect of any of our brands, in such form that being false it is libelous, we will be delighted to institute suit for damages, and will devote the proceeds to some designated charity.

The scientific facts are all in favor of the cigarette, and no man can change these facts because he personally prefers a pipe or a cigar or a stogie or a chew of plug to the cigarette.

Several years ago it was quite the fashion to attack cigarettes. Lurid statements of the evils of cigarette smoking were circulated extensively by well intentioned ignorant people, by notoriety seekers and by thrifty legislators. Anti-cigarette bills swept through the Assemblies of several states.

The agitation was such that medical men and other scientists undertook thorough examinations of the cigarette. Everything in connection with cigarettes—the tobacco, the ingredients with which it is treated, the paper, even the printing on the paper—were analyzed by the ablest chemists in America and Europe. Packages of all the leading cigarettes were purchased in the open market by representatives of State and municipal health boards, medical journals and other investigators, and analyzed thoroughly by public and private chemists. Scores of such tests were made, in practically every State in the Union, in London, and, I believe, in various other European cities.

Every one of these investigations resulted in exactly the same set of findings, viz.: that the cigarette is absolutely pure, that it contains less nicotine than any other form of tobacco products; that the combustion of the paper is harmless in its effect on the human physiology, that its temperate use is in no way injurious to normal users.

I am enclosing you herewith extracts from the "London Lancet," a famous British Medical Journal, which has been making examinations of tobacco since 1853. Also, an extract from the Medical Journal of New York; also an extract written by Leonard K. Hirshberg, M.D., M.A., A.B., Johns Hopkins University, taken from an article in Harper's Weekly entitled, "The Truth About Tobacco," in which he quotes Dr. Osler and other eminent authorities.

Pages of extracts from Medical Journals could be published and more pages could be filled with the statements of famous physicians and chemists, all of whom testify to the same general effect.

As a rule attacks on cigarettes are so vague and indefinite that it is impossible for manufacturers to bring the slanderers to account. However, some years ago a prominent Chicago newspaper gave a manufacturer an opportunity for action, which he promptly embraced by suing the newspaper for libel. Scientific examinations were then made by the newspaper—which might have made them before publishing its falsehoods—and the cigarettes were found to be absolutely pure. The newspaper settled the libel suit out of court, and published a retraction and apology in its own columns and in various other newspapers at its own expense.

Certain custom officials of Great Britain made a similar attack, and the manufacturers immediately called the matter to the attention of the government. The government, in its desire to be fair and unbiased, caused a complete, scientific examination to be made by experts, with the result that a public retraction was authorized and made by the officials.

As the results of these various scientific investigations and court actions became known, and as doctors and thinking men generally came to study the cigarette carefully, the prejudice against it died out even more quickly than it had arisen.

Aside from the overwhelming weight of scientific testimony, common sense alone will convince any reasonable man that the cigarette is not injurious. That this must be true is proven by the number and types of men who use cigarettes. Unquestionably the cigarette is the favorite smoke of doctors in every city and large town in the land. Preachers, lawyers, bankers, business men, laboring men and men of all classes have deliberately turned from cigar and pipe to the cigarette. Inasmuch as ten to twelve million American men use cigarettes, and perhaps even a larger percentage of educated Europeans, your charge of feeble mindedness lies against an overwhelming proportion of the commercial, professional, artistic, musical and industrial world.

The increase of cigarette smoking in the United States in recent years is significant. In 1900 two billion six hundred thousand cigarettes were made in this country. In 1913 fifteen billion eight hundred million cigarettes were made here—an increase of 700 per cent. The figures for the last seven years are as follows:

1908	5,793,846,000
1909	6,811,498,000
1910	8,612,566,000
1911	9,919,018,000
1912	13,233,802,000
1913	15,812,092,000

This tremendous popularity, which is growing all the time, is possible only because millions of American men have convinced themselves that cigarettes are good for them.

If cigarette smoking is to be treated fairly, you must admit that the subject is one that can be discussed only as a matter of personal taste. You may or may not like cigarettes. That is, of course, the right of any man. But it is hardly wise to use one's personal likes and dislikes as a basis for declaring that several million men are feeble minded—especially when that sweeping indictment is directed against thousands of doctors, lawyers, college professors, ministers, business men and other leaders in every department of thought and activity. Also, when one confuses his likes, or dislikes, with scientific facts he certainly can hardly be expected to be taken seriously.

You may exercise your personal privilege in liking or disliking anything, but you place yourself in an unfortunate light when you attempt to use your position as an employer of labor to coerce your employees into agreement with your personal points of view. Americans cling tenaciously to the belief that they have the right to entire freedom of opinion and freedom of action so long as they do the work for which they are employed. The man who happens to be working in a factory has just as much right to his personal likes and dislikes as has his employer; and the employee might well resent any effort on the part of the man who happens at the time to be his superior in authority to tell him how he must regulate his personal, private affairs.

In fairness to our industry, and in fairness to the millions of intelligent men who smoke cigarettes, you should either prove your contention or enable us as manufacturers to disprove it. We believe that upon investigation and reconsideration you will admit your error and give as much publicity to your retraction as you gave to your original unwarranted attacks.

Respectfully,

PERCIVAL S. HILL,
President,
The American Tobacco Co.

Extracts from the London Lancet and the Medical Journals.

The London "Lancet," a medical publication of the highest capacity and integrity, has been making examinations of tobacco since 1853. At the height of the anti-cigarette craze, in 1899 or 1900, the "Lancet" made a rigid scientific examination of cigarettes and its findings were quoted in scientific papers the world over. Herewith are some of the "Lancet's" statements.

"The subject (of the cigarette) was obviously of great public interest, and The Lancet Analytical Sanitary Commission was appointed in 1888 to make inquiry on these heads, with the result that we were able to say in the Lancet of October 20, 1888, that there was no trace of opium or any 'unclassified alkaloid' in the tobacco, not a trace of chlorine or arsenic in the paper, but there was a faint trace of copper due to the metallic lettering on the paper wrapping. The indictment to which we have referred nevertheless gained ground and eventually disturbed the minds of many people in the United States, where a large proportion of the tobacco supply of the world is produced. This ultimately led to a very remarkable movement against the use of the cigarette. The tactics adopted by the leaders of this movement are decidedly odd and, to put it mildly, somewhat illogical. tion. * * *

"Absurd statements of this kind continue to be made in the United States, and the subject has appealed to us as one of general public interest and one which merits inquiry. * * *

"The results show no foundation whatever for the exaggerated statements that have been made. Foreign toxic substances were not found in a single instance, and amongst those looked for, both in the paper wrapper and in the tobacco, were morphia, phosphorus, arsenic, mercury, copper and other heavy metals. The only evidence of a metal being present was in the case of copper in the paper. This metal, however, was just barely indicated, and having regard to the extreme delicacy of the chemical test for copper, the quantity present must be so excessively minute as to put any question of its being injurious beyond consideration. * ½ *

"To sum up, there is not a single factor in these numerous results upon which can be fairly based any allegation of the presence of a substance producing injury to health. * * *"

"The Medical Journal of New York," in quoting from and commenting on the "Lancet's" report, opened its editorial with this sentence:

"The wholesale and indiscriminate abuse of the cigarette, and the ascription to its use of a large proportion of the 'ills the flesh is heir to,' are yet forcibly in evidence, notwithstanding all that has been written to show the puerile and misleading character of the charges brought against it. * * *"

Columns of extracts from medical journals, all of the same tenor, might be published, and more columns could be filled with the statements of famous physicians and chemists, all of whom testify to this general effect. Leonard K. Hirshberg, M.D., M.A., A.B., Johns Hopkins University, in an article in "Harper's Weekly" entitled "The Truth About Tobacco," says:

"The white paper wrappers of cigarettes do not harm. They are made of clean rice-paper, and, while neither nourishing nor stimulating, they are too small in bulk to do damage."

In stating that the use of tobacco does any damage, Dr. Hirshberg says:

"I may refer to the conclusions of a physician of world-wide reputation—one of my instructors at the Johns Hopkins Medical School and a man of many years' experience in some of the largest medical clinics in the world. 'I have yet to see,' he said, 'in either a clinic or a pathological laboratory, any evidence to condemn tobacco in any form, not excepting cigarettes.'

"Dr. Osler, in his monumental 'Principles and Practice of Medicine,' speaks of 'so-called tobacco heart,' and mentions three varieties, but he dismisses all without much ado and says in the next paragraph that 'cardiac pain without evidence of arterio-sclerosis or valvular disease is not of much moment.' In other words, he seems to doubt that 'tobacco heart' has anything to do with tobacco and is convinced that whatever the cause, it is scarcely dangerous enough to be seriously considered."

Special Pullmans for Louisville Meeting

G. E. Webb, secretary of the Tobacco Association of the United States, has sent notice to the members and invited guests who expect to go to Louisville and Lexington to attend the Twentieth Annual Convention, that special Pullmans will leave Richmond, Va., June 15th, at 2 P. M., over the C. & O. for Louisville, arriving at 11 A. M. Tuesday, June 16th.

Those who go to the convention from Virginia and the Carolinas can, if they so desire, purchase mileage, which will be a net saving of about $3.50 for the round trip. Southeastern Passenger Association Mileage, Form Z, will be honored by agents of the Southern, Seaboard and Coast Line direct to Louisville, and for the return trip agents in Louisville will accept a difference in cash to make up the difference in mileage used on the going trip back to original starting point. Those who desire to do so, can connect with trains at Lynchburg, leaving there at 4 P. M. Monday, and arriving at Louisville at 11 A. M. Tuesday. Parties from Southern trains will meet Richmond and Petersburg delegation at Clifton Forge. It is the desire of the railroad authorities to operate special sleepers from Richmond to Louisville.

Any further information will be gladly furnished by the secretary, G. E. Webb, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Associated Cigar Stores Apparently Give Up

The Associated Cigar Stores, which created a furore in Rochester, N. Y., not long since, apparently have passed out of existence without much noise. The club quarters are deserted, and the furnishings of the club have disappeared.

John Stevens, the organizer of the association, withdrew some time ago because, it is said, his methods did not meet with the full approval of some of the stockholders.

KEY WEST KLIPS

Two New Bonded Factories Now Active—W. H. Malone Candidate for Congress—Havana-American Company Preparing to Operate in Bond—Moreda & Company Rushing Work on New Factory

KEY WEST, FLA., May 25, 1914.

IT has been raining off and on for the past week and the damp weather has slightly hindered the cigarmaking industry, although it will be seen that the increase of the shipping lists over last report that trade has revived some.

Now that the big shop of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company and the bonded factories of the M. Perez Company and the Mi Favorita Cigar Company are in active operation, the dark clouds of business depression which have been hanging over the industry for the past few months have begun to clear away and show their silver linings. There are now better prospects for a more lively run.

There is only one candidate of the many that are now before the people of this state that the citizens of Key West can and do fully place their full confidence and trust in that one is the candidate for Congress, William H. Malone, of the Professional Cigar Company, a native of Key West, who will use his utmost efforts in the interest of this section.

Frank Fresberg, American Tobacco Company, had his headquarters last week at the Jefferson Hotel. In a large advertisement in the morning daily he offered to redeem fifty "Sovereign" cigarette coupons for a mammoth flag blanket (of all nations), size 12½ x 28½ inches. This brand of little smokes enjoys a great popularity in this city.

News was received in this city last week of the sudden death of Sol Rosener, general representative of the Jose Lovera Company at New York City. Mr. Rosener was well and favorably known in Key West, where he had many friends. He was at one time representative of the Ferdinand Hirsch Company and was also one of the founders and senior member of Rosener, Arnold & Company, which did business here some years ago. Mr. Rosener was one of the active promoters in the consolidation of various of the leading clear Havana cigar factories of Tampa and Key West of which the Havana-American Company was formed.

The Havana-American Company has a large force of cigarmakers working up the material on hand so that when the permit to operate their shop under the new bonded law arrives they will be in a position to make the change without the loss of much time. A. L. Sylvester, president of the company, spent a few hours at the factory recently while en route to Cuba. Miss Margaret Wyatt, daughter of the office manager, left recently for New York, where she will spend the summer.

J. H. Cayro, the leaf dealer of Havana, passed through town recently, being en route to Cuba from New Mexico, where he has been visiting his old friend, Walter J. Lightbourn, formerly vice-president of the Cortez Cigar Company.

Among the trade travelers passing through the city recently were: Felipe Rodriguez, of the Estimella factory; Jose Lovera, of Jose Lovera Company, and M. B. Pendas, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, all being en route to Havana.

Last week will be recorded in the history of this as the start of making of cigars in bond. The M. Perez Company was the first to open under the new conditions. The Mi Favorita Cigar Company started the work on Thursday with a full force of cigarmakers enrolled and their entire building bonded. The stamps to be used on the government guaranteed goods were also received last week at the Custom House. The first shipment of these goods will go forward this week.

A. J. Alvarez, representing El Tobaco, official organ of the trade in Cuba, was in town last week and has since left for New York via Tampa.

Robert S. Tatum, southern representative of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, was a caller on the local trade recently in the interest of "Piedmont" cigarettes, the most widely sold paper rolls on the market here. He has since gone on to Tampa, Fla.

After a six weeks' shut down caused by labor troubles the E. H. Gato Cigar Company resumed work on the 11th inst., seating four hundred and fifty cigarmakers. Everything was running along smoothly until the morning of the 16th, when one of the men arose and decided to make a speech, but was quickly called down by the foreman, who informed him that same would not be tolerated as it was against the rules of the house. The would-be speechmaker walked out, followed by other cigarmakers of the shop. After the loss of a day the men decided to return to work on the 18th. All is serene once more at the big factory and every effort is being made to catch up with time lost during the strike. Ed and Frank, sons of Vice-President E. H. Gato, Jr., are expected to arrive in town from Atlanta, Ga., where they have been attending the Georgia Military Academy, to spend their vacation with their parents. Ed will not return to school, as he graduated during this term. President E. H. Gato, Sr., is expected at the factory at an early date from Cuba. After his arrival here he will leave for New York, accompanied by Vice-President E. H. Gato, Jr.

Our Cuban fellow citizens celebrated their Independence Day on the evening of the 20th inst. with a large meeting at San Carlos Hall. During the evening patriotic addresses were made by Consul A. D. Carrasco and others.

Work on the new factory building for Moreda & Company is going on rapidly and the structure is fast taking on shape. Judging by progress already made the building will be ready for occupancy long before the time called for in the contract. At the factory trade is in fine condition and they are operating with all tables manned.

Herman and Walter Pinder, of H. H. Pinder & Brother, the cigarists and cigar manufacturers of Miami, Fla., during their recent visit to this city, decided to remove their factory here so as to be nearer the basis of supplies of Havana leaf stocks.

Luis Martinez, president of the Martinez-Havana, who has been paying a visit to the firm's New York headquarters, is expected to return this week. Upon his arrival it will be made known when he intends to bond the factory.

There has been very little doing the past two weeks in the way of leaf importations from Cuba, as all of our factories now have large stocks of leaf stored in the local bonded warehouses.

Interesting Reports of Seed Leaf Growers Company

Very interesting were some of the reports made at a recent regular Saturday morning conference of the tobacco growers of Lancaster and vicinity, at the office of the Seed Leaf Tobacco Growers' Company, that city. One grower reported that in his section, a packer had sold a goodly portion of his 1911 crop at a fair price, an indication that the old tobacco has started to move. This enables local packers to purchase the balance of the 1913 crops on which better prices are now being obtained than a few weeks previous. Inspector Borngesser stated that he had made several calls in the field and had several schedules listed. The farmers having finished their planting, now have more time to devote to the delivery of their tobacco, and are making every effort to get the tobacco into the packing as soon as possible. Something like 6500 pounds had been received by the company as over a recent accounting with a large delivery scheduled for the following week.

"El Dallo" has been taken on by the firm of Bentley & Settle, wholesale grocers, Syracuse, N. Y., for distribution.

"Jose Villa" Made-in-Bond, Capturing Los Angeles Smokers

There has been no let-up in the rushing business now taking place in Los Angeles on "Jose Vila" cigars, made-in-bond, Tampa, Fla., by Berriman Brothers. The display shown herewith is one that appeared in the Fred Barman & Brother store in the Alexandria Hotel Building. This is only one of a large number of such displays that have been made in Los Angeles.

"Reyno" Cigarettes in Baltimore

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company recently did some boosting in Baltimore on their "Reyno" cigarettes. Mr. Mueller, who has charge of the territory for the company, reports that they have taken well with the smokers of Baltimore. In addition to the work of Mr. Mueller, the company is giving away a series of pictures with the brand, four pictures to the set, the same being prominently displayed in the windows throughout the city. Needless to say, they prove an additional incentive aside from the quality of the cigarette.

Keeps Cigar Stand to Accommodate Diners

Recently it was the original intention of W. C. Rutledge, proprietor of the main hotel of Moro, Ore., to eliminate his cigar line, but so insistent have been the demands for after-dinner cigars, that he has reconsidered his determination and will continue selling cigars to his guests, inasmuch as he finds that the profits derived are not to be overlooked. He has restocked with "El Sidelos" in five sizes and will take an active part in their distribution.

Lang & Company, Portland, Ore., find it rather difficult to keep up with the demand for the "San Felice," the well-known brand of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio.

L. S. Hamlin Doing Good Work on "El Palencias"

L. S. Hamlin, who recently connected with Boltz, Clymer & Company, as city salesman, San Francisco, is meeting with splendid success in his work on the company's "El Palencia," and to his credit, be it stated, that though Mr. Hamlin succeeded a salesman who is said to have had little difficulty in overcoming obstacles, his work does not suffer in comparison. "El Palencias" are going big and principally due to the efforts of Mr. Hamlin.

Union-American's Brand Forging Ahead

An increase of 1,473,250 cigars for the first three months of the present year, over the same period of 1913, is the enviable reputation acquired by the "Rocky Ford," the well-known five-cent cigar of the Union American Cigar Company, Pittsburgh, Pa. The company is decidedly pleased with the returns on the brand which certainly speaks for itself.

J. V. Payne, who discontinued his retail business in North Yakima, Wash., some time ago, has launched into the jobbing business in the same territory. So far the development of his trade has been very satisfactory, his lines including all the leading domestic cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos. Mr. Payne takes care of the imported clear Havana lines, also.

OBITVARY

John F. Jones

John F. Jones, a widely-known tobacconist of Wilmington, Del., died of pneumonia at his home, 1112 West Fourth Street, on May 11th. Mr. Jones was forty-five years old, and had been ill only a short time. His death came as a great shock to his many friends.

Mr. Jones entered the cigar business in Wilmington twelve years ago, and at the time of his death had two of the best equipped stores in the city, one at Sixth and Market Streets, and one at Ninth and Market Streets.

The deceased was widely known in harness racing circles and his stables at one time included the famous "Jack Gillman," "Rosewood," "Lady Bess" and "Hidalgo." He disposed of his racing horses, however, some time ago.

Mr. Jones is survived by a widow.

John W. Hulbert

John W. Hulbert, seventy-seven years old, the oldest tobacco merchant in Auburn, N. Y., and who had the contract for many years to supply Auburn, N. Y., State Prison with tobacco, expired Tuesday afternoon, May 19, at his home, 83 Fulton Street, Auburn, following an illness of six months. Only three days before his death the late Mr. Hulbert sold his tobacco business in Auburn to Max Podworsky. When a boy the deceased entered the store of John Richardson, Genesee Street, Auburn, as a tobacco stripper. Twenty-five years afterward he bought out Mr. Richardson and conducted this store until twelve years ago, when he removed to 12 North Street, Auburn, which business he sold just before his demise. Deceased leaves his wife and one son, John Hulbert.

DeWitt P. Foster

DeWitt P. Foster, thirty-seven years old, engaged for years in operating a tobacco plantation in Consolacion del Sur, Cuba, expired Sunday night, May 24th, in Cuba, following a brief illness. Cablegram was received Monday, May 25th, by relatives of deceased tobacco grower, in Lyons, N. Y., where the late Mr. Foster was born. Interment will be in Lyons, N. Y., about ten days hence.

William C. Hees

William C. Hees, a cigar manufacturer of Belleville, Ill., died recently at his home at the age of seventy-one years. The deceased was born in Germany, March 18, 1843. He was a veteran of the Civil War.

Mr. Hees is survived by a widow, four sons and two daughters.

Truman Hale

Truman Hale, a large tobacco grower of East Hartford, Conn., died suddenly on May 17th, of acute indigestion, aged eighty-six years. Mr. Hale was born in South Glastonbury on December 30, 1828.

The deceased is survived by one niece and four nephews.

George M. Kohler

George M. Kohler, of the cigar manufacturing firm of Baugher & Kohler, of Hanover, Pa., died recently from pleurisy and congestion of the lungs. Mr. Kohler had been ill less than a week. The deceased is survived by a wife, one daughter and two brothers.

Cecil H. Fuller

Cecil H. Fuller, aged seventy-eight years, one of the best-known citizens of Suffield, Conn., died recently after a lingering illness. He engaged in general farming and later took up the cultivation of tobacco, at which he was successful.

The deceased is survived by a widow and two sons.

Samuel H. Wells

Samuel H. Wells, aged seventy-six, a widely-known tobacco grower of Enfield, Conn., died recently of pneumonia. He had operated his farm in that section for fifty years.

The deceased is survived by one son and two daughters.

John E. Kirkpatrick

John E. Kirkpatrick, Ripley, O., died within the past fortnight at the Bethesda Hospital, that city. Mr. Kirkpatrick, who was sixty-eight years old, had long been interested in the tobacco business until a few years ago, having been a shipper to the Cincinnati Burley tobacco market. Mr. Kirkpatrick's inter tobacco affairs was active up until his death. He was vice-president of the Ripley National Bank and a brother of L. C. Kirkpatrick, president of the Farmers' and Shippers' Tobacco Warehouse, Cincinnati. The deceased is survived by a wife and one son, Edward V. Kirkpatrick, who is well known on the local tobacco breaks.

Daniel Balch

Following an extended illness, Daniel Balch, fifty-seven years old, died at his home recently, 114 Merrimac Street, Newburyport, Mass. Mr. Balch, who is survived by a widow and one son, for thirty-three years had conducted in Newburyport a cigar and newsstand.

Joseph Rocha

Manager of a chain of small cigar stores in Brooklyn, N. Y., for Mrs. Luis Mendez, Joseph Rocha, a native of Madrid and member of a distinguished family, committed suicide recently by hanging himself in his home, 44 Rutland Road, Flatbush. Mr. Rocha, it is stated, lost his fortune a few years ago, and since which time he had been employed as manager of the stores for Mrs. Mendez.

Harry B. Grems

Harry B. Grems, aged forty-nine, until last summer proprietor of large tobacco and cigar business in Watertown, N. Y., which went into bankruptcy, expired early Tuesday, May 26th, in City Hospital, Watertown, N. Y., following an extended illness.

Only last month Justice Emerson in Watertown rendered a decision concerning life insurance policies totalling $3000 which were held by the bankrupt tobacco dealer, and which creditors claimed were part of assets and which they tried to secure for payment. Mrs. Grems contended the policies were her own property and that the creditors could not realize from them, and Justice Emerson sustained her contention. Interment was Friday morning, May 29th, in Hermon, N. Y., his former home.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

FOREWORD

THE merits of the much discussed question of premium giving is not within the province of this department. We leave that to the individual dealer. But that there are wide awake men who believe in this method of boosting sales and securing legitimate publicity, is evidenced by the number of letters which the publishers have received desiring information as to where goods which are suitable for this purpose can be procured.

This department will welcome letters from readers of The Tobacco World which set forth any legitimate publicity campaign that is adaptable to the trade.

Let's get together, then, and help ourselves by helping the other fellow, who is groping for new ideas and new methods for trade building.

* * *

Patriotism To Help Sell Cigars

Holidays, to the retail cigar dealer, afford many opportunities for the expansion of trade, and when these occasions occur during the latter part of the week, as they do in the current year, they are of especial value.

The midsummer celebration of our Independence Day occurs on Saturday, and to the wideawake dealer, this means special inducements to offer cigars at attractive prices, that will tempt not only the regular customer but the casual one, to buy in larger quantities, and thus provide himself and his friends with a sufficient number of smokers to carry over Sunday.

A splendid manner to call the attention of the men to a store would be to secure a reproduction of a parade, flag raising or other local celebration, from the files of a newspaper, or snap shot by an amateur photographer, and have this reproduced on the back of an ordinary postcard addressed to as many of the smokers as can be obtained from the city or telephone directory.

On the reverse side of the postcard, typed in letters not too large or heavy, prices for the day could be run alongside of the regular prices, but to receive the best results, emphasis should be laid upon quantity, so that the increased business will net more than the regular sales, even with the reduced prices.

In a location where picnics and outings are in order, or any patriotic event forms the feature of the day, a scheme to present every purchaser with a red, white and blue hat band that can be used for the day and then discarded, would be all the inducement needed. These could be purchased at reasonable rates and need not be of the highest quality, but should be equipped with any attachment that will fasten or unfasten easily, so that it can be placed over the regular band and removed when the wearer tires of it, or the celebration is over.

With an offering of this kind a reduction in the price of the smokes need not be made, as this will prove of sufficient strength to draw enough extra trade and increase in sales to offset the expense.

Announcement of these plans should also be made by window bulletin, handbill, or, where circumstances warrant, in the local dailies.

Getting Overalls Out of Smoke

If every cigar dealer who is anxious to succeed in his chosen line of business would study the environment of his customers as closely as did the dealer in a mining and manufacturing district in the Keystone State, there would be fewer failures recorded at the end of each year.

This dealer frequently heard complaints from the patrons of his store that overalls were a constant source of expense, and consequently he was the loser of several dollars' worth of merchandise.

Seized with an inspiration, he wrote a manufacturer of these goods, asking for their best terms, and explaining that he planned to give these away as premiums when the purchaser returned sales slips for a given amount. This stock would also be displayed, and window cards would acquaint the workingmen of that city with the fact that this brand of overalls would be given for coupons issued by this store, and if circumstances warranted, they would be sold for cash at regular rates. This method thus advertised the firm's product as well as the cigar store.

The workingmen were quick to seize upon this method of securing what must otherwise be purchased from their regular funds, and reports received indicate an increase of more than 15 per cent. profit, over the same period, as prior to the coupon exchange system.

Turning Loss Into Profit

A city which boasts of its baseball team, though not represented by either of the so-called "Big Leagues," was the residence of a cigar and tobacco dealer who will one day reap the rewards of a little original thinking.

Situated in a neighborhood where the advent of summer meant a decrease in sales and profits, he set to work on some plan that would overcome this hot weather setback, and provide sufficient funds for a little outing of his own.

Realizing that any publicity stunt that secured the cooperation of the boys was sure of success, he conceived the idea of offering baseball accessories as a means of securing and holding the trade of the fathers.

Accordingly, as soon as a few windows had been broken, and a few inquiries had been made for the ball, this Solomon directed an appeal to the married men in his city, and offered to equip their boys with baseball paraphernalia if they would buy their cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco at his store.

With each sale a slip was given, indicating the amount purchased, and on the back was printed the amount of purchases required to secure a glove, bat, ball or uniform complete.

When questioned as to how this could be managed, this "live wire" was perfectly frank about the plan, and stated that he felt the increased sales, new customers and "quantity buying" would offset the expense and leave a margin of profit.

The results to date have proven the theory to be correct, and plans are now being made for the exchange of roller skates, ice skates and hockey sticks for the coming season.

Detroit

E. N. Harris & Company Get Whitney Arcade Store—Park View Tavern, Sixteen-Story Hotel, Planned—Detroit Factories Feel Western Revival —Watson Company to Distribute "R. G. Dunn" Cigars

THAT "The Tobacco World" is read with interest was proven last week, when the May 15th issue was in the hands of its subscribers. That particular issue contained a very handsome photograph of an interior view of the Bert Johnson cigar department of the G. & R. McMillan store. Since then Bert has received at least a dozen letters and postal cards from friends in all sections of the country commenting on this reproduction.

The report is current that E. M. Harris & Company, retail cigar dealers at 119 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, have secured a lease on a store in the New Whitney Arcade at Woodward Avenue, Grand Circus Park and Washington Boulevard, at an annual rental said to be in the neighborhood of $8000. The store will be on Woodward Avenue, and is the first one south of the entrance. In size it will be 20 by 60 feet. The New Whitney Arcade is now in course of construction and will not be completed before early next spring. It will be sixteen stories in height, and will be one of the finest store and office buildings in the city; it will cater to high-class shops only. The store selected by the Harris Company is a most excellent one; it will be practically the only exclusive cigar store on Woodward Avenue for a matter of three blocks south of Grand Circus Park. It is right on the way to the new Hotel Statler and the Tuller Hotel. The Harris Company will probably not occupy same until May, 1915, which is the time their present lease expires. This will be the only cigar store in the building, and in addition to having an entrance on Woodward Avenue, there will also be an entrance into the lobby or arcade part of the building. There were quite a number of bidders for this store, among them being Acker, Merrill & Condit, of New York City, whose bid was second high. Leander Harris, head of the E. M. Harris Company, was given preference over all the others on account of his reputation as a dealer in high-grade cigars and because of his past experience and successful business career in the field. Mr. Harris has a very large following and will help to bring a lot of people to that part of the city. He is certainly to be congratulated in having been given first choice in this matter. The good news will be welcomed by his numerous acquaintances and friends.

It looks very certain that Detroit will have another large hotel, to be called the Park View Tavern, and located at the northwest corner of Adams and Witherell Streets. The stock of the proposed company is now being placed on the market, and according to brokers who have just offered the same for sale it is selling very readily and there seems to be a great amount of interest in the proposition. The hotel will be about sixteen stories high and will contain around five hundred rooms; it will have many club features and will particularly cater to the men. Officers of the company include as president William P. Beyer, who for many years was half-owner in the Hotel St. Claire. When the hotel is erected and completed Mr. Beyer will undoubtedly be its manager. Should this deal go through, which at this stage of the game looks as if it would, Detroit will have a total of sixteen hundred rooms added to its hotel accommodations, which includes those of the Statler and new addition to the Tuller.

Eddie Lichtig, Michigan representative for the Philip Morris Cigarette Company, is back from an extended trip to the summer resort country. He came back "all smiles," indicating that he enjoyed a good business. He will confine his efforts for the next few weeks at least in building up a larger business locally.

H. Anton Bock with Frank Horning was in Detroit on May 22nd in the interests of the "Don Antonio" cigar.

Business with the local cigar manufacturers is picking up. As most of their goods are shipped out of the city it would indicate that business in the West, where most of them go, is getting better, and things generally are reviving. As for retail business, dealers report that conditions are better than last year for the same period.

Among those in our midst recently was Robert T. Dorning, representing G. W. Faber & Company, who import the cigars made by Henry Clay & Bock. Also Ben Lesser, of F. Lozano & Company, who, as usual, stired up things on the "Lozano" brand and left our beautiful city with some healthy-sized orders for immediate shipment.

The Hotel Pontchartrain, of Detroit, is now furnishing its "Count Pontchartrain" brand to the Columbia Club in Indianapolis, the Fellowcraft Club, Detroit; the Detroit Club, the Hotel Olympia at Mt. Clemens, and the Country Club at Grosse Pointe. These accounts have all been opened on account of the popular demand for this particular brand made famous by the Pontchartrain Hotel. There is hardly a day that the hotel is not in receipt of a letter from some customer in remote parts of the world, saying "Can I get a box of those Pontchartrain cigars which I bought at your cigar department on one of my visits to Detroit? I seem unable to get them any place else. Will send you the money as soon as I hear from you."

The Hotel Pontchartrain has just issued a new catalogue showing the various brands of cigars and cigarettes which it handles. These brands are: "Belinda," in five sizes; "Bock," in six sizes; "Eden," in seven sizes; "Henry Clay," in three sizes; "Hoyo de Monterey," in four sizes; "H. Upmann," in thirteen sizes; "La Carolina," in five sizes; "La Carona," in four; "La Vencedora," in the Cazadoras size; "La Meridiana," in three sizes; "Manuel Garcia," in four; "Partagas," in seven; "Punch," in four; "Ramon Allones," in seven; "Rey Del Mundo," in four; "Romeo and Julieta," in nine sizes, and "Villar y Villar," in three sizes; all of the above being imported cigars.

Among the clear Havana cigars the hotel catalog mentions the following: "Aploma," in seven sizes; "Count Pontchartrain" (the hotel private brand), in twenty sizes, including three Boite Nature packings.

Among the Tampa and Key West cigars: "Charles the Great," in three sizes; "Corina," in seven; "Hernan Cortez," in two; "La Flor De Seville," in seven sizes; "Sanchez y Haya," in five sizes; "Solace," in three; "Webster," in seven sizes; "Van Dyck," in seven sizes.

Of the domestic cigars: "Bouquet de La Ada," in six sizes; "La Axora," in the Bismarck size; "La Rosa De Paris," made by Starlight Brothers, in six sizes; "Portuondo," in the Perfecto size; "Royal Banner," made in Detroit by the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, in two sizes. Fifty-four different packages of cigarettes are handled, including the various kinds and sizes made by the Philip Morris Company, Benson & Hedges, M. Melachrino & Company, the Tobacco Products Company, the American Tobacco Company, the Cado Company and others.

C. B. Fox has purchased M. E. Budd's cigar store at 207 Marshall Street, Battle Creek, and has already taken possession. Mr. Fox has spent considerable money in repairs and new furnishings.

Robert J. Corr, of the Mascotte Cigar Company, in Pontiac, reports splendid success with his cigar "Proctor's Profit-Sharers," made exclusively for the Pullman Cafe, 15 West Grand River Avenue, Detroit. The Mascotte Company is at present making about fifty private brands, all of which are on sale at some particular cigar stand in Detroit.

W. J. Polley has purchased the interest of his partner, Sol Solomon, in the American cigar store, 19 North Jefferson Street, Battle Creek, Mich. He will continue the business under the name of the W. J. Polley cigar store.

The L. H. Field cigar store, the H. Crater cigar store and the Chapin cigar store, all in Jackson, Mich., have established agencies for the American Express Company and will issue money orders. It is believed that this added feature will bring many people to these places, and thus be good advertising.

Harry Brown, who has charge of the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company's retail stores in Grand Rapids, stopped over in Detroit recently while en route to Louisville, Ky., where he will represent his concern through the Peter-Neal-Richardson Company. Guy Caverly, Detroit representative for the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, accompanied Mr. Brown on a three weeks' trip through the territory. Mr. Caverly has been calling on the trade in Louisville and adjacent territory for some time.

Bernard Schwartz, of 258 Napoleon Street, cigar manufacturer in Detroit, has closed a deal with the Harry W. Watson Company, jobbers and operators of fifteen retail stores, whereby they will be local distributors for the "R. G. Dunn" cigar, made by Mr. Schwartz and which retails for ten cents. The fact that the Watson Company has taken on this brand means that it is sure to prove a very popular seller; not only is it being placed in the various retail stands of the Watson Company, among which are all of the leading hotels and cafes, but it will mean distribution in hundreds of other retail stores which are daily solicited by a corps of live-wire salesmen. Although the deal was only consummated a week or so ago, already there has been a number of windows devoted exclusively to this "R. G. Dunn" brand. Mr. Schwartz feels very much elated over the new arrangement and is preparing to take care of considerable extra business by increasing his staff of cigarmakers. He recently increased his quarters by taking space in the adjoining building. He expects that 1914 will be the best year since he has been in business.

Charles D. Ardussi, for ten years proprietor of the Garibaldi Cafe on Woodward Avenue, has disposed of his roadhouse to John Marquette, formerly in the automatic-piano manufacturing business. The roadhouse is located at Woodward Avenue and the Six Mile Road, Highland Park, Mich. It is one of the most popular places near Detroit for chicken, fish, frog and spaghetti dinners, and is largely patronized at all times of the year.

Will Charles, of G. S. Nicholas & Company, of New York, dropped off in Detroit for a few days this month. R. S. Sugden, of the Camp Importation Company, Inc., makers of the "Camp" cigarettes, was also in town. George B. Cowley, of Louis Martinez & Company, was another of our late visitors.

Carl Garrison, manager of sales of the Banner Cigar Company, has recently returned from his annual western trip, which took him to the west coast and into Northwest Canada. J. J. Murphy, formerly salesman for Payette-Walsh Company, Detroit, has accepted a position with the Harry W. Watson Company, and will cover the southern part of Michigan.

According to Manager Higgins, of the cigar department of Lee & Cady, Detroit, the "San Felice" continues to be in the front ranks of the nickel sellers. The increase in sales on this brand over 1913 is sure to run into many thousands. The same thing can be said of the "Cinco" cigar; it continues to hold its steady patronage in addition to constantly making many new friends.

POST OFFICE INVESTIGATORS UNCOVER UNIQUE SCHEME FOR SELLING CIGARS

Postal Authorities Get Many Complaints—Ad for Agents to Handle Cigars Brought Much Business—Embryo Salesmen Complain of Loss of Deposits

AMONG the many schemes that are constantly cropping up on the theory that there is a sucker born every minute, and sometimes two, a unique cigar salesman proposition which budded in Kansas has the qualification of at least being an unusual scheme for gathering money.

Eastern dailies have for some time been flooded with classified and display advertisements of the Continental Cigar Company, Wichita, Kansas, which offered to employ salesmen on an unusually attractive salary and commission plan. Results poured in from all parts of the United States.

It developed that in order to become a salesman for the concern it was necessary to send a deposit of $10 to the company to cover the cost of the samples. Those who read the contract before signing it found that their $10 was forfeited if a cigar was missing or damaged. The sample case must also be untarnished. At the same time the firm's letter of instruction to agents said, "Always give the retailer a cigar to smoke." Obviously the agent who followed this line of instruction could not return the cigar to the case.

As time went on, and the salesmen (?) found that selling cigars was not all that it was cracked up to be, and as the $10 they had on deposit with the firm loomed very large, many sample cases were shipped in and the demand made for the return of the deposit.

Right here is where the blind began to see light. If they had followed their letter of instruction, their cigar cases were not intact when returned, and according to the terms of the contract they, therefore, could not claim their deposit.

Then the postal authorities began to get letters about the Continental Cigar Company from all parts of the country. They immediately started, and claim to have succeeded in, working up a very remarkable case involving the misuse of the United States mails.

The result was the arrest of Burr P. Hollingsworth, a cigar dealer of Wichita, Kansas, as the alleged author of the want ads. When arrested and put under $1000 bail, Hollingsworth told the postal inspectors that he had never consulted a lawyer. He said he thought it was up to the agent to look out for himself. He said he held them rigidly to their contracts and supposed he was safe as long as he observed his own part.

Hollingsworth has not been in Wichita more than a year, and previously had been in Denver and Boulder, Col. He is said to live well in Wichita and drives one of the best automobiles in the city.

United States District Attorney Fred Robertson, of Topeka, claims that the whole case is unique and that he does not believe there is another one in the country like it.

Investigation showed that Hollingsworth purchased his cigars from a firm in Red Lion, Pa., and that this firm had shipped no less than 280,000 cigars packed in lots of a hundred or so in sample cases and sent direct to agents, since September, 1913. In all the firm had delivered something like half a million cigars on Hollingsworth's orders, nearly all of them being put up as agents' samples.

G. C. Ross, of Caro, Mich., has recently disposed of his cigar and tobacco business to Roland Hubard, of Flint, who will continue the business in Caro.

TOBACCO ASSOCIATION TO MEET IN LOUISVILLE

Break Custom of Years to Visit Kentucky City—Meetings to Be Held June 16 and 17—Upwards of Three Hundred Expected to Attend

LOUISVILLE, KY.

BREAKING a custom of many years' standing the Tobacco Association of the United States will hold its annual convention in Louisville this year instead of at Richmond, Va., which has tacitly been understood as headquarters for the organization almost since its foundation. The meetings will be held at The Seelbach June 16 and 17, and will be attended by about three hundred of the foremost exponents of the trade in the country.

The acceptance of the invitation to Louisville, extended by the Louisville Convention and Publicity League more than a year ago, has been received by President Fred W. Keisker, of that organization. Automobile trips to the tobacco breaks, the different manufactories and through the parks will alternate with business sessions during the first day, and in the evening the visitors will have supper and attend the vaudeville performance at Fontaine Ferry Park.

The following day will be largely devoted to business and in the evening the delegates will be the guests of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League at a chicken supper and cabaret entertainment at Magnolia Gardens. Early in the morning of June 18 the entire party will go to Lexington, where the various phases of the tobacco industry will be thoroughly canvassed. The delegates will have luncheon at James B. Haggin's Elmendorf stock farm and in the evening will be given a banquet at the Phoenix Hotel.

The secretary of the association, G. E. Webb, Winston-Salem, N. C., together with numerous committees, are at work arranging details for the convention. Special hotel rates have already been secured. The meeting will not only be of great importance from a business standpoint, but one of great pleasure to all who may be so fortunate as to attend. The meeting will give an opportunity to the tobacco men of the South and East to meet with the tobacco men of the West. It is greatly desired that there be a full attendance from all sections.

All tobacco men are eligible to membership in the organization. Also all manufacturers and dealers in tobacco supplies, tobacco machinery, etc., all bankers in tobacco towns and cities and all transportation men.

One of the objects of the Tobacco Association of the United States is to compile statistics and gather information generally pertaining to the business, both home and foreign, for promulgation among its members. The main idea is to generally safeguard the tobacco interest against adverse legislation, to use every means to promote the interest of the trade as a whole, to keep on a high plane of fair dealing and promote a closer personal and business relation between its members.

Fred W. Miller, of the firm of A. Cohn & Company, who spends considerable time in Cincinnati looking after the interests of his firm, has recently been guiding George W. Berger, the newly elected treasurer of the National Cigar Leaf Association, about New York. Mr. Berger is a member of the well-known Cincinnati leaf tobacco firm of John Berger & Sons. After visiting Hartford, Conn., and Lancaster, Pa., Mr. Berger will return home.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

TEN days ago our rainy season commenced in earnest and since that time we have had either our heavy tropical showers, which lasted only for one hour, or also some cloudy days interspersed by lighter, lasting rains. As the humidity has been great all the dry tobacco in the country has been taken down from the poles, been bundled and thrown into piles thus undergoing the first fermentation process. The escogidas in the Vuelta Abajo and the Partido regions will gradually become general, as naturally at the moment they have to rely upon the small quantities of the leaf which have been piled earlier, and that has had enough fermentation. As the majority of the Remedios requires fully forty days in the pilon, owing to its heavy quality, the escogidas will not start before the end of June, excepting some portion of the lighter styles.

A great drawback this year will consist in the difference of opinions, between the vegueros and the packers, as to what would constitute an equitable figure to allow to the farmer for his product. There is enough old tobacco still for sale in the hands of some leaf dealers, which can only be sold, or we might say slaughtered, at bargain figures. Business in the United States is poor with hardly any demand, and as the crop is large, prices this year ought to be considerably lower than last year, in order to find buyers. Possibly many vegueros this year may conclude, rather than to accept low bids, to pack themselves, but from what we have heard it will be next to impossible for the farmers to pack the whole crop for various reasons. Our packers are evidently in no hurry to commence operations in the fields of the Santa Clara province, while the conditions in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido are different, and good vegas will undoubtedly find buyers before long, as the quantity shall not be excessive. Medium classes of leaf will be less sought after, unless the prices should rule proportionately lower. Owing to the variable kind of weather experienced during the planting, growing and cutting seasons, good judges state, that there will be four distinct kinds of types of tobacco, choice, fair, medium and poor, therefore the packer or farmer ought to be extremely careful in keeping them apart, and in not mixing them together. The question will be, whether he will adhere to this suggestion?

When we gave to the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD last January an estimate of the 1913 tobacco crop of the Island of Cuba, according to the calendar year, we could not be quite exact, as our calculations were based upon the best reports at hand, but now we will publish the exact figures of the exports from the outports, such as Caibarien, Cienfuegos, Manzanillo and Santiago de Cuba, as well as the consumption of the leaf in the interior of the island by cigar and cigarette manufacturers. We start the 1913 crop from the twenty-seventh of March, 1913, and end the same with the thirtieth of April, 1914, thus arriving at a total production of 609,065 bales. According to the figures of the Internal Revenue there were consumed in the interior 31,716 bales, while we had underestimated this consumption as having been only 21,000 bales, and besides we were mistaken in the heavier receipts from the country up to the end of April this year, to the extent of about 8000 bales. According to origin we state the following figures, viz.:

Semi-Vuelta,	32,896 "
Partido,	87,149 "
Matanzas,	192 "
Remedios,	196,968 "
Puerto Principe,	1,159 "
Santiago de Cuba,	23,773 "
Total from March 28, 1913, to April, 1914,	609,065 "

1902,	370,055 "
1903,	318,087 "
1904,	428,108 "
1905,	464,757 "
1906,	279,633 "
1907,	468,716 bales
1908,	568,692 "
1909,	503,282 "
1910,	441,523 "
1911,	353,195 "
1912,	609,962 "
1913,	609,065 "

Our leaf market has not improved to any extent, although the sales reported show a slightly increased number of bales as having changed hands. This has been only accomplished by some holders of leaf, losing the hope of doing better later on, and accepting the low bids obtainable in the market. Of the new crop there were reported 450 bales of resagos from the Partidos and some 1000 bales of Vuelta Abajo, hojas de semilla (the small leaves from the seed plants), the latter were taken by our cigarette manufacturers, while the former were purchased by two Tampa manufacturers. Old Vuelta Abajo fillers were picked up by the latter likewise, and one local factory also secured several small vegas, owing to its fine quality, and the reasonable figures asked for them. For Europe a few old goods and some sample bales of the new crop were acquired, and the demand for the Argentine Republic continues to some extent.

Buyers were: Americans, 2080; exporters to Europe, 235; shippers to South America, 667, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 2090 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the two weeks from May 4th to May 16th, both days inclusive, amounted to 6918 bales, which were distributed thus: To all ports of the United States, 5955; to Bremen, 195; to Hamburg, 1; to Liverpool, 10; to Buenos Aires, 597; to Montevideo, 70, and to Valparaiso, 90 bales.

Receipts of Leaf Tobacco From the Country.

For the Two Weeks Ending	May 14, 1914.	Since January 1, 1914.
Vuelta Abajo	5,030 bales	14,216 bales
Semi Vuelta	399 "	1,491 "

Departures.—To New York: Fritz Lederer, Fred P. Griffin, Allie Sylvester and Ted Smith.

To Tampa: Angel L. Cuesta, Edgar J. Stachelberg and Enrique Pendas.

Cigars.

There is no denying facts that business in our cigar factories continues dull, and while they are never without some orders, they are, however, not in large quantities, nor very frequent, and for this reason many cigarmakers had to be discharged lately.

Don Ramon Argüelles, of the Romeo y Julieta factory, stated to us that they are working well, it being understood, however, that this refers to the changed times, but he continued to say that his principal interest was now centered upon the new Vuelta Abajo crop, as he is anxious to find out how the tobacco will appear after having passed the fermentation process. Don Pepin Rodriguez left on the 15th inst. by the French steamer "Espagne" for France and Spain for his usual vacation and business activity when there should be a demand again. Don Pepin is not anxious to make business calls when no orders can be had, so he quietly bides his time. In the meantime if any importers are in need of cigars, they can either use the cable or forward the orders by mail, as the fame of "Romeo y Julieta" is well established all over the world. A large number of friends escorted Don Pepin to the dock, and in a tug bid him a "bon voyage."

In making our rounds among the factories we found, among the orders shown to us, the name of the firm of Robert M. Drayton & Company, of Philadelphia, which evidently must be doing a good trade with Robert M. Drayton & Company special selection.

Castañeda told us that they had enough orders on hand for the next two months, and they even added a few more cigarmakers to their forces.

Don Felipe Rodriguez brought some orders along from New York for high priced sizes of his "Flor del Fumar" brand, and he also has steady orders from England and Germany.

H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., Por Larrañaga, Sol, Eden, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia and La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez are all working, according to the prevailing circumstances, but had nothing of interest to communicate to us.

Leaf Tobacco and Other Notes of Interest.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales were sellers of 900 bales of leaf during the past fortnight of all kinds of tobacco.

José C. Puente & Company disposed of 600 bales of leaf during the last two weeks to their customers.

Angel L. Cuesta, the senior partner of the "Truly Spanish House" in Tampa, secured about 350 bales of old Vueltas and some new Partido.

Don José Fernandez (Maquila) finally left with his family on the 14th inst. by the German steamer "Kronprinzessin Caecilie" for Spain, and there was a large number of friends to wish him a pleasant sojourn in his mother country and a safe return some time next winter.

Don Ramón Cifuentes intended to sail by the S. S. "Espagne," but some unforeseen matters obliged him to cancel his engagement of the stateroom. However, he told us that it would not be many days before he should leave for Spain.

F. Rocha & Company sold 475 bales of Vuelta Abajo and some Remedios during the past fortnight to their customers.

Bernabé Diaz, the buyer for the F. Lozano Son & Company, has purchased some 500 and odd bales of fine, old Vuelta Abajo fillers.

Don Avelino Pazos told us that he had sold 250 bales of new resagos from his famous "La Lechuga" packing, and which were acquired by Perfecto Garcia & Brother.

Fortunately our bubonic plague seems to have run its course, and there were no further cases reported. The man of Don Manuel Garcia Pulido, who was reported to have caught the infection, was afterwards declared by the sanitary officers not to have had the plague. The warehouse of Don Manuel was only lightly fumigated and no damage was done to his stocks of tobacco.

Maximilian Stern	1,392 bales
Perez, Capin & Company	966 "
Virgilio Suarez	760 "
Leslie Pantin	684 "
José Suarez & Company	680 "
Allones, Ltd.	340 "
Mark A. Pollack	321 "
B. Martinez	312 "
J. F. Berndes & Company	240 "

Southern M. E. Church Bars Tobacco

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in quadrennial session at Oklahoma City, passed at 12.30 P. M. Friday, the long agitated conference law prohibiting the licensing of preachers who use tobacco in any form. The vote was 182 to 116. The rule applies only to those hereafter entering the ministry, and no man now in the ministry will be required to give up his pipe.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, embracing the churches of the North, enacted an anti-tobacco law some years ago, but efforts to pass a similar law in the Southern conference had failed repeatedly. Four years ago at Asheville, N. C., the fight was lost by a narrow margin.

Does Friendship Pay in the Retail Trade?

THE question was being discussed the other day by a number of leading retailers as to whether or not it paid to get very familiar with patrons of a retail store. Here are two opinions expressed both of which contain some good points: First, "Familiarity to the point of intimacy does bring a certain amount of business, but the trouble is that when you get too friendly with your patrons they begin to ask favors and ask credit, to say nothing of occasionally making a touch, and hanging around your place, conditions that you do not come in contact with where you sell your goods purely on their merits. I would prefer to build up my business on square treatment, good service, and good cigars, rather than on friendship." The second man said: "You must have friends these days to successfully operate a cigar store. Lots of times your friends will go out of their way to patronize you, and if you do not have the particular kind of cigar which they may want, they willingly take what substitute you recommend. If a stranger comes in and asks for a certain brand, if you have not got it, as a rule he walks out and says to himself, 'this is a fine (?) place.' Another thing, if you have a lot of friends, you have a lot of fellows always boosting for you."

The answer to both of these arguments is, that every cigar store must be run according to the class of people it is catering to, and according to its location. There are no set rules governing the operation of any mercantile business. Often times what can be done in one store, would spell failure in another.

Good Showing for Abe Haas

A. Haas, who has been raising and packing tobacco in Santa Clara Province for several years past, now advises us that his packing this year will amount to 4000 bales, a really remarkable showing for an American who has only been in the business down there for four years. Mr. Haas states that he attributes his success absolutely to the extreme cleanliness of his packing and that quality is predominant in everything he does. In evidence of this, he points out the fact that in 1913 when packers were getting from 60 per cent. to 70 per cent. of first and second packings, his yielded only 53 per cent., but in consequence thereof, he obtained for his firsts, an average price of $7 per bale more than any other escojido in the province, the buyers recognizing the value of the tobacco, willingly paying the increased figures for the same.

Schermerhorn Company's New Store

Much attention is being attracted by the new store of the Schermerhorn Company, Chicago, Ill., which was only recently opened. Located at the southeast corner of Adams Street and Fifth Avenue, it may be entered from either street. Two handsome show windows provide excellent facilities for the display of the company's brands which embrace "El Sidelo," "Don Antonio," "Muriel," "Vega del Rey," "La Esperanza," "Harvester," and "Inventors," while in the imported line may be found "Partagas," "Manuel Garcia," "La Carolina," "Henry Clay and Bock & Company," "Romeo y Julieta," "Hoyo de Monterrey" and "La Coronas." The interior of the store is very roomy, Spanish mahogany being the keynote in the finishing of the furnishings and fixtures. One may obtain an idea of the size of the new store when it is stated the wall cases and counters measure thirty-six feet.

Michigan Reports On Cigar Industry Employees

The State Labor Department of Michigan shows that in the cigar factories of the state there were approximately 7211 persons employed last year, while 1904 people were employed in the tobacco factories. The largest employers of labor in the cigar industry were as follows:

San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, Detroit, 1213; Lillies Cigar Company, Detroit, 778; Wayne Cigar Company, Detroit, 615; American Cigar Company, Detroit, 461; Hemmeter Cigar Company, Detroit, 387; G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, Grand Rapids, 298; Alex Gordon, Detroit, 196; William Tegge Company, Detroit, 183; Superior Cigar Company, Detroit, 182; Banner Cigar Company, Detroit, 113; Lagora-Fee Company, Detroit, 110. The largest employers in the tobacco making industry were: Scotten-Dillon Company, Detroit, 1136; John J. Bagley Company, Detroit, 476; Globe Tobacco Company, Detroit, 155, and the McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, Detroit, 89.

While these figures are not exact, and are only approximate, it gives some idea of the importance of Michigan in the cigar and tobacco industry. This year, of course, some of the factories are employing a great many more persons.

Sum Appropriated for Manila Cigar Advertising

At a meeting just held by the Manila Tobacco Association at the offices of the Director of Internal Revenue, among others present were the Governor-General. The purpose was to find out the reasons of the decline of the Philippine tobacco trade in the United States and to suggest means to increase its sales. The following reasons were set forth as the causes of the decline in the trade: (1) Lack of knowledge in America of the sanitary conditions under which Manila cigars are made; (2) the fact that a large quantity of inferior cigars was dumped on the American market and sold there as first-class; (3) inexperience on the part of certain manufacturers in marketing high-grade cigars; (4) lack of care locally in the selection and handling of the leaf.

To help promote the sale of Philippine cigars in the United States the association has decided to vote $12,500 for extensive advertising there.

Lower Rate on Leaf Tobacco in the Philippines

In response to the representations made by the tobacco growers of Cagayan and Isabela, Philippine Islands, the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners has issued an order reducing the freight rate on leaf tobacco approximately 40 per cent.

Under the present classification laid down by the former board of rate regulation the leaf was shipped as Class B cargo, while as a result of the present ruling it will in the future be labeled as Class C—15 per cent.

Robbed of $72, Overlooked $200

F. M. Oliver, a cigar manufacturer of McGregorville, N. H., came back from Boston the other day with unpleasant memories. These were caused by several stitches in his head which held the edges of a deep gash together and gave them a chance to heal. The gash was caused by some unfriendly prowler of Beantown who handled Mr. Oliver a jolt with an iron bar to render him senseless, while friends of the thug gave his pocketbook the "once over." They found $72 and then left. The only ray of sunshine that came to Mr. Oliver when he awakened in a Boston hospital was the fact that the robbers in their haste had overlooked a roll of $200 in another pocket.

The Netherlands Tobacco Market

Vice-Consul-General G. H. Krogh, of Rotterdam, has recently sent the following report regarding the tobacco market of the Netherlands, to the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports":

The total imports of Sumatra tobacco into the Netherlands in 1913 amounted to 282,925 packages, of which 31,580 arrived at Rotterdam. The first sale took place on March 7 and the last one on October 24. At the first four sales 67,165 packages were sold at an average price of $0.984 per one-half kilo (1.1 pounds); at the twelve spring sales 208,387 packages were sold at $0.66, and at the four fall sales 74,653 packages at $0.21. The total 282,925 packages averaged $0.55 per one-half kilo. As a whole the average proceeds per one-half kilo were about $0.04 less than in 1912. The proceeds for the whole crop (282,925 packages) amounted to $23,600,000. At the first spring sales of the best tobacco American buyers bought large quantities and, as competition was keen, high prices were paid. After a few sales, however, the Americans became more reserved and prices dropped. Reports for the 1913 crop, which is to be marketed in 1914, vary considerably; this crop is estimated at 256,000 packages, of which 16,670 have already arrived in the Netherlands.

The total imports of Java tobacco in 1913 amounted to 693,361 packages, of which 175,953 arrived at Rotterdam. The 1912 crop was large and, as the 1911 crop had been extraordinarily large, prices in 1913 remained below the average. Of the total, 18,737 packages were damaged by fire and water, so that 674,624 packages were brought on the market. The average price was 10 cents per one-half kilo, or 1½ cents less than the preceding year. The whole Java crop realized $12,140,000, or $3,000,000 less than in 1912. A small crop is reported for 1913 (on the market in 1914), but it is impossible to get an estimate.

Although the quantity of Borneo imported was larger than last year (18,609 packages in 1913 against 15,231 in 1912), the quality was below the average, as a result of which the proceeds were 6 cents per one-half kilo less than the already low quotation of 36 cents per one-half kilo in 1912. The total proceeds amounted to $880,000.

Business in Manila tobacco was very limited. The quality was poor and the sale of the few shipments brought on the market had unsatisfactory results. If the favorable reports regarding the new crop prove to be true, a better business is expected.

Maryland is of chief importance to the Dutch market, but the quality was very poor last year. On account of the important purchases by the French Regie, the choice was limited. The many complaints regarding the bad condition of the casks made business worse than it already was.

In Turkish and Greek tobacco the high prices prevailing, on account of the Balkan war, caused business to be dull. The ever-increasing use of cigarettes in Europe, as well as in the United States, brought into prominence certain brands of Turkish and Greek tobacco never before in demand for the manufacture of cigarettes and caused the high prices.

Remodels Rochester Cigar Store

Louis Ungemach, of Rochester, Minn., who recently purchased the retail cigar store from his father, has shown his enterprise by having the place renovated. The interior has been brightened by decorations of an attractive design, while the cigars now repose in new and up-to-date cases that show them off to an advantage.

Reidsville Tobacco Plant Burns

The tobacco manufacturing plant of Robert Harris & Brother, at Reidsville, N. C., burned down recently with a loss that will probably reach $70,000. The plant was completely destroyed, as well as about 150,000 pounds of leaf and manufactured tobacco.

Prohibition Causes Cigar Factory to Move

C. H. Lohr, who for a number of years has conducted a wholesale and retail cigar store and cigar factory at 141 Galena Street, Freeport, Ill., announces that on June 1st he will remove his business and equipment to Columbus, Wis.

Mr. Lohr states that his removal is caused by the fact that his trade has been greatly hurt by the recent closing of the saloons. He states that a majority of his trade was with the saloons and that since the election when Freeport was voted "dry" he was compelled to lay off all his cigarmakers. He adds that he has not a sufficient wholesale trade to carry his business.

Columbus, Wis., besides being "wet," is a thriving manufacturing town of some three thousand people.

Sunnybrook Tobacco Company's Barn Burns

DADE CITY, FLA., May 21.

A tobacco barn of the Sunnybrook Tobacco Company, with tobacco that would have cured 2500 pounds, is a total loss as a result of a fire that started about 9 o'clock last night. The monetary loss is upwards of $4000, with insurance of about $1800.

The barn was about half filled with newly cut tobacco which was being wilted with charcoal burned in buckets and it is supposed that the high winds either blew a coal from one of the buckets or else blew a stick across it, thus starting the fire.

The entire town turned out to fight the fire and prevented the destruction of the sheds and kept the fire from spreading to the nearby buildings occupied by employees of the company. Steps are being taken to replace the barn.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

All indications point to the 1914 tobacco plants going from the seed beds to the field unusually early this year. For the first time in several years no insects have appeared to trouble the young plants. Last year some sections were visited by insects in such numbers that seed beds were ruined, and it was difficult to supply all the growers. It is probable that much planting will be done by June 1st, and the early part of that month may see the entire acreage of the county planted.

The 1913 crop has practically been disposed of, so little remaining in the growers' hands as not to count.

The local leaf market and the cigar industry appear to be on a par, so far as dullness of trade is concerned, in spite of the general expectation that May would bring renewal of business in both lines.

WISCONSIN.

JANESVILLE, WIS.

The prospects for increasing the acreage of the 1914 tobacco crop are again handicapped by a disastrous tornado which swept across the southern part of Dane County Monday morning, through the very heart of the large tobacco growing sections of the state, demolishing curing sheds that will be hard to replace the present season, says the Edgerton "Reporter." Probably not less than three or four hundred sheds have been razed, broken and reduced to kindling, involving a loss running close up to half a million dollars. Aside from the pecuniary loss the growers have sustained, they can neither secure the help nor devote the time to repairing all the damage before a new crop can be raised. Some intended acreage must be reduced.

A week of cold rains has delayed the growth of the young plants already started in the beds, but it has given them a chance to get a stronger root, and with warmer days promise to come along in due season.

Some work is yet to be done at the warehouses for a few weeks before the close of the packing season.

THE CAROLINAS

KINSTON, N. C.

Opinions as to the 1914 tobacco crop in the territory tributary to the Kinston market are varying. Some authorities believe it will fall short of that of last year, while others think it may be increased thirty to fifty per cent. Bad weather conditions in the spring destroyed many plants, but some tobaccoists think that this set back will not reduce the crop five per cent.

That the big manufacturers believe the production will be increased is evidenced by the activity at the plants here this early in the season. At some factories improvements are being made: the John Hughes Company, a Virginia concern, is building an extensive plant, which will cost probably $25,000, in the northern part of the city, and it is reported that annexes will be built to several warehouses. The Chamber of Commerce is encouraging the betterment of the market in preparation for the coming sales season.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

The weather conditions for the past week have been all that tobacco growers could wish for, and work has progressed rapidly in getting the land ready for the young plants, which at present are making rapid growth in the beds. With continued favorable weather, all growers, within the next week, will have the season's work well under way.

Reports from all over the tobacco belt indicate that the transplanting season is from ten days to two weeks late. Estimates, however, indicate that there is a heavy increase in acreage, some placing it as high as fifty per cent.

Scores of new tobacco sheds are going up in all sections and every indication seems to be that Connecticut is going to have a banner tobacco year.

TENNESSEE.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

Tobacco sales were heavy the past week, about 900,000 pounds having been purchased. Receipts in the open market were 101 hogsheads. Sales by the independent dealers were 140 hogsheads, and by the Planters' Protective Association, 360 hogsheads. The market was strong and prices were satisfactory. Planting is on in earnest; a great acreage has been set. The weather has been ideal and the farmers have taken advantage of it. The association has a large amount of tobacco on hand and sales will be heavy for some weeks.

The "Savarona," manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, has been taken on by the Watt Cigar Company, Minneapolis, as the result of a visit of the company's president, F. R. Hoisington, who at the present is making a trip over Western territory in company with the representative of that vicinity, Otto S. Murphy.

Trade Jottings

Nelson Brothers, who conduct a cigar store and news agency at Lincoln, Ill., have recently installed a soda fountain. John Shaub has been engaged to conduct the soda water business.

Daniel O'Connor, of Trenton, N. J., formerly manager of the furniture department of a department store, has opened a first-class cigar store in the Broad Street National Bank Building.

Boston retailers are exploiting another new cigarette known as the "Sultan-Flore," manufactured by the Sultan-Flore Cigarette Company, 303 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The brand has been only recently placed locally.

Fire of unknown origin recently damaged the cigar store of A. S. Dorfman, North Street, Pittsfield, Mass., to the extent of $3500. Fixtures, pipes and tobacco were ruined, together with 32,000 cigars. The fire burned only twenty-seven minutes. The loss is covered by insurance.

"Home Made," on the market but a short time, George A. Schneitman & Brother, St. Joseph, Mo., is fulfilling the expectations of the company and should prove a worthy competitor of the "Home Builder" and "Commercial," also launched by the same company.

The Hart Cigar Company, Portland, Ore., is much pleased with the returns on the "Salome," a five-cent brand recently taken on for distribution. They plan to boost it throughout the Pacific Northwest. It is being featured by a number of local stores.

William H. Knaub, York, Pa., who formerly conducted "Ye Smoke Shop" in that place, will open up a first-class cigar store in the Colonial Hotel Building. Mr. Knaub will occupy the premises previously utilized by Charles H. Kline's cigar stand, and states that the appointments will be not only handsome, but up-to-date as well.

"Crescent Club," a Tampa product, manufactured by the Morgan Cigar Company, has lately been taken on by the Crescent Cigar Company, at Fourth and Pike Streets, Seattle, Wash., and is proving one of the successes of the season. The brand, which is a five-cent product, was very attractively featured a short time since by a well-arranged window display.

DETROIT

According to Charles LaFond, of the M. A. LaFond Company, the "San Etta" cigar, which is being strongly featured at all of the LaFond retail stores, is taking hold extremely well. Of course, the clerks are boosting this cigar very strongly and this is backed up by attractive window displays. This cigar comes in tins and retails at five cents. The factory is controlled by the LaFond Company.

Alfred E. Penner, representative in this territory for E. Rosenwald & Brother, has opened a Detroit office at 507 Elks Temple and has also taken apartments in Detroit. This means that Mr. Penner has forsaken Philadelphia and will be in the heart of his territory. Mr. Penner will continue to cover Grand Rapids and Canada, as he has in the past. His removal to Detroit simply is for the purpose of facilitating his work, inasmuch as most of his time is spent in this section. This makes the third leaf tobacco salesman who has moved to Detroit in the past two years, the others being C. S. Sarlay, of F. & E. Cranz, and Max Maier, of A. Blumlein, not forgetting Victor Ettlinger, of Emanuel Hoffman & Son.

Tobacco Acreage Large

Tobacco acreage in many of the leading states will be considerably larger this season than in 1913. Last year 1,216,000 acres were planted. Western Kentucky and Middle Tennessee are reported as expanding without fear of any trouble from the "night riders" this season. Tobacco growing has extended into South Carolina and Georgia from the states north. The profits of the past year or two have much enlarged the attention to this crop.

Last year's average price of tobacco to producers for a total production of 953,000,000 pounds was 12.8 cents a pound. The average price in North Carolina was 18.5 cents, 31 cents in Georgia and Florida and 10 cents in Kentucky. The Connecticut Valley Prices ranged from 19 to 21 cents a pound.

Lorillard Factory in Owensburg Sold

The Lorillard factory at the corner of Ninth and Allen Streets, Owensburg, Ky., has recently been sold to the P. J. Taylor Company, of Henderson, N. C.

Taylor & Company are large buyers and exporters of all grades of tobacco. They make a specialty of leaf and strips in North Carolina, Kentucky and Virginia.

San Francisco

Business Dull and Collections Good—California Better Than Other Markets at Present—Ehrman Brothers Now Representing Park & Tilford Lines

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 20, 1914.

VISITORS from the other side of the Rocky Mountains, and the local men who are just returning from their business trips to the East, agree on this one point that, compared to other sections, California is better than any of the other states as far as the cigar business is concerned. There is no use beating around the bush with regard to a general financial depression. The local trade feels that it is not a panic, neither is it a lack of confidence in the efficiency of the federal economic policy. The market is not overstocked, and competition is not more aggressive than usually. Nobody really seems to know exactly the correct diagnosis of the present economic disturbance, but all feel the pinch, and all the powerful publicity campaigns and works of promotion show how eager the trade is to relieve the situation.

H. Bercovich, of the H. Bercovich Company, 30 Front Street, who has just returned from a very extensive trip to the Eastern cigar markets, brought back the strongest conviction that in the whole Union there is no other real cigar country but California, and that the California smoker is the only one who knows the goods when he strikes them. For this reason high grade cigars will always be predominant on the Coast market. The increased consumption of cheaper and cheapest grades of cigarettes is due, according to Mr. Bercovich, largely to the extensive advertising campaigns and aggressive marketing methods, and also to a very pronounced tendency toward economy on the part of the consumers of this kind of merchandise. Mr. Bercovich was deeply impressed by the sincere endeavor of the whole tobacco industry to raise the standard of merchandise in all its branches, and to do justice to the public, or rather to meet the public half way. The bonding of factories, he feels, will certainly be a long step toward protecting the smoker against the faked and inferior product of any illegitimate factory that is selling "clear Havana," and making competition too heavy for the legitimate manufacturer. Mr. Bercovich believes that, although conditions are not as good as the cigar trade would like to have them, the general outlook for the State and particularly for San Francisco, has never been brighter. The lines handled by the H. Bercovich Company are mainly the "Martinez" and the "Bachelor," and they are doing very nicely. The company has invested lately a large amount of money in modern improvements and in the remodeling of its retail stores, so that they may compare favorably with similar stores in any part of the country.

Glaser Brothers, 621 Montgomery Street, have six salesmen covering a territory between the Oregon line and as far south as Bakersfield. The reports from the Bay cities and San Francisco show that business is dull, although collections are very good. The reports from the interior sound much more encouraging. E. Sadlis reports a fine business in San Joaquin valley. The "Homecoming" in Bakersfield, three weeks ago, brought a good trade; so did Fresno during the "Raisin day" on April 28th. Wm. Bachrach, working in the Sacramento valley, reports a good trade, especially in "Pinzon" and "John Drew" five-cent cigars. The company will shortly be able to supply the Lipschutz five-cent "44" cigar, the distribution of which has been placed in their hands. The demand for ten and five-cent cigarettes is increasing almost daily, while chewing tobacco does not gain, and pipe tobacco is dropping off in San Francisco.

A. Czarnecki, 657 Montgomery Street, for the last thirty-four years constantly active in the cigar and tobacco business in San Francisco, first with Michaliteshke Brothers, then as a jobber and retailer, reports a good business in less expensive brands, of which the "Owl" is most popular. Cigarettes represent about twenty per cent. of the whole trade. Mr. Czarnecki believes that the constant changing of inserts is detrimental to the retailer, for a consumer looks always for the newest premium. Aside from that, the retailer is compelled to overstock with the latest brands advertised by the manufacturer. There is too much restlessness, too much advertising of new brands, and too little profit for the retail trade, according to Mr Czarnecki. The times, he holds, were better before the 1906 catastrophe, when staples were more in demand, and competition not so reckless. When the card machines were licensed after the big fire, cigar stands sprung up on every street corner, using cigars only as a very transparent cloak for gambling, until the authorities were forced to abolish this illegitimate amusement about three years ago. Since that time most of the retail stores have remained, competing fiercely among themselves, while the manufacturer is making the profit.

Ehrman Brothers & Company, 134 Front Street, are now representing the Park & Tilford line of candies in the Coast territory. This includes all such goods in packages. Ehrman Brothers have received a visit from A. Santaella, head of the Optimo factory, whose distributors they are. Mr. Santaella brought with him a full line of his firm's new brand, "Centropolis," wrapped with Connecticut shade grown tobacco.

Arthur Bachman, of S. Bachman & Company, Front and Commercial Streets, has gone to Paris, France, with his family. Alexander Herbert, vice-president of Philip Morris & Company, has spent the week in San Francisco with S. Bachman & Company, who distribute the Philip Morris line here.

The Tobacco Company of California, 325 Davis Street, are expecting Dan Hall, manager of the plug department of the American Tobacco Company. E. Newberry, manager of the company, has been inspecting the territory for the last week.

Arthur Meyer, agent for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, returned recently from his Northwestern trip to San Francisco.

Boltz, Clymer & Company, 312 Clay Street, are securing a nice business in the "Flor de Jefferson" cigar, and they expect to increase its demand within the next half a year, counting upon many Eastern visitors who are used to this brand.

D. H. Ball, of the P. Lorillard Company, was in San Francisco last week on his regular annual tour, and has now left for the North on his return East.

H. H. Manley, of the American Cigar Company, 320 Market Street, who has been on his Northwestern trip for the last few days, will return next week.

Frankel, Gerdts & Company, 540 Clay Street, are filling big orders, one of them being 160,000 "Natividads" for J. J. Gans & Brother in Los Angeles. The reports sent by the company's representatives show a big improvement in general financial situation. Andy Reardon has just returned from a successful trip through Oregon, Utah, Idaho and Montana, and Cass Altshuler is also sending good orders from Seattle.

M. A. Gunst & Company and H. L. Judell & Company are already working on their plans for their cigar store concessions at the Exposition.

M. Coblintz, a cigar and tobacco merchant of Stockton, Cal., has been visiting the San Francisco trade.

Trade Jottings

W. C. James and E. V. Kies have disposed of their interests in the St. Elmas cigar store to Cletus Swint, of Fremont, O.

J. J. O'Brien, of Newburyport, Mass., has recently taken charge of the cigar and confection store of the Daniel Balch Estate, on Merrimac Street.

B. H. Evans, formerly of Sharon, Pa., will open a store at 1432 West Federal Street, Youngstown, O., soon. He will specialize on cigars, tobacco, candy, notions, etc.

W. J. Polley, Battle Creek, Mich., has purchased the interest of his partner, Sol Salomon, in the Americano Cigar Store, 19 North Jefferson Avenue, and will continue the business under his own name.

The Dayton Cigar Company, formerly of DeKalb, Ill., has recently leased a floor of the Nicoll Building on Main Street, in Kenosha, Wis. They will employ about twenty hands at the start.

Harry Pitman, who has been in the cigar business in Mason City, Ia., for a number of years, has recently purchased an interest in the Smoke Shop, located at the corner of Main and State Streets.

Every salesman with the Capital City Tobacco Company of Atlanta, Ga., made an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent. for his April business this year as compared with April, 1913.

Earl Edick, who has operated a cigar factory at 7 Carpenter Street, Gloversville, N. Y., for a number of years, has sold his business to Charles Katz, who will continue the cigar manufacturing business.

W. B. Shaw, a former leaf tobacco dealer at Brodhead, Wis., is now in San Juan, P. R., where he has recently opened an office to engage in the leaf business of the island. For many years Mr. Shaw was Wisconsin representative for the American Cigar Company, and later was assistant to P. H. Gorman, vice-president of the Porto Rico Tobacco Company.

CROP ROTATION AND CLEAN CULTIVATION BEST PREVENTS WORK OF TOBACCO PEST

Wire Worm Causes Virginia Growers Annually Loss of $800,000—Also Found in Other Tobacco States—Department Issues New Bulletin on the Subject

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, 1914.

THE extensive damage done by the so-called tobacco wire worm in many tobacco states is best prevented by crop rotations, and by doing away with the weeds which are food for the worm. Clean cultivation should be practiced the summer before tobacco is planted, thus making conditions unfavorable for the egg which hatches the worm. This is the advice of the United States Department of Agriculture's investigators, who estimate that the damage done by the worm amounts to $800,000 annually in Virginia alone, and is also great in other eastern states raising tobacco. The department has just issued a bulletin (No. 78) on the subject, entitled "The So-called Tobacco Wire Worm in Virginia."

The growing of crops of cow peas or crimson clover (preferably the former) the year before crops subject to injury are planted, is one of the most satisfactory and practical means for controlling the pest. Summer plowing and thorough preparation of weedy land are other means advised. The eggs of the pest are deposited by moths in weedy fields during July and August. They hatch in a few days, remain over winter in the soil, and finish their growth during June or July of the following year. They are in their most active feeding stage when tobacco is planted.

Injury to tobacco occurs when this crop is planted on land that was weedy during the previous year. Crops planted on land which has been under clean cultivation are immune. The weeds which have been found to be the more common natural food plants of the worms are the buckhorn plantain, oxeye daisy, stickweed, and whitetop. The presence of these weeds in meadows accounts for the injury to tobacco when planted on sod.

The worms when once established in land where their natural food plants are abundant have been found difficult to control. Various insecticides and repellents have been tested, but without satisfactory results.

Fall or winter plowing has been found to reduce injury, but is only partially effective, as some of the weeds remain alive and furnish food for the larvae until the tobacco or corn is planted.

The moth from which the wire worm is evolved is medium or rather small in size and colored brown, yellow and white. Some have metallic marks on the fore wings which are comparatively long and usually narrow. When raised, the fore wings are rolled around the body and conceal the hind wings, which are folded beneath. This gives the body the appearance of a tiny cylinder, and accounts for the term that is applied to it of "close-wings." These moths fly mostly on dark afternoons or during the early part of the night. They are more common in open fields. When disturbed they make short flights, rarely flying more than a few rods at a time. They usually alight head downward on the stems of plants, and their color often harmonizes so perfectly with their surroundings that they can scarcely be seen. They, therefore, seldom attract attention unless some important crop is attacked.

When Smoking Tobaccos Talked

ONE evening when the men folks gathered around the fireplace, filled their pipes and lighted them, as the smoke began to curl ceilingwards some of the tobacco brands began to brag about their respective points of excellence.

VELVET said, "I am smooth."
STAG said, "No bite, no sting."
BULL DURHAM said, "I'm familiar the world over."
PRINCE ALBERT said, "I'm the national joy smoke."
WHIP said, "I'm made by the Pattersons."
SALLIE JIM said, "I'm bred in old Kentucky."

And then the warm but peaceful parley came to a close. It was a smoke talk and all's well that ends in smoke.

The above is from the pen of James T. Brown, of Berea, Ky., a hearty supporter of THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Amazing Increase in Cigar Sales

Is due to the new effective ALL GLASS OR WIRE EDGED Cigar Box Lids

They prove the same results as did the New ALL GLASS Show Cases, that took the place of the Old Clumsy Metal Frames now out-of-date.

The Old Style metal framed lids detract the customer by their cheap Tin Pan Effect, and degrades the value of the cigars and are also fast growing out-of-date.

The New All Glass Lids have a tone of refinement, increase the value of cigars by their Neat, Effective, and distinct modern air and cheerfulness in contrast with the old bulky and clumsy metal framed lids, which affect their sales by their gloomy shop-worn appearance.

Send for samples, prices and testimonials.

Brunhoff Jump Spark Lighter with Automatic Cutter

Operates with an excellent jump spark coil. The main feature is that the lighter uses electricity only for an instant. No current used or wasted on return into position. This is most important. It saves your batteries—gives them longer life. The front is for your ad or for a mirror. The handle is convenient to light from, for the shortest or the tallest. Pull the handle to you, slow or fast, "you get a light every time."

If you want the best lighter ever made, send us $12.00 and state if wanted with glass or mirror front. Send label if you want us to insert it.

CIGAR STORE CHAINS TO PLACE AGENCIES IN OUTSIDE TOWNS

Edwin Cigar Stores Announce New Selling Plan—"United" Plans to Follow Same System—Will Place Agencies in Towns Where They Have no Stores

NEW YORK, June 10, 1914.

MR. ROSENBLUM, the head of the Edwin Cigar Company, which operates a chain of retail stores in Greater New York, has recently laid out a new plan whereby agencies will be placed in all parts of the country to handle the products of the Edwin Cigar Company, as well as other brands not made by the company, giving the retail dealer a chance to select brands suitable for his trade.

The Edwin Cigar Company operates about thirty-five stores in Greater New York, but it is the plan of Mr. Rosenblum to give up the retail business as fast as the store leases expire, or to turn them over to clerks who will be able to make a paying proposition out of them.

The plan of the Edwin Cigar Company is to ship to dealers, who will buy their merchandise, the first shipment on consignment, charging one hundred per cent. on the merchandise. After the dealer has sold the merchandise he deducts as his profits thirty-two per cent. and returns the balance to the company. It is not necessary for the dealer to buy Edwin products, but may order any brands that will satisfy his trade. This, Mr. Rosenblum claims, has advantages over other systems, as it does not force the dealer to push brands with which he has been heavily stocked. The Edwin Company will confine themselves to dealers in tobacco and stationery, and only in exceptional cases will take on drug stores.

Mr. Rosenblum was formerly connected with the American Tobacco Company, but ten years ago left that organization to enter the cigar manufacturing business.

Following the action of the Edwin Cigar Company is that of the United Cigar Stores Company, which announces that it will take on agencies in certain localities where they have no stores. Dealers who accept the offer of the United will merely act as an agent for the company and will in no way be under the control of the United Cigar Stores Company.

The plan of the United is to furnish the dealers with whatever brands of their manufacture that they desire, and will also furnish them with signs to place outside their stores, the dealer's name appearing on the same.

Both the Edwin Cigar Company and the United Cigar Stores Company are receiving numerous applications from dealers who are desirous of taking up the offer of one or the other companies.

GOVERNMENT DROPS PLAN TO DISSOLVE TOBACCO COMPANIES

Open Market Said to Have Satisfied—Fifty-eight Jobbing Firms in Competition—Department Thinks Complaints Were Caused by Dissatisfaction

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8, 1914.

ACCORDING to investigations by the agents of the Department of Justice fifty-eight jobbing firms are now in lively competition with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company in selling the products of the components of the former tobacco combine. The competing companies are showing a good weekly increase in their sales which indicates that inroads are being made on the output of the Metropolitan. H. H. Hunter, representing the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of America, has written the department that the independent dealers are convinced that the "open market" policy insures fair play. With the independents satisfied and everybody happy, the Government's work seems to be at an end, and it is stated that the plan to dissolve the big companies who maintained an alleged monopoly through the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, has vanished into thin air.

The officers of the "Big Four" may now seek tranquil slumber while the rest of the industries lie awake trying to figure out just what they have done to make them liable to "investigation." No need to worry, from appearances they will all get their turn.

The result of the re-establishment of competition among the distributors of tobacco products in the so-called Metropolitan district is that the Government will withhold its suit in equity under the Sherman Act, which had been drawn for the purpose of compelling the four companies to cease their alleged monopolistic operations. The Government contemplated charging the four corporations with contempt of the Supreme Court by violation of that tribunal's decree of dissolution.

The Department of Justice has not yet reached a final decision as to the adequacy of measures which have been taken to restore competition. Officials of the Department believe, however, that a fair test already has been made of the action of the four companies and are confident that so long as the existing condition is maintained no cause will arise for charging that a monopoly of tobacco products distribution is maintained through the Metropolitan Company.

To Have Hearing on Bond Stamp Issue

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13, 1914.

It is understood that the officials of the Customs Division of the Treasury Department will hold a hearing in regard to the recent bonded stamp ruling and also in regard to the made-in-bond law some time this week.

According to the latest plans, the Key West and Tampa manufacturers, who favor the present form of stamp, which states that the cigars are hand-made by the Spanish method, will be present at the hearing of the opponents, manufacturers who have been making cigars in bond, but using team work in manufacturing. It is thought that in this way the defenders and opponents of the ruling will have a chance to answer each other's arguments in the presence of the officials.

With crop conditions on June 1st more than two per cent. higher than the ten-year average on that date, and more than nine per cent. higher than last year, it looks as if the farmers will be able to maintain their automobiles for another year at least.

How About It?

Merchants in the Middle West report that their business for May of this year is far ahead of 1913 for the same month, and a general revival of business is evident.

The cigar industry has felt a depression that seems to be general, but careful examination will show that the biggest decrease has been in the cheaper grades of cigars.

Factories whose products have been affected by the tariff changes have closed down to half time and quarter time, and some entirely. The workmen in these plants have had to economize on their smoking, and the falling off in these sales has made many Pennsylvania cigarmakers idle.

It occurs to us that the manufacturers who have made these people idle are for the most part high tariff voters. They do not like the methods of the present administration and they immediately joined the ranks of "calamity howlers." And much good it will do if our powers of observation prove to be unimpaired. The present administration has more than two years yet, and we think that they will continue to put in operation their present policies. As soon as high tariff manufacturers realize that President Wilson is paying no attention to them whatsoever, we look for a revival of business and a big scramble generally to make up for lost time.

Exports are going to fall off if we do not manufacture the goods to export; domestic trade is going to be slack if we pull a long face and bring in our salesmen from the road. Idle workmen are going to wear last year's suits if they have no money to buy new ones with; a bag of tobacco and a pipe does not exactly take the place of a cigar, but it is the essence of economy as far as the workman is concerned.

We venture to say that the manufacturers who think the country is "going to the dogs" have made enough money in the last ten years under the protective tariff to sail for Europe and "let 'er go."

Idle workmen mean the withdrawal from circulation of immense sums of money. Not the wealthy but the working class keep the department stores busy and the mills working.

During the depression of 1907 an advertising campaign was carried on at an expense of more than one million and a quarter of dollars, and it won out—big.

If there were a desire on the part of the dissatisfied for a continuation of prosperity we are inclined to believe that we would have it.

United Profit Sharing Company's Plans

John F. Whelan, president of the United Profit Sharing Company, which has taken over the coupon business of the United Cigar Stores Company, has sent out a circular defining the company's plan of campaign. The prospectus says, in part:

"United Profit Sharing coupons hereafter will be issued not only by the United Cigar Stores, but will also be packed in standard brands of goods distributed by leading manufacturers.

"The outstanding coupons issued by United Cigar Stores will be redeemed by us, either separately or in combination with United Profit Sharing coupons.

"Main premium stations which have been operated by the United Cigar Stores Company are being taken over by us. This starts us with a nation-wide chain of profit-sharing stations already thoroughly established.

"The first edition of the United Profit Sharing catalogue will number 10,000,000. The value of any premium system increases in proportion to the thoroughness with which the public knows the name of the coupon, the goods with which it is packed and the value of the premium for which the coupons are redeemable."

The United Profit Sharing Company has closed a contract with the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company. The head of the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company is M. C. Patterson, formerly a director of the American Tobacco Company.

KNICKERBOCKER.

The Makaroff Cigaret Company announces that it will discontinue its regular monthly payment of $500 for Makaroff cigarette coupons after July 8, 1914. The redemptions for other articles will be continued as heretofore.

J. J. Shea Ill at Summer Resort

THE many friends of J. J. Shea, the amiable sales manager of Bayuk Brothers, will regret to learn that he is suffering a nervous illness and that he is on indefinite leave of absence from the office.

Mr. Shea was stricken at his home in this city and it was more than a week before it was realized that he would require perfect rest and quiet in order to be restored to his usual good health.

His physician ordered him to leave the city and Mr. Shea is now said to be slowly improving at a quiet resort on the edge of the New Jersey Pine Belt and within sight of Barnegat Bay.

"Globe-Trotter" Reisenberg Bound for Paris Again

Henry Reisenberg, the hypnotizing salesman of "Bold" cigars, has just reached the Philadelphia office of Bobrow Brothers, where he will spend a few days before sailing for Paris on his second voyage of the year.

Mr. Reisenberg has had one of his most successful trips on "Bold" cigars and has landed several large accounts that are working the factories to capacity.

Mr. Reisenberg sails on the "Olympic" on the twentieth for Paris, where he will join his wife and daughter for a short visit.

Philadelphia an Oasis for "Camel" Cigarettes

After several days of newspaper advertising mysteriously announcing that "The Camels Are Coming," their arrival was announced and the cigarette smokers of the city lost no time in calling on their nearest tobacconist for a package of "Camel" cigarettes, retailing at ten cents for the package of twenty. This brand is being manufactured by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, and it is needless to say that these cigarettes have made a big hit.

The campaign is being pushed as fast as the factory output will allow, and despite the fact that no gift slips or other coupon or premium inducements are offered, the sales are exceeding all expectations. "Camel" cigarettes made an immediate hit with baseball fans, as the many packages at the games testify.

D. W. Putnam, a retailer at 167 Swan Street, Buffalo, N. Y., is jobbing in a small way on the "Castle Hall" brand.

Philadelphia Notes

"Hi" Hammer, representing the well known Tampa firm of Corral, Wodiska y Ca., left the Quaker City last week with a well-filled order book.

Chas. Staples, of the New York house of Park & Tilford, closed some attractive business on "Edens" when in Philadelphia last week.

The many friends of Speed S. Goodloe, president of the jobbing house of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, 112-114 North Seventh Street, will regret to learn that the serious illness of his mother has taken him to her home at Louisville, Ky.

A good display of high grade cigars is appearing this week in the cigar store of Maurice Jones, 44 North Twelfth Street. Mr. Jones is just across from the Reading Terminal and enjoys an excellent trade on high grade goods.

The newest cigar product of the Finley Acker Company stores is the "Franklin Field," which is made by a Philadelphia manufacturer, and made especially to meet the demand for a cigar of unusual merit which can be purchased at the popular price of five dollars per hundred.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, will receive their first shipment of the Garcia & Vega line this week.

This clear Havana, Tampa-made cigar will be carried in twelve sizes, comprising all the well known and popular shapes.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, are meeting with unusual success in the expansion of their business on "Statesmen" cigars throughout the Middle West section.

The Market and Juniper Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell, Philadelphia, have an attractive window display of the "Banderos," made by Jose Lovera Company, New York and Tampa.

This unusual cigar is sold for five cents and in bundles of five for twenty-five cents; that this smoke has caught the popular fancy is evidenced by the fact that wherever displayed reorders have been most gratifying.

The Home of "The House of Staples" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition

Situated on one of the four corners of the "Amusement Circle" in the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, "The House of Staples," M. A. Gunst & Company, will occupy one of the most attractive buildings, the one typifying the Moorish style of architecture, an illustration of which appears herewith. On the other corners will be buildings representing the East Indian, the Gothic and the Mission types.

"The House of Staples" will occupy a space of about 3500 square feet, which will allow a comprehensive and varied exhibit pertaining to the cigar, cigarette, tobacco and pipe industries. A retail service stand will also be installed, featuring exclusively the brands of the "House of Staples."

A luxurious lounging room will play a prominent part in the reception and entertainment of our visitors. Every possible comfort will be provided, and it is our intention to make "The House of Staples" a headquarters for the visitors from all parts of the world, particularly for those in our line.

It will be brilliantly illuminated at night, and will be in every way a credit to the institution whose name it bears.

Leopold Weil

LEOPOLD WEIL, founder of the firm of Weil & Sons, a tobacco merchant prominent in Water Street for many years, died recently at his home at Lawrence, L. I.

Mr. Weil was born in Germany in 1849, and came to the United States in 1863. In 1884 he became a partner in the firm of Schwarz & Weil, leaf dealers. Some years later he established a business for himself and later took in his sons. The business will be continued by the sons and will include Arthur C. Weil, a former member, who has been in another line of trade for some time. Mr. Weil was one time vice-president of Seidenberg & Company.

The deceased is survived by a widow and four sons.

Peper Estate Valued at Quarter of a Million

An inventory of the estate of Frederick C. Peper, of St. Louis, Mo., son of Christian Peper, wealthy tobacco manufacturer, was filed yesterday in the Probate Court. It showed a total real and personal property valuation of $268,950.79. Charles G. Peper is named administrator.

According to the inventory, Peper was interested in real estate at Sixth and Wash Streets, Twelfth and Market Streets and 1409-11 South Twelfth Street.

Notes and interest total $10,734.38; stocks, $244,660; cash, $12,305.05; accounts, $1201.36, and goods and chattels, $50.

According to the document, Peper owned 1999 shares of the capital stock of the Christian Peper Tobacco Company. He owned 30 shares of capital stock of the National Bank of Commerce and 175 shares of the capital stock of the St. Louis Union Trust Company. His cash was in the St. Louis Union Trust Company.

Fred G. Neu

Fred G. Neu, a cigar dealer of Cincinnati, O., at 405 Central Avenue for twenty-five years, died recently. He was fifty-nine years old and lived at 423 Plum Street.

New Asset of the Cado Co., Inc.

J. C. Nowlin is taking the place of Robert Appleton, who is no longer connected with the Cado Company, Inc.

The Cado Company, Inc., believes they have found a first-class salesman in Mr. Nowlin, who was with Butler-Butler at the commencement of their business and later was connected with the Booker Tobacco Company for several years.

Mr. Nowlin knows the trade thoroughly and goes with enthusiasm and willingness to work hard on the road. There is no doubt but that he will be very successful.

Richard (Dick) Bythiner, salesman for the leaf house of E. Rosenwald & Brother, sailed on Saturday for Tampa, Fla., on a business trip in the interest of his firm.

Personally assisted by R. B. Oppenheimer, of Heineman Brothers, Peter Peckarsky, of the firm of Peckarsky Brothers, Milwaukee, Wis., recently succeeded in placing in the local market 35,000 "Salome" cigars, as the result of a campaign on the brand made by his firm, this aside from the regular orders which, together with the new accounts, practically made a clean sweep of stock. "Salomes" to the number of 25,000 are still waiting delivery, pending the arrival of additional stock.

Five thousand each of "Puritana Seconds" and "Integridad Smokers," manufactured by Chas. S. Morris & Company, recently placed on the market by the Campbell-Frank Cigar Company, Portland, Ore., made a record breaking hit in that the lot was disposed of in two days. Four-for-a-quarter retail are being secured for "Integridads," while "Seconds" are going at five cents straight. Ten thousand additional on the brands are expected shortly and will be immediately put on the market.

A few of the officers and salesmen of the well known jobbing house of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, basked in the morning sun recently, with the result shown herewith.

This wholesale house is enjoying a splendid business on their many well known brands, despite the unfavorable trade conditions that have been in evidence.

Internal Revenue Officers Busy

Internal Revenue Officers Shearer and Anderson recently confiscated a number of cigar boxes with stamps uncancelled from the store of Fisher & Ahles on Germantown Avenue. The members of the firm were arrested and held under $1000 bail for a hearing before the commissioner. At the hearing a case of alleged box stuffing also developed. The cigar boxes with the uncancelled stamps were considered sufficient evidence to hold the two members of the firm for the grand jury. The amount of bail was not increased.

This case is only one of a number that may be developed at an early date, and the manufacturers of unbanded cigars in this city are looking forward to a renewal of activity on the part of the revenue officers.

While the case referred to was a result, no doubt, of carelessness in the matter of cancelling the stamps, the matter of alleged box stuffing will no doubt be thoroughly investigated.

Manufacturers are of the opinion that box stuffing in this city is on the increase and it is believed that unusual activity in putting a stop to this corrupt practice is about to be enacted and that as soon as sufficient evidence can be procured prosecutions of the cases will follow.

Ninth District Shows Revival

After months of stagnation, the cigar industry of Lancaster County, and incidentally of the entire Ninth Internal Revenue District, shows unmistakable signs of revival. Many of the smaller factories which have been closed are preparing to reopen, and idle cigarmakers are beginning to find employment.

If it were not for the fact that many of the factories are overstocked with manufactured goods, laid up largely as a precaution against a shortage in the event of the long threatened strike materializing, the revival at these factories would be more pronounced.

The great drawback in the cigar trade is the slow collections, which hamper the smaller manufacturers. The bulk of the new crop has been already planted, and this week will see the work finished.

"El Roi-Tan," "Cuesta Rey" and "Alisa" are among the prominent lines being featured at the newly-opened stand with the Southern Yacht Club, West End, New Orleans, by the cigar department of the Hotel Grunewald. John Carrigan is the manager of the new department.

MANUFACTURER SEES PROSPERITY AHEAD

Morris D. Neumann Finds Conditions Good in West—Enormous Wheat Crop Indicates Big Boom

MORRIS D. NEUMANN, of the well known cigar manufacturing firm of Neumann & Mayer, has recently returned from the West, and states that from his observations the period of depression will not effect a hardship in the West. He predicts an era of prosperity and bases his conclusions on the enormous crops that are now maturing.

The company's brands are being well received in the West and Mr. Neumann has returned with a well-filled order book on "Bella Mundo," "El Tello" and "White Knight."

"I find that conditions in the West indicate the most prosperous conditions if the crops hold out, and there is no reason why they should not. The wheat crop will be enormous, probably one of the largest in the history of the country, and this means business, and plenty of it. Busy men, busy railroads and plenty of money will result.

"My trip took me as far West as Kansas City and I feel convinced that the period of depression in the East is not a result of natural causes, but brought about with a purpose.

"A feeling of optimism prevails and our own factory is busier than for some months as a result of it.

"One cannot look at the crop reports and talk about the country going to ruin. The farmers know different and their crops are evidence of the fact that at least the soil is not affected by politics.

"I am optimistic and most of the jobbers with whom I have talked feel that the cigar industry is about to enjoy an enormous trade. It may not come until the crops begin to move, but it will surely come.

"Under the conditions I am more than satisfied with the trip."

Quite a bit of business resulted recently on T. J. Dunn & Company's "New Bachelor" for the Wm. Recker Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo., following a strong newspaper advertising campaign on the brand. To further facilitate sales a triple gold-plated pocket cutter was given free with every twenty-five bands.

The declaration of an open market, whereby all tobacco jobbers in the Metropolitan district have the right to purchase the products of the components of the former tobacco trust at the same scale of prices as the Metropolitan Company, was agreed upon by the four corporations nearly six weeks ago, when the Department of Justice served notice that an indictment would be sought on a certain date unless before that time substantial evidence was given of an intention to operate within the limitation of the Sherman Law.

With the issuance of the declaration the Government agreed to withhold the suit pending observations as to the extent to which it would restore competition. These observations were made by the United States District Attorney's office at New York, to which the four manufacturing companies have forwarded weekly reports of the sales of their products.

These reports up to date, it is understood, show that fifty-eight jobbing concerns have entered into competition with the Metropolitan in the distribution of the products of the former trust. The volume of business done by these competing jobbers has shown a considerable weekly increase, with the result that inroads have been made upon the alleged monopolistic business of the Metropolitan.

The amount of business done with competitive concerns by the manufacturing companies has not yet attained a volume to justify the formal and final announcement on the part of the Department of Justice of its satisfaction that competition has been fully established.

The Government feels itself bound, in fairness to the Metropolitan Company and to the manufacturing companies, to regard as confidential the reports received by District Attorney Marshall on the amount of business done by competitive concerns.

Other complaints against the components of the former trust, not involving the Metropolitan Company, are now under investigation. These investigations to date have not definitely disclosed so far whether or not an anti-trust suit will be necessary.

The investigations, however, are said to lead to the impression that the complaints laid before the Department of Justice were based more largely on dissatisfaction with the Supreme Court's decree of dissolution than with alleged actions in violation of this decree.

CAPITOL.

Though he has disposed of his retail store at 32 South Main Street, Dayton, O., to Charles Simms, who also has a stand in the Phillips Hotel, Dayton, Wm. F. Benson will not discontinue his jobbing business, but will still continue at 11 West First Street, his new location. Mr. Benson will feature "Cinco" and "El Symphonie" and "Smokecraft," a seed and Havana product, as usual.

The agency for Bergermaster "Cannons" and Bergermaster "Boys," five-cent products manufactured by the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, has been secured by Winstanley & Blankenship, numbered among the largest jobbers in the State of Washington. Messrs. Winstanley & Blankenship control a great portion of the trade in Olympia and adjacent territory and will look after the distribution of "Cannons" and "Boys" in this section.

A Pair of Queens for J. A. Voice

June 6th was an auspicious date in the life of Mr. and Mrs. J. Abram Voice, who make their home in East Rutherford, N. J. The stork, making his rounds and leaving his tiny bundles of happiness, rested for an instant and doubly blessed that home with two little baby girls. Flora Belle and Martha Rita Voice they have been named by their overjoyed parents. Papa Voice now holds a pair of Queens every evening.

Congratulations have already been showered upon the pleased father, and we hasten to add a well-wishing word.

Mr. Voice is a member of the firm of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, the well known New York lithographers.

"Smoker's World Record"

The "Evening Times," Philadelphia, Pa., writing concerning the "Smoker's World Record," has the following to say:

"What is believed to be a world record has just been set up at a congress of South German smokers, held at Frankfort, in Germany.

"A special trophy, consisting of a silver eagle on a red and white ribbon, was offered to the smoker who took the longest time to turn a Mexican cigar into gray white ash without letting it once go out.

"The competition began at eleven o'clock and very nearly two hundred people contested for the award. By twelve o'clock only twenty competitors were in the running, the rest had regretfully finished their "weeds" or had laid them at rest in the ash tray for too long.

"The rivals dropped out rapidly, and by one o'clock only one smoker was left. Herr Henz, a Sachsenhausen business man, who actually puffed away in peace until he perforce had to throw his diminutive cigar stump away, 2 hours, 46 minutes and 17 seconds after he had set light to it.

"Herr Henz has, therefore, been proclaimed smoker laureate."

George William Prescott

Mr. Prescott, who was forty-nine years old, was born in England and had lived in Brooklyn for forty-five years.

Spuhler Stand Features "BOLD" Cigars

"Bold" cigars are making a hit in Pittsburgh and their popularity is attested to by the display illustrated herewith. This recently appeared in the window of the George J. Spuhler store on Smithfield Street. Mr. Spuhler reports that he is having a heavy sale on "Bold" cigars and that he is continually featuring them.

Pittsburgh

Riker-Hegeman to Open in Park Building—Big Crew Working on "Oasis" Cigarettes—Afco Cigar Company Takes on "Ampere" Cigar

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 11, 1914.

A. C. Hamilton, of the American Tobacco Company, is selling "Tuxedo" and their high grade tobaccos on this market.

Mr. Clark, of the P. Lorillard Company, has been in town the last few weeks with a large crew putting on a large American rug with "Turkish Trophies" cigarettes. This brand has shown a nice increase since they placed the novelty on these cigarettes.

The Riker-Hegeman Drug Company, of New York, will shortly open a store in the first floor of the Park Building, Fifth Avenue and Smithfield Street. This is one of the most prominent locations in the city, being opposite one of the United Cigar Stores.

F. W. Bailey, of the Revere Cigar Company, is calling on the down-town trade in the interest of his five-cent cigar "Paul Revere."

The Standard Cigar Company, manufacturers of the "Dry Slitz" stogies, are at present erecting another new building to cost $25,000. "Dry Slitz" are distributed exclusively by L. Goldsmit, Brother & Company.

W. J. Gilmore Drug Company have taken on the "Corina" clear Havana cigar, manufactured by Jose Escalante & Company, Tampa, Fla. They are highly pleased with the way this brand is taking with the dealers.

Liggett & Myers have a large crew in town this week working on "Oasis" ten's and twenty's. They give the dealer a small show case for counter display with each carton of 500. They have placed this brand in over 500 stores.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands are featuring "El Verso" cigars this week. They have a very nice window display of this brand.

The Afco Cigar Company have taken on the "Ampere" cigar of the H. L. Bowers Cigar Company, Mansfield, O. This cigar is very large in size and will take very well with the Pittsburgh trade.

The Fisher Hotel, of McKeesport, have a full line of imported and domestic cigars. Among their featured lines are "Cuesta-Rey," "Tuval," "Saramitas," "Roi Tan" and "Jenkinson Best."

A. Reuben & Company are having great success with their "Arco Special" stogies, the mild smoke with the yellow band. Their "Goldflower" stogies are making a great hit with the particular trade. They also distribute the "La Flor De Vallens" and "44"—two good five-cent cigars.

The Moore Cigar Company, Wheeling, are having a nice run on "Cuesta-Rey" cigars.

L. Lang Company, Cumberland, Md., are certainly going after the "Chas. Denby" cigar. They sub-job these cigars through Shipley-Massingham Company.

Wells & Haymaker, the druggists of Clarksburg, W. Va., have a fine window display on "Cuesta-Rey," and have a photograph of Cuesta-Rey's X-ray Sterilizing Machine.

A new five-cent cigar appearing at the present time is "Court Royal," of the San Telmo Cigar Company, and is being distributed by the Shipley-Massingham Company. The window displays are quite novel, being entirely different from the old style cartons and dummies.

J. M. Glass, of McKeesport, has an elegant "Saramita" window display and is having good success with this brand.

At the last meeting of the Rotary Club, McKeesport, "Cuesta-Reys" were furnished by Rotarian Sharples.

E. L. Weil, of A. Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia, Pa., has been in town the past few weeks in the interest of "Roig" and "Girard" cigars. These brands are distributed by the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company.

E. W. French, of the American Tobacco Company, was in town. Mr. French is the state manager of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

H. S. Cuniotti is putting in some fine window displays on "Melachrino" cigarettes.

The following visitors were in town: M. Ferguson, representing M. Melachrino & Company, New York; Sid Cohen, representing Regensburg & Son, manufacturers of "Admiration" cigars; B. J. Strauss, representing Perfecto Garcia & Brother; N. G. Morris, representing L. Sanchez & Company; Marcellino Perez, of M. Perez & Company, manufacturing "Tuval" cigars, on his way home from a three weeks' trip; A. Calish, representing Cortez Cigar Company, in town for a few days; Leo Schoenemann, representing Celestino Vega & Company; R. J. Boltz, Boltz, Clymer & Company, Philadelphia; G. M. E. Kleiner, New York; Sam Fisher, New York; S. M. Frank, S. M. Frank & Company, New York, pipes; C. Boswitz, Gonzalez & Sanchez Company; F. L. Rouland, Lopez Hermanos Company; L. S. Kent, L. S. Kent Cigar Company, South Bend, Ind.

Schinasi Brothers Secure Permanent Injunction

JUDGE GIEGERICH, in a sweeping judgment in the New York Supreme Court, recently handed down a decision in the suit of Schinasi Brothers against A. Schinasi & Brothers, Inc., making the temporary injunction which was secured by the plaintiffs last year permanent.

A. Schinasi & Brothers, Inc., incorporated last July and began the manufacture of "A. Schinasi & Brothers Natural Aromatic" cigarettes. Judge Giegerich in his decision termed this a scheme designed to deceive the public and gave Schinasi Brothers, makers of "Natural" cigarettes, a permanent injunction, forever restraining the defendant concern from using its title of A. Schinasi & Brothers, Inc., and the name Schinasi in connection with the manufacture and sale of cigarettes, and from using the word "Natural" in connection with the sale and manufacture of cigarettes.

B. F. Alexander Caught at Last

B. F. Alexander, the genial American representative for the clear Havana factories of Fernandez Y. Garcia and successors to Juan Lopez, was seen but little around his office at 208 Broadway during the past week, owing to the peremptory call for jury duty in Brooklyn Borough, where he lives. During the past few months Mr. Alexander has been called three times on the jury, but escaped on two previous occasions owing to absence from the city. He says that business on their lines has been quite up to his expectations, despite the wails heard in other directions.

Catena Cigar Company Incorporates

During the past week articles of incorporation were filed at Albany by C. F. Zenker for a corporation to be known as the Catena Cigar Company, whose headquarters are at 351 East Eighty-fourth Street, Manhattan. Mr. Zenker has been in business for a number of years at the above address and has traded under the new corporation's name, and states that the present move was merely to put the business in legal shape. Those interested are C. F. Zenker, C. F. Zenker, Jr., and O. Zenker.

Tobacco Treating Company

A new company was incorporated on Thursday last under the name of the Tobacco Treating Company, which has for its object a new method of handling tobacco. The concern starts out with a capital of $20,000 and their offices are located at 200 Fifth Avenue. Those interested in the company are A. C. Buensed, B. T. Burchardi and C. B. Goldsborough.

The Jersey City Tobacco Company was incorporated last week under New Jersey laws with a capital of $10,000. J. Baum, Gertrude Baum and L. Teicher are named as the incorporators.

The United in England

CABLE advices from London, a few days ago, are to the effect that George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company of America, would sail from England on the "Imperator" next Thursday and that previous to his leaving for America a formal announcement might be expected of the completion of the long pending negotiations for the purchase of the Baker chain of stores in Great Britain. Negotiations for this have been conducted by Mr. Whelan personally, assisted by John W. Surbrug, and it was understood that these two will be the only American representatives on the board of the new company which will control the English chain. Others named as interested are the Honorable Herbert Quedella, chairman of the Imperial Foreign Corporation, a most powerful British company; Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, and the Honorable Austen Chamberlain, M. P., son of Joseph Chamberlain. The capital of the new corporation has been fixed at £5,000,000 as a starter, and it is understood that this has been all subscribed.

An unconfirmed rumor states that Mr. Whelan quietly bought out several of the leading English cigarette factories, the products of which will act as feeders for leaders in the stores under the new arrangement. Mr. Whelan has been waiting several weeks for a final consummation of his plans and during that time has been making a cruise on his yacht "Cassandra." As a mark of his belief that there will be no other hitch, he ordered his yacht home to American waters last week.

The name of the new corporation has not yet been announced.

Macy & Co. to Open Cigar Store

Up-to-date in every respect will be the cigar store at the corner of Thirty-fifth Street and Broadway, which is to be opened in a short time by R. H. Macy & Company. The large window fronting on Broadway, and right beside the entrance at the corner of the building, is to be used for display purposes, and will feature prominently all things necessary in the cigar and tobacco lines. The remodelling of the store is to begin at once, all the plans for the same having been completed.

Friends in the trade of Frank B. Elliott, who represented the Surbrug Company for a number of years, are being notified that, commencing Monday, June 15th, Mr. Elliott will represent the line of A. Santaella y Ca., he having severed his connection with the first-named company. That Mr. Elliott will be successful in his new line goes without saying, if his former reputation is to be a criterion.

Accompanying Samuel Fisher, of Storm, Fisher & Company, New York, who left New York recently for an extended trip to the Middle West, was a magnificent sample case showing in several sizes and shapes the leading brands of the company, "Senor Pancho" and "La Soneda." Needless to say, Mr. Fisher will not overlook any opportunity which will enable him to further increase the sales on his company's leaders.

New Jobbing House for Salt Lake City

JACK G. WHITAKER, a salesman for Celestino, Vega & Company, and Don R. Lewis, a well known cigar man, announce that on July 1st they will open a cigar jobbing house in Salt Lake City. They will occupy quarters on Lower Main Street in the Felt Building.

Mr. Lewis is widely known in the state, having been in the cigar jobbing trade in that territory since 1907.

Mr. Whitaker has been a salesman in Salt Lake City and other cities for a number of years.

The firm will carry a number of well known and popular brands and will install a cigar humidor that will be up-to-the-minute in every respect.

The firm will be known as Lewis & Whitaker and will shortly be incorporated.

Jobbers' Jottings

Primakow & Company, Milwaukee, have taken on the "Rotten," manufactured by D. M. Frank & Company.

The "Harvester" cigar, though taken on but a short time ago by the Lowry stand, St. Paul, is doing quite a satisfactory business.

P. C. Knowlton Company, Memphis, Tenn., are among the latest to take on Val M. Antuono's "Duke of Belcourt," which is manufactured in four sizes.

E. A. Saunders' Sons Company, Richmond, Va., distributor for the "Cinco" in the greater portion of Virginia, reports that business on the brand is very satisfactory.

The Oregon distribution of "Fifty Six" cigarettes has been taken on by the Blumauer-Frank Drug Company, Portland, Ore. In keeping with this policy, the company have been superintending a number of window displays on the brand throughout local and adjacent territory.

Speaking of their recent campaign on T. J. Dunn & Company's "New Bachelor," H. J. Hoffman, of John Hoffman & Sons, Milwaukee, states that the returns on this brand have exceeded their most sanguine expectations. So tremendous has been the demand that, despite the fact that an order for 100,000 was placed only in May, the company found it necessary to duplicate the order within the past fortnight. Additional campaigns will be inaugurated in a few weeks on "Barrister" and "Little Barrister" cigars.

Dusel, Goodloe & Company Find Business Good

THE well known jobbing house of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, of Philadelphia, report business as good with the orders showing a rapidly growing increase over previous months. The call for better grades of cigars continues to show improvement with better prices prevailing. Under the existing trade conditions the company states that their business is much better than they have expected.

In the clear Havana lines "La Preferencia" has the call with "Principe de Gales" a close second. "La Natoma" and "El Yutan" are also in demand.

Among the domestic brands "El Dallo," "Goodloe," "Cremo," "Reality," "Earl Marshall" and "Fink's Havana Smoker" are moving rapidly.

"Tom Moore" Boomed by Fay Lewis & Brothers

Fay Lewis & Brothers Company, the well-known cigar jobbing house, with headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis., is now out for a record on the "Tom Moore" cigar, made by the United Cigar Manufacturing Company. They have already pushed the sale of the brand in their territory above the 1,000,000 mark and hope that in 1914 it will go beyond 5,000,000.

"Tom Moore" is a ten-cent smoke Havana filled with a seed Havana binder and a Sumatra wrapper. "Little Tom Moore" is a nickel edition of this popular smoke. Fay Lewis & Brothers Company found a market for 9,000,000 of the nickel size in 1913.

"Blackstone" Selling in Louisville

Charles P. Frick, who looks after the cigar department of the Robinson-Pettet Company, Louisville, Ky., is meeting with much success on "Labor's Seal," a five-cent brand recently taken on by him, and on which he is specializing. With each lot of five hundred selling to the retailer at $17.50 a bracelet watch or oak chair is given. During the first week's work on the brand Mr. Frick, assisted by fourteen salesmen working Louisville exclusively, succeeded in placing it in forty stores and stands. Mr. Frick also recently acquired the jobbing rights in this territory for the well known "Blackstone" cigar.

"Rocky Fords" Going Well With Seattle Jobber

Realizing the possibilities for a first rate cigar jobbing business in Tacoma, Wash., S. Lavaroff, a former Seattle jobber, moved from Seattle to Tacoma a little over two years ago, and now ranks among the foremost jobbers of the city. Situated at 706 Pacific Avenue, Mr. Lavaroff has succeeded in building up an immense business on tobaccos and cigarettes and has several salesmen travelling Tacoma and Southwestern Washington territory. Among the recent acquisitions of Mr. Lavaroff in the cigar line is the "Rocky Ford," manufactured by the Union-American Cigar Company, on which brand he is doing a nice business.

The J. G. Cohen Cigar Company, Seattle, Wash., is introducing the "Cado" cigarettes, manufactured by the Cado Company, in local territory, and contemplates an aggressive campaign just so soon as additional stock is received.

Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 5, 1914.

TENS of thousands of Angelenos, young and old alike, engaged yesterday noon in a wild scramble in the downtown streets for ten thousand "Nimble Dollars" distributed as souvenirs of Prosperity Week by officers and members of the Prosperity League. Aside from their desirability as remembrances of one of the most popular movements ever instituted in Los Angeles, the "smile dollars" possess a case value in many retail stores which made them doubly sought after by the throngs. The shining disks of aluminum, of the exact size of a silver dollar, bear on one side "Smile every day. I am for Los Angeles and her industries," and on the other side is: "Prosperity League—Nimble Dollar—Valuable $1—watch the papers." There is to be held a "Prosperity Parade" Saturday, June 13, which promises to be "some" affair.

Los Angeles never before has given such a hearty and unanimous demonstration of the faith of its citizens in the future of the city, and the benefits of Prosperity Week cannot help but be lasting.

The advertising crew of Bondy & Lederer, New York, N. Y., who have been working in Southern California on the "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" cigars, are done with their campaign here and will move to the Northwest. W. B. Patillo has left for Portland, Ore., and John P. Sweeney for Seattle, Wash. Homer Gladstone, factory salesman for Bondy & Lederer, has also removed to the Northwest, alternating between Seattle and Portland.

H. H. Snyder, at 330 W. Fiftieth Street, has been working with "Tony" Schwamm of the P. Lorillard Co., on "London Life" cigarettes, and has shown a record-breaking sale of this popular brand of cigarette on his kite-shape trip.

The Max Roth Cigar Company has just closed a lease through the leasing department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, assisted by the Fowler Company, for the entire ground floor and basement of the Chapman Building, at 546-48 South Los Angeles Street, for a term of five years. The Chapman Building is a new six-story reinforced concrete fireproof loft building and is an excellent location for any such house as the Max Roth Cigar Company.

Two United States immigration men from this city in the launch "Gray" are patrolling the water to the south of San Diego in the hope of capturing smugglers of opium. This illicit traffic is flourishing since the market price of $40 for a five-tael tin has been in vogue. Japanese fishermen operating between here and Ensenada are suspected of bringing in large quantities of the contraband.

Anthony Schwamm, representing the P. Lorillard Company, has been waging a very telling campaign on ten-cent "Stag" tobacco in San Diego, where he had his entire crew. Reports from that point indicate that this brand has swept the market. A beautiful "September Morn" scarf pin was offered with every ten-cent tin and this deal took very effectively.

"London Life" cigarettes have, in a very short time, become the leading ten-cent cigarette in Southern California. The jobbers have been unable to keep their orders filled, so great has been the demand.

Two Japanese battleships visited Los Angeles harbor this week and upon their decks could be found old-style cigarette machines, for the purpose of making cigarettes for the sailors of the ships. The tobacco is of a very inferior Japanese grade and hardly fit to smoke. It is quite noticeable how the sailors bought our American-made cigarettes ashore. At a banquet to the officers of the visiting fleet, "London Life" cigarettes were served, due to the enterprise of Mr. Anthony Schwamm, of the P. Lorillard Company. The latter was invited to visit Admiral Kuroi, of the ship "Asama." "Tony" did not fail to make a speech to the little brown visitors and of course "London Life" cigarettes was the chief topic of his eloquent remarks.

The Klingenstein Company have some elegant window displays of "Duke of York" cigarettes about the city.

C. W. McCormick is here calling on the Klingenstein Company.

Arthur Levy opened up a cigar store at 743 South Spring Street in front of Levy's Cafe, which is the finest in the city. Mr. Levy will feature the Klingenstein Company's cigars and Surbrug's cigarettes.

"Trade Mark," a five-cent cigar, is proving a huge success with the Klingenstein Company. This cigar is manufactured by S. Fernandez y Company, of Tampa, Fla.

Mr. Whitney and Mr. Goldring, the former representing the Surbrug line of cigarettes here, the latter with the Klingenstein Company, are making a trip over the kite-shape track pushing "Milo" yellow label cigarettes. They are making this trip in a beautiful Studebaker car.

Louis Erdt, representing the Tobacco Produce Association of San Francisco, Cal., has been visiting in Los Angeles this week. He has devoted his time to dispensing "Melachrino" and "Milo" yellow label cigarettes and has met with much success.

"Banderos," manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company, of New York, N. Y., have surely met the consumer squarely. Haas-Baruch & Company, local distributors of this seller, and seller it is, report that the factory must hurry up from now on and make shipments in large numbers to catch up with back orders remaining unfilled.

The "House of Quality" have added one more store to their already long string and the total number of these is eleven. The new store will be in the new Merchants' National Bank Building, at Sixth and Spring Streets, in the heart of the business district. These stores purchase only those brands handled by the Klingenstein Company of this city. They are showing displays of "Cinco," "American" and "Webster" cigars at the present time. The string of stores are under the able supervision of Mr. Pickett, general manager of the stores.

"Ike" Wentworth, Pacific Coast representative for the Jose Lovera Company, is at the present time in San Francisco, but is expected home in a few days.

The "Copyright" five-cent cigar, distributed by Woodward-Jones-Johnson, of this city (Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, manufacturers), has already proven its true worth. Mr. Jones, of the above firm, tells me that the way the cigar is moving, there bids fair to be a panic in the factory when orders are coming full blast. They haven't started to come in, says Mr. Jones, but he smiles when he says this.

Angelo Mussatti is off for the Arizona territory to push "Reynaldo," "Piquant," "Navegar" and others of his lines. He expects to be gone about three weeks on this trip. Mr. Boggio, the junior partner of the firm of Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company, of this city, will take charge of this territory. Great strides have been made by this young house and success is theirs.

Ed Marshall, Pacific Coast representative for Sig. C. Mayer and Cressman, of Philadelphia, has just returned from Manila. He will leave for the Eastern factories which he represents and after a ninety-day stay at that point will return to Los Angeles.

A. Santaella made a flying trip to this city for the purpose of placing with his Los Angeles distributor, Klauber-Wangenheim Company, the new "Centropolis" cigar, manufactured by the A. Santaella y Company. Klauber-Wangenheim Company expect the first shipment of these cigars about September 1st of this year. At that time Mr. I. I. "Optimo" Hess, Coast representative for A. Santaella y Company, will call on the trade and preach "Centropolis" cigars.

M. A. Newmark & Company report "Don Remo" cigars as moving most satisfactorily. Many elegant window displays of the cigar may be seen at this time.

Worcester Cigar Store Changes Owners

The cigar store and newsroom in Main and Downing Streets, Worcester, Mass., formerly owned by J. T. Carroll, has been sold to E. J. Brissett & Company. The new owners plan to enlarge the stock, and to make many improvements in the store. It will be managed by Eugene J. Brissette, formerly connected with the Le Vasseur pharmacy in Washington Square.

Fire Destroys Lagrange Cigar Factory

Fire recently gutted the cigar factory of Joseph Ubesso, at Lagrange, Ga., with a loss of $1500. There was very little insurance.

The blaze is thought to have originated in the rear of the building. There was a total loss of the furniture and equipment and leaf material and cigars. The building, however, was not entirely destroyed.

Stahl & Odor Open Cigar Factory

Stahl & Odor, of Carthage, Mo., have recently opened a cigar factory in that city. O. Stahl comes from Springfield, Ill., where he resigned a partnership to join with J. W. Odor. Mr. Odor also comes from Springfield. Mr. Odor will act as traveling representative. "Essando" is the name of their leading cigar and it promises to win many friends for the new firm. The cigar factory will be one of the best equipped in the city.

Tobe Harris

Tobe Harris, the well known Los Angeles cigar dealer, located at Second and Spring Streets, has been coaxed into politics again by his friends. This time they have got him down on the Republican ticket to run for the office of County Supervisor. The cigar men of Los Angeles are deeply interested in Mr. Harris being elected and from all indications he is going to land.

L. M. Crutchfield & Company's Tobacco Factory Burned

Fire recently destroyed the large tobacco factory of L. M. Crutchfield & Company, at Cadiz, Ky., with a total loss of about $10,500. The building and the tobacco contained therein was only partially insured. The factory contained between 85,000 and 100,000 pounds of tobacco. The fire started in the middle of the factory, but its cause cannot be explained as the only fire about the factory was in the boiler used for steaming.

Arthur Cockerton Opens New Stand

In thorough keeping with the marble fittings of the corridors of the First National Bank Building, Milwaukee, Wis., part of which structure the First National Bank recently tenanted, are the mahogany cases and appointments of the new cigar stand of Arthur Cockerton, which occupies the space east of the centre stairway, while to the west is conducted a stand devoted to the sale of newspapers and magazines, also the property of Mr. Cockerton. John Kurth, for eighteen years with the George Allanson Company and formerly with the Empire Cafe, is in charge of the cigar stand, which has for its leaders the "Principe de America" and "Handspun," these two brands having been the leaders in the stand in the Public Service Building, also controlled by Mr. Cockerton. In addition to the foregoing are shown "La Verdad," "First Consul," "San Felice," "Cinco," "Tom Keene," "El Rio-Tan," "Alcazar," "Harvester," "La Venga," "Mi Lola," "Little Tom," "Tom Moore," "Masterpiece," "R. B." and "Equity."

Leaf Tobacco Board's Outing

MORE than one hundred members, friends and guests of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade of the City of New York were entertained at a shore dinner which was held at Reisenweber's Casino, Brighton Beach, last Wednesday evening. The function was under the direction of a committee of arrangements and the details of the entertainment were arranged by Messrs. Joseph F. Cullman, Jr., and Moritz Neuberger.

A special boat, "The Isabel," was moored at the foot of Wall Street at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and after the crowd had all embarked she headed for Coney Island. On the trip down light refreshments were provided and a trio of negro musicians furnished the music to help everybody get into the proper spirit. On arrival at Brighton Beach, announcement was made by Mr. Cullman that such members of the party as desired a bath would find bathrooms reserved at Brighton Beach Casino, and many took advantage of this opportunity to get a dip before sitting down to dinner at 6.30 P. M.

The dinner itself was spread on the second floor balcony of the Casino, overlooking the ocean, and presided over by Joseph Mendelsohn, the president of the Board of Trade. It is needless to state that the dinner was a most excellent one in every respect, including all the choicest delicacies in sea foods. The merriment kept up for three or four hours. There were no set speeches made, but various prominent members of the trade attempted to make a few remarks, which were promptly interrupted from all quarters either by cat-calls or a shower of rolls and olives—this aside from a neat little speech of welcome from the president. The only successful after-dinner orator, however, was John H. Duys, who without being announced, arose to his feet and launched into a splendid oration in Holland Dutch. He was in excellent voice and the crowd was so stupified that they kept quiet for almost three minutes. He was forced to retire under fire then, like all the rest.

The dinner was a huge success and both members and guests commented with decided pleasure on the fact that no detail for their comfort or happiness had been omitted by the committee on arrangements. One notable feature of this was the fact that the customary hold-up of guests at a banquet by the waiters at the completion of the meal was immediately squelched by Mr. Cullman, when he announced to those present that the waiters had all been adequately "fee'd" by the board, and that friends were especially requested not to give individual tips. Wapello Cigar Company in New Quarters

The Wapello Cigar Company, Wapello, Iowa, has recently moved to its new quarters, where an addition has been made to the force of cigarmakers.

The dealers are stocked with the company's "Telephone," "Cool Smoke" and "Court House" brands, and are making a special price on them during the month of June.

William A. Stickney Cigar Company Opens New Stand

The William A. Stickney Cigar Company has recently opened a new retail establishment in Salt Lake City at 148 Main Street. The fixtures and equipment give an inviting appearance and the store is most modern in every respect.

"First Consul," "Preferencia," "Antonio y Cleopatra," "Principe de Gales" and "Chancellors" are prominently displayed.

G. V. Rinker, a well-known tobacconist of North Yakima, Wash., recently sold his retail store on Yakima Avenue to J. V. Payne. Mr. Rinker retains the cigar store in the Grand Hotel and will devote his entire attention to it.

KEY WEST KLIPS

Spring Season Was Dullest in History—Prospects Good for Unusual Summer Activity—Heavy Orders for Made-in-Bond Goods—E. H. Gato Factory Trying to Catch Up With Orders

KEY WEST, FLA., June 10, 1914.

THE spring season is now about over and will go down in the history of the industry of this city as the dullest ever experienced, caused by a strike at one of our largest factories and the closing down of three others, in order to place their buildings in condition to take advantage of the "made-in-bond" law.

There are good prospects that summer, which is now with us and which is always conceded the dullest period of the year, will be livelier than for many years past. The factory that was on a strike is working with a full force (over 500 cigarmakers and proportionate help in all other departments) in order to catch up with the orders which accumulated during the labor troubles. The two bonded shops are having a large demand for their goods with the government guarantee stamp. Taking everything into consideration, summer this year is going to be a hummer with our cigar factories.

Shipments of cigars made in our bonded factories are being made and are being well received and duplicate orders for these goods are coming to hand at a good rate. While many were of the opinion that the caution label required by the Internal Revenue Law would not be necessary to be placed on cigars made under the new law, it has now been learned that by a recent ruling of the Secretary of the Treasury that manufacturers would have to place a caution notice on each and every box of cigars, also giving the wording for the label. It was also developed that the stamps of both customs and internal revenue should be cancelled by means of a rubber stamp or by perforations showing name of firm, place where factory is located and date of cancellation.

Key West is in the throes of another strike this week. At a meeting of the workmen held at San Carlos Hall it was decided to inaugurate a strike against the price of beef. A joint resolution was offered and unanimously adopted that the workingmen of the city refuse to buy or eat any beef until the price was reduced from 25 cents per pound to the following scale: That choice first cuts of beef be sold for 15 cents per pound; that second and third cuts be sold for 10 and 8 cents. This is a joint strike and is somewhat similar to the strike in Tampa recently against the retail prices of lean, lanky Florida cattle.

An amazing incident occurred at the restaurant that furnishes the cigarmakers of the Havana-American Co. on the morning that the beef strike was inaugurated. When the men, as usual, went to get their breakfast the waiters were ordered to take the meat off the tables, and every one refused to eat beef, replacing same with eggs and frigoles. The proprietor at the close of business for the day found that his stock of beef cooked in the various styles was still on hand and he was forced to give some away. What happened at this place was repeated at all the eating houses which supply factory employees.

Among through passengers recently from Tampa to Havana was Senora Vicente Martinez Ybor, widow of the pioneer cigar manufacturer of Florida and founder of Ybor City, Fla., who was at one time a resident of Key West, where she still has many friends. Mrs. Ybor was accompanied by Mrs. S. M. Ybor, her daughter-in-law. The party was taken for a ride over the city by the Cuban consul, A. D. Carrasco.

Jose M. Lozano, of F. Lozano, Son & Co., was in town for a few hours recently while en route to Havana to make purchases of leaf for his firm's Tampa factory.

Martin Herrera, representing the Vuelta-Abajo Leaf Growers' Association of Cuba, was in town recently calling on the local trade with the object of inducing manufacturers and dealers to make their purchases from first hands; that is, the growers of the section named, thus cutting off the Havana jobbers' profits. Each bale of stock sold by members of this association is guaranteed and has a protective seal which the organization has recently adopted.

Alfred Esberg, Fred Ross and Lawrence B. Gunst, of M. A. Gunst & Co., owners of "La Diligencia" factory of Moreda & Co., were in the city last week visiting the factory and have since left for Tampa. Jaime Pendas, manager of Moreda & Co., is also back at his desk after a short trip to Tampa.

The first cigars made in bond in Key West by the M. Perez Co. were photographed and a number of pictures will be made and distributed to the patrons of the "Pinzon" brand throughout the country. Grouped about these cigars were Hon. Geo. W. Allen, president First National Bank; Wm. R. Porter, Key West Realty Co.; Dr. J. B. Maloney, president Board of Trade; Dr. J. N. Fogarty, Mayor of the city, and Collector of Customs Wm. L. Delaney.

The first box made and packed under the made in bond act in the Mi Favorita Cigar Co.'s factory was forwarded by President A. W. Arnold to Frank Tilford, Park & Tilford, the New York jobbers and owners of the factory, and the second box was presented to Mayor Fogarty.

Juan Esperdy, the local Havana leaf dealer, left this week for Cuba, where he will put in a few days selecting and purchasing leaf.

The big shop of the E. H. Gato Cigar Co. is operating with a full force in each department, trying to reduce the orders which accummulated during the six weeks' strike. Frank C. Hale, the firm's new Middle Western salesman, has been doing some good work in Pennsylvania, but especially in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, lately. President E. H. Gato, Sr., will arrive in town this week from Cuba and after spending a few days at the factory will leave for New York City. He will be accompanied by Secretary E. H. Gato, Jr., and son Ed., who will enter one of the leading law colleges of the North. The company received 266 bales of leaf from Cuba this week.

Chas. Wolf, of S. Wolf's Sons, left on the Mallory steamship liner on Saturday morning for New York. Mr. Wolf will spend some time in Northern and Western sections in the interest of his house.

At the Ruy Lopez Company's factory business is improving. President John Wardlow had as his guests last week Messrs. M. Sternberger, an ex-banker, and E. Garretson, a writer of note of the North. They were taken on a fishing trip by Mr. Wardlow, one of the famous fishermen of this section, and who also has the distinction of having caught the largest Silver King (Tarpon) ever captured in these waters, and to tell the weight of which would cause the readers to jump to the conclusion that it was a fish story. Those of the trade visiting the city can, however, by calling at the Ruy Lopez Company's office see the proof in the way of trophies, of which Mr. Wardlow has quite a collection. The two gentlemen returned to the North on Saturday.

Fecundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, passed through the city last week, being en route from Cuba to Tampa.

Alfredo Selgas, of Selgas & Company, the Water Street, New York, leaf importers, was in town recently while en route to the Havana leaf market.

Avelino Cayro, the leaf dealer of Santiago de Cuba, was a visitor to the city last week. He was accompanied by his wife and sons and left on Saturday for New York, where they will spend some time.

Work at the Havana-American Company's factory, owing to an increase in orders, is on the boom. As soon as the documents arrive from Washington giving permission they will start to make their cigars in bond. In response to a request sent out by the president of the Board of Trade that property owners beautify their premises by setting out shade trees and laying out flower gardens and lawns, President A. L. Sylvester, one of the first to answer, says: "Your suggestions are appreciated and you can be assured that on my next visit to Key West, which will probably be in July, I shall give the necessary instructions and hope to improve our factory grounds so that they will be looked upon favorably by you as well as ourselves."

Tobacco Trade Considers Conditions Fair—Cigar Manufacturers' Association Want Bonded Ruling Tested—Jobbers Are Organizing Baseball Teams

CHICAGO, ILL., June 11, 1914.

FROM present indications the summer trade in cigars and tobacco is destined to be good, according to local dealers. Business has held up much better than has been expected. Thus far nothing has been seen of the summer lethargy which usually swoops down about this time.

Retailers say that business has been satisfactory during the past two weeks. The jobbers say that orders are being given with fair freedom. The saloon trade has been good, showing a remarkable increase over last month, when a depression existed owing to the fact that it was necessary for the cafe proprietors to part with considerable sums of money for licenses. Manufacturers say that collections are good, with the country dealers taking no more than they can use and paying in a prompt fashion for all they get. Leaf tobacco men say that, considering the season of the year, they have been doing a most satisfactory business.

The past two weeks have not seen any great news happenings in the local trade, although there have been a number of comings and goings of prominent cigar and tobacco men, and other little events which may be of general interest to the reader.

M. Friedman has gone to Cuba to inspect the new Havana crop. He will be gone for several weeks, sailing from Tampa to Havana. Mr. Friedman makes a similar trip every year.

Wm. A. Vorhauer & Company, the new Chicago jobbers, have been having a good run on all the cigars distributed by them. In particular the demand has been strong for "Flor de Bolana," the leader of the company.

G. A. Renaud, secretary of the William F. Monroe Cigar Company, has arrived home from one of his early season fishing trips to the wilds of Northern Wisconsin. Mr. Renaud never makes such an excursion without bringing home a few young whales. His recent trip was no exception to this rule. Last year Mr. Monroe succeeded in capturing a muskelonge of such exceptional size that he had the same stuffed and placed on exhibition in the window of the company. He expects to take another fishing trip later in the season.

H. L. Harris has joined the city selling force of the San Alto Cigar Company. Mr. Harris is a cigar salesman of long experience, having been connected with a number of prominent concerns. He is having remarkable success with the line of the San Alto Company, in spite of the short time he has had to get acquainted.

Nate Hubert, local division manager of the cigar department of the American Tobacco Company, has resigned his position and will go to New York, where he will assist in the organization of the sales force.

A. H. Caro, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, has returned home after an extended Western trip. Conditions were not good everywhere he went, but he managed to do a fair business.

"One of the things I notice," said Mr. Caro, "is that the trade seems to be 'spotty.' That is to say, one place is good and the next is bad, for no apparent reason. The crops out West promise fine, and for the most part the people are feeling good as a result."

That all the lambs do not live in New York was demonstrated last week when a man, dressed to resemble a Cuban, marched through the down-town office buildings soliciting trade on "real Havana" cigars at an attractive figure per box. The man talked broken English to perfection and seemed to be the genuine article. Many orders were placed. The goods were delivered and the payments accepted with thanks. Now the man is gone, and the office boys are the only ones who have gained anything by his visit.

Charles H. Knubel, old time cigar man, and during the past few years Pacific Coast representative for a number of firms, was in Chicago last week shaking hands with his many friends in the local trade. For the past few years he has been boosting "Charles the Great," manufactured by Salvador Rodriguez.

The principal store of John A. Dolan, which is located at 115 North Dearborn Street, has been purchased by Charles Dreyfuss and George J. Mannheimer, who were formerly connected with the pipe house of Reiss Brothers & Company. The pipe end of the business will be pushed hard, although the usual amount of attention will be paid to cigars and other lines. A repair department will be installed, as there seems to be a constant demand for one in that section of the city, and it is thought that the same might become a profitable part of the business. The line of Reiss Brothers & Company will be featured.

J. C. George has joined the city sales force of the American Cigar Company. He will work with H. B. Light in handling the brands distributed by the J. & B. Moos Company, with which he was formerly connected. He left the J. & B. Moos Company to go with G. W. Faber, Inc.

The Cigar Manufacturers' Association held a regular meeting last week. The discussion was general, but the matter of most interest was the proposed move to test the validity of the order of the treasury department prescribing a change in the bonded label, according to the method of manufacture. The consensus of opinion on the part of those present seemed to be that such a step should be taken in order to clear the situation and let the factories know where they stand in the matter. Many of those present have an idea that the Supreme Court will declare the measure unconstitutional, on the ground that it is class legislation. A considerable sum of money was subscribed by the local manufacturers to assist in bringing the test. The wedge which opened the matter was a letter from Joseph Mendelsohn, secretary of the National Cigar Leaf Association, who is well known to many of the local manufacturers. In his letter Mr. Mendelsohn gave a clear and comprehensive view of the situation, and urged action on the part of the association.

The Charles Donovan Cigar Company is just now engaged in making a heavy campaign on "Ponce de Leon" cigars, which is one of their leaders and which has become popular throughout most of the entire country.

Howard Cullman, of Cullman Brothers, New York, was a visitor to the city last week. Mr. Cullman was on his way to the tobacco fields of the Northwest on his annual inspection trip.

Baseball is claiming the interest of cigar and tobacco men at this season of the year along with the rest of the country. The J. & B. Moos Company was the first to organize a team. They recently played a game with a team organized among the Best & Russell workers. It is understood that all the other large jobbing and distributing houses will organize teams this year. Industrial baseball, as it may be called, is most popular here in Chicago, and is encouraged by the heads of firms, as it is a mighty fine advertisement to have a winning baseball team with the company's name on the players' uniforms and in the newspapers. Many of the firms furnish uniforms, bats, balls, masks, gloves and all the other supplies necessary to staging the national pastime.

The warm and humid weather which has been a feature of the past two weeks in Chicago has caused much trouble in the factories, owing to stock drawing damp. On one or two days it was almost impossible to work on this account. The best artificial means of keeping stock in condition did not seem to answer.

Many local cigar and tobacco men went down to attend the recent convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association. On the whole, however, the city was not represented by as large a delegation as should have been the case.

Robert J. Lytle, jobber in cigars, has opened an office in the loop at 431 South Dearborn Street.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

Hammering on "Tom Keene"

The illustration herewith shows John P. Sweeney, who is on the Pacific Coast representing Bondy & Lederer, putting "Tom Keene" cigar up to the people of Pasadena, Cal.

Yes, John has a hammer in his hand, but he is not a "knocker." John believes in boosting and he spends his working hours in hammering away on "Tom Keene" sales. According to authentic information from the Coast, John is a boss carpenter when it comes to nailing down orders.

Art Stitz, owner of the Irving Smoke Shop, Waterloo, Ia., has purchased the cigar and confection stand in the lobby of the Majestic Theatre. Mr. Stitz will have the shop equipped with up-to-date fixtures and will keep the stand open day and evening. Heretofore it has been open only afternoons and evenings.

TAMPA TIPS

Board of Trade Out for Membership—Cuesta-Rey Exhibits Unique Tobacco Plant—Has Free Baseball; Fan Wants Free Transportation—San Martin & Leon Making in Bond

TAMPA, June 11, 1914.

APROPOS of the campaign now being carried on by the Board of Trade, for the purpose of increasing its membership, Secretary L. P. Dickie, of the Board, states that the efforts of his colleagues are meeting with much encouragment. Recently a second batch of letters were sent out to prospective members, in which was included enlightening literature as to aims of the Board and giving some splendid reasons why prospective members should not delay in joining the organization. Included in the appeals to the men in the cigar trade were duplicates of letters received by the Board during the first two days of June and which were of direct interest to cigar manufacturers. The letters sent are listed as follows:

"Letter No. 1—Wanted the name of the manufacturer of a particular brand of cigars.

"Letter No. 2—Advised they were distributors of Porto Rican cigars, but their trade wanted and demanded good Tampa-made cigars.

"Letter No. 3—Asked for the names of the cigar manufacturers who were making 'made in bond' cigars.

"Letter No. 4—Asked to get the names of manufacturers or wholesale dealers of the high class Tampa-made cigars.

"Letter No. 5—Publisher of the 'Pennsylvania Grit,' a weekly paper with a circulation of 265,000, asked for photos and matter to use in writing a story of the cigar industry of Tampa."

It is needless to say that the information asked from the Board was quickly forthcoming.

Among the recent arrivals in Tampa were M. W. Berriman, of Berriman Bros., accompanied by Mrs. Berriman. Mr. Berriman left the following day for Havana.

John W. Ross, State manager for the Reynolds Tobacco Co., has been putting in a couple of weeks here calling on the trade. Mr. Ross makes his headquarters in Jacksonville.

F. C. Lozano left Tampa recently for New York City, where he intends to spend a few weeks, combining pleasure with business.

One of the most unique ads ever seen in Tampa was a "tobacco plant" placed on exhibition a short time since in the Bell Cafe, at the corner of Franklin and Zack Streets, composed of 100 Cuesta-Rey cigars of various sizes and several leafs of pure Havana tobacco. The "plant" was designed by the Knull Floral Co., the work being superintended by Mr. Knull. Several days were spent in tying the cigars in position, it being stated that the task was not the easiest in the world by any means.

Among the more prominent Tampans leaving the city within the past few weeks were Salvador Rodriguez and Mrs. Rodriguez, it being thought the mountain air might prove of benefit to Mr. Rodriguez, who has not been in the best of health lately.

Harry Culbreath is back again in Tampa, having just recently returned from a decidedly successful trip to the Western States in the interests of his firm, V. Guerra, Diaz & Co. Harry's trip extended as far as the Pacific Coast. Harry is said to be one of the youngest and most efficient cigar salesmen travelling from Tampa.

Though Robert Tanksley, salesman for Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., lives in Jacksonville, and has quite a number of friends in that city, Robert states that he has been enjoying himself immensely during the past week or so, during which time he has been here in the interests of his company.

Friends in the trade will be glad to learn that Joaquin Lopez, one of the prominent cigar manufacturers of Tampa, has been gradually improving from a recent serious attack of illness. Mr. Lopez plans to divorce himself from business cares for a while, and in all probability will spend his recuperative period in Spain.

It is doubtful whether the cigar manufacturers of Tampa will agree with the recent ruling of the august body of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, which ruling is to the effect that the use of tobacco by its members is per se sinful.

Not satisfied with having baseball provided free, a certain correspondent of The Tampa Times, feels that there are some other things which might help make the game more interesting. We quote his letter to our local organ:

"Velvet Joe" Talks to the "Boys"

"Velvet Joe," who has already become as well known in the home as "Sunny Jim," despite the fact that the former is speaking for a product which appeals only to the masculine members of the house, has recently taken a turn sending a line to the Liggett & Myers "boys." "It points a moral and adorns a tale."

Dear Boys:

Once thar was a salesman whose line was fountain pens. He travelled with a neat leather case full of dozens of different sizes, shapes and colors of fountain pens and he had a most wonderful line of talk. He was a "spell binder."

One day he dropped in on old man Jones, the hardest proposition to sell in seven states. Our friend unlimbered his sample case and opened up his heavy artillery. He talked and argued and demonstrated. It was beautiful!

"How many dozen can I put you down for, Mr. Jones?" he says.

"A dozen of this kind, a dozen of that and that and that," says Jones, still under the spell.

"Fine," says the salesman and pulls out a pencil. Yes, sir; a' ordinary two-for-five pencil.

"Hold on," says Jones. "I guess I don't want any of those pens. You know 'em better than I do, and I see you use a pencil."

When you are selling a man "Velvet" tobacco, do you pass him a cigar or your "Velvet" tin?

You know a bald headed man don't make much of a hit selling hair restorer.

Yours truly,

VELVET JOE.

St. Louis, Mo.,
4241 Folsom Avenue,

The cigar manufacturing firm of Fitzpatrick & Draper are considering plans for a new factory to be located at Kingston, N. Y., according to reports.

"Editor of The Times:

"Gentlemen: Having read last Thursday the baseball section of The Times, where I saw the beginning of free baseball, owing to the efforts made by several well-known citizens and having read the invitation offered to any person who has to say anything about the baseball to write The Times telling of it, I am very honored in writing to you as editor of The Times, telling you my own thoughts. I think that the baseball condition cannot be better than it is now. Two things are needed yet for the benefit of those concerned to the baseball; the first is to ask the manufacturers to finish the work at their factories at 2 o'clock. The second is to acquire, to have several motor cars in which to carry freely the people to the baseball grounds.

"I thank you for the insertion of this letter. Wishing to be attended as observer and lover of the free baseball.

Respectfully yours,

Marcial Campo.

Certainly, it would be a splendid idea to provide all the little adjuncts to the game, but we are afraid that our friend will have to be content just at present.

San Martin & Leon have joined the "made in bond" ranks, which now number 17 local factories. They include: Berriman Bros., Jose Lovera & Co., E. Regensburg & Sons, Sanchez & Haya Co., Cuesta, Rey & Co., F. Garcia & Bro., Salvador, Sanchez & Co., Morgan Cigar Co., V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., Perfecto Garcia & Bros., F. Lozano, Son & Co., Salvador Rodriguez, Boltz, Clymer & Co., A. Santaella & Co., Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, Grommes & Elson, Jose Llanza Co.

A. L. Cuesta, Jr., left Tampa recently for his company's headquarters in Cuba, where he plans to spend several weeks. Mr. Cuesta will look after the company's tobacco packings in Havana. A. L. Cuesta, Sr., is seeing to it that both his namesake and his other son, Karl, shall be given a practical training to aid them in carrying on the splendid work of this wonderful house.

PERFECTO.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 15

Press Club, Chicago

(This is the fifteenth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

Articles in this series have appeared on the following clubs:

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.

No. 11—Hamilton Club, Chicago.
No. 12—Commercial Club, San Francisco.
No. 13—Chicago Automobile Club.
No. 14—Elks' Club, Los Angeles.

CHICAGO is famous for many things. Frenzied finance, boodling aldermen, alimony-seeking divorcees, and large schooners all fade into insignificance, however, when the magic name of the Press Club is mentioned.

Here is the true Bohemia of Chicago. Here come the men who yield the pen, who shape the thought of the nation through the newspapers. Here come the great and the near-great, especially the near-great. They are near the grate in the library on the fifth floor on long winter evenings, when over drinks and cigars the newspaper boys converse about places in Vienna and Paris as though they were just across Dearborn Street.

"Weaving spiders come not here." Where would you find a better motto for a press club? In no club in the entire city is democracy more supreme than at the Press Club. It does not matter how many dollars a man has salted away. Here he is judged by what he is. Here is but one aristocracy and that is the aristocracy of the mind.

The Press Club of Chicago occupies a nine-story and basement building at 26 North Dearborn Street. The building is not modern in every sense of the word, but a relic of one of the former eras of architecture.

The first floor is devoted to the main offices of the club, and the barber shop. The barber shop has never been much of a success, as newspaper men are too busy to pay much attention to tonsorial adornment. The second floor of the building is not occupied by the club, but is given over to the Chicago Real Estate Board, which pays a rental. The third floor is devoted to cards and drinking. Here also are the store rooms of the club and sofas which can be used for slumber when necessary. The fourth floor is devoted to drinking and lounging, as well as pool and billiards. The fifth floor is taken by the library, which is one of the finest of the kind to be found in the entire city. Here also are dining-rooms for ladies in which drinks are served. The sixth floor is almost entirely taken up by the main dining-room, where all the entertainments, including the stags which have become famous all over the country, are held. Steins adorn the walls, and drinks are served at any hour of the day or night. The seventh floor is devoted to a dormitory for the members whose work obliges them to remain near to the down-town district. On the eight floor are additional rooms. The ninth floor is the attic where many of the relics of bygone days are stored.

The membership of the Press Club of Chicago is large, and includes some of the most famous literary men in the country. In his day Eugene Field was one of the shining lights of the organization. Mark Twain was instrumental in founding the club in the early eighties, although he was never prominent in the activities. Perhaps the most famous living member of the club is Opie Reed, the writer of Arkansas stories, whose novels are known from one end of the country to the other.

Now that the reader has an idea of the sort of club under discussion, the smoking proclivities of the members may well be given consideration. As has been said, the membership is large, running into several thousand, and perhaps 90 per cent. of the members smoke. There is something about the strain of newspaper work which causes the newspaper man to make a companion of tobacco in some form or other. Then, too, the enormous quantities of liquor consumed by the members of the club helps the cigar trade to a large extent. The members, with their pockets filled with cigars, lean carelessly against the brass railing, break all their smokes and then buy more before leaving for home. "Mose", the colored bartender, who is regarded by the members as "a student of human nature," declares that the number of cigars smoked by the members of the club is almost beyond belief. The one and only cigar case in the club is a large one located on the fourth floor within a few paces of the bar. The bar itself is the main attraction of the club, and was given to the organization by a prominent brewery on condition that they would sell their beer for a limited period. Most of the activities of the club revolve around the bar, and the fourth floor rear is a lively place at any hour of the day or night. About two o'clock in the morning in come the boys who work on the morning newspapers of the city. They are tired with the grind. They gather around the bar, drinking and smoking. Not alone cigars, but cigarettes as well, are consumed in large number by the members.

The leading brand of the club is "Press Club of Chicago," which is made in about a dozen sizes. The name is also applied to the private brand cigarettes. The members are most loyal to the organization, and for that reason more private brand goods are smoked than outside brands. The case is filled with high-grade imported and domestic cigars, including "Partagas," "Ben Bey," "Dean's Havanas," "Lucius," "General Shields," "Henry the Fourth" and the other leading brands.

Dr. W. Frederick Nutt, as he signs himself, is in charge of the department. He is a man of keen insight into the possibilities of a business proposition, and he makes the most of such opportunities as come his way. The Press Club of Chicago is not rich. The club is heavily in debt at the present time, having borrowed $80,000 only the other day. But as was once said, "The characteristics of the average individual are the characteristics of the entire human race." Newspaper men are thriftless. They make but little money, and they spend the same as fast as they can. Then, too, there are greater treasures than mere material wealth, and of such the Press Club of Chicago is well supplied. As Roger Mullen, the Chicago politician, once said on visiting the tomb of Wordsworth, "Here sleeps genius."

Detroit

ONE of the best ways of telling whether the cigar manufacturing business is good is whether or not cigarmakers are scarce or plentiful, and we are glad to say that since the first of June there has not been many on the market, which means that most of them have employment and that the manufacturing business is very good. The "San Telmo," "Lillies," "Wayne," "Banner," "Superior" and "Mazer" factories all report business to be increasing and are looking for a good summer trade. Of the smaller factories here, there are a few who also say business is improving with the cigars which they manufacture: Charles F. Boldt, at 1000 Michigan Avenue, makes the "M. A. A." cigar, selling at ten cents; it is a Connecticut broad leaf binder over all Havana filler, with Sumatra wrapper; Mr. Boldt also turns out a cigar called "Money Order" that sells at five cents. The City of the States Cigar Manufacturing Company, at Frederick and Grandy Streets, make two good selling five-cent propositions, "Queen of the States" and "Captain Joe." The Howarn Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1157 Michigan Avenue, makes the "El Karo," a broadleaf clear Havana with Sumatra wrapper, in four sizes, at ten cents; "Old Club" is another similar made cigar for ten cents, while the best nickel proposition is "Howarn's Dividend." The Judge Durand Cigar Company, 716 Chene Street, make the "Judge Durand," which is featured very strongly by the Harry W. Watson Company at all of their retail stands. The Revere Cigar Manufacturing Company, 466 St. Aubin Avenue, which has only been in business since last September, reports a very unusual business on "Paul Revere" at five cents, and the "Moebs Special," which sells at ten cents. The Eminent Cigar Company, at 267 East Canfield Avenue, make four five-cent brands and three ten-cent brands—"Detroit Ribbon," "Our Governor," "The Pusher" and "Ribbon Tip" at five, and "El Detro," "El Susaro" and "La Mantanza" at ten, all union made. The Northwest Cigar Manufacturing Company, at Gratiot and Hastings Streets, make the "Detroit Opera" at five cents and "De Vasto," Havana filled, at ten cents. The Al Monte cigar manufacturing plant, at 200 Mitchell Avenue, turns out "Face Value" at five cents, "John Jay" at five cents and "Rozane" at ten. Bernard Schwartz, at 258 Napoleon, makes the "R. G. Dun" at ten cents, which is also being pushed hard by the Harry W. Watson Company.

Among those who deal in leaf tobacco in Detroit are: R. C. Berger, 247 Jefferson Avenue; A. Blumlein & Company, 160 Jefferson Avenue; E. Rosenwald & Brother, 507 Elks Temple; F. & E. Cranz, Sun Building; Buehler Leaf Tobacco Company, 77 Jefferson Avenue; A. A. Huperz, 232 Michigan Avenue; Louis Peters & Company, 219 Jefferson Avenue; Fred Rosenfield, 45 Jefferson Avenue; Alfred Rothschild, 55 Wayne Street, and Van Vliet Brothers, 150 St. Antoine Street.

The leading tobacco manufacturers are: John J. Bagley & Company, Warren and Dequinder Streets; Detroit Tobacco Company, 701 Warren Avenue; Globe Tobacco Company, Brush and Fort Streets; Ignatz Wolff, 394 Grandy Avenue, and the McKie-Scotten Company, Twelfth and Porter Streets.

During the month of May the office of the internal revenue department for the first district of Michigan gives the following figures:

Tobacco,	$228,000.73	2,850,009	pounds
Snuff,	$663.96	8,299	pounds

Charles Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company, says that his factory will positively be unable to take on any more accounts until the fall, by which time he hopes to have his plant considerably enlarged so as to employ more cigarmakers. Albert Worch, who is now on the West Coast, is expected home by the fifteenth of June.

Henry Cleenewerck, a member of the firm of Raseman & Cleenewerck, which operates a high-class cigar store on South Burdick Street, Kalamazoo, Mich., has disposed of his interest to his brother, Dis Cleenewerck. The firm name will be unchanged. Mott Daniels and Louis Raseman will conduct the store.

L. J. Deming has opened a cigar store in the Eoff Block, Lapeer, Mich., and will handle confectionery in connection with the same.

In connection with "Made-in-Menominee" week held last week in Menominee, Mich., the Fisher Box Company, manufacturers of cigar boxes, had a very interesting display of their product.

Morris H. Treusch, aged fifty-nine, and who for many years conducted a cigar factory at Monroe and Ionia Avenues, N. W., Grand Rapids, Mich., passed away on June 1st. A widow, one daughter and two sons survive him.

Edgar E. Pitts, chief clerk at the Library Park Hotel, Detroit, left June 1st for Los Angeles, where he went as a Detroit delegate to the National Greeters' Convention, which comprises the clerks of hotels. Mr. Pitts is well known among the cigar men, as in addition to his duties at the Library Park as clerk he also attends to the cigar department.

Workmen have completed the work of redecorating the ceiling and side walls of the Post Tavern Cigar Store at Battle Creek, Mich. The paintings and other beautiful decorations of the cigar store were taken down while new fixtures were installed for the cigars. The Tavern now has one of the prettiest cigar stores in the state.

A. S. Hoag, who conducts a cigar store in the Valentine Building, has been granted the cigar privileges at the Hotel Madison, corner of Madison and Ontario Streets, Toledo, O.

Bert Johnson, who owns the cigar stand at the G. & R. McMillan store in Detroit, has issued a very attractive advertising card, 9 by 6 inches in size. It is in two colors, orange and black, and shows a crowded section at a ball game. In the lower right-hand corner is a caricature of Mr. Johnson in a baseball suit, holding a cigar as if ready to bat the ball. In the upper left-hand corner it reads "Bert Johnson—now Walter." Hundreds of these cards have been mailed to friends and prospective customers.

The Harry W. Watson Company, wholesalers and retailers, make the following announcements: They have purchased the cigar stand at the Hotel Burdick in Kalamazoo, Mich., and will also push the new fifteen-cent size package of "Cado" cigarettes at all of their stores and stands, which number about nineteen, including those in Detroit, Flint, Kalamazoo and Lansing. At the last salesmen's meeting of the Watson force the guest of the event was Victor Thorsch, of the T. J. Dunn Company, manufacturers of the "New Bachelor" cigar.

The Lillies Cigar Company have landed an order for a million "La Azora" cigars from an Eastern grocery company, which will feature this brand among its trade. It is reputed to be the largest single order ever given. The deal was made through Sam T. Goldberg, president of the Lillies Cigar Company, while East a few weeks ago.

Al Korn, of S. H. Furgatch & Company; Marcelina Perez, of Marcelina Perez & Company; Frank Rowland, of Lopez Hermanos Company; Ed Klein, of John W. Merriam Company, and H. Anton Bock were among the leading cigar salesmen through here recently.

Of the leaf tobacco men were: Billy Levison, Milton Samuels, Sandford Goldberg, Jack Jacoby, Howard Kinney, Harry Nathan and Jules Marquezee.

E. Rosenwald & Brother have established permanent offices in Detroit at 507 Elks Temple Building, which is in charge of Alfred W. Penner, who formerly traveled this territory, making his home in Philadelphia.

Bert Johnson will take in the Board of Commerce boat cruise to Duluth, which starts on the eighteenth of June and lasts until the twenty-second.

Leander Harris, of E. M. Harris & Company, Detroit, is very busy these days getting new ideas and planning his new store, which will be in the Whitney Arcade. It is going to surpass anything in Detroit if Mr. Harris' plans are carried out.

M. A. LaFond & Company have been giving away free of charge a large picture in colors with every purchase of one dollar or over as a stimulant to trade.

The sale of the "Robert Burns" cigar is holding up and in fact increasing every day, according to the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Store at Jefferson and Woodward Avenues, which is owned by Best & Russell.

Whew! but this has been a hot week; temperature going as high as 100. Fortunately there is an occasional cool breeze off the Detroit River. Funny how the warm weather always increases the sale of cigarettes.

AL U. THORNBURG.

Deterioration in Crimean Tobacco

According to a recent report from Consul John H. Grout, at Odessa, Russia, some of the best varieties of Crimean tobacco have deteriorated. He says:

"Some good varieties of tobacco are produced in the Crimea; but exhaustion of the soil and insufficiency of manure are causing both a reduction and a deterioration in the crop. Mineral fertilizers are being tried but have not yet had time to show their respective values. It is stated that results from these fertilizers will remain small unless there is at the same time abundant irrigation. Some of the best varieties of Crimean tobacco have degenerated and are being replaced by fresh varieties from Turkey. Russian cigarette tobacco has lately found favor in the United States, although in 1913 there was a falling off in shipments."

New Firm Buys Stand in Billings

J. W. Hartman and Fred Polhemus, of Billings, Mont., have recently purchased the cigar store of Roloff & Carroll, at 14 Broadway, and will conduct it under the firm name of Polhemus & Hartman. Both men are new in Billings, Mr. Polhemus having come from Wyoming, having lived at Cheyenne and in the Big Horn basin. Mr. Hartman is on leave of absence from New York, where he has been employed as assistant passenger yardmaster by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

NEW ANTI-SMOKING ORDINANCE FOR ZION CITY

Liable to Fine if Smoke Goes Within Three Feet of Face of Any Person—Can't Even Empty Pipe or Throw Away Butts—Against Law to Smoke in Any Public Building

VOLIVA, czar of Zion City, has had a new anti-smoking law passed providing a fine for any person who gives forth smoke which subsequently comes within three feet of the face of any person.

Unless smokers are able to control the smoke which leaves their mouths or nostrils in Zion City, they are apt to find smoking expensive. Most of the people do not smoke in Zion. Those who do have studied the air currents closely.

Section 1 prohibits the use of tobacco in any public conveyance, such as a bus, hack, or any vehicle carrying passengers. Section 2 declares it unlawful to smoke tobacco in a lighted pipe, cigar or cigarette, in any hotel, lodging house, rooming house, depot, restaurant, post office, or any other building frequented by the public. The other sections prohibit the use of tobacco, in crowds, in stables, barns, etc., near oils, in lumber yards. That it is unlawful for a smoker to stand less than three of any wooden buildings, within the City of Zion.

Section 9 declares it a public nuisance for any person to throw, drop, or in any way deposit on any public sidewalk, or on the floor or entrance to any public place, any tobacco from the mouth, or the contents of any previously lighted pipe, or the stub of any cigar or cigarette that has previously been lighted, or used in the mouth of any person.

Section 12 says it shall constitute a public nuisance for any person to blow the smoke from any lighted cigar, cigarette, or pipe, in the face of any person, and within a distance or three feet of the face of any person. Sections 15 and 16 warn smokers not to loaf near public buildings, and prohibit the use of tobacco anywhere within the City of Zion by any person under the age of twenty-one. That persons are not allowed to sell, give or buy for, or in any way furnish tobacco in any form to minors.

Section 19 declares that a violation of any of the provisions in the ordinance is declared a public nuisance, that the continuation of the same is declared to be a continuing nuisance, and that offenders are hereby declared to be guilty of continuing a public nuisance.

The penalty for violation of the above ordinance, or any of its sections is fixed at $10, or not more than $50 for each offense.

Blind Tobacconist Candidate for Illinois Legislature

George Liggett, the blind tobacconist of Quincy, Ill., has authorized the press to announce his candidacy for the state legislature, subject to the decision of the state primaries to be held September 9th.

Mr. Liggett was a candidate for the position two years ago and was defeated by only a slight margin. While Mr. Liggett is blind, his knowledge of the law is said to be unusual, and it is the opinion of many that he will capture the nomination and win this time.

Drawback on Tobacco

A decree of the Khedive of Egypt dated March 28, 1914, provides for a drawback on tobacco exported in the form of cigarettes, at the rate of £E. 0.125 per kilo ($0.28 per pound), in place of £E. 0.100 per kilo ($0.22 per pound), of tobacco contained in the cigarettes.

"LEAF GROWN IN THE VUELTA ABAJO DISTRICT" ON SEAL TO PREVENT CUBAN LEAF FRAUDS

New Co-operative Association to Market District's Leaf—Expected to Correct Many Abuses—Cuban Law to Protect Stamp to Guarantee Origin of Leaf

TAMPA, FLA., June 10, 1914.

THE latest thing in Cuba is an organization to guarantee the origin of leaf tobacco. If the plans work out properly, hereafter you will get Vuelta Abajo when you pay Vuelta Abajo prices, or somebody will go to jail for fraud.

Martin Herrera, of Havana, is in this city in the interests of such an organization of the growers of the Vuelta Abajo district. If the organization succeeds it is anticipated that it will make many important reforms in the distribution of the products of the district.

The organization, says Mr. Herrera, is a co-operative one to attend to the marketing of the leaf of the Vuelta Abajo district, and its membership now includes more than two hundred growers. This association also controls the marketing of more than 50 per cent. of the leaf sold from the Vuelta Abajo district, and its power is steadily increasing.

Heretofore abuses have grown up over claims of tobacco growers living outside of the district that their tobacco was entitled to be known as Vuelta Abajo. This claim has been disputed and there has been considerable contention, while much tobacco that was not really Vuelta Abajo has been put out as such, to the detriment of growers handling the real article.

All this it is expected will be stopped by the new organization. The association has adopted a stamp which is protected under the laws of Cuba which will be used on all of their tobacco by which buyers will be able to know that they are getting the real thing and not an imitation.

The stamp will show the name of the grower, the city near which he lives, the total number of bales he grows and will be signed by the alcalde of his district so that it will bear the stamp of authenticity. Bales of tobacco that are not able to show the stamp of the association will thus find it necessary to prove just where they hail from in order to make good claims to Vuelta Abajo quality.

Mr. Herrera is well known in this city. He had much to do with the removal of many factories from Key West to West Tampa and has lived in Tampa at various periods. He is a grower himself. He had not been here in more than ten years and was greatly surprised at the growth of the city. With Cuban Consul Ybor he called on the mayor and many business men today. He will be here for several days and expects to name a representative of the organization before he returns.

PERFECTO.

To Cut Down Time to Manila

Announcement has been made that the Canadian Pacific Railway will extend its steamship service to the Philippines and that the "Empress of Russia" will make Manila a port of call beginning June 15, 1914. The fastest schedule hitherto from American ports to Manila has been twenty-eight days, which the Canadian Pacific with its fast boats from Vancouver will cut down to seventeen days. This service has been inaugurated to bring Canada into closer commercial relations with the important Philippine markets.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

RECEIPTS from the country are still small, as the leaf is still undergoing the fermentation in the piles, and also on account of too high figures asked by the vegueros. This year our leaf dealers and packers are taking matters very quietly, as business in the United States is not active, and most of those manufacturers have enough stocks on hand. The only noteworthy exception is to be found in the call for Partido wrappers, as they are not plentiful this year, particularly the kinds free from spots, and for this reason our packers are at work to satisfy this demand. However, the latter are principally paying attention only to the bundles of wrappers, and leaving the bundles of fillers on the hands of the vegueros, at least for the present. As there will be enough Vuelta Abajo fillers, which naturally have the preference over the Partido styles, the latter ought to be very low in price to find takers. It is too early to say much about the Remedios crop, as we ought to wait until the leaf has emerged from the fermentation in the piles, although we have heard it said that there will be plenty of manchado styles, as well as pole sweated leaf, that might only be fit for export at low figures.

Our leaf market has been rather quiet during the past two weeks, as there were only very few Northern buyers in town, although the low prices have attracted the attention of a few commission merchants, who have operated for their clients in the heavy styles of Remedios, Semi Vuelta and Vuelta Abajo. Some Partido resagos of the new crop have readily found buyers at good figures, being higher in price than last year. Vuelta Abajo, of last and this year's crop, fit for our cigarette manufacturers, were moderately dealt in. Business for Europe was restricted to trial shipments, and the demand for South America did not show any animation so far.

Sales during the two weeks only totaled 4678 bales, or which divided represented: Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, 2139 bales; Partido, 625, perhaps evenly split up between the old and new crop, and Remedios, 1914 bales.

Buyers were: Americans and commission houses for their account, 2885; exporters to Europe and north coast of Africa, 238; shippers to South America, 414, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1141 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the two weeks from May 18 to May 31, 1914, totaled 4271 bales, which were distributed to the following ports, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 3534; to Bremen, 38; to London, England, 8; to Lisbon, 12; to Oran and Algiers, 100; to Buenos Aires, 502; to Montevideo, 52, and to Melbourne, Australia, 25 bales.

Receipts of Leaf Tobacco From the Country.

	From May 15 to May 28, 1914.		Since January 1, 1914.

Returned—Eustaquio Alonso, the president of the "Por Larrañaga" factory.

Departures—To New York: Mr. and Mrs. S. Ruppin, Alfredo Selgas, Maximilian Stern, Felipe Rodriguez and Antonio Allones.

To Jacksonville: Agustin Solla.
To Philadelphia: Felix Eckerson.
To Newark: Charles Goldberg.
To Bremen: Heinrich Uhmeier.
To Spain: Ramon Cifuentes.
To Tampa: Manuel Garcia.

Cigars.

Business in our cigar factories is always dull during the months of May, June and July, but this year it seems that we are worse off than ever, and the United States above all appears to be as dull, as if there was an acute panic, and they are leading all other countries in the lesser consumption of our cigars, although with a very few exceptions all of our principal consuming countries have materially restricted their importations of our cigars. Further details can be seen by the subjoined figures of our exports of cigars from the port of Havana, and as per our official custom house returns during the month of May and the comparison with last year. These figures speak for themselves and give a graphic illustration of the bad state of affairs in our cigar industry.

Exports from May 1 to May 31, 1913,	13,336,714 cigars
Exports from May 1 to May 31, 1914,	11,994,798 "
Decrease during the month of May, 1914,	1,341,916 "

United States	1,490,347 cigars
Canada	502,155 "
Argentine Republic	293,825 "
Chile	243,264 "
British West Indies	25,750 "
Uruguay	21,000 "
France	17,275 "

The following seven countries show increases during the same period:

Spain	475,498 cigars
Germany	361,257 "
Australia	135,785 "
Great Britain and Ireland	107,845 "
Canary Islands	87,695 "
Russia	55,300 "

The total exports during the first five months of this year now compare as follows with the previous year, viz.:

From January 1 to May 31, 1913,	72,693,306 cigars
From January 1 to May 31, 1914,	67,205,646 "
Decrease during the first five months of 1914	5,487,660 "

United States	3,287,706 cigars
Great Britain and Ireland	2,302,427 "
Chile	926,081 "
Argentine Republic	923,224 "
Canada	910,374 "
Total decreases	8,349,812 "

Spain	2,339,877 cigars
Australia	321,677 "
Germany	291,790 "
France	195,338 "

Notwithstanding the hard times Romeo y Julieta remains at the top of our factories that is working best in these dull times.

Partagas also has received a collection of orders from all parts of the globe, which, although individually calling only for small quantities, nevertheless sum up to a respectable total, so that the factory can continue to work as heretofore.

La Corona and Cabañas, of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., are doing well, but the other factories are suffering from the hard times.

Castañeda is working with the same force; in fact, for some special sizes had to seat a few more cigarmakers.

H. Upmann, Por Larrañaga, Sol, Eden, La Flor de José Otero, Flor del Eunar, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia and La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez are all forced to work with reduced forces, owing to the lesser amount of orders on hand.

Leaf Tobacco and Other Notes of Interest.

The firm of Gutierrez & Diehl has been dissolved, as per circular issued last month, from the first of May a. c. Hermann Diehl having withdrawn, the style of the new firm, as a successor to the old one, is: "Miguel Gutierrez e Hijo." The two partners are Miguel Gutierrez, Sr., and Miguel Gutierrez, Jr., and José Velasco has received the power of attorney. The firm continues at 53 Estrella Street.

The firm of Nuñez & Company has changed its style, by the admission to partnership of Hermann Diehl, and henceforth is called "Nuñez, Diehl & Company," the three partners being General Emilio Nuñez, Hermann Diehl and Helmrich Struckmann, and will continue as heretofore at 81 Reina Avenue.

The Bremen firm of Lindewirth, Uhmeier & Spiegel has opened a branch house here at 102 Amistad Street, under the style of W. Armbrecht & Company, and in which Mr. Ernst Horn is actively interested. The latter is well known here through a number of years' residence, as well as in the United States, and the firm will do a general leaf tobacco business, buying in the country and exporting to all markets of the world.

Don Ramon Cifuentes finally sailed on the 24th ulto. by the German steamer "Neckar" for Spain, with the object of bringing back his family to our island.

Gonzalez & Benitez closed several transactions, amounting to 1000 bales of old Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and Remedios, during the last two weeks.

Don Felipe Rodriguez, who had only recently returned from New York, received a cable from New York on the 30th ulto. that Mrs. Rodriguez had an attack of appendicitis and was to be operated upon. Naturally he left at once by the Key West boat, and arrived at New York on the 1st inst. Fortunately the operation was successful, and as by a cable received from him Mrs. Rodriguez was doing well since the operation.

S. Ruppin stated to us that he came here only to look over his stocks and perhaps to get posted also on the new crop.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, the president of the "Por Larrañaga" factory, stated to us that, while he did not bring many orders along because this was not the time to get orders from the United States, he was nevertheless pleased to have shaken hands with their customers, and that he had received very good impressions about the future.

Albert W. Kaffenburgh went at once after his arrival here to the country to post himself about the new crop, and it is said that he has commenced buying in the Santa Clara province.

José G. Perez, a son of Don Marcelino Perez, the well known manufacturer of the "Tuval" brand in New York, has come with the idea of opening a house here for Morris Rosenberg Company, of New York, and will attend to the making of escogidas or buying of leaf from the vegueros.

To illustrate the losses of some of our leaf dealers, we simply beg to cite the following fact, as related by a broker here. The latter offered to a leaf dealer $54 in the month of December last for several vegas, but the seller would not budge from his final figures of $56 per qq. In the month of February the broker made an offer of $48 for the same vegas, and again the seller refused to come down lower than $50, until finally he accepted $45 last month. Figuring the shrinkage in weight, storage, fire insurance and interest on the capital, the broker calculated the loss to the seller of $15 per bale. This shows that not everything that glitters is gold.

Shippers above 200 bales of leaf tobacco exported from the port of Havana as per our official custom house figures during the last two weeks were:

Leslie Pantin	832 bales
Virgilio Suarez	430 "
Sidney Rothschild	359 "
Maximilian Stern	337 "
J. Bernheim & Son	323 "
Bridat & Company	284 "
Diego Montero	242 "
Perez, Capin & Company	220 "
J. F. Bernides & Company	207 "

ORETANIV.

Herman H. Hoffman, prominent in tobacco circles in Cincinnati, has arranged through the Fred A. Schmidt Company for the purchase of the fee of 120 and 122 East Eighth Street, for $35,000. Mr. Hoffman takes the fee subject to a lease held by the principal tenant.

Cincinnati

Factory Orders Are Behind 1913—"Lovera Banderos" Well Displayed—Big Committee to Attend Tobacco Convention

CINCINNATI, O., June 10.

REPORTS from the factories hereabouts indicate that the orders are behind 1913, despite the fact that the local retail trade is showing improvement. The jobbers are quiet.

The showing of the Cincinnati "Reds" has helped the tobacco trade and their position in the first division has helped the attendance, which in turn has brought increased prosperity to retail tobacconists. The vacations are beginning and many men are preparing for that by laying in stores of smoking tobacco, pipes and cigars. This will mean the moving of considerable stock this month.

Michael Ibold, who manufactures cigars at Ninth Street and Central Avenue, has forsaken the city and sailed for Europe to be gone three or four months.

Charles Baswitz, representing the Gonzalez & Sanchez factory, of Jacksonville, Fla., has been in town placing some nice business on "La Flor de Gonzalez & Sanchez," "El Regardo," "La Elegida" and "La Tessina."

"Webster" cigars have been given an impetus by the visit of Mr. Ackerman, representing Y. Pendas & Alvarez, the manufacturers.

The Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Exchange will have a big representation at the Convention of the Tobacco Association of the United States, which convenes in Louisville, Ky., June 16th and 17th, and in Lexington, Ky., June 18th, 19th and 20th. President Spalding has appointed a committee to report on the members who expect to attend. The following have signified that they will make the trip: W. D. Spalding, R. C. Batte, D. P. Boone, F. F. Albers, D. C. Collins, James Ellis, J. A. Downard, W. H. Whiteman, T. H. Kirk, Sam Powers, M. L. Kirkpatrick, F. R. Toe Water, J. B. Heizer, E. W. Louden and W. G. Walker.

"Tuxedo" sales are on the increase, due no doubt to the extensive advertising campaign that has been conducted on the brand and to the free offer of a silk pin cushion with each ten-cent tin.

"Lovera Banderos," the nickel Havana smokers, are being well displayed by the trade here and reports indicate that they are making a hit here just as they have done in other cities. They are "Lovera" quality and the smokers appreciate this new brand.

"Swisecss," made by L. Newburger & Brother, are in heavy demand and the factory reports that they are still oversold on this cigar.

A. Tietig & Son are doing a big business on the new "Joy" brand and are also preparing to open up with the "Dave Warfield" cigar. A. Tietig has been preparing for a Western trip to boom the brands that are rapidly becoming popular.

IMPRIMATUR.

Wertheimer Brothers Makers of "El Dallo" Cigar

In a previous issue, in a notice referring to Bakrow Brothers, of Louisville, Ky., handling the "El Dallo" cigar, it was stated that this brand is manufactured by the Manchester Cigar Company, of Baltimore.

Of course those familiar with the "El Dallo" cigar know that this statement was in error and that "El Dallo" is made by Wertheimer Brothers, Baltimore, Md.

Rice Companies Make an Assignment

The Gustave Rice Company, dealers in wholesale tobaccos, and the Rice Cigar Box Company, both of London, Ont., have recently made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors to George Coleman. Some weeks ago the building in which these companies operated was gutted by fire and since that time the companies have been embarrassed by lack of funds and their difficulties have multiplied. The firms were organized about three years ago by Gustave Rice, of Detroit.

Hauptmann Tobacco Company Loses $601.85

Robbers opened a safe in the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Company's stables at 1829 North Broadway, St. Louis, recently, and stole $601.85. This money consisted of collections made on Saturday afternoon. On Sunday morning parties opened the safe by use of the combination and in some way opened the inner door of the cash box and made away with the money.

TOBACCO EXHIBIT AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

Astounding Aggregates Show Americans to be Great Smokers—Facts and Figures Make Interesting Reading

As tobacco growing and the manufacture of the "weed" into the various forms in which it makes its appeal to its devotees is one of the leading industries of this country, it naturally follows that the tobacco exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be correspondingly important and interesting. All that is useful and most modern in connection with the great industry will there be displayed.

There are those who insist that the use of tobacco in any form is a foolish habit, and frequently they state the case even more forcibly, but, regardless of their opinion, a mighty army of us keep right on smoking, chewing, etc., and our devotion to My Lady Nicotine increases rather than diminishes.

The figures tell the story. Consider them first from the point of view of the Federal Government's internal revenue collector, but in doing so be prepared for astounding aggregates. During the year ending June 30, 1912, there were collected taxes on 8,350,119,103 cigars of all sizes and kinds, from those made of richest and most fragrant Havana to the article manufactured of the sun-kissed and sun-blistered leaf of the lowly and unpretentious cabbage. This would give each citizen of the country the average privilege of smoking eighty-three cigars annually. During the same year there were collected taxes on 11,239,535,803 cigarettes, a gain of 15 per cent. on the previous year. The collections also included those on 30,079,482 pounds of snuff, probably mostly dispensed south of the Mason and Dixon Line, and on 393,785,146 pounds of smoking and chewing tobaccos—nearly four pounds. By the way, it may as well be mentioned right here that the manufacture of cigarettes during that year was the largest reported up to that date.

Another line of figures gives a pointer on the size and importance of the tobacco industry, this time secured from returns for 1912 to the United States Department of Agriculture, a fact that sufficiently guarantees authenticity. The total number of acres devoted to the growing of tobacco in that year was 1,225,800, which would make a strip a city block and street wide reaching from New York to Philadelphia, or from San Francisco to Sacramento. An acreage of that amount should produce some tobacco, and it does, the total for 1912 being 962,855,000 pounds, which was 7 per cent. more than the average for the preceding five years. The farm value of the crop that year was $104,063,000, the largest total value on record at that time.

But the value of the product on the farm is inconsiderable when compared with that which the manufacturer has given to it when he is done with it. For example, in 1909 the manufacturer took tobacco worth hardly one hundred million dollars on the farm, and after he had converted it into cigars, cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobaccos and snuff it was worth $416,695,000. That is, he had more than quadrupled its value, making it the eleventh in this respect among the agricultural products of this country. The United States is far and away first in the production of tobacco, more than doubling the product of its nearest competitor, British India.

Referring to the internal revenue collector again, it is rather interesting to note that the tobacco industry in 1913 paid into his hands the pleasing total of $76,789,424 to help our Uncle Samuel run his government, and during the fifty years terminating with 1913 the industry paid to him a grand total of $1,853,699,379.79. The use of tobacco may, or may not, be commendable in a private citizen, but it certainly has helped Uncle Sam to run his great emporium successfully.

The relation of the foregoing facts and statistics to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is this: It is a great industry, this that deals with tobacco—one of our greatest, indeed, and it follows that it must and will be represented at the Exposition by a fittingly great exhibit, one that shall appropriately represent the industry in all of its branches and phases. Arrangements are being made to the end that this exhibit shall be particularly noteworthy and attractive, and already it is evident that the arrangements will culminate in success. The World and his relatives, his sisters and his cousins and his aunts, will visit the tobacco and tobacco-manufacturing exhibit at the Exposition, and, whether he uses the narcotic weed in any form or does not, he will be interested in the things that will there be displayed.

Tobacco Company Best Chinese Advertiser

A large tobacco company, now considered the most successful advertiser in China, pays a great amount of attention to its advertising department. It has a large printing plant of its own, turning out large quantities of advertising matter daily. An expert on advertising is continually studying the matter and introducing new pictorial effects and methods. He finds that color plays a very important part in pleasing the Chinese. For instance, a combination of colors which would appear quite harmonious to the foreign eye will often displease the Chinese taste, while some other combination of color will please his fancy so well that he will at once exclaim his delight upon seeing it and stop to admire the beauty of it for a long time. This company has naturally many methods in its advertising. Besides printing large posters, handbills, and hangers, etc., it prints beautifully colored calendars, of which the Chinese are exceptionally fond. These are often made an article of barter or trade with the lower Chinese classes.

Recently this enterprising firm commenced issuing as souvenirs Chinese scrolls with Chinese scenery, so dear to the enlightened Chinese. With its packages of cigarettes, it presents a colored small card, called a stiffener, depicting the various modes of travel, as the sampan, junk, wheelbarrow, ricksha, and the more modern motor boat, large steamer, bicycle, motor cycle, automobile, and locomotive. A novel idea is the recent method instituted by this company of giving to the ricksha coolie a small square rug to fit the bottom section of the ricksha on which the feet rest in riding. On this rug are the Chinese characters for the name of brand of cigarette or of the company, with the company's chop. As these rugs with the chop thereon are plainly visible to the passenger riding in the ricksha, it is at once seen what an advertising value this small rug has without any further cost to the company.

Killeen Purchases Glens Falls Store

L. W. Killeen, who owns wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco stores in Amsterdam and Schenectady, recently purchased the Thorton tobacco store at the corner of Warren and Ridge Streets, Glens Falls, N. Y.

James Mitchell, of Glens Falls, who left some time ago to take charge of one of Mr. Killeen's stores in Schenectady, will return to take charge of the new stand. Mr. Mitchell is well and favorably known in the city and will undoubtedly succeed in establishing a fine trade on the high-grade lines which the store will carry.

Belfast Tobacco Manufacturers Have Busy Year

Consul Hunter Sharp, Belfast, Ireland, in a recent report to the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports," states that the tobacco manufacturers in Belfast have had a busy year. The local firms are said to have maintained their position in the Irish trade in the face of the keenest competition from England. Previously the margin of profit has been very small, but it is noteworthy that there is a slight improvement now.

During the year attempts were made to grow tobacco commercially in the south of England. In Ireland the Department of Agriculture for several years has offered substantial bounties in connection with this industry. However, neither in Ireland nor England has the attempt gone further than the experimental stage.

To Belfast the tobacco industry is of considerable importance, as it gives a large amount of employment, especially to young people. The output of manufactured tobacco in Belfast has nearly doubled during the last ten years. In 1913 the amount of leaf imported was 4493 tons, as against 5854 tons in 1912.

Organize Company to Make Cigar Vending Machines

According to reports from Lewistown, Ill., a company is about to be organized to take control of the Hughes & Lackey cigar vending machine, and to manufacture cigars as well. The plan is to manufacture a thousand vending machines and send them out filled with cigars from the home factory. It is believed that this scheme would tend to popularize a brand of cigars that could be made in Lewistown and placed in the vending machines.

A. L. Cuesta Approves Vuelta Association

IN reference to the visit to our city of Manuel Herrera in regard to the plan to unite the growers in the Vuelta Abajo district of Cuba into an association, Angel L. Cuesta, president of the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association, has given his endorsement to the plan, and states that he believes that such an association will correct many evils that are now existing in the great tobacco country.

Mr. Cuesta's endorsement of the plan is of value not only because of his official position, but because of the fact that he is a large importer of leaf. All of the manufacturers whom Mr. Herrera has seen have expressed their approval of the plan, for all realize that by its stamp it will make it possible to know just when the real Vuelta Abajo tobacco is being received.

Mr. Cuesta's letter follows:

TAMPA, FLA., June 5, 1914.

Mr. Martin Herrera y Montero.

My Dear Sir: Your credentials as representative of the Tobacco Planters' Association of Vuelta Abajo given due consideration, and, at early meeting, it will be my pleasure to place the matter fully before the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association of Tampa.

Meanwhile, may say that of the various members already approached on the subject, all have expressed themselves as thoroughly in accord with the purposes of your organization. That, whatsoever steps were undertaken to better the methods of packing, as well as marketing the Vuelta Abajo tobacco, would be of the greatest mutual interest.

To benefit so deserving a class of toilers as the tobacco growers of Vuelta Abajo is a worthy cause that must meet with the hearty approval and support of every fair-minded man connected with the industry.

No better way for doing so occurs to me than the plan outlined of having a special brand for each bale of the tobacco, constituting a positive guarantee of genuineness and preventing spurious goods being palmed off for the real article. Also market in a systematic and intelligent way.

Closer business relations between the growers and our manufacturers through your association is in every sense desirable, as mutual dependence, each upon the other, should encourage the most cordial co-operation.

Assuring, therefore, of very best wishes for the success of the undertaking, I am yours truly.

A. L. CUESTA,
President Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association.

Bohn & Sylvester, of Santa Ana, Cal., have recently secured a store in the Myers Building and will shortly open up a wholesale tobacco, cigar and candy house.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The recent rains gave the tobacco growers of Lancaster County what they had been awaiting for, and the result was a general planting of the new crop, or as much as could be set out during the last few days of the week. Plants were never in better condition, the seed beds this spring having been remarkably free from the attacks of all kinds of pests.

The new crop is considered as starting out most auspiciously. Because of the reduced acreage, it is believed this year's crop will receive more careful cultivation than any tobacco crop in recent years has received.

While trading in the local leaf market continues dull, an unusual quantity of 1909 tobacco was sold recently, though at prices actually lower than were paid the grower.

THE CAROLINAS

COLUMBIA, S. C.

This section is still without rain, although nearby sections report seasonable rains within the past few days. While this immediate section has not had a good rain within the last four weeks, crops of every kind are looking well, and with the exception of a somewhat poor stand of tobacco and what damage has been done to gardens, the farmers have not suffered any so far on account of the lack of rain. The farmers have continued to work their crops, which accounts, no doubt, to a great degree, for the way they have stood the dry weather. Cotton especially is looking well, and if the seasons continue good, a bumper crop will be made.

KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Receipts and sales of both Burley and dark tobacco continue extremely light in our market, with no material change to note in prices as compared with values that have been current for the past two or three weeks.

Since our report of last week, light rains have fallen over the major portion of the different tobacco-growing sections and a fair start has been made in transplanting the crop; the greatest headway being made in the sections that use machines for that purpose. The situation relative to the coming crop is rather critical, but not necessarily alarming.

"Flor de A. Marsans" Now on Sale

Henry Straus, of Cincinnati, has just received a new line of clear Havana cigars, called the "Flor de A. Marsans," retailing at from fifteen cents to thirty-five cents each, and made in five sizes. The brand is named for Armando Marsans, the well-known outfielder of the Cincinnati "Reds," who is now on a strike and is threatening to leave the team and return to Cuba if his demands are not met.

Libia Has Tobacco and Salt Monopoly

An Italian decree dated January 18, 1914, provides for the establishment in Libia of a Government monopoly of salt and tobacco. With certain exceptions, the Government reserves the right to extract salt from sea water, salt springs and mines, to manufacture tobacco, and to import, export and sell both salt and tobacco.

San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., June 5, 1914.

THE tendency of the California smoker is very decidedly toward cigars of lower prices than heretofore. This in a measure is due to the elimination of slot machines, etc., but the great majority of smokers, while purchasing cheaper cigars (by this is meant cigars for about ten cents apiece), demand more for their money than an average Eastern smoker to whom a ten-cent cigar is a luxury. This attitude in a degree accounts for the lack of success on the part of many Eastern brands, which, while more or less popular on the home market, meet with but indifferent success on the Coast. The California smoker is a "show-me" proposition, and it takes quality backed by continuous advertising to establish any brand of cigars on the California market.

Not so many years ago the presence of a pipe in a smoker's mouth in San Francisco was an indication either of old fogyism or of unpardonable nonchalance. Nowadays all classes of smokers are addicted to the use of the pipe. This change in the attitude of the public is due in a measure to the persistent pipe smoking by the English and Scotch officers of large insurance and maritime companies, who, despite their high social standing, were able to harmonize aristocratic bearing with the use of a pipe instead of a high priced cigar. Another not less important factor was the nation-wide advertising on the part of manufacturers, and the subsequent decreasing prejudice against the pipe. At present pipe sales in the better stores play an important part in the day's receipts, and higher priced pipes enjoy a sale, possibly, far beyond that in Eastern cities. The Western smoker, however, is just as fussy about his pipe tobacco as he is about his cigars, and for this reason, while some of the heavily advertised brands of the cheaper tobacco enjoy a good sale, it is surprising how many other high priced brands are meeting with favor. Of course, the cheap pipe and the cheap tobacco travel hand in hand, but as pipe smokers become educated they invariably drift to the better grades of tobacco. This is especially noticeable in the case of clear Havana smokers who have taken to the pipe as an out-of-door smoke.

Speaking of the present cigarette situation, Mr. Cohen, of M. A. Gunst & Company, is most emphatic in his condemnation of the "inserts." This avalanche of pennants, rugs, stickpins, pencils, holders, charms, flags and other so-called "aids" to sales, is burying the retailer so deep ,that his shelves, instead of containing cigars, are beginning to assume the appearance of a toy or charity bazaar, according to Mr. Cohen. But he is hopeful that the day will soon arrive when every smoker will be so surfeited with these free deals as to be like the proverbial worm and turn away from the something-for-nothing cigarette to the brand that carries nothing in the package but some really good smoke. That this "insert" fad is nearing its end, Mr. Cohen sees in the fact that many of the larger retailers have refused to entertain any further deals of this kind, and he predicts that soon various retail associations, not only on the Coast but all over the country, will take a firm stand against this unwarranted excess of false advertising by the manufacturers, as it goes without saying that eventually the retailer is the one who must pay for this advertising jag. Another bad feature, says Mr. Cohen, is that of children gathering coupons and hanging around cigar stands in quest of them, thus creating an undue amount of criticism against the cigar dealer, but for which he as a dealer is not responsible.

The "Gunst Building" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition will occupy the most prominent corner on "The Zone," as the Street of Amusements has been christened, and will be a Moorish structure occupying about 3500 square feet. The exterior of the building will be a reproduction of one of the palaces of "ancient Spain," depicting the typical architecture of that period, while the interior will afford a setting both novel and artistic, according to a statement issued by the Gunst Company. The interior will be devoted to a retail service counter, and handsome display cases featuring all the products handled by M. A. Gunst & Company, while a magnificent lounging room will provide accommodation and comfort to visitors from all over the world, particularly those in the cigar and tobacco lines. The building will be brilliantly illuminated at night, and will, according to the statement, in every way be worthy of the name it bears—"The House of Staples."

The Oliver Cigar Company, 409 Battery Street, a San Francisco concern, has been in business for several months with a line of very high grade Manila cigars, according to O. E. Barrant, of that concern. The "Caba Rita" cigar, retailing from two for five cents up to twenty-five cents each, has made a big success with the Western smoker. Mr. Barrant asserts that, contrary to the opinion of a large portion of the trade, high grade Manilas will sell and repeat and will build up a nice business for the retailer if he will get and sell fresh goods. The territory from Denver to Chicago is being gradually opened up for Manilas. The Manila cigarettes have not been as yet successful, and it is very problematic, according to Mr. Barrant, if they will ever catch on, on account of too vast difference between this and the one the American smoker is used to. However, Manila cigarettes have been used for many years in the Orient and in Europe, so that after all it is not entirely impossible that they might take. The Oliver Cigar Company will exhibit its goods in the Philippine section of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and the Oliver people hope to be as successful in 1915 as they were last February during the annual fair in Manila, when in competition with every factory in the islands they carried the first and second prizes.

Bauer Hess, 844 Market Street, enjoys the reputation of being the most popular cigar man in San Francisco. Mr. Hess has been for many years traveling salesman in Ehrman Brothers employ, and if there is a cigar firm or a cigar man Mr. Hess does not know, they are surely not worth seeing. Most of the traveling cigar men visit the cigar stand opposite the emporium, and Mr. Hess is a real store of information regarding the doings in the San Francisco tobacco world. With him the "Standard" and "Imperial" sizes of the "Optimo" are the best sellers.

Bert Bercovich, who a few weeks ago sold out his Oakland cigar stores, announces very emphatically that he is rather tired but by no means retired. At present, however, he has decided to take it easy and just watch others working. But one beautiful morning he may get a notion of returning to his old cigar trade, and he would doubtless follow the inspiration.

STOPS REFUND ON UNSALABLE CIGARS

Harrison Revokes Forbes' Order Relating to Tobacco Internal Revenue—After July 1st Regulations of Internal Revenue Department Must be Followed.

MANILA, P. I.,

There will be no refund of United States revenue tax on stamps sold after July 1st for cigars returned as unsalable. This decision was arrived at by Governor General Francis Burton Harrison after an inquiry from the Washington authorities asking whether such refund was allowed. In reply to the inquiry the governor general cabled to the insular bureau Saturday morning:

"Referring to telegram from your office the 20th ultimo, will refund United States internal revenue tax represented by stamps sold prior to July 1, 1914. After that time the regulations of the United States commissioner of internal revenue will be strictly followed."

After the passage of the Payne bill in 1909, which resulted in increased shipments of cigars from the Philippines to the United States, a large quantity of the cigars thus exported were returned in a moldy and worm-eaten condition and the shippers here, who were obliged to take them back, demanded the refund of the internal revenue tax paid on the presentation of the stamps taken from the boxes. Mr. Cromwell, who at that time was the collector here, refused to refund the tax, holding that there could be no refund on cigars that had left the factory. The local shippers took the matter up with Governor General W. Cameron Forbes and the latter ordered that the tax be refunded.

Prior to Governor General Forbes' action the Washington authorities were appealed to and the latter replied that they had no jurisdiction; that local conditions should govern. Collector Cromwell decided that a refund could not be lawfully allowed as the regulations here were the same as the Washington regulations. However, under the instructions issued by the governor general the refund on unsalable cigars has been allowed until now.—Manila Bulletin.

Peter Schlicher's Sons Take Over Business

The cigar and stogie factory and business at Marietta, O., of the late Peter Schlicher, has recently been taken over by his sons and is now known as the Peter Schlicher Cigar Company.

Carl P. Schlicher, who has been in Oklahoma for a number of years, has returned to Marietta and will assume charge of the factory. The new company will cater to the wholesale trade exclusively. As the Schlicher boys have been raised in the cigar and stogie business there is no doubt but what they will be able to continue the company with success.

Choice Smokes Stolen from Woodmont Store

Paul Kehoe, who keeps a first-class cigar store in Hawley Avenue, Woodmont, Conn., was recently visited by burglars who also appreciated the quality of Mr. Kehoe's goods. The Sher-iff of "this here caounty" claims that he is on the track of the connoisseurs who made away with cigars, cigarettes and pipes which Mr. Kehoe inventories at about $250. Meanwhile Mr. Kehoe is hoping in his most hopeful manner that the duly sworn sheriff will do his duty and pinch the robbers before they succumb to cancers brought on by too much smoking.

The only thing that was undisturbed in the shop was the money in the cash register. The robbers did not take the coin as Mr. Kehoe attends to that formality when he closes for the night. The looters had a taste for high-grade cigarettes and made away with about $100 worth that retailed for twenty cents the box and up. They smoked only the best cigars while looting, as the butts on the floor testified; they took only the best, as the depleted clear Havana stock shows. Then they had a failing for pipes, too, and took along about two dozen of the finest as souvenirs of Mr. Kehoe's fine store.

Benson Cigar Store Sold

Charles E. Simms, who owns the cigar stand in the Phillips Hotel, Dayton, O., has purchased the Benson cigar store at 32 South Main Street, and will operate both stands in the future.

Mr. Simms has conducted the cigar stand in the Phillips house for twenty-five years and has a large and valued experience in the cigar business and is favorably known to every tobacco user. It will be gratifying to his many friends to know that he is establishing himself on Main Street, in one of the best locations in the city. Benson will devote his entire attention to his jobbing business, which has outgrown his present quarters and has forced him to give up the retail end of the business.

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

Not until you stock up on this cigar in the right way and push it by "putting your shoulder to the wheel", will you realize to the full what a prolific source of profit it is.

PITTSBURGH RETAILERS ENRAGED BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S TRICK

Fifty-two Retail Tobacconists Caught in Net—"Man-Boy" Used as "Stool-Pigeon"—Detective Dupes Clerks and Gets Names—Three Women Offenders' Names Withheld

FIFTY-TWO retail tobacconists, drug clerks and three women were taken into custody yesterday on the charge of selling cigarettes and tobacco to minors, in one of the most spectacular and carefully planned raids that has ever been "put across" by a district attorney in this city. Tobacconists qualify the act as one of the most outrageous proceedings ever perpetrated in Pittsburgh in the name of the law.

District Attorney R. H. Jackson, who has come in for a tremendous "panning" at the hands of several of the city newspapers, secured a man-sized boy for a decoy and sent him around to the different stores to secure evidence. The decoy was trailed by two detectives and when it was difficult to get the names of the persons making the sale, one of the detectives would palm himself off on the unsuspecting clerk as a razor salesman, and under the promise of helping him increase his salary by boosting the sale of these razors would secure the name and address.

The district attorney tricked the dealers by sending out a man-sized boy six feet tall and weighing about 160 pounds, to buy cigarettes.

Upon the dealers selling goods to this full-sized imitation of a young man of twenty-eight years, they were promptly arrested by sleuths trailing in the wake of the decoy.

Many of the arrested dealers operated stands in the best known portions of the city and try their best to observe all the law's requirements for selling to the public.

They have found it difficult enough to prevent infractions by the efforts of boys and youths not permitted to buy cigars, cigarettes or tobacco, without the representatives of the same law plotting to have it broken, by tricking honest dealers into making inconsequential sales to a carefully selected boy, whom few could distinguish from a "regular" man.

An example of the ignorance of the district attorney's office in making the arrests appeared in the action of the law's minions in apprehending and detaining dealers in several instances who, because they were the only salesmen at work, were forced to close their places of business until they could make arrangements not to be molested further.

In one such case, a well-known store, established by one of the most representative and prominent business men of Pittsburgh, was closed three hours, resulting in considerable loss of money to the merchant and a great amount of inconvenience to customers. The clerk, who was deceived into making the sale to the imitation-man decoy of the district attorney's office, was the only salesman in the store at the time.

TOBACCO GROWERS IN DESPAIR APPEAL TO CONGRESS FOR RELIEF

Farmers Want Government to Handle Their Tobacco Crops—Ask Investigation of Alleged Foreign Combination to Depress Prices—Speed Urged to Help Present Conditions

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25, 1914.

ONE of the most remarkable requests in the history of American commercial affairs occurred yesterday, at the meeting of the special congressional commission headed by Senator Thomas S. Martin, of Virginia, to investigate the alleged combination on the part of European buyers to depress the prices for American tobacco.

The initiated are well aware that for several years the tobacco planters of Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky, as well as other Southern States, who grow tobacco specially adaptable for chewing and pipe smoking purposes have labored under very peculiar conditions in the disposal of their crops. A large percentage of the annual crop finds its way to foreign markets and in a number of cases, notably countries like Italy, Austria, France and Turkey, where the government has a tobacco monopoly, the "Regie" so called is a large purchaser of American tobacco, so that the number of customers who take thousands of bales for European consumption, is very small, although their purchases are tremendous.

The American growers have noted with alarm for some time, an apparent unanimity of action on the part of these foreign buyers, as far as the prices of tobacco were concerned, and a disposition on the part of the foreigners to make a price for themselves or one and all refuse to buy.

As these buyers were in reality representatives of foreign governments who were on friendly terms with the United States, the tobacco growers made it an international issue and appealed to Congress for relief. A commission was appointed, headed by Senator Martin, himself a Virginian, and the whole situation has been carefully investigated. Naturally nothing of a definite nature has yet been made public, but yesterday the commission invited the growers to come before them and suggest some methods which they believed would prove efficacious.

This action on the part of the commission, while apparently quite regular and necessary, seemed to stir the growers to desperation. They want action, not investigation, and to that end begged the commission to get busy and take over the disposition of their crops as a government job. A suggestion was made that a United States commissioner be sent abroad and be empowered to deal with tobacco buyers as well as governments who control a tobacco monopoly, and the belief is that such a commissioner, coming from the United States, could exact a fair price for American tobacco where others could not demand it.

The growers admit that they have planned and tried every possible means to get a fair price for their tobacco, and that their efforts have been futile. They have undoubtedly made a fair presentation of their case, for they are now willing to surrender their individuality as growers and business men into the hands of the United States Government and like Poor Lo of the Western Plains, look to the Great White Father for relief.

CAPITOL.

Detroit Ranks as Third Cigar City

DETROIT, MICH.

DETROIT is one of the principal tobacco manufacturing cities of the country. It ranks third in the production of cigars, which averages about 1,000,000 a day, and in all of the branches of the tobacco industry about 8,000 men and women are employed.

During 1913 the factories of this city made more than 300,000,000 cigars and 27,500,000 pounds of smoking and chewing tobacco. Both the cigars and tobaccos have a fine reputation in all parts of the country, shipments being made from here to every State and Territory.

The manufacture of tobacco in Detroit is one of the pioneer industries in which the late Mayor M. I. Mills, late Governor John J. Bagley and the late Daniel Scotten were pioneers. Each started in a modest way and built up great establishments and fortunes through tobaccos and cigars. Detroit has the honor of being the home of the first factory for the production of high-grade cigars west of New York City.

More Than Four Hundred Factories

In the First District, which includes a few outside of the city, there are upwards of four hundred cigar factories and four big tobacco factories. The cigar factories run all the way from the small one in which the members of the household are employed to the modern buildings in which as many as 1,600 men and women work at the trade. Some of the small cigarmakers also have a license as tobacco manufacturers, making their own scrap for the market, since that form of tobacco has become so popular among the chewers.

None of the older industries of Detroit has shown a greater growth than the manufacture of cigars. A comparatively few years ago a small sign in a stairway disclosed the fact that there was a cigar factory in the loft. There a few hands worked in old-fashioned surroundings, with little fresh air and very poor light. The modern cigar manufacturing plants are among the best lighted and ventilated buildings in the city. Even ventilating systems are used to carry off the smell of the tobacco and supply clean and pure air at frequent intervals. Where it is possible there are ceiling as well as side lights, and artificial lighting is needed only in the early and late hours of the winter months.

By midsummer all of the big cigar factories will be located in the northeastern part of the city. The help lives in this section and the first factory to establish there found it easy to take the pick of the workers because of the saving in car fare and time to them, so the others naturally saw it was to their advantage to take the same steps. The oldest of the factories is the last to move and the new building for it will be ready for occupancy next month. Upwards of 4,000 women and men walk to and from their work, living less than a mile from the factories.

Tobacco manufacturing in this city gives employment to hundreds who are not directly employed in it. For the cigarmakers there are the boxes, labels, other printing and shipping packages. For tobacco there are the caddies, cases, paper packages, tin boxes and a large amount of printing and lithographing.

One factory here is engaged in manufacturing caddies for plug tobacco with an output of 1,500 a day or 500,000 a year, and these hold from three to thirty pounds of plug. So as not to make any change in the taste of the plug a wood without flavor has to be used and the sycamore and gum wood from the South are brought here for the purpose.

It took more than 6,000,000 boxes to hold the cigars made here in the last year, the average box being the 50 size. Printers and lithographers were kept busy furnishing the trimmings and labels for the boxes. Some plants here make only shipping cases for the cigar and tobacco factories, both wood and fiber being used.

The cigar and tobacco business have been picking up since the early part of May. Telegraphic orders are being received by some of the factories, which is regarded as a good sign. Naturally the condition of the country outside of Detroit had some effect during the early months of the year, but the cigarmakers now are producing more than 1,000,000 a day and the tobacco companies report plenty of orders. One cigar factory received a single order for 1,000,000 cigars last week, which is said to be the biggest on record.

The Tobacco Crop in the Caucasus

The tobacco crop in the Caucasus in 1913 is estimated to have been between 14,000 and 15,000 tons. The quality was better and prices from 30 to 50 per cent. higher than in 1912. Prices for the Trebizond variety ranged from 14 to 26 cents a pound, and of the Samsun varieties from 20 to 50 cents a pound. The crop in Kuban Province amounted to only 4,800 tons, or about half the ordinary crop; but the quality and prices were good, the latter ranging from 6 to 17 cents a pound, or 30 to 50 per cent. higher than in 1912. The crop in the Sukhum District was about 6,000 tons, a little less than in 1912.

The greater part of the tobacco exported went to Egypt and the remainder to Germany, France, England, and the United States. Continental and Egyptian interests are purchasing tobacco for manufacture abroad.

"Sanchez y Haya," Best & Russell's Leader

"Sanchez y Haya" is the leading Havana brand of Best & Russell, the Chicago jobbers, and they are pushing the same this summer in a strong manner. Following the usual method of procedure, which is one of the peculiar features of the company, special salesmen have been sent into the various districts of the city which under other circumstances are under the control of the regular territory managers. Best & Russell, however, go on the theory that in pushing a particular cigar it is better to have salesmen on the job who can think or talk nothing else than the one cigar which they have been instructed to boom. The plan works well, and has been in use by Best & Russell for some time.

A violent fire broke out on a farm at Avelina, recently, located near Guira de Melena, Cuba, destroying two tobacco houses and 13,000 bundles of tobacco. Six thousand of the bundles were wrappers, while the remaining bundles were fillers. The cause of the fire is not known.

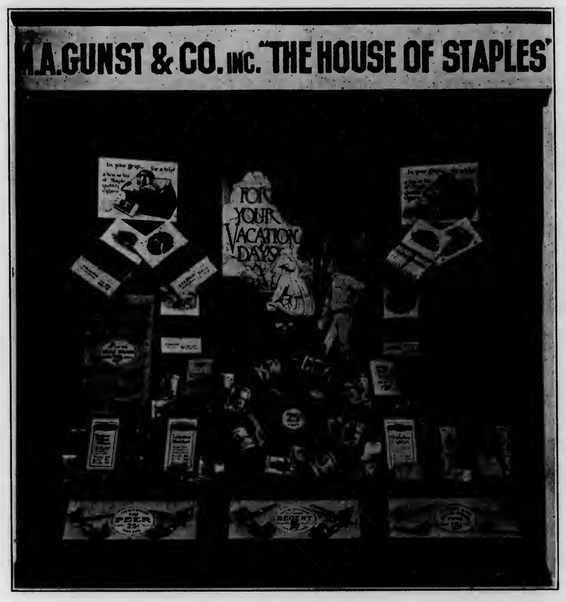
We recently came across the following, credited to our old friend, Luke McLuke: "The man who buys a cigar just because there are a lot of Spanish words and gold dingbats on the box, is the same fellow who cops out a flock of fluff, feathers and excelsior and thinks he is getting a wife!"

Vacation Days Suggest Window Displays

M. A. GUNST & COMPANY, "The House of Staples," has recently run some excellent window displays featuring smokers' supplies for vacation days. Well arranged pipe boards, smoking tobacco artistically placed, cigars in boxes and tins, and cigarettes formed the basis for this attractive exhibit.

An attractive poster with a couple of window cards that were sure to catch the eye, added to the strength of the display. As a result of this work summer business has shown a healthy improvement in the stores of "The House of Staples," and further, it is being demonstrated that vacation days can be made to pay—and pay big—instead of affording the dullest season of the year.

The display shown herewith has been well featured in several of the Gunst stores in San Francisco with very satisfactory results.



New Cigar House for Charlotte

M. H. CAGLE, W. M. Pattison and Walter Holbrooks, all experienced tobacco salesmen, have accepted positions with the Pinnix Cigar Company, the new wholesale tobacco dealers, of Charlotte, N. C., and in the future will be affiliated with this corporation.

Mr. Cagle will travel in North Carolina; Mr. Pattison in South Carolina, and Mr. Holbrooks will look after the city trade.

Messrs. Cagle and Pattison are both well known to the trade throughout the Carolinas and it is certain that they will succeed with the new company. Mr. Holbrooks is one of the most expert tobacconists in the city and the fact that he will look after the city trade will insure the new concern of a splendid share of business.

The Pinnix Cigar Company, which recently secured quarters at 26 South College Street, is moving rapidly ahead with its plans for the diligent and effective handling of this territory. The gentlemen who are behind this enterprise are able and expert, have been engaged in the business for many years, are well acquainted with conditions throughout this territory and have ample backing. That they should develop an elegant business goes without saying.

Cigarmaker Establishes New Record

According to the latest reports the world's record for the number of cigars made by hand in a single week belongs to Edward Cornish of Guthrie Centre, Iowa. This energetic individual is accredited with having turned out 3,700 cigars in a single week, beating all previous records.

The record heretofore has been held by Butler, of California, who made 3,600 in one week. While Cornish was making his record, Edward McLuen, who worked beside him, made 3,500 cigars.

McMahon, Vice-President of Reid, Murdock & Co.

JOHN McMAHON, former manager of the cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Co., of Chicago, Ill., was elected vice-president of the company at the last meeting of the board of directors. The honor comes in recognition of the years of successful service for the company which have been given by Mr. McMahon. He has been with the firm for more than thirty years and has spent most of that time in the cigar department. He started in the old days when John Wardlow was manager of the department. His rise was rapid and in time he was chosen as the manager of other departments as well as the cigar department. He is one of the best-known cigar men in the city who supply the trade out of wholesale groceries. His successor to the cigar department has not been chosen.

Woman Runs Snuff Factory.

SOUTH BEND, IND.

This city has a unique industry which, according to Peter J. Kruyer, United States Revenue Collector, was one of the reasons for bringing the Revenue Office to South Bend. The only snuff manufacturing firm in the seventy-nine counties which comprise the Seventh Revenue District is situated here. It is one of the few industries of the kind in the United States. The local snuff factory is run entirely by a woman, Mrs. A. Soderberg. Her husband, an employee of a local factory, had been a user of snuff for many years, and finally Mrs. Soderberg decided to begin its manufacture, although she despises the drug. The gross annual business of the concern today is $15,000, of which $2,000 must be paid to the Government in taxes.

C. W. Phillips & Company Sell Factory

C. W. Phillips & Company of Morgantown, W. Va., have sold their stogie factory to C. L. Phillips & Company.

C. W. Phillips will continue in the retail business and will open a second store in the near future.

In olden times an occasional head rolled in the sawdust because that unfortunate being had offended the cranky king by daring to smoke tobacco. These "Divine Right" rulers knew nothing about tobacco, but took it for granted that if it gave pleasure to the users it must be bad for them. Hence a sojourn in the Tower while the sawdust was being laid and the axe ground. Today royalty provides a majority of the orders for the finest and most expensive cigars made. How times do change!

The Divine Right of Kings

We now observe a sudden impetus to the movement for the abolition of tobacco in all its forms. One enthusiastic reformer says, "Tobacco is the worst vice of civilization." A few years ago it was being said about dancing, liquor, white slavery and half a score of other things that at that time were the objects of fanatic outbursts.

Time has laid a heavy hand on the "Divine Right" apostles, and civilization has put into practice a number of theories that have worked out most unfortunately for the king business.

Back in 1776 the ancestors of some of us fought the "Divine Right" idea to a finish, established a government under a new hypothesis, and mentioned "certain unalienable rights."*

We are furnished the most astounding information by one critic in regard to tobacco and must admit that if all this is true, there is certainly need for investigation. Read what he has anted into the reform jack-pot.

"Tobacco directly results in asthma, rheumatism, dyspepsia, nervous disorders, tuberculosis, blindness, epilepsy, cancer and insanity." We might ask, and pertinently, too, why a large percentage of fatalities from these diseases occur among non-smokers! Wars, plagues, floods, volcanic eruptions, social conditions and poor old Heredity are now relegated to the background. A new film flashes on the screen, and behold! Tobacco lazily conniving with old Charon amid the luxurious surroundings of the "Houseboat on the Styx." The prosperity of Charon y Ca. is now explained.

Some doctors do say that the "cost of high living" has considerable to do with the Styx ferriage business, but then what do doctors, who have devoted their lives to the study of diseases, know when compared with the erudite reformers?

The use of tobacco, as practiced by gentlemen, is not a matter to be regulated by religious bodies or any others for that matter, as far as we can see. The use of tobacco is abused, but so are many other more important things. We overeat, we oversleep, we overwork; we are in many things an intemperate nation. Education often changes these standards, but it seems the height of fanaticism for one man or a body of men to set themselves up as judges of the rest of creation.

We cannot see tobacco as a moral or religious issue and as long as the users of it continue to turn in some $76,000,000 annually for the privilege of smoking, we do not anticipate any sudden abolition of its growth or manufacture, even under the present administration.

The "Divine Right of Kings" idea seems to be transcending the hypothesis of our ancestors who wrote that they held certain "truths to be self-evident."

Strike in Porto Rico Ends

THE factories of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company in Porto Rico are once more open and running, and the many dealers who have been short on the products of this company are now looking forward to an early recovery.

The strike was the longest and one of the most serious that has ever menaced the industry in Porto Rico and has had an effect that will be far-reaching among the cigarmakers on the island. As a result of the situation the officials of the company are now preparing to open factories in the United States in order to manufacture some of the goods formerly made in Porto Rico. Although the Porto Rican factories are now open it is said that the full force will not be operated for a long time. The company, as a result of the strike, was forced to cancel a large number of its orders, and it will take some time for them to recover from the loss of business, and to supply the back orders that remain uncancelled.

The strike was settled by both sides making concessions. The company has allowed an increase on several sizes that will total an increased manufacturing cost of about $10,000 a year. On the other hand, the strikers conceded many points that they embodied in the original ultimatum.

AUGUSTUS HEINTZE, the erstwhile copper king, is one of the most unique characters it has ever been my good fortune to meet.

He has a special fondness for two things, litigation and good cigars, but he absolutely despises sleep and his closest friends say that if Heintze gets a fifteen-minutes' nap in a chair it quite suffices him for twenty-four hours.

Formerly he smoked nothing but "Boldt's Specials" in the way of a cigar and he smoked them constantly, but in the last few years he tells me he has switched his brand and now consumes "Bock Invincibles" by the daily score. He advanced a curious reason for his change, stating that his physician told him that his peculiar palate required that he smoke only an imported Cuban cigar to get the requisite amount of moisture in his throat. This reason gave me a laugh if nothing else.

Bob Appleton, the cigarette man, who is close to Heintze, told a neat one on him the other day which should bear repetition. It seems that on the fateful day several years ago when the crash in the Heintze fortunes culminated, Heintze and Appleton walked up Fifth Avenue together and just as they reached the Waldorf entrance a newsboy ran up to them with "extras." Heintze bought a paper and there across the top in flaring display type was the caption "Heintze Loses $17,000,000." F. Augustus thrust the paper toward Appleton, pointed at the heading and remarked: "My, Fritz is careless with his money. Let's go in and have a smile."

And they did.

There is a cigar manufacturer on Fourth Street, this city, who makes a specialty of making freak smokes for those who enjoy a more or less "practical" joke at the expense of their friends.

While it must necessarily be that he does not get in at the "killing," it sometimes happens that the perpetrator relates the story of it to the manufacturer.

My good friend McClosky is a lover of cigars, provided they are of sufficient strength to give, as he says, "that satisfying quality, mostly found in pipes."

Our mutual friend, Mr. Scull, thought it would be a rare pleasure to add a little artificial strength to some well-cured leaf by the addition of a few rubber bands.

With this thought in mind he sought the cigarmaker, and requested that he make a cigar with the strongest ingredients possible, and to make sure that the strength was there, to include a few of the said rubber bands.

In course of time the cigar was finished and Mr. Scull was ready to present a really very fine cigar. About that time Mr. McClosky was encountered in the cigarmaker's shop, having a few of his own private brand made ready for legitimate use.

With smiles and pleasantries Mr. Scull proffered the cigar, and in accordance with desires and according to custom Mr. McClosky accepted, clipped the end off and gave a few satisfactory pulls.

"That's a good cigar, Mr. Scull," said my friend, "is it your own special brand, or just one you were trying?"

"Oh, -er, yes, John; a special brand I was trying out," replied Mr. Scull, "and knowing you were a judge of good cigars, I wanted your opinion."

By this time the odor of burning waste and rubber was enough to choke the bravest fireman, but my friend continued to puff with a considerable show of pleasure, and we were at a loss to understand why the taste did not penetrate even the seasoned mucus of this inveterate smoker.

To clear my own throat and kill some of the prevailing odor I lighted a cigarette for my own use and proceeded to breathe in deep inhalations, as I felt that this was much more agreeable than the gum-soaked weed that was burning so freely close beside me.

Just once did the trace of a smile flicker over the face of the supposed victim, and that was when he remarked, "my, but that cigarette seems to be worse than the average."

So all the way down to the end did my friend smoke that atrocious cigar, with never a word or gesture that would indicate that it did not contain the best that nature could produce, and having thrown away the stump he nonchalantly seized Mr. Scull by the arm and said, "Well, after such a good cigar I feel that it is up to me to ask you what you are going to have."

One of the questions which is much discussed among the managers of high-grade cigar stores is whether or not full boxes should be kept in the case. Both methods are used, and various arguments are brought forth in support of both sides of the question.

The cigar men who support the full case viewpoint declare that an appearance of plentiness always invites trade. In this respect it might be remarked that almost without exception the various clubs of Chicago keep full cases. Some of them do not, it is true, but the most of them are strong for the full case side. Not a few of the high-class grills and restaurants also observe the same rule, while at least three of the leading downtown hotels keep full cases.

By far the larger portion of the hundred of dealers in this city, however, give customers cigars directly out of the case. In Chicago the usual custom is to throw out two or three cigars, or even more, if the customer looks like he might buy a quarter's worth.

Motor Car to Deliver "German Lover" Cigars

Charles Soby, the well-known Hartford, Conn., manufacturer of the famous "German Lover" and other brands, has recently purchased a Packard commercial automobile for use in delivering the heavy orders on his brands.

Beneath the caption "German Lover Cigars," is painted a reproduction of the label of this brand. The Union Label and the Internal Revenue Stamp are also shown. The name "Charles Soby" appears on that part of the body which protects the driver's seat, while beneath this is a list of Mr. Soby's brands, which includes "Soby's Best," "German Lover," "Our Bachelor," "Blue Ribbon," "Old Mill," "White Statue" and "Principes."

Pittsburgh

Vacations Make Trade Dull—Wanted to Sell Cigars to Ladies' Club—Afco Store Makes Display on "Camp" Cigarettes

THERE is not much improvement in business in Pittsburgh, as quite a number of people are going away on their vacations.

A. Reuben & Company, the well known cigar jobbers of this city, had a very disastrous fire this week. The first two floors of their five-story building were entirely gutted out. The loss will amount in the vicinity of $15,000. They are continuing business next door to their present location with the assistance of Siller-Narten-Barnes and L. Goldsmit Brother & Company.

The Bock-Stauffer Company claim they will have the biggest June in the history of their business owing to the big campaign they are having on several of their stogies. Mr. Beggs is now the foreman of their stogie factory and they are putting out some of the finest brands in the city.

The Elks had a very large picnic at Idlewild Park on June 23rd. Included in the Elks were the following well known Pittsburgh cigarists: C. J. Moye, U. H. Stauffer and Leo. J. Spuhler. Mr. Stauffer will leave for Denver on July 13th to attend the National Convention.

While calling on the fashionable clubs in the Schenley Farms District of this city, H. V. Merriman and L. K. Bock, of the Bock-Stauffer Company, had quite a novel experience. They were selling a new size of the "Webster" cigar, made by Y. Pendas & Alverez. Among the clubs they called on was the Twentieth Century Club. A young lady answered the door and Mr. Merriman asked to see the steward. The young lady replied that she was the secretary and wanted to know their business. Mr. Merriman told her his business and the young lady stated that they did not smoke cigars, as this was a strictly ladies club. Of course, the joke is on Mr. Merriman.

Reymer Brothers have some very nice window displays this week on Sanchez & Haya cigars and pipes.

The Afco Cigar Company had a very nice window display on "Camp" cigarettes. This cigarette is manufactured by the Camp Importation Company, of New York. Mr. Sudgen, their representative in this district, is getting quite a nice business on same.

The Siller-Narten-Barnes Company at the present time are having a large campaign on "Henos" and "Pittsburgh Scouts" stogies. These stogies are banded and should sell very readily, as they have the quality.

The cigar department of the Kaufmann-Baer Department Store have taken on the "Camel" cigarettes, and should have quite a success with this brand.

The following visitors were in town: J. H. Gollner, M. Marsh & Son, Wheeling, W. Va.; S. M. Lennox, Garcia-Pando Company, Tampa, Fla.; Stephen Herz, Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, Tampa, Fla.; L. B. McKittrick, M. Melachrino & Company, New York; A. A. Gumpert, Gumpert Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa.; Preston Herbert, American Cigar Company, New York; Mr. Weideman, Rosenthal Brothers, New York; Ben. L. Heime, L. Ash & Company, New York; C. Rosenfield, "Charles the Great" Factory; Morris J. Levi, Levi-Kafton Company, New York and Porto Rico.

Cleveland Jottings

The Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Company have just completed the purchase of the Snyder Cigar Company, located at 748 Euclid Avenue. They are already operating the stand and should make a "world beater" out of it, as this is one of the best cigar locations in the city.

Frank Keyes purchased the lease on the Snyder Cigar Company on the Cuyahoga Building stand, and has started operating at this location. Mr. Keyes formerly operated the cigar stand in the Euclid Hotel.

Fred P. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is just recuperating from a severe attack of blood poisoning. He expects to be out shortly and will be on the territory again with "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is spending his summer vacation at the Maplewood Beach Hotel.

Fred Singer, of S. Rossin & Sons, was in town the past week.

Hiram Hammer, of Corral y Wodiska Company, was also in town the past week.

Pittsburgh Retailers Enraged

The "raid" is declared a persecution instead of a prosecution. Without warning or notice of any kind, the mansize "boy" was sent around to make his purchases, following which the dealers, themselves as good citizens as these, their own employees of the district attorney's office, were brutally taken into custody. It is figured the "income" to the county in "fines" will be not less than $1500, with $50 "expenses" deducted, representing the people's money spent in "purchases."

Broadway Smoke House Featured "Charles Denby" Cigars

"Charles Denby" cigars, one of the "Big Four" of the nickel goods on the Coast, has been receiving considerable attention in Los Angeles recently. The Broadway Smoke House, at Second and Spring Streets, has been featuring this brand with remarkable success. Haas-Baruch Company have the distribution for "Charles Denby" in Los Angeles territory and are much pleased with the results that are coming in on the brand.

Tobacco Men Elect Carrington for Another Term

The annual convention of the United States Tobacco Association closed at Lexington, Ky., on June 19, with election of officers, at which T. M. Carrington, of Richmond, Va., was chosen to again head the organization. Secretary-treasurer G. N. Webb, of Winston-Salem, N. C., also was re-elected.

The last day of the convention was spent in an inspection of the local market, visits in automobiles to various country estates and a survey of the Fayette County tobacco crop. The delegates were the guests of the Burley Tobacco Society at a luncheon.

Immediately following the luncheon, the election of officers was held, after which final adjournment was taken. Officers elected besides the president and secretary-treasurer are: W. L. Petty, Lexington, first vice-president; R. P. Wilson, Wilson, N. C., second vice-president, and A. B. Eggleston, Drake's Branch, Va., third vice-president.

The directorate chosen is composed of: W. T. Read, Richmond, Va.; A. P. Thrope, Rocky Mount, N. C.; W. O. Mitchell, Oxford, N. C.; J. L. Wingo, Richmond, Va.; A. B. Carrington, Danville, Va.; S. W. Venable, Durham, N. C.; W. L. McGill, Petersburg, Va.; A. B. Patton, Darlington, S. C.; G. S. Northfleet, Winston-Salem, N. C.; J. I. Miller, Winston-Salem, N. C.; C. O. Tuck, Louisville; J. T. O'Brien, Louisville; M. H. Irvine, Lexington; H. E. Spillman, Huntington, W. Va.; A. B. Flickin, Greenville, N. C.; A. B. West, Kingston, N. C.; W. J. Rogers, Warrenton, N. C.; J. M. Edmunds, Wilson, N. C.; C. A. Walters, Virginia; M. R. Cotton, Louisville, and J. A. Clark, Central City, Va.

The nominating committee was composed of Messrs. H. E. Spillman, N. R. Cotton, A. B. Carrington, G. T. Patton, W. C. Read and W. L. Petty.

Joseph L. Herwitz Marries

Joseph L. Herwitz (a cigar manufacturer and president of the Business Men's Association of Lynn, Mass., was recently married to Miss Sadie Hermann. Mr. and Mrs. Herwitz are spending their honeymoon in the South, and upon their return will reside in Lynn.

"Charles Denby" Denver Office Closed

Announcement is received from H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., manufacturer of the noted "Charles Denby" cigar, that the Denver branch of the company has been closed, Robert E. Read, in charge there, having been recalled to the Evansville plant to assume the position of general sales manager. The closing of the Western office will not affect the company's interests in the Far West and Coast, inasmuch as this territory will still have its personal representative as in the past. Mr. Read is to supervise the whole selling staff of the factory.

Rice Tobacco Factory at Greenville Burned

Greenville suffered the most serious loss by fire in recent years when the factory and adjoining buildings of the S. E. Rice Tobacco Co. was destroyed on June 19. It is not known how the fire originated, but despite the fact that several streams of water were played on it from the beginning the buildings and contents were a complete loss.

The S. E. Rice Tobacco Co. is the successor of the E. Rice Tobacco Co. The loss is $35,000, fairly well covered with insurance. The plant will be rebuilt.

Successful Campaign on "New Bachelors"

Isidor Frolich, J. T. Dunn & Co. representative, recently closed a five weeks' campaign in Milwaukee, Wis., on his company's renowned "New Bachelor," aided by the sales staff of John Hoffman & Sons Co. Many friends were made by Mr. Frolich during his stay. He states that one of the principal factors in making the campaign a success was the cigar cutter deal, which aided materially in the reaching of the 300,000 mark, this being the number of "New Bachelors" placed.

July 1st has been the date set by Lewis & Whitaker for the opening of their cigar jobbing house, located on lower Main Street, Salt Lake City. The new firm, which is comprised of Don R. Lewis and J. G. Whitaker, will have the exclusive Western agency for "Zaphiro" cigarettes and the agency in this vicinity for "La Mega" cigars, the well-known brand of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co.

Philadelphia Notes

W. C. Saunders, of the Cortez factory, was a Philadelphia visitor this week.

Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, spent several days in the Quaker City recently.

Sig. C. Mayer has just returned from Chicago, where he landed some splendid orders on "Rey-Oma" and "Rey-Oma Ponies" cigars.

A. A. Gumpert, of the firm of Gumpert Brothers, manufacturers of "La Morena," "Full Weight" and "Pure Gold" brands, is in Atlantic City for a brief sojourn.

Morris D. Neumann, of the firm of Neumann & Mayer, has recently returned from a trip to Boston, where he states he found business good and received some fine orders for "El Tello" and others of his brands.

More sizes of the "Alona" cigar, made by the Gene-Vall Cigar Company, have been added to the stock of the cigar departments of the Acker stores. Seven sizes of "Alonas" can now be supplied.

Robert E. Lane, of "Partagas" fame, was "noticed in our midst" recently. After a glance at his order book Mr. Lane remarked that Philadelphia smokers were showing an increasing affection for "Partagas" products.

Burdsall & Adams, of Media, who manufacture the "Blanduro" cigar, report an increase in business and look for some big orders in the fall. According to their statement June has been a banner month this year, despite general conditions.

Frank Roland, representing Lopez, Hermanos & Company, Tampa, Fla., closed some attractive accounts while in Philadelphia, and the Market and Juniper Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell are featuring the "Reyes de Espana," manufactured by this firm.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, have an unusually attractive window display on their recently added line of Garcia & Vega, which is being carried in eleven sizes.

A number of delegates from the West and Middle West which attended the conventions held in this city recently, were quick to recognize an old friend and bought liberally.

Gallagher Company to Come to Philadelphia

According to a report received from Dallastown, Pa., the D. A. Gallagher Tobacco Company, of that place, will shortly transfer its activities in or near Philadelphia, where a new factory will be opened. It is also stated that E. S. Sechrist, a manufacturer of stogies, trading under the name of the "Commercial Cigar and Stogie Company," will take over the entire Dallastown plant of the Gallagher Company. Mr. Sechrist will still continue his stogie business.

Walter Chappell, Seattle, Wash., says that he is much pleased with the success which has attended his new five-cent Havana cigar, the "C. C. C.," which he has just recently placed on the market. The new brand is manufactured by P. Pohalski & Company, of New York, for Mr. Chappell, and derives its name from the initials of the Chappell Cigar Company.

Big Month for "Havana Ribbons"

BAYUK BROTHERS COMPANY are closing their books on the largest month's business ever experienced in the firm's existence on "Havana Ribbon" sales; the final figures for June showing a very material increase over the returns for any previous month.

Conditions throughout the various territories are in excellent shape, their different representatives being well pleased with business on the brand and are very optimistic for a continuance of active sales during the balance of the year.

D. S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania and New York representative, called at headquarters this week in an effort to secure more prompt shipments of "Havana Ribbons" for his trade throughout both territories.

A. G. Bucher, Iowa and Nebraska representative, has reached Lewisburg, Pa., for his summer vacation. Mr. Bucher has been phenomenally successful in securing a large increase in "Ribbon" business in his Western territory and states that he has only commenced marketing the brand.

The many friends of J. C. Revercomb, Southern representative, will be sorry to hear that he is at present in poor health and has been ordered by his physicians to Saranac Lake, N. Y., for an extended vacation.

Sanitary Cigar Paste Found

WASHINGTON, June 25.

That the cigar mold which under some conditions proves so troublesome to manufacturers is caused by the kind of paste in common use and can be prevented by preparing this paste with a solution of boric acid has now been demonstrated to the satisfaction of scientists in the United States Department of Agriculture by recent experiments. These experiments were undertaken by the Department because of the loss that the mold, which usually appears about three days or more after the cigars are finished and boxed, frequently causes manufacturers. Even if the presence of the mold is discovered before the cigars leave the factory it must be wiped off by hand—an expensive and time-consuming process.

The investigators found that the mold was most frequent on the "head" or closed end of the cigar and that the veins and elevated portions were more subject to infection than other parts of the wrapper. It was also found that warm, humid weather favored the appearance of the mold.

For a good working solution of boric acid the proper proportions are an ounce of dry acid to one and three-quarter pints of warm water. The acid should be stirred until it is thoroughly dissolved and the solution should then be used in place of water in making up the paste. Care should still be taken, however, not to smear the cigar with paste, for the boric acid has a tendency to crystallize, giving to the cigar the appearance, though not the reality, of mold.

Bernard M. Cohen, of the Lesher Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, has recently returned from a trip through the West, where he met with success in placing the firm's brands.

In order to interest the tobacco farmers at Naguilian, La Union, P. I., and vicinity, in the selection of the best seed, a tobacco improvement campaign will shortly be waged throughout La Union. According to the report received from I. C. Root, Agricultural Inspector, Bureau of Agriculture, tobacco seed is being collected from two hundred plants at Naguilian, La Union, via the bag method, it being stated that some excellent tobacco is grown in this vicinity.

Another Store for Yahn & McDonnell Chain

THE cigar store at Delaware Avenue and Market Street, which was for many years owned by A. Runge & Company, and recently purchased by Yahn & McDonnell, will be under the management of R. M. Crane.

For the past ten years, Mr. Crane has been identified with the M. J. Dalton Company, in their Fifth and Chestnut Streets store, and is well equipped to handle the high-grade cigars which compose the stock of the Yahn & McDonnell stores.

Among the more prominent brands which will find a home under the new owners will be the "Hoyo de Cuba," "San Martin & Leon," "Regreso," "Tadema," "Reyes de Espana," and other high-grade Tampa-made cigars.

Another A. Runge Store Changes Owners

The cigar store located at Delaware Avenue and Chestnut Streets, which until recently was owned and operated by A. Runge & Company, has passed into the hands of H. Kotlikoff, who makes his debut as a high-grade cigar and tobacco dealer.

The policy of the store will not be changed, and the same high-grade cigars will be carried as heretofore, in addition to a fine line of pipes, smokers' articles, etc.

Such well-known brands as "Made in Bond," of Sanchez & Haya Company, Jose Lovera, F. Lozano, Son & Company, E. Regensburg & Sons, as well as the Philadelphia-made nickel cigars from such well-known firms as Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, Bayuk Brothers, Allen R. Cressman's Sons, J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, and Bobrow Brothers.

"Chicos" in Tins Going Good

The J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, who recently tried the experiment of packing their leading nickel cigar "Chico" in tins, has met with such hearty approval from their jobbers and distributors that in future these goods will always be packed in this manner.

The package of twenty-five's has met with especial approval for vacation purposes and to smokers who desire their favorite smoke for week end and vacation trips.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Durbin Acker will leave town on July 10th to spend a few weeks at Eaglesmere, Pa. Mr. Acker expects to return to town about August 2nd.

Terry Boosts "Sanchez y Haya" Made in Bond

W. TERRY, JR., of the well-known firm of Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, distributors for the Sanchez y Haya Company, Tampa, Fla., recently spent some time among the resorts along the Jersey Coast featuring this line of "Made in Bond" cigars.

Mr. Terry states that all the former dealers which handle the product of Factory Number 1, Tampa, have duplicated, and several new accounts have been opened.

One advantage which accrues to the retailers, and which was commented upon throughout the Coast territory, is that the "Made in Bond" stamp which is affixed by the Government, guaranteeing the tobaccos to be clear Havana, has had a tendency to strengthen the brand in the minds of the consumer, and consequently a larger distribution is looked for than in any previous year.

"Reynaldo" Leader Off for Coast

W. S. Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, is en-route to the Pacific Coast, and will stop only at the larger distributing centers while away.

A splendid lot of orders were received at the Philadelphia office of this firm on Monday of this week, as the result of Mr. Luckett's efforts while in Chicago and St. Louis.

J. J. Shea Back at Office

The many friends of J. J. Shea, sales manager of Bayuk Brothers, will be gratified to learn that he is once more at his desk at Third and Spruce Streets.

He is working away on reports for the biggest month that the "Havana Ribbon" factory has ever had, and his indefatigable energy is making itself felt in every department. Mr. Shea is to be congratulated on his quick restoration to health.

"A. J. Cassatt" Orders Keep Factory Busy

Nathan Baum has just returned from a trip up-state and brought with him a well-filled order book. J. Mathews has brought to a close a very successful campaign on "Coiner" and "A. J. Cassatt" brands with W. H. Strauss, their jobber in the Johnstown territory. Mr. Mathews will conduct a similar campaign for the Smith & Keffer Company, of Harrisburg, Pa.

San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., June 20, 1914.

TO be a good salesman you do not have to be a jolly good fellow now-a-days, according to one of the best known and respected cigar merchants of San Francisco. The business is being done on such a close margin, and the jobber has to sell such big quantities of the goods to make but a little profit, that it is simply impossible to include the expense of joy-rides and lobster dinners in the estimate, and still have a fair chance to land the order. This idea of doing business on a strict business basis has been now so generally accepted that the traveling salesmen representing their houses in their allotted districts are not allowed any unreasonable extras for winning the good will and friendship of a new prospect and retain the old sympathies. The modern method of soliciting cigar business is to show the goods and to offer the fairest bargain possible. No monkey tricks and no high kick about it. It is a dead-serious money dealing.

Edward Wolf, of the E. Wolf Company, 161 California Street, who is the author of the above mentioned remark, states that business, despite the undeniable depression, is getting more solid every day, thanks, perhaps, to this general depression. Forced by circumstances the business man has to eliminate much of the traditional ballast, has to get rid of many dead heads and unnecessary expenses which could be carried on by the house as long as business was good, but have to be thrown out now. By cutting all overhead expenses, business is getting compact and strong, and there is no doubt, according to Mr. Wolf, that the cigar trade on the Coast will come out of the present crisis healthier and stronger than ever. Mr. Wolf has made arrangements with Arguellas, Lopez & Brothers to handle the "Flor de Tadema" in the Coast territory. The "Tadema" is very largely sold at Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and many other cities in the East, and its placement on the Coast in anticipation of a large influx of eastern smokers of clear Havana cigars is certainly timely. The six salesmen working for the Wolf Company in California and Nevada are sending in a fair amount of orders, especially for Manila goods, that are a specialty of this concern. "La Insular" and "La Prueba" are doing very well. The Manila cigarettes are rather slow on account of fierce underselling, but the demand is steadily increasing. Collections are still very slow, but they are also improving in the last few weeks. The business outside of the Coast territory is carried on by mail orders, the jobbers corresponding directly with the main office. On the whole business with the Wolf Company this year has been as good as any other year, only the profits were smaller.

Willard Brothers, 320 Battery, have three salesmen on the Coast and the orders from the "Espina" and "John Hampton" cigars are quite satisfactory. The company is getting ready for new business in Manila brands.

Michalitschke Brothers & Company, 237 California, report a fine business in Seidenberg's "Figaro" five-cent cigar. "Alexander Humbold" also continues very popular on the Coast, although the imitation clear Havana cigars are greatly interfering with real goods. The company has been importing Manila goods and finds the business quite profitable, especially the five-cent "L'Amicosa" and "La Perla de Oriente" in five and ten-cent sizes. Jos. Michalitschke has left for his annual vacation trip to Yosemite.

A handsome picture in four colors of the proposed House of Staples at the Panama Exposition is the leading feature of No. 10 of the "Staple News," the home organ of M. A. Gunst & Company. Articles of interest pertaining to the big fair, its features, architectural, amusement, military, naval, musical, etc., are presented briefly but in a manner that contains a wealth of information, the whole being compiled by E. A. Cohen, publicity manager of the Gunst Company, for distribution among the Gunst stores and affiliations throughout the United States.

The Bercovich Company, 30 Front, has been reincorporated with H. Bercovich and H. B. Pendleton in control. After July 1st H. Bercovich will vacate his present wholesale store and move to his store at Sacramento Street and Montgomery, where he has made some alterations for handling the supply department of the Bercovich Company retail stores. This is the same location where H. Bercovich first started in the jobbing business.

Charles H. Knubel is assuming charge of the lines of the American-West Indies Company, and the company's products from their Porto Rican factories will be pushed harder than ever. Ted Cohn, formerly connected with the company, will soon leave for New York City.

I. S. Van Dyke is now working the entire city trade for the Tillman & Bendel cigar lines. He reports an excellent sale on the "Sanchez" and "Rosadora," a nickel cigar sold in boxes of fifty and in tins of twenty-five.

M. C. Eisenschimel, the Manila representative, has resigned his position and is no longer making his headquarters with H. W. Peabody & Company.

"Smoky" Heilbrunner, of Heilbrunner & Jacobs, of Philadelphia, has been in town showing his lines to the trade.

Creditor Wants Receiver for Canoe Club

In a suit filed recently in the Superior Court at Indianapolis, Ind., by Pinkus Brothers, a receiver is asked for to take charge of the Indianapolis Canoe Club. Pinkus Brothers are cigarette manufacturers of New York and charge that the club has failed to make good on a bill of $90 for a recent consignment of cigarettes. According to the plaintiff, the club agreed to settle monthly for all cigarettes sold. It is charged that the property of the club is worth $30,000, but that there are mortgages outstanding amounting to $25,000 and that there are additional creditors to whom are due some $15,000.

Bostonian Opens Factory in Iowa

E. J. Tomlin, a cigar manufacturer from Boston, Mass., has recently opened a factory in Shenandoah, Ia., in the Bogart Block. For twenty-nine years Mr. Tomlin manufactured cigars in Boston. Not long ago he decided to locate in Shenandoah and now he has opened a cigar factory in that city.

Before coming West Mr. Tomlin purchased a good supply of the very best tobacco obtainable, both domestic tobacco from Connecticut, and imported tobacco from Sumatra and Cuba. He makes three brands of cigars, the "E. J." Perfecto at ten cents and the "Honor Bright" and "All Gold" at five cents.

Hoonan Cigar Store Has Electric Humidor

The Hoonan cigar store, of Hastings, Mich., announces that it has recently installed an electric humidor which automatically keeps the cigars and tobacco at just the right temperature. This insures the patrons that all goods sold at the store are handled and kept under the most sanitary conditions. Dust-proof, zinc-lined cases are used to contain the cigars.

The Hoonan cigar store receives all baseball scores by innings and many smokers gather at the place during the afternoon to get the latest reports on the games.

Tousley's Factory in New Location

F. H. Tousley, Oelwein, Ia., manufacturer of the "Panatella" cigar, has recently moved his factory to South Frederick Street, where he will employ eight cigarmakers in filling orders for the brand.

Mr. Tousley has recently acquired some fine leaf and will continue the high standard that he has established for the "Panatella." Orders show a nice increase in the business on this brand and Mr. Tousley has invited customers to come to the factory and satisfy themselves as to the quality and the conditions under which the cigar is made.

H. L. Judell, 225 Front, has left for a three weeks' tour of conventions—one in Columbus, O., the other in Cincinnati, O., and the third at Niagara Falls. Mr. Judell asserts that he is regaining his old vigor in attending all sorts of conventions, and he firmly believes that as long as the truly American practice of this sort of amusement will keep on he certainly will keep on with it, even if it takes the whole eternity. All his friends who know the old boy's determination are convinced that he is going to make his plan good, and wish him good luck.

H. S. Masterson has accepted a position with H. W. Peabody & Company as manager of their cigar department. He has been with the same company in New York.

Jack Hopkins, who has recently joined the local forces of Boltz, Clymer & Company, is making a splendid record on "Palencias" and "El Meritos" in his territory, comprising the Sacramento Valley, Southern California and Nevada. R. J. Boltz is due here on the 24th.

The store and factory of Hoffman & Son at Polk and California Streets were so badly damaged in a fire that destroyed the Bradbury Building that the firm had to move to their branch store at Polk and Sacramento Streets.

Mr. Hedges of Benson & Hedges, London, England, has come to the Coast to acquaint himself with the trade's requirements. Harry Adams, Coast representative of Benson & Hedges lines, is acting as pilot, coming here by way of Los Angeles and the South.

No Change in "56" Brand

THE Cado Company announces through the columns of THE TOBACCO WORLD that despite any rumor to the contrary the brand of "56" cigarettes will not be changed to another number. Our representative called at the office of the Cado Company in regard to the matter and was officially informed that no such change was contemplated and that any such rumors were without foundation.

We learned that "56" cigarettes are selling better every month and it was pointed out that any such change would simply mean that the work already accomplished on the brand would have to be done over again in order to establish the cigarette under a new number.

"56" cigarettes are placed in the leading clubs and hotels in many sections and all indications point to the brand as one of the leading sellers.

"Cortez" Cigarmakers Return to Work

KEY WEST, June 25, 1914.

A settlement having been reached yesterday between the Cortez cigar factory and its cigarmakers, who recently went on strike, the latter will return to work to-morrow; this as a result of a conference of the strikers' committee yesterday morning with Claude H. Roberts, manager of the factory, followed by a meeting of the cigarmakers in the afternoon at San Carlos, where a report of the result of the conference was given. This having proved satisfactory, return was decided upon.

The trouble arose from the fact that the cigarmakers claimed that they were obliged to make certain grades and sizes of cigars for less remuneration than was specified in the price list of 1906, which had been agreed upon by the cigar manufacturers of the city and committees of the workmen.

Colonial Cigar Store Opens

Monday marked the opening of the Colonial Cigar Store, in the Colonial Hotel Building, South George Street, York, Pa., where William H. Knaub, popularly known as Bill Knaub, has established one of the handsomest cigar stores and pool rooms in this part of Pennsylvania. Everything is of the best, from fixtures and furnishings to stock, and visitors will find much to admire. Mr. Knaub has secured the services of Grover Jacobs, of Frederick, Md., who for years was clerk for Charles H. Kline, in the same room, as his assistant.

It is a store room de luxe, for Mr. Knaub considers that the very best is none too good for the purchasing public, and he extends a hearty welcome to all his old friends as well as new ones, whether they desire to buy or not. The most modern equipment has been secured and the pool and billiard tables are the finest in the city.

Want Early Tobacco Report

WASHINGTON, June 24th.

Representatives of the Virginia division of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America today urged the Federal Commission appointed to investigate the tobacco industry in this country to make an immediate report of its findings.

D. M. Blankenship, secretary and treasurer of the Virginia division of the union, said today that unless the commission completed its investigations and suggested some form of remedial legislation soon tobacco growers of Virginia would have to quit business. He declared the cost of production was so far above the selling price that it would be impossible for the farmers to continue much longer under the present conditions.

CAPITOL.

Charles J. Castillo Forms New Connection

Charles J. Castillo, widely known in the cigar trade and formerly sales manager for the San Martin y Leon Company, has recently joined the forces of the Liborio Cigar Company and is now preparing for his fall trip.

CHARLES J. CASTILLO

Mr. Castillo calls attention to the fact that Liborio products are put up in "Individual Service Containers," which avoid the handling of the cigar by many different persons before it reaches the consumer. It likewise guards against the cigar breaking in the pocket and also guarantees a sanitary condition. A high quality of cigar is used in the manufacture of the "Liborio" brand, and this fact coupled with the advantages of the "container" has made it a favorite among critical and fastidious smokers.

Sullivan's "7-20-4" Factory Not Burned

The recent report from Manchester, N. H., that the Roger G. Sullivan factory, where the "7-20-4" cigars are manufactured, was burned in the fire which resulted in thousands of dollars worth of damage to the Varick hardware store and adjoining structures, was illfounded, inasmuch as the factory was not touched by the flames. The retail store of Mr. Sullivan, however, was slightly damaged, said damage being covered by insurance. Mr. Sullivan's retail business was in no way affected, but continued as usual.

Once again is good business reported! This time the good news comes from the William Kohlhepp Cigar Company, Louisville, Ky., through their secretary-treasurer, C. G. Smith. Mr. Smith states that business just now is very good, despite the unfavorable reports heard concerning other lines. He says that his company is well pleased with the returns on the "El Nomo," which brand was but recently placed on the market, and feels that its popularity is assured.

NEW YORK

Big Western Orders for "56" Cigarettes

THE Cado Company, Inc., manufacturers of the nationally distributed "56" and Cado brands of Turkish cigarettes, state that their business continues, despite adverse reports from many sections, to show excellent gains in the volume of sales.

Throughout the West and on the Pacific Slope "56" cigarettes have caught on in fine shape and the very best houses are featuring them with the best results.

The Blumenauer-Frank Drug Company, in Portland, Ore., have done big things with the brand and good sized repeat orders indicate that the progress is of the most desirable kind. Ehrmann Brothers, of San Francisco, are another leading house on the Coast who have made a hit with these goods.

Since the retirement of Robert Appleton from the Cado Company, as detailed elsewhere, George H. Roeschke has been elected general manager, and H. L. Drucklieb, who is vice-president, is co-operating with him in vigorously pushing the progressive policy of the company which has been so marked since its inception.

The Cado Company have recently brought out a very neat little counter rack for displaying their "Cado" brands and this is a fitting companion to the well-known "56" Silent Salesman. Dealers who are looking for a high-class addition to their cigarette stock would do well to get in touch with the Cado Company, at 26 Park Place, New York.

New Law Requires Notification of Business Sales

The attention of the retail and wholesale trade of New York State may well take notice of an act signed by Governor Glynn on April 23, 1914, entitled "An act to amend the personal law in reference to the transfer of goods in bulk." This act is known as "Chapter 567, general, all Counties," and was passed by the activities of the members of the National Credit Men's Association.

Because of this law it is now illegal to sell a store without having first notified every creditor by registered mail or in person and in the event of the failure to give such notice, the buyer becomes liable for the account. Five days before the sale is the time noted in which such notification is to be made.

There are no loop-holes to the law and it develops upon every one selling a store to acquaint every creditor of such intention, and purchasers of stores should see to it that every creditor is notified, in order to avoid trouble.

That the law is a good one is the firm belief of every manufacturer and jobber in the State, a great many of whom have suffered losses because of the inadequacy of the State laws.

A. Santaella, of A. Santaella y Ca., manufacturers of the eminent "Optimo" cigars, arrived in Tampa, June 26th, from Chicago. He left the following evening for points in Cuba, where he will devote several weeks attending to business interests.

J. F. Snyder's New Stand

JOHN F. SNYDER, who opened his new cigar stand in the Gray Company's new drug store at the southeast corner of Forty-third and Broadway last week, reports that his business has started off in excellent shape. Mr. Snyder is carrying only high-class goods, featuring on imported Havanas and the best-known clear Havana products. "Partagas" and "Por Larranagas," and John W. Merriam Company's "De Luxe" and "Baron de Kalb" brands have conspicuous places in his show cases, together with a full line of "Charles the Great," made by Salvador Rodriguez.

Mr. Snyder also operates the cigar stand in the Hotel Wallick, just across the street from his new place.

Whelan Enterprises Thrive

George J. Whelan has returned from Europe on the "Imperator" after spending several months abroad arranging the details of the formation of a new English tobacco company in which foreign interests are also involved. Mr. Whelan said that matters are not in such shape that it is possible to go into detail as to the plans of the new company.

Regarding his enterprises here Mr. Whelan said: "United Cigar Stores Company is doing a bigger business than a year ago despite the general depression on this side. The Tobacco Products Corporation has done a business so far this year 21 per cent. ahead of a year ago. The Riker & Hegeman Drug Company is also showing a satisfactory increase of business over 1913."

Successful Trip of Henry M. Duys

While we are hearing a great deal relative to the psychological depression said to be prevalent at the present time, still one should not take the matter too seriously, that is providing one is fortunate enough to be connected with the house of H. Duys & Company, the widely-known importers of Sumatra tobacco. According to report received from this firm, business is and has been excellent. They also state that they have noticed among cigar manufacturers throughout the country a gradual improvement in business.

Henry M. Duys, of the firm, has returned from Europe, following his attendance at the Amsterdam inscriptions. Mr. Duys was much pleased with his trip, stating that purchases of his house for the year thus far, have totalled almost 6000 bales of Sumatra and Java tobacco. Of this amount, Mr. Duys has to his personal credit 3000 bales, having gone his brother, John, one better, who in his combined attendance at the 1914 inscriptions, totalled but 2700 bales.

Manteso Cigar Manufacturing Company Formed

A charter was issued last week at Albany to the Manteso Cigar Manufacturing Company, of New York City, a corporation with $5000 capital, to engage in cigar manufacture. The parties interested are D. and I. Felber and N. Hochman, of 940 East 173d Street, New York. I. Felber is a cigar manufacturer at 862 First Avenue, New York.

Bob Appleton's New Alliance

DURING the past week Robert Appleton, who has been associated with the Cado Company as general manager since the organization of that concern, has notified his friends of his resignation from that company and that he had taken hold of the business of the Ess-En-Cee Company, who have been established in New York for several years, making a specialty of made-to-order cigarettes of a high grade.

Under the new arrangements, the Ess-En-Cee Company will proceed at once to place upon the market for national distribution two brands of the very choicest blended Turkish cigarettes which money and experience can produce. Their leader will be a 25-cent package, which will be called "47." These goods are packed in a jet black box decorated in silver, and the package is both unique and attractive and different from anything else on the market. At the same time they will bring out a 15-cent package, packed in a flat box, and Mr. Appleton says that the quality of these goods at the price is the only argument they will offer for their sale.

The Ess-En-Cee Company have their headquarters at No. 2 East Forty-sixth Street, New York City, and is a New York corporation with the very best financial backing.

Derby Crandal, who was one of the founders of the business and the executive head of the company, will continue in the same capacity and Mr. Appleton will devote his energies to the selling end.

Irving and "Hamlet"

Some years ago, 1899, to be exact, Henry Irving, the renowned English interpreter of Shakespeare's immortal works, while on a tour of this country, graciously extended an interview to a representative of a well-known cigar manufacturing company of New York City. During the interview Mr. Irving gave permission to the said company to use exclusively, his portrait and signature on a label to accompany a specific brand of cigars. The permission was shortly after made use of, and there and then appeared, and has since appeared, a leader in clear Havana cigars which is to be had only from a certain source. The cigar which has since become eminent and a classic in its line, as was the rendition by Mr. Irving of the character after which the brand was named. It is none other than the "Hamlet," put up in de luxe packings. John W. Merriam & Company state that the brand is to be obtained only at the "Sign of the Bulldog." Special attention is being given at this time to "Ambassadors" of this brand in Corona shape; which retail at two for a quarter.

"Bold" Perfectos, manufactured by Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, have just been taken on by the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo. This well-known Eastern brand is being introduced in that city by Charles Jewell, special representative.

Robert E. Lane, Jr., has been catching some nice orders in Rochester and Syracuse on the famous "Partagas" brand.

Annual Picnic of Schwarz-Lovera Employees

Every whit as enjoyable, we venture to predict, as those held in the past, will be the Fourth Annual Picnic and Games, to be given under the auspices of the Schwarz-Lovera Employees' Mutual Aid Society, to be held at Astoria-Schuetzen Park, Broadway and Steinway Avenue, New York City, Saturday afternoon and evening, July 18th. A very gracious invitation has been extended to the staff of the WORLD to be present, and from reports of past affairs, that of 1914 will leave nothing to be desired. The park may be reached from Queensboro Bridge North Beach car direct or from 92nd Street Ferry Broadway car direct.

Cuban Cigar Packers Strike

Word was received at the seat of government during the past week from the governor of the Province of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, that the cigar packers of the factories at Paso Real had declared a strike and that trouble was threatened. The report stated that the strikers were parading and carrying huge clubs. Refusal of an increase in pay is given as a reason for the strike. While everything has been quiet thus far, the Rural Guards have been instructed to act in the event of turbulence among the strikers.

Hirsch & Slager, located at 9 South Main Street, Memphis, Tenn., believe in keeping before the public eye, which is another form of saying that they believe in advertising. This is amply testified to, by the big "John Ruskin" van, which is in constant action throughout the city. It acts as a silent salesman and aids the company in their efforts to obtain even greater distribution for the noted "John Ruskin."

TAMPA TIPS

Ed Stachelberg Raises Monster Melon—Balbin Brothers to Make in Bond—Want National Day for Tampa-Made-Cigars—Sanchez & Haya Business Shows Increase—Cuesta-Rey Rushing New Building

TAMPA, June 27.

THE position of storekeeper in the bonded cigar factory seems to be an enviable one, according to report received from the local customs house, which states that there are on hand nearly one hundred applications, although the positions number less than forty.

Ernest Berger, of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, accompanied by Mrs. Berger, was among those who attended the recent meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy.

Edward J. Stachelberg, of Sanchez & Haya fame, is a favored mortal. Not satisfied with having reached one of the highest pinnacles of the cigar manufacturing business, he has now taken to raising watermelons, his agricultural operations being confined to the grounds of his attractive home on the Bayshore Boulevard. According to Mr. Stachelberg, he recently plucked a melon weighing sixty pounds, and personal testimony is to the effect that the wonderful weight of the fruit faded into oblivion when its lusciousness was taken into consideration. But mark you! "where a man's treasure is, there also is his heart," for when asked how it tasted, Mr. Stachelberg said almost as good as a "Sanchez & Haya" cigar, which is going some. "Why," said Mr. Stachelberg, "if that melon had been allowed to grow a few months longer, it would have been as big as an English push ball, but I had to pluck it to keep it from hiding my house."

Balbin Brothers, who manufacture the well known "Elisardo" cigar, have made application to "manufacture in bond." It is expected that the application will be acted upon in time to permit of the transfer from open to bonded factory not later than July 1st.

Manuel Garcia, active in the affairs of our Spanish colony, left here about a fortnight ago for Chicago, where pleasure is to be combined with business.

Henry Murdock, who recently returned to Tampa after a trip through Georgia and Florida for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, stated that he certainly was glad to get back, inasmuch as business was slow everywhere he went. "It is not necessary," said Henry, "to remark that I found things quite different when I returned to Tampa."

Robert Tanksley, of Liggett & Myers affiliation, came over from Jacksonville recently for the purpose of distributing "Fatima Tango" booklets throughout the city.

Claude H. Roberts, general manager of the Cortez Cigar Factory, Key West, recently arrived in this city for a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Salis.

Tampa's well-known son, James Pendas, spent several days here attending the graduation of his son Manuel from the Sacred Heart College. Mr. Pendas is engaged in the cigar business in Key West.

The Havana-American and M. Valle & Company factories are now "making in bond," G. H. Townsend having received the appointment as storekeeper for the Havana-American Company and G. R. Moore a similar position with M. Valle & Company. George B. Sparkman has succeeded to the office of storekeeper for San Martin & Leon, which position was formerly filled by W. H. Young, who has since gone to Key West.

Telegrams received here during the past week state that it may not be necessary to amputate the leg of Joaquin Lopez, who is now in the Cavadonga Hospital in Havana, where he was taken recently for treatment. Mr. Lopez, who is one of Tampa's well known cigar manufacturers, has been in bad health for some time, which finally resulted in gangrene settling in the right foot. Finding it impossible to overcome the malady, it was decided to take Mr. Lopez to Havana, where it was thought amputation would be necessary. It has since been determined to try and avoid the operation by using a method of withering the leg by means of electricity. Accompanying Mr. Lopez was Mrs. Lopez and his physician, Dr. Lorenzo Menendez, and Mrs. Menendez, of Tampa. The party was met at the steamer by Mr. Arguelles, Mr. Lopez's partner, his family and numerous friends.

The boosting work of the board of trade still goes on. Secretary Dickie states that he was recently in receipt of a request from the Clear Havana Cigar Manufacturers' Association, soliciting the aid of the board in helping it secure a stamp from the customs department that will show the difference between the cigars manufactured in the North where the team work system is used. It is stated that the cigar made by team work falls short of many of the artistic qualities of the Tampa-made product and that local manufacturers employing the true hand-made method desire that the cigars thus made shall bear indication to that effect. The request of the association was acted upon and T. M. Wier, secretary of the board, was authorized to draw resolutions relative to the feeling of the board of trade in the matter and forward the same to Washington. This was done.

The Boosters' Club of the Tampa Merchants' Association has formulated a plan whereby an effort will be made to have a day set aside when tobacconists' windows throughout the United States will be devoted to the display of Tampa-made cigars. To this end a boosters' committee, consisting of L. D. Reagin, chairman; Fred Wolf and C. J. Conrath, has been appointed and will call upon the various manufacturers to interest them in the work. This line of action is not new to Tampa, inasmuch as one of our manufacturers at certain intervals sees to it that a national display of his factory's Tampa cigars is made throughout the country during different weeks of the year. While this has proven very beneficial, still one may, without difficulty, see the vast possibilities for extending the sales of Tampa cigars, if a national effort is made to set aside a certain period when "Tampa" shall reign supreme.

Relative to a national Tampa-cigar day, Manuel Sanchez, local manager of Berriman Brothers factory, stated that he was glad the matter had been put in motion and trusted it would be carried on to completion. In this connection Mr. Sanchez said he thought that if the plan were placed under the direction of men outside the cigar industry much more would be accomplished. "If," said Mr. Sanchez, "public spirited citizens took up the work of promoting a Tampa-cigar day, it would free the minds of manufacturers of suspicion that the development of the idea is to benefit some more than others. It is a very good plan and we will help all we can.

"I believe if the committee of the boosters would get the names of the dealers throughout the country handling Tampa cigars, and make the suggestion directly to them that on a certain day 'Tampa Cigar Day' be observed, that it will be productive of the best results. The factories can follow this up by letters to their own dealers, and at the same time papers could be mailed to the dealers to indicate the true importance of the plan."

Reports received from the factory of Jose Escalante & Company state "Corina" orders are coming in continuously and that the increase in business has surpassed most sanguine expectations. Mr. Escalante is visiting in Cuba.

While Salvador Rodriguez is summering in the North the fortunes of the "Charles the Great" factory have been left in care of Mr. Rodriguez's son, Fernando W. Rodriguez.

While specifications call for completion by July 1st, it looks now as if the new addition to the factory of Cuesta, Rey & Company will not be finished by that time, although every effort is being put forth to do so. Though an addition was made to the factory a couple of years ago, which at that time it was thought would provide ample facilities for the following four or five years, the same has proven inadequate, owing to the continually increasing business of the "truly Spanish house."

Report from the factory is to the effect that the company find it utterly impossible to keep abreast of the incoming orders at the present time, owing to the lack of facilities, which while good news in one direction is a matter of handicap in another.

Friends in the trade of Sanchez & Haya will be glad to learn that the business of this company is steadily increasing, and that plans are now in the hands of the architects for an addition to the company's building at Ybor City. The new section will be 35 by 95 feet and will adjoin the western wing of the building. The enlarging of the structure will, not only provide needed facilities, but will better accommodate the workmen in the employ of the company.

Frank R. Diaz, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, manufacturers of the noted "La Mega," is in Cuba, inspecting the tobacco crops.

PERFECTO.

The first week in July will witness the opening of another modern cigar and tobacco store in Bellingham, Wash. The new concern, which will be located at 100 West Holly Street, will be conducted by Conant & Noble, who will handle a complete line of standard brands, possibly devoting some of their time to sub-jobbing.

Edgerton Notes

In order to protect itself against fire, the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company has installed a sprinkler system in its local warehouse.

Word was received here a short time since from O. R. Pomeroy, in the Kickapoo Valley, that he has finished setting out his 18-acre crop of tobacco.

Chicago

CHICAGO, June 26, 1914.

ON the whole the cigar and tobacco business in this city during the past two weeks has manifested a slight improvement. Stock of all kinds seems to be moving better. In the more humble sections of the city, where the labor situation has cleared in a marked manner during the past month, the retail dealers declare that they are doing a much better business. Building operations are on the boom, especially in the loop district, where never before have so many office buildings been in course of erection at the same time.

Collections are good, both for the distributors and the leaf men.

"To my mind," said a prominent jobber of cigars, in the same breath with a request that his name be withheld, "the retail trade of the country is going through what might be called a house-cleaning period. They are not asking for more credit than can be easily and safely given to them and they are not buying in a heavy manner. They are feeling their way along, and fortunately paying their bills as they go. I believe that for the most part the trade will reach the fall season with a clean slate, with a low stock and unimpaired credit. Then if the West has good crops, such as present conditions now indicate, we are certainly due for a most prosperous business right on up until after Christmas."

"Chicago manufacturers have no reason to complain of business," said A. D. Berlitzheimer, one of the leading clear Havana manufacturers of the city, "for everything has been running along in a smooth manner, with perhaps more than the usual amount of orders for the season. Of course, this is the dull season in all lines of business, except ice cream and lemonade, perhaps, so we do not expect as much trade as we do at other seasons."

J. G. Whitaker has resigned from the city sales force of Celestina Vega & Company, 10 South Wabash Avenue. His place has been taken by William H. Campbell, one of the oldest salesmen for the house, who has been given territory in the downtown stores and will work to push the sale of "La Venga" cigars in the fashionable loop resorts. B. A. Superfine is working on the North Side, where he has a fine trade among the Swedes and Germans.

Victor Pollak, city salesman for the J. & B. Moos Company, is now in the Columbus Memorial Hospital, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis. He is making a rapid recovery, however, and hopes to be out in a few weeks.

"Permit" cigars are being boomed at the present time by a special advertising campaign which is being engineered by the J. & B. Moos Company, local distributors for that brand.

Louis Schnake has opened a retail cigar store in the loop district at 162 West Van Buren Street. This location is not far from the new Fort Dearborn Hotel. Mr. Schnake will go after the high-class trade in the neighborhood. He is an experienced cigar man, well and favorably known to the local trade. He was formerly with Sprague, Warner & Company and more recently with the United Cigar Stores Company.

John J. Dolan, prominent dealer in "seegars," lost a son last week by the marriage route. John A. Dolan was the young man's name, and he married Miss Isabella F. Cleary. Mr. Dolan and his bride will make their home in Chicago, where he is treasurer of his father's cigar company.

The Western Cigar Box Manufacturers held their annual convention at the Auditorium Hotel last week. The convention was well attended, in spite of the uncomfortable heat which prevailed. Topics pertaining to the trade were discussed in a brief business session. Later the entire assembly broke up and took a long automobile ride.

Richard Peyton, the prominent cigar broker and factory representative, has been ill at his home with typhoid fever for the past few weeks. He has passed the crisis of his ailment, however, and now stands a good chance to get well, if he suffers no relapse.

William A. Vorhauer & Company, the new jobbing house, has been having a good run on the original hand-made quality cigar, which they have been pushing hard in the down-town district.

Sanford Goldberg, Western representative of S. Ruppin, has gone to New York after completing a most successful Western trip.

Since Albert Breitung, the shrewdest Dutchman of them all, who is now sojourning in Europe, carried into execution the idea of putting a cigar store in the northeast corner of the Monadnock Building by cutting the doors and windows to order, that place has been doing a phenomenal business and has yielded more than the usual amount of revenue when compared with the returns of the other stores. Just now the place is featuring "Alona" cigars in glass tubes. Next to the store in the Monadnock Building perhaps the best store of Albert Breitung is in the Bookery, which is another of the prominent loop office buildings.

Francis Edler & Company, the large pipe firm, has moved from the old location which has been held for so long at the corner of Clark and Lake Streets into a fine, new store at Madison and Franklin Streets. The change was made necessary owing to the rapidly increasing business of the company.

Max Maier, Western representative of A. Blumlein & Company, went to New York last week to visit the factory.

One of the truly pleasant features to report for this issue is the settlement of the brickmakers strike, in which more than 150,000 men were involved. One of the unfortunate features of the strike was that the men who were out were among the most consistent users of tobacco to be found here. The local retailers would not have feared a strike of the ministers of the city, but a strike of the brickmakers and teamsters is another matter.

Many expressions of sympathy have been heard from local cigar and tobacco men over the sudden death of Woodward W. Duke, son of J. B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco Company, who was drowned near Park City, Utah, when he was pinned face downward in a mountain creek after his automobile overturned.

The Ducator Cigar Company has increased its capital stock from $2500 to $50,000, and the number of directors from three to five. The change was made necessary owing to the fact that the increased business of the company made the working capital too small. Plans are under way for the immediate expansion of the company, which already does a considerable business in this territory.

George W. Stocking has been appointed the new representative of Marcelino Perez & Company. He has entered upon his work with a great amount of enthusiasm and is already making a great showing, considering the period of time he has been on the job.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

Newsboys to be Made Happy by E. J. Stachelberg

Newsboys in Tampa, Fla., are to be given an opportunity to enjoy the "Fourth of July" celebration in that city, through the generosity of E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez y Haya Company, manufacturers of the renowned "Sanchez y Haya" cigars. Mr. Stachelberg has instructed Judge Cohen to furnish to one of the local papers for distribution among their newsboys, a large number of tickets entitling the holders to admission to the open-air celebration by the Spanish War veterans and the Tampa police and fire departments at Plant Field.

Key West Factories Getting Busy

KEY WEST, June 26.

Much optimism is prevalent among the cigar factories today owing to the fact that tomorrow each factory will have a pay day. While there will not be a full week for each concern, still this is the first time in several weeks that each factory has had work. Yesterday the strippers of the Cortez Company returned to work, while the cigarmakers returned this morning. The Havana-American Company, which has been closed since June 13th, in order that necessary arrangements for "making-in-bond" might be completed, has also started up, the strippers having begun work on Tuesday.

Manuel Sanchez Saddened By Death of Son

The many friends in the trade of Manuel Sanchez, manager and member of the firm of Berriman Brothers, cigar manufacturers, Tampa, will learn with much sorrow of Mr. Sanchez's recent bereavement in the death of his four-year-old son, Ybenz Sanchez, who was killed within the past fortnight as the result of being hit by an automobile while he was crossing the street in front of his father's home. Contractor D. B. Goins was the driver of the car.

Death of D. L. Owens, Veteran Tobacconist

DOMINICK LAWRENCE OWENS, who was for a number of years a prominent Brooklyn manufacturer of smoking tobacco, but who retired several years since, died at his home in that city, 408 Greene Avenue, on June 20th, in his seventy-third year.

Mr. Owens was a close friend of the late Senator Patrick McCarren, and himself active in Democratic politics for a number of years. He was born in Ireland, but came to America as a lad and lived in Broklyn for over fifty years.

Solemn requiem mass was celebrated over the remains on Monday, June 22nd, at the Roman Catholic Church of the Nativity.

Mr. Owens is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Daniel N. Frost, 2nd

Daniel N. Frost, 2nd, thirty-four years old, a leading tobacco grower and farmer of West Suffield, died recently in his home in Grand Street after a short illness. He was stricken about two months ago with cancer and failed rapidly. After treatment in a Springfield hospital he returned to his home. Mr. Frost was born in West Suffield, January 28, 1880, the son of Walter P. and Emma (MacIntire) Frost. After attending the public schools he began tobacco raising. He attended the West Suffield Congregational Church. In January of this year Mr. Frost married Mrs. Clara Gray, of Hartford. Since then they have been living in Granby Street. Besides his wife, he leaves his mother, Mrs. E. L. Frost, of West Suffield; three brothers and sister, James M. and Walter P. Frost, of Springfield; Jasper D., in the West, and Mrs. Michael Kane, of Feeding Hills.

Thomas J. Anderson

Thomas J. Anderson, a well-known cigar manufacturer of Holyoke, Mass., recently succumbed after a long illness. For more than twenty-eight years Mr. Anderson had been prominent in the life of Holyoke.

The deceased was born in Paterson, N. J., in 1860. Later he removed to Westfield, where he started cigar manufacturing with his brother John. He came to Holyoke in 1881.

He leaves a widow, three sons, James F., of Worcester, John W., of Providence, Bessie and Mary F., and Thomas, a pupil in the Highland grammar school, and one brother, Fred, cigar manufacturer of this city.

Ed Merrifeld

Ed Merrifeld, widely known in the cigar trade of Cleveland, O., died in that city recently. Mr. Merrifeld's death came as a sudden shock to his many friends. Mr. Merrifeld had charge of the sale of "Pastora" cigars in that territory and was one of the best-known cigar salesmen in that section. He was formerly connected with Eisenlohr Brothers and is said to have made a big success in placing their "Cinco" brand.

Charles C. Ellis

Charles C. Ellis, for more than ten years associated with the cigar department of Acker, Merrall & Condit, died on June 21st.

His loss will be keenly felt by his many friends.

Lorenzo W. Emery

Lorenzo W. Emery, of Bowling Green, Ky., was found dead in bed recently at his home, 600 Jefferson Street. He was born in Paducah, February 16, 1872. For more than eight years he was in the cigar and tobacco business on Lower Broadway, Bowling Green. He was very popular and leaves a wide circle of friends.

Besides his mother, Mr. Emery is survived by two brothers: Magistrate Charles W. Emery and George F. Emery, a member of the city board of supervisors.

Dominick L. Owens

Dominick L. Owens, a wholesale tobacco merchant, died recently at his home, No. 408 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, of heart disease. He was seventy-two years old and is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Jersey City Tobacco Company, Incorporated

Among recent incorporations was that of the Jersey City Tobacco Company, Jersey City, N. J., which incorporated with a capital of $10,000, for the purpose of doing a general wholesale business in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco. The company, whose offices are located at 269 Newark Ave., plan to work along the most modern lines and will carry the brands most in demand throughout this section. The president of the new organization is Leo Teicher, well-known locally through his connection with Mayer Brothers and other concerns in the trade. Jacob Baum is vice-president and treasurer, and G. Baum, secretary.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . .

The vacation period would prove much more attractive to the average retailer, if he was willing to delve a little deeper into what comprises the average vacationist's outfit in the way of smoke comfort.

Vacations and Pipes

The reason for this is, that as men relax, and get rid to a considerable extent of their coats, there are fewer pockets in which to carry their cigars and cigarettes, while a pipe can be stuck most anywhere without fear of breaking or losing.

A retailer located near Philadelphia, whose business feels the vacation period, decided to make a direct appeal to all his friends and customers, that in preparing for the annual outing they should not overlook a pipe and smoking tobacco.

His stock comprised practically everything from the penny "Derry" to the $25 meerschaum, and to attract the attention of the smokers, one part of the window was arranged to represent camp life, with the pipe featured prominently, and the other side to represent fishing and bathing.

A few signs of black and white called attention to the advantages of the pipe over the cigar and cigarettes for this period, and offering a tobacco pouch with every pipe sold that retailed for fifty cents or over.

When a sale was made the salesman gently inserted a few quiet remarks as to the best method of keeping the tobacco in proper condition, and this window decoration has been the means of adding a considerable sum that would never have reached his till, and assisting materially in keeping the balance on the right side of the ledger.

* * *

From the appearance of many windows, cigar dealers do not realize the tremendous selling power that this form of advertising possesses.

Pipe Feature Breaks Sales Records

A firm located in Philadelphia, who conduct a chain of stores in connection with their jobbing business, recently placed a pipe on exhibition in one of the windows with the simple caption, "It Stands Alone."

This was displayed in a location where there are many offices, employing many clerks, all more or less addicted to the use of the weed.

The feature of the pipe was that, when placed upon a desk or other flat surface it would stand erect, and not fall over and spill ashes or tobacco for a considerable area.

There were practically all styles, and prices ranged from 25 cents to $1, and during the life of that sale the record for pipe selling in that particular store was broken so badly that it has been repeated several times, and always with results that were more than satisfactory to the proprietors.

During the summer months there is a tendency among practically all lines of business to relax somewhat, and sometimes this is felt even among the older men and salesmen, who feel that as business is known to be somewhat at a lower ebb than during the cooler months, any cessation on their part will not be known or felt.

Prizes to Keep Sales Up

One wide awake dealer in the Middle West, who suffered from the vacation epidemic, searched his mind and the minds of other people in order to devise some method that would keep his sales somewhere near their normal figure. If it was absolutely necessary he was willing to sacrifice a certain percentage of profit, if the volume of business could be maintained and bills discounted as heretofore.

In looking back over his life, this dealer remembered that his employer had always allowed some reward for attention to business during the heated term.

Following this thought, the idea was born that by the introduction of prizes for the salesman in his employ that showed the largest gain in sales for a given period would receive a prize, that would make unusual effort and attention worthy of their best efforts.

A letter was written and placed in the dressing room, setting forth in detail the plan, and asking the co-operation of every salesman in his employ; the letter also frankly stated that business was affected, and consequently conditions were a little tighter with the merchant than his clerks supposed.

Thus appealed to, these employees entered into the spirit of the occasion, and friends from far and near were induced to buy their cigars, cigarettes, pipes and stogies from this store, so that the prize would come the way of their friends.

The report circulated throughout the town, and every one seemed anxious to learn who the successful salesman was, and the extra sum added to the vacation of the salesman made possible a more enjoyable rest.

* * *

The many new safety razors which have made their appearance within the last twelvemonth has been the delight of cigar dealers who use premiums as a means for attracting trade.

Competition Sharpened With Razors

Several cigar dealers throughout the Middle West have increased their profit by offering these razors as a premium upon the purchase of a box of fifty cigars. The choice of cigars was left entirely to the purchaser, in order to dispel any doubt in his mind that he was buying the razor and being presented with the cigars.

Other dealers in the locality issued cash register coupons, and when a certain amount had been reached, these were redeemed for the cutting edge.

In each case window cards were the principal means of acquainting the public with the terms upon which the premiums could be secured.

Los Angeles

Population Passes Half-Million Mark—New Factory Paves Way for Tobacco Industries—"Lovera" Cigars Continue in Demand

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 21, 1914.

LOS ANGELES—516,317.

Once again this city takes note of its populousness; this time through the city directory. It contains 229,474 individual names of residents, the names of housewives and children as usual being omitted.

It is an established rule, the practical accuracy of which has been proven in this and other cities that the number of directory names, heads of families, etc., when multiplied by two and one-fourth, gives the population.

The population of more than half a million was the showing on June 1st. On that date the four largest Pacific Coast cities, according to the directory census taken in each, were thus rated:

Portland—Names, 120,234; population, 270,527.

The census of this city for 1913 was 483,417. The rate of increase has been nearly seven per cent. No other city in history, so far as any record reveals, has grown at such a rate as Los Angeles. It has passed from the 100,000 mark in 1900 to the half million mark in 1914, a period of fourteen years. Chicago took twenty years to make a similar gain.

Averaging the percentages of gain since the government census of 1900—in which Los Angeles has taken on 200,000 more persons—it is clear that the same rate of increase if maintained will carry this city beyond the 1,000,000 mark in 1920.

In addition to showing that Los Angeles has grown marvelously, the directory gives many statistics to show that this growth has been substantial, that the accompaniment of increase in population has been material advancement, evidence of enterprise and prosperity. Among the things cited in the directory are: The banks had on deposit on January 1, 1914, $170,380,642. The clearings for 1913 were $1,211,169,989. The assessed valuation of property for 1913-14 was $481,483,242. It will be more than $500,000,000 for the present year, according to the assessors. There were 16,442 building permits of a total valuation of $31,641,921 issued in 1913.

As a result of the first arrest in what was declared to be a nation-wide fight against gambling on baseball games, Geo. Schmulian, a cigar dealer of San Francisco, was fined $200 yesterday by Police Judge Deasy for accepting a bet on local games. After a felony charge against him had been dismissed by stipulation, Schmulian pleaded guilty to violating the anti-gambling ordinance.

Judge Deasy, in passing sentence, said that if other similar offenders were brought before him he would deal more severely with them. A resolution introduced by Schmulian, prohibiting members from taking bets on ball games, was adopted recently by the Retail Cigar Dealers' Association.

The newest of Los Angeles industries has just been opened—the "La Abilidad" Cigar Factory. It is located at 2808 South Main Street, and is one of the most complete cigar manufacturing establishments in the country.

The expectation of its owners is that it will turn out between three and four million cigars this year, an increase of three hundred per cent. over last year's output.

At the head of the institution are Earl Woodworth and Charles Leib. Both devote their full time to the work. They are practical cigarmakers and merchandisers of long experience.

Among the interesting figures given out by Mr. Woodworth is the statement that California smokes approximately seventy-five million cigars a year, of which about ten million are of western manufacture.

He states that there is the possibility of selling at least seventy million cigars a year to be produced at home. Such is the field the new factory enters. The company is making a specialty only of the "La Abilidad" line of cigars for which it purchases the finest of Havana tobacco.

The new product is to be distributed by the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, who are pushing especially hard the new "La Abilidad Cuban," a ciger made in the same shape as those rolled by the Cuban planters and cigarmakers.

Tentative plans are under way for an extensive addition to the present factory. In addition the new size Cuban will be made exclusively.

The addition to Los Angeles fast growing list of industries of the "La Abilidad" factory means much in the way of employment, scores of cigarmakers being given continual work at the highest wages.

The Klingenstein Company are much pleased the way "London Gold Tips" are moving with them. Mr. Klingenstein had to wire the factory to rush shipments of this popular five-cent cigarette at once.

This company is putting forth an extensive campaign on "Cinco" cigars. Mr. Klingenstein claims they would do much more with this cigar if the factory would only band them. Some unscrupulous dealers are "stuffing" the boxes meant for "Cinco" cigars, and Mr. Klingenstein states he will shortly make an example of one of them.

The Klingenstein Company is putting out the "American," made-in-bond, by E. Regensburg & Sons.

Arthur Levy, at 743 South Spring Street, in front of the new Levy Cafe, has an elegant transparent sign against his show window advertising "Admiration" cigars. He is featuring the Klingenstein Company's lines exclusively.

With the baseball season in full swing, "Ike" Wentworth can be seen on the grounds every day boosting "Lovera" cigars.

A large sign advertising "Reynaldo" mild Havana cigars, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., has been erected on the top of the building belonging to the new Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company, corner Main and Alameda Streets, where traffic never stops.

A ten-cent package of "Stag" tobacco is free with a twenty-five cent pipe at Louis Gold's cigar store, corner Winston and Main Streets.

Arthur Meyer, factory agent for Bustillo Brothers y Diaz, while here recently announced that he would lend personal support to a campaign on "Henry the Fourth" cigars, to commence on August 1, 1914.

"Reynaldo" cigars have been placed in thirty-two new places this week by Mussati-Boggio Cigar Company.

One of the busiest places in the city is the cigar department of Haas-Baruch & Company under the "eagle eye" of one Cameron C. Tran. They carry a full assortment of selling brands of cigars. These include such brands as "San Felice," "Charles Denby," "Commercial," "Lovera" and "Bänderos," manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company.

Effective window advertising is being done by Anthony Schwamm on the "London Life" cigarette, and dealers report a steady increase in sales.

The recent campaign on "Copyright" cigars, made by Woodward-Jones-Johnson, is already producing results. This cigar is in evidence everywhere.

Charles B. Poar, manager of the S. Bachman Cigar Company, reports trade good in all their lines. At the present time they are making a strong "push" on the "Flor de Baltimora," a seed and Havana cigar new to this territory. Many attractive window displays can be seen around the city.

Artistic window displays of the "Flor de Lovera" cigars can be seen now at all of Fred Barman & Brothers nine cigar stores. Special notice should be given the window of their store located at Sixth and Spring Streets, which is elaborately decorated and shows "Lovera" cigars in all sizes.

M. A. Newmark & Company tells me that the "Don Remo" cigar has not lost one whit of favor with the smoker of good cigars. Ever since the "Don Remo" banquet, given by I. W. Hoyt, factory representative of A. Davis Sons & Company, manufacturers of the "Don Remo" cigar, and Jos. Goldsmith, of the M. A. Newmark & Company, the salesmen of the latter firm have given their undivided attention to the sales of the "Don Remo" cigar, with increasing demand being the result of their action.

Ed. Cohn, College Inn Cigar Store, always keeps a good stock of "Copyright" cigars on hand to supply the ever-increasing demand of this "seller."

"Union Leader" smoking tobacco is going better than ever now, due to the extensive newspaper advertising campaign being carried on at present.

Samuel T. Kurtz Marries

Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Samuel T. Kurtz, of Newmanstown, Pa., to Earla M. Keller, of the same place. Mr. Kurtz is the well-known office manager of John H. Witter, the prominent manufacturer of cigars, of Newmanstown. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz, after receiving the blessings and best wishes of their many friends, left following the ceremony for Atlantic City and other seaside places, where bridal couples are so much in evidence.

Hamilton

Dreyfus Brothers Open Campaign on "La Saramita"—Trade Conditions Under Normal—"Aplomo" Kelley Visits City

HAMILTON, O., June 24, 1914.

TRADE conditions seem to be a little depressed here; I suppose on account of the excessive heat in this locality. It is a known fact that the heat in Hamilton is two or three degrees warmer than in surrounding territory, and most people are preparing for their vacation and getting ready for seashore and lakes.

Dreyfus Brothers, who conduct a big jobbing business and also retail stores, with headquarters at Third and High Streets, are putting on a big campaign on "La Saramita," "Saramita Fives" and "Percy Haswell," which they distribute through this territory with the assistance of Bert Smith and Dick Cuthbert. It looks like a gala week with all the downtown windows dressed with the Shields-Wertheim Company brands. J. B. Shields, president of this concern, was down for a day to superintend the big work. "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" are the biggest sellers on Messrs. Dreyfus territory. Chas. Dreyfus, head of this concern, has been in the jobbing business about six years, and has built up a wonderful business in this length of time. The writer has just heard from Mr. Dreyfus that his business is growing this year, not only in the jobbing end, but the retail end.

The Louis Newburgh Company are very busy with an extra large force packing their 1912 crop. Murray Newburgh, superintendent of the local plant, is kept very busy in the local market. His anticipations are big for fall business, and Murray usually has the dope right on the future business. He also predicts the 1913 crop to surpass anything since 1908 in quality and size.

Radcliffe Brothers, druggists on the corner Second and High, who have quite a retail business, report a big increase on their sales of "La Saramita" and "Saramita Fives."

Anton Armbrust, the West End cigar man, has a very beautiful display of "Saramita Fives," which attracted a great deal of attention and which by the way is his biggest seller.

Among recent visitors here was "Carnation" Meyers, of Salvador Sanchez. Mr. Meyers has a host of friends here and reports his business big on the "Dulce" and "Salsana" brands.

The Louis Newburgh Company closed for three days this week on account of the death of Mrs. Louis Newburgh.

GEORGE.

To Open Cigar Store in Wheeling

Harry A. Jones, formerly of the Berger Cigar Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., has recently opened a cigar store in Stall 16, Auditorium Building, that city. The many friends of Mr. Jones are congratulating him on his return to health and his foresight in opening a new stand. Many old customers have assured him of their patronage. Besides a full line of tobaccos and cigars, Mr. Jones will stock periodicals, soft drinks, etc.

Pittsfield Man Sells Interest in Cigar Store

William E. Brooks and George A. Pomfrey have recently acquired the A. S. Dorfman cigar store, having purchased the interest of Mr. Dorfman. The contract to make the repairs necessary caused by a recent fire, has already been awarded and the plans for the renovation are complete. The remodeled stand will have a center entrance, allowing two show windows, instead of one. The fixtures will be light oak with two large cigar stands twenty feet in length. There will be a large humidor to keep the stock in the best of condition. The alterations will be completed by July 1st.

Cosmopolitan Tobacco Company Organizes

N. P. Antoniades, who is head of the Turkish cigarette business which bears his name, located at 686 Sixth Avenue, New York, has just completed the organization of a new concern to be known as the Cosmopolitan Tobacco Company. A charter was issued a few days ago giving the company an authorized capital of $40,000.

TOBACCO AND THE VACATION EQUIPMENT

Light Pipe Is Favorite—Best Way to Carry "Makin's" Carry Cigars in a Case—Helpful Hints

THE tobacco question is one of the big points to be considered in the vacation equipment. The experienced hunter or fisherman is as careful in selecting his smoking material as he is with his gun, lines and hooks.

A light pipe is the favorite with old-timers and it is by far the most convenient and useful for the vacation purposes. A can or sack of pipe tobacco will last out a hunting or fishing trip of several days' duration while it would require a bulky package of cigarettes.

On a fishing trip the pipe is easily carried in the mouth and is an essential weapon against the invasion of mosquitoes and gnats that swarm the trout streams.

If the vacationist desires cigars he should carry them in a case, especially on a fishing trip, as they are easily broken in walking through the brush or sliding over rocks. Cigarettes can best be carried in a gunmetal case. The fancy silver or gold case should be left at home, as they are easily lost on a vacation trip.

"Home-made" cigarettes are all right, but much time is lost while rolling them and time is valuable when the fish are biting or you are following a fresh game trail.

The best way to carry pipe tobacco or cigarette "makin's" is loose in your pocket. The sack or can is clumsy and unhandy to open and fill a pipe from, taking up a lot of time that can be saved when you merely have to reach in your pocket and take out a pipeful of tobacco. It is safer to carry the loose tobacco in your coat pocket as it it liable to get wet if carried in a trouser pocket on a fishing trip.

To keep tobacco fresh in camp put it in a large can and slice a potato in half, putting the two halves in the can with the uncut ends in the tobacco. Cigars can be kept moist in the same way.

These are but a few hints that will help in the tobacco question, which is an important one to the hunters and anglers that smoke.

Keep matches in an empty cartridge, plugged up on the end. Carry lots of them. Take all you think you will need and then take more. Your pipe goes out while you fish.

When you find one of your customers buying for his vacation, a few of these hints properly injected in the conversation, will often help him solve his problems and at the same time you will make a life-long customer of him.

The Massachusetts Trading Stamp Bill

BOSTON, MASS.

The Senate passed to engrossment the trading-stamp bill, which requires a $6000 annual license to be obtained from a city or town clerk for the distribution by any person, firm or corporation, of trading stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards or other similar devices. The license must be obtained not only by the concern which furnishes the stamps or coupons, but also by the merchant giving them away, and a separate license is required for every place of business. The bill was petitioned for by the Massachusetts Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association. The proponents believe they have a measure which will pass the Supreme Court, although for years the war on the trading stamp and tobacco coupon has run up against the blank wall that there was no constitutional way of prohibiting its use or taxing it out of existence.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, June 23, 1914.

RECEIPTS from the country are beginning to increase gradually, and the situation about the new crop is becoming clearer from day to day. The first alarm caused by the reported excessive, large crop of the whole island, and the lessened demand in the United States, with a considerable quantity of the old crop still in the hands of our dealers unsold, created an uneasiness in the minds of our dealers. As it has been established, as a fact, that the sound, good part of the new tobacco of nearly all the leaf growing districts is by no means excessive, and perhaps not any larger than in normal years, our packers and leaf dealers have recovered their confidence that this part of the crop will be all needed to supply the coming demand from the United States. Under these circumstances, unless some unforeseen event should occur, as for instance a possible war with Mexico, we think that we have touched rock bottom on the old stocks, and which after all have been reduced considerable. As the new crop from all sections is burning freely, and has a good taste, it is bound to find favor with the American manufacturers. It should not at all surprise us if the buyers in their anxiety to supply themselves of fine leaf should raise the market later on, particularly as fine leaf is never in sufficient supply to meet the growing demand at normal figures.

During the fermentation in the piles and after the same is completed only the true condition of the tobacco crop can be established with accuracy, and now we can see what harm untimely rains, as well as drouth in some places, and unseasonable weather in the drying sheds, has caused, so that as a rough guess in most sections only half of the big crop is suitable for the American market. This bad quantity of pole sweated leaf, as well as crippled and yellow stuff, and papery leaf, which will spoil in the bales, could only be used for cutting up by our cigarette manufacturers, or be exported to Europe, where they are not so particular as regards quality, if the prices are only low enough. The vegueros, therefore, in order to get rid of this part of their crop will have to sell it at very low figures, but naturally the good will fetch fair prices, as a compensation for their labors.

There is only, as we stated before, a real scarcity of clean, light colored wrappers, and these are bound to fetch very high prices, while on the other hand there will be an abundance of miscolored resagos, and which should rule moderately enough.

Our leaf market has been quieter again during the past fortnight, as the number of American buyers has not increased yet to give us more life. Good leaf of last year's crop ought to be a safe speculation for any American dealer, or manufacturer, as there can be only an upward trend in the future. Business to Europe has been restricted, as the exporters are waiting to hear how the first trial shipments have been appreciated. The demand for South America continues, as heretofore, upon a moderate but steady scale. Our local manufacturers are operating only to supply their immediate needs.

Sales during the past two weeks amounted to 3326 bales, which consisted of: Vuelta Abajo, 1852; Partido, 682, and Remedios, 792 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1374; exporters to Europe, 200; shippers to South America, 550, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1202 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the two weeks closing with the 15th inst. amounted to 4655 bales, which were divided among the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 3544; to Bremen, 262; to Rotterdam, 8; to Gibraltar, 10; to the Canary Islands, 3; to Buenos Aires, 628; to Montevideo, 126, and to Valparaiso, 74 bales.

Cigars.

There is no denying the fact that business is bad in our cigar factories; it is usually dull at this period of the year, but this year it is exceedingly so. There are only a few orders, and not of any large amounts; the United States are nearly four million cigars behind in their importations of our cigars from the first of January up to the present date, as compared with last year. Canada, the Argentine Republic and Chile are each over one million cigars short in their importations. Great Britain is gradually lessening her deficit, being only two millions short now, while Spain, Germany and Australia are showing steady increases over last year. There are only a handful of the large factories which are working tolerably well, while all the medium and smaller ones are complaining bitterly of the hard times. In the meantime our government keeps silent about the modus vivendi with Spain, and a new reciprocity treaty with the United States.

Romeo y Julieta bought 500 bales of choice, old Vuelta Abajo vegas, tierra llana, and considering the times is working best of our independent factories.

Partagas is working also sufficiently well during the dull season. The owners have purchased the former leaf warehouse, 93 Amistad Street, and made a connection of same with their cigarette department, as it is directly in the rear. They will continue to use the Amistad building as a storehouse for their leaf stocks.

Don Valeriano Gutierrez, the United States representative of the famed "Hoyo de Monterrey" brand, came here for a four days' visit to exchange greetings with the managers. La Escepcion Factory is working very steady.

As the other factories had no news to give we dispense this time in recounting their names.

Leaf Tobacco and Other Notes of Interest.

The ad. of Mendelsohn, Borneman & Company with the heading "Grasp This" of May 23rd in a contemporary American tobacco trade paper, and the leader with Mr. Mendelsohn's reproduction of his photograph, had created a very bad impression in tobacco circles, as it contained untruths and a slander upon our cigar manufacturers when it stated that, in order to produce a mild and aromatic cigar, they had used Porto Rico leaf during the time of the Spanish regime and when this leaf could come here free of duty. The Union of Manufacturers and our Association of Leaf Dealers, Packers and Planters protested against this by cable, and the owner and publisher of the tobacco paper wrote an apology, stating that he was not aware of the nature of the ad., as he had not seen the same until it had appeared in print, but he kept silent about the leading article, and which really was the most damaging part. We have no time to go into details today, and as life is too short to be fighting continually we close with the German saying, "Schwamm darüber."

Tampa Slump Psychological

Relative to the cigar business in Tampa and vicinity, one may get a fairly good idea of the conditions there at the present time, if he will but read the following remarks of Frank Boylston, Tampa, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue. It might be stated that as Mr. Boylston progressed, he checked over the receipts of the week 1914 with a similar period in the year preceding. "Do you know," said Mr. Boylston, "that while the receipts of this office this year are less so far than last year, I don't believe there is any slump in the Tampa cigar industry. I have been thinking it over," he continued, "and have come to the conclusion that the explanation is the bonded cigar factories.

"The larger factories, most of them, are turning out made-in-bond cigars. They are higher grade Havana cigars, for which they pay the workmen more, and for which they obtain more from the jobber and retailer.

"But the stamp sales are the same for a hundred 'twofers' as for a hundred 'twenty-five-cent straights.' It is three mills a cigar, whether they are the best or the cheapest. And so though there is an apparent decrease in the number of internal revenue stamps sold, a higher grade of cigars is being made. I think, if you will inquire at the banks, you will find that the payrolls of the factories are as large or larger than this time last year. For, you know, the factories pay higher rates for the better cigars.

"But, in spite of that fact, the week closing last Saturday noon showed a gain over the same week a year ago. We are behind a bit, though not so very much in the totals to date for this year compared with the same period of 1913, but with a few more weeks like this last one there will be mighty little difference.

"The sales for last week were $19,297.26, which accounts for about 6,300,000 cigars. A year ago the sales were $17,756.26, which would run to about 5,800,000 cigars shipped out, on a general estimate.

"That's not so bad," said Mr. Boylston.

José C. Puente & Company have fixed up their warehouses at 166 to 170 Monte, 69 Tenerife and 8 Carmen Streets in very fine style, having spent between $7000 to $8000 in order to make them ratproof and complying with all the exactions of our board of health. Their office, newly painted and with a gilt rail, looks as having come out of a bandbox. They sold 415 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons were sellers of 250 bales of Remedios of both old and the new crop to their customers in the last two weeks. Albert W. Kaffenburgh is still attending to purchases in the Santa Clara province.

J. F. Berndes & Company purchased 403 bales of different kinds of leaf, old and new, for account of their customers.

Hermann Luettich, the power of attorney for H. Upmann & Company, sailed on the 21st inst. by the S. S. "Saratoga," accompanied by his family, for a few months' rest in Europe.

Memphis

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 20, 1914.

THE prolonged drouth of more than five weeks was broken by rains throughout the surrounding Cotton Belt, and trade is improving as a result. Indications point to a large cotton yield this year and business is strong.

Langhorn Reed, Kansas City, auditor (The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company), was in the city Friday en route to Nashville on his return trip to Kansas City, after a visit to the various Parker-Gordon branches throughout the South.

W. W. Rosebro (Morgan Cigar Company), accompanied by J. Hicks Mallory, manager Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of Memphis, have been working the jobbing trade of Pine Bluff, Hot Springs, Fort Smith, Ark., and Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Mallory returned to Memphis this week and Mr. Rosebro continued his trip through the North.

R. L. Jordon, president Central Cigar Company, is in New York City.

S. L. Lee (S. L. Lee & Sons) and wife are spending their vacation in the old country.

J. C. Dudleston, manager Best & Russell Cigar Company, is calling on the trade this week.

Sig C. Mayer, proprietor Sig C. Mayer & Company, was in the city this week.

The new size "Samelson's Extra" cigar, manufactured by I. Samelson & Company, is proving very popular with the trade.

A safety razor is being given away with each ten-cent can of "Tuxedo" smoking tobacco. This product still holds its own as one of the leading sellers.

Harrison-Hussey, Inc., Nashville, Tenn., have taken on the "Juan de Fucas," under their own private brand of Virginia-Carolinas, also an "F. B. Q." forty dollar smoker, under their private brand of Harrison-Hussey's "S. T. N.'s," together with the five-cent brand of the same cigar. These range in prices from seventy to one hundred and thirty-five dollars.

Braun Brothers, one of the oldest cigar establishments in Tennessee, have introduced the coupon system and have also installed the Humigar cigar fixtures. These fixtures were designed by Will Braun and were manufactured in his home city, Jackson, Tenn. Braun Brothers carry the finest line of fixtures of any cigar company in the State.

Washburn Company are featuring "Owl" cigars in their Saturday sale.

Cosmopolitan Tobacco Company, Inc., New York. Capital stock, $40,000. General tobacco. The incorporators are S. Nicholson, Washington, D. C.; N. P. Antoniades and A. Horn, New York City.

A. H. Hillman Tobacco Company, New York. Capital stock, $35,000. The incorporators are A. H. Hillman, D. M. Baum and W. Raubitscheck.

Franklin County Farmers' Union Tobacco Warehouse Company, Louisburg, N. C. Capital stock, $100,000; $4500 subscribed by T. J. Reaves and others.

Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers' factory at Windsor, Pa., has recently been furnished with a water system, which includes a pump to which has been connected an electric motor. Through the installation of a large tank on the third floor of the structure, it is now possible to supply water to all parts of the building.

Detroit

DETROIT, MICH., June 25, 1914.

ARTHUR H. REYNOLDS, of Des Moines, Ia., president of the American Bankers' Association, was in Detroit on June 22nd. He chatted for a moment with the writer at the Pontchartrain cigar department. Mr. Reynolds is very hopeful as to the future of business in this country when the new federal reserve law is in operation and with the remarkable crops which the country promises to harvest this fall. "It is true that we are financially on a little lower level throughout the country just now," he said. "Business is a little slack. A change of administration, the tariff law, which is not yet proven, and other things tend to uncertainty now. But I believe the new banking law is going to be of great value if it is properly administered. I look for business to continue on the lower level for perhaps the remainder of the year. But when you consider that our annual production of crops is $10,000,000,000 a year, or twenty-five times the annual gold output of the world, you can see that things cannot be very bad. And this year's crops promise to be the greatest the country has ever produced."

Just a few words about the automobile industry of which Detroit is the center. Right at the present time is the slack season and most of the factories have shut down in certain departments, and many men are out of work. The Ford Company is running about 7000 men less than they did a few months ago, while other factories are running proportionately less. Factories now are getting ready for the 1915 crop. The number of men out of work now is no greater than in other years for the same period, considering the growth of the industry, and the outlook is that they will all be back on the job before the end of the summer. Some of the factories are loading up with materials, and this is giving employment to thousands in the plants where axles, frames, wheels, motors and other parts are made. On the whole, the automobile industry is in good shape; people who already own cars are sure to continue with them or new ones in their stead, while there are still thousands upon thousands of farmers and merchants who will some day buy a car.

The Edelweiss Cafe, at Broadway and John R Streets, have a system of coupon books which can be used in any department, including the cigar department. This is proving a very successful feature of the Edelweiss business. Manager Stimson says that he is doing twice the business in cigars and cigarettes than he expected; two men are kept at the stand constantly and there is hardly a time of the day or night up to closing that they are not busy. Mr. Stimson is frank to admit that the coupons do have a tendency to increase the business. The books come at various prices, one dollar and up. If a man wants a ten-cent cigar, he gives two five-cent coupons. It is a fact that once a man gets a book of coupons, and he likes to smoke, he will buy more cigars than he would under ordinary circumstances where he would have to lay out the cash for them. Of course, indirectly he is paying cash, but the scheme works out like a charge account; in other words, if you can go into a cigar store and get all the cigars, cigarettes and tobacco you want, paying for them when you feel like it, you naturally will buy more than you would if no credit was extended. The system of coupons has another good phase; the merchant gets cash-in-advance. The Edelweiss is the only place in Detroit where this idea is carried out.

A disastrous fire on June 19th, which did $50,000 damage to the Bryant Hotel, also did $3000 damage to Edward Vosburg's cigar store in the same building, known as "Mac's Cigar Store." The fire originated in the attic of the hotel.

Flint had another fire the previous day, which did considerable damage to the United States Cigar Store. The fire is said to have started in a heap of rubbish in the basement beneath the cigar store. The flames ate through the floor to the stockroom, but were conquered before they did much damage there. The man in charge of the store said he could not give any information regarding his stock or the probable loss. He closed the store under instructions from headquarters in Detroit and reopened a few days later after the loss was adjusted.

Both Sam T. Goldberg, of the Lillies Cigar Company, and Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, have summer homes at Charlevoix, "the garden spot of Michigan." Both will have their families there for the remainder of the season. Mr. Rosenberger is now spending a few days there, while Mr. Goldberg just returned from a week's stay, part of the time being spent in fishing and the balance of the time in his fifty-foot cruiser, which he purchased last year.

John P. Hemmeter, of the Hemmeter Cigar Company, is back in the city after a week in the East. Business in the Hemmeter factory is reported to be excellent. The company's business is mostly in Southern Michigan, Northern Indiana and Ohio. Farmers and smokers in that territory look upon "Hemmeter's Champion" as the best five-cent cigar ever made. They have been buying them for years and are loyal supporters of the brand. It is remarkable to think that the immense Hemmeter factory, employing hundreds of people, disposes of its entire output in such a compact territory. "I Like the 'Hemmeter's Champion' because it is a nice, short smoke and because the quality is always the same. It isn't good one day and poor the next. You can rely on getting the same kind of a smoke always," spoke a Hoosier who dropped into the Pontchartrain the other day.

Mr. Hemmeter, in addition to his duties at the factory, has been an extremely busy man in the past six months. With a number of other prominent Detroiters, he has had plans under way for the formation of a third national bank, the deal being consummated the early part of June. The new institution will be known as the Merchants' National Bank and will start operations not later than August 1st. It will be capitalized at a million dollars. Mr. Hemmeter is not only one of the principal stockholders, but is also on the board of directors. Mr. Hemmeter showed very wise judgment in "pulling" for a third national bank. Detroit needs one badly: the time was never more opportune, and Mr. Hemmeter and the others who have promoted it and took stock cannot fail to earn a handsome dividend on the investment.

L. B. McKittrick, vice-president of the Tobacco Products Company, was in Detroit on June 24th. "Mac," with his usual good smile and good advice to young men, made a hurried call to the most prominent stands in the city. He was pleased with the excellent sale of "Melachrino" cigarettes, in spite of the fact that very little campaign work in behalf of that brand has been done in the past nine months, indicating that the brand has a very large and steady clientele.

Other visitors in our midst the past ten days have been: William Higgins, of Park & Tilford; Mr. Klein, of John W. Merriam Company; Mr. Scoby, general representative for the Melachrino cigarettes; Jack Planco and Joseph Banker, of Bouquet de Paris Cigar Company.

Edward Lichtig, Michigan representative for "Philip Morris" cigarettes, is back from a two weeks' trip to the summer resort sections. He found things flourishing and reported that business at the resorts so far is considerably better than last year, due no doubt to the early spell of warm weather.

It looks as if the Caverly family were made for cigar salesmen. Guy Caverly represents the G. J. Johnson Company, of Grand Rapids, in Detroit and vicinity and has been very successful in that capacity. Now comes along his brother, Morris Caverly, from Bradford, Pa., who has joined the same firm in the capacity of city salesman for Buffalo. His duties commence the first of July.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, has returned home after a six weeks' stay in Portland, Ore., and other Coast cities. He will do no more traveling until late in the year. Mr. Worch came back "all smiles." He says things on the Coast for his company are going along in fine shape, and the question the remainder of this year will be "Not how many orders we can take," but "How many we can properly fill." Although the Niles & Moser hand-made is still the company's leading seller, the S. & W. hand-made is going right to the front. Both cigars retail at five cents and are packed in tins.

Bert Johnson returned June 22nd from a boat trip to Duluth. Mr. Johnson went on the Board of Commerce cruise, which was participated in by about six hundred prominent Detroiters. These cruises are given annually by the association and looked forward to each year with much pleasure. Men forget their business troubles and their wives and get together for "one grand time." Bert was the only retail cigar dealer aboard. Not only does he find them enjoyable from a social standpoint, but incidentally Bert manages to pick up a few orders and make new friends that more than repays him for the trip.

Thomas Monroe, well known as a cigar salesman, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Legislature.

The Ross Company, of Detroit, has engaged in the candy and cigar business with a capital stock of $1000, of which all has been subscribed and paid in in cash.

Sandy Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Company, makers of the "Saturday Evening Post" brand, is back from a month's business trip through the West. Mr. Stuart returned enthusiastic about the future, and believes that by fall this country will be in better shape than ever. He received some very large orders for his company and his factory will be busier for the remainder of the summer than has been the case in previous years.

When the telephone bell rang a few weeks ago at the store of Lee & Cady, wholesale grocers at Fort Street and the Michigan Central tracks, and some one at the other end of the line said that Saxton & Warner, 311 Woodward Avenue, wanted 5000 cigarettes, Lee & Cady thought they had made a perfectly good sale. Furthermore, when a party on the line said he would call for the cigarettes so much the better, and the order clerk promptly handed the 5000 cigarettes to the young man who called. A few hours later Saxton & Warner notified the cigar department of the wholesale house that they had absolutely no knowledge of the order. The police are now looking for the young man who executed this latest novelty of "con game."

The Park Cigar Store, on Germania Avenue, Saginaw, Mich., was recently burglarized. Leonard M. Gray, proprietor, said $45

"Fountain Fay" is the title of another cigar which the Friedland Cigar Company, Denver, Col., plan to place on the market. The new product will sell three for twenty-five cents, two for twenty-five cents and ten cents straight. "Fountain Fay" will be composed of seed and Havana.

After having devoted sixty years of active service to the cigar and tobacco trade, John Geiss, Batavia, Ill., has retired, the business having passed into the control of his nephew, Jacob Feldtman, who will conduct the same under the old firm name of Geiss Cigar Company. The factory is now located in Geiss Block, East Wilson Street, having but recently occupied its present quarters. Mr. Feldtman, before acquiring control of his uncle's business, acted in the capacity of superintendent at the factory.

Ollie Hungerford has opened a new billiard parlor at 113 West Main Street, Kalamazoo, Mich. It is located directly opposite from the New Burdick Hotel and is the finest room of its kind in the city. Mr. Hungerford has spared no expense to make his new quarters all that the most exacting person could demand. Ollie will make his place an up-to-date sporting headquarters, with all baseball and race reports posted. He will carry a complete line of high-grade cigars and tobaccos.

Augustin J. Duby, a well known business man of Saginaw, Mich., who for the past six years conducted a buffet and cigar store at 112 South Washington Street, passed away June 9th. He was forty-three years of age and popularly known as "Gus." A wife and daughter survive him.

Other late visitors to our beautiful city have been S. W. LaSchelle, of the LaSchelle Cigar Company, jobbers in Marshalltown, Ia.; W. C. Adams, of the Haskell-Adams Company, of Boston, Mass., wholesale grocers, and H. S. Weller, vice-president of the Richardson Drug Company, of Omaha, Neb., who do a big cigar jobbing business. All of these gentlemen visited our largest factories and got a line on what was being turned out.

Harnish & Brothers Exploiting "Statement"

Certainly, E. M. Harnish & Brothers, Freeport, Ill., numbered among the largest and most successful jobbers in the West, believe in letting the public know what they are doing, this as per a full-page advertisement in a recent issue of the "Journal-Standard" of their city, drawing attention to a new brand of cigars which they are now putting on the market. "Statement" is the name of the new product which is manufactured by not only one of the most reliable but most extensive factories in the world. The reputation being in back of the brand, the product will without doubt win popular approval.

New Home for "Courtello" Cigars

D. F. Fleck, of Reading, manufacturer of the "Courtello" cigar, announces through THE TOBACCO WORLD that his rapidly growing business has made it necessary for him to take larger quarters. To accomplish this end he has taken over the modern four-story building formerly occupied by M. Steppacher and after minor changes will start work as quickly as possible.

The success of the "Courtello" cigar has been unusual considering the short time that it has been on the market. Splendid work has been done on the brand in the anthracite and bituminous coal regions by the Reid Tobacco Company, of Milton and Altoona, Pa.

Strotz-Staff Cigar Store Opens Refreshment Parlor

Following the latest move in the retail cigar trade the Strotz-Staff cigar store in the Hippee Building, Des Moines, Ia., has recently opened a refreshment parlor in addition to its regular store. Here, on any day, one may enjoy the delights of sodas and sundaes and other cooling refreshments.

The new fountain, the fine line of candies, and the attractive arrangement of small tables and chairs has already brought much new business to the store. Experience proves that soda and cigars can be sold in the same store, and although no cigars are exhibited in the refreshment department, many visitors pass from the cigar store to the soda fountain. The excellent manner in which the annex has been arranged has brought scores of women to the parlor, many of whom would not have come had the soda fountain been placed in with the cigar stands.

"7-20-4" Cigars Show Rapid Growth

A news dispatch from Manchester, N. H., calls attention to the fact that the output of the "7-20-4" cigar factory has increased five-fold in the past eleven years.

In 1903 the factory was employing 175 workmen and turning out about 7,000,000 cigars, in 1914 the factory is employing upwards of 1000 hands and turns out 38,000,000 yearly. This cigar now ranks as one of the leading ten-cent sellers and is probably the most popular cigar at that price in the New England States.

The "7-20-4" cigar was introduced by R. G. Sullivan, the manufacturer, in 1883, when the factory was located at 724 Elm Street. Mr. Sullivan is now rounding out a period of forty years in the tobacco industry.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The last week has been a bad one for the tender plants of the new tobacco crop of Lancaster County, because of cold weather. One night there was frost, but it was so light that not much material damage was done. It would have required but a very little lower temperature, however, to have wiped out the entire crop, as the plants, when just set out in the field, are very susceptible to cold.

To add to the growers' troubles cut-worms have appeared, in some localities in such numbers that their ravages have compelled the replanting of entire fields. Fortunately there is no scarcity of plants so far, and as it is yet early in the season the matter is not so serious.

By advice of the local Farm Bureau's agent many growers are now clearing their plants of cut-worms at night, by the use of lanterns, the worms being nocturnal feeders, and more easily destroyed at night than during the day.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

Cooler weather has been a great help to the growers, who are now busy transplanting their tobacco. The weather has prevented wilting and given much assistance in allowing the plants to get an early rooting.

The great bulk of the crop will be safely pitched in the fields by the close of the present week, which is about two weeks in advance of the usual date in this State. The growers are especially fortunate because there is scarcely any shortage of plants in any section, while in most localities the complaint is that the plants have reached the setting stage earlier than desired.

There is some work of packing and rehandling going on at the warehouses and arrangements are being made to start work at one of the stemming plants in this market the coming week.

CONNECTICUT

By the latter part of this week the work of transplanting tobacco in the Connecticut valley will be finished. On the large plantations it was completed some days ago. At the plantation of the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation, Silver Lane, the crop is doing finely.

The season is a little late, due to the cold weather shortly after the beds were sown. It is the opinion of growers that with the exceptional good weather since transplanting the tardiness in setting out will be overcome within a short time and the season will be about the same as last year.

There is a big increase in acreage this year. Farmers are gradually dropping the raising of produce to engage in the cultivation of tobacco, there being a bigger profit in the latter. Cut worms are said to be in evidence, but not in such large numbers as in previous years.

John F. Driscoll, of South Windsor, completed setting out twenty-five acres. Albert F. Burnham will finish in a couple of days and Richard J. Devitt within a short time.

Hunting Brothers and Lowell H. Brewer, the first to transplant hereabouts, will soon finish.

KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Offerings of burley tobacco have been more liberal in our market this week than for some time past, with prices very satisfactory for both old and new crops when in good, sweet condition, while "odds and ends" and such hogsheads as opened in soft or doubtful order continue to sell at very disappointing prices.

Offerings of dark tobacco continue light, with no material change to note either in tone or value as compared with the past two or three weeks.

Since our report of last week but little rain has fallen in the various tobacco growing sections that have not yet completed the work of transplanting the crop, and it would appear from the best information we can get that the intended crop lacks considerable of being on the hill.

Replanting Tobacco in Lancaster County

LANCASTER, PA.

The tobacco farmers of the county were busy today planting tobacco, the recent rains having made conditions favorable for planting. In some sections the farmers are replanting their fields, many of the plants which were placed several weeks ago having been killed by the heat and drouth which prevailed. This is especially true in East Hempfield Township, where nearly half the plants must be replaced. Some fields were nearly entirely in need of replanting.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES KENTUCKY POOLING LAW VIOLATED FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLE OF JUSTICE

Tobacco Pool Declared Illegal—Act Put in Class With Void Anti-Trust Law—Terms of Law too Uncertain to Judge Standard

Washington, D. C., June 24, 1914.

THE act of the Kentucky Legislature of 1906 permitting pools or combinations of producers of tobacco and other agricultural products "for the purpose of obtaining a better or higher price therefor than could or might be obtained by selling said crops separately or individually," has been declared invalid by the Supreme Court of the United States for the reason that it set up a standard of conduct so uncertain that mere human agencies could not be expected to conform to it.

The attitude of the court is the same as was exhibited two weeks ago when the Kentucky Anti-trust act was declared invalid. The blow to the tobacco pooling law was delivered for the same reason that the Anti-trust act was wiped out. The two acts, the court declared, must be considered together, and, this having been done, both acts made the standard of legal conduct the question whether the combination resulted in raising or lowering the price above or below the "real value."

The case decided today arose from the fact that Patrick Collins and Thomas Malone, with other tobacco growers of Mason County, Ky., joined a tobacco pool and subsequently sold their tobacco outside the pool without the consent of the pool agent. The two men were indicted under the Pooling act, which permitted fines to be imposed upon those who violated the agreements intended to be validated thereby.

"The question presented," said the court, "is the same as that decided by this court in International Harvester Company v. Kentucky. It was found that the statute in its reference to 'real value' prescribed no standard of conduct that it was possible to know; that it violated the fundamental principle of justice embraced in the conception of due process of law by compelling men on peril of indictment to guess what their goods would have brought under other conditions not ascertainable.

"The Harvester Company was prosecuted for being a party to a price-raising combination, Collins for breaking a combination agreement and selling outside the pool which he had joined. With respect to each the test of the legality of the combination was said to be whether it raised prices above the 'real value.' If it did, in Collins's case, he would be subject to penalties for remaining in the combination; if it did not he would be punishable for not keeping his tobacco in the pool.

"He was thus bound to ascertain the real value to determine his conduct, not according to the actualities of life or by reference to knowable creteria, but by speculating upon imaginary conditions and endeavoring to conjecture what would be the value under other circumstances. The objection that the statute by reason of its uncertainty was fundamentally defective was as available to Collins as it was to the Harvester Company."

The fatal weakness of the attempts of the Kentucky Legislatures to pass laws that would protect citizens against the inroads of monopoly and at the same time permit the organization of pools which in themselves constituted monopolies but which were intended to defeat other combinations is pointed out by the court.

Evidence of Backwardness of Tobacco Crop

A trip through Northern Tennessee and Western Kentucky by a tobacco reporter has verified the report of the backwardness of the tobacco crops in those sections. The prolonged dry spell which has prevailed without interruption has retarded the growth of the young plants to such an extent that the transplanting of the crops has been seriously delayed.

Preparations had been made to set out a bumper crop, and this would undoubtedly have been done, not only in the dark section, but throughout the burley belt as well, but for the lack of suitable rains.

A good rain in Northern Tennessee and the extreme southwestern section of Kentucky on Wednesday night proved beneficial and much work has been accomplished in the field since then. The transplanting of the crop is being pushed forward now with all the help available and it is expected that the entire acreage will be set by the end of June.

The area planted in Kentucky and Tennessee will fall short of that which was prepared by at least 25 per cent., but even with this reduction it is likely that both the burley and dark crops will be larger than last year. The river counties of Kentucky just southwest of Cincinnati were visited by a shower yesterday, which should enable the growers to get the remainder of their crops in the field.

Hickey Brothers Open Store No. 6

Hickey Brothers, the well-known retail tobacconists of Davenport, Ia., have recently opened their sixth retail store at Third and Harrison Streets. After weeks of effort the finishing touches have been put to the fixtures. The interior is finished in solid mahogany with marble trimmings, while the system of indirect lighting suffuses the store with a steady and clear light, evenly distributed. The finest lines of clear Havana and domestic goods are in stock.

Tony LeClaire and Harold Morgan have been secured by Hickey Brothers to manage their new cigar store, No. 6. Mr. LeClaire will be chief clerk and will be assisted by Mr. Morgan. The former has been in the retail cigar business for ten years and is regarded as one of the most popular and capable men engaged in the trade. Mr. Morgan until recently was local representative for the Central Deep Creek Orchard Company, of Twin Falls, Idaho, and has many friends in the vicinity. Hickey Brothers are to be congratulated in securing two such men to manage their new store.

20,000 Stogies From Hann Factory

With its daily output of stogies running from 12,000 to 25,000, averaging a daily output of 20,000 stogies, the G. P. Hann stogie factory, South Seventh Street, Zanesville, O., is very proud of its record, and states that while their product has a national reputation, orders of exceptional size are sent to Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Oakland, Cal., and Omaha, Neb.

BOBROWS GRANTED INJUNCTION RESTRAINING MAKERS OF "GLAD"

Decision of Court Upholds Bobrow Bros.—"Glad" Label As Now Used "Unfair Competition," Says Opinion —Evidence Showed that "Bold" Advertising Had Increased Trade and Made Good Will

IN the recent case of Bobrow Bros. v. the manufacturer of the "Glad" cigar, much of interest to the cigar trade is to be found in the opinion recently handed down by Judge Staake in the Court of Common Pleas granting Bobrow Bros. a temporary injunction. While it was possible for Bobrow Bros. to prosecute the case on the grounds of right acquired by virtue of the registration of the title "Bold" as a United States trade-mark, this was not done, but the suit was brought on the grounds that the title "Glad" as used in competition was unfair, unjust and unlawful. This charge was upheld by exhibits showing the similarity of the use of the "Glad" title and label to that of the "Bold" and also by witnesses who stated one not seeing the two boxes together would be deceived by the "Glad" label. The importance of this testimony is shown in the following words of the court:

> "We repeat, the court is convinced from the evidence that the label, mark and brand of the defendant are in imitation of those of the plaintiffs, and that they were adopted with the intention of deceiving the public and the buyers of cigars; that this imitation label, mark and brand are calculated to deceive persons purchasing cigars and that they were adopted by the defendant for the purpose of deriving benefit from the plaintiffs' good will which plaintiffs had acquired in the manufacture and sale of the brand known as 'Bold' cigars In the citation of various opinions, it is pointed out and brand by the plaintiffs."

The opinion further states that the evidence submitted to the court showed a very generous expenditure for advertising by the plaintiffs, so that the "Bold" cigar "became well known to the wholesale and retail trade and was recognized by the name, design and label, which recognition became a large and valuable good will to the plaintiffs."

In the cotation of various opinions, it is pointed out that it is not necessary to claim fraudulent intent in order to secure court intervention. It is cited from the case of Portuondo v. Portuondo, 222 Pa. 116, which was an appeal from the Court of Common Pleas No. 3 of this county, that "the general rule is that anything done by a rival in the same business by imitation or otherwise, designed or calculated to mislead the public, in the belief that in buying the product offered by him for sale, they were buying the product of another manufacturer, is in fraud of the other's rights, and will afford just grounds for equitable interference."

The opinion says further:

> "It could hardly be successfully contended that the word 'Glad' as a name alone could be taken by any one for the word 'Bold,' notwithstanding both are words of four letters and that each word contains the letters 'L' and 'D.' It would appear, however, that it

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE STILL INVESTIGATING TOBACCO FIELD

Every Phase of Industry Being Carefully Studied—Government Has Threefold Purpose—Conducted Under Authority of Last Clause of Dissolution Decree

NEW YORK, July 10, 1914.

WHILE denying the reports of a new trust suit, it is admitted that the Department of Justice is now busily engaged in one of the most complete investigations of the tobacco industry ever made. A staff of five or six men are now at work under the direction of Claude A. Thompson, Special Assistant United States Attorney, and it is believed that fully six months will elapse before the investigation is completed. When the data is tabulated it is expected that a report will be made to the Attorney-General with recommendations from H. Snowden Marshall, United States District Attorney.

Every phase of the manufacture of tobacco products is being thoroughly studied and Mr. Thompson has just returned from a trip through five or six of the tobacco-producing states.

A report from Washington states that Attorney-General McReynolds has never been satisfied with the Supreme Court decree against the old tobacco combine. It is said that he is conducting a quiet investigation to determine the effectiveness of the decree with a view of instituting proceedings in the Supreme Court to have the decree strengthened.

The investigation is being conducted under the authority of the last clause of the dissolution decree, which provides that in event of other orders being needed to accomplish the Court's will, the Circuit Court should retain jurisdiction for that purpose.

The purpose of the investigation is threefold, according to Mr. Thompson. In the first place, it is intended to discover whether the companies have been guilty of violating the decree. Secondly, assuming that there has been no actual violation, an effort is being made to determine whether the decree has been sufficient to carry out the purpose of the court by re-establishing competitive conditions in the tobacco business. And, thirdly, the Government is desirous of knowing whether there are any companies existing today in violation of the law. The wide range given to the investigation by the scope of the facts which are to be elicited includes everything from the planting of the tobacco to the manufacture of licorice, tinfoil and boxes.

New "Partagas" Samples Coming for Robert Lane

The man with the "Partagas smile," genial Robert E. Lane, is still smiling and feeling mighty good over the news that he is going to receive some new "Partagas" samples shortly. Mr. Lane states that these goods will be masterpieces of the cigarmaker's art and in addition will contain some new ideas in the way of cigars. Good business on the finer sizes of "Partagas" has kept Mr. Lane busy and he looks forward to a still busier period when the new samples arrive.

Successful manufacturers in almost every line of manufacturing are constantly harassed by imitations of their goods placed on the market at lower prices to the trade and intended to deceive the public.

Stopping "Unfair Competition"

What is true of the general trade is true of the cigar business in particular. Manufacturers of unbanded nickel goods who have spent fortunes in advertising their goods to both the trade and the consumer, building up a reputation for their cigars and meeting with eventual success, have always been more or less preyed upon by unscrupulous manufacturers who, lacking a proper sense of good sportsmanship, have imitated in some ways the package or label or both of the successful brand, tending to deceive the general public and to attract trade from the advertised goods to the imitation.

Right here it might be said that these imitators would not be able to meet with sufficient success to warrant them continuing such sharp practices were it not for the fact that by offering the goods at a lower price they are able to find retailers who lose sight of the real issue and consider the monetary gain.

As a matter of fact, the volume of sales from the widely advertised goods more than makes up for the greater profit derived from the sales of the unadvertised goods, but this fact is often overlooked, and when the end comes, as it eventually does to the imitators, the retailer who has stocked these goods in preference to the advertised cigars, finds that he not only has lost the sales on the brand withdrawn, but also that some other retailer is now getting his trade on the advertised brand.

The Court of Common Pleas No. 5, has recently handed down a decision in such a case and the story is treated in detail on another page.

The opinion in the case in question points out that it is not necessary to show fraudulent intent, but that an individual or a firm may, innocently, manufacture and sell goods under a label of such similarity to an already established brand that the injured firm may ask for court interference on the grounds of "unfair competition."

In this case the plaintiffs were granted a temporary injunction and the opinion in several places reiterates that the evidence tended to show that the defendant was indulging in "unfair competition."

Philadelphia, in particular, has many manufacturers of nickel cigars which are known from coast to coast. It is safe to say that practically every one of these manufacturers suffer in this city from imitations which are quietly marketed.

The step taken by this young firm in protecting their rights is a worthy example, and if other cases were prosecuted with like diligence it would only be a question of a short time when the imitations would disappear from the market.

It is a fact worthy of observance that a manufacturer who imitates another brand seldom, if ever, advertises that brand to the trade or the consumer, but builds up his business on the success of another. There are cases where brands and labels are innocently imitated, but generally in such cases the manufacturer is only too glad to withdraw the same and build up a business on his own merits and those of his goods.

Trade Conditions Quiet, Says F. R. Hoisington

In an interview with a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD, F. R. Hoisington, president of the Cayey Caguas Tobacco Company, stated that he found trade conditions in general dull, while the ordering of goods was being done very conservatively.

"Our own cigars have been very successful," said Mr. Hoisington, "and our first six months have shown a remarkable increase in business. We have determined that 'Savarona' cigars shall represent the very best product of Porto Rico, and we think that results obtained speak for themselves. We also think that our increase in business is due to the intrinsic merit of good Porto Rican cigars, and at the same time cigars which have the tropical aroma and quality.

"You can see by reference to the shipments from Porto Rico," he added, "and other lists published by the tobacco papers that Porto Rico this year has lost in production less than any of the other principal manufacturing points, and this in spite of a strike on the Island, which cut down the production of the biggest factory very materially."

"Charles the Great" in Portland, Oregon

Quite a good deal of prominence is being given to Salvador Rodriguez "Charles the Great" cigar by Si S. Rich in his two stores in Portland, Ore. Mr. Rich is the sole retailer of this brand in Portland, and reports that it has been the means of increasing the patronage of both his stores.

Turkish Tobacco Crops by Districts

"In view of the fact that the famous Turkish cigarette tobacco fields in European Turkey have been divided up between Greece and Bulgaria, the following table, showing the districts from which each country draws its cigarette tobacco, and also designating which districts have passed to Greece, Bulgaria and Servia, may be of interest.

"The highest priced tobacco is from Cavalla and Xanthi. While Cavalla has fallen to Greece, Xanthi has passed under the control of the Bulgarians. For the present the Bulgarian authorities have made no important changes in the laws concerning the control and exportation of tobacco, but it is said that a Bulgarian tobacco monopoly may be established before long.

"Austria was the largest purchaser of Turkish tobacco during the year ended March 13, 1912, taking 38,748,578 pounds. The United States was the next largest buyer, taking 20,479,409 pounds. Both of these countries buy heavily of the high-priced Cavalla tobacco, and in fact Cavalla furnished 33 per cent. of the total amount of tobacco exported from Turkey during the year ended March 13, 1912. In the future this large item will figure in Greek and Bulgarian exports, the Bulgarian output being shipped from Port Lagos.

"The exports of leaf tobacco to Russia were 1,343,795 pounds, to the Netherlands 622,424 pounds, and to France 450,048 pounds.

"The following were the exports of leaf tobacco, by districts, during the year ended March 13, 1912, and the principal countries of destination:

"United" Store Burglars' Victim Again

After the withdrawal of a detective, who had been watching the United cigar store at 114 Third Avenue for some time past, burglars promptly broke into the store the night following the removal of the detective. This little bit of safe cracking netted these experts some $535.

A building in the course of construction next to the store employs a nightwatchman and it was thought that the detective was superfluous. Facts indicate otherwise. The prosperous stands of the "United" have been very shabbily treated by the Knights of the Mask and Gun during the past year.

The Tobacco Trade to Move Forward

Indicative of the future is the news that many big tobacco concerns which have been withholding their advertising for the past months are about to open up with campaigns that will cost several million dollars.

It is stated that the American Tobacco Company is about to launch an advertising campaign of forty weeks' duration, which will cost in the neighborhood of $1,200,000.

Tobacco Firm Not Guilty

Representatives of the Mill-McCoull Company, of New York, appeared before Police Justice Brady recently, in Albany, to answer a charge of the violation of Section 883 of the Labor Law. The alleged violation occurred in the cigar and news stand in Stanwix Hall, where it was said a young woman clerk had worked every day in a week without rest. It was also charged the company had not posted a schedule of hours required by law when an employee is compelled to work Sunday. Judge Brady dismissed the case, stating that there was no evidence that the company in question had anything to do with the stand which was evidently owned by an individual.

Ban on German Tobacco Trust Cigarettes

The Bavarian War Ministry has recently sent out an order from Munich, ordering all branches of the Bavarian Army, including the officers' messes and men's canteens to purchase their cigarettes only from firms independent of the tobacco trust. Cigarettes made by the trust have already been banned from Bavarian railway stations.

was not the word 'Glad' which was alone complained of as being evidence of unfair competition by the defendant, but it was the manner in which the word 'Glad' was used by placing it on the label in such a position or manner by having the word running diagonally across the label from the lower left-hand corner to the upper right-hand corner thereof in such letters and with such a shaded background, with such scroll work upon the label, together with the placing of the defendant's monogram also upon the said label.

"The act of the defendant, however innocent, is considered constructively fraudulent if the result would tend to unfair trade, to confusion of goods, and to interference with the rights of another.

"The conclusion of the court therefore is that the use of said label, mark and brand by the defendant in the manner now used and complained of by the plaintiffs constitutes unfair trade competition as against the plaintiffs, and that an injunction should be issued restraining the defendant from using the word 'Glad' as a brand for cigars manufactured by him or sold by him in such a way as to imitate the labels of the plaintiffs used by them upon their brand of cigars known as 'Bold' cigars; that a preliminary injunction should be issued restraining the defendant until final hearing from using the word 'Glad' as a brand for cigars manufactured by him or sold by him in such a way as to imitate the labels of plaintiffs used upon the brand of cigars known as 'Bold' cigars."

The case was prosecuted for the plaintiffs by Maurice Weinberg, assisted by Owen Roberts.

Charles Bobrow, member of the firm of Bobrow Bros., when interviewed by a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD in regard to the decision said:

"The decision speaks for itself. It was a case of unfair competition and we felt from the beginning that we would win on the merits of the case. Of course, the suit may be carried to a higher court, but we are prepared to carry the matter to the highest court in the country, and feel confident of victory.

"This decision also strengthens our fighting similar cases of this kind, and we shall waste no time in prosecuting.

"The opinion shows that we had excellent grounds for the present suit, and in the future we will be very prompt to take action in similar cases.

"It is high time that the manufacturers began to take notice of sharp practices and especially where manufacturers attempt to imitate the packages and labels of widely advertised tobacco products.

"The opinion handed down by Judge Staake shows that there is justice to be had in such matters of unfair competition and that manufacturers are justified in appealing for aid to the courts."

A. M. Schwarz, advertising manager of Bobrow Bros., said in regard to the decision:

"This is our second successful suit in restraining imitators, and we intend to keep a watchful eye open for these business pirates, never resorting to 'watchful waiting', but always nipping in the bud all attempts to derive pecuniary benefit from the fruits of our labor."

C. Breneiser & Sons, Reading, Pa., report increasing business on Bobrow Bros. "Bold" cigar in the territory which they cover.

Frederick J. Covington

Frederick J. Covington, thirty-six years old, a cigar manufacturer and tobacco grower of West Suffield, Conn., died at his home on the twelfth instant.

Mr. Covington came to West Suffield about seventeen years ago from Cardinal, Canada, where he was born. In 1904, he purchased the cigar manufacturing business of James Van Gelder, which he conducted until this spring, when he sold out to his brother, Burt Covington and J. J. Barnett, who formed the company of Barnett & Covington.

In addition Mr. Covington was a successful farmer and raised tobacco extensively.

Mr. Covington was a member of the Apollo Lodge of Masons.

The deceased is survived by a widow, one son and one daughter.

Noah W. Baker Succumbs

Noah W. Baker, one of the pioneer tobacco merchants of Montgomery County, Ohio, died at his home, 15 Linden Avenue, Dayton, Ohio, on July 10th. He succumbed to paralysis, with which he had been afflicted for many years.

He is survived by a widow, three daughters and four sons.

New Cigar Company Organized

Announcement of the organization of the Goodman-Lanstrum Cigar Company of Helena, Mont., has been recently made. The new organization is composed of Abe Goodman, George W. Lanstrum, Sam Goodman, Max Goodman, J. P. Bahnsen and Alex Goodman. The firm will have a capital of $25,000.

The company announces that it has acquired the store of Steele & Bahnsen, the Placer Hotel cigar stand and the Lochray-Burns cigar store in Great Falls, Mont. In addition to operating these retail stores, it will also deal in wholesale tobacco.

The Steele & Bahnsen store in Helena, and the Lochray-Burns store in Great Falls, will be remodeled and fitted up in a first-class manner, with the view of making them among the most up-to-date cigar stores in the two cities.

George Lanstrum will have charge of the Placer cigar stand, Abe and Alex Goodman will have charge of the Great Falls store, and Max Goodman and J. P. Bahnsen will take charge of the present Steele & Bahnsen store.

American Tobacco Company Leases Another Factory

A large factory building at the northeast corner of Carlisle Avenue and Baymiller Street, Cincinnati, O., which was formerly occupied by the Day and Night Tobacco Company, manufacturers of "Day and Night," "Red Devil," "Sea Lion," and many other brands of chewing tobacco, was leased during the past week by the American Tobacco Company to the Kruse Hardware Company, now located in a number of separate buildings on Pearl Street.

The lease, commencing August 1st, extends over a period of fifteen years, at a term rental said to be about $200,000. The tenant is given the privilege of purchasing the property for $230,000.

Decatur Tobacconist Bankrupt

Thomas A. Quinn, owner of a cigar factory and a retail tobacco merchant of Decatur, Ill., was adjudged a bankrupt recently in the United States District Court. The petitioner gave his assets as $1,241.07 and his liabilities as $1,215.93.

Cigar Manufacturers Find Business Good—J. H. Boltz, Jr., on Visit to Philadelphia—Emilio Pons Convalescing TAMPA, July 11th.

IT is an old saying that "self-praise is no recommendation," but Tampa may be forgiven if she never tires of recounting her splendid achievements in the cigar manufacturing line. While reports from other sections of the country are of a gloomy and melancholy nature, Tampa moves merrily on. Excellent business is being done in many of her factories, while some of the larger concerns state that they find it rather difficult to keep up with the influx of orders. Prosperous times are reported at the Morgan Cigar Company, "Juan de Fuca"; J. M. Martinez Company, "Norma Martinez"; Salvador Rodriguez, "Charles the Great"; Quiros, Villazon & Company, "Villazon"; Boltz, Clymer & Company, "El Palencia"; and Sanchez y Haya, "Sanchez y Haya."

"Making in bond" is the order of the day. Garcia & Vega have joined the fraternity.

Helen Donahue, who presides over the fortunes of the cigar stand at the "Hillsboro," is expected back in Tampa shortly, following a visit to relatives in New Orleans.

John H. Boltz, Jr., synonym for "El Palencia," is at the present time in Philadelphia, making his annual visit home. Mr. Boltz expects to be gone three weeks.

W. B. Moore, one of Florida's well-known tobacco and cigarette salesmen, spent several days here calling on the trade.

Jose Lovera, our well-known manufacturer, is at present in Havana, and will be away two weeks.

Eli Witt, Tampa's noted distributer, left here recently accompanied by his bride, for Jacksonville, from whence they planned to sail for New York.

The numerous friends of Emilio Pons will be glad to learn that his condition is improving. Mr. Pons recently underwent a severe operation. In addition to ranking as one of our first cigar manufacturers, Mr. Pons also claims the distinction of being one of the pioneers of our Latin colony.

R. S. Tatum, formerly making his headquarters at Jacksonville, acting in the capacity of general agent of the cigarette department for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, with which position he has been identified for several years, has secured the state agency for the well-known Sanchez & Haya brands, in addition to that of the O. K. Cigar Company. Mr. Tatum is confident that he has two first-class propositions.

A small blaze originating in the pump-house of the Sanchez & Haya factory recently, was quelled by vice-president and general manager E. J. Stachelberg and a few assistants. The loss amounted to but a trifling sum.

The "truly Spanish" house of Cuesta, Rey & Company recently forwarded as a gift to King Alfonso of Spain, via the Spanish Ambassador at Washington, a box of "White Heather" cigars, made especially for the King by Manuel Picallo Ferrer, reputed to be not only the most expert cigar-maker of Cuesta, Rey & Company, but of the city as well. The box containing the cigars was made in Cuba and is of wonderful workmanship. Each royal cigar bore a band containing the initials of the King, the bands having been especially designed and made for the purpose. No detail to make the gift a truly royal one was lacking.

"Geometricos," Sanchez & Haya New Offering

Much attention is being attracted by the latest offering of the Sanchez & Haya Company, Tampa, Fla., which consists of a peculiarly shaped box containing twenty-five straight-shaped "Sanchez & Haya" cigars, the package retailing at $5.00. The cigars are of the finest quality and should prove a very attractive proposition to the first-class box trade. The package, which is known as "Geometricos," was designed by E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the company. Patent has been applied for.

Manila Commercial Company Gets Old Brands

A. Determan, of the Manila Commercial Company, announces that his house has acquired the title to the leading brands formerly controlled by Carlos Fernandez & Co., including the famous "Las Palmas" and "La Corona Royal" labels, which they will be able to supply to all old or new customers who may desire those brands.

As "Las Palmas" and "La Corona Royal" cigars were made for Carlos Fernandez & Co. in the factory of the Manila Commercial Company, purchasers of the brand in the future are assured that they will get the same identical cigar under those labels that they have in the past.

Sidney Labe With Rosenberg & Company

He will cover the trade in this section and will also travel over western territory, with which he is familiar.

Third Big Theft of Cigars

The third robbery within a month of wholesale quantities of cigars caused the police of Minneapolis, Minn., to renew their search for an organized band of cigar thieves. The third theft took place recently, when two men drove to the loading platform at the rear of the Nathanson Cigar Company, 429 First Avenue, N., and stole 10,000 cigars that had been packed for shipment. The men used a light delivery wagon and several persons who saw them supposed they had been ordered to haul the goods. The robbery made a total of 20,000 cigars and 25,000 cigarettes that have been stolen. The first two robberies were at the Northern Pacific and Minneapolis and St. Louis freight depots.

Toplitz Becomes Pasbach-Voice Manager

Henry Toplitz, for many years with the lithographic firm of William Steiner, Sons & Co., has recently accepted the position of manager for the new firm of the Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company.

Opens New Cigar Store

H. B. Adams, who has operated a cigar and tobacco store on South Main Street, Gloversville, N. Y., for several months past, opened his new store in the Cady & Dartch Theatre Building, on North Main Street recently. The store is equipped with new fixtures and is modern and up to date in every respect.

The Death of Benno Neuberger

THE eternal verity of the old quotation that "death loves a shining mark," was most keenly felt in the entire trade when cabled news reached New York on Monday, July 6th, that Benno Neuberger, the senior member of the firm of E. Rosenwald & Brother, had died in Koenigstein, Germany, where he was spending the summer season with his family.

Mr. Neuberger's connection with the cigar leaf tobacco trade dates back to his infancy, when as a boy he imbibed the principles of the business in the warehouse of his father, Heinrich Neuberger, in Bremen. When a lad of fifteen, he came to the United States and took a position with the firm of E. Rosenwald & Brother, which was composed of four of his uncles. From the outset of his business experience in New York, Mr. Neuberger evinced an ability as a merchant and as a judge of tobacco, which quickly stamped him as the logical successor to the head of the splendid firm with which his entire life was associated. Just after he reached his majority, his uncles took him into partnership, and entrusted to his care the purchases of tobacco at the Amsterdam inscriptions. For twenty-eight years, this particular branch of the business has been under his personal direction, and to his exceptional ability as a judge of tobacco leaf for American consumption, the ever-expanding increase in the business of the house can be directly attributed, as Mr. Neuberger has long been regarded as one of the leading experts, not only of the United States, but of the world, on Sumatra tobacco.

Upon the death of his three uncles, and the subsequent retirement of Sigmund, Mr. Neuberger became the head of E. Rosenwald & Brother, which position he occupied at the time of his death. It is safe to say that Benno Neuberger would have been a most successful and important figure in any branch of commercial life which he might have elected in his youth, owing to the fact that he combined in a most extraordinary degree the unusual qualifications of tremendous constructive ability with a rigid integrity, a combination which is as rare as it is precious. He planned along the widest avenues, but his path was always a straight one, and not even the most envious in the trade would dare to whisper a word reflecting upon the probity and honor of the man and his firm. Mr. Neuberger was, if anything, so jealous of this good name, that he fought against any method in business which would in the leastwise open the door for sharp practices, and in every convention or gathering in which his voice was raised, the subject of his speech could always be counted upon as a plea for honesty in intention as well as method. His firm originated the practice several years ago of certifying to the quality and genuineness of every bale of tobacco which the house handled, so that while it was not considered necessary, the customer was able to trace the history of the goods he was buying and ascertain for himself that he was getting precisely the merchandise he was paying for.

Mr. Neuberger was intensely human both in thought and action, and his benefactions to the poor and needy, amounted to vast sums annually, though like all true Samaritans, little was known of his personal activity in this direction. In later years, with his business so splendidly organized, Mr. Neuberger devoted more and more time to his philanthropic interests, and these cares, together with his business, undermined his health to a degree which he himself did not realize until about four or five years ago. Last fall he underwent a major operation at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, and his apparently rapid recovery lulled him into a belief that he was much stronger than he really was. Despite the requests of his partners to remain at home, he decided that he would not miss the spring inscriptions at Amsterdam, and he sailed for Europe in March as usual. Later on, his wife and family crossed over to spend the summer in Germany, and Mr. Neuberger joined them at Koenigstein about the middle of June. A breakdown followed a few days later, and such alarming reports reached New York that his brother-in-law, Edwin Meyer, sailed two weeks ago to join him. When Mr. Meyer reached Koenigstein, he cabled that Mr. Neuberger was so much improved that he intended to come right back home, but on the day following came the sudden announcement of his death.

Mr. Neuberger is survived by his widow and son, Harry H. Neuberger, who is at present in college, and a daughter, Miss Florence Neuberger. His domestic life at his beautiful home, 55 East Seventy-fourth Street, was most cultured and delightful in every respect. It is understood that the remains will probably be brought to the United States for interment, but this matter had not been decided upon up until Saturday last, and will probably depend upon the wishes of his family and brother, Mr. Moritz Neuberger, who is at present in Germany.

Mr. Neuberger was an ex-president of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade and of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, and his interest in this organization never flagged. He was also a director and a most active member of the Harmonie Club and spent quite some hours of relaxation there. The Hebrew Infant Asylum was the one great burden on his heart in a charitable way, and his labors in behalf of this institution were astounding He not only gave thousands of dollars, but he secured many additional thousands from wealthy friends, to whom he never tired of detailing the beautiful work which the institution was doing. His counsel, benefactions and love for the asylum will be pathetically missed for some years to come.

His every-day life was an absolute index to Mr. Neuberger's character, but no word of tribute would be complete without mention of the exquisite vein of sentiment which dominated many of the actions of his life. The much-beloved Henry B. Harris, the prominent theatrical man who went down on the "Titanic," was a close friend of Mr. Neuberger's, and it may be recalled that the year following, went across the Atlantic, and at approximately the spot where the disaster took place, Mr. Neuberger cast on the waters a wreath of flowers in tender remembrance of his friend.

Touching more closely upon the life of the writer, Benno Neuberger's memory will always be cherished for the beautiful courtesies extended my beloved mother, when accompanied by my father, they made their first visit to Amsterdam and Rotterdam in 1910. She, too, has wandered out into the "far and unknown country."

The Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company

OSCAR PASBACH and J. A. Voice, who recently resigned from the corporation of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, announce that they have organized a new concern to be known as the Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company, and that they have secured the entire plant, patents, copyright, trademarks and good will of the long established Julius Bien Company, which has been located for a number of years at 140-142 Sixth Avenue, occupying the entire building of six floors. Both of these men are thoroughly experienced in their line, and Oscar Pasbach will occupy his old role as supervisor of the manufacturing end of the business, while Mr. Voice will take charge of the office and selling end. Mr. Voice's brother, who was associated with him in the other enterprise, will cover Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Washington, as heretofore.

The company announce that their plans are not yet fully formulated, but notwithstanding that they are spending a lot of money in modernizing their recent acquisition, putting in new presses, etc., they are prepared to handle orders immediately.

T. J. Dunn & Company Put Out "La Dunora"

Retailing at 10 cents and consisting of Havana filler and fine Connecticut broad leaf wrapper, the "La Dunora," just placed on the market by T. J. Dunn & Company, manufacturers of the renowned "New Bachelor," is reported as being well received by the trade.

Heard on Broadway

Frederick S. Lucey, the genial secretary of Philip Morris & Company, is booked to sail for England shortly via the "Aquitania" for his annual vacation.

Eduardo H. Gato, Sr., and his son Eduardo are taking a two months' vacation in New York. Both have found Asbury Park an agreeable resort and they will no doubt spend considerable of their time at that place.

Julius Lichenstein, president of the American-Sumatra Tobacco Company, has been on a recent visit to Florida, and while there sent in some very favorable reports on the new crops.

Leslie Pantin, the well known commission merchant of Havana, Cuba, was a visitor for a brief period in New York, following his return from Europe, where he has been for a number of weeks.

Matthew W. Berriman, of the firm of Berriman Bros., makers of the well known "Jose Vila" cigar, has left New York for his summer camp at Point Comfort, Quebec. Mrs. Berriman and the family accompanied Mr. Berriman. This is an annual trip for the Berrimans and they usually do not break camp until some time in August.

New York Office Established for "Nena" Cigars

IN spite of the general complaint in regard to trade conditions it is gratifying to learn that the success of the "Nena" cigar recently introduced in this section by the firm of Reguera & Berengher, of New Orleans, has been such as to necessitate the establishment of a New York office. The placing of "Nena" in this section will hereafter be done by Maxwell S. Kulla, at 2 and 4 Stone Street.

J. W. Berengher, who has been pushing the brand in New York and the vicinity for some months, has returned to New Orleans and will hereafter direct the selling force from the home office.

To Change Value of "United" Stores Stock

At a recent meeting of directors of the United Cigar Stores Company, a resolution was passed recommending the reduction in the par value of both common and preferred stocks from $100 to $10. A special meeting of stockholders will be called to act on the recommendation of the directors.

A statement will be sent out to stockholders, signed by President C. A. Whelan, explaining that the reduction in the par value of United shares will give an opportunity to employees and customers to secure an interest in the business for which they either work or of which they are patrons.

It is further pointed out that inasmuch as the articles of incorporation provide that in the event of any dissolution of the company, preferred stock is entitled to $140 a share and any accrued dividends, the new stock will be called in at $14 a share and dividends, or on the same basis.

"Cado" Cigarettes With Cork Tips

The Cado Company, manufacturers of the new "Cado" cigarettes, 15 cents the package, announce that owing to the increasing demand for this brand in the cork tip, the company will shortly introduce the same to the trade. The success of the "Cado" cigarette has surpassed expectations and it is believed that when they are furnished in both the plain and the cork tip, the business on this brand will receive a new impetus.

Big Business on "La Famosa"

June 30th closed for E. Kleiner & Company, the well-known New York firm and manufacturers of the noted "La Famosa," the largest first six months of any year since the inception of the company. Not only is the factory oversold on several shapes of the "La Famosa," which has been experiencing a wonderful demand in many sections of the country, but they report a splendid demand on "Marie Antoinette" and "Lord Macaulay."

"National Cigar Day" Committee to Meet

A meeting of the committee appointed to take up the matter of a "National Cigar Day" has been set for July 17th. It will be held at the Press Club. It is understood that the plans are formulated for the promotion of the enterprise and that they will be disclosed at the meeting.

Chicago

Warm Weather No Detriment to Trade—Celestino Vega Pooh-Poohs Calamity Howling—El Preciso Cigar Company New Arrival—"Van Bibber" Little Cigars Making a Hit

CHICAGO, ILL., July 10, 1914.

MIDSUMMER conditions is the cigar and tobacco trade continue to be about all that the members could wish. Jobbers and distributors, as well as manufacturers and dealers, declare that the warm weather has not harmed trade to any serious extent. Certain outside conditions have entered into the situation since the last writing which have not been conductive to better business, to say the least.

One of these is an ordinance which was passed by the city council forbidding booths in saloons where women are allowed to enter. The measure, which was passed by a heavy vote, requires that none of the booths be so high that the occupants cannot clearly be seen by the other patrons of the wine-room. Booths are permitted if they are no higher than the chair in which the occupants sit, but it is not thought probable that any of the saloons will content themselves with installing the prescribed furniture. They will simply comply with the ordinance by tearing out the booths and letting the matter stop at that. This means that a large class of trade which formerly consumed high-grade imported cigars in large quantities will either have to cease the practice of screening their faces when they enter saloons with women companions or confine their operations to private premises, where the sale of cigars will be curtailed. The ordinance was passed by the council after certain members had been bombarded by club women, including the contingent which is against the tobacco business. The liquor men did not use their influence to stop the passage of the ordinance, declaring that they did not wish to do anything which was contrary to the will of the people, as represented by the city council.

The El Preciso Cigar Company is the name of a new factory which incorporated here last week. The capital stock is mentioned at $5000. The incorporators are R. H. Milley, George Bohn and H. E. Gunderlach. The addition of a new factory to the large number already located in this city is most welcome news. In spite of the fact that Chicago is a city of 2,000,000 people, and that the male population is of the sort which smokes cigars, more than the normal number of outside cigars are smoked here. Whether this is because the local manufacturers are more interested in pushing the sale of goods outside of this city than they are within the confines, it is impossible to say, but such is the situation.

The new cigar store which was opened by the United Cigar Stores Company on the southwest corner of State and Congress Streets has been doing a fine business from the first day. This is a section of the city which is growing fast in the public favor. Property values are rising, and the real estate department of the company is to be congratulated on securing this location. On the opening day every customer at the store was given double certificates and prizes, as follows: Pack playing cards with every 25-cent purchase, half pound box candy with every 50-cent purchase, leather cigar case or bronze ash tray with every $1 purchase, box of "Ricoro" cigars with every $2.50 purchase, box "Orlando" or "Regina" cigars with every $5 purchase, humidor or smoker's stand with every $10 purchase. The opening day saw the store well patronized, and many of the prizes were given away.

Much progress is also being made by the new firm of Bernstein & Schley, which recently incorporated to deal in cigars, tobacco and confections. The capital stock was $2500. The incorporators are Sol M. Bernstein, I. F. Schley and Leonard L. Cowen.

Burglars recently broke into the store of Harmon & Bendorff, on the West Side, and stole 16,000 cigars valued at $500. As may be imagined the cigars were not the best in the house, but were intended for the cheap trade. No traces were left behind by the marauders, and although detectives have been hard on the trail, no clew has been discovered. This is only one of many robberies of cigar stores which have taken place on the West Side since the beginning of the year. The police attribute all of the work to the same gang.

Newmann & Gach, the well known tobacconists of this city, have issued an attractive novelty in the way of a match holder and striker for use in the home, which has proved a winner. The device is in circular form and liberally covered with advertising matter for the company.

Everett Meyer, who looks after the local sales of P. Lorillard's goods, with the exception of the cigarettes, declares that "Van Bibber" little cigars are making a big hit. This cigar is made for the man who has not the time to smoke a cigar of the ordinary proportions. The sale at the theatres for smokes between the acts has been heavy, as the cigar is just the right size for consumption in a period of this duration. The campaign on "Van Bibber" little cigars is a sort of revival of a former popularity which these cigars won. The comparative ease with which the public remembered the cigar, says Mr. Meyer, is due to the original and genuine merit of the goods, as well as to the excellent reputation of the company in this city.

Celestino Vega, of Celestino Vega & Company, was a visitor to the city last week. Mr. Vega does not get to town often and his presence was therefore something of an occasion in local cigar circles. He keeps rather close to the factory at Tampa, Fla., most of the time, and is more in touch with the manufacturing end of the business than any other branch. He is well known here, however, and has many strong friends in the local trade.

"I take no stock in this calamity howling," said Mr. Vega when told that some of the local cigar men were of the opinion that trade was in an unsatisfactory condition. "The country is sound at the core and any depression which exists must be of a local character or else a mere passing cloud which will soon be gone. We are running our big factory at capacity at the present time, and are hustling to keep pace with the demands for our goods. It is true that some sections of the country are not as good as they might be, but that is true at all times. I believe that at the present time the average condition is good."

E. R. Strauss, manager of the local distributing branch of the company at 10 South Wabash Avenue, was of the same opinion.

The local trade was surprised last week to hear that Arthur Berlitzheimer, of Fromherz & Berlitzheimer, manufacturers of clear Havana cigars, will withdraw from the firm. Mr. Berlitzheimer has been prominent in the local trade for more than twenty-five years, and was looked upon as one of the leaders of the manufacturers of this city in all movements for trade uplift. He headed the recent fight which was made by the smaller factories against the bonding provision and succeeded in arousing a national opposition to the measure. No changes will take place in the firm of Fromherz & Berlitzheimer. Mr. Fromherz will remain president as formerly, while Henry J. Berlitzheimer will act as vice-president. The trade regrets to lose Mr. Berlitzheimer. He was an active member, a credit to the business, and a man who was liked no less for his genial and progressive character than for his squareness in all business deals.

Best & Russell, the local distributors, continue to make a great run on the "Owl" brand, which they have placed in almost every store in the city. Extensive advertising is contemplated by the company on this cigar this fall, which, added to the already extensive publicity which has been given to the cigar, is expected to stimulate sales in a remarkable manner.

The cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Company continues to prosper since the removal of the company into the large new building across the river. More attention is given to the cigar department of this large wholesale grocery than is usual with concerns of this sort. Competent management, together with intrinsic merit of cigars distributed, has won an enviable trade and reputation for the company. No special effort at publicity is being made by the department this summer, as the sales of "El Roi-Tan" and "Juliana" cigars have been all that could be asked. However, the department will attack the field with renewed vim with the opening of the fall season. Mr. McKenzie, of the "El Roi Tan" forces, is a hustler and he is already making big plans for capturing the fall trade.

C. W. Chapman, one of the oldest and best known manufacturers in Northern Indiana, with a large factory at Warsaw, Ind., was a visitor to the city last week. Mr. Chapman makes the famous "State Seal" and "C. W. C.," which have such a heavy sale in the territory due east from this city. Mr. Chapman was called to the city to search for extra hands, which were not available in his home town.

Grommes & Elston, the prominent West Side manufacturers, are still having a good run on "Ben Bey," especially on the Cuban size, which is growing in favor all the time. "Ben Bey" is made in a number of sizes, but this is the most popular with the public.

Dr. Wm. Frederick Nutt, manager of the cigar department of the Press Club of Chicago, has been ill for the past three weeks with a severe attack of appendicitis. Dr. G. Frank Lydston, the famous surgeon who is also a member of the club and a life-long friend of Dr. Nutt, performed the operation. Dr. Nutt rallied well, but insisted upon returning to his duties at the club before he was fully recovered. As a result of his zeal he suffered a relapse, which may have serious developments, according to his physician.

Victor Pollak, city salesman for the J. & B. Moos Company, local distributors, is also another member of the local clan who has been on the sick list. He has returned to work again, however, and will soon be his old, cheerful self according to his friends. Mr. Pollak underwent a serious operation in the hospital, and was confined to his bed for some time.

Walter Sutter, of Jacob Sutter & Sons, will leave this week for Havana, Cuba, on one of his frequent trips to inspect the new crop. Mr. Sutter intended to go sooner, but business detained him and he at last yielded to requests of friends to stay until after the Fourth of July.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

"Lord Sterlings" in New York State

Walter Jones, the genial vice-president of the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, N. J., states that hard times have totally overlooked their factory in the Jersey capital and that their sales for June are well ahead of any previous month in the company's history. Recently, the Enterprise Company have made a campaign throughout New York State on "Lord Sterlings," and this has been most pronouncedly successful.

STANLEY DE LISSER SCORES OUR TRADE MORALS AND QUITS CIGAR BUSINESS HERE

Small Manufacturer Handicapped by Conditions—Says Public Opinion Will Force Cleaner Methods—Moral Standards Have Not Kept Pace With Wealth and Population

IN an interview with a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD, Stanley De Lisser, president of the cigar manufacturing firm of De Lisser-Schneider Company, and former president of the Jamaica Tobacco Company, announced that the De Lisser-Schneider Company would withdraw from business in this country, and scored the business morality of some of the tobacco trade.

When asked for his reasons for quitting the manufacturing game, Mr. De Lisser said:

"My decision has been influenced by many things, but I will mention only several that I am sure are of intense interest to the cigar manufacturers throughout the United States and which appeal to me as being vitally important.

"It is my observation," said Mr. De Lisser, "that business conditions as they apply to the small manufacturer here, do not warrant the glaring risk of capital apparently necessary to make a business of this kind a success, and there is a lack of confidence, on my part, in these conditions. This lack of confidence is perhaps due to my unfamiliarity with these unusual (to me) conditions. For instance, I do not understand an order from a cigar jobbing house not being an order until you have the money for the goods deposited to your credit in the bank. Where I came from an order is a binding contract unless the merchandise shipped is not up to sample and then the onus of proof is on the 'buyer.'

"Let me cite you an example," he continued: "A salesman sent us an order in April. We immediately looked up the financial rating of the firm and shipped the goods. A credit of thirty days had been arranged, but the time passed and we received no check from them. We wrote them a letter, then a second and a third, and finally a fourth. Almost seventy days had elapsed when a letter from them reached our office. Imagine our surprise to extract from the envelope, instead of a check, a bill of lading for goods returned with some such lame excuse as 'the salesman promised to come and place the goods,' or 'goods not shipped in time and have taken up another line,' or yet, 'the colors were not right.'

"In one instance we received a check for 40 per cent. of the invoice and a bill of lading for 60 per cent. of the goods. They arrived with some of the boxes broken. The only excuse in this case was that the goods were not liked, yet 40 per cent. of the goods were sold in thirty days.

"There seems to be no redress for the small manufacturer in such cases. The goods returned are usually not worth forty cents on the dollar. You can sue, but if the party happens to be in San Francisco or New Orleans you have to sue him there and my observations are that it may take a lifetime to get settlement, to say nothing of the expense in pushing the case to that point.

"Out of the twenty-five accounts placed on our books, and every one of them was well rated, from seven of the jobbing houses we received some such treatment as mentioned.

"A few days ago," continued Mr. De Lisser, "a good friend of mine wrote me a letter in which occurred this sentence, 'The American cigar market is a fickle one, but when a manufacturer once gets his goods placed with a "loyal" jobbing house the word "fickle" is eradicated from Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.' I think those words are simply great and they certainly apply to the gentleman who wrote them, but my ten months' experience indicates that locating jobbing houses like his institution is similar to a search for a needle in a bundle of stems.

"Now," said Mr. De Lisser, "can you blame me for getting 'cold feet'? I prefer to quit while 'the going is good' and while I can do so without impairing my reputation in Water Street. While there is no question or doubt about us paying one hundred cents on the dollar, I am not going to wait until we might be in a more unpleasant position.

"Financial ratings are necessary, but what you need most is a report on the moral responsibility of the individual or firm in question. That is a matter in which dollars and cents make small difference. I see that your credit associations are moving along this line and I was pleased to find in the office of a friend of mine a list of firms on which unfavorable reports had been sent out, 'as to their business morality.' I have found that a hundred thousand dollar rating is no guaranty of high moral standards in business dealings.

"It will take five or six weeks for me to wind up our affairs, then back to Jamaica for me. I am uncertain of my movements there. I may get into the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes in Jamaica, or I may enter the fruit business.

"You have a wonderful country here, but you have grown too quickly in wealth and population for the business morality to be up to the standard at which I have been taught to judge it. But things are changing and this great agitation of public opinion all over the country for cleaner conditions must gradually tend to eradicate the feeling of unrest about business conditions that is very prevalent today."

Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice Progresses

We have just received an announcement from Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, art lithographers of cigar bands and labels, corner Greenwich and Morton Streets, New York City, that they have accepted the resignations of Messrs. Pasbach and Voice.

The business will be continued as heretofore, under the same policy that has made the name Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice a standard in the trade for both quality and service.

The ownership of the business remains the same and will be continued by the sons of the founder, the late Samuel Kaufman, and B. S. Rosenbaum, treasurer, since the founding of the company, which interests represent 80 per cent. of the stock issued.

The management foresees that the changes announced will effect for them many economies in production, through which they desire to place their products on an even higher standard than they have previously maintained.

H. Fendrich After Box Stuffers

H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., maker of the "Charles Denby," is out after box stuffers and will put forth every effort to aid in the elimination of the pest and evil. Reports from the company state they just recently prosecuted two dealers for stuffing "Charles Denby" boxes, one in Detroit and the other in Indianapolis, evidence having been secured by representatives of the factory. Fines were imposed in both cases.

Key West

"I Won't Work" Members Infest City—Havana-American Company Troubles Being Adjusted—Smuggler Loses His Cigarettes—Many Regrets in Trade at Death of Joaquin Lopez

KEY WEST, FLA., July 10, 1914.

THE week has opened up wet and there are good indications that the rainy weather is here for several days. The extreme humidity has naturally hampered the operations of our factories and this, combined with labor troubles, has caused the shipping lists for the past four weeks to be pretty slim.

There have been strikes and rumors of troubles galore for the past four weeks and there are prospects of still more labor disputes in the very near future. The city is infested with members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who are not leaving a stone unturned to stir up the workmen of the city. One female orator of this organization even went so far as to advocate the use of the machete, pistol or dynamite in order that the workers gain their demands.

The labor troubles at the Mi Favorita Cigar Company's factory, the main factory of the Cortez Cigar Company, the La Diligencia factory of Moreda & Company, have been adjusted and the men are at work.

The music this week is at the big factory of the Havana-American Company, where there is much unrest, although the cigarmakers have not as yet walked out and declared a strike. At the request of the superintendent they have agreed to leave the matter to the New York office for adjustment, provided, however, the vitolas on which they demand an increase in price are removed and not worked until the matter was settled. Same was granted.

The only factory which remains closed now owing to labor troubles is the branch factory of the Cortez Cigar Company. The manager sent for the committee this week and agreed to all the demands of the strikers with the exception of the increase in price. The committee informed the manager not to send for them again until he could grant all their demands.

The bulk of the grievances of the cigarmakers is prices and they demanded that the cartabon of 1906, which was agreed to during the general strike of that year by both manufacturer and workmen, be strictly adhered to.

At a meeting held on Sunday afternoon at San Carlos Hall attended by the retail butchers of the city and the workmen the beef strike was settled to the satisfaction of both sides.

Collector of Customs Griggs has ruled that, while it is against the rules and regulations of the customs service to give out the names of parties importing or withdrawing leaf from bonded warehouses, that officials can furnish representatives of newspapers with the total number of bales imported or withdrawn for any given time.

The sad news was received in this city last week of the death of Joaquin Lopez, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, which occurred in the Centro-Asturiano Hospital at Havana on the 20th ult. Mr. Lopez was well known in this city, where he always met with a hearty welcome on his occasional visits while en route to Cuba.

Albert Smith, who has acted in the capacity of manager of the branch factory of the Martinez-Havana Company ever since it was inaugurated, has severed his connection with that concern. Mr. Smith left on Friday last for Macon, Ga., where he proposes to open a cigar factory and several cigar stores.

Celestin Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company, was in town recently, being en route from Tampa to the Havana leaf markets.

C. L. Poston, of the American Tobacco Company, was in the city last week calling on the local trade in the interest of his house and has since left for Tampa.

Jose Lovera, of Jose Lovera & Company, of Tampa, Fla., passed through town this week en route to Havana.

Filipe Rodriguez, of the "Elite" factory of F. Rodriguez y Ca., of Havana, passed through the city this week, being en route from New York to Cuba. Mr. Rodriguez was called North by the illness of his wife, who has since fully recovered.

President Eduardo H. Gato, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, left on Saturday for New York, where he will spend several weeks at one of the popular summer resorts of that state. He was accompanied by E. H. Gato, Jr. Thomas H. Gato has taken charge of the factory during the absence of his brother and has about four hundred cigarmakers employed. A good flow of orders by mail and wire is reported.

The Fourth of July was observed here on Saturday by the close down of United States bonded factories, Federal buildings and banks.

W. H. Young arrived in town recently from Tampa and is doing duty as storekeeper at the bonded factory of the Havana-American Company. The company are getting ready to make their first shipment of these goods to their customers this week. President A. L. Sylvester is expected to arrive in town at an early date.

Vice-President Vivian M. Myers, of the Cortez Cigar Company, arrived in town this week and is spending a few days at the office.

Eladio Martinez, factory manager of the Martinez-Havana Company, left on Saturday for New York, where he will represent his father, President Luis Martinez, at the annual business meeting of the company, which will be held this month. Don Luis Martinez intended leaving also for New York, but upon his arrival here was feeling unwell and so decided to let his son make the trip. Don Luis will leave on tonight's steamer for Havana.

Edgar J. Stachelberg, of the Tampa firm of Sanchez & Haya, passed through the city on Monday night, being en route to Havana.

"Prince Albert," the national joy smoke, manufactured by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C., is being extensively advertised and boosted in this city.

Maurice Winter, secretary and treasurer of the M. Perez Company, makers of the "Pinzon" brand of cigars, spent a few hours at the factory in this city upon his arrival from New York. He has since left for Havana, where he will spend several weeks.

Tobacco Statement.

Total number of bales imported	1,734 bales
Total number of bales withdrawn	715 "

Angel Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, the Tampa cigar manufacturers, passed though town today en route to Havana.

Officers of the custom service on Wednesday evening captured one hundred and fifty packages of Cuban cigarettes on which the duties had not been paid. They gave chase to the smuggler, but he succeeded in getting away. During the chase the belt which held the packages around his waist gave away and they were scattered all over the street.

Manuel Suarez, of the Optimo factory of A. Santaella y Ca., of Tampa, passed through town last night, being en route to Cuba.

Advertising Cigars on Detroit's "Great White Way"

The "La Azora" sign shown here is one of the nineteen big electric signs operated and maintained by Walker & Company, the well-known exponents of outdoor advertising, on the "Great White Way" of Detroit. The sign measures 40 x 52 and requires 2100 Mazda lights to operate it. By the use of indirect lighting a wonderfully realistic effect of rippling water, about the boat, is produced. It is reckoned that every twenty-four hours this message of "La Azora" cigars is seen by 200,000 people.

The "La Azora" cigar is made by the Lillies Cigar Company, of Detroit, and is put out in both the five- and ten-cent sizes.

Niles-Moser-Rogers Company Is New Title

George Rogers, the well-known cigar man of Omaha, Neb., is now an officer and director in the new Niles-Moser-Rogers Company, which succeeds the Niles & Moser Company in that city. It is a branch of the Niles & Moser Company of Kansas City.

The other branches are the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, and the Niles & Moser Cigar Company in Denver, Dallas and Salt Lake City.

All of the Niles & Moser Cigar Company's interests in Omaha will be succeeded by the Niles-Moser-Rogers Company, a Nebraska corporation, which will be separate from the other houses, although F. C. Niles will be president. Ed S. Moser will be vice-president and George Rogers secretary-treasurer of the new organization.

The same stores will be kept and they plan to continue to sell the same brands of cigars marketed by the Niles & Moser Cigar Company.

Reymer & Bros. New Stand Doing Well

Reymer & Bros. new stand in the Pittsburgh Life Insurance Company's building, Pittsburgh, Pa., which was recently opened, is doing a nice business. The business done during the first few days of the opening was both wholesale and retail and proved to be of quite a volume. The featured brands include "Sanchez y Haya," "Tadema," "Solace" and others.

Harvey Wint, who takes care of the Allentown, Pa., distribution of the "Rose-O-Cuba" cigar, accompanied by family, was a recent guest of the Fleck Cigar Company, Reading, Pa. Mr. Wint is much pleased with the way in which business on the brand is picking up.

Massachusetts Coupon Tax Bill Vetoed

After the Massachusetts Legislature had approved the bill imposing a tax of $100,000 upon individuals or firms using coupons or trading stamps, Governor Walsh, much to the surprise of the Massachusetts Cigar Dealers' Association, vetoed the bill and his action was sustained in the House by a vote of 171 to 33. In commenting on his veto, Governor Walsh said that he was convinced that the bill was unconstitutional.

When John O'Connor, president of the Massachusetts Cigar Dealers' Association, heard the news he was very much surprised, as it was his association which had stood sponsor for the bill. Mr. O'Connor was also a bit perturbed and stated that the bill would not only be brought up again at the next session, but that it would be made a campaign issue this fall.

The bill apparently was designed to drive the trading stamp companies out of Massachusetts, but really was directed at the United Cigar Stores Company. First it was proposed to make the tax $6000, but upon discussion the legislators decided this amount would not be prohibitive and it was raised to $100,000.

Campaign Planned on "Buffalo" Stogies

Much optimism is prevalent at the factory of the Iron City Cigar and Stogie Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, where are manufactured the well-known "Buffalo" stogies. The sales on these goods have now passed the million mark and are reported to be steadily increasing. Not only is there a splendid demand locally, but satisfactory orders are coming in from distant points. The company plan to start a big selling campaign on the brand shortly.

Philadelphia Notes

Yahn & McDonnell, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, have added the "Muriel" line to those which they distribute, and this cigar is now carried in six sizes.

An unusually attractive window display of these cigars in one of their windows facing Fifteenth Street, forcibly places this mild and fragrant smoke before the consumer.

Bernhart Liberman, manufacturer of the well-known Liberman Bunch Tables and other cigarmaking accessories, has recently returned from a trip to Canada, where he secured satisfactory orders for some of his products. Mr. Liberman also has a small tobacco plantation in Canada, and while in Montreal made a trip to his farm. He reports that while the tobacco plants have been re-set only a few weeks they give indications of a good crop.

As the result of the campaign throughout the Middle West on their "Tungsten" and "Statesmen" cigars, Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, have recently added a number of cigarmakers to meet the demand on these well-known brands.

Results from seashore points are also encouraging, and every indication points toward the most successful year in the history of the firm.

John H. Boltz, Jr., in Philadelphia

John H. Boltz, Jr., who has charge of the big Boltz-Clymer factory at Tampa, arrived in Philadelphia a week ago for his annual summer visit home. Mr. Boltz stated that since going "into bond," they have enjoyed an excellent business on all sizes, everything considered.

The firm are contemplating an important development of their business, and it is quite possible that they may open an auxiliary factory in Tampa in the near future, the details of which will be announced later.

Portuondo Brands Going Well

Warner Searle, traveling representative for the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, is conducting a publicity campaign on the products of this factory throughout North and South Dakota.

The Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, who are distributors for this factory, have agencies located through this territory, and Mr. Searle is working in conjunction with these dealers.

The brands which have proven the greatest sellers are the "Chicos," a $5 piece of goods, and the "Londres Grande," a $10 cigar.

The packings of the "Chicos" in tins are making a strong appeal, as the twenty-five cigars make a very convenient packing for week-end and vacation trips.

Novel Means of Advertising "Famous" Stogies

The Union-American Cigar Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., are using a novel means of advertising their "Famous" stogies. Knowing the attraction of the sporting page in the newspaper these days, they are inserting reading notices in that section calling the reader's attention to the connection of "Famous" stogies with the more prominent ball players of the different leagues.

Trade Comment

Urges Cigar Manufacturers to Advertise.

For the past six months conditions have been most disappointing as far as the cigar business throughout the country is concerned, and while poor trade conditions throughout the United States may be the cause of the tremendous falling off in the cigar business to some extent, it seems peculiar that the cigarette industry continues to expand. We believe that what is needed is organized action by the cigar manufacturers to boom trade. Lots of advertising and instruction of the public is necessary, as otherwise, in a few years the population of the United States will become a cigarette smoking community.

There is no other large trade in the entire country which is so little organized as the cigar trade, and if a few leading men in the cigar business would take up this matter, I believe that an organization could be effected which would be very beneficial to the trade in general. Individual efforts can have very little effect, but concentrated effort may have the desired result of increasing the demand for cigars as against cigarettes and smoking tobacco.

H. Duys & Company.

Looking Forward to Big Fall Trade.

While the reports that we get from a great many sections are not all that could be asked for, still we have found that the manufacturer who conscientiously makes a quality cigar and who intelligently follows his business is able to keep busy.

We have tried to win our business along these lines and feel justified by the results. As a matter of fact, our business in June has been the largest in our history. Our business on "Reynaldo" in particular has pleased us.

We see nothing but an improvement in general trade conditions from the fall and are fortifying ourselves to take care of the increased business which we feel sure is coming.

Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb.

See Prosperous Months Ahead.

Commenting on trade conditions for the months of May and June, we are exceedingly well pleased to state that our "Havana Ribbon" sales for both months exceeded our most sanguine expectations.

Following our usual custom, we had figured on receiving a certain percentage of increased business in May of this year over May, 1913, and were very agreeably surprised on receiving the final figures to learn that the total for the month was considerably in excess of our expectations.

Business in June past was all that could be desired, as our sales for that month completely eclipsed figures procured for any previous month in the history of this firm.

To our viewpoint the balance of this year should be equally prosperous—covering the entire United States as we do, and receiving weekly reports from the various territories—it seems to us that any firm marketing a high-grade line can secure as good, or better results right now than ever before.

Bayuk Brothers Company.

Isaac M. Cate, a stockholder of the American Locomotive Company, has started a broadside against the management of the company in a recent pamphlet sent to stockholders. Among other things, he charges that the company spent $18,640 for cigars in one year.

Shields-Wertheim Salesmen Attend Convention—Stace & Vincent Doing Well With "Percy Haswell"—Sobul & Lehr Get Luna Park Cigar Privileges

CLEVELAND, O., July 11, 1914.

VACATION season is on in earnest and business is nothing extra, due to the many people being out of the city.

S. Mendelsohn, of New York, is in town spending several weeks with his son Grover, who is in charge of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company. He is looking over conditions here and expressed himself as being more than satisfied with the firm's business covering the first six months of the year.

All the salesmen of the Shields-Wertheim Company were in town the past week and were entertained with some very interesting sales talks by the heads of the concern. After a large banquet the men scattered to their respective territories.

One of the most attractive windows ever seen in the cigar line in this city depicted a lawn scene with a life-size wax figure of a man seated at a table reading a newspaper and smoking a "La Saramita" cigar. This figure was dressed in the height of the summer fashion with all sorts of athletic goods scattered around the lawn. This window was put in by Dick Kuthbert, and appeared in the Arcade stand of the Standard Drug Company.

The new stand of the Collman Cigar Company is coming along nicely despite the off season of the year. The excellent line of cigars and smokers' articles is winning great favor among the patrons of this store. The store was formerly owned by the Jos. T. Snyder Cigar Company and is located at 742 Euclid Avenue.

Stace & Vincent are making great strides on their "Percy Haswell" cigar. This brand is fast winning its way to the front and is growing to be one of the best five cent sellers on the market.

The many friends of C. A. Cummings, druggist, located at One Hundred and Fifth Street and Wade Park, will learn with much regret of the sudden death of his wife. Mrs. Cummings was to be seen quite frequently in the store, and her cheery disposition won her many friends. The funeral was held in Sandusky, the deceased's former home.

Geo. Bassett reports business as extremely good considering the time of year. His specializing on several brands that he buys under special labels is winning him many customers and is meeting with general approval.

Pyle & Allen Cigar Company report business as coming along nicely both in the retail and the wholesale end.

A. C. Wertheim, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is spending several days with his wife at Mt. Clemens.

Dave Haas, who operates the cigar stand in the American Trust Building, expressed himself as being well satisfied with business so far this year. His stand has shown a nice increase for the first six months and he anticipates a much larger increase for the last half of the year.

The cigar privilege at Luna Park this season is owned by Sobul & Lehr. These boys know the cigar game from A to Z and are coming along nicely. They were agreeably surprised to find that the majority of cigars sold in the park run into high grade merchandise. Their supposition was that they were to cater to a cheap trade, but they found that it ran better than 75 per cent. in high class stock.

Trade Jottings

A steady increase in business on the "Sanchez y Haya" brand is reported by the Straus Cigar Company, Richmond, Va.

Moss & Lowenhaupt have secured the cigar privileges of the new ten-story Warwick Hotel, located at Fifteenth and Locust Streets, St. Louis, Mo. July 15th is set as the date of opening.

The Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, Seattle , Wash., have taken on the distribution of "Don Antonio Cigarros," manufactured by B. H. Anton Bock & Company.

William A. Stickney Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo., report an amazing business on "Bold" cigars, manufactured by the well-known Philadelphia firm, Bobrow Bros.

M. A. Gunst & Company, San Francisco, announce that they will begin their second campaign on "Robert Burns Invincibles" July 20th. They report good business on that brand.

"Saboroso," the old standby of Vetterlein Bros., Philadelphia, is doing good business in the South and West, many repeat orders on the brand keeping the factory busy.

Good business is being reported by J. S. Hill & Company, Cincinnati, on the "El Tempo" clear Havana twisted cigars manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company. They retail three for a quarter.

"San Felice" cigars are coming in for their share of attention through A. O. Meister, Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Meister also carries "La Verdad," "Webster" and "La Venga."

Encouraging reports are received from E. L. Massei, Richmond, Va., relative to the sales on "Savarona" and "Webster." Mr. Massei states that both brands are splendid staples.

The J. S. Pinkussohn Cigar Company, Jacksonville, Fla., have taken on the "Savarona," the noted brand of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company. It is reported that business on this brand here is constantly increasing.

The Marshal Drug Company expect to open their store at East Ninth Street and Huron Road about August 1st. This was the store that suffered from fire in the early spring.

Mr. I. J. Mittleberger, formerly with Newman & Mayer Company of Philadelphia, has been confined to the house for the past ten days with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Adam Cohn, who formerly owned the cigar store and bowling alleys at 1749 East Fifty-fifth Street, expects to open up a high grade bowling alley and billiard room with a cigar store in connection on Superior near East One Hundred and Fifth Street, about October 1st.

JERRY.

OBITVARY

Joaquin Lopez

Mr. Lopez was a member of the firm of Arguelles, Lopez & Bro., manufacturers of the well known "Tadema" cigar and other brands.

Mr. Lopez was fifty-six years old and had suffered much of late with Bright's disease and diabetes. Blood poisoning in the foot caused him to go to the hospital for electric treatment with the hope of preventing the amputation of that member. The foot did not respond to the treatment and it became necessary for Mr. Lopez to submit to the amputation. He survived the operation only a short time. His wife and brother, Celestino Lopez, and other relatives were with him when the end came.

Leopold Miller

Leopold Miller, a pioneer cigar manufacturer of Davenport, Ia., died recently at his home after an illness of five years' duration. Heart failure was the immediate cause of his death. The deceased was born in Achern, Germany, November 15, 1847. He came direct to Davenport from Germany in 1872.

For more than forty years the deceased maintained a wholesale and retail store at Third and Brady Streets. Later he opened a place at 208 West Second Street.

The deceased is survived by a widow, one son and three daughters.

W. H. Lewis

William Henry Lewis, a former tobacco merchant of Cincinnati, O., died recently at the age of seventy-one years. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Queen City Club. He was for many years connected with the Spence Brothers Tobacco Company.

The deceased is survived by a widow, a son and three daughters.

John W. Hauer

John W. Hauer, aged fifty-one years, a member of the J. C. Hauer Sons Company, cigar manufacturers and jobbers of Lebanon, Pa., died recently at that place.

Jeremiah Troy

Jeremiah Troy, a well-known tobacco grower of East Windsor Hill, Conn., died recently at the age of seventy years. The deceased is survived by three sons and a daughter.

John H. Baer

John H. Baer, aged fifty-nine years, one of the best known tobacco buyers in Lancaster County, was found dead on his bedroom floor on the morning of July 3d. Heart trouble was the cause of his sudden demise.

Mr. Baer had been connected with the tobacco industry for upwards of thirty-five years. His mother is at present critically ill from a paralytic stroke.

B. F. Alexander, United States and Canadian representative of factories of A. Fernandez Garcia and Tomas Guterriez, is in Havana conferring with the manufacturers of these brands.

Letters to the Editor

Cuban Leaf Tobacco Production

HAVANA, July 5, 1914.

To the Editor of THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir,—The information, that the newspapers dedicated to the tobacco branch are in the habit of publishing about the quantity of the crop harvested in this country, were extensively discussed in the last meeting held by the Board of this Association; and, as experience has been demonstrating for many years, these anticipated news are usually far distant from reality, and ought not be taken seriously by newspapers desiring to have their readers well informed, establishing thereby deplorable errors, producing in the mind of the interested parties in the business but uncertainty, and as natural consequence, disturbing all transactions.

It is a proven fact that the most expert farmer do make continuously mistakes in appreciating the yield of a fixed "Vega," even having same at sight, and having been its own cultivator; in fact, it is impossible to get a proper estimate of the total crop of Cuba, nor even a nearly one, by merely hearsay, copying datas from newspapers, or by some visits made to certain tobacco districts.

We, here in Cuba, knowing perfectly this circumstance, do not concede any value to this information, and we wish to have this recorded in the columns of that publication, so as to prevent that the interested elements in the Cuba production might believe that our silence signifies a mute approbation of the foregoing, to which we do not concede any credit.

I am happy to address you the present, thus following what has been stipulated by the Board of this Association, and in order to fix, in a precise way, our attitude respecting the matter under treatment.

Without anything else to add, and with thanks in advance for publishing these lines, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

ASSOCIATION OF LEAF TOBACCO DEALERS, PACKERS AND GROWERS OF THE ISLAND OF CUBA, MANUEL A. SUAREZ,
President.

Wanted—Manufacturers of Paper Cigar Pouches

The other day we were in receipt of a query for the addresses of manufacturers of paper cigar pouches.

The Racine Paper Goods Company, Racine, Wis., and the Dittgen Paper Goods Company, Cincinnati, O., are both prepared to handle business of this nature. A letter to these firms will bring full information.

Factory Address Wanted

GALESBURG, ILL., July 27, 1914.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD,
Philadelphia, Pa.:

Dear Sir,—Please let me know name and address of manufacturer listed under Factory No. 1, Twenty-third District of Pennsylvania, and oblige,

Yours very truly,
P. E. STRICKLAND.

Answer.—Duquesne Cigar Company, Twenty-fifth and Smallman Streets, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Lovera Banderos" Going Big in Seattle

In a recent statement C. W. Schuech, manager of the cigar department of Schwabacher Bros. & Company, Seattle, Wash., said that if he could obtain all the "Lovera Bandero" cigars for which he has demand, he felt that he would be able to make the brand the biggest five-cent seller ever put out in Seattle.

Wrigleys to Use Profit-Sharing Coupons

The United Profit-Sharing Corporation has just closed a $10,000,000 contract with the Wrigley Chewing Gum Company, which handles approximately 60 per cent. of the chewing gum business of the United States. The Wrigley Company will use 500,000,000 of the United coupons a year. Several other large deals involving United Profit-Sharing are pending.

CLUBDOM SMOKING

No. 16

THE QUADRANGLE CLUB

University of Chicago

(This is the sixteenth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

Articles in this series have appeared on the following clubs:

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.
No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.
No. 9—The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit.
No. 10—University Club, Chicago.
No. 11—Hamilton Club, Chicago.
No. 12—Commercial Club, San Francisco.
No. 13—Chicago Automobile Club.
No. 14—Elks' Club, Los Angeles.
No. 15—Press Club, Chicago.

IN the various articles appearing in this publication which have covered "clubdom smoking" in the various organizations of the country, the nicotine tastes of many degrees and clans of the social animal have been discussed.

Why is this series, anyway? Why should considerable space and effort be given to telling readers about the cigar business as conducted in the large clubs of the country? To the writer's mind, the best purpose which is served is in enlightening dealers on the matter of meeting in a satisfactory manner the demands of a high-class trade. Certainly in no place else in the world are the standards of preference higher than they are in the clubs. Here come the men of wealth, the men of brains, and the men who carry discrimination into every department of their activities. They demand the best, and they know the best from the mediocre. For that reason the conduct of a cigar business in a club calls for more than the usual amount of acumen on the part of the manager. By telling readers how the managers of the cigar departments of the various clubs of the country meet the demands which are made upon them it is hoped to increase the standards of conducting the business.

None of the clubs in Chicago which have previously been discussed merit more attention than the one which is the subject of this article, the Quadrangle Club. Perhaps more famous men belong to the Quadrangle Club than to any other single social organization in the city.

The reason for this is not hard to seek. The club is an adjunct to the University of Chicago, which is one of the largest and most richly endowed institutions of learning in the world. Unlike the other clubs which have been discussed, it is not located in the down town section of the city, but at Fifty-eighth Street and University Avenue, not far from the campus of the college. The location near the University is desirable for a number of reasons, chief of which is the fact that many of the members are required to live near the halls of learning in order to carry on their work. Deep experiments in every branch of the undiscovered realms of medicine and other forms of science are being conducted all the time by certain famous members who live at the clubhouse. Then there is the athletic consideration. Many of the members are young men taking post-graduate work in the University and they do not wish to be cramped up in some down town location.

The clubhouse, as can be seen from the picture which accompanies this article, is a beautiful piece of modern architecture. Built of pressed brick and modeled along the lines of the ordinary fraternity house, the club is an ideal retreat for the man of scholarly tastes. The club is one of the most expensive and one of the most exclusive in the city. No person is allowed to become a member unless the other members know him and approve of him.

On entering the clubhouse the first thing which attracts attention after the large and well-kept lawn, is the beautiful porch, which is provided with screens and sun curtains, and on the interior is a perfect bower of cushions and easy rocking chairs. Inside the first floor is devoted to a billiard and pool room, as well as a library which is said to be one of the finest in the entire world. Many rare volumes have been presented to this library, and they could not be bought at any price. Chief among the collections of value is one presented by Ernest De Koven, one of the most famous of living Chicagoans. On the same floor is a checking room and other facilities for the members.

The second floor is almost entirely taken up by the dining room, and by the rooms of the members who live at the club all the time. The dining room can be turned into a ball room on short notice, and here take place many of the functions which have made the club much discussed in smart society here.

The third floor of the club is devoted entirely to sleeping quarters. Here the members can get the freshest air to be had at any hour of the day or night. The facilities for ventilation are perfect.

San Francisco

Pipe Coming Back to Favor—Demand Increasing Along Lines of Cheap Goods—Charles Simon Passes Away—"Alexander Humboldt" a Made-in-Bond Feature

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 4, 1914.

THE figures published by the California Fish and Game Commission look mighty good to the pipe, tobacco, chewing gum and candy dealers. Over a hundred and fifty thousand fishing licenses and over a hundred hunting licenses were issued by the state long before the vacation time was close at hand. Now that we are almost in the midst of the summer season, and the stores with camping outfits are tempting the passers-by with glorious exhibitions of fish-tackle, guns and canteens, the number of licenses for perpetrators of fish stories, and owners of guns habitually hitting tame fowl and mistaking a perfectly good dog for a coyote, must have increased considerably. Be it as it may, the demand for pipes is steadily increasing, and the cigar man's market for candy and chewing gum is being enlarged continually.

M. A. Gunst & Company carry over two hundred different shapes of pipes, showing the wide range of styles necessary to meet the demands of the out-door smoker. The hunter, the golfer, the fisherman and the hiker, all have a special pocket for the pipe and the tobacco pouch. There are exceptions to this rule, as to any other rule, but an average, normal, healthy out-door man likes his pipe, especially after a hearty meal, just as well as the women and children like candy and chewing gum. According to Mr. Cohen, of that company, pipes are going to be a very important factor, and as the smokers are becoming more and more educated and fastidious with regard to pipe tobacco as well as to the pipe itself, the retailer is finding sufficient profit in this article to induce him to display it more conspicuously and not to treat it with that indifference that characterized the cigar merchant but a few years ago.

Although the fifty-cent pipe is the most popular at present, there is a steady increase in the demand for higher priced imported English goods and for case-pipes given as birthday and Christmas presents. Mr. Cohen is firmly convinced that as the smoker is getting educated in the values of different pipes and tobacco, and that he certainly will soon be just as exacting concerning this mode of smoke as an average cigar smoker is with regard to cigars. The calabash pipe, while not selling in San Francisco in the quantities that used to prevail when this pipe was first introduced to the Coast market, appears still as a favorite with less fastidious customers. Aside from that, the pipe situation owing to the radical tariff changes is somewhat muddled, though not so much with regard to the jobber and retailer as to the American manufacturer. It is generally felt that this situation is still far from being cleared up. The problem as to who will gain more by it, the American manufacturer or the English importer, is awaiting solution. The fact, however, is that the popular taste seems to favor the English product. The novelty pipes are also good sellers, and the cigar and cigarette holders, revived last year from long oblivion, seem to strike the popular fancy, for, as Mr. Cohen says, "we are selling a world of them and the demand is growing daily." Mr. Cohen believes that the increased demand for cigarettes by women is largely responsible for the revival of the cigarette-holder.

G. M. Wagner, 502 Market Street, has been in the pipe business for the last forty years. His stock contains the Loewe pipes, the Peterson's patents, the Bilter patents and the Mackenzie pipes. Also meerschaum, amber and ivory are cut to order in the laboratory adjoining the stand. Mr. Wagner asserts that for the last three years the traveling salesmen of the Eastern manufacturers have combed the smallest towns on the Coast so closely that the dealer in the interior is getting everything directly from the factory, and the San Francisco jobber and manufacturer is absolutely eliminated. The only real profit is in repairing and filling special orders. The demand is slowly increasing, but mostly along the cheapest lines, ranging from a five-cent corn-cob to a thirty-five-cent calabash. There was a spell of good business immediately after "the fire," when the city was filled with working men and everybody was hustling and making money, but since 1910 the Eastern manufacturer is sending out his drummers to California three times a year, and all the business is taken East.

The death of Charles Simon a few days ago has had a sobering effect on the cigar trade this week, as Mr. Simon was one of the veterans in the trade and was a friend of all the dealers. Mr. Simon engaged first in the retail business in the late seventies, but has for many years been in the brokerage line. Mr. Simon was sixty-seven years old at the time of his death, and is survived by a widow and two daughters.

M. C. Eisenschimmel, who recently retired from the management of the cigar department of the importing house of H. W. Peabody & Company, is preparing to leave the Coast trade for larger fields. He has arranged to represent in the United States some well known Manila lines of cigars, and believes that his work can be done more effectively from a more central location. He will, accordingly, soon leave for Chicago, which will thereafter be his headquarters. The exact location of his Chicago office has not yet been decided on.

Eugen Stolz, the San Francisco representative of the Cortez line of cigars, is now away for a short vacation, which will be spent in the Yosemite Valley. He has been having a good early summer run on the "Cortez," and believes that he is entitled to a little rest.

The new bonded "Alexander Humboldt" cigars are one of the new features of the trade. These are now in good supply with Michalitschke Brothers & Company, the California distributors, and are being placed very largely.

Niel & Hayes, of Healdsburg, Cal., have been succeeded by John Hayes of the old firm. Mr. Hayes has also brought out the well-established business of L. Waterman at Healdsburg, and is now pretty nearly "the whole thing" in that town.

Major Burrows, local representative of the Lovera Company, is decidedly pleased with the success in this territory of the "Bandero," the Lovera Company's new five-cent Havana cigar. This line is going well, and in spite of the short time it has been on this market is repeating nicely.

Tobacco Growing in British Columbia

NEW people seem to realize that tobacco growing in British Columbia is at all possible, and many are surprised beyond measure when they are told that it is rapidly assuming the proportions of a large factor in the industrial growth of the province. When Canadian tobacco is mentioned one invariably thinks of the crude French-Canadian twist produced in the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, and the great majority of people are unwilling to believe that a really good quality of tobacco can be grown any place in Canada, much less in British Columbia. But the fact remains that the tobacco that is being grown in Kelowna is second in quality only to the imported Havana and Sumatra leaves. While it may take years of blending and experimentation, the time is bound to come when the British Columbia product will be on par with the best of the foreign grown leaf. Even at the present time the cigars made from the Okanagan tobacco have a large sale, and many of the older brands are looking upon the new comer as a competitor to be reckoned with.

From the success that met an experiment made by the Okanagan growers two years ago it has been proved that the Okanagan Valley is one of the best tobacco countries on the continent. For many years it has been the ambition of the tobacco growers of the North American Continent to cultivate a Cumatra leaf, equal in product to the island product. In 1912 half an acre of Sumatra seed was sown in the Okanagan as an experiment. That experiment met with such unqualified success that twenty acres were under cultivation in 1913, and it is expected that a great many more will be under cultivation this year.—Canadian Magazine.

Sunday Tobacco Famine in Hammond, Louisiana

HAMMOND, LA.

A deputy sheriff walked into the cigar stands and drug stores here Sunday and warned the proprietors against the sale of tobacco in any form on the Sabbath.

A storm of protest arose.

The city officials disclaim any responsibility for the tobacco famine, but say they have been asked to enforce the State Sunday closing law.

The sale of soft drinks and other feminine refreshments has not yet been stopped, but it is understood a city ordinance on Sunday closing will be before Council this week.

New Haven Cigar Manufacturer Honored By Appointment

Frederick D. Grave, the well-known cigar manufacturer of New Haven, Conn., has recently been appointed to a position in the Government Census Department, where he will be engaged in furnishing valuable data in regard to the tobacco industry.

There will be twelve of these appointments, each paying $9 a day. The fortunate ones will only be required in Washington a few days at a time.

Pittsburgh

Dealers Report Unsatisfactory Business Conditions—J. W. Klein Boosting Larus Brothers' Brands—Arrested Tobacconists Held Over for Court Under Bond

PITTSBURGH, PA., July 9, 1914.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh is not up to the standard. While some dealers report business satisfactory, most of them are complaining.

J. W. Klein, representing Larus Brothers & Company, Richmond, Va., has been in town for the past three weeks boosting the two popular brands "Edgeworth" and "Qboid" tobaccos. These brands have shown a wonderful increase here due to Mr. Klein's efforts. He has been putting in some very fine window displays and placing a lot of attractive signs in all the stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity. The May Drug Company, who recently stocked these brands, report very good business on the same. Mr. Klein will leave here in a few days on a trip through Ohio, where he expects to continue his good work.

Mr. Simon, of the American Tobacco Company, with a crew of men, is working very hard on a special deal that this company is putting out. It consists of 1200 of this company's cigarettes, of which 200 must be "Lord Salisbury 20's." The dealer receives a check for twenty cents on each special deal.

W. Linhart, of Reymer Brothers, will soon go away on his vacation. At the present time you can see him hustling to get his customers lined up before he goes away.

Howard Peel, of Reymer Brothers, is on his vacation at Angola, on Lake Erie.

I. Robbins & Sons, distributors of the Ransom Stogies, are having quite a success with this brand.

Zeugschmidt Cigar Company are having quite a run on the Pittsburgh Famous Stogies.

The Afco Cigar Company have a very nice window display on "Plantista" cigars. This display was put in by Mr. Powers, of the Gompeers Cigar Company, Indianapolis.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company's crew is back on the job after a week's vacation putting out window displays on "Oasis" cigarettes.

J. MacJones opened a very fine cigar stand in the Arcadium Building at Washington, Pa.

Jos. Zimmermann Company have put out a little booklet called "Useful Information." It contains a National and Federal League Baseball schedule and other information.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand have a very fine window display on ten-cent assorted cigars. This stand reports business satisfactory for the summer months.

N. Shapiro, of M. A. Gunst & Company, was in town.

The fifty-two dealers who were arrested for selling cigarettes were held over for court, each being placed under five hundred dollars bail.

Lochray & Burns Business Sold

A deal has recently been completed whereby the cigar business of Lochray & Burns, of Great Falls, Mont., passes into the hands of George Lanstrum and Alec Goodman, tobacconists, of Helena, Mont.

Alec Goodman and Abe Goodman will be in charge of the Great Falls store, while Mr. Lanstrum will devote his attentions to the Helena store. This sale has been pending some time.

Alec Goodman states that the firm will remodel the business house and will add greatly to the lines of imported and domestic goods carried. The concern will do an extensive wholesale business from the Great Falls store. The members of the retiring firm have not announced their plans for the future.

Big Chief Tobacco Company Makes Auspicious Start

The Big Chief Tobacco Company, of Atlanta, Ga., is making a direct appeal to the cigar dealers of that city by sending out sample boxes of ten cigars each of their "Big Chief" five-cent brand. The dealers are invited to smoke them and test their merit. Orders coming into the factory office indicate that the cigars are being appreciated.

R. L. Kahn and A. Joseph Christina are the members of the company. They have opened a factory on Central Avenue.

J. G. SHIRK & SON OPEN NEW BUILDING

Commodious Home Opened to Public Last Week—Modern in Every Respect and Thoroughly Equipped

LANCASTER, PA., July 11.

LAST week marked the opening of the new home of Jacob G. Shirk & Son, at 323-325 North Queen Street, and more than five hundred guests took advantage of the invitations to visit the commodious quarters.

This old cigar, cigarette and tobacco jobbing house has been in existence since 1885, and during this period have built up a business that requires the services of fourteen road men who cover territory in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Maryland and West Virginia. The shipping department employs six men, while the business of the company is transacted by an office force of seven.

The new building is of four-storied white stone construction. There are many windows by which it is amply lighted. The design of the building has been such as to expedite the firm's large business and give efficient service. It is 250 by 32½ feet in size. The first floor front is occupied by the main offices, a portion of which is overhung by a balcony. This balcony has an office containing filing cases. Back of the main office is a reception hall and three private offices. The woodwork and finishing is in solid mahogany. In the rear of these rooms is the circular room, stationery and salesmen's rooms and a ladies' retiring room. The rear is occupied by the shipping room. At the extreme end of the building is the garage, in which the firm houses its twelve delivery trucks.

On the second floor are the sample rooms, premium rooms, pipe department, cigars, plug tobacco, cigarettes and little cigars. On the third floor is a huge humidor, which, when filed, will hold 2,000,000 cigars. The remainder of the floor space will be used for the storing of scrap tobacco.

Much of the long cut tobacco is on the fourth floor. On this floor is a large steel-lined and fireproof room for the storing of matches. The basement and sub-cellars are used for the storing of the bulk tobacco as it arrives.

Mr. Shirk started in the tobacco business in 1885 at the place where Nein and Fisher are now located. Later he moved to No. 309 North Queen Street. Then to No. 40 West Orange Street. In the year 1905 he erected the building, No. 19 West Chestnut Street, where they were in business until they moved into this pretentious building.

Among the prominent representatives of tobacco manufacturing concerns present were: George W. Bushness and H. P. Palmer, of the Scotten-Dillon Company; Frank Rubican, of the Pinkerton Tobacco Company, Toledo, O.; L. J. Goodhart, of the Spalding Americk Company, Chicago, Ill.; E. F. Street, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Philadelphia; Joseph Neuman, Havana-American Cigar Company, New York; H. C. Miller, of the Jacobs-Hultzger Company, New York; Scott Frey, of the S. & F. Cigar Company; C. M. Heintzelman and J. G. Wengert, of Chambersburg, Pa.; J. J. Fitzgerald, of Lorillard Company, Jersey City, N. J.; C. A. McHenry, National Match Company, Joliet, Ill.; C. W. Phipps, of the A. B. Cunningham Company, Philadelphia; D. H. Gilhool and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Evans, of the Liggett & Myers Company, and J. B. Sprenkel, of York.

The Fall Sumatra Sales

The fall inscriptions for Sumatra will take place at Amsterdam on Friday, September 18th; Thurday, September 24th, and Friday, October 16th. The Sumatra inscription at Rotterdam occurs on Saturday, September 26th.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, July 8, 1914.

BUYING in the Vuelta Abajo is proceeding slowly, as nobody seems to be in a hurry this year, and also as the buyers wish to see the tobacco in the bales before making any bids. There are not as many escogidas of our packers as formerly, the bulk being packed by the vegueros themselves. It is now claimed that perhaps even less than fifty per cent. of the Vuelta Abajo crop will be of good quality.

Semi Vuelta is being packed by our leaf dealers to a larger extent, but this crop is of a lighter nature than in former years, and the percentage of heavy styles may be only small this year.

Partido tobacco has so far given the worst result to our packers, and they complain that, instead of making a small profit, they are actually losing money, therefore some of them have closed their packing houses already, and others may follow suit. It does not pay to pack fillers only, and the bulk of the so-called wrappers turns into Resagos of 7a, 8a, and even as low as 9a. There are hardly any good 6a, 5a, and even less still of the 4a and 3a. The vegueros will have to do their own escogidas, and trust to luck to find buyers later on.

Remedios in bundles has been all bought up in the country by our packers, or where the vegueros refused to accept the bids made, they are doing their own escogidas, and of these there may be quite a number later in the season. While there is also some poor tobacco this year, in general this crop seems to be least harmed by the unfavorable growing weather. The heavy part of the crop is of a very fine quality, as far as can be judged now, and while prices will be lower than last year for first and second capaduras, they will not be as low as was at first imagined.

Our leaf market has been a little more animated, notwithstanding that the number of American buyers has not been large. There have been some purchases of importance by one American house established here, as well as by commission merchants, and by the German export houses, which have operated quite freely in the low grades of new Remedios. It is said that the majority of the new Vuelta Abajo colas are of such a light quality that the cigarette manufacturers will have to look to Remedios to supply the needed heavier quality, and if this should prove to be a fact then prices for the low grades of Remedios might advance. Puntillas have been also purchased quite liberally for the German market. Some lots of old Remedios and Vuelta Abajo were traded in for American account.

Receipts from the country are beginning to be quite heavy now, and soon we ought to have a good assortment of styles for buyers to make their selections from and secure the pick of the styles most needed.

Buyers were: Americans, 3701; exporters to Europe, 1720; shippers to South America, 185, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1092 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the two weeks closing with June 27, 1914, totaled 4466 bales, which were distributed among the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 2820; to Bremen and Hamburg, 1350; to Antwerp, 47; to Canada, 41; to Gibraltar, 14; to Buenos Aires, 180, and to Paraguay, 5 bales.

Cigars.

We will make no comment upon the situation of our cigar industry, as the following figures, taken from our customhouse returns during the past month of June, speak more plainly the truth than we could paint the deplorable situation. These figures represent the exports of cigars from the port of Havana and the comparison with 1913:

From June 1 to June 30, 1913,	12,906,444 cigars

There are nine countries which show the principal decreases, viz.:

United States	1,120,229	cigars
France	708,100	"
Canada	339,633	"
Argentine Republic	317,225	"
Chile	105,119	"
Austria	99,740	"
Peru	76,600	"
Portugal	37,550	"
Gibraltar	31,255	"
Total decreases	2,844,451	"

There were only two countries which show increases of importance, viz.:

Germany	315,930	cigars
Great Britain	80,373	"
Total increases	396,303	"

From January 1 to June 30, 1913,	85,599,750 cigars
From January 1 to June 30, 1914,	77,666,485 "

	Decreases.
United States	4,416,935	cigars
Great Britain	2,222,054	"
Canada	1,250,007	"
Argentine Republic	1,240,440	"
Chile	1,031,200	"
France	542,762	"
Total decreases	10,703,407	"

	Increases.
Spain	2,344,077	cigars
Germany	607,720	"
Australia	336,275	"
Total increases	3,288,072	"

Romeo y Julieta continues to be well supplied with orders, considering the time of the year. It has received quite an amount of orders from Germany for future shipments.

Partagas also holds its own during the dull period.

H. Upmann & Company gave us some cheerful news, as they stated that business showed signs of an improvement at last.

Castañeda said that there was no falling off in its export trade, but that the home consumption was slack at the moment.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were the largest sellers of leaf tobacco during the past fortnight, with 1350 bales of all kinds.

Ernest Ellinger & Company were large buyers in our market for account of their customers, operating extensively in old Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Edgar J. Stachelberg, who arrived here on the 7th inst., accompanied by Mrs. Stachelberg, speaks in glowing terms about the good business of the Sanchez & Haya Company, which has not an empty table in their factory, and had just rented the former factory building of the M. Stachelberg & Company, which is operated by the Havana-American Company.

F. Rocha & Company sold 540 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido of the old and new crops during the last two weeks.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, under the leadership of Albert W. Kaffenburgh, bought in the Santa Clara province enough bundles of leaf to produce about 14,000 to 15,000 bales when packed, and for this purpose they had opened nine escogidas in Santa Clara, Camajuani, Remedios and Manicaragua. They secured the pick, as Don Alberto was the first in the field and had sized up the situation correctly, as prices afterwards advanced considerably. Walter J. Kaffenburgh is superintending all packing operations personally in the country.

Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company	602 bales
Garcia & Company	566 "
W. Armbrecht	434 "
Leslie Pantin	405 "
Adolfo Moeller	402 "
Virgillo Suarez	271 "
Celestino Medio	207 "
Ernst Ellinger & Company	206 "

ORETANIV.

Sailors Will Get Their Tobacco

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 11, 1914.

General satisfaction was expressed today throughout naval circles when it became known that Secretary Daniels, contrary to expectations, had authorized retention of popular brands of tobacco and articles which it had been rumored would be denied admission to the commissary stores.

The action of the secretary, following the enforcement of his order abolishing the officers' wine mess, officially upset what had become a general belief among the enlisted men that they, too, would be denied certain proprietary articles which they had heretofore enjoyed. Under the new order not only will those articles which have been carried in the commissary departments be retained, but it is intended to assure greater latitude of choice to the men by admitting additional brands of tobaccos and personal commodities. In announcing his decision Secretary Daniels said:

"I firmly believe that the enlisted men of the fleet should be allowed to buy what they want. I feel that in purchasing these supplies I am acting as trustees for the men and that it is my duty to make this possible so far as lies within my power."

CAPITOL.

Hines Appointed as International Company's Receiver

Vice-Chancellor Emery has recently appointed Harry C. Hines temporary receiver of the affairs of the International Tobacco Company, of Newark, N. J. The corporation had a capital of $1,000,000. The liabilities are said to be $28,000, while the assets consist of patents of problematic value. The other assets of the company were sold by the landlord of the building it occupied to satisfy a claim for rent.

George H. Harmon, of Glen Ridge, a stockholder, creditor and vice-president of the company, says it was incorporated four years ago and the $750,000 of the capital stock is outstanding. Last November because of lack of funds work was suspended, and a month later the landlord seized and sold the chattels of the company.

Harmon owns 3300 shares of the stock, and has endorsed notes for the company amounting to $2200. He says there are no funds to meet the indebtedness, that the Mutual Bank of Roseville has begun suit to collect over $13,000 of notes issued by the company, and that everything will be hopelessly lost unless a receiver comes to the rescue. The appointment of Mr. Hines is temporary and in two weeks the question of a permanent receiver will be settled.

George Martin to Open Ninth Store

George Martin, the well-known tobacconist of Moline, Ill., has recently closed a lease for a store in the Masonic Temple, at Third and Main Streets, Davenport, Ia. The store has a 22-foot frontage with a depth of 35 feet. This will be Mr. Martin's ninth store.

The new store will have three entrances, one on Main Street, one on Third Street, and one from the lobby near the main entrance to the Temple. He will begin the work of remodeling in the near future, and will take possession October 1.

This makes the fifth store that Mr. Martin has leased within the last year.

General Review of Tobacco Crop Conditions

In the recent review of crop conditions of July 1st, as compiled by the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, the growing condition of the tobacco crop on July 1st, expressed in a percentage of its ten-year average (not the normal), was 78.0.

The tobacco acreage for 1914 is estimated at 1,151,000 acres, which is indicated as 94.6 percentage of the 1913 acreage. The general condition on July 1st, is given at 66 per cent. of normal, as against 82.8 per cent. at the same time, on July 1st, in 1913. The ten-year average of condition on July 1st is given as 84.6 per cent.

Interpreted from condition reports the estimated yield per acre on July 1st was 639.9 pounds. The average yield for 1913 was 784.3 pounds.

No Connection With Other Company

The International Tobacco Company of New York has issued a statement saying that it had no connection with the International Tobacco Company of Newark, which is mentioned in news dispatches as being in receivers' hands. The New York Company is engaged in manufacturing and exporting tobacco products, with offices at 413 East Twenty-fourth Street.

Up-to-date in every respect are the new quarters of the Spring Cigar Company, located at 911 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wash. J. C. Bridgeman is in charge. "Charles the Great," the well-known brand of Salvador Rodriguez, is being featured.

Detroit

June Was Best Month Since October—Ben Bloch Says Biggest Ever for "Philip Morris"—Henry Cleenewerck Passes Away—Police Catch Alleged Freight Thieves

DETROIT, MICH., July 10.

CHARLES LaFond, of the LaFond Company, who operate a chain of eight stores in Detroit, and who, in addition, is at the head of the San Etta Cigar Company, recently said, in speaking of "The Tobacco World," "I like it better than any other trade journal. Every issue is read carefully and then passed around to the various retail stores. I can always rely on what I see in the 'World,'" he added.

The Hotel Pontchartrain is headquarters for THE TOBACCO WORLD and any one having news at any time is more than welcome to send it or 'phone the cigar department, where the writer is in charge. No less than a dozen people come into the hotel every day and call at the cigar department for THE TOBACCO WORLD. Of course, we are always glad to have any one interested look over our copy, but we would suggest that for the price of one dollar per year—less than five cents a copy—it be subscribed for. "I never know where I'm going to be, and I know I can always find it around the cigar factories or retail stores," said a certain caller recently when he was asked why he didn't subscribe for it. The Pontchartrain 'phone number is Main-6580—don't forget to ask for the cigar department.

Members of the Knockers' Club, outside cigar manufacturers, pessimists and others, cast your eyes for a moment on the following figures, showing how many cigars were made in Detroit during the month of June: Cigars, 27,890,133; tobacco, 2,099,965 pounds; snuff, 7566 pounds.

June was the best month that Detroit manufacturers have had since last October, when the record was broken with 30,000,000 cigars. Who says that there is any depression and that the cigar industry is going backwards? Maybe it is for some manufacturers, but surely not for those in Detroit. The above figures tell the story. Because some salesman does not sell as much leaf tobacco, or some printer as many labels, does not necessarily mean that the cigar manufacturer is doing poorly. Maybe he has split up his order or given it to a competitor.

Herman Desilets, president of the Escanaba Cigar Company, of Escanaba, Mich., died in June from tuberculosis of the bone, having been sick for the past five months.

"That's me, that's me," said Bert Johnson, manager of the cigar stand at McMillan's store, while at the Temple Theatre last week where the motion pictures were shown taken on the recent cruise of the Board of Commerce to Duluth. It was Board of Commerce night and the entire lower floor, boxes and mezzanine were occupied by members and their wives, nearly eight hundred in all. Bert could be seen very plainly in some of the pictures wearing his usual smile. He was particularly in the foreground in that portion of the film which depicts a parade of cruisers about the ship.

Albert Neff, one of the best known retail cigar clerks in the city, having for many months been associated with Bert Johnson, tendered his resignation a few weeks ago.

Ben Bloch, manager of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan for the Philip Morris Cigarette Company, was in town July 6th and 7th. Ben was all smiles over the fine business which he is again enjoying in his territory. "This is going to be another banner year for us," he said to the representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD. "We thought we would have a hard time to beat our 1913 mark, which was some record-breaker, but 1914 is going to exceed it by many thousands. Philip Morris cigarettes are getting more popular every day." Mr. Bloch went to Indianapolis for a few days' work and took with him his Michigan representative, Edward Lichtig.

John P. Hemmeter was in New York for about ten days during June on a business trip, during which time he was confined to his room at the hotel, having been taken sick. He returned to Detroit fully recovered.

Albert Worch, who returned June 29th from a six weeks' Western trip, left again on July 8th for Kansas City, to be gone for a few days. The Wayne Cigar Company, of which Mr. Worch is a member, is now producing close to a million cigars a week, and it could just about double this number if it had sufficient extra room and could secure the cigarmakers. It is shipping to Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, about 700,000 cigars a week and 60,000 to the Bachman Cigar Company at San Francisco, and yet both of these concerns are constantly keeping the telegraph wires hot with requests for more cigars.

After a week in town, Ben Lesser, of F. Lozano & Company, left for New York July 7th and will not take to the road again until the first part of September. Ben says he is going to take his daughter and spend the summer at one of the Eastern seashore resorts. Ben was out nine weeks on his last trip, and said he found business conditions excellent. "I know we are doing better and I base my opinion on that fact," he said. "We are doing fine in Michigan. Lee & Cady, who now distribute for the Lozano brands, are gradually building up a very nice trade for us, and in time I believe we will be doing three times our present amount of business."

D. S. Thomas has sold his cigar store at 9 Oak Street, Grand Rapids, Mich., to Thomas R. Hayes, who is continuing the same.

Henry Cleenewerck, of the firm of Raseman & Cleenewerck, cigar dealers in Kalamazoo, died on June 24th. He was one of the best known citizens in the city. Death was caused by heart trouble. He was born in Kalamazoo in 1868 and had spent his entire life there. In 1892 he opened the cigar store of Raseman & Cleenewerck and he remained actively engaged in the business, in spite of ill health, until the spring of this year, when he was forced to retire, at which time he sold his interest to his brother. During the twenty-two years that Mr. Cleenewerck was engaged in the cigar business he took less than two months' time in vacation and it was largely this devotion to business that hastened his death. A wife survives him.

Robert Donma has opened a cigar store at 10 Terrace Street, Muskegon, Mich. It is an up-to-date establishment and a credit to the city.

Many arrests have been made by the Detroit Police Department in connection with the theft of thousands of dollars worth of cigars and tobacco stolen from freight cars and trucks in Detroit and other cities. The amount of the loot so far has reached in the neighborhood of $50,000. Among the goods found were large quantities of cigarettes and tobacco which were being shipped to Western cities. Small boxes were seldom touched by the thieves, their specialty being lugging away packing cases filled with cigarettes, cigars and tobacco which were either being received into the city or being shipped out of the city by local jobbers and manufacturers. Exposure of the gang was brought about by Robert Nederlander, an auctioneer. He was hailed on the street by M. Lavine, who runs a cigar store at 363 Hastings Street. Lavine said he had a lot of cigars that he bought cheap and that he expected another large order and that it would be a good thing for Nederlander if he took some to sell in his business, as he (Nederlander) is an auctioneer. Lavine told Nederlander the brand of the cigars he had bought and the new lot he was to buy. "Those are stolen goods," Nederlander said. When the thieves came around to sell their second lot, Lavine 'phoned for the police and had them arrested. The cigars were being sold at three dollars per thousand less than the regular price. The stealing has been going on steadily for the past year, so that the catch is a very important one and will probably put an end to much needless trouble.

Thomas Plues, for seventeen years Michigan representative for the American Tobacco Company, later with the Newman Cigar Company, is still seriously ill at his home, 109 Philadelphia Avenue, East, Detroit.

William Johl, of Owosso, Mich., has sold his stock of cigars to Gus Drebensteat, who will continue the business.

The Michigan Tobacco Company, 261 Cass Avenue, who organized to do a jobbing business some months ago, has quit owing to its inability to properly pay bills.

The Mazer Cigar Company, of Detroit, makers of "Miss Detroit" and "La Cavalerie" brands, have broken ground for an addition to their factory, which will be 30 by 110 feet, and just double the size of their factory. It will be of brick construction and fireproof throughout. It will be in the rear of the present building on Grandy Avenue.

Abe Hirsch, salesman for Joseph Hirsch & Son, has moved his family to Detroit for the summer. His permanent home is in Dayton, where he has lived for many years.

We had the distinction of having Edward Moser, of Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, in our midst about ten days ago. He was going East on a business trip and spent a few hours in our beautiful city with Charlie Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company.

Another noted recent visitor was Mr. Ackerman, general representative for the "Webster" cigar. Detroit is always glad to welcome him, not because he comes in the interest of one of the best selling cigars in this city, but because we consider him one of the "Kings" in the trade. Whether he finds time to come to Detroit or not, Mr. Ackerman can always feel that the "Webster" brand is being given splendid treatment by local dealers.

Jack Kelly, representing "Aplomas"; Hi Hammer, representing "Julia Marlowes"; Mr. Levy, of the American West Indies Cigar Company; Frank Lopez, of Garcia & Vega; Mr. O'Connor, of F. Garcia Company, were other recent visitors. Also Harry Nathan, of E. Spingarn & Company.

Jules Marqusee, with his son Jack, were here last week. This was Jack's first visit to Detroit. He is just out of college. From Detroit father and son went to Dayton.

Preston Herbert, vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, was here for a few days the latter part of June, being his first time in two years. The reason that Mr. Herbert has not come oftener was because he has always felt that through Best & Russell, jobbers of "United" goods, his presence here was not necessary. He still feels that to a degree, but says he was so impressed with the city that he is going to come oftener, if only to keep in touch with our growth. He likes Detroit very much; he didn't know that we had such a live town. With Mr. Herbert was William Best, of Best & Russell. They spoke about the "Robert Burns" cigar, which was making a big hit everywhere. We know this to be true as far as Detroit is concerned, as there is hardly a retail store that doesn't handle them. The writer dropped into the Best & Russell retail store at Woodward and Jefferson Avenues the other Saturday night and nearly every other person who came in asked for "Bobby Burns."

ABOUT STALE TOBACCO SMOKE

Why the Odor of Good Tobacco Is Not the Best—Tests Show Peculiar Physical Effects From Stale Odors

ALMOST every one has noticed that the smell of tobacco smoke at the time the tobacco is being consumed is very different from the odor the room where the smoking is done has a couple of hours later. A smoking car on a railroad does not smell of tobacco at all, but of stale tobacco smoke. Many a confirmed smoker, who enjoys his pipe or his cigar, finds himself offended, if not actually nauseated, by the odor of the smoking car.

Quite frequently the blame is laid on the character of the tobacco smoked by fellow passengers, and the man who is smoking a "fifteen-cents-straight" relieves his feelings by semi-audible remarks about the "two-for-five" of some fellow commuter a seat or two ahead.

As a matter of fact, the smoker of the good tobacco is entirely in the wrong, for it is a characteristic of tobacco smoke that the permanence of the stale odor is far greater from good tobacco than from the poor "weed." The reason for this is that the cheaper article possesses less of the true incombustible particles, and the smell of the smoke, though more pungent at the time of smoking, is the first to pass away.

The same is true with a pipe. Tobacco that "bites" is tobacco of a grade of leaf and of a sub-variety of plants where combustion is either more rapid or more thorough. The smoke usually is hotter, and a greater acridity of fumes follows. A "smooth" smoke is obviously one in which combustion is slow and steady, and where the smoke is not so volatile. Being less volatile, it lasts longer.

Even more conspicuously is this true of cigarettes. The natural Virginia cigarette leaves a disagreeable, stale odor. But it is harmless in this regard as compared with Turkish or Egyptian cigarettes—that is to say, to the blends which go by those names in the trade.

The pleasant flavor of Turkish tobacco and the enjoyable aroma it gives at the time of smoking change very rapidly. Many compounds exist in the smoke which are chemically unstable and which, after cooling and the lapse of an hour or more, disintegrate and form other compounds that are far from agreeable in odor.

At a recent meeting of the Psychiatric Society of Vienna, Professor von Frankl Hoshwarth reported a series of experiments on the effect of both fresh and stale tobacco smoke of various kinds. The stale smoke of the Turkish cigarette was found to be far the worst in increasing mental and physical depression and producing a peculiar alteration of the sense of taste. Blood pressure and the pulse rate were affected in 60 per cent. of the persons in a room filled with stale tobacco smoke, as compared with 38 per cent. in a room filled with fresh smoke.

It was shown that tobacco can be treated by certain processes which will eliminate the unstable products that produce the unpleasant stale odor without materially affecting the flavor of the tobacco. Some one has suggested that laws should be passed compelling men who smoke in smoking cars and other public places to use this specially treated tobacco. Many women would be glad to see such a regulation extended to the household. The elimination of the evil odor of tobacco smoke would be a boon to many thousands of smokers as well as to millions of non-smokers.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The growth of the tobacco crop of Lancaster County the past week, under unusually favorable weather conditions, has been almost phenomenal. So strong and sturdy have the plants become that they are now safe beyond the danger of destruction by cutworms and wireworms. The dangers ahead are the big greenworms, which can be hunted for and destroyed, and hail. The latter is the greatest danger of all. It is the fact doubtless that several light falls of hail have already occurred which cause the weather prophets to predict that this will be a season of hailstorms. These apart, the growers are convinced that this year's crop will be the very finest growth in Lancaster County for some years. Around Washington Borough, on the Susquehanna River, known as an early belt, the topping of Havana seed tobacco has already begun, and next week some Pennsylvania broadleaf will be topped. This year's crop will be harvested early, judging by present indications.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

Weather conditions have been favorable and with the entire tobacco crop transplanted within the usual time there should be no excuse for a poor end to the crop this year. Constant cultivation is keeping the crop in good condition and the weather has been all that could be desired. The growth of the plants has been stimulated and the outlook is quite favorable for a good crop.

The examination of last season's packings for the elimination of any damage that might have accrued in the curing is becoming quite general with the packers. The bulks are found to be quite well sweated and promise to afford the market some fine binder goods. As was expected, there will be some cleaning to be done.

Nothing has occurred to break the monotony of a dull market in old leaf.

CONNECTICUT

Last season, for the tobacco growers who picked or primed the crop, was not a success, on account of the dry weather, although nearly all of them sold for a good price. The tobacco in many cases was bought in the fields or practically sold before it was set out. While the growers last season received a good price for the crop, the buyers were not satisfied, as the crop when out of the "sweat" was tender, spotted and not nearly so good as the tobacco cut on the stalk. This made hard feeling between the grower and the buyer, and the tobacco buyer is the man to whom the average grower has to cater.

Early this season the local dealers in leaf tobacco wanted to have little to do with the picked or primed tobacco until it was advanced enough in the fields to make the proposition of buying a sure one. During the past week rain has fallen at intervals every day and the present tobacco crop, which consists of nearly four thousand acres, is in the best shape possible and barring a hailstorm, a banner crop is assured, both in growth and quality. The coming of the rain after the long dry spell has made thousands of dollars for the growers, and at present the growers who have for several years picked or primed the crop are at a loss what to do. Almost all of the larger growers had the tobacco set in the fields so that it could be picked or primed or cut in the old style on the stalk and nearly all of the growers have their sheds rigged for the primed or picked tobacco, not caring to make the change until they knew more of the season. At present no tobacco sales have been reported, which growers take as an indication that buyers are waiting to see the crop well advanced in the fields before taking a chance.

Sirlin Schedule Filed

Julius Sirlin, cigar manufacturer, of Syracuse, N. Y., against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed one month ago, filed Saturday, July 11, his schedules with the Clerk of the United States Court in Utica, N. Y., listing liabilities at $47,512, with assets of $30,651. Mr. Sirlin claims the indorsements on two notes included in the list of liabilities are not genuine. They are held by the People's Bank of Johnstown, N. Y., and the West End Brewing Company, Utica, N. Y.

Cigarettes Boost Revenue Figures

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 11, 1914.

Receipts from tobacco taxes show an increase of some $2,800,000 over last year. This gain is due almost entirely to a phenomenal increase in the cigarette trade.

Estimates on the June receipts indicate that the total decline in distilled liquor taxes for twelve months will approximate $4,250,000.

CAPITOL.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 16

What of the cigar and tobacco business in this remarkable club? Does it flourish? The answer is: Yes, it does. For the most part the members are extensive users of tobacco in some form or other. Since no person is admitted to membership unless he is a graduate of some university, it stands to reason that most of the members smoke. Only a nominal per cent. of men who come out of the colleges do not smoke.

The club has one cigar stand which is located on the first floor not far from the pool and billiard room. The largest trade is in high-grade cigars. Imported brands are preferred, but the domestic are also in strong favor. The line carried is not large, but it is representative of the best to be had. There is some box trade, but it is not by any means a large source of income to the department. The dining room trade in the floor above is supplied from the case. Of late this has become so heavy that it is probable that a second stand will be placed on the above floor in order to save the waiters extra steps.

There is some trade in cigarettes, although it is by no means as heavy as the cigar trade. There is some sentiment against cigarettes on the part of some of the members, and for that reason few cigarettes are smoked in the club direct, although many of them are purchased in the club and smoked elsewhere. The club has no private brand in either cigars or cigarettes. In this it differs from the other clubs which have been discussed under this head.

To study the membership list of the Quadrangle Club is a revelation. Men whose names appear behind sensational stories of experiment every day in the newspapers and in the scientific monthlies in such a regular manner that they seem to have grown to the page, are found to be members of the club. All of the celebrities of the University of Chicago belong, including most of the professors. John D. Rockefeller is an honorary member. Coach A. A. Stagg, the football wizard of the West, is one of the most popular in the organization. President Harry Pratt Judson, of the University of Chicago, is also a member. President Harper, now deceased, was likewise on the roster. In fact, the names of prominent men who belong could be mentioned in endless train.

In the foreground of the picture two tennis courts will be seen. These give an indication that tennis is one of the most popular amusements of the members, which it certainly is. If a person wants to gain possession of the courts it is necessary to get up pretty early in the morning. The courts are taken at dawn and they are busy until sunset in the summer time.

Report is to the effect that the Cashatt Cigar Company, Columbus, O., has increased its capital stock from $20,000 to $100,000.

"Juan de Fuca," made in bond by the Morgan Cigar Company, Tampa, Fla., is being featured by the Forsyth Cigar Company, Jacksonville, Fla.

Manager S. B. Fisher, of the Louisville, Ky., office of the J. B. Moos Company, following his recent return from a brief visit to Cincinnati, stated that the month of June surpassed any other month on record at the Louisville office. Medium priced, were the goods principally called for, though the expensive lines were not slighted.

New Salt Lake City Jobbing House Open

With the first of this month Salt Lake City counted among its new commercial enterprises another large wholesale cigar house. Don R. Lewis, one of the best known cigar men in the intermountain country, and Jack G. Whitaker, formerly with Celestine Vega & Company, of Chicago, on that date opened up a new concern in this city under the firm name of Lewis & Whitaker Cigar Company. The headquarters of this concern are at 339 South Main Street, in the Felt Building, and are commodious and up to date. The humidors are of the most modern construction and the latest facilities for rapid handling of large quantities of cigars have been installed.

Mr. Lewis, who will be manager, is well known throughout this territory. He was manager of the Salt Lake branch of a large St. Louis cigar house from 1907 to 1912, and continued as manager of the concern after its purchase by Niles & Moser and by Rothenberg & Schloss. He remained with this company, supervising the business in the Western territory, until 1914, when it was consolidated with a Butte house early this year. J. G. Whitaker, who will be associated with Mr. Lewis, was formerly in this city as representative for various cigar houses, going from here to Minneapolis and then to Chicago. He has been uniformly successful in his business and will be welcomed back to Salt Lake City by his many business associates.

Among the brands to be featured by the new concern are "La Mega," "Budwer," "Flor de Valentine," "Richard Mansfield," "Broadwall," "Superba," "Invincible," "Hand Made," "John Ruskin" and other well-known makes.

Sales Good on "Epoca" Cigars

The C. A. Gibbs Co., reputed to be one of the largest clear Havana houses in Pittsburgh and vicinity, have recently stocked up and are featuring the "Epoca" cigar, sales on which they report to be encouraging. This cigar, which is manufactured by Schwab Bros. & Baer, New York, N. Y., is made in various sizes ranging from 10 cents to 25 cents. Attention is being called to a special package on the "Epoca," which package contains ten cigars, the case being of black leather initialed in gold.

DETROIT

Nate Shapero, of M. A. Gunst & Company, a subsidiary of the "United" manufacturers, was in town at the same time with Mr. Herbert and Mr. Best.

C. H. Brockway, of 743 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, reports that he is enjoying a fine trade. He recently purchased a new motor car, and took a trip to Ludington, where he spent ten days on a fishing expedition.

G. E. Allard now owns the cigar stand in the Trussed Concrete building formerly conducted by Arthur Gramm.

Sol Mincer, proprietor of the El Mincero Cigar Company, at 316 Dix Avenue, Detroit, is one of the most enthusiastic of the Detroit cigar manufacturers doing a conservative business. Mr. Mincer is not turning out any million a week, but what he does make he is able to find a ready market for. He turns out the only strictly clear Havana cigar in Detroit. It comes in different sizes and sells to the retailer at forty dollars per thousand and up. All cigars are "Cuban work" and his factory is exclusively for manufacturing clear Havana cigars. He is at present having a very successful business on "Minuet," a little five-cent clear Havana. "We are not setting the town on fire," he told THE TOBACCO WORLD, to which he has been a subscriber ever since he has been in business, "but we are doing a nice, steady business, increasing it a little every week, paying our bills regularly and dealing with good, responsible dealers."

Claude E. Howell, Detroit jobber for "New Bachelor" and "Don Antonio" cigars, is spending the summer at his cottage on Silver Lake.

Cigar Box Factory for New Brunswick, N. J.

William Black & Company, cigar box manufacturers, who recently opened a factory in New Brunswick, N. J., with twelve hands, have within a week increased this number to seventy-five and now have a daily output of 3000 boxes.

The plant is operating in the old Janeway & Company warehouse. Delay in the arrival of machinery and in the necessary improvements of the building have held up the work to some extent. The new freight elevator is being installed and additional stairways are being built.

The factory will have a battery of ten nailing machines, of which six are now installed.

Max Faulkner, manager of the local factory, states that as soon as the installation and renovation is complete he will be able to add more hands.

"Whip" Pound Pottery Humidor Makes Hit

Although this is not the season when pound packages are usually sold, Patterson Brothers, makers of the famous "Whip" and "Queed" brands of smoking tobacco, report that they are heavily oversold on the former. They believe that their great success is due to the new pottery green pound humidor, which eliminates the use of the sponge which has been found in some cases to become objectionable. The tobacco is kept moist in the "Whip" humidor by pouring a little water on the absorbent clay cover of the jar.

Another Cigarmaker Claims Championship Title

From Albia, Ia., rises the claim of Carl C. Moore that the public has been too quick to accept Edward Cornish, of Guthrie Centre, Ia., as the new champion cigarmaker. He says that a number of men in the factory of Tobey & Beskitt, at Albia, have bettered the record of Mr. Cornish, and that he (Mr. Moore) made a total of 4350 cigars during a week in October, 1912. Mr. Moore states that these cigars were four and one-half inches long, mold made and club shape. In the same week it is stated that Otis McKern, of the same factory, made 4200 cigars, so it looks as if Mr. Cornish is running a bad third with his 3700 in a week.

Moore also claims to have made 3000, five inches long, in one week, and says it is very common for cigarmakers to total between 3600 and 3700 in one week in the Albia shop. Several of the men can make 750 in one day, but this pace cannot be kept up for a week's time.

"Cigaretting," a Puff from Pinkus Brothers

The well-known cigarette house of Pinkus Brothers has recently entered the house-organ field with a brochure entitled "Cigaretting." We are advised that this little magazine will appear monthly.

In appearance it is particularly attractive and contains excellent material for the increasing of the business of the manufacturers of "Made-to-order cigarettes." "The Editor's Ash-Tray" contains some interesting cigarette philosophy, and every page shows promise of a house-organ that will find a welcome place on the busy man's desk.

Carl Ruge Urges Memorial for J. O. Arnold

Carl Ruge, the well-known Dayton, O., tobacco broker, has recently urged the erection of a memorial to J. O. Arnold, who laid out Dayton View, where Mr. Ruge resides, and who gave the best years of his life to the civic development of that suburb.

"The people, especially those living in Dayton View, should show their appreciation of the man who established that section and laid it out as it is," said Mr. Ruge.

Cigar Dealer Out For Sheriff

J. W. Brown, cigar dealer at 106 West Douglas Avenue, Wichita, Kansas, has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff. Mr. Brown, who is 46 years old, came to Kansas from Pennsylvania 35 years ago. He has been a resident of Wichita for the past 24 years. He was president of the Central Labor Union four years, and in 1894 was appointed by the probte judge as administrator of the Central Clothing Co. Mr. Brown is vice-president of the Kansas association for the elimination of all questionable practices from billiard parlors.

New Cigar Store for De Kalb, Ill.

Lloyd Pierce, of De Kalb, Ill., has decided to embark in the cigar and tobacco business and will convert his present place of business to that purpose. He will handle a full line of the popular cigars, tobaccos and cigarettes and will endeavor to keep only the best.

For the benefit of his many customers with sporting instincts Mr. Pierce will install a ticker to furnish the latest reports of the baseball games and other sports.

Numbered among the royal treasures of Persia, is a pipe set with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, and valued at not less than $500,000. This pipe it is reported was made for the late Shah.

Chinese Cigarmakers Have Upper Hand in 'Frisco

According to a recent report from San Francisco, the Chinese are practically in control of the cigarmaking industry in that city. Statistics show that there are 350 white men engaged in this work, who receive employment only ten months in the year, while there are some 400 Asiatic cigarmakers who, it is claimed, work overtime a good part of the entire twelve months.

To meet this situation the San Francisco Labor Council and the Cigarmakers' Union are appealing to union men and their friends to demand the label of the Cigarmakers' Union on cigar boxes when purchasing cigars.

It is further stated that the Chinese are paid about one-third the wages paid the union members, and that many of the latter are out of work. On the other hand, the products of the firms employing Chinese labor seem to be on the increase, which in turn creates a demand for additional Chinese.

It is claimed that if a fight is made for the use of the label, 2000 cigarmakers will have work in San Francisco, instead of some 200 organized workmen.

New Building for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

A new steel reinforced concrete factory, to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, is the latest move of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who already have two factories. The building will be 66 x 191 and will be ten stories high.

The building will have a capacity of 3,400,000 pounds of tobacco and will rise in the rear of the present "Prince Albert" factory. The building will be finished with a veneer of red pressed brick. To make it absolutely fireproof it is said that no lumber whatsoever will be used in its construction.

Indian Motorcycle With "Ramado" Coupons

While the coupon contest of the National Tobacco Products Company on "Ramado" cigarettes has been going only a short time, the interest in it is constantly on the increase and reports from Atlantic City indicate that the ten-cent packings of this brand are making a tremendous hit.

In the States of Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania the manufacturers of "Ramado" are packing a twenty-five-cent certificate of the Independent Profit-Sharing Company in all their ten-cent boxes. The one who turns in the most coupons within a given period will be the winner of a new twin-cylinder Indian motorcycle. The best part of the whole deal is that in any case where the coupons are returned, all those except the winner will be allowed to redeem the same according to the new forty-page catalogue which the coupon company is just issuing.

The motorcycle is being exhibited in the windows of dealers in these three states, and the handsomely arranged display is attracting wide attention. The "Ramado" cigarette has taken well with the public and the contest is doing much to further interest in this rapidly growing brand.

Assets of Carlos, Fernandez & Company Sold

A sum hardly approximating $1000 was realized from the recent sale of the assets of the Manila cigar house of Carlos, Fernandez & Company. Some 8000 cigars of the "Las Palmas" and "Corona Royal" brands were sold for less than two cents each. Lively competition developed in the bidding for the titles, good will and labels of the above brands. Both were bought in by a former salesman of the defunct company. Eighteen thousand sets of labels of the "Corona Royal" brand, together with the good will, etc., went for $310, while the "Las Palmas" brought only $85.

Maintain Your Efficiency

By Smoking TUXEDO—The Mildest, Pleasantest Tobacco Made

FOLKS are talking physical efficiency in modern business life. The idea is, that modern business keeps a man just about as occupied as the fabled one-armed paperhanger with the hives. And if you want to join in with the Gimp Bros. and travel with the Pep and Ginger crowd, you want to cut out a lot of things that make your day's work go wrong.

Take the item of smoking, for instance. It's much better not only for you but for your job if you smoke a light, soothing pipe tobacco like Tuxedo. Get a pipe and try Tuxedo awhile. You'll see the difference.

Your whole efficiency make-up will respond right away to the gentle and cheering influence of Tuxedo.

ARTHUR LUCK
Conductor of the Philadelphia Harmonic Orchestra, says:
"Tuxedo is easily my favorite smoke—giving greater fragrance, mildness and coolness than I have found in any other tobacco. Never stings or bites the tongue. Tuxedo doubles my enjoyment of pipe smoking."

WILLIAM COLLIER
Popular comedian, recently starring in "A Little Water on the Side," says:
"My pipe is always Tuxedo-filled. I tried other tobaccos before I discovered Tuxedo. Now there IS no other."

A. H. GRIFFITH
Director of Detroit Museum of Art, and Lecturer, says:
"Like Omar I sometimes wonder what the makers of Tuxedo buy, one-half as precious as the stuff they sell. It's the greatest ever."

JAMES R. HAYES
Owner and Manager of the Wayne Hotel, Detroit, Mich.; Park Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark., and Park Hotel, Sault Ste. Marie, says:
"Sports afield and afloat appeal to me, but the day would not be wholly enjoyable without the evening pipe of Tuxedo, my favorite smoke."

Tuxedo
The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

gives you this moderate and reasonable refreshment because it is primarily a pure, light, mild selection of the highest grades of Kentucky Burley tobacco.

Tuxedo can't bite your tongue. It can't irritate you in any way. There's no drag or sag in it. Simply pleasant, whiffable, aromatic, easy smoking.

Tuxedo has all these splendid qualities because it is made by the original Tuxedo Process of treating Burley leaf. Many other manufacturers have tried to imitate the Tuxedo Process—but never succeeded. Hence there is no other tobacco "just as good."

If you've tried the imitations, just try the original. At the end of one week you'll find yourself in line with the thousands of famous business men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, singers, athletes, who endorse Tuxedo as the one perfect tobacco.

VICTOR P. ARNOLD
Member of the Chicago law firm of Northrup, Arnold & Fairbank, says:
"After a battle in the court-room, there is nothing like retiring to your private office, sitting back in your chair with your feet on your desk and enjoying a fine smoke of Tuxedo. It is immense!"

PATRICK H. O'DONNELL
A prominent lawyer of Chicago, says:
"A canvass of my friends would show that Tuxedo is most popular with them. Many say it is the only pipe tobacco."

CRESSMAN'S COUNSELLOR 5¢ CIGAR

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

Not until you stock up on this cigar in the right way and push it by "putting your shoulder to the wheel", will you realize to the full what a prolific source of profit it is.

A. H. GRIFFITH
Director of Detroit Museum of Art, and Lecturer, says:
"Like Omar I sometimes wonder what the makers of Tuxedo buy, one-half as precious as the stuff they sell. It's the greatest ever."

VICTOR P. ARNOLD
Member of the Chicago law firm of Northrup, Arnold & Fairbank, says:
"After a battle in the courtroom, there is nothing like retiring to your private office, sitting back in your chair with your feet on your desk and enjoying a fine smoke of Tuxedo. It is immense!"

WILLIAM COLLIER
Popular comedian, recently starring in "A Little Water on the Side," says:
"My pipe is always Tuxedo-filled. I tried other tobaccos before I discovered Tuxedo. Now there IS no other."

JAMES R. HAYES
Owner and Manager of the Wayne Hotel, Detroit, Mich.; Park Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark., and Park Hotel, Sault Ste. Marie, says:
"Sports afield and afloat appeal to me, but the day would not be wholly enjoyable without the evening pipe of Tuxedo, my favorite smoke."

PATRICK H. O'DONNELL
A prominent lawyer of Chicago, says:
"A canvass of my friends would show that Tuxedo is most popular with them. Many say it is the only pipe tobacco."

NEW FACTORY LAW ANNOYING TO MANY CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Firms Face New Obstacle in Making Cigars—More Space Imperative Under New Law—Serious Drawback to Makers of Hand-Made Goods

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK, July 30, 1914.

REFORMERS, it is said, turn the wheels of progress, but the hasty enactment of blanket laws tending toward reforms usually results in working a positive hardship upon many who have no interest in the matter.

At the last session of the Legislature in Albany a new law was put through which was intended to strike at the sweat shop evil, and to this end it seemed a very wise measure and one which should properly be on the statute books. The law provided that each manufacturing establishment in the city of New York should be so classified that a cubic amount of space was to be allotted to each hand employed in the building. This seemed all right on the surface, but as is usual in such matters, the actual operation of the law was not fairly considered, it would seem, and several of the leading New York cigar manufacturers have already felt the oppression of its enforcement.

During the past fortnight inspectors have visited several of the very best equipped factories in the city, and without taking into any consideration the provision for the comfort and safety of the cigarmakers employed, have abitrarily notified manufacturers that only a limited number of cigarmakers could be employed on a floor.

Simon Batt & Company, Inc., who recently occupied the fine building at 469 Broome Street, were among the first manufacturers to run up against this new law.

In speaking of the matter, Mr. Sidney Goldberg, of the firm, stated to a WORLD representative that in their particular case the enforcement of this law will work a grave hardship. As is well known the "La Verdad" factory makes a clear Havana cigar of high grade in competition with all the Southern and Cuban manufactured goods, and the difficulties in the production of these cigars in New York has led the firm on several occasions to seriously consider transferring their plant to Tampa or out of New York City, where they would be certain of obtaining plenty of skilled help, and be able to manufacture with a low rent cost at least.

When they moved to their Broome Street location they fitted up an ideal sanitary factory and leased several floors in the big building at the corner of Greene Street. In laying out their cigarmakers' floors generous provision was made for each cigarmaker's bench, as a matter of fact, considerably more space being allotted to each man, than is found in many factories where space costs but a trifle. The work rooms have very high ceilings, metal roofs, plenty of light, sprinkling system, and two specially large exits on each floor in addition to the fire escapes.

When the factory inspectors arrived to put the new law into effect, all these points were brought to their attention, but they simply went ahead under a mathematical calculation and announced that on one floor, for instance, where

CIGAR TRADE PLANNING FOR BIRTH OF "NATIONAL CIGAR DAY"

October 12th Set for Inauguration of Event—Plans Meet With Approval of Entire Industry—Tobacco —Brown and White are Official Colors

NEW YORK, July 29, 1914.

NOW that the big men in the tobacco industry have fallen in line and given their approbation of the idea for a National Cigar Day, every indication points to October 12th as a red letter date on the calendar.

Leaf men, cigar men, jobbers and retailers are rapidly falling in line and preparing for the biggest cigar sales in their history. It should be pointed out that this is a very democratic movement; no one individual or set of individuals is behind the scheme. Everybody is going to get out of it just what they put in it; if they pay no attention to the significance of the inauguration of Cigar Day as a mile stone in the tobacco trade then they will not benefit. But the men who put their shoulders to the wheel, begin to plan for window displays and advertising to attract the consumer, on October 12th will reap the harvest of increased business.

An organization known as the National Cigar Day Association has been formed, and Matthew Berriman, of New York and Tampa, has been named as honorary president, with a list of some seventy-five vice-presidents, including leading cigar manufacturers in all sections of the United States.

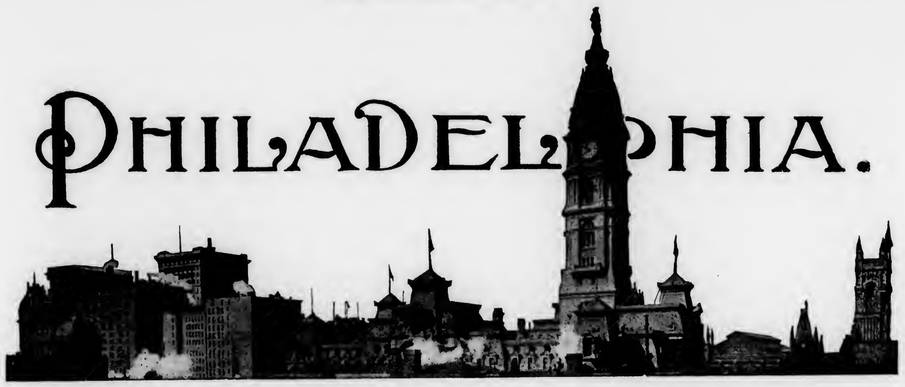
One of the features of National Cigar Day will be the contribution by members of leading fraternal organizations, including Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Elks and Knights of Columbus, as well as members of the Royal Arcanum and International Typographical Union, of boxes of cigars for the members of these various orders who are in the homes maintained by these fraternities.

Tobacco-brown and white have been adopted as the official colors for National Cigar Day, and on that date these colors are to be displayed, and special window displays made by cigar stores and stands in all sections of the United States and Canada, while public smokers, with addresses by eloquent orators, and appropriate musical and other entertainment will be arranged in many cities.

C. Fred Crosby, 21 Spruce Street, New York, is temporary chairman; Nicholas Ehrlich, 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., temporary secretary; Charles A. Bond, 82 Beaver Street, New York, temporary corresponding secretary; Ike Ochs, 1846 Seventh Avenue, New York, temporary treasurer, and Harry M. Konwiser, 1931 Broadway, New York, chairman of committee on publicity.

It is intended to make National Cigar Day an annual event on the calendar, and there is every reason that it will grow in scope and importance from year to year. It is particularly appropriate that the first National Cigar Day should be observed in 1914, as this year several countries in Europe are celebrating the centennial of the introduction of the cigar industry into Europe, although the manufacture of cigars in the United States was begun in a small way some four years earlier, in 1810.

PHILADELPHIA.



Sanchez y Haya "Smokers" Popular

THE Sanchez y Haya Company, which own and operate factory No. 1, Tampa, Fla., are meeting with phenomenal success in marketing their new product, which is known as "Sanchez y Haya Company Havana Smokers," and are retailed for five dollars the hundred.

These "smokers" contain a strictly high-grade Havana tobacco, but because of some slight defect in shape are packed under this name, to meet the demand for a cigar that has the quality, rather than a cigar of perfect shape.

Terry & Duncan, who are distributors for these goods, report a splendid trade among the summer resorts, the business on the higher-priced lines being especially gratifying.

Since the bonding of this factory, to comply with the law which was passed to guarantee the quality of the tobacco in the cigars, business throughout the entire eastern portion of the country has shown a steady increase.

Portuondo Cigars Popular in Alabama

Through the efforts of their Southern salesman, W. E. Gumpert, the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, have conducted a successful campaign in the State of Alabama.

The well-known firm of Benish & Meyers, with headquarters at Selma, are distributors for these goods, and have agencies which cover practically the entire State.

The campaign has been so successful that the Portuondo lines have been placed in every section.

Howard Bollstatter & Company Open

Howard Bollstatter, son of the well known Ridge Avenue cigar manufacturer, Charles Bollstatter, under the name of Howard Bollstatter & Company, has recently opened offices in the Watkins Building, 1033 Chestnut Street, for the manufacture and sale of cigars. They expect to manufacture nickel brands for the general trade. The company's factory is located at Hanover, Pa.

"Principe de Gales" Now Bonded

The well-known jobbing house of Dusel, Goodloe & Company are in receipt of some of the new "El Principe de Gales" packing with the made-in-bond stamp.

The label used on the new packing is a departure from the one formerly used, in that it contains a lithographic reproduction of the late King Edward.

The firm state that they have already received some of the new made-in-bond packing in three sizes and that they are having a heavy call with the trade.

Philadelphia Notes

Sidney Cahen, in the interests of E. Regensburg & Son, visited the local market this week, preparatory to joining his family in upper New Jersey for the vacation period.

W. W. Rosebro, of the Morgan Cigar Company, Tampa, closed some attractive business on the "Juan De Fuca" line when in Philadelphia this week.

Steve Herz, who covers the local territory for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, Tampa, was in Philadelphia last week long enough to write a number of good-sized orders.

J. J. Shea, of Bayuk Bros., has established his family at Ocean Gate, on Barnegat Bay, for the vacation period. Mr. Shea travels back and forth daily.

M. Zander & Son, Oklahoma City, Okla., report encouraging work throughout the State of Oklahoma on "44" cigars, manufactured by the "44" Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, Pa.

In Philadelphia, whenever one hears the name of the Demuth Pipe Company, they immediately associate it with the name of their genial representative, Harry Boston, who was in our midst this week.

Morris D. Neumann, of the firm of Neumann & Mayer, is among the commuters to Atlantic City during the summer season. Mr. Neumann states that he is well pleased with the continued popularity of "Bella Mundo" and that the orders have taxed the factory to its capacity.

Way's Cigars in Continental Hotel

The cigar department of the Continental Hotel, Chestnut Street, east of Ninth Street, are displaying the product of Joseph Way, 1105 Market Street, this city.

The "Peermont" and "Mi Selecto," which are the leading brands of this well-known house, are grouped in an attractive way, while the "Vueltoala," "Rotary" and "El Balto" cigars, of a higher grade, are artistically arranged in their several sizes.

More Displays On "Robert Burns" Invincibles

The cut herewith shows the new window display that has been run during the past two weeks in the windows of the stores of the M. A. Gunst Company, on the Pacific Coast. The "House of Staples" has been meeting with success on the new "Robert Burns" shape and the attractive window displays that are changed from time to time keep the brand in steady demand at all the stores.

Wherever you find well-dressed windows that are changed regularly business is generally good, whether times are "dull" with the other fellows or not.

Jose Lovera Offers Prizes for Cigar Day

In order to stimulate the idea of Cigar Day and to help bring forth interest in the celebration of the same, the Jose Lovera Company has offered twenty-nine prizes, aggregating five hundred dollars, to those dealers arranging the most meritorious window displays. The only condition is that the windows must feature some advertising of the Lovera "Banderos."

The contest is open to every one, everywhere. The contest begins August 12th and ends October 12th. Displays to be eligible for prizes must be within that period. Photographs of displays will be accepted in the contest up to October 31st. The display may be made as soon after August 12th as desired. As soon as it is photographed a proof should be sent to the Jose Lovera Company.

The decisions will be made on December 1st. The judges will be the window trimmers of three of New York's great department stores.

The prizes are: first, one hundred dollars; second, seventy-five dollars; third, fifty dollars; fourth, twenty-five dollars. There are twenty-five prizes of ten dollars each for those displays in the standings between the fourth and twenty-ninth places.

J. M. Diaz Home from Abroad

President Jose M. Diaz, of the Preferred Havana Tobacco Company, reached home from his European trip on the 18th ult., bringing with him a splendid line of orders on their various brands, but more particularly for "Edens," which have had a most enviable reputation all over Europe for many years.

Mr. Diaz is optimistic as to the outlook for the cigar business, notwithstanding present conditions, and says that their factories are easily outstripping all records of last year.

The "Henry the Fourth" brand of the Bustillo Bros. & Diaz branch of the Preferred Company have just been taken on by the new New York jobbing house of A. H. Hillman Tobacco Company and will be one of the leaders of this concern's business.

Bayuk Brothers Salesmen Busy

Bayuk Brothers Company have closed their books on a very successful July, the sale of "Havana Ribbons" for that period showing a generous percentage of increase over July, 1913.

They report business throughout the different territories to be in an active condition, while a large percentage of the jobbing accounts have placed standing orders for regular weekly shipments to take care of fall business.

A. G. Bucher has left his home in Lewisburg, Pa., where he was on a short vacation, and has returned to his Iowa territory and expects to reach headquarters at Omaha about August 2nd.

D. S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania and New York representative, visited headquarters this week and felt immensely pleased over his new connection at Rochester, N. Y., Messrs. Foley, Wolf, Kinney Company, and of whom he expects a large increase in "Ribbon" distribution.

E. C. Bolm, Missouri and Kansas representative, has just completed a very successful sales campaign in favor of the Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company, of St. Louis, who have control of the "Ribbons" for that territory.

C. W. McFarland, Wisconsin and Minnesota representative, has just closed a deal whereby Messrs. Knell & Prengle, of Milwaukee, will feature "Ribbons." Mr. McFarland begins an active campaign in their favor on August 3rd.

W. H. Yochem, Coast representative, is on a trip through the Northwest and has sent the factory some nice orders from his different jobbers throughout that section.

Elliot Opens Well With "Optimos"

Frank B. Elliot, who forsook the cigarette field to enter the cigar end, is making a record for himself on his first trip with samples of "Optimos," made in bond by A. Santaella & Company, Tampa.

Mr. Elliot has established his headquarters at Rochester, N. Y., and will devote much attention to New York State trade, but in addition he will handle all the trade east of Pittsburgh.

It is doubtful if the nickel cigar manufacturers in any other city suffer to a greater extent from box stuffing than do those of Philadelphia. For years this nefarious practice has been a menace to the prosperity of the unbanded cigar; it has gone along unchecked until now it flourishes to an alarming degree.

Catching the Box Stuffers

The law in this matter makes it difficult to secure acceptable evidence, and as a result very little is done to put a stop to it. If circumstantial evidence was allowed to have any bearing whatsoever it might be that there would be less box stuffing done.

We stopped in a store the other morning just after the shop had opened. The proprietor stood outside while a small boy was behind the counter dusting. We asked for a certain unbanded nickel brand. The boy pulled up the lid of the box on the counter and as it contained only one cigar, he reached under the counter and pulled out another box. The lid was loose, there was no nail in it, the box was full, and there were half a dozen fly specks on the label on the inside of the lid.

There are a hundred stores in this city that sell standard thirty-five dollar cigars eight for a quarter. Even with a discount they cannot sell them at that price at a profit. The conclusion is obvious.

One New York firm has served notice that they are going to do all in their power to assist in the prosecution of dealers who refill boxes on their brands. This is a step in the right direction. If the Philadelphia manufacturers would band themselves together for such a common end they would find a sudden increase in their sales in a very short time.

* * *

Now that the cigar and tobacco manufacturers generally have taken an interest in the movement for a National Cigar Day and have set the date this year for October 12th, it should be the desire of the entire trade to make this birthday a tremendous success.

National Cigar Day

By stimulating the sales on that day, trade will be built up for other days. A little extra effort, a new window display, some fresh stock and some catchy placards will go a long way toward brightening the business of many a small dealer.

The retail tobacconist with a small store, away from the center of city life, has too long been content to see the business that belongs to him go into the brightly furnished and well-kept store of some downtown merchant. Cigar Day is his opportunity to introduce some of his old friends to a new store; that is, new in appearance, fresh in stock, and neat and cleanly. If the spirit moves the proprietor to break the traditions of years and make a new window display, and to clean up generally, the chances are that on Cigar Day the customers will find a new man behind the counter; that is, new in spirit. Cigar Day will be a day of opportunity for many. Will you let it be a day of wasted opportunities for you?

Whether it be good or whether it be bad, the reformers can always find a flaw to pick at. They have railed at everything under the sun, and it is no wonder that the worm is beginning to turn. The English Suffragettes were for a long time the recipients of much sympathy and admiration, and probably would have moved much faster toward their goal if they had continued to be worthy of respect. Not getting along fast enough, however, they became militant, and as far as England is concerned, have brought the whole movement into contempt.

How Long, O Lord, How Long?

We have had militant reformers in America from time to time, but their fires quickly consumed them. However, there is left a certain class with apparently no other occupation than to harry and pick at anything that may bring them displeasure.

They threaten laws, get some passed and spend tremendous sums of money in publicity campaigns. Down in Georgia they want a law passed to prohibit both the cigarette and the cigarette paper in the State. It is high time that the American people awakened to a sense of some of their fundamental rights. We are continually passing laws, and they generally do but little good, perhaps curtailing the evil aimed at, but on the other hand working a hardship for those it was never intended for. So much for investigators and reformers. We ask, "How long, O Lord, how long?"

Corner Store Chat

THIS is a bad year for American championships and if we do not look out 1914 will go down in history as the year in which the Old Eagle lost every one of his tail feathers.

Our polo cup is back on British shores; Monsieur Jack Johnson, of France, has defeated a brawny son of Pittsburgh in pugilism; our golfers all took a tumble in England and now the long distance smoking championship which has been held for months in South Bend, Ind., has been snatched away from us by a worthy German, Herr Henz, of Sachsenhausen, and this is how it happened.

At a congress of South German smokers at Frankfort, a special trophy, consisting of a silver eagle on a red and white ribbon, was offered to the smoker who took the longest time to turn a Mexican cigar into gray white ash without letting it go out once. The competition began at 11 o'clock, and very nearly 200 persons contested for the award. By 12 o'clock only twenty were in the running—the rest had regretfully finished their "weeds" or had laid them at rest in the ash tray for too long.

The rivals dropped out rapidly, and by 1 o'clock only one smoker was left—Herr Henz, a Sachsenhausen business man, who actually puffed away in peace until he had to throw his diminutive cigar stump away 2 hours 46 minutes and 17 seconds after he had set light to it. Herr Henz has therefore been proclaimed smoker laureate.

It will be noted specially that Herr Henz smoked a Mexican cigar.

I was amused, and also received some valuable information recently while standing in a well-known cigar store on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City.

A well dressed, prosperous looking individual entered this store and asked for some cigars, "something," said he, "that is not all bands and fancy work."

As trade at that particular moment was not unusually brisk, my friend back of the counter, who knows the cigar business from the setting out of the plant to the finished cigar, asked his customer if he had a few minutes to spare for an explanation as to why the greater number of cigar manufacturers placed an attractive band upon practically all their high-priced cigars.

"Oh, yes," said the customer, "I know all about that, it's cheaper to buy bands and put them on the cigars, than it is to put in a higher grade of filler, or a higher quality binder or wrapper."

"My friend," said the proprietor, "if you are willing to give me ten minutes of your time, I think I can demonstrate clearly and to your entire satisfaction that such is not the case, in fact, quite the contrary thought actuates the manufacturer in placing a band upon those cigars, and whether banded or not, the price to you would be the same."

"Well, I will admit, that some of the banded cigars I buy are really good cigars, while others taste more like the proverbial cabbage, and I would be glad to have you give me the reason why this is so."

"Well, in the first place, the banded cigar makes a direct appeal to the eye of the smoker, and as most men who smoke banded cigars, especially of the higher grade, pay the higher prices because their flavor and quality appeals to them, the manufacturers seek to band their cigars in such a manner that their brands can be at once identified, regardless of where purchased."

"While it must be borne in mind that the amount expended for these bands reaches a considerable sum in the course of a year, the cost of an individual band forms but a very minute item of expense. A number of the larger factories believe this method to be good advertising and accordingly charge these items to that department of their business."

The customer was visibly impressed by this straightforward argument and before leaving thanked the dealer that he had taken the pains to correct an impression that had become deep seated, and that in future he would look for a certain band on his cigars, which suited him.

* * *

Much has been said both for and against the cigar, but that its effect on the human being is wholesome at times is illustrated by an incident of the siege of Paris, which I recently related.

The story-teller insisted that cigars were introduced into Paris by Spanish officers who had attached themselves to Joseph Bonaparte during the siege of Paris by the allied armies.

He said that a historian had noted during the siege that when the strain was tense and men's tempers were set on hair triggers, it was noticed that those who smoked the queer rolls of tobacco were much more tranquil than those who did not. This fact was brought to the attention of the French Government, and upon verification the police were promptly ordered to seize the available supply and to distribute the cigars among the officers of the army. It is said that the effect was all that could have been desired.

* * *

A friend of mine who has been reading "Police Work From Within," related an amusing tale to me which appeared in the book, regarding Charles Peace, the celebrated burglar:

Peace once went into a chemist's shop smoking a choice cigar, which he had burgled in a recent "exploit."

The chemist, noticing the aroma of the cigar, remarked: "That's a nice cigar you're smoking. Where did you get it?" Peace promptly replied: "I stole it." At this the chemist laughed and said: "I wish you would steal some as good for me." Again Peace promptly replied: "I will." Shortly after he again secured some good cigars upon the occasion of one of his nocturnal jobs, several of which he took to the chemist in question. As he handed them to him he remarked: "There you are—I stole them for you."

Charles Maerz Dead

READING, PA.

CHARLES MAERZ, one of this city's well known residents, and a former cigar manufacturer, died from the effects of a bronchial affection, in a private hospital in Philadelphia, on July 17th, aged seventy-three years.

Mr. Maerz was born in Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, and came to this country when twenty-four years of age. He first located in New York. In 1887 he came to this city as general superintendent of Glazer, Frame & Company's large cigar factory on Spruce Street near Tenth.

Mr. Maerz was one of the most expert cigarmakers known to the trade, and not a detail escaped his attention. This resulted in an excellent product. For years it was his ambition to go into business for himself, and his wish was realized. He started on a small scale and increased his business. In 1893 he built and operated the large cigar manufactory at Tenth and Cherry Streets. While in business at this place his output won distinction as among the best in the eastern part of the State. His various brands were widely known. He resided at 18 South Tenth Street.

He retired from active business four years ago. A short time ago a throat affection began to trouble him and he became an inmate of the private hospital, where everything was done to restore his health.

Deceased is survived by his widow, Mary (nee Parker), and the following children: Bertha N., wife of William B. Tindel, New York; Lottie B., wife of William J. Goodman; Otealia L., wife of Samuel J. Davies, all of this city. Four grandchildren remain.

An initial shipment of "Garcia & Vega" Havana cigars, in seven sizes, were recently received by Woolley & Company, 906 Third Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

one hundred and fifteen cigarmakers could be comfortably situated, that in future S. Batt & Company would only be allowed to work sixty hands. "It simply means," said Mr. Goldberg, "that we must lease more floors to conduct our business, and further increase our rent account."

P. Pohalski & Company, who operate the "First Consul" factory at 466 Broome Street, have encountered the same treatment under the new law, and although their factory is also one of the most sanitary and roomy in New York City, their working space has been cut down over thirty per cent. without any apparent redress.

Where the New York factories are operating machines, this new measure does not make a great amount of difference, but it seems to be a very serious proposition with the manufacturers of hand-made goods, and one that requires attention if this branch of the industry is to be fostered in New York City.

Hornell Tobacco Company in Bankruptcy

Clyde G. Abernathy and Sherman B. Wescott, both of Hornell, N. Y., filed voluntary petitions in bankruptcy, Thursday morning, July 30th, in Buffalo, N. Y., both individually and as co-partners, under the firm name of the Hornell Tobacco Company. As a firm their liabilities were scheduled at $1,956.23, with no assets, while individually Mr. Abernathy claims to have liabilities of $1,113.23, with assets of $1200, represented by shares in the Hornell Tobacco and Candy Company. Mr. Wescott has personal liabilities, amounting to $1100, with sixteen shares of stock in the Hornell Tobacco and Candy Company, which he valued at $1600, but which, owing to the following petition which also was filed admitting the insolvency of the above-named company, will in all probability become of less value. The second petition was filed by Mr. Abernathy as vice-president of the Hornell Tobacco and Candy Company, having been so directed by the stockholders and directors of the company upon their learning the insolvent condition of the concern. Sherman B. Wescott is also a stockholder in this concern. Their liabilities are scheduled at $1,435.93, with assets of $1,348.08, providing all claims can be collected.

Brooklyn Association Attacks Edwin Company

President Nicholas Ehrlich, of the Retail Cigar Dealers' Association of Brooklyn, is after the Edwin Cigar Company, of New York, on account of its recently announced agency plan.

Mr. Ehrlich states that the association has appealed to the Federal authorities to look into the matter, asking that proceedings be brought under the provisions of the Sherman act. He further alleges that representatives of the Edwin Cigar Company went to certain retailers in Brooklyn and threatened, unless they took up the Edwin proposition, to open rival stores in close proximity.

Max Rosenblum, head of the Edwin Cigar Company, stated that they would welcome a full investigation of their methods and in view of the fact that this company have announced that they could not place any more agencies for several months it would appear that they are not so anxious as it might seem to get into Brooklyn stores.

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE AIMS TO KEEP OUT BOTH CIGARETTES AND CIGARETTE PAPERS

Proposed Legislation Opposed to Public Policy—Has Good Chance of Becoming a Law—Where is the End of the Rampant Reformers?

THE latest instance of the craze for regulating everything and everybody is the appearance in the Georgia Legislature, now in session at Atlanta, of a bill to prohibit the sale of cigarettes or cigarette papers in the State. It has been favorably reported by a committee to the Senate and it is said that there is some danger of its passage.

This proposed legislation is clearly opposed to public policy. It is simply an unwarranted infringement of personal rights and a curtailment of the degree of free agency to which every man is naturally entitled. It is the sort of law which, being essentially non-enforceable on the one hand and on the other creative of anger and a spirit of opposition, brings all law into hatred and contempt. It is, further, a stage in the progress of a movement which causes grave misgivings and fears among the judicious.

The law is unenforceable under present conditions because it cannot avail to prevent all who care enough from getting supplies of their favorite form of smoke medium from without the State. Even were this impossible, a new contraband trade in cigarettes and papers would immediately spring up at exorbitant prices and naturally finding its patrons among the only individuals to whom cigarettes are harmful, the so-called cigarette fiends, to whom life without the indulgence is a lengthened pain.

Thus the net result would be that thousands of men would be deprived of an innocent pleasure and would be moved to a certain degree of hostility to and resentment of law and government, not in order that a few degenerates should be deprived of their "poison," but in order that these latter should be compelled to get it outside the law and so with added circumstances of depravity. The case is by no means on all fours with the traffic in habit forming drugs, now the subject of another somewhat excessive "crusade." The difference is that whereas no normal person is addicted to the use of drugs, cigarette smoking within healthy limits is the harmless habit of millions of people all over the world, including probably two-thirds of the adult male population of Georgia.

As one prohibition after another is proposed with more or less excuse in theoretic benefit to individuals or the public, one wonders where the craze is to stop. There is hardly any form of pleasure which has not its crew of rampant censors and comminators—motoring, the dance, the theatre, flirtation, drugs, alcohol, kissing, eating meat, cigarettes, the use of tobacco in any form—all these and perhaps a dozen others we do not call to mind are today the subject of agitations calling for prohibition by law on moral or hygienic grounds or both. Where is this to end? Are the people of America to be tied up presently in a tangle of worse than Chinese paternalism? Are individual mind and will and conscience to give way altogether to a paternalism, half ecclesiastic, half governmental, all fussy and fatuous and regardless of the plain lessons of experience?

A good time and place to draw the line seems to be now and in the State of Georgia. This captious, vexatious, futile, impossible law for the prohibition of cigarettes and cigarette papers should be killed unborn.

M. A. GUNST & COMPANY GIVE TRADE WARNING AGAINST BOX STUFFERS

Promise to Assist Government in Prosecuting — Open Letters Sent to Dealers—Evil Flourishes in Most Cities

NEW YORK, July 29, 1914.

DESPITE the strict regulations regarding the refilling and stuffing of cigar boxes it is an admitted fact that this contemptible business flourishes in practically every city from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Occasionally a case is heard where a dealer is being prosecuted for refilling boxes; for the most part the manufacturers are more disposed to suffer from this evil than to rise in their strength and gird themselves for the battle. As a result of the little interest shown in prosecuting unscrupulous dealers they have become more bold and practically every unbanded nickel cigar with a national or local reputation suffers from this nefarious practice.

However, M. A. Gunst & Company, determined to put an end to the misrepresentation of their goods, have issued a letter to the trade stating that the authorities will receive every assistance from them in the enforcement of that section of the internal revenue laws which prohibits the refilling of boxes and re-using the stamps thereon or the removing of the contents of cigar boxes without destroying the stamps.

The letter of M. A. Gunst & Company follows:

NEW YORK, July 27, 1914.

TO THE TRADE:

All dealers are warned, according to the internal revenue laws of the United States, that it is illegal to refill cigar boxes, to re-use the stamps thereon or to remove the contents of the boxes without destroying the stamp. Violators of this regulation are subject to a heavy penalty by the United States Government. We shall assist the Government, so far as it is within our power, to prosecute any one found refilling or re-using boxes of any of our brands. These include the "Owl," "Little Bobbie" and "Bank Note."

Yours very truly,

M. A. GUNST & CO., INC.

$10,000 Allowed Lawyers In Burley Suit

Judge F. M. Tracey, in the Kenton Circuit Court at Covington, has handed down an order in the case of E. B. Stansifer and others against Clarence LeBus and others, in which he holds that attorneys representing the defendants in the recent Burley Tobacco trials are entitled to recover fees amounting to $10,000. Some time ago Attorneys J. L. Vest, J. G. Tomlin and William A. Byrne, who represented the defendants in the big suit, asked the court for an allowance of $15,000 as fees. This was opposed by the Burley Tobacco Company, which was represented here at a hearing last week by Judge E. C. O'Rear and Attorney R. C. Simmons, and who disclaimed liability for payment of said fees, but, after the courts held that the company was liable, contended that a fee not larger than that paid to the plaintiff's attorneys, amounting to $5800, should be paid to the claimants.

The judgment also allows Walter J. Loomis, one of the commissioners appointed to hold the election, $1850, and J. M. Rankin, one of the officers of the company, $1500, subject to a credit of $1200 paid by the Burley Tobacco Company as salary. Exceptions to the entire opinion are made by both parties, and an appeal granted to the Court of Appeals.

New Selling Plant for Ohio Growers

Declaring that the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union and the Growers' Sales Company, its selling agency, and the National Farmers' Tobacco Company, with the latter of which he has been officially connected since its formation two years ago, have outlived their usefulness and are not properly serving as adequate co-operative selling agencies for tobacco growers, Frank Zuckerman, of Dayton, O., says he will market tobacco on another basis.

He will endeavor to arrange with tobacco growers of the Miami Valley to take over their product, handle it for them in warehouses and sell it on a commission basis. He says he desires to do more than a mere commission business in that he proposes to handle the tobacco for the growers after it is cut, give it the needed warehouse treatment, pack it and sell it.

Zuckerman several years ago was field man for the Cigar Leaf Growers' Union, but later helped to organize the National Farmers' Tobacco Company, with headquarters in Miamisburg. This company had about a dozen warehouses or receiving stations in towns throughout the valley where the tobacco of growers was placed for disposal. These warehouses, Zuckerman says, have been given up and the company to all practical purposes "is out of commission."

Former Well-Known Tobacco Man Again Enters Trade

After an absence of two years, during which time he was engaged in other capacities, C. U. Patton, Indianapolis, Ind., well known to the trade throughout the Middle West, has again entered the field, and assumes the role of sole distributor in Indianapolis territory of the products of Yocum Bros., Reading, Pa. Mr. Patton will open for business shortly in the Century Building on South Pennsylvania Street. He will be remembered as having been the senior member of the firm of Patton Bros., who at one time were rated the largest cigar distributors in the State, in addition to having the reputation of being ranked among the largest of the Middle West.

Plans War on Cigarettes

Miss Lucy Page Gaston, head of the anti-cigarette workers, is going after the Michigan Legislature when it next convenes, backed by all the volunteers she can recruit in every city of the State. Michigan is one of four States in which Miss Gaston expects to wage a war on "paper pipes," the others being Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. In each city Miss Gaston plans to have a "committee of 100," composed of prominent adults, and a marching club of several thousand children. The first meeting here was held at the First Presbyterian Church.

Ferris & Grady, Minneapolis, Minn., are exploiting extensively Boltz, Clymer & Company's "El Palencia" (made in bond).

John Conway, a member of the firm of Henry L. Conway & Bro., wholesale tobacconists, Rochester, N. Y., and who died July 16th, left an estate of $83,000, $75,000 of which is real estate, and $8000 personal property.

"Spanish Americans" to the number of 10,000 were recently ordered from Boltz, Clymer & Company by Stark & Hawkins, Toledo, O. The "Spanish American" is a new brand.

Decision on Philippine Tobacco Products

A decision of interest to travelers has recently been issued by the Treasury Department in reference to the amount of tobacco products that may be brought in from the Philippines free of duty. The circular reads as follows:

> "Customs officers are authorized to deliver free of duty and internal revenue tax fifty cigars or cheroots or three hundred cigarettes brought in by passengers arriving in the United States direct from the Philippine Islands, and to deliver all cigars, cheroots, or cigarettes manufactured in those islands in excess of the number given above and brought in by passengers arriving direct therefrom, if the same are in proper packages, each containing the number of cigars, cheroots, or cigarettes which the law provides shall be packed therein, and stamped with an internal revenue stamp of the proper denomination, and the stamp canceled, but without regard to the minimum number (three thousand) which may be regularly (imported) brought into this country in a single package."

"Softa," the New Persian Cigarette

The Vali Cigarette Company, with offices at 78 Fifth Avenue, New York, has recently put out to the trade one of their latest productions, "Softa," a Persian cigarette. They retail to the trade at ten cents the package of ten.

It is claimed for these cigarettes that they are of exceptional quality and that they easily hold their place among some of the more widely advertised brands.

The "Softa" cigarette is certainly good value for the money, and any who are so fortunate as to have sampled the brand we think will agree. The Vali Cigarette Company has been building up the business of the "Softa" brand simply by getting the retailer behind it and securing the incomparable advertising of the satisfied consumer.

Massachusetts After Miniature Flag Distributors

A Massachusetts law prohibits the use of the American flag for advertising purposes. Recently the salesmen and samplers of a well-known tobacco company, while engaged in the small towns near Boston in putting out a special deal involving the distribution of miniature United States flags with certain brands of cigarettes, struck this snag. Vigilant New England authorities, mindful of the old law, visited the dealers in the small towns and forbade them to put the flags out.

But the tobacco company was not to be denied, and within twenty-four hours after the ban was on, crews supplied with flags of all nations except the United States visited the dealers and substituted them in the deal, for the forbidden Stars and Stripes.

"Foremost," a nickel proposition manufactured by Jeitles & Blumenthal, has been taken on by Louis Friedman, St. Louis.

Special Notice

As we have been overwhelmed with applications for Edwin agencies, both by thousands of letters which we are unable to answer, and by persons who have spent railroad fare to come to New York to interview us, we wish to announce that we will be unable to appoint any more Edwin agencies for at least two months. We have had to reject hundreds of applications owing to the fact that our plant will not supply more than we have so far accepted.

New York, July 16, 1914.

C. Contopoulo's Removal

CONTOPOULO, the Turkish tobacco dealer and cigarette manufacturer who has been located at 26 Park Row for some years with C. Drucklieb, has leased the store floor at 35 Warren Street, and when alterations are completed, which will be about September 1st, will remove to that location.

It is Mr. Contopoulo's intention to bring out two new brands of his own make of Turkish cigarettes. His first grade will be a twenty-cent package, to be known as "Leptons," which is the Turkish word for "refined," and he will also bring out a popular-priced package at the same time.

Boultby & Colby, who have also been located at 26 Park Row and who have long specialized in private brands and monogram goods, will also remove to the Warren Street store, where their business will be conducted along the same lines but in a wider scope.

Appraisal of Kraussman Estate Made Public

Relative to the recent appraisal of the estate of the late Edward A. Kraussman, of the well-known New York-Havana tobacco importing house, a net value of $107,875 is placed on the estate, the principal property being the leaf tobacco business at 168 Water Street. This, including the good-will, is valued at $101,930. The remainder of the estate consists of real estate equities and bonds of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, valued at $530.

"Murias" Made in Bond

The factory of the Havana-American Company, which makes the "Flor de Murias," one of the featured brands in the United Cigar Stores, has been put in bond under the recently enacted law, and samples of the new goods in all sizes are shortly to be placed on sale all over the country.

This is an important move on the part of the company and should go further than ever in popularizing this widely known brand.

Herbert Drucklieb Off For Europe

Mr. Herbert Drucklieb, second vice-president of the Cado Company, Inc., sailed for Europe on the "Kronprincessin Cecelia" Tuesday, July 28th.

He will spend most of his time, until Christmas, in Cavalla and Turkey looking over the tobaccos which have been bought down there by the Cado Company, Inc., to be used in their cigarettes, "Fifty-Six" and "Cado."

Services for Benno Neuberger

Accompanied by his daughter, Miss Florence Neuberger, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Mayer, the body of the late Benno Neuberger, head of E. Rosenwald & Bro., arrived on the steamship "Vaterland" during the past week, the funeral taking place at Temple Emanuel, New York City, July 31st, the same being largely attended by those connected with the trade. So poorly has been the health of Mrs. Neuberger that it was deemed best for her to remain in Europe, where she is in the care of her son, Harry. Neuberger.

Airtight Wrapper for "Fifty-Six" Package

THE Cado Company, Inc., makers of the well-known "Fifty-Six" and "Cado" cigarettes, announce that in keeping with their up-to-date methods the "Fifty-Six" packing will shortly be marketed in a transparent, airtight wrapper, thus preserving the delicate white cover and handsomely embossed words, "Fifty-Six." In addition to keeping the package clean it will also do much to keep the cigarettes in perfect condition and to preserve the delicate fragrance of the excellent Turkish tobacco for which the "Fifty-Six" brand has become famous.

This innovation on the part of the Cado Company, Inc., shows that they are at all times awake and ready to take advantage of any possible opportunity to improve their products and to give further benefit to their patrons and customers.

B. F. Alexander Back From Havana

B. F. Alexander is back again in New York after a two-weeks' stay in Havana, where he made arrangements to take care of the European representation of Fernandez & Garcia, in addition to his representation of that firm in the United States and Canada. Mr. Alexander as now planned will make two trips a year to Europe until such time as his work in that territory shall have been thoroughly systematized. He will leave for Europe in the early part of September for the purpose of establishing headquarters. During his absence the interests of Fernandez & Garcia will be in charge of Richard Davis.

"Fifth Avenue" Cigarettes Going Well

D. Levin, the well-known salesman of the cigarette manufacturing firm of I. B. Krinsky, has been meeting with success in placing "Fifth Avenue" cigarettes in Chicago and Milwaukee. He has recently returned to the factory and brought with him a number of large orders on this brand.

Morris Krinsky has recently left the city on a four-weeks' tour and will visit Albany, Rochester, Buffalo, Toledo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis and South Bend. He has sent in a number of orders on the new Krinsky brand, "Cosmos." These cigarettes seem to be meeting with favor wherever placed.

Henry Esberg Off on Trip

Henry Esberg, of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, will leave New York next Monday for a two-months' trip through the Middle West to look over the field in general and outline plans for a further distribution of his company's product. Mr. Esberg will be accompanied by two merchandise experts, and they will make a careful survey and study of all the markets which the company feel should yield more than they do at present.

E. P. Mesthene, head of the firm of E. P. Mesthene & Company, whose headquarters are at 19 South Williams Street, New York, sailed for the Levant on the "Argentina" on July 22nd. His firm have a large Turkish tobacco plantation and are large exporters to this country.

Getting Best Results from Clerks

THE most successful cigar dealers are those who are able to bring about the best in their clerks.

The dealer who can inspire his clerks to do their best, to feel his enthusiasm, to actually like their work for the game itself, and knows it, works at a tremendous advantage.

All dealers do not have the power, but most can develop it to a profitable extent.

The following suggestions are taken from a talk which the writer had recently with a well-known Cincinnati cigar dealer who is one of the most successful in the country:

1. Post your clerks on the talking points of your goods. Just use the common sense method of explaining the merits of the various brands. Let them know who makes the brands, where they are made, the different kinds of tobacco that go in them, how long they have been in business, and all about them; the clerks can't know too much about the cigar business; they think they know it all when they can place their hand on the different brands in the cases. Take the clerks into your confidence; let them feel they are a part of your business. You would be greatly surprised at the excellence of the ideas brought out by clerks when they take an interest in your business. They come to believe that they really have a big part in your store, which is true; so big a part, in reality, that your success largely depends upon it.

2. Be fair to your clerks. Listen to them kindly and keep your temper. Don't be unreasonable. There are always two sides to a question; but, of course, respectfully maintain your dignity as head of the business.

3. Study your clerks. Learn their strong as well as more noticeable weak points, encourage them, show them you are of the same kind of flesh and blood they are and have a sincere interest in their interests.

4. Be frank with your clerks. It is a splendid idea to have a little meeting occasionally at which time you can solicit their suggestions, tell them that you are willing to do the right thing in the way of wages as they show results and the business warrants it. Let them know there are opportunities in the retail cigar business; that their success now means greater success later on, if not in the cigar business, then in some other line. Don't let them work mechanically.

5. Use your clerks. The average merchant, for fear that no one can do a thing quite as well as he, is losing a good chance. Set your clerks in spare time to checking up prices, comparing catalogue prices, keeping part of the books, trimming windows, planning a sale, etc.

It is altogether true that you cannot inspire your clerks unless you yourself are inspired. You have to create your own atmosphere in your own store.

You will be money ahead if you take time to cultivate your clerks.

Pollack's Crown Stogies Oversold

Henry G. Polson, New York representative for the Pollack Crown Stogie factory of Wheeling, W. Va., says that they have been doing a rushing business this year on the firmly established product, the business for the first seven months showing over double as compared with last year's figures, and with orders on hand now which it will take fully four weeks to fill.

Since the death of her father, the late Augustus Pollack, the management of this factory has been directly in the hands of Miss Augusta Pollack, daughter of the founder, and Miss Pollack has proven her ability as probably the only woman cigar manufacturer in the United States beyond a peradventure.

Trade Comment

E. R. Lincoln, of P. Pohalski & Company, is away this week on a little vacation preparatory to making his long Western trip upon which he will start about August 5th.

Among the recent visitors to the Schatz Importation Company, Indianapolis, was P. Verplanck, of P. Verplanck & Company, who stopped off in the interests of "El Genio" and "Severin" cigars.

Charles D. Altschai, who conducted the largest cigar store in Winnetka, Ill., filed a petition in bankruptcy last week, owing $11,356, with only $350 worth of assets to meet his debts.

Mosley's cigar factory, Memphis, Tenn., has re-opened at 163 South Main Street, and has taken on quite a large force of men who are being kept busy on "Mosley's Little Havanas" and other brands.

W. G. Greenebaum and B. E. d'Arcambal, of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company and Peter Hauptman Tobacco Company, respectively, recently spent two weeks in Arkansas territory boosting the "Muriel."

Chas. Boyd is numbered among the latest acquisitions to the list of "Charles Denby" boosters, and will look after the brand in Indianapolis territory. Before associating himself with Mr. Fendrich, Mr. Boyd was connected with the Compeer Cigar Company, Indianapolis.

E. A. Saunders Sons' Company, Richmond, Va., distributors for the greater portion of Virginia on the "Cinco," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., Philadelphia, Pa., report big business in their territory on this brand. They state that the growth on this cigar during the first six months of 1914 has been amazing, breaking all records.

"Coat of Arms" is the name of a new cigarette retailing at twenty-five cents which is announced by the S. Anargyros branch of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company. The new cigarette goes to the trade at $18.50 per thousand and is packed in cartons of one hundred, mixed cork and plain.

"Six Days," a mild five-cent brand, is being pushed heavily by the Straus Cigar Company, of Richmond, Va., quite a good deal of street car advertising being used in the campaign. This company states there is splendid business on "Savarona," the noted Cayey-Caguas brand, and "Webster," manufactured by Y. Pendas & Alvarez.

Gus Balfour, of the cigar stand of the Woodruff House, Watertown, N. Y., states that a splendid business is being done on "Bachia" cigars, manufactured by R. A. Bachia & Company, New York. Mr. Balfour does a good business in his territory, supplying various resorts of the Thousand Islands with imported brands.

David Lynch, of the Havana-American Company, in cooperation with the J. B. Moos Company, recently spent some time among the retail trade of Louisville, Ky., on behalf of "El Principe de Gales" and "La Preferencias," about one hundred new accounts having been opened on the latter brand. Mr. Lynch states that there is an increasing demand for "La Preferencia" in this territory.

TAMPA TIPS

"Norma Martinez" Cigars in Heavy Demand — E. J. Stachelberg Purchases Fine Leaf—Cuesta-Rey Move Into New Factory

TAMPA, July 27, 1914.

SO great is the influx of orders on "Norma Martinez," manufactured by J. M. Martinez & Company, that it seems impossible to set any stock aside to be used against future demands.

John M. Carlisle, who looks after the Gainesville district for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, recently spent a few days in the city.

Jose Lovera is sojourning at Indian Springs, Ga., and plans to spend several weeks there.

Jose Lozano, of F. Lozano, Son & Company, is back again in Tampa, and will devote a goodly portion of his time to the local plant.

Concerning his recent trip to Havana, where he purchased a splendid crop of tobacco, E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of Sanchez & Haya Company, stated that the crop was first class and that he expected a good business for all factories from now on until the coming New Year. Mr. Stachelberg succeeded in selling "Sanchez & Haya" cigars to no less than six firms, among them being the Ingleterra Hotel, the Miramar Hotel, Plaza Hotel and Cosmopolitan Restaurant. "It seems like 'carrying coals to Newcastle,'" said Mr. Stachelberg, "to sell Tampa cigars in Havana, but there is no reason why the thousands of Americans visiting Havana annually should not have the privilege of buying high grade cigars there." Mr. Stachelberg is now enroute on a ten days' there" Mr. Stachelberg is now en route on a ten days' selling trip which embraces Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Philadelphia, New York and other points.

August first has been set as the date when Cuesta, Rey & Company will occupy the new addition to their factory.

Quite encouraging are the reports received from V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, who state that their factory is being kept busy.

PERFECTO.

Two Cigar Factories to be Consolidated

J. Hanson, of Eugene, Ore., who has conducted the Eugene cigar factory, has recently purchased the Potts factory operated by Hemes Bros. The latter will be consolidated with the Eugene cigar factory and operated under that name.

Buys Out Tobacco Business

Albert E. Fowler, well known tobacconist of Newburyport, Mass., has recently concluded the purchase of the cigar and confectionery business of the late Daniel Balch. The Balch store, at the corner of Merrimac Street and Bridge Road, will be continued by Mr. Fowler, who has secured James O'Brien to operate the stand.

Purchases Cigar Store

Ralph E. Waite, a salesman for the cigar firm of Tinkham Bros. for many years, has recently purchased the Weeks cigar store in Jamestown, N. Y. Mr. Waite travelled for nine years, and is well and favorably known in Jamestown.

CLEAN UP IN CHICAGO "RED LIGHT" CAFES WILL CAUSE LOSSES IN CIGAR TRADE

Upwards of 100,000 High Grade Cigars in One Cafe—Closing of Saloons Will Bring Losses to Jobbers —"Chicago Dry Committee" to Ease Up for a Year

CHICAGO, ILL., July 27, 1914.

TWO events of general interest in this city will have a particular effect on the tobacco trade; one is most unfavorable, while the other will cause the cigar manufacturers and jobbers to breathe a sigh of relief.

The "clean-up" ordered in the "Red Light" district is striking a heavy blow to the cigar trade, but for the good of the city it is high time that these vicious places were closed.

The Chicago Dry Committee has announced that it will make no further effort to close up the saloons for another year. This of course is favorable, for it is needless to say that the closing of the saloons would give the cigar business in this city a body blow.

The murder of a policeman and the wounding of five others in a shooting affray which took place in the tenderloin district has precipitated a sweeping investigation that means the passing of the red light cafes from this city, once and for all. These places, while certainly to be condemned as most vicious places, none the less sold thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of high grade cigars every year, and were the stamping ground of persons who came to "see the city."

To get some idea of the extent of the cigar business among these places, it might be mentioned that an invoice of the stock of Roy Jones, who ran the "Jones Buffet," put out of business by a former investigation, showed the presence of one hundred thousand high grade cigars of various brands, for which, no doubt, a number of local jobbers and distributors are more or less stuck. Nevertheless, when these places were going good, they paid their bills promptly, and were considered as good as old wheat by most of the cigar men who sold them.

One by one they have been passing, and the present investigation, which is directed at the notorious "Freiberg's" for the most part, will just about clean them out. The passing of these places, however healthy for the public morals, will mean a distinct loss for the cigar trade. The other news event is the decision reached the other day by the Chicago Dry Committee to make no more efforts to put the city dry for another year. Five years ago the notion of Chicago ever going dry was received in most quarters with a knowing smile. Not so today, however. The temperance forces have demonstrated that they mean business and that they can and will, some day, put Chicago on the dry map. Needless to say, the passing of the seven thousand saloons of this city would be a hard blow to the cigar trade, regardless of the fact that some of the leading men in the business declare that just as many cigars as ever would be sold from drug stores and other places.

Taking the small town as an example, it has not thus worked out. When the saloons have been put out of business a distinct slump has occurred in the cigar business in every case. The Chicago Dry Committee, which is making the fight against the saloons, is a sort of federation, with representatives from all the local temperance and reform societies, as well as all the churches in the city. The announcement that they intend to wait for another year before making any more aggressive moves is received with pleasure by the cigar men no less than the liquor dealers.

Vacations Help Summer Box Trade—Best & Russell Pushing "Sanchez y Haya" Brand—Albert Breitung on Visit to Germany—Local Leaf Men Optimistic

CHICAGO, ILL., July 27, 1914.

CONVERSATION with the leading cigar and tobacco men of the city over the condition of business during the past two weeks has established the fact that the situation meets the satisfaction of most of them. However, this is not the season when big things are expected. The jobbers move along holding their own and oiling up the internal workings of the machinery for the strenuous campaign this fall. The manufacturers are getting cigars made and packed, so that they will be ready for the rush when it comes.

One of the things which held up the cigar trade is the large business which many of the dealers, especially those in the down-town district, have done in vacation cigars. It has long been the custom in Chicago for members of an office force to see that no one of their number departs on his vacation without a good box of cigars tucked away in the corner of his suit case. This box is usually bought with the fruits of a collection which is taken among the members on the spur of the moment, and of course the cigar stand in the office of the building or just around the corner gets the business. The aggregate of this business reaches some flattering figures. One dealer at a good stand on Michigan Avenue told the writer that he had been selling no less than ten boxes a day of vacation cigars, all good brands. Many of the dealers advertise vacation cigars to a heavy extent, by putting displays in their show windows or tacking signs inside the store.

Sprague, Warner & Company, the largest wholesale grocery house in the United States, which is located in Chicago, has placed a new cigar on the market known as the "Subway" cigar, which is certainly the largest five cent smoke the writer ever saw. It is one of the rough hewn variety, and smokes well. The company is backing the new cigar with a heavy advertising campaign, and the initial sales have been strong. A special sales force is covering the city, and the brand is now seen in almost all the stores where there is a chance for it to thrive.

A change of importance to all manufacturers of this city took place last week when Rivers McNeill took the place of John C. Ames as collector of customs for this district. The new incumbent of the office comes with the best reputation for efficiency and fairness. Cigar manufacturers hope that he will prove as satisfactory to them as Mr. Ames, who held the office for such a long period and was personally acquainted with many of them. Mr. McNeill is a Chicago man.

Arthur Berlitzheimer, formerly of Fromherz & Berlitzheimer, who left the cigar business some weeks ago to engage in the funiture supply business, is now fully in charge as manager of the Radmanol Chemical Products Company. Mr. Berlitzheimer has long had an interest in this company which is backed by S. Karpen Bros. & Company, the large furniture firm.

The Best & Russell Company has started a vigorous advertising campaign on "Sanchez y Haya" and "Owl" cigars, the first being a ten cent and the second a five cent seller. The company is using bill boards and show windows of dealers. Some very fine window displays have been made in the windows of leading cigar and drug stores.

The announcement was made last week that the Ruhstrat-Cowley Company, agents for "Don Antonio," would soon take on another brand to be known as the "De Soto," manufactured by H. Anton Bock & Company. This will make a valuable addition to the line carried by this firm of distributors.

"Condax" cigarettes are proving most popular sellers at the White Sox Ball Park, where the boys when talking business never fail to mention the name "Condax" for some mysterious reason, probably known to E. H. Ahern, cigarette and tobacco department manager of the J. & B. Moos Company, local distributors. Mr. Ahern says that the new package is proving a winner, both in the straw and cork tips.

N. W. Swanson, who has represented the P. Lorillard Company in the loop district on cigarettes for a number of years, has resigned his position to accept a place with A. Saphiro & Company, local manufacturers of cigarettes. He will have city territory.

A. E. Ariel has accepted a position as Western representative for Arnold Tietig & Son, of Cincinnati. Mr. Ariel at once started on a long trip through Western territory, which will include Minneapolis, St. Paul, Denver, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Los Angeles and other cities along that route. He will feature the entire line of the company, with particular emphasis on the "Joy" cigar, which is the best seller of the company in tin cans.

Albert Breitung, genial proprietor of a number of loop cigar stores, is now in Germany, according to his last letter to the boys at the store in the Monadnock Building. He is no doubt greatly interested in the present war agitation, and his friends are not a little concerned that in the enthusiasm of the hour he may grab a saber and gallop to the front at the head of a regiment or two to hand a bunch or two of real American trouble to some of the powers which are making bellicose signs at the "Vaterland."

Local leaf houses, when asked what they thought about the present business situation were most optimistic. While business has been none too good during the summer, they all believe that the fall is destined to show something better.

"I believe that all the leaf houses will do a large business with the manufacturers in the rural district," said one prominent leaf man, "owing to the remarkable success of the crops this year. This always makes business better. I think I can notice that collections are already much better, which I take to be due to the influence of the crops. Then again, I understand that the railroads are soon to get the increased freight rates which they have asked. Some of the leaf men are opposed to this, but for my part I hope that it comes soon, as I am certain that it will make business better at once. The railroads have simply stopped all expansion until they get what they have asked along this line. To my notion the public has been mauling the railroads enough. I believe in justice for all, and I think the carriers are entitled to some consideration regardless of their crimes. Like many other business men I think they are entitled to an increase in freight rates, owing to the fact that the cost of operation has advanced tremendously during the past few years while the freight rates have remained the same."

From the north side comes the word that Alexander Word, 186 North Clark Street, will soon move into a new location, which is, however, just one door south of where he has been located for the past twenty years. The place which Mr. Word will occupy is to be placed in correct shape to house a first class cigar store, which means considerable remodeling and redecoration.

"Reynaldo" Cigars Delight Los Angeles Smokers

"Reynaldo" cigars, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of this city, are making rapid progress in all the territories where they have been placed.

In Los Angeles the "Reynaldo" is a prime favorite. Mr. Luckett, of the firm, has recently visited Los Angeles and introduced the new "Sunset" size of "Reynaldo."

The Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company distribute this brand and report that they are more than pleased with the results. The little runabout shown in the cut herewith carries the message of "Reynaldo" cigars wherever it goes.

Cigar Dealers Appeal to Department of Justice

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28, 1914.

Yesterday a delegation of retail cigar merchants from New York, Brooklyn and Newark paid a visit to the Department of Justice and lodged a complaint with G. Carroll Tood, special assistant to Attorney-General McReynolds, against the Edwin Cigar Stores Company, operating a chain of stores in the above-named cities.

The complaint alleges that the Edwin Cigar Stores Company is selling products below cost in order to drive out competition; that it threatens independent dealers who do not trade with it; that the above-named company is in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

It is further alleged in the complaint that the Edwin Cigar Stores Company is a part of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

The Department of Justice has been investigating the Metropolitan Tobacco Company and it is stated that if it develops that the Edwin Cigar Stores Company is really in any way connected with it suit will be entered in order to bring about its dissolution.

CAPITOL.

"Imperial Smoke Shop" Open in Rutland

Peter Peterson, of Rutland, Vt., who has manufactured cigars for a number of years and also sold cigars in the city, has removed to West Street, and today opened his store as the "Imperial Smoke Shop." The fixtures are up to date and the brands are of a grade and quality to please the most exacting customer.

Boosting "City Club"

A crew of boosters of the Burley Tobacco Company, Louisville, Ky., recently swooped down upon Cincinnati, where there started in on a month's work boosting "City Club" smoking, and "On the Square" chewing tobaccos. Cards are being distributed which the retailers will honor with a full-sized ten-cent tin of "City Club" upon presentation with the signature and address of the bearer. D. H. Elder is in charge of the crew.

Syracuse Manufacturer Shows Growth

Five years ago J. B. Harrison, a manufacturer of cigars on West Onondaga Street, Syracuse, N. Y., was employing but one dozen men, but so rapidly has his business grown as the result of uniformity of manufacture via good workmanship, that over one hundred hands are now needed to take care of manufacture. The leading brands of Mr. Harrison at the present time are the "Syracuse City," a ten-cent brand, and "Usona" and "55," both nickel brands, the latter having proved a big winner throughout this part of the country. Mr. Harrison has quite a big trade in Ogdensburg and Watertown and up in Northern New York. It is his intention to shortly open a branch office in Utica, N. Y.

Western Grocery Company Establishes Agency

The Western Grocery Company of Marshalltown, Ia., has recently established a cigar agency in Minneapolis and will distribute their brands for the adjacent territory from that point. Charles Osterstock, assistant manager of the Albert Lea branch, has been placed in temporary charge of the new agency.

C. Contopaulo Leases New Quarters

George R. Read & Company have recently leased the store, basement and sub-basement at 35 Warren Street to C. Contopaulo, an importer of Turkish tobacco and manufacturer of cigarettes, now on Park Place. The store has been vacant for two years and has been held at a rental of $7000 per annum. The new lease is for a long term.

Willis Andruss With "Charles Denby"

Willis Andruss, identified for many years with the Surbrug Company, and who has represented the Cado Company, Inc., on the "Fifty Six" for a year or more in the Middle West, announces that September 1st will witness his alliance with the well-known firm of H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind. Mr. Andruss will devote his attention to the "Charles Denby" and will include in his territory a portion of Iowa and Missouri, travelling as far West as Salt Lake City and as far South as Texas. Kansas City will be the headquarters of Mr. Andruss.

WANTS FAIR DEAL ON TOBACCO RATES

E. J. Stachelberg Says Cigar Manufacturers Are Imposed Upon—Steamship Company's Manager Refutes Statement

TAMPA, July 27, 1914.

CONCERNING the tobacco rates from Cuba, given by the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, to Tampa cigar manufacturers, it is the opinion of E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of Sanchez & Haya, that the manufacturers are not receiving a fair deal. Mr. Stachelberg feels that the matter should be taken up with the Interstate Commerce Commission. He also is very strongly in favor of a direct steamship line from Tampa to Havana instead of Port Tampa, and states that such a line would pay well.

"Illustrating the manner in which the cigar manufacturers are imposed upon by the P. & O. people," said Mr. Stachelberg, "tobacco shipped from Havana was for years 'lightered' to the steamships. For this a charge of fifteen cents a bale was made. The P. & O. boats now dock at the Havana wharves, making lighterage unnecessary, but the lighterage charge still remains in effect. The freight charge of the line for tobacco is fifty cents a bale, I understand, but the trimmings attached run it up to the neighborhood of sixty-five cents a bale. The line could handle tobacco at thirty cents a bale and still make money out of the business. Why should the cigar manufacturers have this thirty-five cents extra tacked on them? The cigar manufacturers should take the matter up with the Interstate Commerce Commission without delay."

Regarding direct line from Tampa to Havana, Mr. Stachelberg said:

"Why should Tampans sleep on the project of having a steamship line direct to Havana? Why should we receive all our Cuban shipments by way of Port Tampa? With our deep water and magnificent harbor facilities, the present state of affairs seems absurd to me. It is but another case of the manufacturers and business men of Tampa sleeping on their rights and failing to realize on their natural advantages. In both passenger and freight departments the P. & O. Line has been paying magnificent profits for years, and any business man who will study the conditions, which are annually improving, will realize that an independent line, running direct from Tampa to Havana, would prove a paying investment. I studied the various phases of this question several years ago, with a view to inaugurating a direct line from Tampa, and know whereof I speak."

Concerning tobacco rates from Cuba, J. W. Morris, local manager of the Peninsular and Occidental Line, refutes the same, and says that the statement of Mr. Stachelberg was made before he had thoroughly investigated whereof he spoke.

In regard to direct line of steamships from Tampa to Havana, Mr. Morris states that at the present time circumstances are not propitious, but feels that the line will be established eventually.

Gadsden County's Enormous Crop

Report from Gadsden County, Quincy, Fla., states that the estimated value of the tobacco crop will reach the enormous amount of three million dollars. Some of the firms have already begun entering the tobacco in the packing houses, and it is said that deliveries will begin shortly. Just so soon as the delivery of the tobacco has been accomplished at least a dozen packing houses with their hundreds of laborers will open up in full blast, which will mean a weekly pay-roll in the neighborhood of five thousand dollars.

Judge Brown Starts War on Cigarettes

President Judge Charles L. Brown, of the Municipal Court of this city, has asked the aid of Mayor Blankenburg, the police department, the board of education and the heads of various scholastic institutions to aid in curbing the alarming growth of the cigarette evil among boys.

In letters to the mayor and others Judge Brown has pointed out the drastic penalties in the act passed at the last session of the legislature, which not only makes the dealers selling cigarettes to minors subject to heavy fines, but provides a five-day term in jail for any minor having cigarettes in his possession who refuses to tell where he obtained them when asked by any police officer, constable, Juvenile Court officer, truant officer or school teacher.

With the aid of all these persons in bringing the information to the Juvenile Court, Judge Brown declares that a relentless war will be waged against cigarette smoking by minors. He has arranged for the Juvenile Court to take original jurisdiction of such cases, have the warrants sworn out and proceedings taken directly against the offenders, so that teachers and other informants will be given as little trouble as possible. With the facts in the possession of the court, the judges and their staff will do the rest.

Judge Brown urges that the city authorities have printed placards pointing out the penalties of the law. Each violation of the act by dealers means a fine of from $100 to $300, and Judge Brown believes that if they were assured this law would be rigidly enforced there would soon be a universal observance of it.

United Cigar Store Agencies Prosper

Some idea of the possibilities of the agency idea adopted by United Cigar Stores Company may be gleaned from the fact that so far the average weekly business of the dealer selected as an agent has been double what it was before he displayed a "United" sign.

Dealers throughout the country have quickly learned of the increased sales under the United regime, and applications for the privilege of displaying a "United" sign and selling United "closed" brands are coming in in great number.

Care is exercised in selection of the agencies, and the United insists that agents shall display their goods in United fashion.

The agent agrees to buy his goods directly from the United. This applies to all lines whether "open" or "closed" brands. Because of the lower prices at which the United can buy "open" brands from the manufacturers in bulk, this means an actual saving in cost on "open" brands for the dealers. This is one of the reasons for the favorable reception of the proposition.

Agencies so far started have been near New York City, but as the demand for agencies is increasing, it is probable that the country will be divided into districts. The agency field, even if no attempt is made to go outside of the United States, is almost unlimited. There are 600,000 cigar stores in this country.

Good Business on "Muriel"

Report received from the Hjalmar Boedtker Tobacco Company, Syracuse, N. Y., is to the effect that an amazing business is being done by them on the Rothschild size of the "Muriel," ten-cent broadleaf wrapped Havana filled brand. In addition to its local distribution the company has the agency for the cigar in Onondaga, Madison, Oswego and Jefferson Counties, in which good business also is being done on the "Muriel." During the past year over four hundred thousand "Muriels" were sold in the four counties combined.

What "Thank You" Means

A MAN entered a cigar store. All the clerks were busy. While he waited he watched the clerks. He noticed that each concluded a sale by saying "Thank you."

Presently his turn came. He bought a cigar and the man behind the counter said "Thank you."

The customer lit his cigar and asked: "Don't you get tired saying 'Thank you'?" "No," replied the clerk.

"How many times a day do you say it?" The clerk smiled. "Well, this is a very busy corner, and I guess I wait on an average of four hundred people a day. I say 'Thank you' to every one."

The customer shook his head. "That's going some," he said. "I can't imagine saying 'Thank you' four hundred times a day."

The man behind the counter smiled. "I guess you would if four hundred people did favors for you. Look at it this way: My employers judge my ability as a salesman by the quantity and quality of my work. Therefore I aim to sell as much as possible. Every man who buys from me helps to make a better showing. So I express my appreciation by thanking him. In turn he appreciates my 'Thank you' and comes back. You see, a customer comes in but once a day and hears my 'Thank you' but once. It is a little courtesy, but it is appreciated. That's the reason it doesn't tire me to say 'Thank you' four hundred times a day. It's a pleasure because it brings satisfaction both sides."

The customer nodded in appreciation. "That's a point of view I never realized," he said. "Thank you for pointing it out."

"You're welcome," said the clerk, "come in again."

"New Bachelors" in Demand

In a recent statement to the trade, Theodore Werner, president of T. J. Dunn & Company, manufacturers of the noted "New Bachelor," states that so insistent has the demand been for this brand that orders for at least three million were awaiting fulfilment. "We are very busy," said Mr. Werner, "which is all the more gratifying in view of the fact that during the same period in 1913 orders were coming in to a much lesser extent."

Seachrist & Mumma Purchase Disputed Tobacco

Sixty cases of tobacco, the same in bulk, were recently sold at auction by John K. Wissler, acting as auctioneer for the Lancaster Storage Company, Lancaster, Pa., the price obtained being $532, the purchasers being Seachrist & Mumma. The tobacco had been consigned by the Hoffman Leaf Tobacco Company, of Marietta, Pa., to the Enterprise Cigar Company, Red Lion, Pa., via the Pennsylvania Railroad. A dispute having arisen, neither the consignor nor the consignee would accept the tobacco, making it necessary for the railroad company to place the tobacco in storage.

Cigar Salesman Dies from Auto Accident

A. J. Fretz, thirty-six years old, of Ferndale, Pa., died in the Jewish Hospital early Thursday from a fracture of his skull. He was struck by a Reading train Wednesday afternoon at Southampton, Bucks County, while driving an automobile over a grade crossing. His companion, Samuel Barlow, twenty-seven years old, of 185 North Main Street, Doylestown, is in a critical condition from a like injury at the same hospital.

The men were cigar salesmen employed by A. J. Dunn, of Easton. At Southampton crossing a high embankment hid the approaching train, and they drove on the tracks directly in front of it.

Trade Jottings

The Henry Straus Company, Cincinnati, O., have taken on the "Blackstone" perfectos.

H. W. Moering, Milwaukee, Wis., have taken on the "Bold" cigar, Bobrow Bros., Philadelphia, Pa.

E. L. Nissly, of E. L. Nissly & Sons, is back again in Lancaster after a recent trip to Chicago and Cincinnati.

The "Vafiadis" cigarette, ten for twenty-five cents, was recently placed on the market in St. Paul, Minn., by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Report comes from the factory of Wertheimer Bros., Baltimore, that there is a continuous demand for their well known "El Dallo," the orders coming in from salesmen indicating that 1914 will be a banner season.

Report from the Commercial Club, St. Paul, Minn., is to the effect that "La Venga" and "Jan Kubelik" cigars are in the lead while "El Firma" and "Aquilas" are close seconds. J. B. Foley is in charge of the cigar department.

J. D. Willard, who recently succeeded L. H. Lewin at Salt Lake City, Utah, as local representative of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, is hard at work pushing "Prince Albert."

Cliff Zorn, until recently connected with S. Frieder & Sons, Cincinnati, has identified himself with L. Neuberger & Bro., of the same city, acting in the capacity of city salesman.

Satisfactory orders on "Sight Draft" cigars are being received by A. S. Goodrich & Company, Milwaukee, Wis. Many windows throughout the city are exploiting this brand, helping along the local advertising campaign now under way in Milwaukee.

Good business is reported by the Lewis & Whitaker Cigar Company at their store recently opened on Main Street, Salt Lake City. "La Megas" and "Valentines" are having the call in the higher priced goods, while in nickel brands "Broadwalls," "John Ruskin" and "Mansfield" are the order of the day.

The Coraza Cigar Company, Milwaukee, Wis., is now located on the third floor of the Kopmeier Building, having found it necessary to increase its quarters. The change gives this company three thousand square feet of additional floor space. The Coraza Company was formerly located on the second floor of the same building.

The Western Grocery Company, operating in various sections of the Middle West, recently opened another branch in Minneapolis, Minn., the new location being on Fourth Street, directly across from the Winston-Harper-Fisher Company's building. Harvey Zimmerman, formerly connected with Samuel I. Davis & Company, is connected with the new branch and will cover territory on "San Felice" and "El Verso."

The Death of James E. Nichols

JAMES E. NICHOLS, widely known in the commercial life of the West Side of Manhattan and for many years the head of the firm of Austin, Nichols & Company, died on the 21st of heart failure, at Marienbad, Austria. Mr. Nichols was looked upon as the nestor of the West Side business section of the city and his death came as a great shock to the general trade.

In the development of the commercial life of the West Side of Manhattan no man was better known than Mr. Nichols, his interests extending into important banking as well as commercial enterprises. For a great many years he was actively identified with the upbuilding of the Irving National Bank. At his death he was a director and vice-president of the Irving. He was also a director in Austin, Nichols & Company, Inc., Broadway Trust Company, Fidelity Trust Company, Merchants' Refrigerating Company, Childs Company and a member of the New York Athletic, Arkwright and Camp Fire Clubs.

Mr. Nichols was born in Meredith, Belknap County, New Hampshire, April 25, 1845, and came to New York in 1868 as representative and agent of the F. A. & J. Sawyer and the Franklin Woolen Mills of New Hampshire. At the close of 1878 with others he organized the firm of Austin, Nichols & Company, which succeeded to the wholesale grocery business established by Fitts & Austin, continuing as the senior partner until 1909, when he retired, the business being continued as a corporation.

Mr. Nichols is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lizzie Griggs Nichols, whom he married in 1878. Her father was Joseph W. Griggs, for many years general passenger agent for the Boston & Albany Railroad, and prominent in railroad circles as the originator of the clearing house system of railroad tickets.

Mr. Nichols' death, it is understood, will not interfere in any way with any of the interests with which Mr. Nichols was connected.

Leopold Leeuw

Leopold Leeuw, a son of the founder of the tobacco store of Salomon & Leeuw and a member of that firm, died on July 19th at his home in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Leeuw's illness dated back to March 25, 1913, when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. His condition became worse and Bright's disease was the immediate cause of his death. Mr. Leeuw was fifty-four years old.

Mr. Leeuw became prominently identified with the I. O. O. F. in 1881. He passed rapidly through the chairs and became a grand master. Up to the time of his death Mr. Leeuw maintained an active interest in the affairs of the lodge.

Thomas L. Reynolds

Thomas L. Reynolds, ninety-seven years old and a widely known tobacconist of Franklin County, died at the Lewis-Gale Hospital, in Roanoke, N. C., on July 21st. His death was the result of a bad fall which produced injuries that together with his advanced age made recovery impossible.

The deceased is survived by six children, twenty-four grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren.

Death Claims Emilio Pons

EMILIO PONS, a pioneer cigar manufacturer and one of the oldest residents of Tampa, succumbed to the ravages of pleurisy on July 18th, after a three-months' struggle against the disease.

Mr. Pons was a native of Cuba and was fifty-six years old. He was born in Bayama, Cuba. He leaves a widow and two children, Emilio, aged fifteen years, and Carmen, aged twelve. He is also survived by his mother, and a brother, both of Havana.

Mr. Pons had identified himself with the manufacture of cigars and the leaf tobacco business all his life. When a young boy he learned to make cigars in Havana, and for several years he worked at that trade in various factories on the island. Soon after the cigar trade was born in Tampa he came to this city. That was about twenty-five years ago. He associated himself with Candido Ybor, in the making of cigars in this city. They conducted a factory for several years together, but when Mr. Ybor died the business was dissolved.

Later he was connected with the Ybor-Manrara Company, being the manager of that firm for a couple of years, but when the firm was sold to the Havana-American Company Mr. Pons resigned to go into the business with S. R. Morey, the firm being known as Morey & Pons. They manufactured cigars for several years, but four years ago this factory was sold out to another cigar firm.

At the time of his death Senor Pons was superintendent and treasurer of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, and also conducted a leaf tobacco house, the latter being one of the largest of its kind in the state, known as Emilio Pons & Company.

At one time he was active in politics in Tampa, being a member of the city council from the Fourth Ward. He was for Tampa always and was one of the most prominent tobacco experts in the business. Many men who are engaged in the trade in this city have stated that there is no other man in the industry in Cuba or any other part of the world who knew more about the making of cigars than Mr. Pons. He was of a genial disposition and made many warm friends and admirers.

The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: D. B. McKay, Ralph M. Ybor, Salvador Ybor, W. F. Stovall, E. Berger, Major R. Cabrera, Perry G. Wall, M. W. Carruth, Melville Gibbons, J. Mack Towne, and Senor Rey.

Around the casket which held the remains of Senor Pons was wrapped a Cuban flag, this being done by Cuban Consul Ralph Ybor, as he was also a soldier in the Cuban war with Spain, known as the "Ten Years' War." He was wounded once in an engagement, and carried the bullet with him to the grave.

William H. Cook

William H. Cook, for many years a member of the leaf tobacco firm of Server, Cook & Gager, later Cook & Wilson, died on the 28th after an illness of many months, at his apartments in the Belgravia. He was seventy years old.

Mr. Cook was an ardent collector of rare books and was considered to have one of the finest libraries in the city. He had been a member of the Union League since the '70s.

Richard G. Hudson

Richard G. Hudson, a retired tobacco merchant, died recently at his home, 799 Quincy Street, Brooklyn. He was born in New York City seventy-eight years ago and had lived the greater part of his life in Baltimore and Brooklyn.

The deceased is survived by a wife and two daughters.

John Gilmore

John Gilmore, the well-known Philadelphia wine merchant and distributor of Y. Pendas & Alvarez "Farragut" cigars, died within the past week, aged eighty-four years.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

Making Money Out of the Vacation Season

In the territory east of the Ohio River, there are comparatively few women who have adopted the retail cigar business as their principal occupation, yet one wide awake member of the feminine sex seized upon a suggestion that put many dollars into her till since the vacation period started.

The dwelling part of this woman's store was occupied by her married sister and her family, and during the evening the brother-in-law would frequently attend to the customers' needs, during the dinner hour; it was upon one of these occurrences that the sister lamented the fact that when away she would be without the ever present gas stove upon which many smaller dishes might be cooked in a hurry.

This suggestion immediately opened up the idea of the alcohol stove for the bungalows owned and occupied by the many families in the town where the business was located.

Steps were immediately taken to secure a quantity of these stoves for display purposes, and later shipments as need might require; using hand bills and newspaper space, the scheme was advertised with such good results that instead of just about breaking even for the vacation period a well-deserved profit remained for the summer's work.

Fishing Tackle for Cash Receipts

Any given community that does not possess a number of followers of Isaak Walton is indeed the exception, and one retail cigar and tobacco dealer turned this knowledge into account by offering fishing rods and tackle with the return of cash register slips of a given amount, which represented goods purchased from his store.

Possessing a number of charge accounts, and among them some that were usually held over until the return from vacations, the idea suggested itself that he could secure new trade and discount his bills if these "hold-overs" came to hand before the vacation period.

Letters were sent, and the percentage of slow accounts which came promptly to hand, more than justified the additional expense.

Varnishes Help Sell Cigars

Many retail cigar and tobacco dealers throughout the country have added to their profit by the sale of novelties of various kinds, but it was left to a dealer in New York State to conceive the idea that floor and furniture stain would make an attractive side line.

Being a married man, and therefore in close touch with the domestic upheaval in the spring, the question of stains for indoor use was brought forcibly to his attention, as some of the profit secured from the sale of his cigars and tobacco was turned into this channel.

It was during the period of cold suppers and carpet beating that the idea formed in his mind, that since his own home was the stage for much stain and more smells, there must be many other homes undergoing a similar plague.

Meeting a friend on his down town trip engaged in the business of spreading the various stains, the two became engaged in earnest conversation with the result that a case of assorted stains was deposited in the cigar store and announcement made in the daily papers that for the return of a certain amount of cash register receipts, a can of stain or varnish would be given free.

The advertising was directed to the women who harbored smokers within the confines of their homes, and the result has justified the dealer in cigars and tobacco in carrying a complete assortment of stains and varnish for indoor use.

Selling Cigarettes By Machine

It has been our fortune to see machines from which could be extracted almost every commodity, from chewing gum to watches containing more or less accurate time-keepers, but within the past month we first noticed vending machines from which could be extracted "Ramado" cigarettes.

Our introduction to this machine was not in a business that catered very extensively to cigarette smokers, either, for we had stopped to enjoy a bottle of the stuff "That Made ———— Famous," and in reaching for the cracker bowl, this brand of cigarettes brought itself to our attention.

That others had noticed and used this machine for a package of "pills" was evidenced by the fact that more than half the packages had been sold without trouble to the proprietor or his assistants.

Don't Forget the Vacuum Bottle

Retail cigar dealers throughout the country are awakening to the fact that a very considerable portion of new trade can be controlled through the channel of premium giving, and also are wising up to the vacation period as an excellent time to adopt this method of publicity.

The dealer in Providence, who made the initial plunge in the premium line by offering a vacuum bottle with the purchase of $2.25 worth of cigars, is likely to repeat as soon as arrangements can be completed for some other desirable object. While these bottles were given with cigars under his private label, common sense dictates that the cigars were of sufficient merit to win the approval of his new customers.

We are not in possession of the facts as to just how one of these bottles reached the daylight steamers that ply between New York City and points along the Hudson River, but during the past month we ran across this incident, and the satisfaction of the wife and mother who carried milk already prepared for her infant, is conclusive proof that when any of the male members of her family, or their friends, are in the vicinity of Providence they will patronize the cigar store offering this useful article as a premium.

San Francisco

Head of Tobacco Company of Arizona Dies—Glaser Brothers to Distribute "New Bachelors"—H. Bercovich Cigar Company to Operate Only Retail Stores

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20, 1914.

THE fact that San Francisco's larger cigar manufacturing plants took the usual two or three weeks off about the first of July for overhauling, repairing and stock taking started the report that the local cigar trade had slumped badly and that the manufacturing industry was particularly quiet. All hands started work again this week, however, and the sensation has lost most of its vigor. As everybody knows, the cigar business is not exactly booming, but it seems quite generally agreed that sales are improving on the whole. Since July 4th some of the retailers have experienced a little reaction owing to the fact that many people are out of town; but others have noted an improvement, due probably to the presence of large numbers of visitors, also on vacation bent. The wholesalers are doing about as well as could be expected at this season; and in some sections, notably in the big interior valleys, there is a decided improvement in the number and volume of the orders taken.

News has reached this city of the death of M. E. Moreno, president of the Tobacco Company of Arizona, of Tucson, Ariz. This company is one of the leading wholesale cigar and tobacco houses of Arizona.

There is an increasing interest all the time in affairs connected with the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Both M. A. Gunst & Company and H. L. Judell & Company have the plans completed for their cigar concession buildings, and work on these is expected to begin before long.

There have been a number of changes of minor importance in the trade this week. The Imperial Sales Company has been taken over by A. H. Wagner; E. G. Thornton has bought out the business of J. H. Rivers, and John Martorana has bought out the business of Del Maggiori.

The "New Bachelor" line of cigars, which has been without a distributer since the Bercovich Company went out of the wholesale business, has now been placed with Glaser Brothers, the Montgomery Street wholesalers, who will feature it extensively.

At no time has the "Owl" cigar been so extensively advertised in San Francisco as at present. Huge wall signs are the order of the day. The one just completed on the Atlas Building at Second and Mission Streets contains over sixty-five hundred square feet of display. Many of the best advertising locations in the city now carry the "Owl" slogan: "Over a million 'Owls' smoked every week on the Pacific Coast alone,—it must be the BEST."

To make out a watch sheet for a chain of retail stores, some of which are open for twenty hours a day, while others do business twelve, fourteen, sixteen and eighteen hours, is a task that is both involved and ingenious. Walter Royston, the San Francisco superintendent of the chain of retail stores belonging to M. A. Gunst & Company, has solved that riddle of the tobacco world. While Royston's "detail-sheet" resembles a section of a railroad time table or a page of the new tariff bill, it differs from them in being quite comprehensive to every salesman in the Gunst service. Superintendent Royston's system moves automatically like clockwork. It is a peculiar "watch-system" that takes care of the store and the clerk, so that each salesman works approximately the same hours, receives his days off per month and his regular vacations. This automatic system proved so extremely efficient that the Gunst Company is constantly receiving applications from other firms operating chains of stores for friendly advices, professional opinions and samples of those time-sheets.

The last number of the "Staple News" published by the Gunst Company, reminds its readers that on July the Fourth, 1874, the infant store of "The House of Staples" was founded at 211 Kearny Street. In forty years that infant grew up to its present gigantic dimensions, and is still going some.

The "News" contains also one good joke, worthy of reproduction, not because it is the only one in that copy, but because it shows some quick thinking done at the counter.

Here it is:

Customer—"A good nickel cigar, please."

Salesman—"Yes, sir; try the 'Owl,' it's always good."

Customer—"All right, shoot the 'Owl.'"

Salesman—"It's always in season, the 'Owl' is; you can shoot it every day."

The H. Bercovich Cigar Company, Sacramento and Montgomery Streets, is the latest successor of the reorganized H. Bercovich Company and of The Bercovich Company. Mr. Bercovich declares that he will make his future headquarters at his present location, where he will also instal his supply depot. In the future this company will confine its efforts to its seven retail stores and will feature Samuel I. Davis' products, but it will continue to carry a complete line of brands handled by this firm before the reorganization. Attractive new signs are being installed in various Bercovich establishments.

A. Hoffman, 501 Ellis Street, manufacturer of clear Havana and domestic cigars wholesale and retail, is not an optimist. He states that the business at present is poorer than it has been since the Big Fire when Ellis Street was almost uninhabited. There are now more than two hundred cigarmakers walking the streets in San Francisco, according to Mr. Hoffman. Last year more than four hundred were at work, now less than two hundred. Mr. Hoffman's brands are the "Goldwest," five cents; the "Columbia," ten cents, and "Los Preferos," two for twenty-five cents. He has now two men at work and one salesman in the San Francisco territory.

The "Natividad" factory of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, 540 Clay Street, laid off about 150 men two weeks ago, owing to stock taking, but put them again to work after several days' vacation. Mr. Frankel will leave soon for his regular Cuban trip. All salesmen are on the road.

Edward Wolf has returned from his Southern inspection trip, and reports a fair amount of orders. Especially, Los Angeles proved to be a good territory to work in. The Wolf Company will receive their stock of "Tadema" cigars about the middle of August. A shipment of "Insulars" arrived on the last steamer. Asked about the prospects, Mr. Wolf stated with his resigned, friendly smile: "As long as we are busy, we are satisfied."

H. W. Hall, formerly of the Liggett & Myers Company, arrived here on the seventh instant, and will assume the position of vice-president of the John Bollman Company.

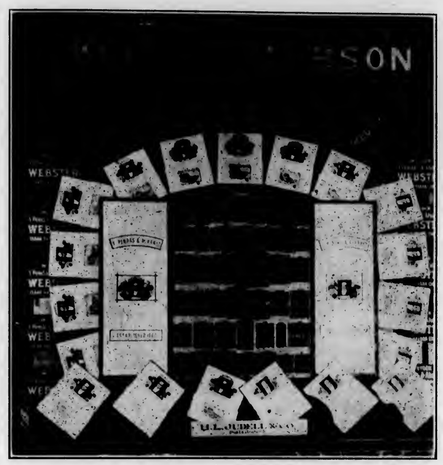
Joseph Michalitchke, after two weeks' vacation in the Yosemite, returned to his shop with renewed vigor.

Mr. Flesher, of Rothenberg & Schloss, Kansas City, is visiting San Francisco.

Morgan A. Gunst will return from his European honeymoon trip to San Francisco on September 1st. His father, M. A. Gunst, Sr., is in much better health since his return to the Coast.

ALLEN.

Mason, Ehrman & Company, Northwestern distributors of "La Mega," V. Guerra Diaz & Company, report good, excellent business on this brand in their territory.



"Webster" Display Shows Many Sizes

Y. Pendas & Alvarez have a strong hold on the favor of the consumer which they have honestly won with their high-grade "Webster" clear Havana cigar. Wherever the better grade of cigars are in demand, there will always be found the "Webster" brand.

In San Francisco "Websters" have a heavy call and the H. L. Judell Company, the distributors, expect to make this cigar one of the big sellers at the Exposition next year.

The accompanying illustration shows a display of many sizes of "Webster" cigars in the window of Krumb & Mierson. The proprietors say that these displays not only bring additional business on the brand, but also create a healthy impression as to the character of the store.

Pittsburgh

Stogie Business is Showing Improvement—Siller-Narten-Barnes Company Takes on "Muriel"—"Camp" Cigarettes Are Being Well Received

THE outlook in the stogie business in Pittsburgh is the best this market has ever seen. The factories are all behind in their orders. The higher grade stogies seem to have the call.

F. Hall Martin, representing the J. S. Haggerty Company, of Fairmont, W. Va., has been in town the past ten days putting out "Haggerty" stogies with Mr. Huck, of the T. C. Jenkins Company. This concern has the distribution of these stogies in this district.

R. Thompson, manager of the cigar department of the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, is spending two weeks' vacation in Canada.

The Siller-Narten-Barnes Company have taken on the "Muriel" cigar, of the P. Lorillard Company. J. Percy Given and Raymond T. Riger will start a campaign on this brand in a few weeks. Mr. Given is at present working with one of Siller-Narten-Barnes' men. This company has also dropped the "El Roi Tan" brand made by Seidenberg Company, of New York.

Frank Kelly, representing the Cleveland Store Fixture Company, has been in town the last few days in the interest of his firm. This concern made all the fixtures for the May Drug Company stores.

Haworth & Dewhurst have taken on the "El Sidelo" cigar, of Sam. I. Davis, of Tampa. Mr. Winters will be here in a day or two to do some work on this brand. This brand was formerly distributed by Jos. Raubitschek and T. C. Jenkins. Haworth & Dewhurst should have a big sale on this brand, as they have quite an extensive cigar business.

A. Specht, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, New York and Key West, has been in town the last two weeks calling on the trade with Mr. Vincent in the interest of "Gato" cigars. The W. J. Gilmore Drug Company have the distribution for this brand. Mr. Specht is doing some good work on "Gatos."

P. T. Green, formerly with the American Tobacco Company, is now with the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company, working on their stogie end.

Sam. Rosen, of Oil City, Pa., was in town the last few days visiting some of his old friends. Mr. Rosen has the distribution of "Havana Ribbon" cigars, Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, and "Little Cassatt" and "Coiner" brands, of Baum Brothers, Philadelphia.

Jos. Maher, of the Fifth Avenue Arcade Cigar Stand, is now representing M. Marsh & Son, of Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. Maher should have quite a success in his new venture, as he is well known among the Pittsburgh cigarists.

The Afco Cigar Company have quite a run on the "Tarquinas" Havana cigars made by Mancebo and Munia & Company, of New York.

The May Drug Company have taken on the "Alona" cigar, of the Gene-Vall Cigar Company, New York. They will have quite a campaign on this cigar in the near future. They have placed them in all of their nine stores. H. Goldberg, of New York, was the successful man to place this brand with the May Drug Company, selling them 45,000 for their opening order. Watch the "Alona" cigar in Pittsburgh.

The following visitors were in town: A. Specht, E. H. Gato Cigar Company, New York; H. A. Polly Willard, Pacific Coast representative of E. Cordero Company; J. Percy Given and Raymond T. Riger, P. Lorillard Company.

C. A. Gibbs, of the C. A. Gibbs Company, is on his vacation. He is touring Cambridge Springs and Lake Chautaqua in his automobile.

The good ones do "come back." The big campaign on "Polar Bear" in the Pittsburgh district has put the brand among the first sellers, and business is increasing right along. Some very attractive Bear Cut Outs are displayed in the down town section.

R. S. Sugden is in town for a few days in the interest of the Camp Importation Company, of New York. S. A. Cridland, of Western Pennsylvania, and G. T. Tait, of Michigan, are in town doing some good work on "Camp" cigarettes. They are the last word in cigarettes; mild, pure, high quality, and a pleasing blend of selected Turkish tobacco.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, July 23, 1914.

SINCE our last report there has been more life in our leaf market, as ten manufacturers arrived from Tampa, and six from New York and Key West; therefore the sales have assumed more customary proportions at this season of the year. As the receipts from the country have also increased, having been over 21,000 bales during the past week, the buyers from the North that are coming here now will have no trouble to make their picks from the stocks in our warehouses. Besides, as our leaf dealers are ready to facilitate business by being very moderate in their asking figures, calculating only upon a very moderate profit for themselves, the early buyers will have this additional advantage. As far as Partido wrappers are concerned, the American manufacturers cannot be exacting this year, and we would strongly advise the press in the United States to help them, by informing the smokers what they have to expect. It almost seems a repetition of the year 1912, when we also had to labor under the disadvantage of calico colors, and finally the smokers made the best of the situation, and the cigars were all consumed.

The exporters for Germany are as hot as ever, picking up all the low grades from Remedios, as soon as they arrive from the country, and having raised the prices on themselves, although this in view of a large crop seems incomprehensible. On the other hand, as there appears to be a shortage of the heavy quality puntillas this year in the Semi Vuelta district and in the Vuelta Abajo, there is more sense in paying higher figures for such styles.

Our local manufacturers are in no hurry to buy Vuelta Abajo fillers, as their business has not yet made a turn for the better, although the most famous vegas, which our large manufacturers are in the habit to buy every year, to sustain the high standard of excellence of their product, have been secured already directly from the vegueros.

The demand for South America has not yet commenced upon a larger scale, although in course of time it is bound to exert itself as usual.

Sales totaled 8699 bales during the last two weeks, and which consisted of: Vuelta Abajo, 3518; Partido, 1777, and Remedios, 3404 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 3475; exporters to Europe, 3159; shippers to South America 220, and local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1845 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the two weeks closing with July 11, 1914, totaled 8998 bales, which were distributed among the following countries, viz., to all ports of the United States, 4084; to Bremen and Hamburg, 4187; to Canada, 88; to Antwerp, 64; to Rotterdam, 62; to Gibraltar, 21, and to South America, 402 bales.

Morgan, of the Morgan Cigar Company; Joaquin Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company; Celestino Vega (accompanied by his family), of Celestino Vega & Company.

From Key West: Jaime Pendas, of Moreda & Company; Tomas H. Gato, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company; Luis Martinez, of the Luis Martinez Havana Company, and Mauricio Winter, of M. Perez Company.

Returned.—Antonio Allones, of Allones, Ltd.; Walter C. Sutter, of Walter Sutter & Company; Manuel Suarez (El Grillo), of Manuel Suarez, and Theodore Garbade, of H. Upmann & Company.

Departures.—To New York: B. G. Davis, Maximilian Stern and B. F. Alexander.

To Tampa: Edgar J. Stachelberg, General E. M. Elam, Jose Lovera, Angel L. Cuesta, Val M. Antuono and Fernando Rodriguez.

To Key West: Luis Martinez, of the Luis Martinez Havana Company.

Cigars.

There is no sign of any improvement in our cigar factories, as with the exception of orders from Germany the other countries are woefully lacking in the transmission of orders. As far as Germany is concerned, it remains to be seen yet whether all the orders in hand will be executed or not. One large commission merchant told us that he feared, when the first shipments of new cigars should reach Germany, that cancellations might follow on account of the colors of the cigars. As far as we could ascertain we have gone back over two million cigars during the first half of this month, and as compared with the same period of last year. This brings the total of our exports from the port of Havana to over ten millions of cigars, during the first six and one-half months of 1914, less than in 1913.

The Cuban Market

While some of the big independent factories assure us that they are fully holding their own, there must be others, however, that are not so favorably situated, and for this reason we prefer not to mention any names.

Leaf Tobacco.

Edgar J. Stachelberg purchased in all around two thousand bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido for the Sanchez & Haya Company, of Tampa, and as he is a quick buyer, when he sees the right kind of goods, he was in town only for eight days. The most notable purchase made by him was a vega from Wajay, called "Gonzalez" and owned by the planters, Vicente P. Vergara and Bernardo Perez, consisting of six hundred bales. Our daily press had gotten hold of the sale and spoke in very laudatory terms about the excellent quality, and which expert judges had declared to be one of the finest vegas grown this year. The tobacco had been stored in the warehouse of our friends, Muniz Hermanos, No. 20 Calzada de la Reina.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez did not wish to give us their sales during the past fortnight, but we presume we are not far out of the way when we estimate them as about fourteen hundred bales of all kinds.

B. G. Davis, of B. G. Davis & Company, of New York, was a buyer of six hundred bales of fine Vuelta Abajo and Partido vegas.

Muniz Hermanos sold during the fortnight nine hundred bales of all kinds of leaf, to their various customers.

Adolfo Moeller was the heaviest buyer for the German market with close on to sixteen hundred bales of Remedios and some Semi Vuelta and Vuelta Abajo Puntillas.

F. Rocha & Company were sellers of eight hundred and eight bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios leaf during the last two weeks.

Nunez Diehl & Company are also well supplied with orders for the German market, as they had purchased over eight hundred bales of leaf tobacco.

Jose C. Puente & Company disposed of three hundred and fifty bales of Partido and Remedios leaf to their customers during the past fortnight.

The Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company were buyers of nine hundred and forty-five bales of old and new leaf for their customers.

Garcia & Company, who had been domiciled for the last thirty years, were finally forced to give up their warehouse at 199 Monte Street, as the owners were trying to put the thumb-screws on them, by asking an exorbitant rent, and they have taken the large warehouse, just in front of them, No. 110-116 Monte Street, for a term of years. They will move into their new quarters on the first of August. We wish them as much success in their new location as they have had in their old place.

Jose Saavedra Veiga, the senior partner of the firm of Saavedra Hermanos, entered into rest on the 20th inst. The funeral on the 21st inst. was a manifestation of the esteem he had been held in during his life time. The firm will continue as heretofore as the business contract of the firm had provided for such an emergency.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, of the Por Larranga factory, had left by the White Line of steamers for Colon and Panama, proceeding thence to Chile and the Argentine Republic. It will depend upon circumstances whether he might thence leave for Europe or come back here by some direct boat.

Purchases Fall Off at Spring Inscriptions

Now that the spring inscriptions are over, and an account of stock has been taken, it is evident that there is going to be a scarcity of good Sumatra in the country this year. Last year the importers, exclusive of manufacturers, purchased some 24,000 bales; this year the importers secured only 14,000 bales.

Of the 14,000 bales bought by the importers at the spring inscriptions, the house of H. Duys & Company purchased more than 6500 bales of Sumatra and Java tobacco, and it is noteworthy that their sales for the first few months were in excess of last year.

H. Duys & Company report that they have on hand large quantities of both old and new tobacco, and while they are not advancing their prices, they are of the opinion that there will be a scarcity of good, light tobacco before the fall months.

Savannah Cigar Firm in Bankruptcy

The J. S. Oppenheimer Cigar Company, of Bull and York Streets, Savannah, Ga., has filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in the United States District Court. The schedule shows assets of $2231.53, with liabilities of $5022.45. In the petition $350.37 is shown to be due on open account. Fred Myers was president of the firm, whose stock is valued at $1835.

Fire Injures Concord Cigar Factory

An early morning fire did considerable damage to the stock and merchandise of J. B. Bowers, a cigar manufacturer and retailer with a store at 7 and 9 North Main Street, Concord, Mass. The fire burned for about an hour and a half. Heavy damage resulted from water and smoke. In addition to the retail stock, several thousand dollars' worth of tobaccos in various forms on the second floor was ruined.

"Kleen-Kleeners" for Pipes

A recent product that will appeal to the pipe trade is the new hermetically sealed "Kleen-Kleeners" package containing twenty-four straight pipe cleaners all ready for use. The transparent package containing the cleaners insures the purchaser that his hands are the first to touch them after they leave the factory. The packages, containing twenty-four cleaners, retail to the trade for ten cents.

Excellent business is being done by Arthur Weil, jobber, Richmond, Va. He reports good work on "Little Bobbie," "Bank Note" and "El Proposo."

Detroit

July Business Best in Years—"Bold" Cigars Advertised by Trained Goose—Jeitles & Blumenthal Brands in Demand—"Ed Geers" to be Revere Cigar Company Leader

DETROIT, MICH., July 27, 1914.

JULY has been a month that every cigar retailer appreciates; the reason is that the business transacted during July has exceeded any similar month in previous years. July weather this year was as good as any one could ask; there were no cold days, only a few days when it rained, the remainder of the time the temperature being just right for people to get out on the streets. In addition, there were many conventions, thousands of tourists in the city, in addition to the annual running races at Windsor and the Blue Ribbon meet of pacers and trotters.

The box trade has been extremely good this month owing to the large number of outings and excursions by various societies, clubs and business firms, as all of these affairs call for many cigars for distribution.

As for the manufacturers, the July figures showing the internal revenue receipts are being looked forward to with a great deal of interest, as it is their belief that July will surpass all previous months this year in the production of cigars Every manufacturer has more orders on hand than he did a year ago at this time; or, in fact, as compared with any month this year, and if each individual concern does not show a big increase in the number of cigars turned out it is because of physical impossibilities. Cigarmakers have been very scarce—that is, experienced ones—but manufacturers have added them as fast as they were able to secure them. More than one Detroit factory has actually been forced to turn down business in the past month on account of previous orders ahead, but this condition is showing improvement as nearly all of the companies are planning on additions to their buildings.

Bobrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, makers of the big-selling "Bold" cigars, have been carrying on a very novel advertising campaign in connection with this brand in the city of Detroit. A trained goose has been parading the downtown streets with its master carrying on its back a red cloth sign with the advertisement "Smoke 'Bold' Cigars. Five Cents." The man owning the goose is dressed in an entire suit of red and on his back is also a sign conveying the same information. The man and the goose keep walking in the downtown district and of course the crowds that follow are enormous. Who wouldn't stop to look at a trained goose? The stunt is a catchy one and entirely different from the average street publicity. Usually this kind of advertising is carried on with a donkey, or a dog, but Bobrow Brothers have gone a bit further by securing a trained goose. The man owning the goose told a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD that at least a dozen people have come to him and asked him where they could buy that cigar; also a dozen retailers have instructed him to send the representative of "Bold" cigars to their place of business as they wanted to place an order for some of them.

The Soper Segar Store for several weeks has been carrying a very neat window display on "Statesman" cigars, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, of Philadelphia. When Mel Soper first opened his store in the Dime Bank Building a year ago last May, the "Statesman" was among the first cigars to be included in his line; week by week the sale has been steadily increasing, and today Mr. Soper says that he gets as many repeat orders on the "Statesman" as any other nickel cigar which he handles.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, of Philadelphia, have a number of good selling brands in Detroit; in fact, there is not a single successful dealer who is not handling some of Jeitles & Blumenthal cigars. E. M. Harris & Company, on Woodward Avenue for years have featured their goods, and the fact that they have a window display of their cigars at least once every week, often lasting for a week, is convincing evidence that the "demand proves the value of a cigar."

The Central Cigar Company, who now control four very successful stands in Detroit, announce that they have taken a long lease on the store at the corner of Shelby and Lafayette Avenues, in the new Orpheum Theatre Building, which they will open in September or October. Very good judgment has been used by the Central in taking this store, as for years the corner was operated as a cigar emporium by the Ambos Company, and the location is getting better every day. It is right on the way to the postoffice, where thousands pass every hour; then again, Lafayette Avenue, in another five years, is bound to improve. The Masonic Temple is now situated on Lafayette Avenue and the Detroit Lodge of Elks will soon erect a big clubhouse on that street. The fixtures to be put in by the Central will be of the same high-class order as now characterizes their other stores. General Manager Lieberman even goes so far as to say that this new store will eclipse all others and be as fine as any similar store in the country, considering its size.

E. M. Harris & Company, who will move sometime after January 1st to the new David Whitney Building, at Woodward Avenue and Grand Circus Park, are having plans prepared for their new store. The fixtures and furnishings will be in keeping with the rest of the building, which is one of the best constructed in the city, no expense being spared in using the very finest of materials throughout.

The Revere Cigar Company, of Detroit, are bringing out a new brand called "Ed Geers," a ten-cent Sumatra-wrapped cigar, which will be made in five sizes. It is named after Ed Geers, or better known as "Pop" Geers, who is probably the greatest driver of the present day. He has won more stakes in the various pacing and trotting races than any other man in this country. The label is an exact reproduction of Mr. Geers and shows him in one of his characteristic poses. The Revere Company expect to make it their leading brand.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new addition to the Mazer Cigar Company, which will probably be completed and ready for occupancy by the first of September. It will enable the Mazer Company to double its output and thus give better attention to its various customers.

Charlie Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company, has returned from a hurried business trip to Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago. At this writing Albert Worch, who left three weeks ago for Kansas City, is still out of town, although he is expected back in a few days.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Company, is spending the summer at Charlevoix, Mich., with his family, where they have a cottage; the family of Sam T. Goldberg, of the Lillies Cigar Company, are also spending the summer at Charlevoix; Sam goes up every week or two for a few days. Isaac Goldberg, of the Lillies Company, will return early in August from a three weeks' motor trip through the East, stopping at Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Atlantic City.

L. H. Stradley, of Detroit, has sold his cigar stand in the Cushman House, Petroskey, Mich., to Theodore D. Becker, his former business partner.

W. S. Luckett Introduces Sunset Size "Reynaldo"—"Philadelphia Hand-Made" Cigars Have Heavy Call—"Don Remo" Sales Show Steady Increase

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 21, 1914.

MORRIS BURKE, representing Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., manufacturers of the "Reynaldo," "Piquant" and "Copyright" cigars, returned from San Francisco, Cal., a few days ago accompanied by W. S. Luckett of the above mentioned firm. Mr. Luckett appeared very much pleased with conditions in this territory, particularly so with the satisfactory manner in which his lines are being worked by the Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company and Woodward, Jones & Johnson Cigar Company.

Mr. Luckett while here placed a new size of "Reynaldo" cigar under the name of Sunset size. This goes to the consumer at ten cents.

Mr. Luckett went from this city direct to San Francisco, staying at that city for one day, thence to Portland and Seattle, and from those points direct to Philadelphia. He expects to return home about August 1st.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company have made a great hit with Bayuk Brothers' "Philadelphia Hand-Made" five-cent cigar, packed in tins. This brand caught on in this territory right from the jump, and "Philadelphia Hand-Made" cigars are already one of the leading nickel sellers in this market. The package is very attractive.

"Chancellor" cigars are still on the increase in this market. The new ten-cent size called Sublimes is one of the real big "hits" in this territory. Klauber-Wangenheim Company have been oversold on this size "Chancellor" ever since placing it in Los Angeles.

Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is very much in sight around Southern California in the way of large fibre signs.

"Milo" yellow label is a big seller in twenty-five-cent cigarettes. Arthur Levy, 743 South Spring Street, has a beautiful display of these cigarettes in his window at the present time.

The Max Roth Cigar Company have taken on the "Rosa de Valle" cigar, formerly handled by the Geo. W. Walker Cigar Company, of this city. Mr. Roth informs me that the factory will have about three missionary men on the ground in a very short time, and with the assistance of the sales force, which includes Mr. Roth, the cigar should show wonderful returns.

"Ike" Wentworth went to Denver for the purpose of pushing the "Lovera" cigar. Without a doubt he will make many new friends on his first visit to that city.

The Geo. W. Walker Cigar Company is working on the "Densmore" cigar and meeting with success everywhere. Since dropping the "Rosa de Valle" cigar their entire efforts are being placed towards the "Densmore" cigar, which is also a ten-cent seed and Havana cigar.

Rob Gans, of the J. J. Gans Cigar Company, of this city, is spending a pleasant summer vacation on the Island of Catalina. With him is his wife and Gans, Jr. This is Rob's first "lay-off" in eight years, so who can deny him a little rest of two weeks.

Joe Gans, also of J. J. Gans & Brother, has moved to Venice for the summer vacation. Both are hard workers and undoubtedly are enjoying themselves.

The A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company reports fine business on "Ruy Lopez Queens." Mr. and Mrs. Greenwald expect to leave for Seattle in a few days to look over the field of business in that territory.

"Webster" cigars are selling better right along report the Klingenstein Company. This company recently wired the factory manufacturing the "Admiration" cigars to ship a large quantity by express to fill back orders.

The Klingenstein Company received some very nice orders from Arizona for "Y-B" and "Spana-Cuba" cigars.

Sam Friend, representing the Klingenstein Company in the capacity of city man, is leaving for Wheeler's Hot Springs for a two weeks' vacation. This rest is due Sam, as everyone knows.

Entering through a rear window a burglar a few days ago robbed the store of the Max Roth Cigar Company at 548 South Los Angeles Street, taking goods valued at three hundred dollars. Stacking the stolen articles in the alley, the burglar went to a nearby drug store, where he telephoned for a taxicab. Loading the cab with the loot, he disappeared. Several people who saw the man putting the tobacco in the taxicab became suspicious and notified the police. A few hours later Joe Hill, aged twenty-one, who said he lived in Redlands, was arrested at the St. George Hotel. The missing tobacco was found in his room. He was arrested by Detectives Shy, McMahan and McIntosh. At the central station Hill stated he had bought the goods, but was unable to explain why he had visited the building at such an early hour.

The M. A. Gunst cigar stores are displaying in their numerous windows the "Van Dyck" cigar, made in Tampa, Fla. The displays are well constructed.

Morris Burke has a most distinctive window display at his retail store at 108 West Third Street. The cigar shown is the "Reynaldo" cigar. The display is made up of empty boxes entirely, with a large sign the length of the showcase stating "Customers have emptied these. Get in line and smoke a good cigar. Smoke 'Reynaldo.'"

Anthony Schwamm is out with a new one—this time with the "London Life" cigarette package in twenties. A large United States flag comes with each package, which is an inducement in itself. "Tony" has no trouble in filling his order book with such an article as this.

M. A. Newmark & Company have numerous window displays about town on the "Don Remo" cigar, which are causing no end of favorable comment. They report increased sales every day and the cigar is living up to all expectations.

A unique idea is that put forth by Milton Guttman, representing the P. Lorillard Company in San Diego and Imperial counties. Mr. Guttman, when out taking orders, wears a smoking jacket made up entirely of felt flags and blankets from "Stag" smoking tobacco. It is surely as original as one could wish.

The "Lovera" cigars are moving nicely with the Haas-Baruch Cigar Company. Cameron C. Trau informs me that they are constantly running low on this brand. The sales force never let a day pass without turning in larger orders than the day before. ALKALI.

New Concern for Macon, Ga.

The firm of Smith & Kemp have recently leased the two-story property at 513 Cotton Street, Macon, Ga., and will shortly begin the operation of their cigar factory at that location. A. Smith, of the firm, was formerly superintendent of the big Martinez-Havana Company's factory in Key West, Fla., while E. H. Kemp has been with the Martinez Cigar Company in Jacksonville, Fla., for a number of years.

It is understod that the firm will manufacture only clear Havana goods.

Mahlon W. Gilbreath, city clerk of Linton, Ind., has recently purchased Walters' cigar store in that city.

Key West

Big Program for City Gala Week—"Gigantios" New Martinez-Havana Size—Customs Headquarters to Remain in Jacksonville

KEY WEST, FLA., July 25, 1914.

WHILE the hot wave is still with us the strike wave seems to have passed. The labor troubles which were threatened at the Havana-American Company's big shop were amicably adjusted by the company's New York office.

Advices received from Washington that there was not the slightest chance for the measure removing the Customs headquarters from Jacksonville to Tampa was gratifying news to everybody, but especially to the business men. If there is to be only one Customs headquarters for Florida that place should be where it is at present, as we have a daily mail communication with Jacksonville by train and only two mails per week by steamer with Tampa.

The most absorbing topic here at present is the "Do it for Key West gala week," which starts tomorrow and will last till August 1st. Quite appropriate and lengthy programs have been arranged for each day and every one is expected to help make the affair a success and boost the city during that time.

Frank McNulty, of the Tiera Del Largo Cigar Company of Fort Myers, Fla., and a native son of Cayo Hueso, was in town this week renewing old friendships. He was here for the purpose of securing a stock of Havana leaf for his house.

The Key West Guards and Lieutenant-Colonel Sam J. Wolf, of S. Wolf's Sons, returned this week from the state encampment at Black Point, Fla. They all report a fine time and it is said that the company made their usual good showing.

Fernando Rodriguez, son of Salvador Rodriguez, of the "Charles the Great" factory of Tampa, was a through passenger last week to Havana.

Manuel Cruz, the local cigar manufacturer, will leave next Wednesday overland for Philadelphia for a business visit to Jacob Langsdorf's Sons. He will he accompanied by his wife, and after spending a few days in the Quaker City will go on to New York, where they will spend some time visiting the popular resorts.

Percy H. Myers, of the Cortez Cigar Company, was in town last week for a business conference with Vice-president Vivian M. Myers, and left for Savannah, Ga., headquarters on Saturday. Superintendent Claude H. Roberts left last week for a visit to the Savannah factory of the company.

Don Luis Martinez, the genial head of the Martinez-Havana Company, arrived from Havana this week and will spend several days at the factory. The firm will shortly launch a new size, which will be known as "Gigantios," packed under the "Flor de Luis Martinez" brand. The firm has started to use the new crop leaf with which they appear to be well satisfied both as to aroma, burn and the various sizes of wrappers which it furnishes. The fault with the new crop is the high prices that are prevailing in the Havana leaf markets and the difficulty in getting the light colors demanded by the American makers. The M.-H. Company intends making a grand display of their goods at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition which starts in January, 1915. Eladio Martinez, now at New York headquarters, is expected to return to the factory on August 4th.

Manager Jaime Pendas, of Moreda & Company, accompanied by his son Manuel, left this week for Cuba. Manuel will remain in Cuba for several months learning the cultivation and curing of leaf at some of the largest plantations on the island.

Trade is good at the big factory of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company and orders by mail and wire are coming to hand at a lively rate. A cablegram received yesterday from the firm's Havana office states that a heavy purchase of leaf of the new crop had been made and included in the lot was a large quantity of wrappers in light colors so dear to the heart of the average American smoker. Secretary Thomas H. Gato, accompanied by his nephew, Edwardo H. Gato, 3rd, are expected to arrive on the steamer tonight from Havana, where they have been visiting for several days.

Chas. Wardlow, son of John Wardlow, president of Ruy Lopez Company, will leave on today's Mallory steamer for New York for a short visit. At the factory business is keeping up well.

John F. Navarro, formerly a cigar manufacturer of this city, but now engaged in the leaf business in New York, arrived in town this week and is shaking hands with his many friends.

L. B. Gunst, of the Esberg-Gunst Company of Tampa, was a through passenger to Havana this week.

DETROIT

Eugene H. Watson, of the Harry W. Watson Company, wholesalers and jobbers of cigars, has returned from a week's stay in New York.

Oscar Buehler, of the Buehler Leaf Tobacco Company, of Detroit, is on an automobile trip through the East, accompanied by his family.

General Manager Gaghan, of the Banner Cigar Company, of Detroit, says his company will start moving about the middle of August to the new factory at Warren and Mitchell Avenues.

An order has been issued by Collector of Internal Revenue J. J. Brady, of the First District of Michigan, to the effect that punishment will go hard with any dealer who "takes a handful of cigars from a box and allows the customer to select a purchase, putting the remainder back in the box." Collector Brady says this is unlawful and will not be tolerated. He says that many cases of this kind have been called to his attention and he is issuing this warning in the hope that dealers will not continue doing it.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

With a continuance of the favorable weather conditions under which it is now growing, the tobacco crop now in the fields will be the finest Lancaster County has had for some years, and there will be an unusually large percentage of wrapper goods among it. The Havana seed tobacco, which was only an experiment last season, when it proved its superiority over the Pennsylvania broad leaf, has proved itself again this year. Fully 2000 acres were planted this season, and already that along the Susquehanna River, where some of the finest crops in the county are grown, is being topped. Very little broad leaf has yet reached the topping stage, but some will be ready for topping this week. The crop will be gathered much earlier this year than usual, because of the earlier planting and remarkably rapid growth. Last year the Havana seed tobacco sold for eleven and twelve cents a pound, but stiffer prices are looked for this year. And a return to the usual prices for broad leaf is also expected, which means ten to twelve cents a pound.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, CONN.

In the opinion of many the Connecticut valley is to have one of the finest tobacco crops in years. Buyers have been visiting the plantations and state that they are more than satisfied with the present conditions of the plants. They range from twelve to thirty inches high and the recent showers have done much to help them along.

The acreage this year is believed to be twenty per cent. greater than last year. If the plants escape from hail storms there is every indication of a bumper yield.

The shade grown tobacco has made unusual progress in the past ten days.

Here and in the vicinity there are about 3900 acres planted. The buyers made no purchases so far as can be learned. Last year practically the entire crop was sold in the field.

WINDSOR, CONN.

Buyers of Havana tobacco are here to secure the crops raised, and it is estimated than one-half of this grade of tobacco grown has been bought up in the field. This is without precedent in the history of the crop for tobacco at its present stage.

The buyers of seed leaf tobacco have not commenced operations as yet, but they are expected this week. The prices at which the crops have sold range from 19 to 25 cents a pound in the bundle.

New Addition for C. N. Foreman & Company

Owing to the necessity for larger quarters, due to a large increase of business, C. N. Foreman & Company, the well-known cigar manufacturers of Red Lion, Pa., recently started work on the erection of an addition to their factory. The new section will be 25 by 30 feet, making the present building, when alterations are completed, 75 by 30 feet. The completion of the addition will enable Messrs. Foreman & Company to increase their present force of employees from sixty to eighty hands.

American Sumatra Tobacco Company Purchase Big

News from Gadsden County, Fla., is to the effect that they have had an unprecedented week of buying and that automobiles loaded with buyers have been "burning up" the roads. Quincy has been their headquarters.

The American Sumatra Tobacco Company has been the largest purchaser of the famous shade-grown tobacco, renowned for its wrapper qualities. The buying for the concern was done under the direction of Julius Lichtenstein, president of the company, who recently arrived in Quincy from New York. Mr. Lichtenstein is well known in Gadsden County and is considered one of the better judges of good tobacco. Mr. Lichtenstein pronounces this crop one of the finest he has ever seen.

The American Cigar Company and the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company were large purchasers of sun-grown leaf.

Another Cigarmaker Ties Moore's Record

KEY WEST, July 28, 1914.

After reading in THE TOBACCO WORLD of the records of Cornish and Moore, I think everyone will be willing to pass the belt to Raymond Pinder, a cigarmaker of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Company, after hearing his claims. Pinder claims that he can make 900 long filler, well-made cigars per day and that he can keep up this speed for six days, which would give him a total of 5400 cigars for the week.

That is what Pinder claims. The records of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Company show that the week of November 15, 1913, Pinder made 4350 long filler cigars; the week of November 22, 1913, he made 4200 cigars; the week of November 29, 1913, he rolled 3800.

It might be a good drawing card at the Panama-Pacific Exposition to have this championship settled by a contest between these cigarmaking wizards at that place.

New International Dictionary Wins Approval

Webster's New International Dictionary, recently published by the G. & C. Merriam Company, introducing a number of innovations in the matter and manner of publication, is a book that commends itself to the student and business man with like emphasis.

The volume contains about 2700 pages and each one is laden with detailed and specific information, not only concerning the etymology of the words, but the history and usage are also clearly explained.

It might be going too far to say that the book approaches the domain of an encyclopedia, but as far as the information given in definitions is concerned one could ask no more.

There has been an improvement in some of the definitions as well as an increase in matter. Special attention has been devoted to the historical development of words and the science of philology is masterfully displayed in the creation of this work.

Snuff Company Incorporates

The Martin-Gorin Snuff Company has recently incorporated in Louisville, Ky., with authorized capital of $10,000, par value of shares $100. The company will manufacture snuff and kindred tobacco products. The incorporators are Aaron Martin, L. J. Gorin and J. B. Holloway.

Axton-Fisher Company to Erect New Factory

The Axton-Fisher Tobacco Company, of Louisville, Ky., has recently been granted a permit to erect a five-story factory on Twentieth Street, south of Maple. The new structure is to be of reinforced concrete and is expected to cost $25,000. It is understood that the Axton-Fisher Company will spend $25,000 more in equipping the factory and improving its present plant.

Good work is being done in Indianapolis, Ind., on Ruy Suarez & Company's "El Planco," which is being extensively featured in the prominent clubs of that city. E. L. Snyder is resident representative for the company on the brand and doing some very effective boosting and order getting.

with old-fashioned clumsy metal-framed glass lids, which were made for the past 25 years, and are now antiquated like the old-fashioned bulky show cases?

The Up-to-Date, Modern, Refined, Neat and Effective Cigar Display is what sells cigars. Most all dealers now discard any gaudy metal or tin effect, which cheapens and detracts the eye from the cigars on the counter.

The New Crystal All Glass or Wire Edged Lids

will sell more cigars than all the combined schemes ever invented. A cheap thing is dear at any price, and one new lid is worth more than a hundred old style.

Velvet Joe

HEARKEN to Velvet Joe—the one public man who has no enemies. He wants you to get in line with him now, and get the full benefit of the good work he is doing for VELVET SMOKING TOBACCO.

When an already popular, wide selling brand like VELVET becomes more than a "brand" and begins to be a national institution—then is the time to take the tide at its flood.

Jobbers and dealers everywhere are finding that smokers are now getting double enjoyment from VELVET. The widely quoted, sunny sayings of Velvet Joe add to the satisfaction that men find in this choicest Kentuckey Burley tobacco with the aged-in-the-wood smoothness.

Now is your time —the tide is running. Go with it!

Whip
Ready Rolled Tobacco
Good tobacco is like a savings account—it isn't what you take out but what you put in that counts. The best way to keep the bite out of smoking mixture is to use tobaccos in the blend that have no bite. When you take the bite out of tobacco you are bound to take out other qualities that make the tobacco enjoyable.
"Whip" is blended of mildest tobaccos grown—this is one reason why it is the coolest, mildest, most gentle smoke in the world. Your trade will thank you for recommending it. Your Jobber will supply you.

Brunhoff Jump Spark Lighter with Automatic Cutter

Operates with an excellent jump spark coil. The main feature is that the lighter uses electricity only for an instant. No current used or wasted on return into position. This is most important. It saves your batteries—gives them longer life. The front is for your ad or for a mirror. The handle is convenient to light from, for the shortest or the tallest. Pull the handle to you, slow or fast, "you get a light every time."

If you want the best lighter ever made, send us $12.00 and state if wanted with glass or mirror front. Send label if you want us to insert it.

WAR ON CONTINENT HELPS AND HURTS THE TOBACCO INDUSTRY

Many Tobacco Men Marooned in Foreign Lands—Cuban Factories Forced to Close—Leaf Tobacco Shipments Held Up—Men Buy Cigars and Argue—May Put War Tax on Tobacco

THE iron hand of war holds Europe in its grip and threatens the commerce of the world. Even our own country feels the tightening of the powerful grip that is squeezing the life-blood out of Continental Europe. Imports are struck a staggering blow and the United States faces the problem of feeding the warring nations.

War brings to the United States the problem of sustaining the financial loss that this war involves. It is estimated that it will cost this country one billion of dollars; the cost to the countries involved in this titanic struggle is beyond estimation.

The problem of increasing the revenue of the country to care for this loss now faces Congress. Without doubt the stamp tax will be brought into use again, but it is doubtful if this method will be sufficient. There is talk of adjusting the Income Tax Law to include smaller incomes, thus adding millions to the national treasury each year.

The tobacco industry has suffered and the buyers of domestic leaf for foreign countries have, for the most part, ceased activities. Manufacturers in the United States face the problem of securing Sumatra and the prices of this product are destined for a rise. The inscriptions to have been held at Amsterdam and Rotterdam in September will undoubtedly have to be transferred and at the present their new location is a matter of conjecture. Cigar factories in Cuba which depend upon Europe for an outlet for their goods have been forced to close and the Cuban Government now faces the problem of caring for thousands of cigarmakers who are out of employment.

The cigar industry in the United States at the present time is showing an improvement and it is not believed that this part of the industry will be materially affected.

War talk centers in the cigar emporiums and the reports from all sections indicate that these discussions are increasing cigar sales. Wherever men congregate there are smokers and the prolonged arguments as to the merits of the various countries involved, are bringing much additional silver across the counter.

Scores of prominent tobacco manufacturers from all parts of the country are marooned abroad, some with their families, and much concern for their safety is felt by their friends. Many foreign subjects engaged in business in this country who have gone abroad for a visit to their respective countries for the summer months have found themselves requisitioned for the various armies.

Those who have for so long argued that preparation for warfare is the best way of securing peace, sit aghast at the terrible results of this theory. Europe, an armed camp in theory, is proving an armed camp in reality. Youth, the hope of the generation, is being sacrificed on the consuming altar of a terrible ambition. What the end will be none can foretell. We can only hope that the appalling loss of life with its attendant destruction of property will come to a quick end, and that from the ashes of the ruined nations may arise the harbinger of an everlasting Peace.

FIRST DISTRICT MANUFACTURERS DO NOT FAVOR FLAT TOBACCO TAX

Tobacco Industry Already Heavily Burdened—Ad Valorem Taxation Considered More Equitable—Liquors, Tobacco and Medicine Chosen to Raise $100,000,000 Loss

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 13, 1914.

THE curtailment of customs revenues has inspired the leaders of Congress to take immediate action to make good this loss, and from all appearances it will take the form of a war tax bill to be levied on liquors, tobacco and medicines.

The proposed measure is prepared with the idea of making good an estimated loss of $100,000,000. Representative Underwood, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; Senator Simmons, chairman of the Finance Committee, and Secretary McAdoo met today to devise methods of raising this sum.

It was announced after the meeting that several plans had been considered, but that they would not be disclosed until a decision is reached. It was stated that there would be no addition to customs duties, that was certain.

This means that the internal revenue taxes are to shoulder the burden. Secretary McAdoo was armed with the figures of the annual income from liquors and tobacco, and these will no doubt be used as a basis for the increased taxation.

The conference will be continued today.

CAPITOL.

Philadelphia Manufacturers Oppose Tobacco Tax

The First Internal Revenue District of Pennsylvania, which is the largest nickel cigar manufacturing district in the country, is largely opposed to the proposed tax on cigars and tobacco in preference to other industries.

It is needless to say that the manufacturer of nickel goods makes his profit on volume alone and that an additional tax of sixty cents a thousand will leave very little to bank on.

While it is realized that such a tax may become necessary because of the curtailment of import duties, the heavy taxes that the tobacco manufacturers pay now should guarantee them from further burdensome taxation.

A flat tax is especially repugnant and the manufacturers are practically unanimous in preferring an ad valorem tax if any at all is to be added.

J. J. Shea, representing Bayuk Brothers, one of the largest manufacturers of nickel cigars in the city, stated in an interview with a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD that they did not consider the proposed additional tax on tobacco either equitable or just.

"We can see no reason," said Mr. Shea, "why the tobacco interests should be taxed any more than any other industry. Our burdens are heavy enough now. A strong fight should be made against this proposed legislation, and particularly against a flat tax. If such action is found necessary the tax should be ad valorem by all means and not a flat rate which will include all cigars regardless of cost."

Samuel C. Jeitles, of the firm of Jeitles & Blumenthal, in speaking of the proposed tax, said:

Some manufacturers see a silver lining to the heavy war cloud and ask why the United States should not be able to build up an export trade on manufactured tobacco products. They point out that many of the factories of the different regies are closed on account of the war and that the results of the struggle will handicap the manufacture of tobacco, in those countries engaged, for a long time.

A Market for Tobacco Abroad

Tobacco, while not exactly a necessity, is an important part of the military commissary and as soon as the present supply abroad is exhausted there is bound to be a demand. Those who consider the European war in a calm light believe that the interruption to commerce cannot continue for a very great period. However, the makers of manufactured articles abroad will not necessarily be relieved by the resumption of commerce. It will take the manufacturers a long time to put their factories in working order again and to secure the help necessary for the production of tobacco products to supply a nation.

With the income from imports affected to the extent of $100,000,000 (estimated), tobacco and liquors are looked upon as likely products upon which to levy in order to cover this deficit. It is needless to say that the tobacco industry is already heavily burdened by taxes and in addition is paying higher prices for raw materials than ever before. The situation with manufacturers who use Sumatra wrapper goods is far from promising.

An ad valorem Tobacco Tax

However, the manufacturers seem to feel that if an additional tax must be placed on tobacco products that it is fairer to do it with an ad valorem duty rather than a flat rate, as has been done in the past. The ad valorem tax will graduate the burden, putting the lowest duty on the goods earning the smallest profit and the heaviest on those products which are the most profitable. This method has been suggested and it is hoped that those who have this matter in their hands will give the suggestion due consideration.

* * *

With the foreign buyers out of the field in most of the leaf tobacco markets it appears that domestic tobacco will be cheaper than ever this year. With the Havana factories closed there is no doubt but what the buyers from the United States will be able to buy Cuban tobacco at a lower figure than for many years. Tobacco from the Carolinas and Kentucky will be especially hard hit by the withdrawal of foreign competition.

War and the Leaf Market

Perhaps if the packers can hold on for a couple of years they will be able to reap a good profit, but there is not a very cheerful outlook for the grower in those states.

If this country could build up an export business in manufactured tobacco there is no doubt but what the market for leaf would be much improved.

* * *

The present proposed war tax on tobacco if it is passed will work a hardship for the many large and small manufacturers of nickel cigars in the First District of Pennsylvania. If they had been prepared to fight adverse legislation together they could no doubt have made a brave showing in Washington, and it goes without saying that a committee representing the manufacturers of hundreds of millions of cigars in one district alone would bear considerable weight at the national capital.

Cigar Manufacturers Need an Association

Unfortunately petty differences have prevented the formation of the cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia into a strong organization, and two or three tentative bodies have dissolved after a brief career. Such an association could check a hundred abuses that the manufacturers suffer among the retail trade, as well as becoming a body to be reckoned with in such times as these.

It is a matter for sincere regret that at a time when all the manufacturers should be able to stand together for concerted action, the burden of the struggle falls on a few. It is not considered that much success can come from individual efforts, but when all are bound together in a common cause they can wield a power that must and will be reckoned with.

Shipley-Massingham Representative Now Motors to His Trade

W. F. Sharples, representative of the well known Pittsburgh jobbing house of Shipley-Massingham Company, now visits his trade in a motor car and spreads the tidings of "La Saramita," "Chas. Denby" and "Court Royal" as he goes along. "La Saramita" is a product of the Shields-Wertheim Company, "Court Royal" is made by the San Telmo Cigar Company and the famous "Charles Denby" is the product of the H. Fendrich factories. Needless to say Mr. Sharples is now able to cover more territory and reports a nice increase in his orders.

"Havana Ribbons" On the Move

BAYUK BROTHERS COMPANY are enjoying their usual activity on "Havana Ribbon" sales, but are encountering serious difficulty in securing sufficient production to meet the increased demand on the brand. All of their factories are being pushed to the limit, yet notwithstanding this fact, the unfilled orders are accumulating at a pace that threatens to keep them in the oversold column for the balance of the year.

Reports on "Ribbon" progress from the various territories are most gratifying, both the firm's and the jobbers' representatives being exceptionally well pleased with repeat business.

The sales and advertising campaign presently under way in Milwaukee, where Knell & Prengle are distributers, is proving immensely successful. C. W. McFarland, Wisconsin and Minnesota representative, is in charge of the former, while Mr. Leonard, from the home force, is looking after the latter with a picked crew of men.

E. C. MacAllister, North Jersey representative, has just finished an active sales campaign in Asbury Park, where S. A. Reeves has control, and reports "Ribbons" to be the popular smoke at that attractive seashore resort.

P. T. Harris, distributer in Atlantic City, is well pleased with the way the brand is duplicating in the "World's Playground."

War Takes Stanley De Lisser to Jamaica

Owing to the situation in Jamaica brought about by the present struggle in Europe, Stanley De Lisser, well known in the tobacco trade, was forced to hurry home to Kingston, where he has plantations and interests that required his immediate attention. Mr. De Lisser sailed on Saturday from New York. He hopes to arrange his affairs in such shape that he will be able to return to this country in about a month.

Mr. De Lisser's son, Andrew De Lisser, followed him on Wednesday.

Morris D. Neumann, of the well-known firm of Neumann & Mayer, reports that the factory is busy and that a general improvement in the trade is noted.

Philadelphia Notes

Godfrey S. Mahn, manufacturer and importer, is enjoying an automobile trip through the New England States.

Albert Falk spent some time in Philadelphia this week in the interest of the Falk Tobacco Company, New York.

Frank Lopez, representing Garcia & Vega, was well pleased with the results of his stop off in Philadelphia this week.

Wm. S. Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, is spending the vacation period in Canada. Mr. Luckett has just returned from a trip to the Coast which was highly satisfactory, though the journey was made in approximately six weeks.

J. Eugene Beck, representing R. A. Bachia & Company, 47 West Sixteenth Street, New York City, spent some time in Philadelphia this week, writing out orders for the cigars that are identified by the green and gold band.

The Twelfth and Chestnut Streets cigar department of the Finley Acker Company, under the direction of J. Durbin Acker, is enjoying a successful sale of the "Perla Cubana" cigar. These goods usually sell for $7 the hundred, but the quantity purchased enables the selling price to be reduced to $5 the hundred, and as these cigars are a Havana and Porto Rico blend, smokers will not delay securing a stock of these well-favored weeds.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, are specializing on the "Flor de Luzon," a Manila cigar that is gradually forging its way to the front among smokers who prefer the product of the Far East. These cigars are packed in 25's, 50's and 100's, and constitute a convenient package for vacation use, and the five- and ten-cent sizes cater to the purse and taste of two distinct classes of smokers.

"Afco" Store Displays "Muriel" Cigars

"Muriel" cigars, made by the P. Lorillard Company and widely advertised, are making quite a hit in Pittsburgh. A. J. Fleischauer, manager of the "Afco" Cigar Company, has made a special play for the consumer on this brand as the accompanying photograph will testify. "Muriel" cigars are becoming more popular every day, and the "Afco" Company reports that the business on this brand received a splendid impetus as a result of this effort.

Cleveland

Retail Business Holds Up Well—A. C. Wertheim Back at Office—"La Saramitas" Feature Many Window Displays

CLEVELAND, O., August 12, 1914.

BUSINESS is keeping up remarkably well of late, despite the war scare. The writer has made a tour of the cigar industries throughout the city and finds them all fairly busy, even though this is the off season of the year and a great many people are away on their vacations.

The retailers are enjoying a nice transient business from the tourists and race followers. Cleveland the past few weeks has been a scene of races at Randall. Barney Oldfield, in his high-powered Fiat car, raced against Beachey in an aeroplane. This attracted several thousand people to the city to witness this new sport.

The Wm. Edwards Company are distributors for the new "Subway" cigar which is being advertised in the newspapers and has been distributed to a great many dealers throughout the city.

I. J. Mittleberger, who recently has been connected with the cigar business throughout the country, has been laid up for several weeks with an attack of rheumatism and is again just able to get around.

Hi Hammer, of Corral y Wodiska Company, has just returned from a trip throughout his territory and reports conditions have been very favorable for an early fall business. Mr. Hammer expects to be in town for several weeks, keeping in touch with his trade here.

Nate Seidman, of The Seidman Company, reports business in his several stores as being all that he could ask for this season of the year.

Robert Heiney, former manager for the Joseph T. Snyder cigar stores here and now connected with R. J. Seidenberg & Company, is in town relieving manager H. R. Parker in Seidenberg's Hotel Statler stand.

H. R. Parker is spending several weeks at Conseus Lake, N. Y.

Jack Hawley has just been added to the Seidenberg force and gives promise of being a very capable cigar man.

The Empire Cigar Store, owned by George Bassett, has taken a great spurt since the theatrical season has opened and gives promise of being the best season the store has ever known.

A. C. Wertheim, of The Shields-Wertheim Company, is back from a two weeks' visit to Maplewood Beach, where he went for a short rest.

M. H. Loveman, who formerly ran Loveman's Palm Garden, is now located where the Berghof used to be. He has spent considerable money in remodeling the interior and has made it one of the most-talked-of places in the city. Mr. Loveman has added a Chinese restaurant to his bar and is catering to a large following.

The H. C. Christy Company, wholesale grocers, have just moved into their new building at Twenty-third and Lakeside. The new building is up-to-date in every feature and absolutely no expense was saved to make the cigar department modern in every respect. Mr. Monroe is in charge of this department and looks forward to a big increase for the coming year, as they are able to handle the cigar department better than ever before.

Jos. Klein, of Larus Brothers, manufacturers of "Qboid" and "Edgeworth" tobaccos, dropped in for a couple of days on his swing around the territory.

Bert Smith, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, who has been laid up with a severe attack of rheumatism at Mt. Clemens, is again able to get around and is making a swing around his territory with "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

Dick Cuthbert, advertising manager of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is getting in some extremely attractive window displays, both on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." His displays have created a lot of well-deserved praise, as they are entirely new and varied.

M. W. Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, who was in town the past several weeks, left for his home in New York City well satisfied with business here.

S. Simons, of Montreal, a large cigar manufacturer, is spending his vacation at Maplewood Beach Hotel.

JERRY.

Elsewhere in this issue appears a very timely announcement from William Steiner, Sons & Company, the old reliable firm of American lithographers, with offices at 257-265 West Seventeenth Street, New York City. Established in 1870, they have forged ahead, until today the names "Steiner" and "Sterling" are synonymous. Many American manufacturers are familiar with the splendid work of this company. Also, there are others who, ignoring home manufacture, have patronized the German lithographers. It is to these latter, particularly, that William Steiner, Sons & Company direct their message.

German hostilities will to a great extent lessen the foreign importations, among which will be the labels and bands supplied to American consumers by the German manufacturers. Naturally, apprehension is bound to be felt, but to the credit of our American manufacturers, be it said, that there is no need for alarm. A visit to the factory of the Steiner Company will disclose the fact that the firm of William Steiner is equipped with every modern device in the way of machinery for producing labels and bands, and they wish to emphasize the fact that they are exclusive manufacturers of the German Process cigar bands, which are equal to a majority of the imported bands used today. They also state that they are in a position to make very prompt delivery.

Manufacturers desiring samples and prices will have prompt attention given to their applications. They are also assured of receiving high-grade work from this very excellent company.

Popular Cuban Brand for New York

Within recent months the island of Cuba has given a great deal of attention to the brand of cigars known as the "Flor de Marsans," named after the well-known Cuban ball player who was with Cincinnati and then jumped to the Federal League. The cigars have proven immensely popular and the factory, which is owned by a syndicate of well-known Cubans, is looking out with a view toward entering the American market.

It is reported that arrangements are now under way whereby a well-known imported cigar representative will shortly take over the line and start a big campaign on them commencing in the New York market.

Ed Wodiska Traveling in Europe

Among the Americans marooned abroad is one well-known cigar man in the person of Ed Wodiska, of Corral, Wodiska y Ca., Tampa, Fla.

The latest news received from Mr. Wodiska was about two weeks ago, and stated that he was en route for Spain, and his friends in Philadelphia accordingly feel little concern for his safety.

For Smokers Who Like Cigarettes

A new possession for any smoker of cigarettes is a small and efficient cigarette-making machine. It takes the form of a small nickel box with a hinged cover and a screw in one end. When you open the box you see a depression just the size of a cigarette, running the length of the box. Into this you press some tobacco. Then you close the cover and turn the screw a few times until the tobacco is pressed into a compact little roll. You open the cover and insert over the tobacco roll the edge of a cigarette paper. Close the box again and turn the screw until all the cigarette paper has disappeared within the box—and the cigarette, after the customary moistening to keep the paper flat, is finished.

EUROPEAN WAR MAY SHIFT SUMATRA TOBACCO MARKET TO PORT OF SHANGHAI IN CHINA

Under Present Conditions Inscriptions Not Possible at Amsterdam—Shanghai Admirably Situated to Become New Sumatra Market

NEW YORK, August 10, 1914.

THE European war has already created a new center. American tobacco merchants, particularly the importers of Sumatra leaf, believe that Shanghai, China, will supplant Amsterdam, the present meeting place for those engaged in the trade, as the distributing point for Sumatra tobacco.

Among the New York importers the opinion is freely expressed that under the present war conditions the holding of tobacco inscriptions at Amsterdam is not possible, and that conditions subsequent to the war must serve to hinder rather than help a tobacco market at that point.

Geographically, Shanghai is admirably situated for the collection and distribution of the Sumatra crop, and with the new and the added shipping facilities brought about through the opening of the Panama Canal, the China metropolis is brought nearer the New York market by many days. Last year, New York leaf merchants, alone, imported 20,000 bales of Sumatra, and the demand for this type of tobacco by American manufacturers of cigars has been steadily increasing. Every year Amsterdam has drawn thousands of buyers to its tobacco market and handled millions of dollars that passed between growers and merchants.

Shanghai possesses excellent shipping and harbor facilities, and a considerable amount of capital in the Sumatra leaf business is furnished by merchants and capitalists engaged in business in that particular section of China. At the time Shanghai is a free port, and under the peculiar conditions governing the existence of that city it must remain a neutral port.

There is probably no other city in the world that may be affected less by war between the various nations than Shanghai. The city, a foreign settlement, is governed by its own people, with autonomy guaranteed by powers that are not likely to decree that its present status or its government be changed. The permanence, therefore, of Shanghai appeals to the men engaged in the Sumatra trade, and the new market place, though born of necessity, will probably remain through choice.

KNICKERBOCKER.

Louis Zeeman, formerly superintendent of Sulzberger-Oppenheimer Company branch of Theobald & Oppenheimer Company in Philadelphia, is now connected with the Sig C. Mayer & Company cigar factory.

M. W. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, left New York last Sunday for a quick trip to their Tampa factory. Mr. Berriman is an optimist despite all uncheerful conditions in the trade and is planning along big lines for their fall and holiday trade.

C. W. McFarland, factory representative of Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., recently closed negotiations with the Knell & Prengel Company, of Milwaukee, Wis., whereby they will become the distributors in this market of the well known "Havana Ribbon" cigars. Mr. McFarland will lend his personal aid to the campaign that the new distributors intend to launch on the brand.

A Message From Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice

The old saying, "Make the best of your opportunities," is strikingly illustrated in this issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD by the very clever and attractive full-page advertisement of Messrs. Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice. These well-known lithographers need no introduction to our readers. Always alert to grasp those opportunities which make for the betterment of their business, they have accurately weighed the possibilities and benefits to be derived through present existing conditions in Germany. To this end, their bid for business, heretofore largely given to German lithographers, should be far-reaching in its effects.

Now that foreign importations are out of the question for an indefinite period of time, and inasmuch as there is bound to be a cessation of manufacture along the lines in question, due to workmen having been drafted in the army, Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice step into the breach. They state that they are prepared to do first-class work on labels and cigar bands via their high-grade German process. They state, also, that they are able to offer a substitute which will not only prove satisfactory, but will prove a boon in the saving of considerable money.

German competition, from the lithographic standpoint, has ever been a source of worriment to the American manufacturers. Unable to obtain American workmen at the low wage offered by their German rivals, they have found themselves greatly handicapped in competing, not only for domestic, but for foreign trade as well. But changed conditions have now given Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice an advantageous lead. They are familiar with the German process and possess every facility for turning out any amount of work in a speedy and efficient manner. During the past year the treasurer of the company, B. S. Rosenbaum, made an extended trip through the West Indies and the northern part of South America, where he learned that the meritorious work of the firm of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice was proving successful in competing against foreign manufacturers.

Henry Riesenberg Safe With Family in London

Henry Riesenberg, the well known representative of Bobrow Brothers, has cabled the firm of his safe arrival in London with Mrs. Riesenberg and their son and daughter. The family had been staying in Paris and fears were felt for their safety until the reassuring cable arrived.

In a letter to the firm, dated August 4th, and written in London, Mr. Riesenberg says he will never forget the scenes he has witnessed. He writes that thousands were without funds in Paris when news of the threatened embroilment of France reached that city. Their efforts to secure funds on their checks on French banking houses were pitiable. On the other hand, he states that there were hundreds with plenty of gold trying to buy passage on ships already crowded, and that their pleadings for accommodations were without success.

Mr. Riesenberg says that all their possessions, including jewelry, trunks, clothes, furs, etc., and even most of their funds, were left in Paris, so great was their haste to get away from that city before the war cloud broke.

Chicago Manufacturers See No Cause for Higher Prices

Tobacco manufacturers in Chicago scout the idea that stock ought to be higher owing to the war. They declare that only such things directly affected, either in supply or in demand, ought to be raised. They claim that the feeling that everything should be high just because a war is in progress on the other side of the world is all wrong. The general feeling is that if everybody in the trade sits tight and refuses to rock the boat no harm will be done.

FIRST DISTRICT MANUFACTURERS DO NOT FAVOR FLAT TOBACCO TAX

"If they must have this tax it is certainly more fair and equitable to take it on an ad valorem basis. However, this system opens the door for dishonest practices, but we would favor it if the method used would insure fair and honest dealings in the matter of collecting the tax."

G. M. Lex, of the "44" Cigar Company, stated that the firm felt that the tobacco industry was taxed enough already. "We are opposed to any further taxation on the cigar industry, and certainly feel that it is unfair to place the whole burden on one or two industries," said Mr. Lex. "If there must be a tax we favor the ad valorem system in preference to the flat tax. We, however, are opposed to any further tobacco tax at all."

A. M. Schwarz, of Bobrow Brothers, said that if tobacco is to be taxed because other nations are at war, he wanted to know how much the cigar manufacturers have to pay if the United States should become involved? His statement follows:

"The proposed raise in revenue tax on cigars because there is fear of a deficit makes us shudder when we stop to think what might happen should this country become involved."

In regard to the situation Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers have given THE TOBACCO WORLD the following statement:

"We think there should be no hasty action by Congress, looking to extraordinary taxation, as it is quite likely that such embargo as now exists upon general commerce will not be of long duration. However, should an additional tax eventually become necessary, we see no reason why all of the proposed increased taxation should be borne by practically two industries. The tobacco trade already is very heavily taxed, and we are of the opinion that a revenue to make up a National deficit in an emergency should be obtained from various sources, so that the entire burden would not be placed upon a few lines of trade."

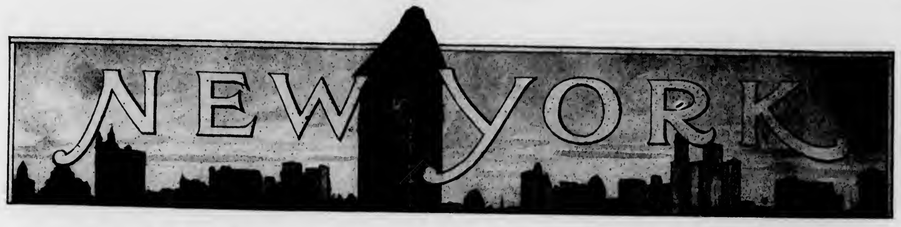
Albert Breitung Stranded in Germany

Albert Breitung is among the prominent citizens of Chicago who are marooned in the war zone of Europe. Mr. Breitung, as is well known to the trade, owns a number of the largest retail cigar stores in the city, and also does a small jobbing business in cigars. He had just about completed his trip when the war bubble burst. He had reached Hamburg, the seaport of Germany from which most vessels sail to this country, when the crash came. Even then Mr. Breitung thought he was safe, as he had succeeded in booking passage on a large steamer due to sail for home in a few days. The vessel was withdrawn from service by the government, however, and Mr. Breitung was left stranded on the shores of the Fatherland whence his ancestors sprung. He has cabled to his family in Chicago that he is all right, and will be home as soon as he can book passage again.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

Garcia & Vega, who are among the "Made in Bond" manufacturers, have secured a new outlet for their product through the Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, which carries a complete line of these high-grade cigars.

W. R. Campbell has tendered his resignation as sales manager to Stephano Brothers, Inc., the prominent Philadelphia cigarette manufacturers.



Rodriguez-McKee

THE many friends of Fernando Rodriguez have been sending him congratulations upon his recent marriage in Tampa to Mrs. Claire Woolridge McKee.

Mr. Rodriguez gave no intimation to his friends when he left New York to go to Tampa that he intended to forsake his bachelor's estate, but the news occasioned no surprise when it is recalled that his bride, who is a member of one of Tampa's most prominent families, had been a childhood friend of Mr. Rodriguez.

It is understood that Mr. Rodriguez has bought a home in Tampa and that he will probably divide his time between that city and the New York headquarters of "Charles the Great" at 1600 Broadway.

Fonseca Orders Held Up By War

F. E. Fonseca, of the Fonseca factory, Havana, and the manager of the Castaneda factory in Havana, left New York last Sunday for Havana by rail.

The outbreak of the war has put this factory as well as others in an embarrassing position as far as shipments are concerned. Big orders for Europe, where both "Castanedas" and "Fonsecas" are widely smoked, have been held up in New York in bond with no ships to take them to the other side.

American Tobacco Issues Scrip Dividend

The American Tobacco Company has declared the customary 5 per cent. dividend on its common stock in the 6 per cent. scrip, or notes of the company due one year from September 1, 1914, with interest payable semi-annually.

The following statement was issued: "The president stated through the board that this is the regular meeting for the declaration of dividend on the common stock of the company payable September 1; that the earnings and surplus of the company fully justify the payment of the regular dividend of 5 per cent.; that under ordinary circumstances the financial situation of this company would justify such payment in cash, the indebtedness of the company being considerably exceeded by its cash in bank. He stated further, though, that the time for the marketing of leaf tobacco has already arrived as to some of the types, and was approaching as to other types, and that the needs of the company for ready money would therefore be considerable. In view of the European war situation and the derangement of finances incident thereto, he suggested that it would be the part of conservatism and wisdom to pay the customary 5 per cent. dividend in the 6 per cent. scrip for notes of the company due one year after September 1, 1914, with interest payable semi-annually."

President Hill was asked whether the European situation would have a bad effect on the company, and he stated that it would not except in the matter of marketing of leaf tobacco, but that the action taken by the board was precautionary wholly.

Pappas Big Rug Premium

THE Pappas Cigarette Company, whose factory is in Buffalo, and New York office at 24 Stone Street, have brought out a premium offer on their cigarettes which overtops anything in the rug line yet seen. Hitherto we have had the small miniature rugs packed in the boxes, but under certain conditions smokers who buy the Pappas cigarettes can obtain a genuine oriental rug of a size sufficient to make a fine addition to the floor furnishing of any room.

The offer has been featured during the past week in the window of Snyder's new store at the southeast corner of Forty-third and Broadway.

Camp Cigarettes Go Well

The Camp Importation Company, 105 West Thirty-ninth Street, makers of the "Camp" cigarettes, have been making strides in the introduction of their brand and have recently placed them on the New York Central lines, in the Pullman cars and on the leading Coast steamship lines. The goods have also been featured in the "United" stores in Chicago and have sold exceptionally well.

The company have been giving away a splendid aluminum cigarette case holding twenty cigarettes to purchasers of 1000 lots and this has stimulated thousands of sales.

Wm. C. Camp, who looks after the Chicago market, has been in New York during August, but expects to go West next week.

Harry Roberts, of the "King's Club" factory, Tampa, has been in New York for several days past after an automobile tour up to Saratoga Springs. Mr. Roberts is here strictly on pleasure bent and brought up his car and driver with him. He will remain North till about September first.

Pasbach-Voice Company Prepared for Heavy Business

The Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company, who recently purchased outright the entire plant, good will, etc., of the Julius Bien Company, in addition to taking over the Bien headquarters at 140 Sixth Avenue, have recently secured 30,000 additional square feet of space in the Zinn Building at 556-560 West Twenty-fifth Street, and 210-216 Eleventh Avenue. This location is at the southeast corner of Eleventh Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, and without doubt is a most desirable location for lithographic requirements. The building contains every up-to-date improvement and admits an abundance of light on all sides.

Messrs. Pasbach & Voice are personally superintending the installation of a brand new outfit of machinery, which will become immediately operative in conjunction with their Sixth Avenue plant.

A cordial invitation is extended to the trade to visit the new quarters of the Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company. It will be seen from their advertisement on another page of THE TOBACCO WORLD that the company is looking forward to a heavy increase in business and that they are well prepared to care for the same.

Key West

Local Trade Endorses "National Cigar Day"—Must Pay $10 a Thousand for Made-in-Bond Stamps—E. H. Gato Receives Heavy Orders for Holiday Goods—Story of Key West to Appear in Book Form

KEY WEST, FLA., August 10, 1914.

TRADE is still moving along at the summer gait. The cigar factories are enjoying a fair demand for their products and here and there forces are being added to, a thing unusual at this period.

Advance orders for fall and holiday delivery have already commenced to come in and in some instances aggregate a very healthy volume.

Maybe jobbers and retailers are arranging to have their demands filled early so as to avoid the disappointments of former years.

Advices received in this city this week state that several of the largest factories in Havana have closed indefinitely owing to the cancellation of orders by their patrons in Europe, as the result of the war now in progress. These factories also do a fair business in this country, but would probably find it unprofitable to operate solely for United States business. This would seem to indicate rather better business for the clear Havana shops of this country which will also be benefited by the drop in leaf prices which may naturally be expected to follow.

The Collector of Customs at this port handed our bonded factory managers another surprise since my last letter, when he informed them that all stamps which had been used on bonded goods would have to be paid for at the rate of $10 per thousand. In future these supplies will be furnished on written application, which must in every instance be accompanied by the coin. There does not seem to be any neck breaking races to bond, however. I understand that one of the larger concerns has practically decided to enter the ring at a very early date.

M. F. McLeod, Southern representative of the American Tobacco Company, was a caller recently on the trade in the interest of "Sovereign" cigarettes.

Francisco Fleitas, of S. & F. Fleitas, left last week for Havana, where he will put in several days selecting and purchasing leaf for the use of the "Homerica" factory. During the absence of Mr. Fleitas things at this end will be taken care of by Segundo Fleitas, senior member of the firm.

Orders for fall and holiday goods, 40th and 80th packages, have commenced to come in to the office of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company. The calls thus far received for these goods amount to over 500,000 cigars. Secretary Thomas H. Gato is back from a short business trip to Havana. Shipments by this company to the Pacific Coast are on the increase.

The Martinez-Havana Company made their first shipment of cigars to the Pacific Cigar Company, their newly-appointed distributers in California. They expect through this connection to vastly increase their trade in that section. Don Luis Martinez, who had been spending several days at the factory, has returned to Cuba. A cablegram from New York headquarters announces the election of the following officers for the ensuing year: Luis Martinez, president; Eladio Martinez, vice-president; James D. Conner, secretary, and Juan Ventosa, treasurer. Carlos Martinez and Eladio Martinez were also added to the board of directors.

Fire was discovered on the premises of the Carlos Cremata cigarette and cigar factory at mignight of July 28th. The blaze was quickly put out, but not before it had succeeded in destroying the sweating and drying rooms and slightly damaging the factory building. Loss, about $900. No insurance.

John F. Navarro, formerly a cigar manufacturer of this city, but now engaged in the leaf business in Gotham, who has been visiting relatives and friends here for several days, left on August 1st for New York. He was accompanied by the family of J. M. J. Navarro, manager of the branch factory of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company.

Trade is in excellent shape at the factory of the Havana-American Company, and they are fast increasing the number of workmen on the cigarmaking floor. Since last writing, President A. L. Sylvester was an arrival in town. After spending a few hours at the office he left for Cuba.

Key West will soon be connected to Stock Island by a road which the County Commissioners will start work on within the next thirty days. This will afford our citizens excellent sites upon which to erect their residences and will add a large area of land to this city.

J. A. Willis, editor of the morning paper, is compiling a book entitled "The New and Greater Key West, Told in Picture and Story," to be published the first part of September. He will be assisted in this work by several of our citizens, among whom will be John Wardlow, president of the Ruy Lopez Company, who will edit the portion devoted to the "Key West Cigar Business."

Jaime Pendas, manager of "La Diligencia" factory of Moreda & Company, is back from a two-weeks' visit to the plantations and leaf markets of Cuba. He made large purchases of leaf for the use of his house, although prices are soaring pretty high.

Albert Smith, of the new cigar manufacturing firm of Smith & Kemp, of Macon, Ga., arrived in town last week and will leave shortly for his new location, accompanied by him family.

The local trade unanimously endorse the idea of observing October 12th (Columbus Day) as a National Cigar Day, and will do everything in their power to boost it.

The proposition to have the city government erect a hotel through the issuance of bonds has fallen through, the city attorney having advised that the bonding of the city for that purpose would conflict with the charter, increasing the amount of indebtedness above that authorized by the State Legislature.

Tampa Tips

Tampans Abroad Source of Worry—Mortimer Regensburg Back at Factory—John Boltz Returns from Vacation in Quaker City

TAMPA, August 10th.

WHILE other cities throughout the country are keeping the wires and cablegrams (wherever it is possible to obtain such service) busy, in an effort to ascertain the whereabouts of their citizens marooned abroad, Tampa, also, is on the job endeavoring to obtain information regarding her own proteges, among them being Mr. and Mrs. P. Rey, prominent members of the Spanish colony in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Rey departed from Tampa in the forepart of June, going direct to Spain, and later they intended to visit Paris and London before returning to Tampa. If their plans were carried out as originally intended they are probably in Paris at the present time. Mr. Rey is the junior member of the firm of Cuesta, Rey & Company, the renowned manufacturers of the "Cuesta-Rey" cigars.

Another Tampan who is at present abroad is Mrs. M. Stachelberg, mother of Edgar J. Stachelberg, the vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez y Haya Company. Mrs. Stachelberg is accompanied by her two daughters and is thought to be in France, although Mr. Stachelberg states it is probable she may be in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Celestino Vega and son have returned to Tampa after having spent several weeks in Havana, where Mr. Vega bought some tobacco for his big factory in West Tampa.

Mrs. Joaquin Lopez, widow of the late well-known Joaquin Lopez, has returned to the city for the purpose of settling up her personal affairs and will then return to her old home in Spain, where she intends to reside permanently.

John W. Ross, who makes his headquarters at Jacksonville, and occupies the position of Florida manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, also spent a few days here recently.

Mortimer Regensberg, of E. Regensberg & Sons, is back again in Tampa, having arrived a day or two ago from New York, where he has been for quite a period. Mr. Regensberg intends to spend several weeks here and in Cuba.

William Solomon, who has been connected with the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, making his headquarters at Jacksonville, has been transferred to this section.

John Boltz, of Boltz, Clymer & Company, is back again at the factory, after having spent some time at the Philadelphia offices of the company, and reports himself very well satisfied with present conditions, not only in the East, but in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast, also.

Francisco Bolano, who so ably manages the bonded factory of Grommes & Elson, is now visiting at the Chicago factory of the company.

Good business is reported at the "C. H. S." factory of Val Antuono.

A. Santaella Y Ca. are kept busy putting on cigarmakers to keep up with the demand for orders. "Optimos" are going well, and conditions generally are very satisfactory.

Henry A. Toplitz

IN the recent organization of the Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company, the management were fortunate to secure the services of Henry A. Toplitz, who, acting in concert with Mr. Abram Voice, will look after the office and sales detail and incidentally cover the Metropolitan territory.

Mr. Toplitz is a born New Yorker and his ideas are thoroughly up to the minute. After graduating from the College of the City of New York in 1907, he accepted a position with Wm. Steiner, Sons & Company and continued with them for seven years, resigning to come with the new house.

HENRY A. TOPLITZ

In latter years, Mr. Toplitz was the Western representative for Steiners, and he achieved a wide measure of success over that difficult field. He stated that one of the most gratifying incidents of his new association was the kindliness and messages of good will which had reached him from his friends and customers in the West.

Mr. Toplitz is a young man with ambitions and ideals and his work with the Pasbach-Voice Lithographing Company will be closely watched by many friends who hope he will achieve to the utmost.

W. B. Cobb in New York

W. B. Cobb, president of the Hernsheim Cigar Company, of New Orleans, has been in New York for some days past and has made several important deals for the distribution of their widely-known brands of "King's Court" and "Capulet."

The "King's Court" brand will be featured by the new A. H. Hillman Tobacco Company, who recently opened on Broome Street.

Mr. Cobb made a flying visit to Boston on the 8th, returning last Wednesday to New York.

Captain William Phelan, who is known to hosts of cigar men as the skipper of the P. & O. steamship "Olivette," plying between Tampa and Havana, has been vacationing in New York this month, making his headquarters at the Elks' Club.

Pittsburgh

Arnheim-Herz Company Features "Reynaldo"—"Muriel" Brand Displayed in "Afco" Windows—"La Saramita" Cigar Has Steady Call

PITTSBURGH, PA., August 12, 1914.

THERE is a slight improvement in the downtown trade and by the first of September business should again be normal.

The Bock-Stauffer Company have taken on the "El Roi-Tan" brand, formerly distributed by the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company. They have also taken on the "Class" five-cent cigar. Both these brands are manufactured by the Seidenberg Company, of New York. The Messrs. Richardson and Guthridge, of the Seidenberg Company, will at once start on a two-years' campaign on "El Roi-Tan" in Pittsburgh and vicinity. The Bock-Stauffer Company should have quite a success on this brand. They have given up the "Owl" cigar, manufactured by the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, and will work consistently on "Class." The Bock-Stauffer Company are getting things in shape to move in their new building on Penn Avenue. They have taken the old Arnfeld Clothing Building and will remodel same to suit the tobacco end. They will have one of the finest jobbing houses in the state.

Reymer Brothers have some very nice window displays. They are featuring their "Florencia" stogie, which is one of their best two-for-five sellers. They are also featuring the "Principe de Gales" cigars in eighteen (18) sizes.

The Arnheim-Herz Company are having quite a campaign on "Reynaldo" cigars. They have some of the very best windows in the downtown section. The May Drug Company are also featuring this brand. Last Saturday every store retailing the "Reynaldo" cigar gave away a German silver ash tray with every fifty-cent purchase of this cigar, which helped considerably.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands are featuring "Robert Burns" cigars this week. They have a very nice window display of same.

The "Robert Burns" and "Owl" cigars and the balance of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company brands are being distributed by the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company in this territory.

The W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, who have recently taken on the "Corina" clear Havana cigars, manufactured by Jose Escalante & Company, Tampa, report business on this brand very satisfactory. A few of the dealers handling this brand are: The May Drug Company, nine stores; McCullough Drug Company, three stores; Henry Hotel and the Colonial Hotel.

Joseph Zimmerman is still doing business at the old stand. Since the Victoria Theatre opened up last Saturday they will have quite a rush between intermission and after the show.

The Afco Cigar Company had a very nice display on "Muriel" cigars, the new brand manufactured by P. Lorillard Company, and distributed by the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company in this territory. This firm should have quite a success on this brand.

The following visitors were in town: Preston Herbert, vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company; Val. Keogh, representing M. A. Gunst Company; T. M. Miller, representing Bower Cigar Company, Mansfield, O., manufacturers of the "Ampere" cigar (Shipley-Massingham Company are the distributors for this brand); W. W. Rosebro, representing Morgan Cigar Company, of Tampa, makers of the "Juan de Fuca" (F. I. Clemens, Park Building, is the distributor).

The Pinkerton Tobacco Company is now working this city, using a large United States flag with each five-cent package of "Red Man" tobacco. This brand has been showing a consistent growth and the new deal will help it along from indications.

"New Bachelor" cigars are enjoying a big sale in the Pittsburgh district, being stimulated by the cutter deal. The cigar cutter being given away is quite attractive and serviceable.

"Court Royal" cigars are going nicely in Pittsburgh. Shipley-Massingham Company are the distributors for this brand.

Shipley-Massingham's representative, W. F. Sharples, is making his rounds in an "Oakland" with a box on the rear advertising "Charles Denby," "Court Royal" and "La Saramitas."

Moore Brothers, the live cigar dealers of Bellaire, O., are having a big run on "Court Royal" cigars.

"Cuesta-Rey" cigars are growing in favor every day in this territory.

Tampa Cigarmakers Show Poor Judgment

TAMPA, August 7th.

Because their demand that the wrapper selector foreman be discharged, was refused after an investigation by Edgar J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the factory of Sanchez y Haya, located at Seventeenth Street and Fourteenth Avenue this morning, the entire force of cigarmakers and workers in the factory walked out in a body, declaring their intention of going on strike. Upon investigation of the demand made that the foreman be discharged, it was learned that it was due to spite work upon the part of one man who is said to have had a personal grudge against the foreman. The strikers remained in the vicinity of the fectory, and when it was thought that some of them might resort to violence, a call was sent in for the police, which was responded to by Lieutenant Thompson, in addition to some six or eight patrolmen. When the strikers refused to disperse, six or seven disorderly ones were placed under arrest.

Manager Stachelberg stated that he would close the factory for two weeks, inasmuch as the cigarmakers have walked out. He feels that when he is ready to resume he will have but little difficulty in obtaining first-class cigarmakers, inasmuch as the city is being rapidly filled with many from Havana, where all the big factories have closed down. The cigarmakers in the employ of Sanchez y Haya, who went on strike, will doubtless find that it will not be so easy to make other connections under existing conditions.

New Factory for Curry & Smith

Announcement comes from Curry & Smith, cigar manufacturers, located at Orlando, Fla., that their new building in that place will in all probability be ready for occupancy about October 15th. The excavations for the foundations have been already started and are fairly well advanced. The new structure will be practically four stories in height, although the lower floor might be considered as a basement, being partly located below the surface of the ground. The dimensions of the new factory are forty by sixty feet and will provide accommodations for twice the number of workmen now employed. The ground was purchased by private subscription among the citizens, which carried with it the condition that the factory should manufacture in Orlando for ten years at least.

"Stag" Flags Form Coat for Tobacco Salesman

"Stag" tobacco, made by the P. Lorillard Company and known from coast to coast, has been giving souvenirs that have been put into practical use by one of the salesmen for the brand.

Milton Guttman, who serves the dealers in "Stag" tobacco in San Diego and Imperial counties, Cal., has recently made a collection of the flags and blankets given away with the tobacco as souvenirs, and has had them made into a coat.

In this gay raiment Mr. Guttman interviews all his customers and he may be seen in the accompanying photograph taking an order from Mr. Sumpf, a well-known tobacconist of Los Angeles.

Needless to say, Mr. Guttman is well prepared to defend any of the countries now engaged in the Continental war, as he is displaying the flags of all nations engaged.

The coat attracts no little attention and Mr. Guttman is kept busy explaining to the inquisitive that they can easily duplicate the coat if they smoke "Stag" tobacco. It is expected that these coats will be quite the rage in Los Angeles soon. At any rate, there is an increasing demand for "Stag" in Mr. Guttman's territory.

Ninth District Factories Busier

Good news comes from Lancaster, Pa., and vicinity in that the Kinports chain of factories, located at Ephrata, Rothsville, Schoeneck, Lititz and Hopeland, respectively, is now working five instead of four days a week, as in the past. It is said that additional cigarmakers are being taken on and that it will be but a matter of a short time before all the factories will be working to their full capacity. Also, rumor is to the effect that the factories at Reinhold and Brownstown will in the near future give employment to a vast number of cigarmakers.

Henry Wemmer Among Those Abroad

The last word received from Henry Wemmer, of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Lima, O., was dated July 23rd. Although only five days before Servia and Austria-Hungary declared war, no mention was made of this matter in the course of a four-page letter. In this letter it was stated that he expected to motor from Vienna, where he was then staying, to Munich. If this plan was followed the Wemmers are probably in the war zone.

The agent of the company in Amsterdam has been cabled and asked to make an effort to trace the Wemmer family.

According to A. B. Murphy, Boston representative on the "Natural" cork-tipped cigarettes, manufactured by Schinasi Brothers, the smoke has made a big hit in this vicinity and sales on the plain tips are increasing.

Trade Comment

Robert Read recently called on the trade of Knoxville, Tenn., in the interests of the "Charles Denby," manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.

Among the recent visitors to Seattle, Wash., was W. S. Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, the well known manufacturers of the noted "Reynaldo" brand.

A strong campaign on "El Zelo" and "El Toro" brands is being carried on by the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Company, St. Louis, Mo.

"Juan de Fucas" were recently boosted in Tacoma, Wash., by George Leghorn, of the Morgan Cigar Company, Tampa, manufacturers of the brand.

"Woodman" cigars, manufactured by the Wilentz Company, of Perth Amboy, N. J., have been taken on by Jay R. Gardiner, Buffalo, N. Y., local jobber.

The "Eagle" Panatela stogie, retailing at three for five cents and manufactured by the Eagle Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been taken on for distribution by the Wm. J. Brueckner Cigar Company, of Cincinnati, O.

C. T. Morris, representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez in the western part of the country, is now working the territory in Syracuse and vicinity in the interests of the noted "Webster" cigar, manufactured by his firm.

Gail O. DeCrow and H. H. Gordon, recently spent several days in Lancaster, Pa., in a general publicity campaign on "Mail Pouch," and succeeded in placing a nice number of attractive window displays on the brand.

Though only occupying their present quarters, 1320 Sixteenth Street, Denver, Col., a few months, the Friedland Cigar Company is contemplating alterations to the factory in order that they may be able to have a larger seating capacity.

The Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Company, Salt Lake City, Utah, recently made a special campaign on "New Bachelors," the renowned product of T. J. Dunn & Company. Further incentive was lent to the campaign by the giving away of gold-plated cigar cutters for bands from the "New Bachelor" cigars.

During the past ten days the firm of Henry Straus, Cincinnati, O., inaugurated what promises to be one of the most extensive advertising campaigns ever held locally on the "Robert Burns" and "Owl" cigars. The agency of these brands is controlled in this vicinity by the Straus Company, who state that the advertising campaign will embrace not only the newspapers, but the billboards and street cars also.

Francis E. Gyory, at one time in the employ of the Solis Company, and a former resident of Denver, Col., recently visited that city in the interests of a new brand known to the trade as "La Defensa" and manufactured by Gonzalez, Fisher & Company, of Tampa. In addition to the "La Defensa," Messrs. Gonzalez, Fisher & Company manufacture in bond the well-known "La Sinceridad," a clear Havana product.

PHILIPPINE TOBACCO AND TOBACCO PRODUCTS

Suffering from Trade Depression—Smaller Shipments of Cigars to United States—Controversy Over Claimed Inferiority

PHILIPPINE tobacco and tobacco products have been passing through another period of trade depression. As regards tobacco other than cigars and cigarettes (much the greater part of which goes to Spain), the falling off for the calendar year 1913 (Periods III and IV) is not very great when contrasted with the calendar year 1912 (Periods I and II) and may easily be accounted an inevitable but temporary fluctuation. The quantities exported during the four periods under review were as follows, in pounds: Period I, 14,168,923; Period II, 17,098,204; Period III, 12,243,878; Period IV, 16,490,729.

As regards cigars, however, the fluctuations have been so extreme and the recent falling off so considerable as to raise much discussion, which can not yet be said to have led to any definite conclusion. The total number of cigars exported was: Period I, 94,325,000; Period II, 96,317,000; Period III, 111,079,000; Period IV, 80,683,000. From this it appears that the general exports of cigars, after increasing steadily from early in 1912 to the middle of 1913, fell off by the end of the latter year about 28 per cent.

This decrease in shipments has been accompanied by an appreciable, though much less rapid, decrease in the average price; from $16.66 per thousand in Period II to $15.77 in Period III and $15.62 in Period IV.

Smaller Shipments of Cigars to United States

The chief loss in cigars (as was also the case during the slump of 1910-11) was in the exports to the United States. The decrease in quantity was from 49,984,000 in Period II to 25,065,000 in Period IV—very nearly one-half; the decline in value was relatively less, but still very considerable—from $1,071,281 in Period II to $616,046 in Period IV. The decrease in the percentage of the total export taken by the United States at the same time was from 67 to 49. The average price of shipments to the United States, on the other hand, has steadily risen; that for Period IV, $24.57 per thousand, is the highest yet recorded, and compares favorably with the figure of $22.10 for Period III, and $21.43 for Period II.

The slump of 1910-11 in exports of cigars has been generally attributed to a natural reaction from the very large shipments made immediately after the establishment of free trade with the United States in 1909. Whether or not this explanation was adequate to cover the situation then existing, it is at least certain that more specific causes must be sought for the present decrease. These causes have been the subject of official inquiry in the United States and of much discussion in the Philippines. The principal American wholesale firms dealing in Manila cigars attribute the present situation, first, to the lack of systematic advertising, and, second, to the receipt at irregular intervals of large consignments of musty, wormy, or otherwise unsatisfactory goods. While it is undoubtedly true that the comprehensive plans proposed from time to time for efficient advertising have fallen through, it is hard to estimate exactly how large a part this has played in bringing about the present situation.

Controversy Over Claimed Inferior Quality

It is admitted that the danger of Philippine tobacco becoming wormy, if kept for any great length of time, is considerable—one large company, indeed, being now engaged in experiments with a sterilizing machine intended to overcome this difficulty. Some local authorities, however, assert that, where specimens of supposedly musty or wormy cigars have been returned from the United States by way of evidence, they have not been as inferior as claimed. There is, furthermore, among local exporters a widespread belief that the real cause of the trouble is misrepresentation and misbranding in the United States. Of this they have several specific instances; but the importance of these is denied by the American wholesalers, and it is doubtful if they have been extensive or systematic enough to give rise to the present situation.

Probably the most important cause lies outside this controversy. It does not appear that the shipments of the long-established companies have been seriously falling off, for these take every possible measure to avoid the practices complained of in the United States. What has happened, however, is that a large number of small and poorly equipped factories sprang up under the stimulus of the provisions of the tariff of 1909, and, by the inferior quality of their product, did harm to the trade in general. During the past year these establishments have been gradually going out of business; and, while the decrease due to the cessation of their shipments will not be immediately made up, the industry in general is left in a better condition, and a repetition of the complaints referred to, on a large scale, is considered improbable.

Exports of cigarettes, never of great importance, do not exhibit any features during the period under consideration that call for special comment.

Tobacco Crops Decreasing

The general state of the tobacco-growing industry is in many respects unsatisfactory. The last two or three crops have shown a decrease in the proportion of first and second grade leaf, this being undoubtedly traceable to the prices paid to the growers, which have dropped heavily of late, combined with a general raising of the grading standards. Some progress has been made in improving the situation, but the obstacles are many. The Philippine Bureau of Agriculture has induced a goodly number of the Cagayan planters, after two years of free demonstration and instruction, to carry their seed to be cleaned with apparatus owned by the municipal governments. Seed selection is a more difficult matter, owing to the inability of the small grower to provide devices to prevent cross-fertilization. The taking out of the weak seed, however, should in itself work much improvement. Some progress has been made in the establishment of improved curing houses, but their use is perhaps not rigidly enough enforced.—Daily Consular Reports.

Deisel-Wemmer Factory Not Embarrassed By War

R. J. Plate, secretary of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, when asked regarding the rumor that they would be forced to close down their factories in two or three months if trans-Atlantic commerce was not resumed, stated that he did not consider the company in any danger of such a procedure.

It was pointed out that the wrappers which are imported from Amsterdam are the only necessities which the war might interfere with, but that as shipments are made in lots sufficient for six months' supply there is little fear of embarrassment.

Mr. Plate stated that they have a considerable supply on hand and that Mr. Henry Wemmer, of the company, is now in Europe. The Deisel-Wemmer Company buys stock in lots sufficient for two years' supply and Mr. Wemmer's present trip was to arrange for the 1915 and 1916 purchases.

The work of harvesting the tobacco crop from the first tobacco plantation in Northern California has been started at Chico. The tobacco is of excellent quality and the yield is so heavy that the growers will net $200 an acre.

Revolutionizing Cigar Sales

MANUFACTURERS and retailers of cigars are beginning to notice the difference in the methods of selling cigars to the consumer between the present time and several years ago. All admit that the use of up-to-date improvements is an accessory to increased sales. The most improved show-cases, humidors and glass lids for counter display have done much to draw the eye of the smoker to the goods advertised by such means.

Perhaps the glass lid has done more to popularize certain brands than anything else with the smoker. And this is due in no little part to the increasing good taste displayed by consumers of the present generation. Cigars neatly displayed in their boxes with all-glass lids cannot help but show increased sales. Quality is no longer judged by gaudy display, but by the neatness and simplicity of the effect, and the latest improvements in the glass lids for cigar boxes is playing no little part in the general improvement of the retail cigar trade.

The charm and effectiveness of some of the newer all-glass lids is indeed worthy of comment. Among them is the recent innovation of P. A. Becker, of 132 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., pioneer inventor of both the old and new styles of glass cigar box lids. Mr. Becker has constructed the glass lids in endless forms, combining in some the moistening device as well as the easel and advertising attachments. These combinations give the glass lid an appearance quite foreign to the old methods in vogue for many years and aids much in attracting the attention of the consumer to the cigars displayed with the most recent improvements.

One of the questions in the minds of the manufacturers has been to evolve a plan whereby their brands may be made to stand out distinctively among the endless number displayed by the average cigar dealer. This new all-glass cigar box lid has helped to solve the problem and one much-pleased purchaser recently remarked that the new style of lid made the cigars stand out "as if a searchlight were thrown on them."

With the new attachments the box can be thrown at any angle without interfering with the clerk in handling the cigars. Speedy delivery of the cigars to the consumer can now be accomplished by the clerk without any additional inconvenience.

It is noticed that the dealers are more and more rejecting the old clumsy lids and are showing a disposition to use the modern all-glass display devices of which P. A. Becker Company are making a specialty. The Becker Company has a number of recent inventions and patents that will soon be placed on the market, and meanwhile the cigar manufacturers and dealers are waiting expectantly for the new step which this company will take in the production of the highest class of all-glass lids and displays.

We were particularly pleased to hear Mr. Becker say that the benefits that he derived from THE TOBACCO WORLD columns and the publicity given by it to his devices has been the means of him enjoying very valuable orders from not only the United States but other countries as well for the past ten years. Many of Mr. Becker's old customers keep close watch on his products and never fail to equip themselves with his latest devices as soon as they are marketed.

Upon the completion of the dismantling of the plant of the Polk Brothers Tobacco Company, Taylorsville, Ky., the company will move to Shelbyville, Ky., where five years' exemption from taxation has been granted. In addition to this, the Business Men's Association of Shelby County has donated a plot of ground on which the new structure is to be built at a cost of $2000. A dozen hands will be employed in the new factory, the stock of which is to be controlled by Shelbyville capitalists.

Park Cigar Store a Unique Enterprise

THE Park Cigar Store, located at 183 Griswold Street, Detroit, Mich., has recently opened for business in the wholesale and retail tobacco lines. Aside from the fact that this new emporium will carry standard lines widely advertised and well known to the consumer, the store itself has an individuality that will no doubt assist in building up a splendid trade.

The Park store is located a half-story from the ground and faces Griswold Street. As you enter you would imagine that you are in a hotel lobby; there are easy leather chairs; a table with the latest magazines and newspapers, and a place to write letters; further back is the cigar case. Among the leading brands are "Webster," "Havana Ribbon" and "New Bachelor." In the rear there are a number of tables where men can play cards. "We don't expect to get much trade off the street," said Mr. Bowie. "We all have our friends and it is from them that we expect to get most of our business. They can drop in for a few moments, smoke their cigar and rest, or play cards. In other words, it will be a sort of a downtown home for smokers."

The company comprises F. S. McAllister, H. A. Bowie and C. N. Manley. Mr. Manley is a silent partner. Mr. McAllister is of the firm of McAllister & Smith, cigar and tobacco jobbers at the foot of Woodward Avenue. He will still retain his interest in the old firm, but will give all his time to the new enterprise, where he will be in charge of the wholesale end; the retail department will be looked after by Mr. Bowie, who for many years was with the New York Dining Car Service.

Baker Brothers in New Quarters

Baker Brothers, Hanover Street, Boston, are now established in their new quarters at 87 Broad Street. Having 10,000 square feet of floor space, in addition to a large basement, and entrances to the building on two streets, the new location should provide splendid facilities for the conducting of the business of these well known jobbers. Much attention is being attracted by the very fine offices of the company, which are furnished in mahogany. Coming in also for its share of attention is the large humidor built adjacent to the offices, which has a capacity of one million cigars. Sam and Harry Baker compose the firm of Baker Brothers, who started in business about ten years ago, gradually building up a business of notable dimensions, despite the many obstacles that arose in their path. They are distributors of the noted "El Verso" and "San Felice" brands, of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, and report big business on the same. The recent opening of the new concern was quite a success, several of the more prominent manufacturers forwarding flowers with cards attached expressing their good wishes for the firm.

Among the leaders in the cigar stand connected with the Hotel Braddock, Baltimore, Md., are "El Verso," "San Felice," "La Carolina," "Sanchez & Haya," "Reynaldo" and "Cortez."

B. W. Thornberg, Cedar Rapids, Ia., has opened his second store in that place, the new store being situated in the National Bank Building, the location, it is said, being one of the best in the city. Very attractive is the new stand, the fixtures of which are of genuine mahogany. Mr. Thornberg will carry the highest grades of clear Havana, seed and Havana and broadleaf cigars, assuming personal charge, for the present at least. His other stand is located at First Avenue and Third Street.

William L. Huntting

Mr. Huntting was born in Hampton, L. I., November 22, 1840, the son of Jeremiah and Joanna Hand Huntting. His father was a farmer and his early life was spent on his father's farm.

In 1866 Mr. Huntting came to East Hartford and began to raise tobacco. With the tobacco industry, growing, buying, packing and selling he identified himself for the past thirty years. In 1871 he began packing and in 1873 he built a warehouse. As a tobacco grower and dealer Mr. Huntting was known as one of the best in the business and was considered an expert. With his sons for some years he constituted the firm of William L. Huntting & Company, agents for E. Hoffman & Son, of New York City. A few years ago the partnership was dissolved between the sons and then Mr. Huntting took his son-in-law, Frederick E. Fuller, into business with him, incorporating the company under the name of W. L. Huntting & Company. The company was dissolved two years ago.

The deceased was a charter member of Evergreen Lodge of Masons, of South Windsor, and of Elm Lodge No. 63, K. of P., of which he was a trustee. He married Miss Mariana Howlett, March 26, 1867. Besides his wife he is survived by three children, Mrs. Frederick E. Fuller, William S. and Henry J. Huntting. Another daughter, Mrs. H. J. Hinchliffe, died a few years ago. He also leaves seven grandchildren.

John T. Walsh

John T. Walsh, wholesale and retail cigar dealer, of Owosso, Mich., a pioneer of the county and one of the best well-known citizens in that section of the state, died on July 26th at Crystal Lake, where he had gone to enjoy an outing and a rest. While Mr. Walsh had been in ill health for a long time, the news of his death came as a distinct shock to his many friends. The body was brought to Owosso and the burial took place on July 30th, where more than 250 people attended the funeral services, Masons, Elks and Knights of Pythias being largely represented.

Mr. Walsh was born in Oakland County, Mich., in 1851. He operated two stores in Owosso, one on West Main Street and the other on South Washington Street. Harry Walsh, his son and his business partner, was prostrated by his father's death and was unable to attend the funeral.

Charles Eickoff

Charles Eickoff, the oldest cigar manufacturer in Hamilton, Ont., Canada, died early Friday, August 7th, at his home, 234 North Locke Street, Hamilton, Ont., following a brief illness. Deceased had not been in good health for some time, but his death came entirely unexpected. He was a member of the Cigar Makers' Union No. 35 and of Court Germania, A. O. F. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. John Garson, and one son, Harry Eickoff, both of Hamilton, Ont. Interment was Monday, August 10th, in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

Willis E. Boyden

Willis E. Boyden, owner of the Boyden Cigar Company, Westfield, Mass., aged sixty-three, died in the Noble Hospital, that city, within the past fortnight, where he had been undergoing treatment for failing health. Mr. Boyden was one of the best-known cigarmakers in Westfield and vicinity. He is survived by a wife and one daughter.

Trade Jottings

During the past fortnight H. L. Rogers, Boston, Mass., distributed throughout that territory attractive packages of ten cigars in a leatheroid case, retailing at fifty cents. The cigars are all Havana grade and manufactured in the "Alona" factory in New York.

Collins and Normile were recently in receipt of a shipment of "Broadway" cigars, a five-cent proposition made especially for them by the Morgan Cigar Company, of Tampa. Collins and Normile are located at Broadway and Pike Streets, Seattle, Wash.

The display windows facing Broadway of the Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company's store, St. Louis, Mo., recently featured two dancing cigars on a circular platform as a part of a "Pastora" display. It is needless to say that the sidewalk was crowded, and it was even necessary at certain times for the police to exert their offices to disperse the crowds.

It would seem to be rather early to be booking holiday orders, but S. Zinberg, of the Manhattan Briar Pipe Company, accompanied by Mr. Scheuer, sales manager of the company, recently displayed in the sample rooms of the Tacoma Hotel, Tacoma, Wash., a splendid line of pipes on which they did good business, many orders for holiday trade being received.

The Gillick Cigar Company is the latest addition to the ranks of the trade at Oakland, Cal. The store is located at 1641 Broadway, and has been opened by John J. Gillick, a well known residenter of Oakland, who has placed his two sons in charge, James and John, Jr. Mr. Gillick states that he is too old for business himself, but he is going to see to it that both his sons have a good start.

William P. O. Moss, one of the founders of the firm of Moss & Lowenhaupt, St. Louis, Mo., and for a number of years associated with the cigar trade of that city, is now the St. Louis representative of the Havana-American Company, and is looking after the local distribution of the famous "La Preferencia" cigars. Mr. Moss was formerly manager of the cigar and tobacco department of the David Nicholson Grocery Company.

Jack Dahl, familiarly known throughout the Northwest as "Jack of Hearts," is now located in Oakland, Cal., where he has two retail cigar stores, one located at 1111 Broadway and the other at Eighth Street and Broadway. Mr. Dahl also controls a jobbing stand where quite a number of the Morgan Cigar Company's noted "Juan de Fucas" are handled in addition to the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company's "White Beauty," retailing at five cents. "Juan de Fucas" staples have a big demand in Oakland, while the call for "Sequrdos" and "Princess" in the same line is steadily increasing.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

FIGHTING one's way to the front in the battle of Life is a continuous struggle in which many fall by the way and only a remnant of those who start ever reach the vanguard. The fact that it is a case of "the survival of the fittest," acts as a lodestone to draw many into the fray who are destined to fail from lack of stamina. Out of the school of "Hard Knocks" come many who are prepared to wage the battle earnestly, and girded with the sword of Experience they plunge into the fray prepared to win or die in the struggle.

In such a school George M. Lex, now assistant secretary of the "44" Cigar Company, was prepared for the struggle to gain the ranks of "Men Who Made Good," the Legion of Honor of the business world.

George M. Lex

George M. Lex was born in Philadelphia in 1876. He took the usual course in the public schools, and then from choice at the age of twelve abandoned the "higher education," and secured employment with a well-known law firm in this city. With this start he pursued the usual career of an ambitious lad and after six years of evolution he finally entered the employ of the wholesale shoe house of J. G. Grieb & Sons. He was then eighteen years old.

From the start he evinced a determination to "get ahead" and his diligence, together with ambition, increased his ability, and from the position of bill clerk he rose rapidly, creating positions as he went along. After seventeen years of untiring effort he found himself in charge of the entire credit and financial end of the firm with which he was employed.

On March 6, 1911, Mr. Lex became employed by the "44" Cigar Company, and for three years he has applied himself to the task of mastering the intricacies of this widely-known cigar manufacturing firm.

As soon as Mr. Lex took up his work with the "44" Cigar Company he set himself to systematizing the entire business workings of the firm. Immediately an up-to-date system of management was evolved, requiring a complete set of offices and departments. His investigations entered into every part of the business, and in putting the office system on an efficient basis he has devoted himself to the task day and night.

Mr. Lex soon came to handle the entire credits of the company and was later elected assistant secretary of it. He became a member of the Credit Men's Association and has contributed his share in establishing the wonderful institution.

The growth of the "44" Cigar Company since his connection with it shows the tremendous ability stored in the person of George M. Lex. The firm has attracted much attention in the cigar world and its progress is still one of the surprises of the tobacco industry. His work shows that he was wisely chosen to direct the important function of the office management, and the fact that he is a splendid judge of men has been responsible for surrounding the work of the company with men of ability and loyalty.

Mr. Lex one time remarked that he owed much of the success that he had attained to the very able support and intense loyalty of the men under him, as well as those who worked with him.

Members of the "44" Cigar Company say in regard to Mr. Lex, "There is nothing too good to be said about him," which, coming from those who have trusted the success of their venture in his hands, could not be higher praise.

Those who know Mr. Lex cannot help but respect his high sense of honor and dignity, and his friends do not wonder at the trust that is imposed in him, for he has "made good."

This genial fellow who has made such strides along the much obstructed pathway of business, is still a young man, and it is not with any sense of doubt or fear that his friends predict that still greater honors will be his.

San Francisco

"Lord Stirling" Cigars in 'Frisco—"Havana Ribbon" Sales Set New Record—"Flor de Moss" Proves Popular —"Sanchez y Haya" Arrives in Town

SAN FRANCISCO, August 5, 1914.

EVERYBODY is talking war this week, and the dealers hardly find time to figure up and see whether the general absorption in the European mix-up has brought about any cessation in sales or not. The fact seems to be that the volume of business is just about normal for this time of the year. Several men well known in the wholesale end of the trade are abroad with various members of their families, and there is some anxiety, in the absence of definite news, to know just how they are faring.

Salesmen for local wholesale houses report that the only trouble with the war is that everybody is so interested in it that it is very hard to talk business. Retailers are also disposed to wait till the financial nervousness now manifest as a result of the European troubles wears off a little. Still a good deal of business is being done in most sections, and the general belief is that August will show up much better than July in point of wholesale transactions.

C. H. Knubel, the California Street broker, who has long been known as the "Charles the Great" representative on this Coast, has now added two new lines to his list. These are the Enterprise Cigar Company's "Lord Stirling" and the Mazer Cigar Company's "Miss Detroit." Mr. Knubel is now working his trade in and about San Francisco, having come down from Oregon and other northern sections last week.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, is now in Northern California looking after his connections there. He sends in some good orders and reports that he will be in Southern Oregon in a few days.

Quite a number of country retailers have escaped from the heated interior of the state during the last week or two, and several of them have been spending a portion of their vacation in San Francisco. Among those who have shown up in the local trade are: Frank Liddle, of Paso Robles; Peter Arbios, of Stockton, and J. C. Lesher, of Modesto. They bring reports of good business and still better prospects, in their respective sections.

Jos. L. Hoffman, of Falk & Company, who was here a few days ago, is now in Portland on his way through the Pacific Northwest.

H. L. Judell & Company are preparing for a busy early fall campaign. All their salesmen are now out in their territories doing a good deal of business in spite of the hot weather. They have also started a newspaper advertising campaign in the interest of the "Watt" cigar, of Bondy & Lederer. This will be followed by some window work on several of their lines. This week two good shipments of the "Webster" line of Y. Pendas & Alveras reached San Francisco for distribution among the "Webster" hungry customers.

John Glen, of the "El Roi-Tan" factory, is still in San Francisco working in connection with Ehrman Brothers & Company, in placing increased lots of "El Roi-Tans." Mr. Bamberger is also continuing his specialty work in the interest of the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, which is also handled here by Ehrman Brothers & Company. The total sales of "Havana Ribbons" for July set a new high record for this territory. Ehrman Brothers & Company have recently taken up the wholesaling here of the Park & Tilford candies.

Herman Moss, Western traveler for the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, arrived in San Francisco a few days ago for a visit with H. L. Judell & Company, distributers in this section of the "Flor de Moss." He has just completed a trip over the Pacific Northwest territory.

D. M. Superstein, who was formerly associated with H. Bercovich in the wholesale business on Front Street, has now taken up the distribution here of the "Luis Martinez" cigar, manufactured by the Martinez-Havana Company. The "Luis Martinez" was one of the leaders of the H. Bercovich Company until Mr. Bercovich gave up the wholesale end of his business.

Charles Oliver, of Portland, Ore., who was a visitor with M. A. Gunst & Company here last week, has now returned to his Northern home. He is one of the Gunst standbys at Portland.

E. J. Stolz, "Cortez" representative on this Coast, has completed his round-up of the California trade, and is now making a tour of the Pacific Northwest. He writes I. Danziger that he is doing a good business.

C. Maxwell, the Front and California Streets retailer, has made quite a hit by securing late editions of the "War Extras" of the various papers and posting them on his windows. They never fail to draw good crowds at all hours of the day.

Ed Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, leading importers of Manila cigars, does not look for any serious interference with arrivals as a result of the war. No steamers are leaving either for or from San Francisco at present, but this is certain to be only temporary, and at the most the war is not likely to have any effect on the movement of Japanese steamers flying the Japanese flag. Mr. Wolf reports general business conditions here to be rather better than they have been for some time. He is now giving most of his attention to his Manila lines, but will begin active work on his "Tadema" campaign about the first of September.

E. M. Elam, the new Western man for the "Sanchez y Haya" goods, has arrived in San Francisco and has opened offices here. Mr. Elam has recently been representing the Lorillard tobacco lines in this territory, but was formerly a representative of cigar lines here.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Company, has been elected vice-president of the California Celebrations Committee, which has to do with the holding of celebrations and conventions in San Francisco and other California points.

Dealers here are gradually gathering an interest in the "Cigar Day" movement. Dealers here will be ready to do their share by October 12th, according to the present outlook. Dan P. Carter, president of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, has been appointed one of the vice-presidents of the "National Cigar Day" Committee.

E. M. Hartman has bought out the Foreman cigar store at 302 Kearny Street.

Whelan Interests in Good Shape

George J. Whelan has announced that the United Cigar Stores Company, the United Profit Sharing Corporation, the Tobacco Products Company and the Riker & Hegeman Drug Company were in a strong financial position and that there would be no suspension of dividend payments or curtailments of any sort owing to the war.

"Not one of these companies is a borrower of money," said Mr. Whelan, "and at least three of the four are large lenders. The United Cigar Stores Company alone at present has outstanding between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 in loans on call, while the United Profit Sharing Corporation has $300,000 and the Tobacco Products Company $1,250,000.

"The agency idea, which means the selling of the United products throughout the country, will be pushed ahead as though there was no war. Rather than curtailing the sales of cigars and cigarettes, the war abroad has resulted in an increase of sales. That is explained by the fact that many persons who before the European trouble were tied up in offices all day are only working part time now, thus having more of a chance to smoke."

Something About Cigarette Papers

IT is a truth that many of the things we handle in our daily lives have become so familiar and are taken as a matter of course, that were we asked to trace their origin, we would often find ourselves lacking in knowledge of even the ordinary facts concerning the articles in question. In this strain, how many of those who handle and roll their own cigarettes, are conversant with the facts that cigarette papers for the whole world come chiefly from France, the output coming from Italy, Austria and America being comparatively insignificant.

One often hears of paper used in the rolling of cigarettes designated as "rice-paper," which is rather misleading, inasmuch as the paper has nothing whatever to do with rice, but is manufactured from fine new trimmings of flax and hemp and other vegetable fibers.

It is said that all of the alleged harm of cigarettes, is the result of poor paper, and that manufacturers realizing this, have put forth every effort to make the paper as pure and as perfect as possible, and have endeavored to eliminate injurious elements and effects.

So light is cigarette paper, that five hundred of the tiny sheets are listed to the ounce. They are perfectly combustible and give off the minimum of smoke. In order that the paper may contain nothing but the purest fiber and be free from all deleterious substances, it is thoroughly analyzed before being permitted to be rolled with tobacco. Only new material—flax and hemp trimmings—is used, and these are thoroughly purified. Cut by machinery into minute particles, they are well mixed by a revolving fan and then reduced almost to dust, which is then placed in a solution of lime and soda.

In order that every foreign ingredient may be disposed of, it undergoes a complete washing process, the water being obtained from artesian wells sunk for the purpose. The pulp is again crushed and rolled out into paper. This is of a grayish tinge and the pure white of the finished leaf is made possible through an electric process which also cleanses it of all possible impurities.

Commerce of the River Weser District

The trade in leaf tobacco during 1913 was quiet. Of 350,000 bales (the total tobacco crop of Brazil), 60,000 were exported to Argentina, 160,000 to Bremen, and 130,000 to Hamburg. The Carmen and Santo Domingo crops found a ready market. The importation of the Habana article continued to decrease; only 11,500 seroons[1] were imported in 1913, as compared with 50,000 seroons during 1912. This decline is doubtless due to high prices.

Bremen merchants continued to show their activity in the world's tobacco market. There were received at Bremen during 1913 18,000 bales of Porto Rico, 33,000 of Rio Grande, and 14,000 of Paraguay tobacco. At the public auction sales at Amsterdam and Rotterdam, Bremen merchants bought 35,598 bales of Sumatra, 108,125 of Java, and 1745 of Borneo.

The importation of Virginia and Kentucky tobacco was practically the same as in 1912.

The cigar industry does not yet seem to have overcome the effects of the ad valorem duty on leaf tobacco. The consumption of cheap cigars is decreasing, while the use of cigarettes is growing steadily. Prices of leaf tobacco were high, thus necessitating the investment of larger capital in manufacturing. This, in connection with the scarcity of money, made the position difficult for small manufacturers.—Daily Trade Reports.

[1] The seroon or seron is a hamper or basket used for packing raisins, figs, tobacco, tea, etc., but without any exact weight. A seroon of Paraguayan tea weighs about 200 pounds.

An Asset to the Retail Trade

IT is easy enough to sell cigars to the man who knows what he wants, but it requires the efforts of a real salesman to make friends with a "crank" and to secure and hold his trade.

The "I-want-a-cigar" kind of customers are, fortunately, on the decrease and for that reason salesmanship plays an important part in securing the trade of a stranger.

Sifting out the customers who know what they want and those who do not know what they want but are satisfied if it is expensive, we have a third class which, although small, is well worth cultivating.

Into this last class we put those eccentric individuals who may buy cheap or expensive smokes but who are decidedly firm on the color, shape and blend of the cigar they put in their mouths. They may buy only one or two cigars, or they may buy a box, you can never tell. But don't forget that they are the kind that compose a certain percentage of the box trade.

The discriminating man, who sometimes exasperates you with a request for "something else along this line," may know more about the cigar business than you do. The man who chooses his cigars as carefully as he probably does his friends, you may be sure knows something about the different brands and blends. And further, he probably has a reason for being so particular.

To make friends with this sort of a customer is no easy matter, but ninety-nine times out of a hundred when you do succeed in pleasing him and in retaining your good humor at the same time, you have won a customer whose trade is above the average.

Whether you are proprietor, or clerk, it matters not. Competition is keen these days. Win the favor of every customer if possible. It will repay you for the effort. Besides winning the trade you make a friend who advertises you by word of mouth to his friends. Every one of these particular fellows has a number of friends who are just as "cranky" about their cigars. "Birds of a feather," etc., you know. Well, the "cranky" customer may get you more trade, but after you learn to handle one or two of that kind they become easier as they increase. Then, too, you really wouldn't lose good trade if you knew it. Every dollar counts these days and to be able to come out of the humidor or up from under the counter with a smile is the thing that counts after all.

An inexhaustible supply of good humor together with a keen perception go hand in hand in the making of a good retail cigar clerk. If you are a clerk, paste this in your hat. It may be worth a barrel of money to you some day. Anyhow it doesn't cost you anything.

"Kroonland's" Trade Cruise Called Off

The American Trade Tour Company has announced that the business men's cruise of the Red Star liner "Kroonland" in October next to various South American ports has been deferred, as owing to existing conditions abroad, the "Kroonland," which is an American-built vessel, will be required in the Atlantic service to bring American travelers home from Europe.

An extensive account of the plans for this cruise was published in the April 1st issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, August 8, 1914.

DURING the first part of the past fortnight we have had a very active market with plenty of buyers, and perfectly willing to pay the asking prices of the holders of leaf, but as soon as the news of the general European war became known here, bedlam was let loose, as all European orders for cigars, as well as tobacco, were canceled and our market has been almost paralyzed ever since. We do not care to repeat, what undoubtedly the daily American press may have published, about the war, the closing of all exchanges in the civilized world, the impossibility to sell drafts upon any place, excepting the United States, as well as the refusal of the Ward Line to accept any trans-shipments of goods, with the only exception of Canada, by way of the overland route.

The worst feature is, that through the closing of all the factories of Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., H. Upmann, Sol, Por Larrañaga, and a few minor ones, over 5400 cigarmakers, strippers and other help in the factories have been thrown out of employment, and will starve, unless our government takes prompt measures to alleviate the situation by procuring work for them.

Our leaf dealers are in no better condition, as the receipts from the country are now at their height, and there is no outlet for any grades, the splendid demand from Germany having been cut off, and there are hardly any American buyers in town. Unless the latter should flock down here soon, and relieve our warehouses of the surplus, the outlook is indeed very blue. There is only one hope for them, that through the scarcity of money there may be no crop planted this year, excepting that some attempts should be made to raise wrappers, as without the latter even the abundance of fillers could not be turned into cigars, either here or by the clear Havana cigar manufacturers in the States, whose factories are bonded. Of course the seed and Havana manufacturers would not be affected, as they are independent of a failure of our wrapper crop.

There is one ray of hope, through the lowering of the discount rate from 10 per cent. to 6 per cent., by the banks of England and France, and which might foreshadow a quicker ending of the tremendous conflict than we dared to hope.

Sales totaled 17,848 bales during the last three weeks, which were divided into: Vuelta Abajo, 4298; Partido, 3220, and Remedios, 10,330 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 4796; exporters to Europe, 10,017; shippers to South America, 723, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 2312 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from July 13th to August 1st, totaled 18,206 bales, which were distributed to the following countries and ports, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 8341; to Bremen and Hamburg, 9063; to London, 32; to Gibraltar, 47; to South America, 723 bales.

Cigars.

We submit herewith the figures of our exports of cigars, as per our official custom house returns, from the port of Havana during the month of July of this year, and a comparison with the previous year:

From July 1 to July 31, 1913,	16,199,838 cigars
From July 1 to July 31, 1914,	10,534,032 "
Decrease during the month of July, 1914,	5,665,806 "

The following eleven countries show decreases above 75,000 cigars each:

Great Britain and Ireland	2,324,256 cigars
United States	1,447,784 "
Spain	402,600 "
France	381,000 "
Argentine Republic	357,779 "
Australia	340,565 "
Chile	303,969 "
Spanish Africa	248,627 "
Canada	203,570 "
Austria	150,600 "
Italy	87,500 "
Total	6,248,250 "

The Cuban Market

There are five countries which show an increase over 30,000 cigars each:

Germany	304,469 cigars
Mexico	151,500 "
Peru	40,300 "
Bolivia	40,000 "
Portugal	31,450 "
Total	567,719 "

The total figures for the seven months of this year compare, as follows, with the same period in 1913, viz.:

From January 1 to July 31, 1913,	101,799,588 cigars
From January 1 to July 31, 1914,	87,200,517 "
Decrease during the seven months of 1914,	14,599,071 "

By comparing the nine principal countries, which take at least one million cigars from us, we find the following decreases and increases, viz.:

	Decreases.
United States	5,864,719	cigars
Great Britain and Ireland	4,546,310	"
Argentine Republic	1,598,228	"
Canada	1,453,577	"
Chile	1,335,169	"
France	923,762	"
Australia	4,290	"
Total	15,726,055	"
	Increases.
Spain	1,941,477	cigars
Germany	912,189	"
Total	2,853,666	"

The above figures speak too plainly to require any further comment, and unless the United States and Canada increase their orders, many more of our factories may be forced to close soon.

LEAF TOBACCO.

Facundo Argüelles, the resident buyer of Argüelles, Lopez & Brother, of Tampa, has purchased, according to our information, 1475 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold during the month of July 3000 bales of leaf of all kinds to their customers, as we have ascertained from a reliable source.

Don Diego Montero, who was one of our most important shippers to the Argentine and Uruguay Republics, entered into rest the beginning of this month, and the large number of mourners, belonging to the leaf trade, demonstrated the esteem he was held in during his lifetime.

Fred Davis, of Sam I. Davis & Company, of Tampa and New York, is still here, but it is said that he has purchased around 2000 bales of choice leaf already.

Adolfo Moeller is credited with having purchased 5000 bales of leaf for the German market during the last three weeks.

Herrera, Calmet & Company were sellers of 619 bales of Remedios to their customers.

J. F. Berndes & Company purchased 1751 bales of leaf during the last three weeks.

Sierra & Martinez disposed of 827 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Nuñez, Diehl & Company bought 1487 bales of leaf for export to Germany.

F. Rocha & Company closed out 643 bales of all kinds of leaf to their customers.

The German steamship "Neckar" had agreed to take 2000 bales of leaf for Germany, when suddenly the owners cabled to take no freight or passengers, and to leave at once in ballast. The German exporters were obliged to haul their bales back from the dock to their warehouses.

Leslie Pantin, the Portuguese Consul-General, and the most important commission merchant of Havana, returned with his family on the 29th ulto. by the steamship "Mexico," from his vacation in Europe and the United States. His numberless friends bid him welcome home again.

August Kuttnauer, the representative for the United States and Canada, of the famous "Punch" factory, also arrived by the steamship "Mexico," in order to prepare for the coming fall campaign.

Shippers above 200 bales of leaf from the port of Havana for the last three weeks were:

Adolfo Moeller	4,713 bales
Virgilio Suarez	1,649 "
J. F. Berndes & Company	1,475 "
Maximilian Stern	1,436 "
Nuñez, Diehl & Company	1,301 "
Ernest Ellinger & Company	988 "
Leslie Pantin	806 "
Fred Horn	726 "
Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company	663 "
J. Bernheim & Son	475 "
Garcia & Company	382 "
H. Upmann & Company	377 "
Sobrs de A. Gonzalez	266 "

Tobacco Crop Report

The Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, in their report on the crop conditions for August 1st, state that the month of July was unfavorable for crops in the United States, but that the prospects are still 5 per cent. better than the outturn of last year's crops.

The growing condition of tobacco on August 1st, expressed in a percentage of its ten-year average (not normal), was 81.6 per cent., which is an improvement of 3.6 per cent. during July.

The tobacco crop for 1914 is smaller than the 1913 crop as far as acreage is concerned, and is reported to be 94.6 per cent. of the 1913 acreage. The acreage this year is given as 1,151,000.

The yield per acre for this season, interpreted from condition reports, is given as 687.6 pounds per acre, as against 815.1 pounds per acre for the five-year average (1909-1913).

The August 1st forecast for the tobacco production of the United States is given as 791,000,000 pounds, as against 756,961,000 for 1913.

The August 1st forecast for Pennsylvania is given as 45,800,000 pounds, as against 43,838,000 pounds in 1913.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Cuban Factories Close

Following the receipt of cablegrams from English and German firms canceling or suspending orders which had been given for cigars, the factories of Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Havana, Cuba, who manufacture more than twenty brands, have closed their doors, this action affecting hundreds of employees. This condition is due primarily to the unsettled state of the European markets owing to the conflict now raging in that part of the world. Most of the orders of the more extensive European concerns are being canceled, and it is said that the closing down of the factories of the independent cigar companies may be expected at any moment.

The B. R. Hahn Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Bay City, Mich., reports to THE TOBACCO WORLD that their business is steadily increasing on all their brands throughout Northwestern Michigan, and that their factory is working to capacity.

Oppenheimer Cigar Company Has New Manager

Much regret was manifested recently when Charles Broceus, manager of the Chicago, Ill., store of the Oppenheimer Cigar Company, tendered his resignation, the same to take effect immediately. During his connection with the Oppenheimer Company's interests, Mr. Broceus made a great many friends. He is succeeded by Jay G. Moorehouse, who formerly acted as assistant manager. Mr. Moorehouse is a man of much ability and will doubtless prove the right man in the right place.

Much attention is being attracted to the recently completed humidor and large show case now being installed in the cigar store of John O'Brien, located at 133 East Fifth Street, St. Paul, Minn., by the manufacturers, The H. Knoff Manufacturing Company, Mankato, Minn. M. Knoff, of the company, is personally superintending the erection of the humidor and cases, the woodwork of which is of Circassian walnut, being the last words in up-to-date patterns.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The European war has already injured the Lancaster leaf tobacco business, orders for the delivery of goods intended for foreign customers having been canceled. The war comes at a time when packers and cigar manufacturers were looking forward to an early boom in trade. The new packing, the 1913 crop, is about ready to be placed on the market, but the packers will hold it back unless such prices can be obtained as will justify them in selling it. The crop now in the field has developed with such unusual growth that considerable broadleaf will be cut before the first of September. Not only has the weather this season been ideal for tobacco growing, but the season has been remarkable for the scarcity of those insect pests, worms especially, which usually attack growing tobacco

CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, CONN.

Coming as a climax to the most remarkable season in several years, Connecticut tobacco growers have begun cutting millions of tobacco leaves in the plantations hereabouts.

Prices are from 10 to 15 per cent. higher than last year. Havana seed tobacco demands 23 cents a pound in the bundles and Connecticut broadleaf 25 cents a pound in the bundle. Both the shade-grown and open-air tobacco are a success this year. Already 40 per cent. of the crop has been bought up by Eastern and Southern jobbers. During the past ten days there has been a keen rivalry among buyers, who rushed about the country making deals with happy farmers.

As there is all kinds of quality in a bundle of tobacco, it is estimated that Connecticut tobacco will be worth $1 a pound this season. On the plantations of the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation 168,000,000 leaves will be cut by hand on 558 acres of land. All this tobacco is under cloth. The largest buyers in the state are represented by Julius Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, who purchased 1600 acres of tobacco

SUFFIELD, CONN.

A few of the tobacco growers have started to harvest their crops this week. Next week the work will be started in earnest. Although the crops are all being gradually picked up, there are many still unsold. The buyers have been less active since the European war outbreak has become so serious, and are waiting to see just how developments will affect the tobacco business before buying any more of the weed.

Very little tobacco will be picked or primed in the town this season.

The early trolley cars have for the past week been bringing in a large number of girls and women to the town looking for work in the tobacco fields. All were disappointed, as the local help is more than enough to take care of the picked or primed tobacco this season. Last season about 800 boys, girls and women were employed from outside of the town. The cutting of the tobacco on the stalk will be in full blast in about two weeks, and from present appearances help will be plentiful and the growers will have a chance to secure good help. The season is about two weeks late which is the cause of the many strangers in the town looking for work.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

The condition of the tobacco fields is not entirely satisfactory at this writing and rain is badly needed. At the same time we have seen worse conditions and have known the crops to pull through with a fair average. A good, steady rain will work wonders and its arrival will be welcomed by the growers.

The outlook at present points to a large crop of short "B" tobacco and the continued dry spell will increase the proportion.

United Cigar Stores Declare Another Dividend

The United Cigar Stores Company of New Jeresy has declared another dividend of 15 per cent. A month ago a dividend of 55 per cent. was declared and the total for the year since January first last amounts to 125 per cent. All stock in this company is owned by the United Cigar Stores Company of America.

The Tucker Cigar Company, who control a retail cigar store at Broadway and Park Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., have opened a second retail stand in that city, the same being located at 3305 Meramec Street.

Sylvester Brothers, 830 Fourth Avenue, South, Seattle, Wash., have been appointed the local distributors of the well known "Joy" five-cent cigar, manufactured by Arnold Tietig & Sons, Cincinnati, O. The cigars will not be put on the market, however, until November 1st.

The distribution of "Bold" cigars, manufactured by Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., has been taken on by the Badger Tobacco Company, Milwaukee, Wis., and it is reported that the new brand has been pretty generally placed throughout the field.

Tobacco Industry on Mexican Coast

The tobacco industry at Mazatlan and in this section has been growing in importance for several years. There were in this city last year four tobacco factories. One firm sold $250,000 worth of tobacco and cigarettes; the other three sold about $200,000 worth of tobacco, cigarettes and cigars.

Local tobacco from the Territory of Tepic is used for cigars of the cheaper brands. Tobacco from the State of Vera Cruz is used for cigars of the better class.

A cigar can be bought here for three-fourths of a cent, but this is a poor brand and a small cigar. It is sold only to the poorer classes, who complain at the high price. Cigars made from the tobacco from the Territory of Tepic can be bought at $12 to $25 per thousand. The cigars made from the tobacco from the State of Vera Cruz and sold at $17.50 to $35 per thousand are good and well enough made to satisfy the most particular smoker.

The cigar factories retail many cigars and for 1½ cents can be bought a fair cigar. For 3½ cents can be bought a very good cigar at retail. The sale of cigarettes is many times greater than the sale of cigars, but the better-class cigarettes are imported.

Taxes on the sale of tobacco have been gradually getting higher for the last three years. Under the Diaz administration the tax on a 2½-cent package of cigarettes was one-fourth of a cent; when Madero was president this tax was raised to three-fourths of a cent a package; while under the Huerta administration 1⅛ cents has been paid for the privilege of selling a 2½-cent package of cigarettes.

Although the industry is protected by a very high tariff, there is a small trade in imported tobacco from the United States. Many Americans when they first come to Mexico do not like the local output, but they gradually accustom themselves to it.

There were employed in the factories here during the past year about 300 girls and men, and only the latest machinery is used. The product is sold all over this part of the Republic.

The largest firm has moved its factory to Guadalajara, thus leaving the field to the three smallest. This industry has great promise of increase upon the resumption of peace, and the Territory of Tepic to the south is a promising country for tobacco growers.—Daily Consular Reports.

Sumatra Tobacco To Go Up

Cigar manufacturers who use real Sumatra tobacco for wrapping their products will doubtless have to pay more money for it in the near future than they are now doing. Imports of this tobacco so far this year by the dealers total only 14,000 bales, against 24,000 bales last year. This amount, however, does not include the direct importations of the manufacturers, which so far this year amount to somewhat less than a third of the whole. The reason for decreased importations this year is said to be that the best grades of Sumatra leaf, the only kind used in this country, form a smaller portion of the crop than usual. The annual American consumption of this leaf sometimes reaches 30,000 bales, and while the output of the cigar factories is said now to be slightly lower than at this time last year, the drop in the importations of Sumatra leaf has been so pronounced that higher prices are inevitable.

H. C. Nolan & Company Lease New Factory

H. C. Nolan & Company, of this city, have recently leased the large cigar factory on Main Street, Souderton, Pa., formerly occupied by Baum-Jaffe Company. Souderton workmen look upon the opening of this new factory as good news as the record of the Nolan factories in other towns shows that they generally run full time from year to year.

Detroit

War Talk Helps Sell Cigars—"Subway" Cigar Makes a Hit—Klip Cigar Manufacturing Company Doing Well—"Stogie King" Visits Detroit

DETROIT, MICH., August 8, 1914.

CIGAR stores are busy places these days, for men in all walks of life gather there to discuss the European war. It might be said that the war is really helping the retail cigar business; groups are everywhere, on the street, in the cigar stores, at the club and in the hotels all talking "war." Wherever there is a group of men, you can wager there is smoking.

Manufacturers do not care to express an opinion of the possible effects of the war on their business, except to say that it is too early to make any predictions. It is certain that if our imports are discontinued, thus cutting off the tariff, the United States will find it necessary to levy a stamp tax, and this, of course, would amount to considerable with the cigar manufacturers. As for stopping the shipment to this country of European tobacco, this would not make any material difference at present, as most of the local manufacturers are well stocked and there is enough additional tobacco in the various warehouses of the leaf dealers. Should the war be of long duration, then it would seriously affect the cigar manufacturing industry of this country, and particularly Detroit, where so much Sumatra is used. However, for the present manufacturers are not worrying and are concerned only in giving prompt attention to their customers. Business is exceedingly good and manufacturers have every reason to look forward to excellent trade for the next few months, at least.

The following figures show the number of cigars made here during July of this year, as compared with the same month last year. The increase was a small one, yet it proves conclusively that Detroit is more than holding its own:

1913—26,697,116 cigars	80,097.35
1914—2,515,235 pounds tobacco	201,218.86
1913—2,610,418 pounds tobacco	208,833.51

On account of the building at Shelby and Fort Streets, known as the "Tecumseh," being sold to one of the local trust companies who plan to erect a new structure on the site, all tenants have been notified to vacate within ninety days. Among them is the Chambers Segar Store, one of the oldest in the city. Up to this time they have not secured any new quarters.

The Harry W. Watson Company have bought out a new five-cent cigar, "Subway," made by I. Lewis & Company, who also manufacture the "John Ruskin." Previous to bringing out this new brand, for which the Watson Company are Michigan distributors, large space was used in the local newspapers advertising the same; all of the Watson stands were well stocked with "Subway" cigars in addition to hundreds of other retail stores. The first few days' sales were very large and have continued to be very brisk ever since.

The Revere Cigar Company, of Detroit, make a cigar called "Paul Revere." The past week a man dressed up as "Paul Revere" has been riding up and down the principal streets of the city on a beautiful black horse, there being an attractive banner on the back of the horse reading "Smoke the Paul Revere Cigar." The stunt recalls to the minds of many the patriotic poem of "The Ride of Paul Revere." Gustav A. Moebs is at the head of the Revere Cigar Company.

Nate Shapero, of M. A. Gunst & Company, and George Stocking, of Marcelina Perez & Company, were late visitors here.

After a six weeks' trip through the Middle West, most of which time was spent in Kansas City, Albert W. Worch, one of the partners in the Wayne Cigar Company, of Detroit, returned home on July 29th. Mr. Worch states that his worst trouble while away was to console the many retailers who could not get enough of "Niles & Moser Hand-made."

Alfred W. Penner, local representative for E. Rosenwald & Brother, and Charles Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company, attended the funeral in New York of Benno Newburger.

John T. Woodhouse, of Detroit, wholesale tobacconist, is making plans to leave with his family some time this month for Alaska.

W. P. Freligh, known through Michigan as the "Owl Man," has been conducting a very vigorous campaign in Kalamazoo in the interest of Best & Russell.

A local concern who reports good business is the Klip Cigar Manufacturing Company at 880 Grand River Avenue. They began business March 1, 1913. In November of the same year they incorporated with ample capital and elected officers as follows: A. G. Smith, president; C. V. Smith, vice-president; George S. Clarke, secretary, and Henry C. Hudson, treasurer. They specialize on the "Klip" five-cent cigar. It is steadily growing in favor and is now largely distributed throughout the state. They also manufacture "Havana Luxury," a five-cent cigar, and "Havana Crest," in the ten-cent line.

William J. Trick, former Cheboygan, Mich., cigar manufacturer, has opened a factory in Pontiac and is making two brands, "Pontiac Motor Club" and "Trixie."

O. W. Stark has taken a position with the Woodhouse Company, wholesale tobacconists, in Grand Rapids. He recently recovered from a long siege of sickness.

William C. Law, 927 Gratiot Avenue, has been showing a very attractive window of "Bold" cigars.

Gus B. Hirsch, of Hirsch & Hirschburg, leaf tobacco dealers, of Dayton, O., was in town the last week in July. He came here for the purpose of securing the Dayton agency for a number of Detroit-made cigars, as his firm is extending its operations by also becoming jobbers of cigars as well as tobacco. Gus reported business to be excellent.

The Union Cigar Company has been organized in Petoskey, Mich., by John and Charles Golster, who recently purchased the Bert Keet business.

Detroit regrets saying good-bye to Willis Andruss, who has been making this territory for "Fifty-Six" cigarettes, and who has accepted a position with H. Fendrick, of Evansville, Ind., who makes the "Charles Denby" cigar. He is to represent them in Kansas City and the Middle West. Mr. Andruss had many dear friends here and had been making Detroit for many years.

All punch boards and other forms of gambling have been tabooed in Flint, Mich., by the police department. Every pool room, cigar store and drug store where the games of chance have been flourishing have been ordered to get rid of their paraphernalia. The sweeping order came as a result of the numerous complaints recently to the police department.

Joseph Schwartz, the famous stogie king, of Cleveland, was a recent visitor to Detroit on his way West. Mr. Schwartz represents fourteen large stogie manufacturers.

AL U. THORNBURG.

PROPOSED INCREASE IN TOBACCO TAX MEETS STRONG OPPOSITION

Storm of Protest From Every Part of Country—Manufacturers and Workmen Express Disapproval—Industry Ready to Fight Against New Burden

DESPITE the fact that the question of increasing Government revenue to meet the loss in import duties has not been decided and probably will not be for some time, the cigar and tobacco industry is up in arms at the suggestion that the old war tax be levied on cigars and tobacco to help meet this deficit. THE TOBACCO WORLD is daily in receipt of letters from all parts of the country protesting against the proposed taxation and urging that this paper use every influence to prevent such action by Congress. The cigar and tobacco associations in every section have drawn up resolutions of protest and forwarded them to those in authority at Washington, and it is evident from the wording of the letters and resolutions that any effort to subject the tobacco industry to further taxation will meet with the bitterest opposition.

The opinion is widespread that any such action by Congress will have a tendency to defeat the very end sought. It is believed that further taxation will have a tendency to decrease production, thus causing a loss not only in the present amount of revenue but in that which is expected to be raised additionally.

The stogie makers and manufacturers are among those who will be hardest hit by any such action, and their protests are daily pouring into Washington.

Any industry that pays a tax to the Government of upwards of $75,000,000 annually can hardly be called a luxury. Yet there are hundreds of luxuries, that are really luxuries, that pay no tax at all.

There is a lot of difference between the man who smokes stogies and the man who can afford to keep an automobile. Persons who can afford to own automobiles can better afford to assist in meeting this deficit in revenue than cigar manufacturers and cigar smokers. The automobile is not a necessary method of transportation.

When Europe is involved in a struggle of extermination, it is interesting to read that the tobacco factories of England are working day and night to manufacture tobacco for the needs of the army and navy. When money is being hoarded with miserly care it hardly seems possible that governments would spend money on tobacco to supply the needs of half a million men if it were a luxury.

The tobacco industry has been patient and long suffering and there need be no surprise at the strong opposition that is expressed by the trade on every side in response to the proposal to further burden tobacco manufacturers. If an investigation is needed to justify these protests, then the manufacturers will welcome it, knowing as they do, that further burdening of the trade will mean but one thing—the extermination of hundreds of revenue paying manufacturers.

It is to be hoped that the President will carefully consider the protests of the manufacturers and that the industry that has for a long time borne a large share of the Government expenses will not be further burdened; especially when there are so many other things that are really luxuries that could well stand a temporary tax.

GREAT BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICA SAYS C. A. WHELAN

"Made in U. S. A." Slogan of Prosperity Era—"Buy Goods Made in America," Says "United" Sign—Idle Men Will Then Have Work by 1915

NEW YORK CITY, August 28, 1914.

THAT nothing can stop the boom for American business that has started is the expressed opinion of Charles A. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company. He has backed this belief by having a sign placed in the windows of the company's stores which reads as follows:

The Way to Put Every Unemployed Worker to Work—BUY GOODS MADE IN AMERICA

Mr. Whelan is firm in his belief that if the people in this country will buy only American-made goods, every idle man or woman in the country will be at work by January 1st. His own observations have satisfied Mr. Whelan that the era of prosperity for this country has started and that once fairly going, nothing will be able to stop it. Although Mr. Whelan's interests include cigars and tobacco, he declares that the sign in the store windows has nothing whatever to do with cigars and tobacco.

In a recent interview Mr. Whelan said:

"During twenty-one days in August the books of the United Cigar Stores Company show that we did the biggest business of any twenty-one August days in the history of the company, so it is plain to be seen that we haven't been hurt.

"I spent some time calling up various concerns and asking how their business was getting along. I was astonished at some of the reports I got. For instance, I learned from a cut glass concern that it was not able to fill all its orders. Another concern told me that it doubled its plant when the war started and now needs more room. A toy goods man said that because toys made in Germany were not coming to this country he had succeeded in getting one of his biggest orders from Boston. Others said that they had not felt the effects of the war at all. Now this shows that things are picking up.

"When we once get going nothing is going to stop us. Take practically every line of business; when they get started they will adjust themselves to conditions. And when they are going they will make big quantities and will get fair prices.

"If people will only buy American-made goods it will not be long before there will be work for everybody who is now idle.

"There will be no trouble to turn the balance of trade in our favor. It is up to the American people to seize the great opportunity which they now have in their own hands."

PLAN TO AID FARMERS LAID BEFORE BANKS AND COTTON COMMITTEE SUBMITS REPORT

Will Accept Tobacco Receipts at 75 Per Cent. of Face Value —Currency Must Not Be Used for Speculative Purposes

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 28, 1914.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY McADOO yesterday placed in writing his plans for aiding the cotton and tobacco producers of the South in the emergency caused by the European war. This plan provides for the issuance of emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland Act upon the security of loans on warehouse receipts made by national banks.

The prospect that war in Europe will destroy the market for months makes it necessary to store the crop, and adopt a plan that will enable planters to meet their obligations. This, it is believed by Secretary McAdoo and the committee, will be wholly practicable under the Emergency Currency law.

Secretary McAdoo has been engaged for several days with the Federal Reserve Board and Treasury officials in preparing a circular statement explaining to all interested the course planned by the department. The statement follows in part:

"Among the eligible securities to be used as a basis for the issue of currency I have decided to accept from national banks, through their respective national currency associations, notes, secured by warehouse receipts for cotton or tobacco, and having not more than four months to run, at 75 per cent. of their face value. The banks and the assets of all banks belonging to the Currency Association will be jointly and severally liable to the United States for the redemption of such additional circulation, and a lien will extend to and cover the assets of all banks belonging to the association and to the securities deposited by the banks with the association, pursuant to the provisions of law, but each bank composing such association will be liable only in proportion that its capital and surplus bear to the aggregate capital and surplus of all such banks.

"It is not my purpose to prescribe the character of the warehouses in which cotton and tobacco may be stored. The banks will be relied upon to see that warehouse receipts issued by responsible warehousemen or warehouse companies alone are accepted and that the cotton and tobacco stored in such warehouses are covered by adequate fire insurance and are protected against injury by the elements."

The Cotton Committee appointed to carry out the plan supported by the official cotton and tobacco conference held here August 24th and 25th, has submitted a report to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. Such of the report as is of interest to the tobacco industry is quoted herewith:

"That cotton, tobacco and naval stores should be marketed as deliberately as possible until they can again be exported in normal quantity, and that when properly conditioned they should be warehoused with responsible concerns and should be protected against weather damage and be properly insured against loss or damage by fire.

"That warehouse receipts for these commodities are proper collateral for loans by banks and should be accepted with such limitations as to margin inspection and valuation as conservative bankers may each in their discretion see fit to impose.

"That in the case of tobacco and naval stores the committee is informed that when these commodities are properly conditioned, stored and insured, they are practically non-perishable, and that the committee therefore recommends that warehouse receipts for tobacco and naval stores be accepted as security for loans on a basis that has due reference to their market value, less such allowance as the lenders shall consider reasonable in view of the present suspension of the export demand.

"Your committee recommends that notes having not longer than four months to run, when secured by proper warehouse receipts for the aforesaid commodities, properly insured, be accepted for rediscount by the Federal reserve banks, when organized, and that they also be approved by the National Currency Associations as security for additional circulations to the national banks under the provisions of the Aldrich-Vreeland Act, as amended by the Federal Reserve Act.

"That a subcommittee be appointed by you for the purpose of conferring with the Treasury Department and the banking interests, with a view of carrying into effect the recommendations herein made."

CAPITOL.

Philadelphia Cigar Manufacturers Protest

Cigar manufacturers of the First District of Pennsylvania met yesterday afternoon at the Manufacturers' Club to take action in regard to the proposed emergency tax on tobacco products.

After some discussion a resolution was prepared to read, that "we protest against any increase in the Internal Revenue Tax on cigars, as we believe that any such increase will be an inequitable discrimination against a particular industry and will seriously disturb and demoralize the entire cigar business of the country, our reasons being substantially the same as those set forth in the protest of the Cigar Manufacturers of America, at their meeting in New York, August 27, 1914." (For resolutions see page 27.)

It was the sense of this meeting that a hearing be requested for the cigar manufacturers of the country, at which time they would be permitted to further explain their position as regards the proposed increase, before any definite action be taken.

Among those present were: Charles Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers; Robert Boltz, of Boltz, Clymer & Company; Jacob Langsdorf, of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf; George M. Lex, of the "44" Cigar Company; A. M. Schwarz, of Bobrow Brothers; George I. Watson, of Sig C. Mayer & Company; A. V. Pent, of Pent Brothers; F. E. Brown, of Brown Brothers & Company; S. T. Fulweiler, of P. C. Fulweiler & Brother Company; A. Z. Sherk, of A. Z. Sherk & Company, Reading, Pa.; Mr. Sumner, of Reading; Mr. Tiedler, of Womelsdorf.

G. I. Watson acted as secretary of the meeting.

H. Duys & Company Secure More Sumatra

Despite the fact that the war has embarrassed some manufacturers who use Sumatra, the house of H. Duys & Company have proven that they are ever awake to the current of events, and in anticipation of the Sumatra shortage this well-known firm has purchased and arranged for the delivery of more than 2000 additional bales of Sumatra. To be exact, 2472 bales of Sumatra have already been delivered, thus placing the house of Duys in a position to supply their customers with their usual promptness.

REVENUE OF TOBACCO WAREHOUSES CUT OFF

No Money for Salaries—Appeal Made to Maryland Governor—Most of Crop Goes to Fighting Nations

BALTIMORE, MD., August 24, 1914.

IN consequence of the European war and the stoppage of exports, the State tobacco warehouses have had so little revenue in the last few weeks that an appeal has been made to Governor Goldsborough for funds with which to pay the salaries and other fixed charges of operation, pending the resumption of shipments.

The revenues of the warehouses, it appears, are obtained from "outages," or the export charge on shipments of tobacco. This charge is $2 a hogshead. And, inasmuch as practically all the Maryland crop of tobacco is exported to Germany and France, the stoppage of trans-Atlantic transportation has about eliminated all revenue for the time being.

Meanwhile the farmers of Southern Maryland are sending tobacco to the warehouses and the officials there are up against the problem of testing, classifying and storing it without having the money to pay those employed in the work. Of course, as soon as the foreign markets open again the gathered stock of tobacco will be exported and the regular "outages" will be collected on all, thereby enabling the warehouses to repay whatever money may be advanced temporarily for the fixed charges.

"I do not know of any authority we have to borrow money for the fixed charges of the warehouses at this time," said Governor Goldsborough, "but I believe that a way will be found to meet the situation. It is merely a temporary embarrassment and as soon as the markets are opened exportation will begin and the warehouses will collect on the tobacco which has been stored."

"Norma Martinez" Manager in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, August 22.

F. C. Dana, general manager of the J. M. Martinez Company, Tampa, Fla., was among the recent visitors to this city and has met with splendid success on their "Norma" Martinez" smoker, which is distributed in this city by the S. Bachman Company.

The S. Bachman Company has also taken on the new Cuban-style smoker made by the J. M. Martinez Company, and Mr. Dana reports that the cigar has made an instantaneous hit wherever introduced.

Mr. Dana has been spending the summer calling on the jobbing trade in the East and Middle West, and is on the coast again for the first time since last spring. He has also been on a visit to the factory at Tampa.

The fact that the J. M. Martinez Company is the oldest clear Havana smoker factory in the United States, says Mr. Dana, accounts for the heavy demand made on the Martinez Company during the increased popularity of Havana smokers of the "Norma Martinez" type.

Mr. Dana also informs your correspondent that the new ten-cent straight and two-for-a-quarter line, "Selector," is meeting with marked success. The J. M. Martinez Company is practically the first to introduce the Cuban-style high-grade smokers on the Pacific Coast.

JOHN W. SURBRUG RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Chain Store Deal Halted—New Vending Machines Introduced

JOHN W. SURBRUG, who, after disposing of his cigarette business to the Tobacco Products Company and associating himself with that corporation, went over to Europe some months ago, was a passenger on the "Mauretania" when she made her last trip from Great Britain and landed her passengers in Halifax about two weeks ago.

Mr. Surbrug was in Berlin the day Germany declared war, and he made a hasty exit for England, and foreseeing conditions, booked passage home to New York.

His stay abroad proved most beneficial to him as far as his health is concerned and he never looked better in his life, despite months of hard work against heavy obstacles.

Together with Mr. Whelan, Mr. Surbrug has been endeavoring to establish the chain store system in London, throughout Great Britain, and possibly on the Continent. On numerous recent occasions cable dispatches have announced the completion of plans whereby United Stores would be opened in London; the Baker chain taken over; cigarette companies purchased, and other interesting developments. As a matter of fact, a great deal had been accomplished toward the desired end, but Mr. Surbrug states that everything was halted when the war broke out, and very likely nothing will be done for a year or two.

Speaking of cigar merchandising in England, he pointed out the fact that to his mind the British are away ahead of us in their legislation affecting price cutting, so that in establishing a chain store system it becomes a matter of business methods, reputation for honest wares and personality in handling retail trade, rather than offering the consumer an imported cigar at less than it cost to make The "United's" methods, barring cut prices, Mr. Surbrug believes would find high favor in London.

Incident to his return home, Mr. Surbrug brought with him the American rights to two automatic vending machines which are remarkable specimens of their kind. The Duplex Vending Machine Company was incorporated at Albany on the 15th instant, with $100,000 capital, to handle these devices in this country. Mr. Surbrug, his son, J. W. Surbrug, Jr., and his son-in-law, Alexander Eakin, are the parties in interest, and their office is at 204 Broadway.

Chicago Levee Places Closed

CHICAGO, ILL., August 26, 1914.

Local jobbers viewed with mingled feelings the passing of the old Chicago Levee district, which became an actual fact last week with the closing of Freiberg's and Colisimo's, two of the last strongholds of the old regime. These places, while condemned by all good citizens, none the less have been good customers of the jobbers. On the whole, they have sold thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of high-grade cigars every year, and in the past there has been keen competition among the salesmen to win this class of trade. With the passing of the old system the slumming parties which formerly visited the district will come no more, and the sale of cigars in such places as are permitted to remain open will be considerably less than in the old days which have passed away. Of course, some of the trade will go elsewhere, but the extravagant buying which has characterized the cigar trade of this section for so long will disappear, and in its place will come smaller sales with keen discrimination the predominating feature.

Chicago

Retail Trade Continues Excellent—Startling Pipe Advertisements Displayed—"Ben Bey" Growing in Public Favor

CHICAGO, ILL., August 26, 1914.

LOCAL cigar and tobacco merchants have about decided that in the long run the war which is now in progress among the foreign nations will help business. During the past week retail trade has been excellent. Local jobbers of cigars declare that orders have been satisfactory and that they expect the fall trade to start early. The saloon trade showed a marked improvement, as many of the large dealers have laid in a supply of goods early this year in anticipation of a heavy holiday trade.

Perhaps the best diagnosis of leaf conditions in Chicago and the Middle West can be obtained from Charles Strauss, traveler for C. H. Grote & Son, Pittsburgh, who was in Chicago last week, and with whom the writer had a long talk. Mr. Strauss is one of the oldest leaf men now on the road and his opinion ought to be about the correct idea of the situation.

"Considering that this is the end of a summer which has been filled with excitement and uncertainty," said Mr. Strauss, "the fall trade is opening fine. Manufacturers are buying in a close and cautious manner, but they are buying, and they all tell me that they expect a good business. Collections are good, I understand, and certainly a small volume of business done on the right basis is better than a large volume done on a basis which is not correct. I do not know exactly what effect the war will have on business, as it has not progressed far enough yet. I have just completed a most successful trip and the other boys I met on the road were as enthusiastic about the situation as I am."

However, it should not be overlooked, according to cigar and tobacco men of Chicago, that the initial effect of the war has been depressing on business. This is only natural, and the trade expects nothing else. What will really count is the effect the trouble will have in the long run.

Albert Breitung, the genial proprietor of a number of large stores in the Loop district of this city, who is now abroad, safe and sound in Hamburg, Germany, according to last reports, has sent home a yellow slip issued by the American Express Company, which is good for twenty-five cents. The slip was one of a series issued in Germany to relieve the tight situation caused by the disappearance of currency when the war broke out. The slip has been pasted in the window of the store in the Monadnock Building and daily attracts large crowds, who are always interested in anything from the firing line.

John Beibel, a salesman of the force of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, died last week after a lingering illness. Mr. Beibel was one of the oldest travelers on the force of the company.

The Perry Pipe people have been making a number of displays in the windows of leading cigar stores around the city. One of the most popular advertisements is one where John Philip Sousa, the famous band leader, was represented with a cut-out, and smoking one of the pipes, from which clouds of smoke issued automatically. It proved to be a most popular advertisement and attracted large crowds.

Edward Wendland, manager of the cigar and tobacco department for Thorwart & Roehling, has returned from a trip around the Great Lakes.

Robert Boltz, of Bolt, Clymer & Company, Philadelphia, was a visitor to the city last week.

Matthew Wengler, of Wengler & Mandell, will leave this week on an extended trip to Cuba, where he will look over the new Havana crop.

From the headquarters of Taussig & Company comes the announcement that Leo Taussig, of that firm, is the father of a little girl, who arrived last week. Mr. Taussig is buying the cigars for all hands in celebration of the occasion.

"Ben Bey," one of the leaders of Grommes & Elson, is another brand which seems to have found a place of favor in the estimation of the public, for the sales this summer continue most satisfactory, according to J. B. Grommes. The Cuban size continues in special favor with the public. The factory on the northwest side of the city has been rushed with orders all summer.

Six more retail cigar dealers were fined $5 and costs in Municipal Court during the past two weeks for attempting to bring back the "26" dice game, which was formerly one of the best sales stimulators which ever became popular in the local market. In sentencing the men the judge declared that a repetition of the offense would result in a much heavier fine.

"The cigar dealers of the city might as well understand," he said, "that the edict against the '26' game is a live statute, and will be enforced to the letter. The fines which I am now imposing are the lightest possible, and they are just to impress upon the minds of you gentlemen that you must sell your cigars straight over the counter, as other merchandise is sold, and that you cannot gain by preying on the gambling mania which is such a common human failing."

E. R. Welsh, manager of the Union News, and well known to the trade here, has been married, according to a current rumor. The facts are missing, but it is pretty certain that Mr. Welsh is no longer enjoying single bliss. He is now said to be on his honeymoon.

An important addition was made to the already extensive line of the Monroe Cigar Company last week when "Rotary" cigar, made in bond, was placed on the list. The cigar is made by Quiros, Villazon y Ca. The cigar will be launched with an extensive advertising campaign around the city, which will consist for the most part of carefully arranged window displays.

Given 122 Pounds of Tobacco

John M. Martin, head of the boiler department of the blast furnaces of the Edgar Thompson Works of the Carnegie Steel Company, received a birthday gift yesterday of sixty-one sacks of smoking tobacco, weight two pounds each, from 900 of his fellow employees in the big Braddock Mill. Each sack represented a year.

For many years Martin has been the "easy mark" for every workman, clerk and official who wanted a "pipe." He was never out of smoking tobacco, and it is said has given away as many as 200 "pipes" a day.

John Noey, veteran superintendent of the boiler department for the last forty years, presented the huge tobacco supply to Martin in a neat speech. He alluded to Martin as one of the "old guard" of Andrew Carnegie's department heads.

Will Manufacture in Addition to Retailing

In addition to the cigar store at Carthage, N. Y., which he recently acquired from the Watertown Tobacco Company, Joseph Hill, formerly of Newark, N. Y., will run a cigar factory. The basement under the store will be fitted up to that end, the supplies being brought to Carthage from Newark by Mr. Hill. Four or five men will be employed.

PHILADELPHIA.

Walters Wants to Thank His Customers

M. WALTERS, the popular representative of the "Bold" cigar, starts out today on a trip to thank his customers for their orders! Think of it, just going to thank them. The factory has been so rushed with orders for shipments that they have had to hold up many of their customers, and Walters is now en route to thank them and explain the cause for delay.

Mr. Walters goes to New Jersey today, then to New York, Ohio, Kentucky and around through the Southern States before returning to the home office.

If you handle "Bold" cigars, keep an open eye for Mr. Walters, and get your share of the thanks that he is handing out.

Charles Bobrow, of the firm of Bobrow Brothers, makers of the "Bold" cigar, says that they are now getting caught up and that he hopes Mr. Walters will be able to take some orders for delivery before he gets back off the territory.

Portuondo Brands Doing Well

W. E. Gumpert, the genial salesman of the Juan F. Portuondo Company, who just recently completed a campaign in Alabama in the interests of his company, is now doing some special missionary work in Oklahoma, making his headquarters at Oklahoma City. The factory is well pleased with the orders being received from this territory. Warner Searle, of this company, has returned to the factory and reports a successful trip through New York State and Pennsylvania.

San Martin & Leon Man a Visitor

W. D. Duncan, the well-known representative of the San Martin & Leon factory, Tampa, was a very recent visitor to the Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell, distributors of the San Martin & Leon's well-known "Hoyo de Cuba" in this territory. Following his stay in Philadelphia, Mr. Duncan will visit Pittsburg, Columbus, Cincinnati, Cleveland, New York and New England. He reports good business at the factory, the company being well pleased with the incoming orders.

"Bold" Reisenberg Back from Warring Countries

Henry Reisenberg, the well-known general representative of Bobrow Brothers, who has won fame selling the "Bold" cigar, arrived in New York yesterday, after a compulsory sojourn in London, due to the European war.

Mr. Reisenberg is expected in this city today, and will shortly start out on the road to visit his friends in the trade.

Big Orders for Neumann & Mayer

MONDAY was a big day with the Neumann & Mayer factory and the mail brought orders for a quarter of a million smokes to that factory, testifying to the demand for "Bella Mundo," "White Knight," "El Tello" and "Sherlock Holmes."

Morris Neumann, of the firm, states that business is continuing with them as well as usual, and that the fall outlook is promising. The jobbers and distributors of the firm seem to feel that the cigar business is due for a boom and they are putting their belief into substantial form.

Philadelphia Notes

Ben Straus, of Perfecto Garcia & Brothers, Tampa, Fla., was a recent visitor.

Duncan & Moorehead are featuring "La Glorica" and "Marcello" brands in their window displays this week.

Jose G. Ramirez, the genial secretary of the San Martin & Leon Company, stopped over in town a few days following which he left for Chicago.

Yahn & McDonnell, Juniper and Market Streets, are featuring attractive window displays on the well-known "Hoyo de Cuba" and Jose Lovera's "Manderos" brands.

Hy Hammer, of the "Regresso" factory, accompanied by Francisco Sierra and Celestino Sierra, of this factory, are visiting the local trade en route to Atlantic City, New York, Albany and Niagara Falls.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, the prominent Philadelphia manufacturers, report good business on their popular "Statesmen." They state that the factory is kept busy supplying the orders coming in.

The cigar department of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets stand of Mitchell-Fletcher, are much pleased with the business done during the month of August. They state that it has shown an increase over that for the same period in 1913.

The El Draco Cigar Company reports business good on their "Stratford" brand, and are looking forward to a good fall trade. "Stratford" cigars have been very popular at the seashore resorts this summer, which indicates that the smokers of these good cigars buy liberally while vacationing.

The great tobacco industry of the United States is facing today a situation which threatens seriously to imperil its very existence. If the present Congress should enact the discussed legislation placing an additional tax on tobacco and its manufactured products, there is grave danger that such legislation will create the most frightful panic which the industry has ever known, and in hundreds of cases mean the utter destruction of scores of little manufacturers.

A Grave Peril

Every trite legislator who refers to taxation in any way is firmly of the belief that any additional burdens of taxation should be laid upon the luxuries of life. Sounds very democratic, with an internal revenue tax on oleomargarine on the statute books, which is the butter of the luxurious poor, but if tobacco, and cigars and cigarettes are luxuries, and this point is open to very serious debate when the habits and conditions of the American working man are considered, the fact must not be overlooked that, luxury or no luxury, the enormous industry which yields annually in custom and internal revenue duties an income to the United States Government of about one hundred million dollars, is taxed at this moment to the breaking point.

With the business of the United States in a most timid condition and quite naturally so, the tobacco merchants of the United States, as well as the cigar manufacturers, have been pushed to their utmost to meet their daily expenses, and it behooves every individual who is in the leastwise concerned, to get into instant touch with his Congressman and protest to the utmost against any further burden of taxation upon the sorely tried tobacco interests.

Before hasty legislation is put through, Congress would do well to inquire into the condition of the small and medium sized manufacturers of cigars throughout the United States with their few thousands invested in a business which barely yields a livelihood under the present conditions.

* * *

The tobacco trade generally shows indications of good fall business, and while the war has affected the industry to some extent, the damage as yet is not to be considered serious.

War and the Tobacco Trade

However, what the next few weeks may bring forth is a matter of conjecture and should other nations become involved in the gigantic struggle, leaf men and manufacturers will no doubt meet with serious difficulties.

For the present the sympathy of the trade is with the growers and exporters whose goods have usually gone to foreign manufacturers and foreign regies. The outbreak of the war saw the buyers withdrawn from the field and the exporters were in receipt of many cancellations. The Government has been appealed to, and no doubt a method for financing these men will be immediately forthcoming.

The proposed war tax on cigars has already precipitated a storm of criticism that is growing every hour. Manufacturers in every section of the United States are expressing themselves as protesting against further taxation of the industry that is already heavily burdened. Since the Spanish-American war the quality of cigars has been much improved, the cost of labor has increased and the cost of tobaccos is much higher, so that in considering such a tax it is entirely erroneous to believe that the two situations, as regards the tobacco trade, are analogous. Many small manufacturers who paid the war tax in 1898 could not pay it now and survive.

The Sumatra situation is not so alarming as the importers are well able to supply any present demands; the manufacturers who buy direct from Holland are also beyond embarrassment at present; Holland is not engaged in the war and therefore there is no need for present alarm. However, it is wise to consider that while Holland is neutral at present it is not indefinitely assured, and that in event of that country becoming involved the Island of Sumatra would be a rich prize for the enemy. In such an event an entirely different complexion would be put on the situation.

Fortunately our cigars and cigarettes for export amount to very little, so that we have nothing to fear from that quarter. Consideration, however, should be given to the fact that the finest Turkish tobacco fields now belong to Greece and Bulgaria and that should they become engaged, which is entirely possible, the fine fields of Cavalla and Xanthi may again be devastated and change owners. In this event the manufacturers of Turkish cigarettes in this country would, later on, be hard put for leaf.

Italy, a consumer of our leaf, is another country that shows a tendency to participate in the war.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

In these days of premiums, it is a very difficult matter to hit on something new, but an enterprising cigar dealer of whom we know recently put into execution a plan for increasing his sales, which should be successful if worked along the proper lines.

Selling Cigars With a Dinner Set

In addition to the coupons given regularly with the goods purchased, he notified his customers that a 100-piece dinner set would be given to the patron showing the greatest number of coupons within a specified period. Display cards and attractive notices so placed that they met the gaze of the gentler sex passing by, were of much assistance, inasmuch as feminine longings and feminine desires simply demanded that the dinner set become the property of that particular wife, sweetheart or chum. Therefore, in enlisting the aid of the women, the dealer was possessed of wisdom.

Interest was added to the contest by the fact that bulletins were posted from time to time showing the progress of those contestants possessing a large number of the coupons.

* * *

One far-seeing tobacco dealer who has proved the efficacy of premium giving, has already prepared plans for his fall and winter campaign, and will offer a new style claw hammer, which holds the nail or tack in a specially arranged set of claws, which do not require that the article to be driven be held by the fingers. This eliminates any possibility of bruising, and will appeal directly to women whose thoughts will shortly be turned toward the housecleaning problem.

Hammering for Trade

A cut of the hammer, demonstrating its superiority over the usual kind, is enclosed in each letter which will be mailed to every customer whose name appears on the mailing list of this cigar and tobacco dealer, and the delivery will be timed so that the housewife will receive it soon after her return from the annual outing.

* * *

It was the privilege of the writer to spend several days along the resorts that line the Atlantic Coast, and one feature that caught his attention aside from the one-piece bathing suit and the tunic effect, was the large number of middle aged and elderly men who proudly exhibited a camera.

Cameras for Sales Checks

That these staid and established business men were securing considerable amusement and a healthy coat of tan was evidenced by the abandon with which they traversed the beach without head covering of any kind, and the frequency with which their party would be posed in some artistic group.

Having had some experience as an amateur photographer, I was pressed into service for a picture that resembled the "Grand Ensemble" from a musical comedy, and this enabled me to learn that there were no less than six men, all beyond the half century mark, from the same city in Western Pennsylvania, who were sporting their cameras at the expense of their cigar dealer, he having offered them as premiums for the return of a given number of sales checks given when purchasing cigars and tobacco from his store.

My informant further added that since the possession of the camera he had spent a greater number of hours out of doors than for the past twenty years, and the improvement in health, renewed vitality and a general upbuilding has been the result, and there was no section in and about the resort worthy of attention that he could not produce from the film.

Surely, six enthusiasts such as these men proved to be, were a valuable asset to some cigar and tobacco dealer, and I will wager that there was not another dealer in the same city that would not start a campaign of premium publicity, if they could have heard the words of commendation heaped upon this live wire.

* * *

In planning a premium campaign, it is well to keep the feminine members of the smoker's family in mind, for these, say the genii of facts and figures, comprise the greater portion of those who redeem the coupons and carry away the coveted articles.

Milk Bottle Tops for Coupons

At the beginning of the warm weather in June, one tobacconist whose place of business was located in a section where smaller children were plentiful, conceived the idea of offering a metal cover for milk bottles for the return of a small amount of cash register sales slips, representing cigars and tobacco purchased from him.

These covers were easily transferred from one bottle to another, and would close much like the old-fashioned molasses cup, that we, who were raised in the country, associated with cold winter mornings and large plates of buckwheat cakes.

The publicity gained by this dealer resulted in the best season of his career for the vacation period.

* * *

The advent of a folding coat hanger, that could be carried in the vest pocket, was the means that materially assisted one dealer in cigars and tobacco in disposing of a larger number of cigars by the box than ever before.

Coat Hangers Move Cigars

These cigars were of his regular stock, and packed in 25's and 50's, and with each sale of fifty cigars the folding hanger was presented free.

This useful and novel idea, coming at a time when the suitcase or trunk must contain the wardrobe for the person or family for the vacation period, made an instantaneous hit, to the benefit of the tobacco merchant.

* * *

A cigar and tobacco company of Salem, Mass., solved the problem of securing ready sales and quick distribution for a new line of little cigars, by offering a silver holder with each package of these short smokes.

A Holder With Little Cigars

As this concern was in a locality where there still remained some prejudice against the paper cigarette, the all-tobacco little cigars solved the question to a nicety, and with the added inducement of an attractive holder, a splendid trade has been established.

Securing Retail Cigar Trade by Mail

AT least once or twice a year every progressive cigar retailer has something which he wants to send out to prospective as well as his present customers. Every business man realizes that there is a lot of good business to be worked up through the mail and that he can reach people that way that he could not otherwise. The fact that it is one of the most effective ways of getting business is not denied; yet the expense of direct advertising of this kind is often greatly increased and its usefulness minimized because of the lack of care in making up the list in the first place and keeping it up to date in the second place.

One of the things to remember about a proposition of this kind is that the best people to send advertising to are those personally known. While it is all right to take the telephone book or some lodge list, or a club membership list in order to get volume, it is much better to build up a list by adding constantly the names of people who are dealing with your store, or who are known to the employees of the store. This establishes a personal relationship which gives the communication life and supplies the buying impulse which is often lacking otherwise.

This is realized by many of the big stores in the large cities. One such has its various clerks turn in the names of friends and acquaintances, and the letters which go out to them are signed in the name of the employee who has turned in the name. The letters which are handled in this way are said to "pull" much harder than those which are on the ordinary mailing list, and which are consequently without any unusual appeal.

One of the opportunities to build up the list that is often overlooked, is in not getting the names of all cash customers who come in. Because the purchaser pays for the goods at the time he buys them, is no reason why his identity should be lost. On the other hand, that indicates that he might be the most desirable. Hence it is good business to take the name of every customer, no matter whether his name would find its way to the records or not, and to add it to the list of those regularly receiving the direct advertising matter of the concern.

In watching the mailing list, attention should be given the fact that a few hundred good names is better and more productive than a thousand indifferent ones. That many merchants fail to correct or revise their lists is shown by the fact that often the names of undesirable customers, who are not regarded as worth credit, are allowed to remain on the lists. Think of the folly of spending money for printed matter, envelope and stamp to solicit the business of the man who wouldn't be welcomed to the store even if he came. And yet a blunder of this kind is not so unusual as one might think at first blush.

Addresses should be corrected in order to facilitate prompt delivery, if for no other reason; while those who move away, die, or for any other reason are no longer good prospects, should be eliminated from the list. By constantly cutting away at the list, and restricting it to those who are known to be worth while, desirable customers, the cigar dealer can kill two birds with one stone. His list will cost less to circulate, and it will be much more productive.

In connection with mailing lists, attention should be called to the fact that much use is made of retailers' lists by manufacturers, especially those who advertise their brands to the consumer. Some merchants hesitate to supply the names of their customers or prospective customers to manufacturers whose goods they handle, on the ground that the list might fall into the hands of competitors, or to be used for the purpose of making direct sales. Ordinarily, however, this co-operation is of the greatest possible benefit to the retailer, since it means simply that the manufacturer is spending money for the purpose of attracting trade to the store of the retailer. While there may be houses which would make use of a list furnished by a merchant in an illegitimate way, it would be a rare exception. And direct advertising is so effective a means of moving the goods in the stock of a merchant that every opportunity to secure the manufacturer along this line should be welcomed.

A mailing list, properly compiled, aggressively used and carefully corrected, is a big asset for any store; but carelessly handled or neglected, it is a hindrance rather than a help.

May Tax Soft Drinks

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 31.

In preparing the emergency internal revenue bill to offset Treasury losses due to curtailment of imports, members of the Ways and Means Committee are said to be contemplating extending the stamp tax to cover soft drinks, as it is urged that they are as much of a luxury as wines or beer.

Another suggestion is a stamp tax of 5 or 10 per cent. on railroad tickets and admission to theatres, baseball parks and other licensed amusements. It is estimated that from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000 could be raised in this way.

The committee has not determined upon a complete taxation plan as yet, but purposes to hasten its deliberations so a bill may be introduced soon after President Wilson addresses Congress on the subject, which probably will be immediately upon his return from New Hampshire. Administration leaders are impressed with the necessity of quick action in order to disturb business conditions as little as possible.

Among the committee Democrats there has been some opposition to any war tax at all at this session.

American Tobacco Company's Offer

Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, has sent the following notice to the company's customers in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas:

"We have become aware of the embarrassment brought on the cotton growing section by the European war, and the resulting inability to market cotton crops. We earnestly hope and believe that this embarrassment is temporary. We are anxious, though, to contribute so far as we can to the relief of it. On that account we will permit our customers in the states above mentioned to discount their bills, on account of purchases made hereafter, within ten days after October 15, 1914. This applies to all purchases of all our lines, and whether crop shipments or stock shipments."

Mr. Henry Steiner, of Wm. Steiner, Sons & Company, has been spending a fortnight's vacation up in the Adirondacks, a guest of the Leland House, on Schroon Lake. He is expected home in a few days.

"Savarona" Handlers Place Big Orders

S. MICHAEL, who covers New York State territory for the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, makers of "Savaronas," has just completed a flying trip over the upper part of the state and came back with a bag full of orders amounting to over three hundred thousand cigars in the total. Mr. Michael says that he found only one dealer in his territory who seemed the least bit perturbed about business conditions, but that all the others felt convinced that they would do a big fall and holiday business and placed their orders accordingly.

The Cayey-Caguas Company have eclipsed last year's record up to the present time and Vice-president Johnson, who takes care of the Porto Rican end of the business, has planned to largely increase their output in the near future.

The company are now nicely settled in their new quarters at the southwestern corner of Water Street and Maiden Lane, New York, and visiting trade will find a cordial welcome at all times.

President Hoisington has been taking a brief vacation in the country during the past fortnight, but has not had time to make his usual visit to his summer home on the little island which he owns up in Maine.

R. A. Bachia & Company Not Complaining

A call at the clear Havana factory of R. A. Bachia & Company, 47 West Sixteenth Street, New York, discloses that this firm is doing its fine normal business notwithstanding complaints from any other quarters.

The "La Flor de R. A. Bachia y Ca." brand is one of the most popular high-grade smokes made in New York City, and is made of clear Havana tobacco through and through with a record for uniformity which is most enviable. These goods, with their exclusive green and gold bands, are found in the most select smoke shops and clubs throughout the United States.

Mr. R. A. Bachia, head of the house, has a beautiful home down at Bay Shore, Long Island, and takes a day off every now and then just to while away some time getting acquainted with his home surroundings.

Merriam's Business Holds Good

John W. Merriam & Company have experienced an excellent business during the month of August on all their brands, and report that the business is quite up to the mark of last year if not a bit beyond.

The firm have had a rousing reception on their popular-priced smokers "Red the Ruff," which are of recent introduction. A big Broadway display last week brought good results.

A New Pipe Concern

Incorporation papers have been recently filed at Albany, N. Y., for the Ricardo Pipe Company, of Manhattan, with headquarters at 1571 Park Avenue. E. R. Burke and Christopher O'Brien are interested, with C. M. Norden, the attorney.

Moritz Neuberger in Nurnberg

THE many friends of Moritz Neuberger, head of the firm of Heinrich Neuberger and the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, were much relieved to hear that he had cabled his office last week via Antwerp that, together with his family, he was safely located in Nurnberg.

Mr. Neuberger was formerly an officer in the Imperial German Army, but he resigned his commission several years ago when he came to the United States, and although hé is still a German subject, there is little likelihood of his being called to the colors.

Krinsky's New "Cosmos" Cigarettes

I. B. Krinsky Estate have just brought out a new high-grade brand of Turkish cigarettes which has caught on in fine shape with their trade. The new brand is named "Cosmos" and the packages are very attractively gotten up in red and gold.

"Cosmos" are packed ten for fifteen cents, and the firm guarantee that they are manufactured from the finest selections of pure Turkish tobacco which money can buy.

Their business on their long established "Fifth Avenue" brand is increasing heavily each month, and these goods have a firmly established reputation in all sections of the country.

Dealers who wish to put on a new brand of good sellers should write I. B. Krinsky Estate, 207 North Fourth Street, Brooklyn, for samples and prices.

Bogus Coupon Plan Nipped

Thomas W. Lawson is credited with the remark that "it's the hardest thing in the world to find an honest partner in a crooked deal," and that is just what the three crooks, Joseph Felix, Samuel Druce and Max Rein must have thought last week when they called at the office of George Brunswick, and after receiving from him, and paying for them, four plates made to imitate United Cigar Store coupons, were pounced on by detectives and led off to the Tombs.

Previous to this, the trio had approached Mr. Brunswick, who is a highly respected photo-engraver at 187 Broadway, and laid their scheme out with him, asking him to make the plates. He agreed without a murmur, and notified the police just as quickly. He was instructed by the authorities to go on with the work and when the plates were delivered the arrests followed.

When the men were arraigned before Magistrate Nolan, Vice-president Baeder, of the United Cigar Stores Company, informed the court that the arrest of the men had saved his company from a probable loss of $100,000, as it would have been necessary, had the bogus coupons been floated, for them to entirely withdraw the series of coupons imitated from circulation.

OBITVARY

Andrew Wilson

ONE of the most prominent men engaged in the wholesale tobacco business throughout the Dominion of Canada died Thursday, August 13th, in Toronto, Ont., in the person of Andrew Wilson who lived for forty years in that city. Mr. Wilson died at his home, 5 Beaumont Road, Toronto, following an illness of four months. At the time of his death he was president of the firm of Andrew Wilson & Company, Ltd., wholesale tobacconists, which concern he founded fifteen years ago. Previous to organizing this company the late Mr. Wilson was a partner in the firm of Scales & Wilson, also wholesale tobacconists. Deceased was one of the most popular business men in Toronto. He was born in Scotland fifty-nine years ago and came to Canada in 1873, residing for some time in Hamilton, Ont., before settling in Toronto. He is survived by his son, Ross Wilson, and one brother, Alexander R. Wilson, who is secretary of Andrew Wilson & Company tobacco house.

Louis A. Mutschler

Louis A. Mutschler, aged fifty-three, who for the past twenty years was an expert leaf tobacco buyer for John Brand & Company, died Friday night, August 14th, at his home, 427 East Water Street, Elmira, N. Y., following an illness of five years. Deceased was a member of many organizations, among them Union Lodge No. 95, F. & A. M., and Cashmere Grotto No. 11, M. O. V. P. E. R. He leaves his wife, one son, Robert L. Mutschler, of White Plains, N. Y.; two brothers and three sisters.

Edward Schnedler

Edward Schnedler, aged fifty-five, who until two years ago was engaged in tobacco business in Batavia, LaSalle and Lockport, N. Y., died Thursday night, August 13th, in his recent home in LaSalle, Ill., and his body was shipped to Batavia for interment. During his earlier life the late Mr. Schnedler conducted a cigar and tobacco store in Batavia, afterward removing to LaSalle and thence to Lockport, from which city he left two years ago for LaSalle. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schnedler, of Batavia.

Charles J. Kiesling

Charles J. Kiesling, fifty-eight years old, for many years a manufacturer of cigars and member of many branches of Masonry, died late on Thursday at his home, 2063 East York Street. His home adjoins the cigar plant which he headed.

Mr. Kiesling was a member of the Philadelphia Rifle Club. In German societies he was very active, being affiliated with the Cannstatter Volksfest Verein, Columbia Gesang Verein and many others. He was affiliated with the William C. Hamilton Lodge, No. 500, F. and A. M.

Martin A. Phelan

Martin A. Phelan, one of the oldest residents of Worcester, Mass., and a widely known tobacconist, died recently from heart disease.

William H. Thomas

William H. Thomas, formerly of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, and a well-known importer of cigars, died recently at the home of his brother in Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Thomas was associated with the firm of W. H. Thomas & Brother for many years importers of clear Havana cigars. The deceased was a son of Commodore William H. Thomas, of the New York Yacht Club, and was also a member himself. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Brooklyn Club.

Henry S. Dibert

Henry S. Dibert, a prominent cigar manufacturer of Reading, died August 31st, at the summer residence of his brother, at Lake Hopatcong, N. J. Heart disease was the cause of death. Mr. Dibert was sixty-three years of age. He went to Reading when a young man and started in the cigar business with his brother. It became one of the largest in the city, but the brothers recently sold out.

James E. Nichols' Remains Not Lost

Despite published rumors to the contrary, an official of Austin, Nichols & Company states that the body of James E. Nichols, who died in July in Marienbad, Austria, is not lost, but is in Hamburg in care of the Hamburg-American Line.

Lewis E. Pierson, president of Austin, Nichols & Company, Inc., has received the following cablegram from the American Express Company's office at Copenhagen:

"Vollrath wires can obtain Nichols' remains on company's guarantee. Wire instructions. Replying your telegram nineteenth, Vollrath positively states casket and documents with Hamburg-American Line, casket at our disposal upon receiving guarantee. Have wired Mrs. Nichols."

Mrs. Nichols is in London and plans to sail for this country by the American Line on August 26th.

Trade Jottings

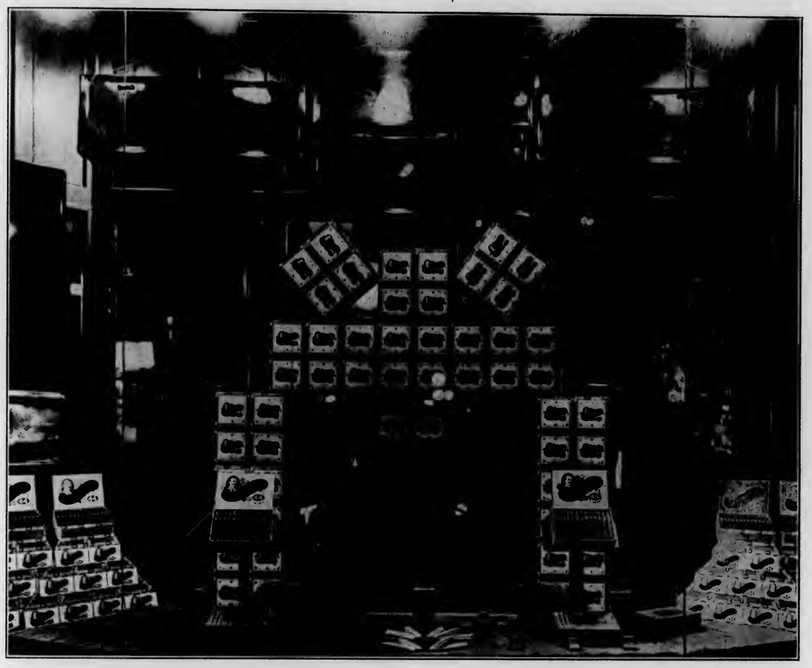
Among the recent visitors to Tacoma, Wash., was F. R. Baker, of T. J. Dunn & Company, who spent his time while there in featuring the popular "New Bachelor" cigars of his company.

Walter Greenebaum was recently seen in Cincinnati. It has since developed that Mr. Greenebaum was looking after the interests of the "Muriel" cigar, of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company.

The Foley-Wolfe-Kinney Company, Rochester, N. Y., who only a short time ago took on the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, manufactured by Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, recently featured some attractive window displays on the brand.

"La Mega," manufactured by V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, Tampa, Fla., was recently placed in ten sizes with the P. C. Knowlton Company, Memphis, Tenn., by W. B. Moore, the company's representative.

Under the direction of a captain, missionary men recently invaded Greater New York, for the purpose of making better known and increasing the sales of the well known brands of H. Traiser & Company, Boston, Mass. All orders were placed through S. Monday & Sons, Brooklyn jobbers and distributors in that section for the "Pippin" and other brands manufactured by the Traiser Company.



The illustration of the accompanying display of "44" cigars recently appeared in a window of the Smoke House, Fort Smith, Ark. It was arranged by the Halliburton Cigar Company, "44" distributors at Fort Smith. It is to be regretted that the photograph does not do justice to display. It was one of the finest window arrangements that has been seen in Fort Smith in a long time, and it created much comment and considerable trade.

Steiner German Process Bands

Since the outbreak of the great European war, many cigar manufacturers who have hitherto used German imported labels on their cigars have been confronted with the question of future supplies, and their attention has naturally been directed toward the superior quality of cigar labels which are made right at home in the United States.

Wm. Steiner, Sons & Company, the big lithographic house whose enormous plant is located at 257-265 West Seventeenth Street, New York, tell us that they have had a largely increased number of requests for samples as a result of the conflict, and that in a number of cases orders have quickly followed. The House of Steiner were pioneers in America in the manufacture of cigar labels after the German methods, and the results they have been obtaining for some years past have been of a high grade character, so much so that many manufacturers of the most expensive brands have not hesitated to use Steiner labels on their goods instead of buying the more expensive imported bands. As a matter of fact, it would take an expert to distinguish between the German process bands made in America and the imported articles, so that the shut off of German goods should prove a blessing in disguise, to both the cigarmaker and our home industry of lithographing.

Steiner, Sons & Company will gladly submit samples of their bands and prices to any manufacturers interested, and they make a hobby of keeping their word on deliveries, so that manufacturers who will need goods in the near future should make it a point to get in touch with them.

Will of Benno Neuberger Filed

In the recently filed will of the late Benno Neuberger, senior member of the firm of E. Rosenwald & Brother, the well-known New York leaf tobacco dealers, the estate is valued at $1,000,000, $150,000 of which goes to the widow, Mrs. Stella Neuberger, together with all paintings, art objects, automobiles and personal effects. The daughter, Miss Florence Neuberger, is the recipient of an income from a trust fund of $175,000, with the power to distribute the principal at her death. An additional $25,000 is to be given Miss Neuberger upon her attainment of the age of twenty-three. The income from $100,000 is devised to Harry Neuberger, Mr. Neuberger's son, with the granting of $25,000 outright upon his reaching the age of twenty-five years. Mr. Neuberger is to receive a further $50,000 at a later date, this being left to the discretion of the directors of the estate. The principal and residue of the estate revert to the son and daughter upon the mother's death. A number of bequests were left to charitable institutions in addition to $7000 left to various relatives.

Canamla Cigar Company Embarrassed

Attorney David H. Lehman, of 257 Broadway, is the assignee of the Canamla Cigar Company, which failed a few days ago. The concern has been in business for about eighteen months, with a factory at 154 East 109th Street, Manhattan, and had an authorized capital of $5000. Jacob Persky was the president and Jacob Pick treasurer of the company.

Fall Orders Give Factories Busy Aspect—Influx of High-Grade Workmen From Cuba—Inspectors in Bonded Factories to Work Twelve Hours—Closing of Havana Factories May Boost Orders for Finer Sizes

KEY WEST, FLA., August 25, 1914.

TRADE at the factories has started to improve and a fall aspect has already been assumed at many of the shops. Orders by mail and cablegram for immediate and early delivery in the fall have commenced to come in and they are mostly for the high-grade styles so popular during the autumn and winter seasons.

There will be no lack of high-grade (Regalia) workmen during the busy seasons this year as formerly, as many of this class of cigarmakers who were employed in the factories in Havana, which have closed down, will come this way, in fact, have already arrived.

Some time ago in my news letter I stated the hours of the inspectors at the bonded factories would be twelve hours instead of eight. While some of the correspondents in other sections seemed to differ, holding that the latter would be strictly adhered to, I am now informed that on September 1st, the Customs Service will do away with the relief man, thus making the hours of the storekeeper twelve, verifying my previous opinion.

By this action of the Department, a saving of $600 per annum will be effected, which will go a great way in defraying the cost of the bonded stamp, for which the manufacturer is taxed at the rate of $10 per thousand—stamps, not cigars.

Other changes in the Government Service scheduled for the 1st, and directly connected with the cigar industry, are as follows: R. E. Edwards, now storekeeper at the Bonded Warehouse, will be superseded by Robert L. Givens, now inspector at the factory of the Mi Favorita Cigar Company. W. C. Bernard, storekeeper at the M. Perez Company shop, will take charge of the Mi Favorita factory. W. H. Young, inspector at the Havana-American Company's shop, will leave for Tampa, Fla., his place being taken by Earl Weatherford, lately doing duty at the Customs House at Jacksonville. R. E. Edwards will take up his duties as chief of inspectors.

Jose M. Lozano, of F. Lozano, Sons & Company, makers of the famous "F. Lozano" brand, was a through passenger last week from Cuba to Tampa, where the company's factory is located.

Fred Davis, of Sam I. Davis & Company, of Tampa, passed through town recently, being en route from Cuba to Tampa. It is said that during his sojourn in the Cuban capital he made liberal purchases of wrapper and filler stock.

Trade is fast taking on a fall aspect at the factory of the Cortez Cigar Company, and no high-grade workman who applies is refused a job. Vice-president Vivian M. Myers left last week for Cuba, where he will put in a few days looking over the leaf market. Factory superintendent Claude H. Roberts, who has been spending his vacation in Georgia and other parts of the South, is back again at his post of duty.

Mortimer Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons, passed through town last week, being en route to Cuba.

Francisco Fleitas, of S. & F. Fleitas, was an outgoing passenger on the Mallory Liner "Concha," bound to New York. Mr. Fleitas carried with him an excellent line of samples of the "Homerica" brand, and before his return will call on the trade in all the important cities of the North and East.

Maurice Winter, secretary of the M. Perez Company, who has been spending a few days in the city at the company's "Pinzon" factory, left for Cuba on Monday, where he will put in some time attending to his packings, after which he will leave for New York per Ward Line.

Manuel Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company, was in town last week shaking hands with his friends; he was en route to Tampa.

Mrs. Laurentia Torano, wife of Jose Torano, junior member of the cigarmaking firm of Jose A. Torano & Company, passed away here on August 20th. The sympathy of the writer is extended to the family in their hour of bereavement.

President A. W. Arnold, of the Mi Favorita Cigar Company, is back from a short leaf purchasing trip to the Havana leaf markets.

Messrs. Eduardo H. Gato, senior and junior, who have been spending their summer vacation at the popular resorts of the North, are expected to reach town within the next few days. The former will leave immediately for Cuba, while the latter will relieve Thomas H. Gato as factory manager. The firm has a healthy field demand from S. Bachman & Company, who handle the "Gato 1871" yellow label on the Pacific Coast. Thomas H. Gato has moved into the handsome residence of James H. Fort, on Division Street, recently of the staff of the Cortez Cigar Company. The residence of Frank H. Gato in Havana was recently robbed of about $2000 worth of jewelry.

The only effect the European war has had so far on Key West has been the jump in prices on certain necessities of life. It was thought that the war would affect the cigar industry in the way of German lithographic goods, such as labels, bands, etc., but fortunately very few of our factories use the imported article, preferring the American to the foreign. The closing down of the Havana factories will certainly turn some orders this way for the finer sizes and shapes. While the prices in the leaf markets of Havana have not as yet taken much of a drop, they certainly will sooner or later, thus benefiting the clear Havana cigar industry of this country in the way of lower figures on stock. When the Cuban leaf market does take a slump, those of the trade who have any idle cash will do well by purchasing all the good tobaccos which may come their way.

"Hi Vulto" Hit the High Spots Around Scranton

The first figure on the left with the box of cigars is R. T. Beltz, the second S. H. Talley, and the fourth figure is that of Lester Hines, senior member of the firm of H. & M.

During this campaign "Hi Vulto" cigars were featured not only in the main store of the H. & M. Company, but in their eleven other retail stores in and about Scranton. S. H. Talley, representative of H. & M., assisted Mr. Beltz in placing this brand in Scranton and its environs. Reports from H. & M. indicate that "Hi Vulto" cigars are just the things, as they are duplicating nicely.

Contract Awarded for New Building for Perfecto Garcia & Brothers—Quiros, Villazon & Company Incorporate —Castillo Doing Well for Liborio Company

TAMPA, August 27th.

IN these troubled times, when war seems to be the general topic of conversation, it is encouraging to learn that all progress and development has not ceased, for awhile at least. To this end, Messrs. Perfecto Garcia & Brothers, manufacturers of the well-known "La Amita" and "Perla del Mar," announce to the trade that they have just recently awarded the contract for the building of a new factory to cost in the vicinity of $25,000. The new building, which will be located on Sixteenth Street, North of Michigan Avenue, is to consist of three stories and basement, and will be supplied with all modern appliances going to make up the up-to-date cigar factory. Messrs. Perfecto Garcia & Brothers state that the new building is a necessity, inasmuch as they have outgrown their present quarters in the old Sanchez y Haya factory in Seventh Avenue. December 22nd is the date set in the contract for the completion of the building.

Quiros, Villazon & Company have applied for letters patent for the purpose of incorporating their company, the capital stock being named at $100,000. In the articles of incorporation it is set forth that the company reserves the right to manufacture cigars, cigarettes, cheroots and other products of tobacco, in addition to manufacturing all kinds and manner of articles which may be made from tobacco. Right is also reserved by the company to act as brokers, agents or factors in the same, and also to own and conduct farms and other lands for the planting and growing of tobacco, and to build necessary factories and install the proper machinery for the production of the articles set forth. Until the first annual election of the new company is held, the officers are named as follows: Jose Villazon, president and treasurer; F. A. Rian, first vice-president; Francisco F. Bosto, second vice-president, and R. M. Cabbarrouy, secretary. The stock of the new corporation is apportioned off into 1000 shares of $100 each, $43,500 having been already subscribed. Shares of stock in the company to the value of $56,500 are to be sold at such times and to such persons as the directors may designate, and the same shall be payable in cash. The annual meetings of the company are to be held on the first Tuesday in January of each year. The directorate of the organization shall embrace not less than three nor more than seven stockholders.

In company with Adolf Wolf, of Atlanta, the Southern representative of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Karl Cuesta, of the same house, has returned to the factory from a trip through the South and Southwest, and reports that not only did they find business good, but were successful in landing a splendid bunch of orders. No less than thirteen states were visited by Mr. Cuesta and Mr. Wolf on their trip.

Encouraging news is being received at the factory of the Liborio Cigar Company from Charles J. Castillo, who is now working in the South in the interests of the company. Mr. Castillo's present territory will be followed by a trip to the Middle West and to the East.

Public notice having been served on the striking employees of Sanchez y Haya recently, that inasmuch as there had been no trouble relative to prices, sanitary conditions or other reasons connected with the management, the company would welcome back those employees who cared to return, everything has been satisfactorily adjusted and manufacture is being pursued in its usual orderly manner.

Harry Culbreath left here recently for St. Louis, Mo., in the interests of his company, V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, and plans to be gone a couple of months.

Matthew Berriman, of the well-known firm of Berriman Brothers, left here last Sunday for Cuba, for a business trip to the island.

A recent visitor to Havana was Joseph Diaz, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, the manufacturers of the noted "Henry the Fourth." Mr. Diaz planned the purchase of tobacco for the coming year.

Jorge Leon, president of the San Martin & Leon Company, is back again at the factory, having just recently arrived from a two months' sojourn in Cuba. Mr. Leon states that this year's crop is bound to give much satisfaction and will, undoubtedly, assist his company in making better cigars than ever.

This war has been particularly detrimental to the tobacco industry, and no little satisfaction is expressed among members of the trade that some of the senators and representatives are themselves opposed to making the tobacco trade the "goat."

There will be no let-up in the struggle to prevent this additional tax being placed on tobacco until the trade is assured that under the present conditions this industry will not be levied upon.

Bobrow Brothers have been among the active Philadelphia manufacturers who are protesting earnestly against any increase. The following letter has been mailed to members of the Ways and Means Committee and to the Pennsylvania members of the House and Senate. The letter to Representative Underwood follows:

PHILADELPHIA, August 22, 1914.

Hon. Oscar W. Underwood, M. C.,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Honorable Sir,—Since learning of the proposed increase in revenue on cigars, we have studied carefully and thoroughly this subject, and the more we study and the deeper we go into the subject, the more we realize what an unjust hardship this would mean to us and probably to every other manufacturer of cigars.

The profit on our product today would not stand for an increase in revenue tax. We have thought of how we might possibly overcome such an increase, and every thought that comes to our mind makes it appear harder and harder. We could not reduce the salaries of our working people without a great injury to them and to ourselves, for they would not tolerate it for one moment. We could not reduce the quality of our merchandize and maintain the prestige and reputation we have worked so hard for. We could not raise the price to the dealer, for he could not raise the price to the consumer, for a nickel cigar is a nickel cigar, and you could not raise the price on such a staple well known product. The dealer could not stand for a raise in price and he would not and could not stand for a raise on our part. So where is this increase in revenue to come from?

It is of great concern with us, and we are of the earnest and fervent hope that justice will be done by us and no further tax imposed. We are already heavily taxed when you stop to take into consideration that on every thousand cigars, we pay the United States Government three (3) dollars in internal revenue tax and three (3) dollars and seventy (70) cents on import duty, making a total of six (6) dollars and seventy (70) cents, and the highest price we can possibly get for them is thirty-five (35) dollars.

We can speak for most of the manufacturers when we say that they have built up the quality of their merchandize upon the assumption that a further increase in tax was next door to impossible, and that the only cause for such an increase would be, when this country would become actually involved in warfare, and now, when even warfare is remote, it is a consideration before you of raising the revenue tax on cigars.

The afore-mentioned facts are absolutely true and from them you must realize the injustice and the hardships we, as cigar manufacturers, are forced to countenance, and we therefore herewith file with you our protest against any increase whatsoever upon cigars and tobacco, and we earnestly hope, as afore-mentioned, that we will receive justice and consideration from you.

Very respectfully yours,

BOBROW BROS.

Newmann & Gach, the well known high-grade leaf merchants of Chicago, Ill., have had petitions printed at their own expense and mailed four to all members of the tobacco trade with whom they are acquainted. The four petitions have ample space for signatures and are addressed to the President, the two Senators and the one Congressman from the district where the petition is filled out. This form, which is appended herewith, gives the retailer, jobber and manufacturer excellent opportunity to secure the co-operation of their customers in expressing their disapproval of the anticipated increase in taxation on tobacco products. The petition reads as follows:

To His Excellency, the President of the United States.

We, the citizens of ..... town, ... county, ...state, do hereby petition and protest against the proposed raise in revenue tax on cigars because we think there should be no hasty action by Congress, looking to extraordinary taxation as it is quite likely that such an embargo as now exists upon general commerce will not be of long duration.

We see no reason why all of the proposed increased taxation should be borne practically by the manufacturers of cigars. The cigar manufacturing industry is already heavily taxed, and we are of the opinion that a revenue to make up a national deficit should be obtained from various sources so that the entire burden should not be placed upon cigar manufacturers.

The proposed increase of 60 cents a thousand is unjust and unreasonable because that represents a large part of the profit per thousand cigars on five cent goods. While it is true that a war tax of 60 cents was imposed in 1898 during the Spanish-American war (but then this country was actually in a state of war) a revenue had to be raised quickly, so that the cigar industry submitted to it without protest from feelings of loyalty and patriotism.

Today we are not in a state of war and other industries as stated heretofore should bear their just proportion of the burden of government expenses.

The cost of raw material going into the cigar today is twenty per cent. higher than it was in 1898. The cost for manufacture for other than raw material has also increased twenty per cent. so that the imposition of an additional tax upon cigars will wipe out whatever profit is left. The tax will not be equitably spread over all the people and not even among the smokers. It is impossible for the manufacturer to pass it up to the jobber or the retailer by reason of the fact that arbitrary prices are established for selling cigars and custom precludes changing them.

The following letter was sent under date of August 15th by the Detroit Cigar Manufacturers' Club to Hon. Frank E. Doremus, Congressman from the First District of Michigan:

"We are informed that a conference is being held in Washington for the purpose of devising means of revenue to offset the shortage in import duties caused by the present unfortunate war in Europe, and it is proposed that cigars are liable to be subject to an increased revenue tax.

"You are already aware that the cigar industry in this district is an important factor, producing about three hundred million cigars annually, and employing about six thousand cigarmakers in Detroit alone. We fully realize the necessity at this time of a sufficient amount of revenue to meet the current expense of the government, but we feel that there are good reasons why our industry should not bear any further burden in the way of taxation than it is now carrying.

"We make the statement flatly and positively that of the twenty thousand cigar manufacturers in the United States, that no more than two thousand are doing a profitable business, and that the remaining eighteen thousand are simply struggling along on a hand-to-mouth basis; and we must state further that of the very large number of jobbers and retailers of cigars in this country not more than twenty per cent. are really enjoying a profitable business, and that the remaining eighty per cent. are simply struggling along and hoping for better things in the future.

"All types of leaf tobacco used in the manufacture of cigars have gradually increased in value for the past fifteen years, which, together with the increase in wages as compared with fifteen years ago, has reduced the manufacturers' profit to such an extent that the situation is decidedly an acute one.

"Binders that sold fifteen years ago for 16 cents per pound now cost 25 cents per pound; fillers that cost 15 cents fifteen years ago are now costing 20 cents per pound; wrappers have also advanced from 25 to 50 cents per pound; cigars that cost us for labor ten years ago $5.25 per thousand to make now cost us about $6 to $6.25 per thousand.

"Still all of this burden falls on the manufacturer for the reasons that at least ninety-five per cent. of those cigars sold in this country are sold at a fixed selling price of 5 and 10 cents, and experience has proven that it is utterly impossible to raise these prices to the consumer; consequently, although for the past fifteen years the price of labor and material has decidedly increased, as pointed out, still the consumer pays the same price for his cigars that he did fifteen years ago, with the result that the industry has finally reached the point where profits are very unsatisfactory both for manufacturers, jobbers and retailers.

"It is true that those few manufacturers, jobbers and retailers who do a very large volume of business can still make a profit, but the great big majority, the rank and file, are up against it as they never have been before in the entire history of the business.

"All of the best selling five-cent cigars in this country are wrapped with an imported Sumatra wrapper on which there is an import duty of $1.85 per pound. It requires from one and three-quarter pounds (1¾ lbs.) to two pounds (2 lbs.) of this wrapper to wrap one thousand cigars, entailing a cost for import tax of from $3.25 to $3.70 per thousand. This in addition to the internal revenue tax of $3 per thousand, amounts to over $6.25 on every one thousand cigars, or about twenty per cent. of the manufacturers' selling price of five cent cigars.

"We firmly contend that when twenty per cent. of the selling price of an article is made up of taxes paid to the government that it certainly is time to stop, especially so in view of the peculiar condition of the cigar business which makes it impossible to raise the price to the consumer. The fact is that the cigar industry is being squeezed as in a wedge, on the one side by the immovable prices at which the product goes to the consumer, and on the other side by the steadily increasing price of labor and material; until at last it has reached a point where it can stand no more without the grossest injustice, and we believe that our government should be the last to make matters still worse.

"In view of these conditions, we feel that the cigar industry is already contributing its share without any further increase, and believe it is only equitable that means should be devised to spread this extra proposed tax on some of the other commodities not already so heavily taxed.

"It may occur to some that the effect of an increase in the internal revenue tax on cigars could be easily overcome by decreasing the size or quality of the cigars, but we want to assure you emphatically that there is no chance for the manufacturers recouping in that fashion, for the reason that all manufacturers have an established trade-mark or a brand of cigars which they feature, and it has taken years of time and unlimited expense in which to establish that brand. If the size or quality of the cigar is changed, that trade-mark is lost, and would necessitate their re-establishing their entire business.

"Thanking you in advance for any assistance you can give us by using your influence with the committee in our behalf, we beg to remain,

"Yours truly,
"THE DETROIT CIGAR MANUFACTURERS."

The following resolution has been unanimously adopted by the Cigar and Stogie Manufacturers' Association of Pittsburgh, Pa., and has been mailed to all members of the Ways and Means Committee:

To the Ways and Means Committee,
Washington, D. C.

Honorable Sirs,—At a meeting of the Cigar and Stogie Manufacturers' Association of Pittsburgh, Pa., held at the Fort Pitt Hotel on August 21, 1914, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That we protest to the Ways and Means Committee against any increase in the revenue tax on cigars.

"Being manufacturers of stogies and cheap cigars, in case the tax is increased, we will be obliged to discontinue the business, as to add the additional tax to the cost of our goods would make them absolutely unsaleable.

"We invite an investigation as to the true condition of the manufacturers of this district."

CIGAR & STOGIE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION OF PITTSBURGH.
M. W. DE WATERS, President.
WM. L. WAGNER, Secretary.

The London Whiffs Cigar Company, of Cleveland, O., sent the following letter under date of August 18th to all the members of the Ways and Means Committee, Senator Simmons of the Finance Committee and Representative Underwood of the House Committee:

CLEVELAND, O., August 18, 1914.

Dear Sir,—In view of the contemplated plan of Congress to impose upon the cigar and tobacco industries an additional tax, I beg herewith to submit to your honorable committee my personal views of the present revenue system which to my knowledge and belief voices the sentiments of all those engaged in the manufacture of stogies.

It cannot be argued that the present revenue system will stand the light of an honest investigation without detecting the real motive of large combines, who are advocating the present system of revenue and who would welcome an increase under its present system. Ever since the stogie industry has taken a presentable foothold, giving the public a plain made article, free from artificial expense and employing labor with generous wages, the combined effort of large cigar manufacturers, who are also large tobacco packers, has manipulated the raw material to a prohibitive price for stogie manufacturers and stubbornly fought a change of our present revenue system.

Under the present system, the purchaser of a $1 a box of 100 stogies pays 30 cents revenue, and the purchaser of a $10, $15 or $20 box of cigars also pays 30 cents revenue per 100. Under the present system the poor man's tobacco that cost him 30 cents per pound pays 8 cents revenue, and the man who buys a pound of tobacco for from $1 to $3 per pound also pays 30 cents revenue.

The oppressive taxation of $3 per 1000 with the boasting high price of tobaccos affects particularly the stogie industries, while it does not affect the cigar manufacturers. The stogie has its fixed identity in its make up and in its selling price, and has no recourse to deception, while on the other hand the cigar business has its full advantages in its make up, where cheap cigars will often in appearance rank in parallel line with the better grade of cigars.

In order to do justice to the consumer and to enable the stogie manufacturers to sustain themselves and to make it possible for them to improve the conditions of their laboring men, our revenue system must be changed to an ad valorem system.

Opponents of the stogie manufacturer say: How will the government be able to draw the line between the $10 cigar and the $100 cigar and prevent fraud? By standardizing each particular class of cigar and stogie and in designing the revenue stamps covering the box of cigars or stogies. As for instance: A three for 5 cents article would have a design of its own and be marked three for 5 cents on the revenue stamp; then the two for 5 cents article would have a different design, etc., etc., etc., and each price goods would carry the equal proportion revenue. A three for 5 cents article should carry a $1 per 1000 revenue, a two for 5 cents article $2 per 1000 revenue, a 5-cent cigar a $4 per 1000 and a 10-cent cigar a $7 per 1000 revenue, etc., etc., etc. With this system there would be no room for fraud and it would not only relieve the government of unnecessary expenses to detect fraud, but would also protect the consumer from being defrauded. In fact equal taxation will give all manufacturers in the cigar and stogie industry an equal showing for honest development, for the designs of the different grades of goods will become familiar with the consumer and he will not be likely to pay 10 cents for a cigar that has a 5-cent revenue stamp on it, nor will the unscrupulous manufacturer be tempted to defraud the government by putting a three for 5 cents stamp on his 10-cent cigar.

The stogie manufacturers are advised to organize and to come well represented to Congress so that their claim may receive an intelligent hearing. The stogie industries, however, are not as prosperous as the "big business" and have neither the time nor the money to organize. Organized bodies do not always voice the sentiments of their organizations and often mislead the true sentiment of the oppressed who have not the means nor the prestige to make their wrongs known. "Big business" will never cease to usurp the rights of the smaller business unless the government seeks its information from the oppressed collectively, and devise ways and means to protect them.

Submitting the above for your kindest consideration, I am,

Yours very truly,

P. S.—I beg herewith to enclose letter of President W. H. Riley, of the National Stogiemakers' League.

The Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America had the following letter drawn up and it has been submitted to the Chairman of the Finance Committee, the Secretary of the Treasury and also to the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee:

NEW YORK, August 28, 1914.

Dear Sirs,—This association, which represents the principal cigar manufacturers of the country, desires to protest against any increase in the internal revenue tax on cigars, the advisability of which, as we are informed, is now under consideration. We believe that any such increase will be an inequitable discrimination against a particular industry and will seriously disturb the entire cigar business of the country, for the following reasons:

First. The cigar manufacturers are already heavily taxed. The great bulk of cigars made and sold in this country retail at five cents each. The internal revenue and other taxes now paid the Federal Government aggregate substantially twenty per cent. of the manufacturers' selling price of these cigars.

Second. During the past few years, a large increase has taken place in the cost of raw material and in the cost of labor. As a result, the manufacturers cannot assume any additional expense which will enter into the cost of cigars. Accordingly, any increase in tax must fall mainly upon the retail dealer. Because of present conditions in the trade, we believe that such increase in the cost of cigars would tend to drive a large number of retailers out of business.

Third. Because of increased cost of labor and materials, the number of cigar manufactories during the fifteen years ending in 1912, decreased to the extent of thirty-three and one-third per cent. To be specific, from 31,435 in 1897 to 20,555 in 1912. Any increased tax will necessarily be felt severely by the smaller manufacturers and will, undoubtedly, result in the closing of many factories.

Fourth. To the extent that the additional cost of cigars falls upon the consumer, consumption will be decreased, which also will operate directly to reduce revenue.

Fifth. Most 5-cent cigars now have Sumatra wrappers, upon which a duty of $1.85 per pound is paid. Great quantities of Havana filler are also used in such cigars, upon which a duty of 28 cents net per pound is paid. Any increase in revenue taxes will compel the manufacturers of the class of goods to use less of both of these imported tobaccos, which will directly lead to a reduction in the revenue from those sources. The tax paid upon the Sumatra and Havana tobaccos amounts to an average of $3.50 per thousand cigars, all of which would, to the extent that the use of Sumatra and Havana should be discontinued, be lost to the government.

To sum up, in our opinion, any increased tax on cigars will injure the trade generally, increase the cost to manufacturers, to the dealer, the retailer and the consumer; and, in addition, will injure the workers, many of whom will be thrown out of employment by reason of the closing of factories.

We shall be glad to furnish you any additional information desired and request a hearing before any definite action is taken.

Very respectfully yours,

FREDERICK HIRSCHORN,
President.
S. K. LICHTENSTEIN,
Secretary.

Franklin, MacVeagh & Company in New Home

The old home of the famous cigar department of Franklin, MacVeagh & Company, located on the corner of Lake Street and Wabash Avenue, Chicago, will soon be no more. Wreckers have been at work on the building for some time, and at the present rate will have removed the structure from existence in a few days. In its new home the cigar department, under able management, continues to thrive. The large wholesale grocery moved to the nine-story structure at Lake and Market Streets, which was vacated by Reid, Murdock & Company, when that firm moved into the new building across the river.

Following this train of thought it might be said that the cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Company has about completed one of the best summers in its history. Trade has simply been excellent, especially on "El Roi-Tan," which is the leader of the line. The public is beginning to recognize the excellent qualities of this smoke, and the cigar is forging ahead through sheer merit, and the efforts of E. B. McKenzie, the brisk sales manager of the factory force, has a lot to do with the success of the brand.

Garrett H. Smith, Representative

Announcement is made by the National Lithographic Company, New York City, that Garrett H. Smith, of that company, has been given the exclusive representation in the United States and Canada, of the Compania Litografia de la Habana, Havana, Cuba, manufacturers of gold leaf and bronze cigar labels and bands. The prices quoted by Mr. Smith are stated to be at least as low as those formerly offered by the German manufacturers, and the finished product is said to stand on an equal footing with the goods imported, in some cases even excelling. Mr. Smith desires to hear from those manufacturers who heretofore favored the German importers, and asks that they submit labels and bands and the quantities desired, embracing one, two and three years. Many of the leading factories in Havana are supplied by the Havana Company.

Stogiemakers Protest Against Taxation of Their Products

Marcus Feder, president of the London Whiffs Cigar Company, of Cleveland, O., enclosed the following letter of W. H. Riley, president of the National Stogiemakers' League, in all letters which he has sent out protesting against the proposed tobacco tax increase:

WHEELING, W. VA.

To Whom It May Concern:

I wish to impress upon all of our people this fact: The better informed they are as to true conditions affecting their special industry, the better qualified they will be to avoid or adjust difficulties which come their way. Our attention has been called to the importance of immediate action in order to centralize thought and secure co-operative action of all persons interested in the production and protection of one of our most important industries, THE STOGIE PRODUCT, possessing as it dose, meritorious features which subject it to attacks of trusts in restraint of trade, on account of its competitive character, combinations and unfair influences, resulting in oppressive entanglements that hamper and embarrass the independent manufacturers almost to the extent of abandonment of business, clearly illustrating the advantages organized capital possesses over unorganized business ventures.

We find upon investigation that we are able to trace much of the disrupting effects directly to discriminating taxation, the enactment and enforcement of a law which originally applied to stogies a tax in excess of their full market valuation. This has been reduced until it is uniformly applied to all grades, regardless of valuation, the tax rates being $3 per M. The stogie industry which contributes millions to the constant flow of revenue into the treasury of our government is forced to pay in excess of twenty-five per cent. of actual value while competitive lines of higher grades pay comparatively nothing. If this is not class legislation, what is it? The independent manufacturers are doing business from a cash basis, as material, labor and revenue must be paid for before the goods leave their factories to go into a credit market with margins of profit too low to take on uncertain or slow pay customers. The very men who need the fostering care of the government are denied equal protection.

Originally this tax was for war purposes, other articles such as checks, medicines, stamps and many other articles were included in the taxation lists but long since removed, leaving the burden somewhat modified upon tobacco and cigars. After fifty years this has become one of the fixed sources of revenue subject to attacks from all quarters, as evidenced by recent attempts to saddle the building of National Good Roads from an increase of taxes upon cigars and tobacco. This industry has uncomplainingly carried this ill apportioned burden for half a century with occasional fluctuations to disturb progressive business and the good and wise men sent to Washington either through lack of information or interest or some less creditable influence have not corrected this glaring injustice. Conditions now justify the common impression that an increase in taxes will be made to provide needed revenue to meet increased expenses occasioned by foreign and domestic troubles. Why not be represented at Washington to defend THE OTHER SIDE? The dominating influence can easily be traced to BIG BUSINESS. It is of vital importance to all producers of STOGIES in particular to take some action at this opportune time to establish a basis equally fair and equally responsible with all branches of the CIGAR INDUSTRY.

The inefficiency of the protective system designed to prevent fraud is a subject of public comment and about as injurious to the government as to the producers whose well deserved reputations influence unscrupulous men to stuff boxes, imitate and otherwise disregard the rights of the government and its reputable industries. This with other irregularities should be promptly and vigorously remedied; failure to accept this chance will be a monumental mistake possibly followed by an increase in taxes, a decrease of business, stagnation, suspension and all other attending evils.

Respectfully,
W. H. RILEY,
President National Stogiemakers' League.

The Tobacco Association of Southern California lost no time in protesting against the proposed tax increase on tobacco products. The following telegram under date of August 14th was sent to both the Senators and all the Congressmen from California:

"On behalf of the retail organized tobacco trade of Southern California, we earnestly protest against an increase of taxes on manufactured cigars. This raise would only hit the poor, suffering retailer who already is up against high prices and small profits, not speaking of high rents and other charges. Save us from further burdens. We look for you to oppose such a bill.

"TOBACCO ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

"President."

Detroit

"Fifty-Six" Cigarettes Making a Hit—City is Decorated for G. A. R. Week—New Statler to Partially Open in January—Wayne Cigar Company May Open in Pontiac

DETROIT, August 15.

THE war has caused business conditions to be rather uncertain in every line. Banks have shut down on construction loans and this has affected the builders to a certain extent. The cigar retailers know that their business has fallen off and can only attribute it to the war scare; the cigar manufacturers say they have not as yet felt any dropping off in orders, but what is bothering them just now is the talk of an increase in the revenue tax. On another page we reproduce a copy of a letter which was sent by the Detroit Cigar Manufacturers' Club to Frank E. Doremus, of Detroit, who is Congressman from the First District. Mr. Doremus has been asked to use his influence in preventing an increase to be made in the internal revenue tax on cigars, as such a raise would result in the demoralization of the cigar industry as far as Detroit is concerned.

We had Herman Druckleib, of the Cado Company, in our midst recently. He reported that this brand is doing splendidly in all of the large cities and that "Fifty-Six" cigarettes are becoming more popular every day.

The whole city of Detroit is in decorations for the G. A. R. reunion, which starts August 31st and lasts one week. There is not a retail store that is not profusely attired with flags and bunting. The downtown district has been transformed into a Court of Honor with massive white columns and strings of colored lights extending from one to the other. Approximately 200,000 strangers are expected in the city during encampment week. The cigar stores are looking forward to an immense business.

August 20th was Fraternal Day in Battle Creek, Mich. Practically all stores were closed and in the afternoon there was a big parade in which all lines of industry were represented. Among the cigar merchants who entered floats were: Cleenewerck & Son, The Battle Creek Cigar Company, The Hartman Cigar Company, The Oppenheimer Cigar Company.

Ernest C. Frohm has opened a cigar store in the Peter Smith Building, at Griswold and State Streets. Mr. Frohm formerly operated the Chambers Segar Store, on West Fort Street.

The lobby cigar stand, which is controlled by the Central Cigar Company, will be continued in the Peter Smith Building.

E. C. Kinsel, with his family, has returned from a motor trip through the East. En route stops were made at Narragansett Pier and Boston. Mr. Kinsel is proprietor of Kinsel's Drug Store, which has one of the best cigar stands in the city.

Charles Borceus, for the past nine years manager of the Oppenheimer Cigar Company store in Battle Creek, Mich., has resigned and is succeeded by Jay G. Moorehouse, formerly assistant manager. In our August 15th issue Mr. Broceus was mentioned as being from Chicago. This was an error.

It is with extreme sorrow we pen the news of the death of Josephine, the beloved wife of William Freligh, at the family home, 145 Hancock Avenue East, Monday, August 17th. The announcement of the death of Mrs. Freligh came as a great shock to the many friends of the family, as the illness, while of short duration, was not considered serious. That the loss will be a blow to Mr. Freligh is a foregone conclusion. Mr. Freligh is the Michigan representative for the Best & Russell Company, of Chicago, and is one of the best-known cigar salesmen in the state. THE TOBACCO WORLD, joining with the hosts of friends of the family, extends its heartfelt sympathy to Mr. Freligh in his bereavement.

John Alt, fifty-five years old, vice-president of the H. Schneider Company, tobacco manufacturers of Grand Rapids, Mich., died August 15th at his home, 545 Lexington Avenue, N. W. Mr. Alt was born in Grand Rapids, January 23, 1859. At the age of fourteen he entered the employ of Mohl & Schneider as a stripper. From that position he worked up to the head of the firm. He was a director of the Valley City Building and Loan Association, and belonged to many fraternal societies. Five brothers and five sisters survive him.

"Subway" cigars continue to enjoy a big sale throughout Michigan. Harry W. Watson Company are the distributors.

Frank Kane has severed his connections with the E. M. Harris cigar store.

Recent visitors among the trade have been Frank J. Horning, of H. Anton Bock; George DeForrest, representing Kildow, of Tiffin, O.; Walter Eisenman, of Eisenman Brothers, of Cincinnati; Ben Bloch, of the Philip Morris Cigarette Company, and Charles J. Waxelbaum.

The Best & Russell store at Woodward and Jefferson Avenues, reports an excellent trade on "Robert Burns."

Providing sufficient help can be secured and can be guaranteed by the local Association of Commerce, the Wayne Cigar Company, of Detroit, will open a branch factory in Pontiac, Mich., which is about twenty-five miles distant by trolley. Later, when the war is over and conditions are back to normal, the Wayne contemplates opening a branch in New York City. This will give the Wayne a distribution of its cigars in the East and West. The Detroit factory is hardly able to take care of the Western trade, so that it is felt that an Eastern factory is necessary to supply whatever trade can be developed in New York City and the New England States.

Alfred E. Penner, of E. Rosenwald & Brother, who has an office in the Elks' Temple Building, Detroit, reports business to be holding up very well. Mr. Penner does not believe that tobacco is going to be cheaper on account of the war.

The new store of the Central Cigar Company in the Orpheum Theatre Building, Detroit, will be opened not later than September 7th.

F. Lozano cigars have been featured quite strongly in the stores of the Central Cigar Company the past week.

The Windsor running races brought large crowds to Detroit the week of August 17th, while the week of August 24th brought 2000 retail druggists for their annual convention. The week of August 31st brings the G. A. R. Reunion, indicating that Detroit, as ever, is a popular convention city.

The Soper Segar Company is having enormous success with cigars made by Jose Lovera Company, especially a smoke at five cents called "Habanas." A box is always kept on top of the counter and Mel Soper says he has to put a new box there at least two or three times a day. Most of the customers buy them by the handful. Mel believes them to be among the best five-cent smokes on the market. He says he never had a cigar sell so fast.

Pittsburgh

Riker-Hegeman Company Met With Cut Prices—"Ascot" Cigarettes Well Featured—"El Roi-Tan" Cigars Taking Well

Business in Pittsburgh has shown an increase during the last few weeks and the fall trade is expected to be good.

M. J. Morrell, of Union and East Ohio Streets, N. S., has an attractive cigar store and does quite a large business.

Sam Dickler, of 103 East Ohio Street, is enjoying a run on "El Roi-Tan" cigars. He also does a large pipe business.

M. Gorenstein, of 105 East Ohio Street, is doing a large business on "Pittsburgh" stogies and has a few private brands of his own.

Reymer Brothers have a very fine display of E. A. Condax's new cigarette called "Ascot." They are giving away a German silver cigarette case with every 25-cent package of same. They also have a very nice display of the "Flor de Moss" cigars, made by S. R. Moss & Company, Lancaster, Pa.

C. J. Moye & Company, of Sixth Street, are featuring "El Roi-Tan" cigars.

C. A. Gibbs & Company have a very fine window display of imported cigars. They are featuring "Hoyo de Monterrey."

There is quite a dissension among the downtown dealers on account of the cut rate prices on cigarettes by the Riker-Hegeman Drug Company.

The Riker-Hegeman Drug Company had their formal opening of their store at Fifth Avenue and Smithfield Street, Saturday, August 2nd. Chas. Goeringer, formerly with the May Drug Company, and Adolph Duering, formerly with the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands, have charge of the cigar department. R. C. Heiber, formerly with the May Drug Company, is local manager for this concern. The store was crowded to the doors all day Saturday. They did a tremendous business, giving something away with every purchase.

The May Drug Company are going the Riker-Hegeman Company one better today, as they are having a special sale on cigarettes. They are offering cigarettes at the following prices: "Rameses," "Pall Mall," "Deities," "Vafiadas" and "Coat of Arms" at 17 cents per package. "Satin," "Fatima," "Zubelda," "Omar" and "Lord Salisbury" 20's at two packages for 25 cents. "Egyptian Straights," "Helmar," "Prettiest," "Lord Salisbury" 10's, "London Life," "Sweet Caporal" 20's, "Mecca" 20's, "Camel" 20's, "Piedmont" 20's and "Oasis" 20's at 8 cents per package.

Wm. Meeghan, manager of the Atlas Hotel cigar stand, who has been away on his vacation, is again back on the job. He gained about ten pounds in weight while away.

E. T. Baron, of the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company, has gone to Atlantic City for a week's vacation.

The following visitors were in town in the interest of the cigar trade: G. W. Stocking, of Mercellino Perez & Company, New York; E. H. Brodie, of S. R. Moss & Company, Lancaster, Pa.; E. H. Guerin, selling humidors for Bubeck & Guerin, of New York; H. A. Levy, representing Calanti & Boaz, New York, and Victor Lopez, representing "Gracia Grand."

Seidenberg & Company's "El Roi-Tan" cigar is very much in evidence here. Some very beautiful and tasty window displays appear in the best stores and Sterling silver pocket cutters are being given away to smokers of ten-cent goods. Geo. J. Richardson, who has developed more than six jobbing accounts for Seidenberg & Company, is handling this campaign and deserves credit for its thoroughness. Mr. Gutledge will arrive Saturday to assist Mr. Richardson in this work.

J. W. Klein, representing Larus Brothers Company, of Richmond, Va., on "Edgeworth" tobacco, arrived in Pittsburgh last week and reports business very good. He will be here for about two weeks, in which time he expects to get in a lot of good window displays.

War is declared by "Phillip Morris" cigarettes on all who do not appreciate quality. J. W. Goodman, of Phillip Morris & Company, put a fine window display in the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand representing the Nations' War. It is attracting much attention.

E. Marzleeff and Chas. Claus, Jr., are in Pittsburgh, representing the H. Ellis & Company branch of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. They are working on the "Little Recruit" cigars, the largest five-cent selling cigar in the world. With the help of the dealers they will endeavor to get a very nice showing on window displays, etc.

"44" Cigars Now Packed in Handsome Tins

Keeping up with progress in the cigar trade the "44" Cigar Company announces on another page in THE TOBACCO WORLD that they are now prepared to supply the trade with "44" cigars in the Londres, Blunt and Invincible sizes, packed in attractive tin cans.

The tins are unusually handsome in appearance and are particularly fitted to catch the eye of the consumer. The well-known advertising colors of the firm, yellow, red and black, are harmoniously used in the decoration of the tins, the base color being yellow with red and black lettering.

The "44" Cigar Company is now prepared to fill orders on these goods, and already they are having a heavy call.

The fact that the tin can preserves the proper atmosphere for the cigar and keeps it in condition has been responsible for the increasing appeal that this form of packing has made to the consumer.

"Beech Nut," New Five-Cent Brand

"Beech-Nut," a new five-cent product, is the name of a cigar that is being manufactured by H. A. Rupp, at Augusta, Me., Mr. Rupp having only recently embarked in the manufacturing business in this place, though connected with the cigar business for some twenty-five years. The "Beech Nut" is to be a quality brand and effort will be made to have it in the foremost rank of five-cent products. Mr. Rupp will look after the selling end of the business throughout the state.

The Chicago Yacht Club

NO survey of the club cigar departments of the country would be complete without some mention of the one conducted in the Chicago Yacht Club. It is not only one of the best conducted, but one of the best patronized and most profitable of any of the stands in the clubs.

It goes without saying that the membership of the Chicago Yacht Club is high class in every sense of the word. No person can have much of an interest in such an expensive luxury as a yacht unless he is pretty well off in this world's goods. The six hundred members of the club, therefore, consist of a number of rich men who are interested in sport in general and yachting in particular. They are discriminating smokers, willing to pay for quality at any price.

The guiding destiny of the cigar department at the Chicago Yacht Club is Henry Bower. Mr. Bower is spending his first year as manager of the cigar department of the Chicago Yacht Club. This does not mean, however, that he came without any experience. For twenty years he was manager of the cigar department of the Chicago Athletic Club, which has previously been written up in this series. Mr. Bower, therefore, knows all the tricks of the trade. He is short and stout, with a general attitude of knowing his business. He speaks with a slight Teutonic accent, and is an incarnation of dignified courtesy. He was very enthusiastic in showing the writer through the club house when he was gathering material for this article.

The Chicago Yacht Club is located at the foot of Monroe Street where that famous thoroughfare runs into Lake Michigan. Between the tall buildings, standing with the majesty of grenadiers along Michigan Avenue and Lake Michigan, there is a large open space which is commonly called Grant Park, but which in reality is a mere stretch of open beach almost a quarter of a mile in width. About where Monroe Street would enter the lake, if it were extended out upon this open stretch, stands the Chicago Yacht Club. It is built entirely upon piling driven into the water, which surrounds the building on all sides. The bungalow style of architecture has been used, and the building is large and spacious, covering a large area to make up for the lack of heighth, which is only three stories. A single bridge connects the club house with the mainland, spanning about fifteen feet of water. A fine motor drive leads from Michigan Avenue over to the club house, and most of the members come that way.

Entering the building, the cigar stand is the first thing to attract attention. It is located immediately upon the left hand, along with the telephone desk which gives connections to members in all parts of the building. The club has but one stand, Mr. Bower being a strong believer in centralization. That one stand, however, is a "peach" in the strictest sense of the word. The brands are displayed in an all-glass case, which shows them to excellent advantage.

Among the leading brands which attract the eye are "Partagas," "La Corona," "Hoyo de Monterey," "Flor de Fonseca," "La Carolina," and the private brand of the club, "The Chicago Yacht Club." The latter is made in a number of styles to suit the individual tastes of the members, although Mr. Bower does not believe in carrying too many sizes in any brand. Other brands of Best & Russell, Berriman Brothers, Faber & Company, Grommes & Ulrich and other leading firms of Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, are carried by the club.

In the cigarette line "Rameses," "Pall Mall," "Condax," "Melachrino" and most of the other leading brands are carried. The stock is most varied, and the smoker would be a hard customer indeed who could not find what he wanted in the assortment kept on hand by Mr. Bower.

Unlike many of the club cigar stands which the writer has seen, Mr. Bower believes in selling his cigars out of the boxes in the case. He is opposed to the system of keeping unbroken boxes in the case merely for show. He declares that the box which is good enough to show is good enough to sell from, regardless of all arguments to the contrary.

"Besides, there is always the chance that the customer may have a bilious suspicion that he is not getting what is being exhibited in the case," is the witty manner in which Mr. Bower concluded his views on this point.

"Most of our trade comes in the evening," said Mr. Bower, "as during the day most of our customers are absorbed with business. They drive over here in their machines after the working day is done, and talk over the next race or whatever other matter is in the limelight. Of course, to do this in an effectual manner they must have smokes, and that is where the cigar department comes into the game."

The first floor of the Chicago Yacht Club, in addition to the cigar stand, is devoted to a huge lounging room and a dining room, which is located at the north end. The dining room is spacious and can seat three or four hundred people without any trouble at all. On the walls are all sorts of models of yachts, keels and other articles which suggest life on the bounding main. Outside is a wide veranda which bounds the club on all sides with the exception of the rear. Two or three springing boards extending over the water give the members plenty of chance to indulge in diving and swimming. On the warm evenings during the summer the veranda is a gay place. Gentlemen in evening clothes sit around in easy chairs and mingle with ladies, while at a little distance away others in bathing suits outwit the heat by taking frequent plunges into the cool waters of the lake.

On the second floor of the club are located the offices, the billiard room and the dormitory. Cigars are served here at any hour of the day or night. The waiters are young boys, all dressed in the blue uniform of the deep sea sailor. Needless to say, they take a great pride in their "togs." The second floor also has a porch, from which a beautiful view of

Business Ahead of Last Year—Lovera "Banderos" Going Well—Preparing for a "Tadema" Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO, August 24, 1914.

In spite of the diversions and distractions of the European war, August has shown a decided improvement in the local cigar trade. The close of the vacation season is very naturally expected to bring in some additional business, but dealers assert that the present month is running decidedly ahead of the same month last year. Sales are better and collections are better, and some are inclined to believe that, except for the general suspension of activity during the few days after the breaking out of the war, the month would have been even better than it is.

Major F. S. Burrows, factory representative for the Lovera Company, says that his business has improved splendidly for some weeks past. The demand for the Lovera Company's "Bandero" line is particularly gratifying. Although Wellman, Peck & Company, the San Francisco distributors for the Lovera Company, have been ordering liberally, they have run short of goods and are having difficulty in keeping their customers in stock till new goods come in. The cigar is repeating nicely now both in San Francisco and at outside points where it has been placed.

Charles Baker, a well-known cigar and tobacco dealer of San Jose, Cal., is in San Francisco buying stock and looking about for new and attractive things for his store.

The vacation season with M. A. Gunst & Company is now drawing to a close. Most of the selling and office force have already returned, and the few who are now away will be back next week. I. Carlson and Edward Cohen, of the office force, are among the last of the office contingent to get away for the wilds.

C. H. Knubel, a manufacturers' representative who has long represented the "Charles the Great" and other lines in the Far West territory, has now added the "Pera" cigarettes to his lines. He left for Los Angeles a few days ago to spend a couple of weeks looking up his connections in Southern California. Zia Mufty Bey, of the Pera Cigarette Company, who has spent the last two or three months in San Francisco, is now in Seattle in the interests of the company.

Emil Judell, junior member of H. L. Judell & Company, is keeping the trail hot in Southern Oregon. He is again in the Coos Bay section after a few days spent in this city resting up and looking after local affairs. He had already covered another large tract in Southern Oregon as well as Northern California, and expects to do a fall business that will compare favorably with the best of previous years. About the end of next week, H. L. Judell & Company will let the contracts for the Judell Building at the Panama-Pacific Fair. This building will be the headquarters for the "Webster," "Watt" and "Flor de Moss" cigars during the big show next year.

Arnold Pollak, one of the veteran cigar brokers of this city, has now added to his list the "Andreas Diaz" line of Havana cigars. This line was represented here by H. L. Judell & Company for some years preceding the great fire of April, 1906.

The Edward Wolf Company, wholesalers, of Front and California Streets, are now showing some very unique packings from the factory of H. Anton Bock & Company. The cigars come in attractive imitation wood packings containing five cigars each. One package retails at twenty-five cents and the other at fifty cents. Mr. Wolf says that so far the interference of the European war in the trans-Pacific shipping has had no effect locally on the Manila business, as dealers and wholesalers have sufficient stock on hand to carry them for some time. He believes that the Manila shipments will now begin to come forward again on regular schedule time.

The "Tadema" campaign of the Edward Wolf Company will begin about the end of the month. The first shipments are now en route and by the end of next week will be on hand in sufficient quantities to keep all orders filled.

H. H. Manley, of the Pacific Coast branch of the American Cigar Company, who has been in Los Angeles for a few days, is due back in San Francisco early next week. He will then leave for an extended trip through the Pacific Northwest. He reports that the "Belmont Tango" advertising is bringing in splendid results throughout California.

A new thing in the local wholesale trade is the Pacific Cigar Company, which began doing business here a few days ago at 418 Sacramento Street. The new firm will act as distributors for the "Luis Martinez" cigar, which was until a few weeks ago distributed by the Bercovich Company, and which had a fine stand with the retail trade of San Francisco and vicinity. The members of the Pacific Cigar Company are Sol Arkush, Western factory representative for the "Luis Martinez," and D. M. Superstein, who was formerly associated with Mr. Bercovich in the wholesaling of the line. Mr. Superstein will reside in San Francisco and will act as manager of the company. Mr. Arkush, who has for some time lived at Santa Monica, Cal., may later take up his residence here. The new goods are just beginning to come in.

J. N. Wilson, a retail cigar man of Sacramento, has been in San Francisco this week looking over the situation and placing orders for fall.

The cigar store of Sam Ganas, at 710 Folsom Street, was broken into a few days ago and robbed of goods to the value of about $150. One arrest has been made in connection with the robbery.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, of this city, got as far as Havana on his proposed foreign tour; but will be obliged to abandon his intended visit to various European countries owing to the breaking out of war. He will buy tobacco at Havana for his San Francisco factory, and may then spend some time in the Eastern States before returning to the Coast.

C. E. Howard, an Oroville, Cal., retailer, who is in San Francisco for a short stay, reports that the outlook in the Sacramento Valley is good.

Tobacco at Standstill in Paducah

PADUCAH, KY., August 27.

About 110 hogsheads of tobacco have been sold by the Planters' Protective Association since its last report, but no official report has been made. The market practically is at a standstill, owing to the war in Europe. However, there has been a little business in wrappers, which were purchased from independent packers by private inspection. It is understood these sales were for domestic trade. The association and independent dealers are awaiting the result of the war and are not making any effort to sell. Dealers have rejected offers of fifty cents per hundred below prices that have ruled for the past sixty days on leaf and lugs. Sellers are refusing to make any reduction in prices and buyers generally are unwilling to meet the sellers' prices.

The growing crop has improved wonderfully from the late rains and promises to make good leaf and heavy tobacco. The greater part of the crop is late and a late fall is necessary for it to mature. The weather conditions are perfect.

American Sumatra Tobacco Company's New Samples

A GREAT deal of interest was manifested last week at the headquarters of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, 131 Water Street, when they received the first samples of green leaf tobacco from their great Florida and Georgia plantations at Quincy and Amsterdam. These samples of the new 1914 crop were shown a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD by Mr. Jerome Waller, and if the crop comes anywhere up to the standard of the samples this should be a great year for the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, and Mr. Waller says that without a doubt the samples are typical of what cigar manufacturers can get in every bale.

The new tobacco is beautiful in color, as their Florida shade-grown has long been admitted to be, and the leaves have an excellent spread and a body which guarantees the best results in smoking; as a matter of fact, the tobacco has proven itself one of the best crops ever grown as far as the tests on smoking have shown.

President Julius Lichtenstein, of the company, expressed himself as particularly enthusiastic over their crops from the Connecticut plantations as well as from the South. The company's Simsbury plantation in Connecticut, it is stated, has admittedly produced the finest tobacco which has ever been shown in this section, and the New England product as a whole will be a superb yield.

They had an odd little fire a short time ago at the Water Street warerooms on the top floor, which is used as the sampling rooms, and the fireproof construction of the floors proved its worth by preventing the spread of the flames and thus causing only a trifling loss. Everything has been repaired and the company is ready for customers.

Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice Report Increased Business

NEW YORK, August 18, 1914.

Evidently War is not always Hell, even though such was widely advertised in a recent issue of this paper by Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, New York City, lithographers of cigar labels and cigar bands.

Several lines have been greatly benefited by cutting off of importations due to European conditions, and the lithograph industry seems to be one of the favored.

Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice report a heavy increase in the number of orders received and they have already had to resort to overtime work to keep up their standard of prompt delivery.

Undoubtedly, this standard of prompt delivery, coupled with economies of production and splendid work, have been as much of a business producer for them as the war itself.

The treasurer of the company, B. S. Rosenbaum, has just completed a lengthy trip throughout the West and met with unusual success, despite the fact that many of the Western cigar manufacturers, particularly those whose output is in the cotton districts of the South, are finding business dull.

M. F. Schmitt With Patterson Brothers

M. F. Schmitt, for the past five years well known on the Pacific Coast in tobacco circles, and who is recognized as a successful, popular representative, will in future handle the products of Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, Inc., of Richmond, Va., makers of "Whip" and "Queed" smoking tobacco and the famous "Green Turtle" and other brands of cigars.

Mr. Schmitt will immediately organize a full corps of retail salesmen to work the entire Pacific Coast trade. With his popularity and the good name of Patterson products behind him, a great success is assured.

Good Work for Cigar Day

THE promoters of the movement for a National Cigar Day are proceeding with increased enthusiasm every week, encouraged by the splendid reception which has been accorded the idea all over the country by every branch of the industry.

If nothing else is accomplished by the movement, the idea embodied in the appended letter, which was placed before the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows last week and which was heartily endorsed by that body, would make the work done well worth while.

C. Fred Crosby, editor of Tobacco and chairman of the Executive Committee on National Cigar Day, together with Nicholas Ehrlich, who is secretary, evolved the idea and have received assurances from a number of the fraternal organizations that the plan suggested will be carried out.

To the Grand Lodge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of the State of New York, in convention assembled, at the Metropolitan Temple, Fourteenth Street and Seventh Avenue, New York:

Whereas, Monday, October 12, 1914, is to be celebrated throughout the United States as National Cigar Day, we take sincere pleasure in informing you that one of the features of that occasion will be the contribution by members of the great fraternal orders of the nation, including Odd Fellows, Free Masons, Knights of Pythias, Elks and Knights of Columbus, as well as members of the Royal Arcanum, International Typographical Union, and other fraternal and benevolent organizations, of boxes of cigars for the enjoyment of their brethren who are passing their declining years in the homes maintained by these great fraternities.

These contributions are to be made as the free will offerings of individual members and groups of members, and each box of cigars thus forwarded will carry sunshine with it, and a fraternal greeting to the brethren in the homes that they are not forgotten by their brothers in the great, busy outside world.

The idea has already been warmly commended by prominent members of many of the leading fraternities as a certain means of carrying good cheer and wholesome, hearty good fellowship to brothers who have been less fortunate in the battle of life, and to whom the message that accompanies the gift, even more than the gift itself, will testify most eloquently that they are not forgotten.

We feel that your great and splendid fraternity will appreciate having this matter called to your attention at this time, and that the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in New York, as well as in other Commonwealths throughout the land, will graciously and generously do their part, and see that the brothers in the various Odd Fellows' Homes are not forgotten on National Cigar Day, Monday, October 12, 1914.

Yours in the spirit of fraternity,

NICHOLAS EHRLICH, Secretary. C. FRED CROSBY, Executive Chairman.

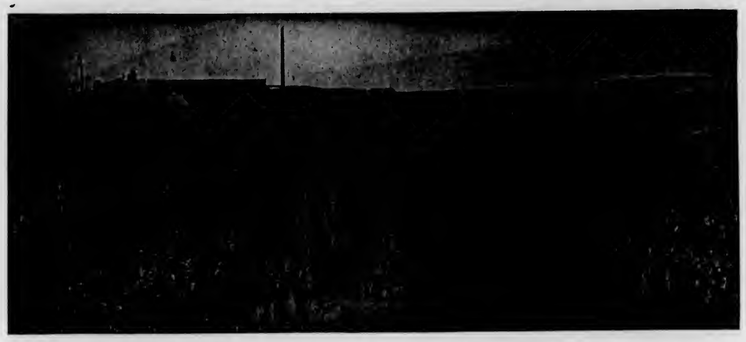
If, on October 12th, thousands of the less fortunate in the various fraternal homes of the United States are enabled to experience the "peace of the 'Larranaga' and the calm of the 'Henry Clay'" as a token from their fellows and as a compliment to the great cigar industry of the United States, the sentiment of the matter alone would stamp the day as an overwhelming success, and out of this sentiment must eventually come a wide measure of economic improvement in the industry.

F. H. Beltz's Factory Has No Dull Season

Reports from the Schwenksville factory of F. H. Beltz indicate that there has been no dull season experienced there, and the proprietor states that business has been good on their brands throughout the entire year.

R. T. Beltz has recently been in Savannah, Ga., and opened some very satisfactory accounts with the jobbers there. Among the new firms in other cities who have taken on F. H. Beltz brands are W. H. Harris Grocery Company, Richmond, Va.; R. M. Henderson, Washington, D. C.; Frank Nichols, Baltimore, Md., and the W. H. Berger Company, Wilmington, Del.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, August 24, 1914.

OUR market has been rather dull during the past fortnight, and we have had only the American demand for Vuelta Abajo and Partido to rely upon, and it seems the American manufacturers are neither in a great hurry to cover their coming needs, as excepting the house of E. Regensburg & Sons, of Tampa and New York, all other transactions were of a hand to mouth nature.

The receipts of tobacco from the country have fallen off somewhat, but this may be owing more to the fact that our warehouses are pretty well filled with the new leaf, than to a falling off in the crop. Very likely the tobacco is kept stored in the country towns, as there is no pressing demand for it at the moment.

Buyers were: Americans, 3931, and our manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 870 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from August 3rd to August 15th, inclusive, amounted to 5542 bales, all of which were shipped to the different ports of the United States.

Receipts of Leaf Tobacco From the Country.

Buyers of Leaf Tobacco That Come and Go.

Arrivals—From New York: Marcelino Perez, of Marcelino Perez & Company; José M. Diaz, president of The Preferred Havana Tobacco Company; Lennie Greenhall, of Greenhall Brothers; Joseph Mendelsohn, of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Company.

From Tampa: Mortimer Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons; Manuel Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company; M. B. Pendas and Alfreda Pendas, of Y. Pendas y Alvarez; Angel L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company.

From Key West: A. W. Arnold, of Mi Favorita Cigar Company.

From San Francisco: David Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Company.

From Chicago: Matt Wengler, of Wengler & Mandell.

Returned—From New York: Maximilian Stern, manager-general of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd.; Francisco E. Fonseca, of the Castañeda and Fonseca factories.

Departures—To Tampa: José M. Diaz, Mortimer Regensburg, Manuel Corral, M. Sanchez and Facundo Argüelles and family.

To Chicago: August Kuttnauer.

To Boston: Levi W. Scott.

To Key West: A. W. Arnold and Frank H. Gato.

To New York: Felipe Rodriguez, Fred Horn, W. Ambrecht, H. H. Strater, M. Winter and Fred Davis.

To Toronto: Benigno Tuero.

Cigars.

Our factories are now restricted to the orders from the United States and Canada, which at best is only one-third of their output in normal times, but as the orders are coming forward only in small quantities, it is even less than this quantity. Only the factories which have orders from the United States or Canada are working, and those that have an outlet for their cheaper sizes for the home trade of our island, and even these are not employing the same number of cigarmakers, or they are working only a certain number of days in the week.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, H. Upmann and Por Larrañaga remain closed.

Sol, having some orders for the United States, has been working moderately.

Partagas had closed for a week before last, but had started up again and is turning out 30,000 cigars, per day, in both their factories in town and in Güines.

As per circular dated the sixth instant, F. Rodriguez & Company, who operated the Flor de P. A. Estanillo factory, with their brands "Elite" and "Flor del Fumar," were dissolved, Don Felipe Rodriguez liquidating the affairs, but having sold the factory to Don Evaristo Herrera, who will continue the same under his own name and for his account.

Romeo y Julieta is working four days of the week with the same forces of cigarmakers in Havana, but discontinued the Artemisa branch, until times should improve again.

Leaf Tobacco.

We have heard it stated, that there shall be 15,000 bales of leaf tobacco stored in bond in New York, which was shipped from here to Germany, and which on account of the war in Europe could not be transshipped to that country.

José C. Puente & Company were sellers of 900 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios tobacco during the last fortnight.

E. Regensburg & Sons have purchased, according to our information, 1950 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf. Mortimer Regensburg intends to come here again in the month of September to make some further purchases. He praises the fine Vuelta Abajo leaf of this year, on account of its high aroma.

F. Rocha & Company sold 390 bales of all kinds of tobacco to their Northern customers during the past fortnight.

Cuesta, Rey & Company were buyers of some 200 bales of extra fine vegas of Vuelta Abajo from the lowland district.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez have been sellers of several vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, as well as from the Partidos, but we have been unable to learn the exact quantity.

We have heard a report that an American export house has purchased 1000 bales of Remedios, of this year's crop, first and second capaduras, and of which 500 bales had been delivered already. The prices are kept secret, but, it is said, that taking into consideration the shrinkage and the carrying charges, the figures were only slightly lower than last year.

Exchange on New York last week touched the remarkable low point of 105½ per cent., on account of the heavy sugar shipments, but has reacted again towards the close of the week to 108 and 108½ per cent.

Maximilian Stern	1072	bales
Virgilio Suarez	782	"
Leslie Pantin	569	"
E. H. Gato Cigar Company	355	"
Manuel Suarez	343	"
J. Bernheim & Son	324	"
M. Abella & Company	208	"

"Green Turtle" Cigars Make a Hit

Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, Inc., of Richmond, Va., have recently placed on the market their famous "Green Turtle" brand of cigars, packed in convenient slide boxes of five cigars for ten cents, and are packing with them the Profit Sharing Coupon for both dealer and consumer.

This style has made a hit from the start and the factory is behind on orders. Jobbers should investigate this new packing of "Green Turtle" at once.

Hail Storm Hits Tobacco

CORNING, N. Y., August 20.

A hail storm which followed a series of thirteen thunder storms in the last forty-eight hours did damage estimated at $100,000 to the tobacco crop in the Chemung River Valley and vicinity this afternoon.

Hail stones of large size stripped the leaf tobacco from the stems, ruining the promising crop, which was about ready for cutting. The greatest damage was done in the vicinity of Addison and Erwin.

Fire at Greenville, Tenn.

Thought to be due to the operation of some of the machinery, fire recently destroyed a large frame building, together with the contents, utilized as a manufacturing plant by the Merchants' Tobacco Company, Greenville, Tenn. The volunteer fire company, finding it impossible to save the structure, directed its attention to surrounding buildings and were successful in preventing further damage. A new building will be at once obtained, together with new machinery, and the business will be continued.

Amsterdam Tobacco Market

The following was written for the Daily Consular and Trade Reports on July 17th, by Consul D. I. Murphy in Amsterdam, several weeks prior to the outbreak of the European conflict. While the complexion of the article has been changed somewhat by events that have since transpired, the facts stated are of interest.

"The last of this year's large auction sales of Sumatra tobacco took place on July 9, having continued weekly since March 13th. There will be three other sales of the same and Borneo tobacco—two in September and one in October—but it is not believed they will be of great importance.

"The large sales of Java tobacco will begin on October 2d next, continuing weekly until December 18th. The 1913 tobacco crop in the Dutch East Indies, which is being marketed this year, was not only smaller than usual, but of poorer quality, the plants having suffered from excessive drought. The Java crop usually averages 600,000 to 650,000 bales a season, the Sumatra 250,000 to 280,000 bales, and the Borneo 15,000 to 18,000 bales. The former is always packed in bales of 80 kilos (176 pounds) net, the Sumatra and Borneo tobacco coming in bales of about 77 kilos (170 pounds) net.

"There were about the usual number of American buyers at the Amsterdam sales this year, but their purchases were almost 10,000 bales less than in 1913, or, to be exact, 20,300 bales were bought for use in the United States in 1914 against 30,200 bales last year.

"The total sales of Sumatra tobacco in Amsterdam this year and up to this time amounted to 195,795 bales, while 208,267 bales were sold in 1913 up to the close of the July market. The crop was smaller, the quality inferior, and prices were lower, the average price per half kilo (which is the Dutch pound) having been 152 Dutch cents (or $0.61), against 166 Dutch cents (or $0.67) in 1913.

"Of the Borneo crop, 11,390 bales were sold at an average of 77 Dutch cents (or $0.31) per half kilo, against the 14,321 bales of 1913 at 89 Dutch cents (or $0.36)."

Shortage of Cigarette Papers Offers Opportunity

With the continuation of the war abroad the manufacturers of cigarettes are already beginning to feel the shortage in imported cigarette papers and some of the larger manufacturers have been appealed to by the smaller ones to sell them some of their stock. None, if any, are inclined to part with any of their stock. Practically all of the manufacturers use cigarette papers imported from France and it is now impossible to get any supply that country might have on hand over here. Obviously, the manufacture of these papers is continuing in France on a very small scale, if at all.

This situation offers a splendid opportunity to the American manufacturers of cigarette papers to step to the front and submit their products to the test. There is no reason why this country should not be able to supply the present demand, and if done in a satisfactory manner, this new trade should be retained in this country.

THE TOBACCO WORLD offers an exceptional opportunity to these few American manufacturers to sell their products.

Queries have been received even from England in regard to cigarette paper manufacturers in this country, showing that there is or soon will be a demand to be supplied.

John Slater, the well-known stogie and cigar manufacturer, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is one of the familiar figures recently noticed on the Boardwalk at Atlantic City.

MANUFACTURE OF TOBACCO THROWN OPEN TO COMPETITION IN GREEK MACEDONIA

Opportunity to Introduce American Machinery — New Tobacco Plantations and Factories—Public Factory for Small Manufacturers

BEGINNING July 15, 1914, the manufacture of tobacco in the section of former European Turkey occupied by Greece will be thrown open to free competition and the laws in force in old Greece will be extended to so-called new Greece. The monopoly on the manufacture of tobacco and cigarettes which has until now been held by a French syndicate terminates on the same date.

Permission is given the syndicate, which operates throughout the Turkish Empire under the title of Regie Ottomane des Tabacs et Fabrique, to continue as a private establishment against free competition. It is reported, however, that they do not intend to remain here under such conditions, and will shortly discontinue operating the plant at Saloniki, in which practically all the cigarettes consumed in Greek Macedonia are manufactured. The machinery and equipment of the local plant will be shipped to some point within Ottoman territory.

In order that the market will not run short of a supply of cigarettes and cut tobacco during the interval following the discontinuance of the Regie factory and prior to the installation of new factories the Hellenic Government has decided to permit the importation of manufactured tobacco from old Greece, which has heretofore been prohibited.

The Greek Government is now proceeding to establish a so-called public factory in Saloniki. The purport of this establishment is to assist the small merchant who aspires to enter the tobacco and cigarette manufacturing field, but whose capital is too limited to meet the heavy expenses and fees incident to an independent factory. In the public factory provision will be made for the leasing of space to manufacturers who may install their own machinery and operate under the direct supervision of Government weighers and inspectors. Such manufacturers will be exempt from depositing a cash bond, the annual franchise tax, and from the payment of salaries of Government inspectors.

For the installation of an independent factory the following requirements are prescribed:

(1) A permit must be obtained from the Minister of Finance at Athens.

(2) A fee of 2,000 francs ($386) per annum must be paid for this permit to operate.

(3) A deposit of 12,000 francs ($2,316) must be placed in some designated bank or with the Government to serve as a guaranty for a faithful compliance with the manufacturing laws and regulations. This deposit must remain so long as the factory operates.

(4) Inspectors, who are to be appointed by the Government for weighing tobacco in the factories, must be paid by the operators of the establishment the first day of each quarter. The salaries of these officials are estimated at 8,000 francs ($1,544) per annum.

The law in old Greece as regards the affixing of tax stamps (or "banderoles") to packages of tobacco or cigarettes has now been extended to the occupied territories, and is as follows:

Each packet of tobacco cut or in cigarettes to contain 25 grams.

Stamps for tobacco of third quality will cost 10 leptas, or about 2 cents each; and for second and first qualities, 17½ leptas, or about 3½ cents each.

For cigarettes of third quality the denomination of stamps will be 12½ leptas, which are about 2½ cents; and for second and first qualities, 20 leptas, or about 4 cents for each box of 25 grams.

The production of tobacco is one of the leading industries of Macedonia and Thrace. The cigarette tobacco grown in these regions is as fine as is produced anywhere in the world. The Greek refugees who have been swarming into Macedonia from Asia Minor and Turkish Thrace will for the most part apply themselves to the cultivation of tobacco, and in case the condition of this part of the Balkans should remain stable it is probable that this industry will greatly increase in importance.

In view of the new law, which permits the manufacture of tobacco on open competition, it is probable that several factories will be established in Saloniki. A general opinion prevails that the manufacture of cigarettes will eventually become an important industry of this district.

American exporters of tobacco-manufacturing machinery should not delay in availing themselves of the opportunity to introduce their machines. In regard to the manner of entering the local market the following points should be observed:

First. In order to compete with European products price must be the lowest possible commensurate with quality.

Second. Care should be taken to select the quickest route in making delivery. This has been one of the chief complaints against American shippers.

Third. Terms should be part cash with order, i. e., sufficient to cover freight charges and expenses both ways, and balance upon arrival of goods.

Fourth. Direct sales are preferable to local merchants.

Fifth. Correspondence and printed matter should be in the French language.

Information in regard to the Government requirements for the establishment of tobacco factories in this district can be obtained from Iaanis Andonopoulos, director of tobaccos, Saloniki, or the Minister of Finance, Athens.

A list of leading tobacco exporters in Saloniki and Cavalla, most likely to be interested in manufacturing machinery, is forwarded. The names of leading importers of machinery are also sent in case American firms should care to arrange for representatives. (The entire list may be had from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and its branches.) In this connection it might be pointed out that no one is allowed to possess, import, or manufacture any instruments or machinery used for cutting tobacco or manufacture of cigarettes except by special permit from the director of tobaccos or the Minister of Finance.—Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

Union-American Cigar Company Pays Dividend

An evidence of the continued prosperity of the Union-American Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is the fact that they have just paid their regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. (1¾%) on full shares of preferred stock of the company, to stockholders of record August 1st.

Must Take Out Licenses

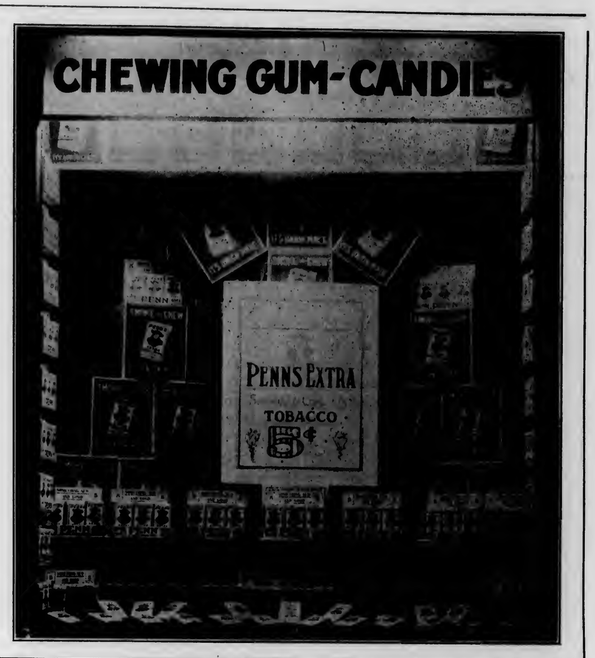
According to a recent ruling by State Attorney-General Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., all salesmen who demonstrate cigarettes and cigarette papers must take out a license as cigarette dealers.

"Penn's Extra" Featured in Pittsburg Store

"Penn's Extra," the widely known smoking and chewing tobacco, made by the Penn Tobacco Company, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has been well received in Pittsburgh.

The accompanying photograph shows a window display which was recently featured by the Afco Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh.

The slogan, "Something new and good," seems to have caught the eye of the smoker and chewer, and sales have mounted rapidly during the past month. The Afco Company states that the display resulted in a handsome increase in the calls for "Penn's Extra" at their stand.



Los Angeles

Dice Question Is Up Again—Tobacco Association Takes Action—"Reynaldo" Cigars Continue to Gain in Favor

LOS ANGELES, CAL., August 22, 1914.

THE Klingenstein Company, of this city, have inaugurated a display campaign throughout Southern California on "London Gold Tip" cigarettes, with the result prevalent of marked success for that brand. It is a very attractive package for five cents and many smokers have switched from the higher priced cigarettes to this brand of quality.

One of the most pleasing of these displays can be seen in the windows of the "House of Quality." The windows are dressy and neat and there is no end of favorable comment on "London Gold Tips."

War on the shaking of dice for pennants, which may involve the city in an election to decide the question of shaking of dice for cigars or other merchandise, was declared by the City Council some time ago. Assistant City Attorney Howard Robertson declared that the present ordinance permitted the shaking of dice for merchandise, and that when the Council several months ago passed an ordinance abolishing dice shaking it was attacked by a referendum and withdrawn by the Council rather than put the city to the expense of several thousands of dollars for a special election. At a meeting of the Southern California Tobacco Association on August 17th, at the Jefferson Club rooms, more than three hundred cigar and tobacco merchants assembled and adopted resolutions which implied that they were strictly against the conducting of cigar stores by women, and more so denounced the practice of employing women behind crudely constructed pennant stands put there merely for the purpose of decoying weak-minded young and old men. They expressed their favor in adopting a mode of surveillance of these stands.

That Los Angeles will be called upon to entertain hundreds of thousands of delegates in 1915, in addition to the general influx of exposition visitors, and that the task is a gigantic one, is thoroughly appreciated by the Los Angeles Convention League, and active preparations are now under way to perform the task in such a manner as will send the visitors home with the pleasantest impressions of the city and its inhabitants. Over twenty-five conventions are booked for this city alone next year, with many more in waiting.

The Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company, at 843 North Main Street, this city, reports ever-increasing business on the splendid "Reynaldo" cigars. Talking things over with Mr. Mussatti, senior member of the firm, I found that they are putting forth their best efforts towards lifting this cigar where it truly belongs, that is, among the best sellers of today. It is their leading brand and for this reason they are in a most favorable position to create a demand for the goods. The factory, Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., is behind the cigar, and "Reynaldo" is going to be upon the lips of every smoker of a good seed and Havana cigar within a very short space of time.

Klingenstein Company report excellent business on the following brands of cigars and cigarettes: "Cinco," "Webster," size called Directors; "Y-B," "Regensburg's American," "Made in Bond," "London Gold Tips" and "Milo," yellow packages.

Business conditions remain the same hereabouts. Food articles rise and fall in price but keep to the normal level here.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The special feature in the Lancaster leaf tobacco market at present is the selling of 1909 tobacco, of which the local packers still hold about 20,000 cases. It was goods that would not sell because the trade asserted that the tobacco failed to burn. With age, and the air given by re-sweating, the goods have improved, and a good deal has changed hands the last few months. It is the cheapest goods to be had, and has been selling as low as 6 and 8 cents a pound. Lately some has sold for 12½ cents, but the bulk of the recent sales were for less than 10 cents. Packers refuse to name the buyers, because the latter are averse to having their trade learn that they are using 1909 tobacco.

The cigar trade shows a distinct improvement, some of the factories having advertised for more hands. It is improvement in the cigar industry that has encouraged local leaf packers to believe that a brisk trade will come with the fall. The new packing, the 1913, is nearly ready for the market and many inquiries are being made regarding it. The crop now in the field could not present a finer appearance, and if there is no hail to damage it it will be the best tobacco crop Lancaster County has had in years.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, CONN.

The season this year was late in getting under way, and the growers had a vast amount of trouble getting the young plants started. They had to contend with cold weather, dry weather and windy weather, the last mentioned being for a time a serious menace, as the wind would cover the young plants with a cloud of dust, which meant resetting. After a bad start rain came and for a time fell at almost regular intervals, which put the 4000 acres raised in the town in a flourishing condition. After the crop was practically assured outside and local buyers were on hand to purchase the crop, and within a week about one-half of the crop was purchased standing in the fields, prices ranging from 19 to 22 cents in the bundle. A few crops of picked or pinned tobacco were bought at 25 and 26 cents. The buyers then stopped the landslide of buying as quickly as they started it, giving as a reason the fact that they would like to see how some of the crop would cure down in the sheds before making any further purchases.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Growers of tobacco will soon be harvesting a crop that promises to be the best in many a year. Charles Soby, of the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation, said the corporation had completed the first and second picking of some of its fields and no better tobacco was ever put into the shed. The leaf is particularly thin, light in color and silky, indicating an excellent burn. The weight this year is all that can be desired; in fact, it will go far ahead of recent crops. Mr. Soby estimates the yield per acre of shade-grown between 1400 and 1500 pounds. Havana seed, he estimates, will yield approximately 1700 pounds to the acre, while broadleaf will average 2000 pounds or more.

Lord Camden Cigar Company Incorporated

A cigar called the "Lord Camden" is shortly to be placed on the market by the recently incorporated Lord Camden Cigar Company, of Camden, N. J. The incorporators are F. R. Hansell, G. H. B. Martin and J. A. MacPeak. The firm is capitalized at $50,000.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 17

the lake can be obtained. During the summer months the club is most popular, being one of the best places in the city to keep cool.

The third floor is devoted to small card rooms and to sleeping quarters for such members as are fresh air fiends. The cool breezes from the lake strike the upper part of the club house almost all of the time, and if there is anything in the way of a zephyr the club members can get into direct communication with the same by going up to the third floor.

Outside is a harbor inside a long breakwater. Here are anchored some of the finest and swiftest yachts to be found in the world. Much money has been spent by their owners to make them perfect in every sense of the word. At all hours of the day yachts are coming and going like graceful swans.

In addition to yachting, the members of the club go in for other sports as well. They maintain a track team, baseball team, water polo team and swimming team, which are among the best in existence. The members take great pride in all athletic sports. The young men are the active performers. The older ones sit around on the veranda of the club and talk this and that race over their cigars, and the battles of these word wars are no less keen than those actual battles in which the younger members take part.

The Chicago Yacht Club is closed during the winter months, but maintains temporary headquarters in a downtown office building.

In a social way the Chicago Yacht Club is one of the most prominent in the city. Many dinners and outings are given during the summer to which are invited the select of the city's "400." For that reason it must be seen that the conduct of the cigar department of such an institution is no small matter, but one requiring an infinite amount of tact and a definite knowledge of the nicotine tastes of the members. In spite of the fact that the members of the Chicago Yacht Club are men of large enough means to smoke almost any priced cigar they please, the brands of medium price seem to move faster than those which are offered at the higher marks. It is so in all of the clubs, the wealthy ones as well as those which are not so well fixed in this world's goods. Perhaps it is due to a feeling on the part of the members against what appears to be extravagance, or perhaps it is because they prefer the taste of the more humble brands. By this is not meant that the Chicago Yacht Club carries cigars of medium price, such as are featured at the ordinary corner store. The cheapest cigar carried would move slow indeed in the ordinary store, owing to the price.

The cigar department of the Chicago Yacht Club has always been a strong patronizer of the home factories, believing that Chicago turns out cigars which will rank well with any made in the world. Of course, other factories, outside of the city, also have their brands represented, but the buying has always been most conservative. Now and then a new brand is tried out on the members. If it pleases, it remains; if not, a second order is never placed. Requests by members to put a certain brand in stock are given attention, and followed if it seems likely that the cigar will "take" with the "bunch." Much attention is given to the burn of a cigar in buying. If the burn is not even, or flakes bad, it is barred, even though the taste may denote an excellent quality of filler.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

WILD REPORTS ABOUT SUMATRA INSCRIPTIONS

The Inscriptions Will Not Be Shanghaied—Shipments Coming In As Usual—Fall Inscriptions May Be Postponed

NEW YORK, August 26, 1914.

CONSIDERABLE amusement has been aroused in the trade by the reports which were published broadcast during the past month concerning the condition of the Sumatra tobacco trade, and strange to relate, the author or authors of these reports managed to get them published in nearly all the leading dailies as well as in several of the prominent trade publications of the country. THE TOBACCO WORLD pleads guilty, but its informant seemed to know what he was talking about and in war times many erroneous statements must be forgiven.

The big factors in the Sumatra trade in New York, such as H. Duys & Company, E. Rosenwald & Brother, and others, expressed themselves most emphatically on the proposition that future inscriptions might be held in Shanghai, China, to the effect that the report was sheer nonsense, and when it is considered what a factor the American importers are at the inscriptions, it can readily be seen that there will be no attempt to hold the inscriptions on the other side of the world, where the American buyers would hardly care to make the long trip.

Despite the fighting in Europe, the Sumatra crop has grown quite comfortably on the Island of Sumatra and the growers out there are busy packing and assorting it without any fear whatever but that the crop will be marketed in due course.

At this time no announcement has been made concerning the holding of any fall inscriptions at Amsterdam, but the fall inscriptions have never been regarded as particularly important and they can be dispensed with without any serious inconvenience. As a rule, the American buyers have paid little attention to the fall inscriptions for several years past in the matter of personal attendance at the sales, and when they did buy it was usually through resident agents in Amsterdam.

The American importers were largely in evidence at the last spring inscriptions and their purchases for the United States ran up into many thousand bales of the best tobacco. Quite a lot of this has already been landed and the importers tell us that shipments are coming through regularly on the Holland-American Line, which is not involved in the European imbroglio, fortunately for our trade. It is quite reasonable to expect a slight advance in the price of Sumatra owing to the heavily increased cost of handling the bales from the other side. Marine insurance has been advanced by the companies as the North Sea is mined for military purposes and ships of neutral countries sailing in those waters are an extra hazardous risk.

Manufacturers of cigars who are in need of Sumatra tobacco for wrappers might do well to cover themselves at an early date, but the danger of a terrific advance in price seems remote and from the present outlook there is plenty of tobacco to meet all needs.

No official announcements have been forthcoming up to the present writing about the spring inscriptions of 1915 and it is quite probable that nothing will be known for some time until the war has assumed a more definite shape, but the American buyers believe that their baggage will be checked for Amsterdam next spring as heretofore.

Read Your Trade Paper

"No man in business can afford to neglect the periodical of his trade; a live trade paper presents every week or month a fund of information on business conditions and methods which may save the reader from making costly experiments. Papers for the retail trade tell about methods of selling, of keeping cost accounts, of how to get rid of time-worn merchandise, how to build up a credit standing, how to create a spirit of loyalty and co-operation among clerks and general employees.

"It is for the credit grantor to get his customers to read consistently one or two papers bearing upon their trade. Generally speaking, the man who gets nothing out of his trade paper is a back number or is soon going to be."—Bulletin of the National Association of Credit Men.

Tobacco Company to Share Profits With Employees

A report has reached this country that the directors of the British Tobacco Company, Limited, of Australia, have proposed a copartnership and profit-sharing scheme to be put into operation among their employees.

At a meeting of the employees of the company, held recently, the managing director stated that the company had for some time been considering adopting some plan of profit-sharing, embodying the principles of copartnership, for the benefit of employees.

The shares will be an actual gift to the employees, and will be free from all conditions other than the restriction of the right of sale for five years and the vesting of the shares in the trustees on their behalf, and in estimating the proportion of shares to be allotted to any individual the salary or wages actually earned will be the basis.

Tobacco Monopoly in Uruguay

The concession for a monopoly of the tobacco industry which has been signed ad referendum by the Uruguayan Minister of Finance is, in effect, as follows:

The Government grants for twenty-five years the sole right to manufacture and sell tobacco in Uruguay, payment to the Government being on a graduated scale as follows: $1,240,800 annually for the first five years; from the sixth to the twelfth year, inclusive, $1,757,800 annually; and $2,068,000 annually until the end of the twenty-five years. The monopoly is given the right to purchase all tobacco factories in the Republic at a fairly assessed value or to take them into the combine as shareholders.

It is believed that the Government will receive a larger and more certain income from the tobacco industry in this manner than by regular taxation, as at present. The estimated annual consumption of tobacco in Uruguay is 7,150,000 pounds.

Tobacco Shows Improvement in Russian Poland

Reports state that the crop of tobacco grown in Russian Poland was superior to that of the preceding year, although the tobacco grown in the Government of Warsaw and part of that in Volhynia were failures. Only cheap tobacco is grown in this district, and it is used for the manufacture of pipe and snuff tobacco, as well as for fillers. Polish agricultural societies and manufacturers of tobacco products in Poland are encouraging farmers to grow tobacco, and it is expected that this cultivation will be extended.

Maintain Your Efficiency

By Smoking TUXEDO—The Mildest, Pleasantest Tobacco Made

FOLKS are talking physical efficiency in modern business life. The idea is, that modern business keeps a man just about as occupied as the fabled one-armed paperhanger with the hives. And if you want to join in with the Gimp Bros. and travel with the Pep and Ginger crowd, you want to cut out a lot of things that make your day's work go wrong.

Take the item of smoking, for instance. It's much better not only for you but for your job if you smoke a light, soothing pipe tobacco like Tuxedo. Get a pipe and try Tuxedo awhile. You'll see the difference.

Your whole efficiency make-up will respond right away to the gentle and cheering influence of Tuxedo.

ARTHUR LUCK
Conductor of the Philadelphia Harmonic Orchestra, says:
"Tuxedo is easily my favorite smoke—giving greater fragrance, mildness and coolness than I have found in any other tobacco. Never stings or bites the tongue. Tuxedo doubles my enjoyment of pipe smoking."

A. H. GRIFFITH
Director of Detroit Museum of Art, and Lecturer, says:
"Like Omar I sometimes wonder what the makers of Tuxedo buy, one-half as precious as the stuff they sell. It's the greatest ever."

VICTOR P. ARNOLD
Member of the Chicago law firm of Northrup, Arnold & Fairbank, says:
"After a battle in the court-room, there is nothing like retiring to your private office, sitting back in your chair with your feet on your desk and enjoying a fine smoke of Tuxedo. It is immense!"

Tuxedo
The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

gives you this moderate and reasonable refreshment because it is primarily a pure, light, mild selection of the highest grades of Kentucky Burley tobacco.

Tuxedo can't bite your tongue. It can't irritate you in any way. There's no drag or sag in it. Simply pleasant, whiffable, aromatic, easy smoking.

Tuxedo has all these splendid qualities because it is made by the original Tuxedo Process of treating Burley leaf. Many other manufacturers have tried to imitate the Tuxedo Process—but never succeeded. Hence there is no other tobacco "just as good."

If you've tried the imitations, just try the original. At the end of one week you'll find yourself in line with the thousands of famous business men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, singers, athletes, who endorse Tuxedo as the one perfect tobacco.

WILLIAM COLLIER
Popular comedian, recently starring in "A Little Water on the Side," says:
"My pipe is always Tuxedo-filled. I tried other tobaccos before I discovered Tuxedo. Now there IS no other."

JAMES R. HAYES
Owner and Manager of the Wayne Hotel, Detroit, Mich.; Park Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark., and Park Hotel, Sault Ste. Marie, says:
"Sports afield and afloat appeal to me, but the day would not be wholly enjoyable without the evening pipe of Tuxedo, my favorite smoke."

PATRICK H. O'DONNELL
A prominent lawyer of Chicago, says:
"A canvass of my friends would show that Tuxedo is most popular with them. Many say it is the only pipe tobacco."

CRESSMAN'S COUNSELLOR 5¢ CIGAR

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

Not until you stock up on this cigar in the right way and push it by "putting your shoulder to the wheel", will you realize to the full what a prolific source of profit it is.

Brunhoff Jump Spark Lighter with Automatic Cutter

Operates with an excellent jump spark coil. The main feature is that the lighter uses electricity only for an instant. No current used or wasted on return into position. This is most important. It saves your batteries —gives them longer life. The front is for your ad or for a mirror. The handle is convenient to light from, for the shortest or the tallest. Pull the handle to you, slow or fast, "you get a light every time."

If you want the best lighter ever made, send us $12.00 and state if wanted with glass or mirror front. Send label if you want us to insert it.

REVIVAL OF NEW YORK JOBBING TRADE HAS WHOLESOME EFFECT

Many New Concerns Have Opened Up—Others in Prospect —Result of the Court Action Against Metropolitan Tobacco Company

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

NEW YORK, September 14th.

DURING recent months there has been opened in the City of New York a number of new wholesale tobacco houses, which indicates a complete revival of the jobbing trade in this city, which has been practically extinct along certain lines for several years past.

These new jobbing houses are a direct result of the recent court proceedings against the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, which resulted in the cancellation of that concern's contracts with the American Tobacco Company and its former subsidiaries. Announcements were made several months ago by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company and by the American Tobacco Company, that in future the distribution of their brands would be an open one and that no particular concern would enjoy any advantage over any others who had been placed on the list of wholesale houses which were entitled to wholesale rates.

Today there are about forty distinct jobbing houses in the City of New York who are in active competition for the small trade on cigarettes, chewing and smoking tobacco and cigars, and who are recognized as jobbers by the big concerns.

Within sixty days past, THE TOBACCO WORLD has published the facts concerning the opening for several new firms who are engaged in the wholesaling of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco. Among these is the A. H. Hillman Tobacco Company down on Broome Street, who were for many years formerly in the jobbing business. In a recent talk Mr. Hillman, head of the new house, expressed himself as most optimistic about the new industry in New York City.

He stated that he could buy standard brands from the big companies on just as advantageous terms as any one in business, and that it was a matter of salesmanship only to go ahead and make a success.

The Cosmopolitan Tobacco Company is another jobbing house which has recently opened its doors on Sixth Avenue. This company, with an adequate capital, is making a strong bid for the trade. Up in the Harlem district a new wholesale concern opened up about six weeks ago.

We hear now officially that Berriman Brothers will also establish a jobbing branch to their cigar business and that they will wholesale cigarettes to their customers of approved ratings.

Such houses as Park & Tilford, Acker, Merrall & Condit, G. S. Nicholas & Company, G. W. Faber and others who have been prominent factors in cigars are now in much better shape than ever before to extensively push the cigarette and tobacco ends of their business, and the opportunity is not being overlooked.

Altogether the development of the wholesale industry in New York has had a most wholesome effect upon the trade at large and with an ever increasing outlet for all kinds of cigarettes, smoking tobacco as well as cigars, the results should be much more apparent a few months hence.

KNICKERBOCKER.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS AGREES ON MEASURE TO TAX TOBACCO TRADE

War Tax on Freight Abandoned—Licenses for Tobacco Manufacturers and Dealers to Raise $4,000,000—New Bill Said to Have Majority Backing in the House

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.

AS it was evident to both President Wilson and Representative Underwood that the freight tax was not acceptable to the party in Congress, the Democratic caucus tonight swept aside all differences and took steps for the formation of a bill that will have practically the unanimous backing of the majority in the House, abandoning the proposed freight increase.

The bill as it will be written in accordance with directions from the majority caucus is virtually the measure which was originally adopted by the Ways and Means Democrats and which was rejected by the President, except what amounts to a practical re-enactment of Schedule A of the Spanish-American stamp tax is substituted for the provision for an increase in the income tax rates and a reduction of the exempted amount of income.

The tobacco industry under the new bill will be called upon to raise $4,000,000. This sum is to be procured by a tax on licenses for tobacco manufacturers and dealers and will range from $6 to dealers in leaf tobacco doing an annual business not exceeding $50,000, to $24 on cigar dealers doing a business in excess of $200,000.

Despite the assurances of Representative Underwood that he is personally opposed to burdening the tobacco industry further, the Ways and Means Committee will be called upon to draft this new bill carrying the provisions which were agreed to in principle in the caucus.

The bill will be framed by Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, within the next few days. Its terms were agreed upon at a conference with the President at the White House, at which both Mr. Underwood and Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; Secretary McAdoo and Postmaster-General Burleson were present. The program was accepted unanimously and enthusiastically by the Democratic Representatives in their caucus.

The bill will call for an additional tax of 50 cents a barrel on beer, from which it is estimated $32,500,000 will be raised; a tax of 12 cents a gallon on dry domestic wines and 20 cents on sweet domestic wines, to bring in $8,000,000; a tax on licenses for tobacco manufacturers and dealers, to raise $4,000,000; a tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, to raise $20,000,000; a special tax on bankers and brokers, to raise $5,800,000, and a stamp tax along the lines of the Spanish-American war tax on bonds, certificates, shares of stock, bills of sale, drafts, checks, mortgages, telegrams and the like, to bring in approximately $35,000,000. The total estimated revenues from these sources are $105,000,000.

CAPITOL.

A very satisfactory business in Sumatra is reported by William Quanjer, of the firm of Scheltema & Quanjer. The latter has recently been on a visit among his customers. This firm was admitted to the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade at the last meeting of the trustees.

The Hon. Oscar W. Underwood has advised THE TOBACCO WORLD that so far as he is personally concerned, he recognizes the fact that the war in Europe has been very disastrous to the tobacco interests of the country, and that personally he is not disposed to increase their burdens by levying an additional tax.

The Time to Advertise

This is certainly good news, but still better is the report that it is not the intention of Congress to further burden the cigar and tobacco industry in any way at this time.

The prosperity of the United States is in no way threatened; but, on the other hand, industrial conditions show promise of the greatest activity in our history. Already many factories are working to capacity. This means increased trade for the retailer. There never was a better time to advertise. THE TOBACCO WORLD offers an opportunity to those manufacturers who understand the value of a good advertising medium. Advertising which builds for the future is an indestructible asset as long as it is maintained.

Now that the vacation season is over and every one has returned to their work, a consideration of the cigar industry leads to the belief that we are on the verge of a season which will surpass that of previous years.

The Busy Cigar Season

The past months of this year have been varied, indeed, but notwithstanding the unsettled state of the country, the larger manufacturers have kept up with the figures of previous years and in some instances surpassed them. The smaller manufacturers, unfortunately, have had more to contend with and therefore have not been so successful.

However, the indications now point to a splendid boom in business, and already reports from the different sections prove that the retailers are beginning to feel the increase in trade. This is not all due to the return of the vacationists, as the re-employment of labor is going steadily forward and money is a little easier.

The cigarmakers are again returning to their benches preparatory to turning out the goods for the holiday season and prospects look brighter all around.

In these times of excitement American smokers turn more and more to the soothing weed, and many dealers point to the rapid growth of their sales since the war plot has thickened.

* * *

Cigar manufacturers seem inclined to be well pleased with the proposed revision of the bill to raise additional revenue, which includes a tax on tobacco dealers to raise the sum of $4,000,000.

The Proposed Tobacco Tax

The cigar manufacturers have been willing to bear any equitable share of the deficit which the new tax proposes to make up, but they have justly opposed and protested against any legislation which would put one-third to one-half the burden on the cigar manufacturers alone.

No man in the tobacco industry will object to contributing from $6 to $24 a year toward the maintenance of the Government expenses, according to the amount of business he does. A sense of duty and of patriotism would naturally make such legislation acceptable.

It is pointed out that cigar manufacturers would have been hard hit by the proposed freight tax, and the action of the Democratic caucus last night will tend to ease their burdens.

It is easily seen that the protests of the tobacco industry have not been without results and the promptness with which the entire trade took action is a matter for congratulation. The majority of the tobacco manufacturers could not have stood the tax as originally proposed, and the fact that the situation has been avoided is due to the fact that the small manufacturer and the big one have stood shoulder to shoulder when the existence of the former was threatened.

Selak & Hoffman to Launch New Brand

The well-known cigar manufacturing firm of Selak & Hoffman, of Wilmington, Del., are preparing to launch a new brand under the title of "Havana Spear," which will be a broadleaf-wrapped, Havana-filled cigar, selling at ten cents or three for a quarter.

The "Escanaba," a nickel seller, which was launched by this firm last year, has been very successful and the firm is confident of a good demand for their new product.

Sketch of H. L. Judell & Co. Building at Exposition

THE accompanying illustration shows the artist's sketch of the building that will be occupied by H. L. Judell & Company, cigar and tobacco jobbers, of San Francisco, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The building will be located on the "Zone" and will be devoted exclusively to the sale and exhibition of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

The cigar in front of the building will project about twenty feet from the "Webster" head. During the day the end of the cigar will emit smoke, while at night the glass band encircling it will be lighted by electricity.

Among the brands to be particularly featured at the H. L. Judell & Company stand are the "Webster," made by Pendas & Alvarez; "Flor de Moss," made by the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, and the "Watt," a five-cent straight smoke made by Bondy & Lederer. In addition to these brands, the general jobbing line of the firm will be displayed. Nothing but the finest sizes and the best brands will be handled at the Exposition. A decision has not yet been reached as to what cigarettes and smoking tobaccos will be featured.

The H. L. Judell & Company management extends a cordial invitation to the cigar and tobacco manufacturers, as well as the wholesale and retail dealers in this line, to make the "Smoke Shop" their headquarters during the Exposition and to have mail sent in their care.

Chairman Underwood Opposed to Taxing Tobacco

The following communication was received from Chairman Underwood in reply to a letter from THE TOBACCO WORLD urging the careful consideration of submitted facts:

September 4, 1914.

"The Tobacco World," 236 Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, Penna.

Gentlemen:

I am in receipt of your favor of the third instant. I cannot state to you definitely what will be done by the Ways and Means Committee in writing the new revenue bill. So far as I am personally concerned, I recognize the fact that the war in Europe has been very disastrous to the tobacco interests of the country, and personally I am not disposed to increase their burdens by levying an additional tax.

Yours truly,
O. W. UNDERWOOD,
Chairman.

American Tobacco Culture in Ceylon

The British colonial office has secured the services of Mr. B. F. Scherffiers, formerly a tobacco expert in the United States, to investigate the cultivation of tobacco in Ceylon. At present the Jaffna district produces excellent crops of tobacco for native use, but the quality has never been found suitable to European tastes. It is largely used in making cigars, which are exported to British India. Mr. Scherffiers was brought out from the United States to undertake the development of the tobacco industry and the improving of its quality so that it might compete in the European markets. So far he has found the soil of the northern district admirably suited to the growing of burley and plug tobaccos, but the methods of curing are primitive. He brought seventy-two varieties of American tobacco seed, which will be tried in the Jaffna soil.—Daily Consular Reports.

J. H. Gallaher a Recent Visitor

J. H. Gallaher, of Gallaher's, Limited, Belfast, Ireland, was a recent visitor to the office of THE TOBACCO WORLD. Mr. Gallaher has been in this country for several weeks looking after the interests of his firm. They have tobacco plantations in Virginia and also in Kentucky. He reports conditions good, but states that they are apparently better in England than here. Mr. Gallaher sails for home on Saturday.

Mr. Gallaher's firm manufactures among other brands, Gallaher's "Park Drives," and the famous "Ten for Two Coppers" cigarettes. The firm maintains factories in Belfast and London, with depots in a dozen other cities.

"44" Cigars Please Coast Distributors

Glaser Brothers, the well-known San Francisco jobbers, state that the "44" cigar, for which they have recently secured the distribution, is making a big hit on the Coast. The firm claims that this brand has exceeded the success of any new brand that they have ever introduced. This news from the Coast upholds the reputation that the "44" cigar has made in other sections of the United States.

"Girard" Cigar Repeats Big in the West

W. W. Cowan, Western representative of the widely known house of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, makers of the "Girard" cigar, has recently made his appearance in Los Angeles after a successful trip through the Sacramento Valley. Mr. Cowan states that the distributors have taken kindly to the "Girard" and that he has been able to forward the factory a number of handsome repeat orders on the brand.

Globe Tobacco Machinery Company Suffers Fire Loss

The fire which recently damaged the five-story brick building at the corner of Mechanic and Ward Streets, Newark, N. J., gutted the plant of the Globe Tobacco Machinery Company which had quarters in the building. The total loss to the building and the six firms occupying it was upwards of $50,000.

The Importance of Window Displays

A very important feature of the modern stage is the lighting effect. In this respect the stage and the show window are very much alike. As in the theatre a carefully prepared scene might be rendered altogether ineffective by defective lighting, so in a window a cleverly arranged display may be made altogether unsuccessful if the lighting is not arranged to show it off. In the theatre the lighting can be changed to suit the scene. In the window this cannot be so easily done. The theatrical producer can have his scenery painted, and then arrange his lighting to suit it. Few window dressers can do this, so the successful one must consider what lighting facilities he has, and arrange his display to make the best of them.

Where the window dresser has to face poor stocks his tact and initiative should be at their best, it is his work to cater for a certain class of audience with the best he has, and careful manipulation of stock, combined with a willingness to be always learning, planning, and devising will in the end win out, and good results must follow.

His window and his advertising are part of the dealer's reserve force, on which he can call to supplement the other forces which are always working in his behalf, his personal salesmanship, the location of his shop, and the public's necessity to buy such goods as he sells. The displaying of goods as it is done today by most of the professional window dressers is an art, and when the proper elements are brought together and are harmonious one with the other, the show window becomes the most powerful of all advertising mediums, for goods artistically arranged in the show window will create more sales than any other form of publicity.

The manufacturers would find it profitable to spend considerable time and money in getting up good window displays of their products. Some of them have the services of window dressers, and find that it is a profitable proposition. The small retailer who has no knowledge of window dressing would greatly benefit by these displays, for manufacturers could furnish photographs with full instructions, as is already done by some companies, and also furnish the material. This would be a real service to the retailer, and the right kind of co-operation.

How to Roll Your Own

The Tobacco Company of California are now conducting an extremely interesting advertising campaign on "Bull Durham." The plan is to have a man in the dealer's window to demonstrate the most approved method of rolling your own cigarette. This is done by eight distinct movements, as follows:

1. In the fingers of the left hand hold paper, curved, to receive the tobacco, poured with the right hand.
2. Spread the tobacco the length of the paper, making it slightly hollow in the center.
3. Then place your two thumbs next to each other in the middle of the paper.
4. Roll cigarette on lower fingers, index fingers moving up. With thumbs gently force edge of paper over the tobacco.
5. Shape the cigarette by rolling it with the thumbs, as you draw them apart.
6. Hold the cigarette in your right hand, with edge of paper slightly projecting, and——
7. With the tip of your tongue moisten the projecting edge of the paper.
8. Close ends of cigarette by twisting the paper. The cigarette is now ready to smoke.

While this demonstration is in progress a book of cigarette papers will be given free to every buyer of a package of "Bull Durham" at the manufacturers' expense.

The Tobacco Yield and Prices in Greece

The Provinces of Boeotia, Argolis and Phthiotis, are the leading tobacco-producing centers in Greece. Considerable quantities of leaf tobacco of inferior quality are exported to Belgium and the Netherlands for manufacture into cigars. Egypt is also becoming one of the principal markets. Germany, Austria and Italy are also large buyers of Greek tobacco. The tobacco sent to Egypt is used principally for mixing with Turkish tobacco, forming the blend called "Paliage egyptienne." The year 1911 was remarkable for the large production of tobacco, that harvested being valued at 13,000,000 francs ($2,509,000).

The tobacco crop of 1913 in Greece was far below that of 1912, both in quantity and quality. The decline in quality was due to the lack of rains in the spring, with excessive downpours in the fall. The diminished quantity may be ascribed to the absence of large numbers of workers, who were attached to the army. However, the women took the place of the men to some extent, and because their work was done with more care and patience, the loss was in some degree diminished. Because of the anticipated short crop active speculation took place in this commodity, and the prices were forced up some 50 per cent. over 1912. Comparative prices of crops from the principal sections for 1913, as compared with 1912, were as follows, per pound: Agrinion, 1912, 20.15 to 34.19 cents; 1913, 34.19 cents. Argos, 1912, 5.47 cents; 1913, 7.52 cents. Thessaly, 1912, 17.09 cents; 1913, 27.35 cents. Lamia, 1912, 17.09 cents; 1913, 23.93 cents.

The area under cultivation in 1912 was 38,147 acres, producing approximately 21,375,000 pounds.

Trade Jottings

Louis G. Smith & Company's headquarters on Beaver Street have recently had a fine display on "La Duse" cigars made by Corral, Wodiska y Ca.

The Huder Pharmacy, Indianapolis, recently featured splendid displays on "Savaronas," Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, and "San Felice," Deisel-Wemmer Company.

Tom Gaynor, Toledo, O., has taken on the "Generalidad," H. C. Nolan & Company, a ten-cent seed and Havana proposition, and reports that the same is taking well.

Rothenberg & Schloss Cigar Company, Denver, Colo., report good business on "Tadema," the well known brand of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother.

"Hoo-Hoo" and "Cuesta's Latest," both five-cent brands, manufactured by Cuesta, Rey & Company, are being shown by the Crane store at Fourth and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky.

A. H. Hansen is the latest addition to the traveling staff of Allen & Lewis, Portland. Mr. Hansen will visit interior Alaska and look after the Yukon territory. Big things are looked for from Mr. Hansen, who is to take care of the distribution of "El Sidelos."

In order to attract attention to their cigar and tobacco department, Sibley, Lindsay & Curr, located in Main Street East, Rochester, N. Y., recently made a display of cigars in a special show case in the main entrance to the company's store. It is probably the first time in the history of the firm that a display of such a nature was ever made.

INFERENCE UNFAIR SAYS M. C. PATTERSON

Trade Paper Asked for "Square Deal"—Request Promptly Granted—Interesting Facts About Anti-Coupon Bill

THE fact that M. C. Patterson, president of the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Va., is a brother-in-law of Representative Underwood, together with the facts that the anti-coupon bill had been pigeonholed while the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company announced that they were to introduce the use of United Profit Sharing Coupons, caused the "Novelty News" in a recent issue to put two and two together and surmised that Mr. Patterson had good reason for believing that the anti-coupon bill would never be passed, or he would not have allowed his company to make a five-year contract with the coupon company.

To this inference Mr. Patterson replied to the "Novelty News" as follows:

> I have just read your article in the August number under the caption, "Why Oscar Underwood's Brother-in-Law Adopts Premium Methods."
>
> But for the intimation that I or any one could in any way influence Mr. Underwood in his position on any legislative question—which greatly wrongs him—I would accept your article as a model of flattery to me; but in justice to Mr. Underwood I must protest against the insinuation. If any one thinks that a father, brother, sister or wife can influence Mr. Underwood against his own judgment in matters of public duty, he argues himself totally ignorant of the character of the house leader. You only flatter me to credit me with that power. Not to deny it would be acquiescing in the circulation of false impressions of my importance in the forming of national laws.
>
> Your entire article is without the first element of fact. I did not know that an anti-coupon bill was even under consideration until I saw it announced in the papers. When it was introduced I did all I could to aid its passage. When it was defeated I concluded I was not doing my stockholders right to longer nurse a personal sentiment against coupons, when I knew they were strong agencies in the acquisition of customers. Therefore, I promptly embraced the opportunity to use the United Profit Sharing Coupons, and believe they will be great business getters, and I am sure the United Profit Sharing Coupons will be highly appreciated by the public.
>
> Now relative to any tip from Mr. Underwood that the anti-coupon bill would never be revived, no doubt in making this statement you overlooked the fact that he will soon retire as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and as leader of the House, to take his seat in the Senate, and it would only be a matter of prophecy with him as to what his successor or the next House would do with an anti-coupon bill. As much as I might value his opinion, I would not spend much money on assurances along this line. No; I adopted the coupon just as I would employ salesmen, and will take my chances with them along with others.
>
> Now, as you have paid me a great compliment at the expense of one of the most honest men ever in public life, I ask that you make this denial as prominent as you made the original statement.
>
> Yours truly,
> M. C. PATTERSON,
> President Patterson Bros. Tobacco Co., Inc.
> Makers of "Whip" and "Queed" Smoking Tobacco.

The "Novelty News" in the September issue published the above letter and replied as follows:

> We would much regret it if anybody put any wrong inference on our facetious statement of the situation. We meant no discredit or discourtesy to Mr. Underwood. In fact, we have the very highest regard for his ability, character and statesmanship—in fact, he is "The Novelty News" candidate to succeed President Wilson. Enough said.

THE TOBACCO SITUATION IN ENGLAND

Consumer Called on to Smoke as a Duty—Trade is Urged by the Government Not to Economize by Discharging Employees

THE situation regarding the tobacco industry in England while not all that could be desired is not by any means a disastrous one. There are ample supplies of leaf and the government is keeping the factories working day and night to supply the Army.

The cigar trade is not so well off and there is a shortage of money, but the trade is taking the situation coolly and the first gloomy forebodings are passing away.

The cigar imports and the pipes, pouches and holders that come from the continent can be secured from English manufacturers and there is promise of much improvement in this line of manufacture in England. It is true that much of the tobacco machinery comes from Germany, but there are a number of English firms that have taken this opportunity to introduce their own products.

The retail trade shows some improvement and the trade papers urge smoking as a duty, not a luxury, in view of the tax of approximately ninety cents a pound on raw tobacco. This tax is collected at the source, and it is pointed out that this revenue is required for the "sinews of war."

The bonded warehouses of England at present contain no less than 230,000,000 pounds of unmanufactured tobacco, enough for a two-years supply, based on the monthly average of the past seven months.

Smoking is no longer looked upon as a luxury, but a duty, and those who make presents to the expeditionary forces are urged to make it in the form of tobacco, as it not only will be a comfort to the men, but a patriotic action as well.

The Home Secretary has advised, "That it is neither desirable nor necessary in existing circumstances to dismiss any assistants, but that if economies in the carrying on of business are necessary, they should be met by other means."

The British cigar industry, in order to minimize unemployment, have made representations to the Chancellor of the Exchequer requesting "that a drawback may be credited to manufacturers on cigars deposited in bonded warehouses or approved room, such credit to be used for duty payments as required."

War has shown that the troops smoke more during active service than in the barracks. When a small body of troops has moved into a town the butcher and baker are generally prepared, but the tobacconists are often the cause of a famine.

Price of Tin May Help Wooden Cigar Box Trade

REGARDING the situation in regard to the tin market and its effect on the wooden cigar box trade, a writer in "Packages" has the following to say:

"While disturbance and disorder is general everywhere because of the European war there is coming out of the turmoil what looks like a good chance for cigar box manufacturers to benefit and to gain some additions to their trade for quite a while at least. This chance is in the fact that tin has practically doubled in price.

"Do you see the chance from this? Do you realize that tin and the tin box has cut into the wooden cigar box business considerably in many quarters and has supplied the material for making smoking tobacco boxes that might be made of wood, and perhaps will be used of wood with the price of tin higher so that the wooden box can be made in competition?

"A press bulletin of the United States Geological Survey says that the outbreak of the European war has caused the New York price of tin to rise to 65 cents per pound, although in the latter part of July tin was sold as low as 30.5 cents per pound.

"The reason for this is that while we make some tin in this country the larger part of our tin is imported. We imported annually about $40,000,000 worth of tin, and it is the interference with this trade which is causing the price of tin to soar. The bulk of our tin comes from England and lots of the tin ore for England smelters comes from Bolivia. In the course of time there will likely be established more tin smelters in this country and the situation will be relieved somewhat. Yet it is not likely that the price of tin will go down to where it was again soon unless the war should terminate suddenly and the smelter activities in England be resumed.

"Meantime this gives the cigar box man his opportunity to furnish wooden cigar boxes in place of so many of the tin cans that have been used the past few years in which to pack cigars to the detriment of the wooden box trade. Just how much of a factor this will prove to be remains to be seen. It is evident, however, that it will be quite an item and that the cigar box manufacturers will find themselves making more wooden packages for the cigar manufacturers.

"That is not all of it, either, for there is a chance to make some of the cheaper boxes for packing smoking tobacco. There is to be found right along one type of wooden box in among the many tin boxes and glass jars of the smoking tobacco trade. It is a half-pound wooden box used for packing the 'Seal of North Carolina.' Looking through the tobacco stores the writer has found that this is one wooden box among dozens of tin boxes used to hold about the same quantity of smoking tobacco. The wooden box is made of poplar and is pretty closely patterned after the cheaper cigar boxes. With the price of tin practically doubled it should be possible to meet the competition of the tin box and establish a trade in quite a number of wooden boxes for packing smoking tobacco. If this can be done it will add quite extensively to the work of the cigar box manufacturer. The chances for it to be done look good enough too, that it is worth going after and having a try at.

"Taking the situation all around the chances look mighty good for the cigar box men to regain a lot of the lost trade they have been grieving over for some time, and to do even more than that, to gain a trade in smoking tobacco boxes that they have never held heretofore. Think it over, then go talk it over not only with the cigar manufacturers, but also with the heads of the institution making smoking tobacco. There is a chance to do something, to get into the game with some of the old time vim and to develop a volume of trade that will put the cigar box business on the sunny side of boom days again. Roll up your sleeves and go to it."

The Crop Estimate

The estimated tobacco crop of the United States, as reported by the Bureau of Crop Estimates (formerly Bureau of Statistics), under date of September 8, 1914, as of September 1st, shows a much larger total than was predicted on August 1st, with the condition also highly augmented.

The September 1st forecast for the United States gives the total tobacco production at 862,000,000 pounds, compared with 791,000,000 pounds on August 1st, and 953,734,000 pounds the final estimate for 1913. This is an increase of 9 per cent. over the estimate of a month ago, and shows the wonderful growth which tobacco experienced after the breaking of the long drought. The condition, as of September 1st, was 71.4 per cent. of a normal, compared with 66.5 per cent. last month, 75.4 last year, and 80.6 the ten-year average. The indicated yield per acre was put at 729 pounds, contrasted with 815.1 pounds for the five-year average.

Gallaher's Limited Start Shipments Again

The European war has caused all tobacco dealers to cease shipments to foreign countries, although the Gallaher, Limited, began on Friday with a shipment of 1,000 hogsheads from Providence, Princeton, Henderson and Owensboro, to its main factory in Belfast Ireland. The tobacco is heavily insured and is needed at once by the firm. The tobacco will be loaded on English ships at Newport News, Va.

Boy Scouts Get Cigars for the Dutch

Reports received from Amsterdam, Holland, under date of September 6th, state that the Dutch army believes it may rightfully boast of being the best-equipped army in Europe, so far as smoking comforts go. The boy scouts, during the first days of mobilization, went all over the city of Amsterdam with barrows, gathering cigars for the soldiers. The total was too big to count, but within two hours one day more than 20,000 cigars were gathered. Passers-by emptied their cigar cases, dealers presented full boxes and non-smokers contributed money for the purchase of cigars. All along the frontier the sentinels may now be seen comfortably puffing away at these cigars.

Tobacco Conditions in Italy

Tobacco growing in Italy is permitted only by special license, and is under the control of the excise office. The plantations in this district are along the Brenta River near Bassano, where on an area of 1000 acres about 14,000,000 plants are under cultivation. The yield averages 1700 pounds, giving a return of $100 per acre to the grower. The leaves of the plants are counted, and, when matured and dried, have to be delivered to the officials at Carpene.

Snuff and cheap cigars, called "cheroots," are made by a factory in Venice that employs a large force of girls.

This display was made at the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia, August 17-21, 1914, during the Convention of The National Association of Retail Druggists.

The "Cinco" cigar, which is strictly hand made, has the largest sale of any brand in the United States, and is constantly growing in popularity.

The factories of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, in which the above-mentioned brands are made, are reputed to be as near perfect as possible, in regard to cleanliness, sanitary conditions generally, and the comfort of the employees, under which surroundings, a uniform, clean and hygienic cigar is produced.

Fargo Jobbing House Prospers

Reineke & McKone, one of the biggest wholesale cigar, tobacco and pipe jobbers in North Dakota, with head offices at Fargo, report business good with prospects of a heavy fall and winter trade.

This firm covers all of North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Minnesota.

The firm's leading brands are: "Nestor," "Famabella," "R. B.," "Bachelor" and "San Felice."

This business was established in 1900 under the firm name of Ferris, Grady & Reineke, being succeeded by Reineke & McKone in 1910. Besides its big business, the firm operates the Broadway Cigar Store on Broadway, the Othman Cigar Store on N. P. Avenue, the Nestor Cigar Store and bowling alleys on First Avenue north and the Waldorf cigar stand at the Waldorf Hotel. All these are located in Fargo.

C. H. Reineke and J. F. McKone are the firm members. The former has lived in Fargo for thirty years, while the latter has been in the Gate City since 1900. They are progressive business men and successful because they are boosters and live-wires.

P. Lorillard Company Buys New Sites

Thomas J. Maloney, president of the P. Lorillard Company, has purchased from the Enes Richardson estate forty lots in the Marion section of Jersey City, situate as follows: Five in the south side of Railroad Avenue, three in the east side of Herman Avenue, five at the southwest corner of Broadway and Whittier Avenue, twelve in the west side of Whittier Avenue, five at the southwest corner of Broadway and Freeman Avenue and ten in the west side of Freeman Avenue near Broadway.

Holton to Enter Leaf Business

John Holton, who has represented the American Cigar Company at its Stoughton, Wis., leaf branch from its inception to the time of closing last week, has leased the warehouse used by his former employers, and under the name of the Holton Leaf Tobacco Company will engage as an independent dealer in the business, to which he has already devoted many years, and with which he is so thoroughly familiar. He will be in the field as a buyer of this year's crop, and his long experience and fair dealings as the representative of the big New York corporation will form an asset that should go far to assure the success of the enterprise upon which he has embarked.

Canton Dealer in Bankruptcy

Mier E. Loeb, cigar dealer of 222 Walnut Avenue, Canton, O., has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court at Cleveland. The papers were received by Referee McCarthy, before whom the first hearing of the case came up on August 29th. According to Loeb's petition his liabilities are fixed at $6336.75. He sets forth his assets at $15,900, but of this amount $12,000 is in insurance policies. Attorney Jos. M. Blake was appointed receiver.

Many Cigars for German Army

A newspaper in Berlin recently printed the following dispatch from the Crown Prince:

"Please collect great quantities of tobacco and cigars for the men of my army and get them here as quickly as possible."

Among the goods demanded by the German army for the non-occupation of Ghent by them was 100,000 cigars.

Key West

Cigarmakers Observe Labor Day—Leopold Wolf Dead in New York— E. H. Gato Cigar Company Busy

KEY WEST, FLA., September 10.

LABOR DAY was more than usually observed here on Monday, and all the operatives of the cigar factories who recently became members of the union took a conspicuous part. Managers of these shops intended to work, but they were notified last week that it would be a waste of time for them to prepare material for the cigarmakers on that day as they would not show up.

There was a street parade with a band of music in the morning over the principal streets of the city. Addresses were made at the Louis Pavilion by Mayor Joseph N. Fogarty, Cuban Consul A. D. Carrasco, José de la Campo, of Tampa strike fame, and the heads of the labor organizations.

The workmen at the Havana-American Company's factory went out on a strike last week, demanding an increase of $2 per thousand on a certain size. After the loss of about three days the operatives decided to return to work at the old price of $19 per thousand, instead of the $21 demanded by them.

C. L. Poston and W. D. Tanksley, of the American Tobacco Company, who had been spending several days in the city boosting the "Sovereign" brand of cigarettes, left last week for Jacksonville, Fla., after a very successful campaign.

Chas. Wardlow, son of President John Wardlow, of the Ruy Lopez Company, who has been enjoying a short vacation trip to the North, returned on Saturday's Mallory steamer from New York. He was accompanied by H. G. Seagroatt, of Tampa, Fla., who will spend several days this week in the city as Mr. Wardlow's guest. At the factory business is in excellent shape and additions to the force of workmen on finer sizes are constantly being made.

José Lovera, of the José Lovera Company, of Tampa, Fla., passed through town last week being en route to Havana. Val M. Antuono, Morris Bustillo, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz; Frank R. Diaz, of Guerra, Diaz & Company; Fecundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother; Alfredo Pendas, of M. A. Gunst & Company; José Lozano, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez; Manuel Sandrez, of Berriman Brothers, and Angel Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, were also through passengers between this port and Havana recently.

The opening of the tourists' season this year will find the Over Sea Hotel greatly improved and in a better position than ever to cater to their guests. This hostelry is modern and up-to-date in every respect and was opened for the first time last year.

Messrs. Louis Martinez, senior and junior, arrived from Cuba last week, and after spending a few days at the factory the two gentlemen left for New York on Saturday evening.

President Martinez, of the Martinez-Havana Company, will spend a couple of weeks at the firm's Northern office, while Luis, Jr., will enter a prominent New York commercial school and take a thorough course.

A cablegram received on Monday morning announced the death at New York of Leopold Wolf, brother of the late Sam J. Wolf, one of the pioneer cigar manufacturers of Key West. He is survived in this city by Charles, Sam J. and Julius Wolf, nephews, to whom the sympathy of the entire trade is extended.

At the big factory of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, orders by wire and mail are increasing and both main building and annex are being utilized. A pleasure party composed of Secretary Thomas H. and Eduardo H. Gato, 3rd, Dr. E. Rodriguez and A. Martinez, left on Saturday night for a short visit to the East Coast.

Norberg Thompson, vice-president and general manager of the Key West Cigar Box Company, left on Saturday for a business trip to New York City.

The new factory building of Moreda & Company is fast nearing completion, and if nothing unforeseen happens will be ready for occupancy very early in the coming month. J. H. McFall, auditor of the company, was in town recently going over the books. W. B. Bauman has superseded Teddy Bayly as office manager.

Advices received at the factory office from Francisco Fleitas, now in the North, state that he has started the campaign in the interest of "Homerica," the S. & F. Fleitas popular brand, and that he was sanguine as to the outcome. During the absence of Francisco Fleitas, the factory is under the management of President Segundo Fleitas.

Americans Smoking More During War Times

The war in Europe is causing a psychological booming in at least one line of business, and not a psychological depression. Men are smoking more than they did before the war began and they are smoking because of a psychological reason, according to retail dealers in tobacco in this city. The great nervous excitement under which the American people are laboring as a result of the war causes them to need some mental sedative and this sedative is furnished by tobacco in all its forms, but particularly in cigars, cigarettes and pipes. When a man picks up his paper and reads therein of the struggle in Europe, he becomes excited and must have recourse to his "jimmy pipe," or his cigarette or his perfecto, according to the size of his pay envelope, in order to calm himself, and to be able to discuss with his neighbors in a judicious manner just what the latest war movement does not mean.

The disappearance of the pay envelope entirely, a phenomenon which is not psychological, according to some people, is also a cause of the increased consumption of tobacco, the dealers say. When a man is out of work he always smokes more than he would if he were working. Having nothing else to do except sit in an easy chair or on a park bench and point out the great mistakes which the commanders of the European armies are making, the pouch or the case soon becomes low and another visit must be made to the tobacco store in order to lay in a fresh supply of incense to burn before the shrine of My Lady Nicotine.

For these two reasons the consumption of tobacco has increased greatly during the past four weeks.

"All Alike" Cigars Now in Tins

THE departure made some months ago by the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, when they began packing certain brands in tins, has created such a demand for similar packings that this firm are now packing their "All Alike" cigars in tin packages.

The jobbers throughout the Western and Southwestern territory presented such a firm request that the "All Alike" in Londres shape was placed in the new package as soon as it was possible.

The brand which was first packed in tin was the "Chicos" and this was accomplished to cater to the jobbers and distributors throughout upper New York and adjacent territory.

Mitchell, Fletcher & Company to Handle "Regreso" Cigars

Announcement has just been made that Mitchell, Fletcher & Company will handle the "Regreso" cigars, made by Corral, Wodiska y Ca., Tampa, Fla.

For the present six sizes, ranging in price from $9 to $12, will be carried, and other sizes and prices will be added as soon as conditions warrant.

In addition to being sold over the counters of their several stores, Mitchell, Fletcher & Company will feature these goods in their catalogue, and every indication points towards a wide distribution through this medium, and a good share of holiday business should accrue to this well known line.

Good Outlook for Sanchez y Haya

Harry Moulsdale, of the Sanchez & Haya Company, was in Philadelphia last week, and is optimistic over the outlook for fall and winter business on the product of Factory No. 1, Tampa, Fla.

Since the bonding of the factory some months ago, the distribution has increased in a satisfactory manner, and additional territory is being developed as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

Lithograph Salesman Finds Business Good

Henry Harrison, representing Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, the widely known lithographing house, was among the visitors in Philadelphia this week. Although new on the territory, Mr. Harrison states that he has been well received and that he has been agreeably surprised by the size and number of his orders. He also states that the war has stimulated the business of his house appreciably and that he believes a new era is dawning for American lithographers.

Philadelphia Notes

W. C. Saunders, of the Cortez Factory, spent some time in Philadelphia last week.

Jobbers and retailers are beginning to talk about "Cigar Day," and it looks as if the trade will make a big thing of it.

"Pera" cigarettes recently occupied one of the windows on the Chestnut Street side of the Showell & Fryer store. This brand is forging to the front on merit.

Robert E. Lane, Jr., was a recent visitor in the city. Mr. Lane reports that "Partagas" cigars are in heavy demand in the "Quaker City."

The Dalton store at Fifth and Chestnut Streets has had a good display on the "Adelina Patti" brand, manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company.

W. B. Houston, of Faber & Company, with headquarters in New York City, spent several days among the local dealers last week.

E. G. Walthall, Western representative for the El Draco Cigar Company, left last week on a trip through Ohio and Michigan. He is carrying a full line of the "Stratford" sizes. At the factory business is reported as being good on this brand.

C. W. Hesselbacher Resigns

C. W. Hesselbacher, for more than thirty years connected with the Philadelphia branch of Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, has resigned his position as office manager, the same taking effect September 3rd. Mr. Hesselbacher entered the employ of the firm in 1884 and during late years was associated with John T. Dee in the office management. Mr. Dee resigned in January.

"Fancy Tales" Is New "El Palencia" Size

"Fancy Tales," a new seven-inch size of the "El Palencia" cigar, made by Boltz, Clymer & Company, retailing at twenty-five cents, has recently been placed on the market. This new size has just reached the Pacific Coast, where it is creating much favorable comment, and the salesmen report that they are securing some splendid orders for the factory.

Chicago

Calabash Pipes Gaining in Popularity—Newmann & Gach Continue Fight Against Increased Taxation—Berriman Brothers Campaigning on "Jose Vila"

CHICAGO, September 10.

MOST of the factories are running full force while the jobbers, after completing a summer which was satisfactory on the whole, are feeling already the advance orders for the holiday trade. Retailers are doing a good business, for the weather the past two weeks has been cool and of a variety which tends to stimulate the desire for the weed. Many picturesque window displays grace the stores of the city, especially in the Loop district. The retailers who conduct stands in the lobbies of the great office buildings are glad to state that most of the old customers have returned from vacations. Many of these dealers received orders from customers while they were away on vacations, such favors coming mostly from "one brand" fiends who believe that there is one good cigar in the world and that all others are cabbage.

Best & Russell had a fine display in the north window of their establishment in Wabash Avenue on "Robert Burns." The entire window was filled with opened boxes, heaped one on the other in the form of a terrace. The color combination of the rest of the window helped out the well-known label colors of that cigar.

The Monroe Cigar Store was another Loop concern with a good window this week. The company is featuring "La Verdad" cigar, one of the best Havana sellers of the fine line of the firm.

George A. Renaud, secretary of the Monroe Cigar Company, has returned from a two-weeks' vacation in Northern Wisconsin. George has something of a reputation as a fisherman, but this time he had poor luck. He declares that he went too late in the season. Last year he caught a monster muskellunge, which he had stuffed and placed in the window of the store as proof to the doubting. He is bewailing his poor luck this year and says he cannot understand it unless it is because other cigar men who went up earlier in the season pulled so many fish out of the water that none were left for him.

Now that the holiday trade is not far away, pipes have come into the limelight. There have been some fine displays around the city. All kinds are featured, from meerschaum to "Missouri meerschaum," or corncob. Calabash pipes are very popular. The crusade in their favor is being led by the younger set in the city. The seniors of a large high school on the south side of the city adopted them before the close of school last year, and they have been growing in favor all summer. Many window displays containing nothing but calabashes have appeared on the south side as a result of this initial movement in favor of that variety.

H. M. Schermerhorn, who was successful in securing the cigar and tobacco privileges in the new Continental and Commercial National Bank, will doubtless notice an increase in his business which has been booming since the day he opened. The bank itself moves into the new home this week. Along with the bank will come many other dependent and related concerns. It is understood that all of the entire space in the building, which is said to be the largest of the kind in the world, has been contracted for.

The announcement was made this week that Best & Russell will open a new store at Jackson Boulevard and La Salle Street, which has long been regarded by cigar men as one of the best corners in the Loop district. The building has been undergoing a series of alterations, which has more or less delayed the company in getting the doors open.

That the retail cigar trade of the city is by no means sick is evidenced by another new store which has opened. This is the one established as a branch by C. H. Stevenson, who has long conducted a big store at 610 South Dearborn Street. The new store is in the Loop district at 57 East Jackson Boulevard. The space is small but the location is a good one and under the able management of J. R. Isett, ought to prove a great success.

Newmann & Gach, prominent leaf tobacco dealers of the city, are leading the fight which is being made by the local trade against the proposed increased taxation on cigars. Instead of confining their efforts to talk, this enterprising company has sent out a series of blanks to country dealers on which is printed a neat and respectful protest against the proposed measure. The dealers are asked to sign them up and send them to Washington, where they will be presented to Congress. Several thousand have already been sent out and others will follow. Newmann & Gach deserve the warm commendation of the trade in the effort which they are making to prevent this threatened blow.

The Flor de Cuba Tobacco Company has incorporated for $5000, and will conduct a business in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco. John Rudak, Frank S. Koranck and Frank Grabinski are the incorporators. All have had some experience in the cigar business. The company is a retail concern. A location on the northwest side of the city will be taken, it is understood.

Taylor's Cigar Store was damaged by a fire which for a time threatened the entire block on Milwaukee Avenue last week. The fire started in a furniture store next to the cigar store. The flames spread to the cigar store and only the arrival of the firemen saved the entire stock from destruction. Water did a great deal of damage to stock, however.

Frank P. Lewin, of the Frank P. Lewin Cigar Company, Peoria, was in the city one day last week. He announced that at a recent meeting of the board of directors the number had been increased from five to six. Mr. Lewin said that business was fine with his company, and that things in general were "looking up" in his part of the state.

Anton Krog, who will be remembered by the older members of the trade as one of the pioneer cigar manufacturers of this city, died last week.

Edward Kirsch, manager of the retail cigar store of Grommes & Elston, 83 West Randolph Street, is spending his vacation in the wilds of Canada with rod and reel. He is expected back in the city next week.

The large factory of Grommes & Elston is beginning to get busy on the northwest side. The fall rush of orders in now being felt. "Ben Bey" continues a popular seller in all sizes.

Berriman Brothers are making a city-wide campaign on "Jose Vila" cigars, and are meeting with much success. They have installed some fine window displays in the residence district stores. One of the main efforts of the company has been to make the cigar popular in the small outlying stores as well as the larger ones downtown.

Leaf men declare that the situation is fine, with good collections and brisk orders.

"The manufacturers are beginning to lay in stock now for the holiday trade," said William Taussig, of the well-known leaf firm of Taussig & Company, "and this has caused more than the usual amount of bustle in leaf circles. I do not believe the manufacturers of the country are alarmed over the war. I know we are not. We are in a position to supply our customers with good goods at the right price all the time, now as well as in the past."

NEW YORK

P. A. Becker to Protect His Patents

FOLLOWING up his several warnings to the manufacturers of glass cigar box lids which it is claimed infringe his patents, P. A. Becker, of the P. A. Becker Company, the widely known inventor of the All Glass Cigar Box Lid, as well as many other styles and devices for the display and protection of cigars in conjunction with a glass covering, announces elsewhere in THE TOBACCO WORLD that he is now prepared to defend his patents and the interests of his clients by due process of law.

As the rightful owner of Patents Nos. 667,815, 714,855, 947,739, 1,079,466, 1,080,883, 1,094,193 and 1,107,643 together with many others allowed and pending, Mr. Becker states that he is prepared to settle the question of the original inventor and rightful owner. Some of Mr. Becker's newer inventions have not yet been put on the market, but a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD has seen several of them that will no doubt create a sensation when they are offered to the trade.

Mr. Becker has been for the past sixteen years creating and manufacturing endless devices for the improvement of the cigar business, and the fact that he now feels called upon to establish his claim as the original inventor of more than thirty devices is proof of the success of his products.

In announcing the preparation of suits against alleged infringers, Mr. Becker states that he is prepared to fully defend the interests of his customers who have found the Becker devices superior for their uses.

Ess-En-Cee Company Retires from Business

The Ess-En-Cee Company, Inc., of New York City, manufacturers of Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes and jobbers of high-grade imported cigars, has decided to wind up its affairs and retire from business. The company's leading cigarette was named after the firm, and it was their intention to put a new brand on the market to be known as the "Forty-Seven," preparations for the launching of which were almost complete. The general sales manager had even gone so far as to book several large orders for the brand, when a disagreement among the stockholders occurred which resulted in the discontinuance of the business.

Heavy Call for American Sumatra

President Julius Lichtenstein and his aides, of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, are very busy these days since their samples have arrived. The quality of the yield this year has been beyond expectations and the samples have brought a large number of buyers to 131 Water Street. The firm reports business excellent.

Ed Wodiska Back From War Scenes

Among the recently returned travelers from Europe is Ed Wodiska, of the firm of Corral, Wodiska y Ca, well-known manufacturers of Tampa, Fla.

Mr. Wodiska says that he suffered little inconvenience in getting out of Europe, although he had limited quarters on the steamer coming home.

E. Berger Visits New York

EMIL BERGER, the secretary and general manager of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, accompanied by his wife and son, spent a week in New York and left here for Tampa on September 6th.

Mr. Berger has been in attendance at the National Retail Drug Convention, which was held in Philadelphia recently, and his company, together with Otto Eisenlohr & Brother, had a cigar exhibit at the convention.

The business of the Tampa-Cuba Company is growing tremendously and Mr. Berger says that it is only a question of a very short time when they must have a much larger factory in Tampa.

F. S. Powell Now Has Novelty Line

F. S. Powell who has been for some years in the cigarette business and more recently with Condax, is now handling the novelty line of the E. T. Gilbert Manufacturing Company, of Rochester, N. Y., and has opened a number of fine accounts for them on their pipe cleaners and other specialties. Mr. Powell's headquarters in New York are at 395 Fort Washington Avenue.

M. W. Berriman Back in New York

Matthew W. Berriman, honorary president of the National Cigar Day Association, of the firm of Berriman Brothers, is back from a short trip to Tampa and Cuba. While in Havana Mr. Berriman made purchases of some high-grade leaf.

M. Melachrino to Get More Turkish Tobacco

In order to make more room for the storing of further supplies in the leaf warehouses in Cavalla, some 1500 bales fine Turkish leaf will be sent forward soon to the M. Melachrino & Company factory in New York.

Moritz Neuberger a Volunteer of fine Turkish leaf will be sent forward soon to the M. Melberger, of the Heinrich Neuberger and the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, who was in Germany at the outbreak of the war, has volunteered for service. It is recalled that at the time of Mr. Neuberger's resignation from the German army three years ago he was a captain in the reserves. Just what branch of the service he is now in is not known.

Robert E. Lane is now en route to the Pacific Coast with his new line of "Partagas" samples. He was a recent visitor in the twin cities.

Washington Cigar Company Formed

Articles of incorporation have been filed recently at Albany, N. Y., for the Washington Cigar Company, of New York, who will make cigars, with an authorized capital of $5000. The parties in interest are F. Slutsky and two attorneys, A. D. Levin and Maurice Steiner, whose offices are located at 35 Nassau Street, New York.

Detroit

Detroit Cigar Manufacturers Prospering—"San Telmo" Exhibit a Hit at the State Fair—G. A. R. Week Boosts Retail Cigar Sales

DETROIT, MICH., September 9.

THERE is an old saying that "Self-Preservation is the First Law of Nature." And so it is with Detroit and its cigar industry. That the Detroit cigar manufacturers are enjoying greater prosperity than they ever have and that all talk of business being on the decline is without foundation, is easily proven by a careful glance at these figures which are official, having come from the office of the Internal Revenue Collector: In August, Detroit produced 27,071,333 cigars, in comparison with 26,593,310 for the same month in 1913. This means that the amount paid to the Internal Revenue Office was $81,214, in comparison with $79,779.93 paid last year. Detroit paid for tobacco $222,562.40, as compared with $196,159.82 in 1913 for the same month, which represents in pounds 2,782,030, as compared with 2,326,997.

Detroit cigar manufacturers really feel proud of this excellent production because it clearly demonstrates the increased demand for Detroit-made goods. Predictions are that September will also be a big month, judging from the large orders now on hand.

Another thing that makes our local manufacturers feel good is the fact that the increase in the internal revenue tax in all probability will not be applied to the cigar industry.

Card Garrison, sales manager of the Banner Cigar Company, states that the moving of the factory from the present location on Randolph Street to the new building on Warren Avenue, East, has been postponed until the latter part of the month or the first of October.

A local paper in commenting on the marriage of Walter A. Reindel, of the Liggett & Meyers staff, in Michigan, said: "The wedding ceremony of Walter A. Reindel and Miss Rhea Dunn was held August 25th. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party went to the home of the bride's brother-in-law, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. There were fifty-two guests present, numbering only near relatives and a few close friends. Mr. and Mrs. Reindel left on the Buffalo boat for a trip East. On their return the young couple will make their home in Lansing, Mich."

The police department are looking for a clerk who disappeared with over $100 belonging to Bert Engle, who conducts a cigar store at 21 Campus Martius.

We had some visitors from out of town the past ten days of leading cigar retailers, among them being John Stander, proprietor of the Morton House cigar stand in Grand Rapids, and Charlie Fields, of Sault Ste. Marie. Both were here for a few days and called at some of the local stores and got better acquainted.

The Annual Michigan State Fair took place at the Detroit Fair Grounds from September 7th to 18th and was the usual success. The San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company had a very novel and interesting exhibition at the fair, conducting the same in the Main Exhibition Building. A very large space was contracted for by this concern and in it they operated a small-sized cigar factory, showing exactly how "Pastora" cigars were made from beginning to end. About twenty-five employees were taken from the main factory on Forest Avenue and put in the State Fair booth. The exhibition was one of the best attractions in the Main Building and from early morning until the gates closed was viewed by many hundreds of people.

Leander Harris, Frank H. Forrest, Ralph E. Watkins are the holders of stock in the reorganized E. M. Harris Cigar Company, which has been in business for over thirty years in Detroit, operating a retail cigar store. The amount of the capital stock is $20,000, with Mr. Harris being the largest individual stockholder. The purpose of incorporating is to take care of the growth of the company's business. Mr. Harris with his associates does not intend to "stand still." Instead, he will push the business harder than he ever has. He is getting ready to move into his elegant new store in the David Whitney Arcade, located at Woodward Avenue and Grand Circus Park, which is being erected at a cost of over $2,000,000.

C. J. Holton, the Adams Avenue retailer and wholesaler of cigars and tobacco, is back from a ten-days' visit in New York on business.

Charles Gauss, the Grand River Avenue jobber, was recently East on business also.

From August 31st to September 5th Detroit celebrated the Forty-eighth Annual Reunion of the G. A. R. Association. It brought over 20,000 Civil War Veterans to our city, as well as many of their relatives and friends. Every hotel and rooming house was crowded with the soldiers; every public building, and those of mercantile firms, and many private homes, were decorated in patriotic colors for the entire week; the downtown district never took on a more gay appearance. At night the city was bathed in electric lights. It was a grand sight and will probably never be equalled in this city. Every cigar store did above the average business. The old soldiers were good patrons and bought freely; in addition, there was a lot of trade from local people. Everybody wanted to be on the streets and watch the crowd, and, of course, many of them unexpectedly drifted into the cigar stores.

The Central Cigar Company has opened another store in the building at the corner of Shelby Street and Lafayette Boulevard, the major portion of which is occupied by the Orpheum Theatre. The fixtures are of the very latest design and the store in every particular is as up-to-date as any one could wish for. A full line of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco are carried in stock, including the leading periodicals. The location is a fine one, being just on the way to the Postoffice, and is passed by many thousands of people every hour of the day.

We are glad to report that Harley Davidson has been appointed as assistant to Fred Childs, who has charge of Detroit for the Best & Russell Company, of Chicago. Mr. Davidson will also call on the city dealers, and help boost the Best & Russell brands, among them being "Robert Burns" and the "Owl" cigars. Mr. Davidson was at one time manager of the cigar stand at the Wenonah Hotel in Bay City, and up to a year ago was manager of the Hotel Cadillac cigar stand in this city.

A cigar factory has been started in Cheboygan, Mich., by Mr. Herbert Taunt.

An up-to-date cigar store has been opened in the Addison Theatre Building on Woodward Avenue, near Watson. It is operated under the name of the Addison Smoke Shop, and is directly opposite the Addison Hotel.

Jacob Mack has been appointed manager of the Edelweiss Cafe, at Broadway and John Street, Detroit.

Latest arrivals in the trade are: Leo Weiss, Ruy Lopez Company; Leo Schoeneman, La Venga; Fred T. Allen, Blue Peter Cigarette Company; Nate Shapero, M. A. Gunst & Company; Val Keogh, United Cigar Manufacturing Company; J. Fred Wilcox, "La Matilda" cigars; and Harry Alcess, of Simon Batt & Company.

The Hotel Pontchartrain now has a new brand called "Frances Tavern," made by the El Planco factory, which is proving very popular. It comes in various sizes and shapes. This in no way interferes with the "Count Pontchartrain" brands made by Marcelina Perez & Company, which are as popular as ever with the trade.

SOUVENIRS FOR NATIONAL CIGAR DAY

Association Has Made Arrangements for Desirable Novelty on Advantageous Terms

ONE of the questions that thousands of cigar dealers all over the United States are asking themselves just now is, How am I going to get the most and best results for my individual store out of National Cigar Day?

As has been pointed out from the inception of the day, this is a matter that is largely up to the individual dealers. Those who work hardest and with most enthusiasm, and who plan most intelligently, are bound to derive the most benefit, individually, from National Cigar Day.

The publicity which the celebration of National Cigar Day is receiving through the daily newspapers all over the United States, taken in connection with the tremendous cumulative effects of special National Cigar Day window displays in thousands of cigar stores and stands in all parts of the country during the entire week preceding Monday, October 12, is bound to create an interest among smokers everywhere, which will make it easy for enterprising dealers to do a large volume of extra business on that day, with the right kind of personal effort.

To make that effort the easier, the executive board of the National Cigar Day Association has been looking about for the right kind of a souvenir which can be utilized by dealers everywhere on that day. The board has examined scores of novelties which have been submitted, and it has at last found an ideal souvenir which can be obtained in any quantity desired, at a wonderfully advantageous price.

The souvenir is the best cigar cutter in the world, a handsome nickel-plated device, with a razor-edge, rotary cutter. Each cutter bears the inscription: "National Cigar Day, Monday, October 12, 1914. Smoke Here, Not Hereafter."

The accompanying illustration gives an excellent idea of the appearance of the cutter, which any legitimate cigar dealer can obtain through the National Cigar Day Association at practically the actual cost of manufacture.

No one, even if they bought in lots of 100,000 or more, could obtain these cutters direct from the manufacturers on as advantageous terms as they can buy them through the National Cigar Day Association for use on National Cigar Day, in lots of fifty and upwards.

Several thousand letters giving terms and particulars as to the proposition have been sent out from the headquarters of the National Cigar Day Association, at 21 Spruce Street, New York, to leading dealers, jobbers and cigar manufacturers in all parts of the United States.

Any one who is interested and has not received one of these letters, can have full particulars as to terms by addressing C. Fred Crosby, Executive Chairman, 21 Spruce Street, New York.

Dealers using these souvenirs can, at their own discretion, give them to customers with purchases of a specified amount, or can give them away at their option. Orders placed within the next few days can be delivered by October 1st, and dealers who act quickly can have them in stock so as to use them in judiciously booming trade during the entire week preceding National Cigar Day. Attractively displayed in the show window, they are bound to bring splendid results.

It is well for the trade to understand, however, that these cutters cannot be obtained at the special price, which is made through the association, unless they are stamped National Cigar Day, and are to be used in connection with the celebration of that occasion.

As it is quite possible that there will be a demand for a million or more of these cutters for use on National Cigar Day, early orders must be placed to insure prompt delivery.

To Stop Box-Stuffing in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, MO.

START has been made in this city against box stuffers and Francis M. Wilson, United States Attorney, aided by the Internal Revenue Officers, has succeeded in issuing warrants for the arrest of three druggists. The charges are alleged to be box-stuffing on the "Niles & Moser Handmade" and "Cinco" brands, and failure to destroy the Government stamp from the cans containing cigars.

The arrested druggists are C. F. Larey, Thirty-first and Main Streets; Paul L. Hess, Thirty-first and Troost Avenue, and Dr. John W. Kepner, Fifteenth and Olive Streets.

H. L. Duncan, Internal Revenue Officer, seized six boxes of cigars at Larey's, four at Hess' and two at Kepner's. At Kepner's the cigars in the cans were alleged to be about one-quarter of an inch shorter than the real "Handmade." Mr. Duncan declares that the department is just getting started in this work and that other dealers in Kansas City will shortly find themselves in difficulties unless the substitution ceases.

We have been having a lot of trouble with these substitute experts," said R. E. O'Malley, manager of the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, yesterday. "It had become so bad that we were afraid it would ruin our 'hand-made' brand if it were not stopped. We now sell nearly 600,000 of these cigars a week, which is the limit of our capacity. Substitution ruined one of our other popular brands, and we were not responsible for it. It was the druggist and the cigar dealer who sold cheaper cigars under that brand. We have had complaints about many stores in Kansas City and probably the Government will catch others before the campaign is ended."

Niles & Moser are distributors for "Cinco."

John O. Frye & Company Open New Store

One of the most modern and best equipped cigar stores in Indiana was recently opened to the public when John O. Frye & Company invited their friends to inspect their new home.

Several hundred visited the store during the course of the evening and favors were given to all; the ladies received roses while cigars were handed out to the gentlemen. An orchestra furnished a fine program of music.

The store is equipped with new fixtures throughout. The floors, made of a composition, are dark red, surrounded with a deep black border. The walls and the steel ceiling are frescoed in light colors, giving the room a light and cheery appearance, while an indirect lighting system of ornamental design furnishes a bright and even light over the cigar store during the evening and night hours. A new bar and a fine refrigerator have been installed in the room for the serving of soft drinks and light lunches.

At the opening Mr. Frye and his force of clerks were assisted in entertaining the visitors by Frank and Louis Lesuere, of Danville, Ill., who are interested in the business with Mr. Frye.

DEATH CALLS JOSEPH S. VETTERLEIN

Victim of Heart Failure—Was a Widely Known Cigar Manufacturer

JOSEPH SMALLWOOD VETTERLEIN, of the well known cigar manufacturing firm of Vetterlein Brothers, 144-46 North Fifth Street, died on the 11th instant at his home, 4212 Spruce Street, a victim of heart failure, brought on by an attack of acute indigestion. He was taken ill a few days before his death in Atlantic City and was brought to his home in Philadelphia for treatment. Mr. Vetterlein was sixty-three years old.

Mr. Vetterlein's death came as a shock to the cigar trade. Messages of sympathy have poured in from all parts of the country.

Mr. Vetterlein was a son of Theodore H. Vetterlein, a widely known importer of leaf tobacco, who died twenty years ago.

The deceased is survived by a widow and four sons, J. Roy Vetterlein, Dudley Vetterlein, Theodore H. Vetterlein and Wayne Vetterlein. J. Roy Vetterlein was associated in business with his father.

The funeral took place on the 14th instant, the Rev. George L. Richardson, of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, officiating. The pallbearers were Clifton Lazalere, Charles Landell, A. B. Carpenter, John Boltz, William Berry, Samuel Eckert and James Connelly. Interment was private in Woodlands Cemetery.

A well known member of the tobacco trade, in commenting on Mr. Vetterlein's death, said: "Mr. Vetterlein was the finest type of gentleman and his influence will be much missed."

Among those who attended the services were Frank Vetterlein, Herman G. Vetterlein, Harry Vetterlein, Herman G. Vetterlein, Jr., Julius Vetterlein, Charles Eisenlohr, John R. Young, P. C. Fulweiler and John Duys, of H. Duys & Company, of New York.

Frederick G. Felten

Frederick G. Felten, a well known cigar manufacturer of Milwaukee, Wis., died recently at his home, 271 Thirteenth Street, after a period of ill health.

The deceased was born in Manitowoc in 1859. He was fifty-five years of age at the time of his death.

Mr. Felten is survived by his widow, three sons and a daughter.

Leo M. Burford

Leo M. Burford, a well known tobacco broker of Louisville, Ky., died recently at his home following a nervous breakdown. The deceased was fifty-two years old.

Mr. Burford had been in the tobacco business for many years and had a number of re-handling plants throughout the State.

Mr. Burford was a member of the Louisville Lodge of Masons.

The deceased is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Heinrich Upmann Dies Abroad

HEINRICH UPMANN, senior partner of the cigar manufacturing firm of H. Upmann, of Havana, Cuba, died on August 27th, in Hamburg, Germany, according to a cable dispatch recently received. Death was due to apoplexy.

Herman Upmann now becomes the head of the firm.

Frank D. Ramsey

Frank D. Ramsey, one time tobacco grower and a widely known resident of Madisonville, Ky., died at his home recently following a paralytic stroke. The deceased was sixty-two years old.

Samuel Burger

Samuel Burger, a cigar manufacturer, of Allentown, Pa., died recently at his home, aged seventy years. The deceased was a former Councilman, and a former United States Collector of Internal Revenue for Lehigh County. For more than forty years he was a Republican County Committeeman.

The French Look Out for "Tommy Atkins"

Stories from the British force in France are coming through to make this clear. It appears that the French brothers in arms thought of "Tommy's" pipe before the British arrived, and, as a result,, advance arrangements were taken to see that he was provided with his favorite blend of tobacco.

The French factories have brought out a special Virginian tobacco known as "sweet tobacco" for the British soldiers. The factories got a supply direct from England. It is called "Tabac a la confiture." In honor of the heroic resistance of the Belgians at Liege a new brand of cigarettes has been brought out by the State factories called "Cigarette Liegeoise." One of the ends is cork tipped, and as liege in French means cork, the name is considered practical as well as patriotic. They are done up in packages of twenty, with the coat of arms of France and Belgium on the outside and a band of Belgian colors.

Macon, Georgia, Becoming Mecca for Cigar Manufacturers

Macon is becoming a cigar market of the southeast and several of the big Florida concerns are considering moving there. They point out the admirable climate for cigar making and the shipping facilities as a strong inducement.

Smith & Kemp, who recently opened their factory in Macon, will soon add half a dozen extra workers to their force. They report fine business and are highly pleased over the progress made. Owen Brothers, long time established here, report a similar good business.

A Key West, Fla., concern has written the Macon Chamber of Commerce asking for information and quarters for removing their factory here and two others have been negotiating for headquarters here.

North Carolina Tobacco Output

RALEIGH, N. C., September 14.

The State Department of Agriculture has issued its report of sales of leaf tobacco on the forty-three markets of the State during the past tobacco year, August to August. The report shows 172,386,131 pounds of tobacco sold first hand for the growers and 189,643,315 grand total of sales with re-sales on warehouse floors added. Winston-Salem led with 24,275,708 pounds; Wilson second, with 17,853,335; Greenville third, with 13,924,545 pounds.

This splendid display on "Van Dyck" cigars has been appearing in the windows of the stores of M. A. Gunst & Company on the Pacific Coast. It is considered one of the handsomest displays that has appeared in the windows of the "House of Staples" in a long time. It has certainly stimulated the sales of "Van Dyck" cigars.

Damage Suit Appeal Withdrawn

Upon the filing of a stipulation in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals recently, Judge Lacombe ordered the withdrawal and discontinuance of the appeal in the $100,000 Sherman law damage suit brought by Otto S. Jonas, an independent tobacco dealer, who claimed to have been driven out of business by trust methods, against the American Tobacco Company and the United Cigar Stores Company.

The complaint, in the form of a bill of review, was dismissed by Judge Mayer in the Federal District Court on May 15th last on the ground that a court of first instance could not pass on a decree of a higher court. The appeal was taken from this decision. The purpose of the suit was to bring the old tobacco trust matters before the United States Supreme Court for the second time, as the complaint alleged that the four component companies into which the courts had dissolved the old trust were violating the terms of the dissolution order.

The dismissal and discontinuance of the action were ordered with the consent of the attorneys for both sides. Henry H. Hunter, attorney for Jonas, said the action had amply fulfilled its object, inasmuch as the Government, on the strength of allegations in the complaint, had undertaken a countrywide investigation of the conditions in the tobacco trade and changes in the tobacco jobbing methods had been brought about.

Bereavement of Garland E. Webb

The many friends of Garland E. Webb, publisher of "The Southern Tobacco Journal," of Winston, N. C., will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Webb on August 30th. THE TOBACCO WORLD joins in extending sympathy to Mr. Webb in his great bereavement.

Thirty-fifth Year for Powell & Goldstein

Powell & Goldstein, the widely known cigar manufacturers of Oneida, N. Y., celebrated their thirty-fifth anniversary on September 1st. The firm has been in business since 1883 and their goods have become so popular with smokers that their output is growing every year.

Among their well-known brands are: "No. 370," "Roman King," "Full Dress" and "Little Napoleon," all nickel sellers, while "Wedding Bell" and "Napoleon" are in big demand among the consumers of ten-cent goods. The firm has recently added a full Havana cigar to their line known as "La Delicacy."

The firm now works more than three hundred cigarmakers and is a union factory. The cigars are made under the most sanitary conditions and rules relating to this phase of factory government are never allowed to relax.

Mr. Goldstein was the first elected mayor of Oneida and still retains the popularity and good will that put him in office. The firm is to be congratulated on its splendid record.

Former Madisonian Returns and Opens Cigar Stand

Harold Boyles, formerly of Fort Madison, Ia., has returned to that city and opened a small cigar store at 2600 Santa Fe Avenue.

Mr. Boyles was employed formerly with the Rock Island at Sylvis, Ill. About a year ago a traveling crane fell where he was working, killing three of his companions and injuring him so badly that it was necessary to amputate his left arm.

Mr. Boyles has many friends in Fort Madison and all wish him success in his venture.

San Francisco

City Trade Practically Normal—Collections Show Much Improvement—Big Reception for Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Gunst

SAN FRANCISCO, September 5.

THE San Francisco trade is feeling in better humor this week than for some time past. The general absorption of popular interest in the European war and the uncertainty that prevailed during the early weeks of September gave local cigar men the idea that business was really very bad; but the closing of the month and the figuring up of results disclosed the fact that September's business as a whole was very nearly if not quite up to the normal. The fall activity is just getting under way, and the feeling is growing that results will be favorable. Locally and throughout the Coast, competition has been considerably reduced, and it is believed that the individual houses in the trade are stronger on the average than for a long time. This seems to be borne out by the favorable turn in collections. City dealers, while still buying in rather limited quantities, are nevertheless paying more promptly for their purchases.

In the wholesale trade, there seems to be more doing as the season advances. Some publicity work is under way, though the feeling that newspaper readers have been looking for nothing but war news has kept the entire trade out of the daily papers for a number of weeks. There has, however, been some live poster work, and several jobbers are working with circular announcements and post cards for special work with good effect.

The completion of the plans and the initiation of preliminary work for the H. L. Judell & Company "Smoke Shop" on the Zone at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, has been followed by the sending out of thousands of artistic post cards to the Judell Company's friends, East and West. These cards bear a picture of the "Smoke Shop," and an invitation to all members of the trade to make the place their headquarters while in the city in 1915. Incidentally, it all makes good advertising for the "Webster," "Watt," "Flor de Moss" and "Elisardo" lines. In this connection, Mr. Judell has received word from the Elisardo factory that the first shipment of "Elisardo" made-in-bond cigars has been sent to San Francisco via the Panama Canal. As ships are now making the trip from the Atlantic to San Francisco via the Canal in nineteen days, the goods should be ready for delivery soon after the middle of the month.

The cigar business of George Stokes & Company, at San Jose, Cal., is reported to have been sold to A. Hirschfeld & Company, of that place.

E. W. Pugh, a Los Angeles cigar man, has been visiting in San Francisco this week.

This has been quite a big week with the House of Gunst. In the first place, Morgan Gunst and his bride returned a few days ago from their more or less rudely interrupted European trip; and they were given an elaborate reception at the Burlingame residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Gunst, at which a large number of the M. A. Gunst & Company's "higher-ups" were present. Then came the annual M. A. Gunst & Company convention of managers. Those present at the convention included: President, M. A. Gunst; vice-presidents, Alfred I. Esberg, of New York; Milton H. Esberg and Morgan A. Gunst, of San Francisco, and Julius Louisson, of Portland, Ore.; Advertising Counsel O. H. Blackman, of New York; San Francisco Advertising Manager E. A. Cohen, of this city; Manager H. P. Eakin, of Los Angeles, and Secretary F. V. Welch, of San Francisco. The convention will conclude in a few days, after which there will be a scattering of the forces to put into effect the fall and winter plans now being perfected.

W. E. Miller, of Placerville, Cal., came down from his mountain home the first of the month to look over the San Francisco situation and make his plans for fall.

H. H. Manley, Pacific Coast representative of the American Tobacco Company, has been doing a lot of traveling lately. He has been down the Coast as far as Los Angeles and north as far as Seattle; and everywhere he finds the "Belmont Tango" in good demand. The new Tango posters have made a great hit here, and have led directly to a lot of new business, as it shown by the immediate increase in sales following the placing of the advertising. Mr. Manley is looking for a good fall business in practically every section of the Coast.

H. P. Adams, Coast representative of Benson & Hedges, has concluded his work in Los Angeles and Southern California generally, and is once more calling on his San Francisco friends.

Northy & Andrews have succeeded to the retail business of J. D. Bacon at 907 Broadway, Oakland, Cal.

Arthur Meyer has been making quite a hit with the new bonded "Alexander Humboldts," of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, distributed in this territory by Michalitschke Brothers & Company. Mr. Meyer has just completed a canvass of his Oregon and Washington connections, and is now taking a run through Southern California.

Edward Wolf, of this city, one of the best known cigar wholesalers on the Coast, broke his ankle last week by a fall on the stairway of his home. Mr. Wolf, while doing well under the circumstances, will be confined to his home for several weeks. In the meantime, Secretary Rheinhart, of the Edward Wolf Company, is looking after the business of the house.

Kurt Hosaeus, of the "La Prueba" factory, Manila, P. I., arrived in California this week and is now visiting with the Edward Wolf Company, United States importers of the "La Prueba" cigars. Mr. Hosaeus reports that the war in Europe has, temporarily at least, demoralized the shipping end of the Manila business. He believes, however, that this is being rapidly remedied and that before long San Francisco importers will be getting in goods in sufficient quantities to meet their immediate needs. There is, however, a possibility that some favorite lines will be rather scarce for a time.

ALLEN.

Fine Cigar Stand for Des Moines, Ia.

What is said to be one of the finest cigar stores in the country, has been recently opened by the C. C. Taft Company on the first floor of the Equitable Building, in Des Moines, Ia.

All fixtures are of circassian walnut. Old bridge tile is used in the base of all the cases, which are lined with opalescent glass. A beamed art glass ceiling provides a beautiful lighting effect. The fixtures were furnished by the Jaeger Manufacturing Company.

The Taft Company operates a number of other retail stores in Des Moines.

Ball Player Buys Cigar Store in Dixon, Ill.

Milo Stratton, the well-known catcher of the Evansville, Ind., baseball team, has purchased a cigar store in Dixon, Ill., and will give up his baseball career, according to the latest reports.

Last winter Stratton worked in a cigar store and learned the fundamentals of the business. Recently he learned that the proprietor had died, and when he heard of it Stratton lost no time in buying out the business. As he has many friends in Dixon and is familiar with the trade of the stand, his new venture has the earmarks of a successful one.

"Charles Denby" Cigars in Pasadena

"Charles Denby" cigars, made in the famous H. Fendrick factory at Evansville, Ind., are smoked from Coast to Coast, and here is proof of the Pacific side of the argument. This attractive display appeared recently in the window of the cigar store of Otto Silverberg, Pasadena, Cal.

Here is the real thing spread before the eyes of the consumer, in both boxes and tins. Otto sells a good many "Charles Denby" smokes every day but, says he, this window is quite the finest thing for boosting trade that I have found.

Pittsburgh

Retailers Want to Know About "Cigar Day"—Union-Made Goods Feature Labor Day Week—"Muriel" Cigars Well Placed in the City

PITTSBURGH, PA., September 12.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh the last two weeks has been very good.

Pittsburg cigar dealers were disappointed in hearing that the Mayor has called off the "Old Home Week Celebration," which was to begin on September 14th.

Miss Evelen Boud, manager of the cigar stand in the Fulton Building, just returned from a ten-days' trip to Atlantic City.

Mr. Walsh, manager of the Ft. Pitt Hotel cigar stand, returned from a two-weeks' trip to New York City.

Pittsburgh cigarists are in favor of a National Cigar Day on October 12th, but somehow no one seems to know what it is about. C. J. Moye, of C. J. Moye & Company, who is supposed to be president, and Mr. Clemens, of Reymer Brothers, who is vice-president, do not know anything on this subject.

J. C. Clair, of the Bock-Stauffer Company, just returned from his vacation. He had a very good time and is now looking for big orders.

C. A. Gibbs & Company received the new "Tuval" cigars which are made in bond. "Tuval" has a very fine sale in this market and as they are now made in bond should show a larger increase.

The Afco Cigar Company are featuring all union-made goods this week on account of Labor Day. Among the union-made windows are the "Plantista" cigars, made by the Gompeers Cigar Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; "Ology," distributed by the Bock-Stauffer Company; "Penco" tobacco, Penn Tobacco Company, and a window full of union-made stogies.

Jos. Maher, of the Fifth Avenue Arcade, has a very nice window on "El Roi-Tan" cigars.

H. Buchanan, representing the Havana-American Company, was in Pittsburgh meeting his old friends. He is featuring "La Preferencias."

J. J. Fisher, of Pittsburgh, representing the Sterling Gum Company, of New York, is putting out a new line called "Frozen Mints."

A. W. Leonard, M. Melachrino & Company, is a new winner for their famous cigarette.

"Billie" Burke, formerly of Boston, is now representing the Surbrug Company in Western Pennsylvania on the famous "London Gold Tip" cigarette.

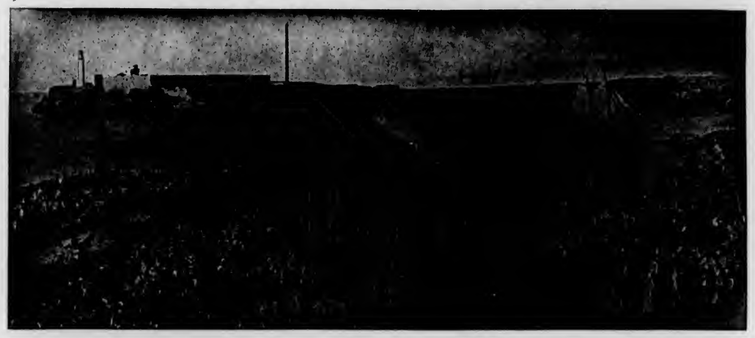
M. Ferguson, the "Royal Nestor" cigarette salesman in Pittsburgh, is giving this brand a flying start at the price of ten cigarettes for ten cents.

M. J. Renkley, of the Penn Tobacco Company, was married to Miss Winnefred Corita on September 8th. They are spending their honeymoon at the lakes.

R. T. Rogers, Percy Given and A. J. Newman, of the P. Lorillard Company, are in town working with Siller-Narten-Barnes' salesmen placing in all the downtown prominent stores "Muriel" cigars. They are having a "Muriel" week.

The following visitors were in town: P. H. Mayer, representing Allen R. Cressman's Sons; Ralph P. Oppenheim, New York; A. J. McBlair, representing Raymon, Rey & Company; P. Pavon Alvarez, representing José de Riera & Company, New York; Sam Fisher, of the Storm-Fisher Company, New York; Major J. G. Wetzel, representing J. W. Nichols & Company, Key West; P. Verplanck, Tampa; Geo. Becker, representing Arguellos, Lopez & Company, Tampa; E. N. Ackerman, representing Y. Pendas & Alvarez; Hi Hammer, representing Corral, Wodiska & Company; S. G. Brown, representing S. G. Brown & Company, New York.

The trade learns with much regret of the transfer of F. L. Linn, of Liggett & Myers' cigarette department, to Johnstown, Pa. B. W. Berman, a general favorite in the Pittsburgh territory, succeeds Mr. Linn.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, September 8th.

OUR market during the past fifteen days has shown more animation; besides a number of American buyers that operated more freely, the Spanish Regie was also a purchaser of a fair quantity of bales, all of which helped to swell the total. Prices of course have ruled low, as it seems that our leaf dealers prefer to make even some sacrifices, than to hold on for a profit in these times. This year which held promise of being at least an average one has, since the outbreak of the war, turned out as one of the worst ones since 1907. There is only one hope left, unless the war should come to a quicker ending than the majority of people dare to dream, which is, that in all probability the next crop in 1915 may be the smallest one which we have had in this century. Leaving out all possible disturbances of the weather conditions during the growing season, the great trouble is the scarcity of money, so that the usual money lenders, such as country merchants, grocers, etc., have no funds to advance to the vegueros. At least one-third of the crop is still unsold in the farmers' hands in the country, or hypothecated to the country merchants and grocers, and as our leaf dealers are loaded up themselves, nobody is willing to buy at any price. If we were sure of a strong, healthy demand on the part of the American manufacturers, we might look more hopeful into the future, but as matters stand, it is very doubtful what the future might have in store for us, therefore in all probability we shall have a big surplus of stocks to carry forward into the next crop year.

After we know positively that the next crop will be a very small one, there will be a chance for the market to rally from its present condition, and we might see an upward movement in 1915. We believe, however, that we have touched rock bottom, and while the market may continue thus for some time to come, there is bound to be a reaction sooner or later.

Sales during the past fortnight amounted to 9370 bales, which were divided into: Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, 2561; Partido, 3487, and Remedios, 3322 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6070; exporters to Spain, 2500; shippers to Buenos Aires, 220, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 580 bales.

Receipts of Leaf Tobacco From the Country.

From Los Angeles, Cal.: Ben S. Jarrett, of the St. Elmo Cigar Factory.

Departures—To New York: Marcelino Perez, Lennie Greenhall, Joseph Mendelsohn, Henry Oppenheimer, Aleck Goldschmidt, José Negreira and Maximilian Stern.

To Tampa: Angel L. Cuesta, Matt Berriman, Manuel Sanchez and Val M. Antuono.

To San Francisco: David Frankel.

Returned—José A. Lozano, of M. A. Gunst & Company, Inc., Havana.

Cigars.

Our cigar manufacturers are still in mourning, on account of the European war, and while some factories have started up again, like the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., which commenced a week ago with 1317 cigarmakers in seven of their local factories and in their branch factory at Bejucal, others are either still closed, or are working with a small number of cigarmakers. There have been some cigar shipments to England, but we understand that they were made simply to prevent them from becoming worm-eaten in our hot climate, and they had been made upon previous orders before the outbreak of the war and cannot be drawn for, as there is no rate of exchange on London, nor would the consignees allow themselves to be drawn upon. The Ward Line will issue through bills of lading again, but the freight has to be paid beforehand and the rates are about 50 per cent. higher than formerly.

We now submit the statistics of the month of August, and comparison with the previous year, which speak for themselves.

The Cuban Market

Exports of cigars from the port of Havana, as per our custom house returns, from:

August 1 to August 31, 1913	14,679,147	cigars
" 1 " " 31, 1914	5,017,571	"
Decrease during August, 1914	9,661,576	"

Decrease by countries during the month of August, 1914, as compared with 1913:

Great Britain and Ireland	4,628,096	cigars
Germany	3,227,573	"
United States	1,003,619	"
Australia	349,328	"
Argentine Republic	348,305	"
Canada	190,345	"
France	70,035	"
Italy	66,000	"
Canary Islands	58,050	"
Austria	47,520	"
Netherlands	42,050	"
Brazil	39,900	"
Belgium	30,850	"
	10,101,671	"

The only increase of any importance during the month of August was:

Spain, with	433,249	cigars

The figures for the first eight months of this year, as compared with last year, are:

From January 1 to August 31, 1913	116,478,735	cigars
" " 1 " " 31, 1914	92,218,088	"
Decrease in eight months of 1914	24,260,647	"

Of the nine principal consuming countries, above one million cigars per year, there are now eight which show the following decreases in their imports of our cigars, viz.:

Great Britain and Ireland	9,174,406	cigars
United States	6,868,338	"
Canada	2,643,922	"
Germany	2,315,384	"
Argentine Republic	1,946,434	"
Chile	1,279,448	"
France	1,040,617	"
Australia	353,618	"
Total	25,622,167	"

The only country which has kept up an increase in her imports of our cigars, is:

Spain	2,374,726	cigars

We will refrain from commenting upon the above figures, except by saying that evidently the United States must have been badly affected by the European war, when instead of increasing her imports of our cigars there has been another shrinkage of over one million cigars during the month of August this year.

Leaf Tobacco.

There is a queer muddle in our monetary system, which is causing not alone annoyance, but severe losses besides. Our Government recognizes only the American currency as the standard in all its transactions, receiving and paying only American money. The two provinces of Oriente and Camaguey have likewise adopted the American money as their only commercial standard, while the remaining four provinces use the Spanish and French coin in all wholesale dealings, and Spanish silver in the retail transactions. Years ago, under the Spanish regime, our merchants, in order to keep the gold in our island, added an imaginary 6 per cent. to the Spanish $5 piece, thus making a centen worth $5.30; and the 20-franc gold piece $4.24. Silver at that time was taken at a heavy discount, so that for a centen one would receive as much as $8. In the course of time silver rose in value and lately the centen was quoted from $5.40 to $5.35. Now it seems that Spain is trying to collect all the silver she can get hold of, and owing to the heavy exports from here there is a scarcity of silver, which caused a centen to be worth only about $5.06, while for an American dollar you can get only $1.01 in Spanish silver. Exchange on New York is quoted from 105¼ to 105¾ per cent. Our merchants ought to make a concerted effort now to discard the use of all Spanish and French gold and silver coins and make all transactions, wholesale as well as retail, in American money, thus cutting the Gordian knot once for all, and have peace.

hardship would befall the leaf buyers either. Cigars are only traded in American money, since the cigarmakers' strike in 1907, when the latter gained their point to be paid in currency.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez operated in 3500 bales of leaf during the month of August.

The Spanish Regie purchased 2500 bales of leaf during the last fortnight.

As per wireless cable, received by H. Upmann & Company, they were informed of the demise of their silent partner, Mr. Heinrich Upmann, on the twenty-eighth ultimo in Germany, in consequence of an apoplectic stroke. The deceased was seventy-three years old, and while retired from active business for a number of years, he nevertheless took a lively interest in the fame of the firm, that he had helped to build up with his uncle. We tender our sincere condolence to his nephews, Hermann and Albert Upmann.

Herrera, Calmet & Company were sellers of 678 bales of Remedios leaf.

José C. Puente & Company were sellers of 600 bales of Vueltas, Partidos and Remedios.

Mr. Joseph Mendelsohn has picked out some choice vegas of Vuelta Abajo for their firm of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Company, of New York.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 500 bales of Remedios during the last fortnight.

Henry Oppenheimer was a buyer of 927 bales of leaf for his firm of Henry Oppenheimer & Company, of New York.

Shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the last two weeks, above 200 bales, were:

Los Angeles

California Tobacco Dealers Preparing for "Cigar Day"—Business Conditions Show Improvement—Morris Burke Makes a Hit With "Reynaldo" Offer

Los Angeles, Cal., September 10.

HOLLY WILLARD has just returned from the Eastern factories and can be seen with Haas-Baruch & Company, distributors of his "Commercial" ten-cent cigar. Since Mr. Willard's return the cigar has made decided headway, notwithstanding the splendid work being done by the sales force of Haas-Baruch & Company.

Anthony Schwamm, president of the Southern California Tobacco Dealers' Association, is formulating plans which will instill interest among the retail and wholesale cigar trade of the city in the "National Cigar Day" on October 12th. Mr. Schwamm will, in a few days, order a meeting of the retail cigar merchants and dealers of tobaccos wholesale for the above-mentioned purpose. All persons approached with the question of holding such a celebration have readily professed their willingness to add their services in any way they might be able, which is encouraging to a great extent.

S. Magnums, Jr., with the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, is working on the "3-0-4" Clubhouse shape Union Mawe. This cigar is manufactured in this city and is controlled by the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company. It is made up in four distinct sizes. "Ruy Lopez," particularly "Queens" size, is getting a good distribution through the Greenwald Cigar Company.

W. H. Henderson, at 302 South Main Street, is featuring the "La Abilidad" cigars, made in this city and distributed by Klauber-Wangenheim Company.

"Coat of Arms" cigarettes, 25-cent size, is "getting on." In truth, they were "on" when they first reached the city. The fact that with each package of these cigarettes is given gratis a handsome miniature volume of one of the many works of William Shakespeare is one of the reasons for the heavy demand on this new brand. The other reason is the exceptional quality of the cigarettes. Anthony Schwamm has placed this brand with practically every retailer in this city. Mr. Schwamm is representing P. Lorillard & Company on the Coast.

Cameron C. Trau, of Haas-Baruch & Company, reports that "Banderos" are still holding their own. In fact, they seem to have gained great headway as a result of the many window displays being shown about the city for the past two weeks or more.

H. H. Manley, Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, is visiting his distributors in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Klauber are at present spending their vacation at Lake Tahoe, in Northern California. They will return around the fifteenth of this month. During the absence of Mr. Klauber from the firm of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, Albert Greenwood has had full charge of the inside workings of the firm. He is being ably assisted by F. O. Warner.

Mr. Snyder, working on "London Life" cigarettes, informs me that these cigarettes are still selling very good throughout the city. In fact, all of S. Anargyros brands are showing increased sales. Mr. Snyder has spent considerable time sampling one of the S. Anargyros brands in the centre of the city and he says his work has been among the most fastidious smokers.

Morris Burke, representing Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., is running for the next three weeks an offer, which has for its purpose the advertising of the "Reynaldo" cigar, manufactured by the firm mentioned above. At his retail store at 108 West Third Street, Mr. Burke has placards on top of show cases and below show cases informing smokers that with each 50-cent purchase of "Reynaldo" cigars, of 10-cents, 3-for-25-cents or 2-for-25-cents, the purchaser is entitled to one 30-cent box of Baum's chocolates. Only one to a customer is the way the notices read, and it is a cinch many would purchase several times to get one of these boxes of assorted chocolates in their possession. This offer is being run every Saturday and Sunday for three successive weeks. The first two days, no less than two hundred and sixty-eight new "Reynaldo" smokers were initiated, and it appears that this method of advertising is a most commendable one.

There was much hurry and flurry among the dealers when it became known that President Wilson was to propose a war tax on various articles termed luxuries, etc. The Tobacco Dealers' Association of Southern California have already taken action against any measure which would increase the troubles of the small cigar dealers throughout Southern California. This action was sent in the form of telegrams to each of the State Representatives, and it undoubtedly had its effect on the minds of those esteemed gentlemen.

War conditions seem to have worked no hardships on business in general. Tourists are flocking to this city steadily; vacationists are returning and everything portends a flourishing holiday business.

Cost of Curing Tobacco Can Be Reduced

"The cost of curing can be reduced by building better barns than we are now using and properly ventilating them," declared E. G. Moss, of Oxford, N. C., at a recent convention of North Carolina farmers. Continuing, he said:

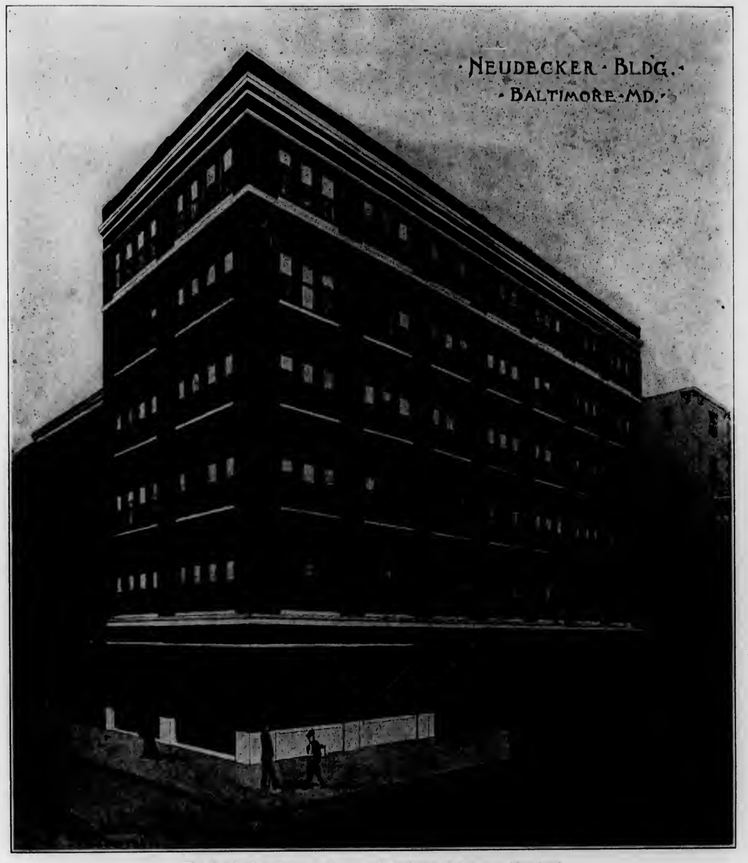
"The barn that we are now using at the experiment station is practically air-tight, covered with V-crimp galvanized iron, leaving an eight- or ten-inch opening on the cone of the roof across the top to within about two feet of the sides. This is covered with an open and shut ridge board which can be operated from the ground by means of a wire or rope fastened to the end of a short lever device at each end of the peak. To admit air at the bottom at least two four-inch terra cotta pipes should be set in the wall on each side of the barn, a total of eight joints of pipe to the barn. It is well to have one pipe extend to the middle of the barn. These can be plugged up by means of a piece of plank sawed to fit in the bell of the pipe from the outside or a round piece of wood four inches in diameter. By this system of ventilation you can control the moisture conditions of the barn and reduce to a minimum all danger of sweating and sponging.

"In North Carolina alone the fuel consumed a normal year in curing tobacco is estimated between five and six hundred thousand cords of wood. Putting this wood at an exceedingly low valuation ($2 per cord) would mean over a million dollars' worth of wood a year and a saving of 40 per cent. in consumption would mean four hundred thousand dollars annually.

"The additional cost of constructing these barns will amount to but very little, and during the life of the barn the saving of fuel alone will pay for the difference several times."

W. W. Goldsmith, representing Jeitles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia, recently visited the trade in Kansas City in the interests of "Statesmen," "Pratt" and "Tungsten" brands.

New Home of Neudecker Tobacco Company



The Neudecker Tobacco Company's Building, Baltimore, Maryland

There is no city in the East that offers such unexcelled advantages as a great wholesale and distributing point as does Baltimore. These opportunities have been grasped by men of ability and enterprise and they have established in that city many lines of trade.

Among the houses that are brought to the attention of the outside world, none holds a more creditable position in its field than does the Neudecker Tobacco Company. The business of this firm was established more than fifty years ago and each decade has found the house growing and prospering. They now occupy what is without doubt one of the finest and most modern wholesale tobacco houses in the United States. The firm has occupied the building shown in the illustration since June 15th of this year.

The Neudecker Tobacco Company distributes through the States of Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina and a part of Pennsylvania, together with a large local trade in Baltimore. Twenty salesmen are required to cover this territory.

Among the brands which the firm distributes are the well-known "El Principe de Gales" and "La Preferencia," in all sizes, while "Neutoco," Lipschutz "44," "Rocky Ford," "Buck" and "Imola" are among the big selling nickel brands.

The company is also the owner of the following well-known plug tobacco brands: "Peninsula," "What Knox" and "Schooner."

It is also worthy of mention that this firm enjoys a large trade in private brands. The firm says that the growth of this line of business is due entirely to their liberal policy toward the wholesale and retail trade. They back their salesmen up with quality goods and treat the retailer and jobber fair. They boast of an organization second to none.

Charles C. Heldmann, the vice-president of the Neudecker Tobacco Company, has had charge of the business of the firm during the past ten years, and under his able management it has prospered to the extent of erecting one of the finest wholesale tobacco homes in the country.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The local leaf tobacco packers are preparing to place their 1913 packing on the market. Numerous inquiries have been made regarding their tobacco from the large cities, but so far none has been sold. The holders of it are not pushing their goods, as they believe better prices will prevail a month or two hence. The amount of black rot so far found has been surprisingly small.

Lately the local dealers have sold some 1911 and 1912 goods at prices ranging from fourteen and one-half to sixteen cents a pound. The demand for 1909 tobacco slackened during the last week. Unfavorable weather prevented the great amount of cutting of the new crop that was expected last week, and it may now be well into October before the last crop has been housed. Frosts may be expected before that time, but the growers appear determined this year to take risks rather than put away unripe tobacco.

Packers, who have been riding the county, picking out likely crops for buying, complain that many of the growers have failed to sucker their plants. So far none of the new crop has been reported sold.

WISCONSIN

STOUGHTON, WIS.

The harvest of the tobacco crop is now well under way in all sections, but the cool nights are delaying the ripening so the heavy work in the fields will be on the coming week. The particulars of the injury done by the storms of a week ago are being brought in by the scouts traveling the growing districts. They report that something like 2,000 acres of growing tobacco has been more or less injured by hail in the Vernon County district, with numerous scattering belts in the southern sections where the wind has been more destructive than the hail. The rains, however, have greatly improved the development of the later fields that promise to yield some fair-sized leaf, but it looks as though a good deal of green tobacco is being shedded. Rust is showing on some of the fields since the storms so that, all things considered, the prospects for field buying are not very encouraging.

THE CAROLINAS

KINSTON, N. C.

Last week marked the beginning of the tobacco sales season in the bright leaf belt of North Carolina, and despite the admittedly unsettled conditions in the business world, the season is expected to be one of the greatest since the weed became a staple in this section. Climatic conditions have favored the crop in all of the eastern bright territory, and the facilities for handling it have been enhanced. Many millions of pounds are stored in the barns of the countries of the belt, and the planters are anticipating the disposal of it at prices as good as those of the past several years.

Canada Tobacconists Refuse to Raise Prices

Because three large tobacco stores in Vancouver, B. C., refused to raise the prices on their goods as per a schedule of selling prices recently put into effect in that city, due to the special war tax which has been placed on tobacco products, the proposed increase has been abandoned.

According to a representative of a Montreal tobacco company, the manufacturers propose to stand half the loss entailed by the tax and look to the wholesalers and retailers to stand the balance of the increase.

Tobacco Stems and Stalks Are Valuable Fertilizers

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 12.

Should the demand of Europe for American tobacco stems cease, these stems, which contain large quantities of plant food, especially potash, may be used to good advantage by the American grower of tobacco as fertilizer. Soil fertilized by these stems secured from the cigar and tobacco factories and stemmeries, will produce leaf tobacco of better burning qualities and texture.

Tobacco stems as fertilizer should be applied in smaller quantities than manure, because they contain larger quantities of the constituents which feed the plant, according to the Department's tobacco specialists. Two tons per acre of "seed stems" (stems from cigar factories) or two and one-half tons of "Kentucky stems" (stems from the tobacco factories and stemmeries) are known to give good results in New England and, so far as available, these stems will undoubtedly furnish a very satisfactory source of potash, as well as other plant foods, in other tobacco sections.

Considerable quantities of tobacco stems have long been exported to Germany and other parts of Europe, where they are often used in the manufacture of low-grade smoking tobacco and as a source of nicotine.

Tobacco stalks, which are not removed from the farm under prevailing methods, are not always used to the best advantage as a fertilizer. Like the stems, they contain considerable quantities of valuable plant food (though not so much) and may be used freely as a fertilizer for tobacco and other crops. They may be profitably used to improve the hay lot by simply spreading the stalks over the land in the fall, or they may be plowed under at the same season for cultivated crops such as cotton, corn, tobacco, etc. The practice of piling tobacco stalks in heaps and leaving them exposed to the weather means a waste of valuable material that might be returned to the soil. The practice of burning them is also wasteful unless they are infected by such a serious disease as the Granville wilt.

The Peruvian Tobacco Monopoly

Since the year 1909 the importation, manufacture and sale of all classes of tobacco in the Republic has been controlled by the Government, which creates thereby a monopoly of the business and fixes the price of all tobacco, cigarettes and cigars sold in the country. This industry is now conducted by an organization known as the Compania Recaudadora de Impuestos, Estanco del Tabaco, at Lima. During 1913 it manufactured 389,706,700 cigarettes and 238,300 cigars, using 792,440 pounds of leaf tobacco grown in the country, 100,398 pounds imported from Honduras, 59,736 pounds from Mexico, and 161,147 pounds from Ecuador.

In addition it imported 25,920,000 cigarettes and 549,140 cigars from Habana, 460,000 cigarettes of English and Egyptian manufacture, and 549,140 cigars from Italy and Germany. English manufactured tobacco in one-half and one-fourth pound tins and Chinese tobacco in packages of 200 grams (approximately 7 ounces) were imported during the year to the extent of 8904 pounds.—Daily Trade Reports.

Simpson Reopens Second Cigar Store

James Simpson, of Elyria, O., has opened another cigar stand, which will be known as the Central Cigar Store. He has filled his humidors with a full line of first-class tobacco products and has his two faithful clerks, who operated the store when it was known as Smoke House No. 2, in charge. A ticker has been installed and the customers will be able to get the latest news of all the sports.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Failure of A. Kern & Company, Incorporated

A. Kern & Company, Incorporated, who have been manufacturing cigars for several years past with a factory at 109 West Forty-second Street, and more recently at 220 West Forty-second Street, filed a schedule in bankruptcy last week showing liabilities of $6346 and nominal assets of $8666.

This firm made a brand of clear Havana goods known as the "Bernadotte," which had a wide distribution in New York City and up the state. In recent months there has been several changes in the personnel of the company and it was understood that they have also been doing a wholesale cigar business. H. J. Susskind was interested in the concern up to a short time ago.

Victor Malga, representing A. Centeno & Company, 294 Pearl Street, New York City, importers of Porto Rico cigars and leaf tobacco, was in Philadelphia last week, and interested several of the local dealers in this class of goods.

New Wholesale House in San Francisco

San Francisco's new wholesale store, the Pacific Cigar Company, began taking orders and making deliveries of "Luis Martinez" cigars this week. Both Mr. Arkush and Mr. Superstein, who have heretofore been busy with the preliminaries and the getting out of suitable literature, are now in the business of actually selling cigars. They have received a good reception, both the men and goods being already well known to the San Francisco trade. The company is making a strong point of keeping strictly to the wholesale trade. It has no connection with any retail store and is doing no retail or box trade on its own account. This is a winning point, especially with those retailers who have more or less felt the competition of the retail connections of some of the jobbing houses.

New Cigar Factory for Milwaukee

The Coraza Cigar Company, with factories in Tampa and New York, has recently opened a plant in Milwaukee with a force of sixty hands. It is said that this number will be increased to three hundred. This factory is, according to recent reports, now operated in bond according to the new tariff law relating to this procedure. The new factory is located at Galena and Sixteenth Streets.

Their Milwaukee trade will be handled by Faulkner & Moody, on Grove and Second Streets. The new building at Sixteenth and Galena Streets is being especially equipped for turning out the products.

CIGARETTE PLANT FOR SAN ANTONIO

Temporary Factory to Manufacture Mexican Tobacco to Be on Military Plaza

SAN ANTONIO, September 10, 1914.

SAN ANTONIO is to have one of the most up-to-date cigar and cigarette factories in the West. Arrangements are being made for the organization of the Pan-American Tobacco Company, with a capital of $50,000. A temporary plant is to be fitted, probably on Military Plaza. Incorporation papers will be sent to Austin, and the machinery for the manufacture of the cigarettes will be installed in September.

The plant will have a capacity of 125,000 cigarettes a day, and will make a specialty of Mexican and shuck cigarettes. The machinery is to be of the latest make, and will be sanitary in every respect. An X-ray sterilizing machine is to be included in the equipment.

O. J. Pacius, promoter of the cigarette factory, said recently: "There is no reason why San Antonio should not have its share of this business.

"The very best tobacco grown in America comes from Mexico, and Mexican cigarettes that cost 25 cents a package can be made in our plant for 10 cents. The duty is 35 cents a pound on this grade of tobacco. We will have the same kind of machines as are used in the factories in the City of Mexico.

"Texas has a great opportunity since the cotton crop for next year may suffer by over-production and a surplus from this year's crop. Farmers should find out if tobacco will thrive in their soil, and if so, plant a big crop next year. Tobacco sells from 15 cents a pound to $3.25 a pound, and yields an enormous return when the grade of the tobacco is high.

Finds Stone Cigar

J. M. Phelps, a farmer of Beelerton, a few miles north of Fulton, Ky., is credited with having in his possession a stone cigar. This cigar, Mr. Phelps says, was found while boring for a well on his farm. The drill had bored through a layer of rock and struck water at the depth of 145 feet. While "pumping out," the cigar was brought up. It is stone and is said to be an exact representative in size and length, of a cigar. The question is whether it is a stone formation or a cigar that has turned to stone.

Big Cigar Plant for Perth Amboy

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., September 3, 1914.

The board of trade has awarded the contract for the erection of a big cigar factory to be occupied by the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company whose general offices are in New York City. The plant will employ 400 operatives the first year and expects to increase this number to 1200 within a year or two.

According to Sol. Spring, of the Spring Cigar Company, 709 First Avenue, Seattle, Wash., "Charles the Great," the noted product of Salvador Rodriguez, is fast gaining in popularity in that section. Not only are the sales on this brand increasing daily, but Mr. Spring states that since taking on "Charles the Great" he has been obliged to double his weekly shipments in order to keep up with the demand.

"The total tobacco production of Texas amounted to $39,000, and that of Kentucky, a state several times smaller, was $23,000,000. Texas has as good soil and climate and we expect to furnish an ample market."

THE GOOD SHIP BOLD

To see a new brand of nickel cigars launched upon the market is indeed not an uncommon occurrence. To see a goodly number of these brands flounder and sink into oblivion is a frequent result.

BOLD

has weathered the storm and is sailing safely, securely and serenely over the river of Success. Get aboard the Good Ship BOLD and share in the profits of a truly successful brand.

At Your Service

Have you ever taken into consideration the advantages in placing your work with a personally conducted lithographing firm.

Every detail of manufacturing in our factory is under the personal supervision of one of the members of the firm.

We will cheerfully submit sketches of any new subject which you may require or can send you sketches of our own private designs with wonderfully good registered titles for your exclusive use.

Or, on the other hand, send us samples of any labels, bands or lithographic material which you require for immediate or future use, and we will tell you exactly what can be done, you having our assurance that we will make no promise we cannot fulfill.

SMOOTH SWINDLER WORKING THE TOBACCO TRADE IN BIG CITIES

Look Out for a British Fraud—Well Posted on the Trade and Its Members—Working in New York, Boston and Philadelphia

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK, September 29.

THE New York detective force is now on the trail of a clever crook who has victimized several members of the trade by representing himself as a prominent Irish or English tobacconist.

About a year ago, Dave Echemendia, the popular representative of the "Castaneda" cigar, was seated in his office early in the morning, when the telephone rang and a pronounced English voice asked if he was in. Mr. Echemendia answered "Yes," and was informed by the stranger that he was the representative of one of his company's biggest customers in London and that he was at that time at the Cunard dock, having just landed on the "Lusitania," and was en route to Havana. Mr. Echemendia promptly invited him to breakfast with him and in about forty-five minutes the stranger showed up with a flourish at his office.

After a thirty minutes' conversation, in which the Britisher displayed a remarkable knowledge of the cigar and tobacco business in both London and the United States, he informed Mr. Echemendia that he had been temporarily cleaned out in a card game on the ship the night before landing and had cabled London for money. In the meantime would he kindly advance him ten or twelve pounds until his remittance came? Dave would and did. He was to dine with the gentleman that night at the Belmont, to which hotel his money was being transmitted.

Needless to say, when he left the office nothing further was seen or heard of him.

Two weeks ago, about five o'clock in the evening, a well-dressed man stopped in the office of THE TOBACCO WORLD in Philadelphia and introduced himself as J. H. Gallaher, of Gallaher's, Ltd., Belfast, Ireland. He discoursed intelligently on trade conditions, the shipments his company were making of leaf tobacco and plans they were making to enter the field in the United States with a new Turkish cigarette. Stated further that his father was acquainted with the managing editor of the WORLD and asked for him by name.

Being informed that Mr. Kendrick was in New York, he asked for a card of introduction to him, which was given without suspicion. About a week later, a telephone to Mr. Kendrick's club informed him that Mr. Gallaher was at the Belmont Hotel, and that he wanted to drop by a few minutes and see him. This about five o'clock in the evening. An invitation being extended, the pseudo Mr. Gallaher called at the club promptly and stated that he was just in from Chicago, where he had been on a flying trip previous to sailing for Europe on the next Saturday. He presented his card of introduction and talked interestingly on his firm's business in the United States, stating that R. H. Macy & Company were their best customer in New York (which fact he had doubtless learned from a study of the Macy show window on Thirty-fifth Street), and that he was en-

SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL GRANT NO HEARINGS ON WAR TAX

Communications to be Turned Over to Democratic Members—Hope to Expedite Matters in the Senate —Hope to Pass Bill Next Week

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 29.

THAT there will be no hearings allowed on the war revenue tax bill was the decision of the Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee. It was decided, however, that all communications which have been received since the measure was introduced in the House would be read. For the purpose of expediting the matter, it has been agreed to parcel out the bill among the various Democratic members and to distribute to each all the communications received concerning the specific taxes mentioned in that section. The Senator will read the matter over and then report to the other Democratic members some recommendation upon the tax.

The committee showed some disposition not to hurry the matter, but rather to await some news from the White House as to how much more legislation the President is going to insist upon. It is believed that if the President would consent to adjournment as soon as the Clayton bill and the war revenue bill are enacted the Senate would be willing to receive the committee report on the revenue bill this week and dispose of it some time next week.

CAPITOL.

Continued Protests May Help Retailers

It is evident from the above that there will be no chance for the retailers and cigarette manufacturers to appear before the Senate Finance Committee to protest against the proposed taxation. There is, however, a chance that continued protest by mail may have some effect. Thousands of vendors of other goods who handle cigars and cigarettes for the accommodation of their customers only, will refuse to handle them under the conditions of the tax, as there would be practically nothing in it for them after that was paid. This in individual cases would seem to work no hardship on anyone but the consumer, but consider several nickel brands of cigars that are generally carried by the grocery and allied trades. The manufacturers of these goods would feel the curtailment in the sale of their products at once. This tax is not an equitable arrangement as the burden falls on the class least able to stand it.

Regarding the tax on cigarette manufacturers, as far as numbers are concerned, the majority of the manufacturers employ only a few hands and the tax of twenty-four dollars on the output of such a factory would be out of all proportion.

The tobacco trade is in no condition to be held up for any such sums as has been apportioned to it, and this fact cannot be too strongly impressed. An industry that is already contributing nearly $100,000,000 annually to the treasury should receive due consideration.

The sub-committee of the Senate Finance Committee to consider the section relating to tobacco is composed of Senators Simmons, Williams and Johnson. All protests should be directed to these members without delay, as it is rumored that they plan to add two more classes of tobacco products to those already included in the bill.

Last Call for Cigar Day

This is the last call for National Cigar Day, which will be celebrated October 12th. Don't let your customers catch you napping, but prepare now and lay in a good line of fresh goods that will meet with the hearty approbation of your trade.

Begin the first of the week to placard your window, telling the public that National Cigar Day is October 12th. Suggest to them why they should be free with cigars on that day. Tell them about your useful souvenirs.

Many of the jobbing houses and chain stores in large cities will advertise in the local newspapers on that day, and there is no doubt but what this will have a splendid effect on the smoking public. No smoker who reads the advertisement of his favorite brand in the newspaper on that day will be able to resist the temptation to step out and buy an extra stock to help the cause along.

Don't forget to do some advertising if you possibly can; it will pay big returns.

Feature cigars on October 12th.

Confidence in the Times

Most of the manufacturers in the First and Ninth internal revenue districts are busier than for some time. Orders seem to be continually coming in, and from now until the end of December cigarmakers will be in demand. A glance of the "help wanted" columns of the up-state newspapers verifies this statement.

The activity, which is greater than usual this fall, is due to more reasons than one. True the holiday season is at hand, but the cigars manufactured during the past three months have shown a nice increase over the same months of 1913, although the total production so far this year is still behind that of last year.

Despite conditions which in a country less well established would militate against prosperity, there is a decided confidence springing up and an evidence on the part of manufacturers to return to good times.

The factories are busy with orders and employes are going back to their benches every day. More money is in circulation and there are more cigars smoked now than in some months.

Good times are at hand and the more we talk them and the harder we work for them the sooner they will arrive. Prosperity has no time for the pessimist.

Cigarette Papers Arrive From France

Cigarette papers from Braunstein Freres, the French manufacturers, recently arrived in New York via S. S. "Chicago." They were directed to C. Drucklieb, Inc., the United States representative of this factory. It is stated that in all probability shipments from now on will arrive more regularly.

I. B. Krinsky to Market 5-Cent Brand

I. B. Krinsky, the cigarette manufacturers of Brooklyn, who have established a large trade on "Fifth Avenue" and "Comos" cigarettes, announce that they will shortly market a new five-cent brand. Factory reports indicate that the brands of this firm are now enjoying an extensive distribution.

Many Tobacco Brands for Navy Men

Secretary Daniels has settled the much-discussed tobacco question in the navy by admitting for sale in the ship store afloat and the commissary store at yards all apparently desirable brands on an equal footing with one another.

The method decided upon is to have the chemist at the Brooklyn Navy Yard analyze all samples submitted, and then for the department to enter into contract for furnishing such quantities as may be required of every brand found to conform to the necessary standard of purity.

Liggett & Myers Helping Cotton

The Patterson & Hoffman Cigar Company, of Oklahoma City, have entered the "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" movement and have announced a plan for the purchase of more.

This concern, it is stated, will buy one bale of cotton every time five hundred tins of "Velvet" smoking tobacco are sold.

It is understood that this action is taken under instructions from Liggett & Myers, and that Patterson & Hoffman have been advised to invest all the proceeds from the sale of "Velvet" in cotton, for the purpose of aiding the farmer.

It is further stated that Liggett & Myers intend to follow out that plan in all large Southern cities where "Velvet" is sold.

REVISED WAR REVENUE TAX SHIFTS BURDEN ON MEMBERS OF RETAIL TOBACCO TRADE

Dealers Are to Pay $4.80 Per Annum—Cigarette Manufacturers Taxed $24—Leaf Dealers With Sales of Less Than 1,000 Pounds Exempt.

THE war revenue bill as reported to the House shows several important changes in that section relating to the tobacco trade, and they are radical ones from the old Spanish war bill.

The little joker slipped in at the last minute is one that is arousing protests from retail tobacconists in all parts of the country, but those in other lines who handle tobacco and tobacco products for accommodation are still more perturbed over what they term "gross extortion."

This is the sentence that has caused the commotion: "Dealers in tobacco, not especially provided for in this section, shall each pay $4.80."

Why shouldn't this create an uproar? It includes every dealer in tobacco from the delicatessen man who keeps them for an accommodation to the drug store, fruit stands and billiard parlors.

There are hundreds of stands handling cigars that could not afford to pay such a tax and there are a lot of them that will pass up the business sooner than "come across." Nor can they be blamed.

Another item that has been slipped in is one that reads: "Manufacturers of cigarettes shall each pay $24."

This is going to include a whole lot of cigarette manufacturers who employ, many of them, not more than one or two hands, and such a tax is not an equitable arrangement for them.

There is another paragraph which is going to work a hardship in some sections:

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed 100,000 cigars shall each pay $6."

Although it may not be generally known this tax is arousing considerable protest in some sections.

In the cheap cigar districts it will be found that many so-called factories consist of one hand only. Usually a mother or daughter who makes cigars in her home for some manufacturer in the town. Circumstances have made it impossible for the mother or daughter to go to the factory, and so through the philanthrophy of some cigar manufacturer they have been able to take out a factory license and make cigars in their homes during spare moments. Very few such factories turn out more than 50,000 cigars a year and some not more than 25,000. Considering the cost of securing the license and the additional expenses there is nothing in it for the manufacturer who maintains such a factory. It is a stroke of philanthrophy in many cases and the profit is almost negligible. Some manufacturers have anywhere from two to twenty such factories. It is evident that the woman cannot afford to pay this tax of $6, and it is certain that the manufacturer is not willing to pay it. He might if there were only one or two such places to help out, but with a score it is a different matter.

The writer recalls a town of less than 2,500 inhabitants with almost 150 registered cigar factories, of which more than 100 are of the "buckeye" type just described. The enforcement of this law will cause many of the women to lose the additional income from their cigar making, and will in some cases bring distress to homes that have formerly been able to hold together by frugal practices.

The provisions of the new bill as relates to the tobacco industry are as follows:

Christmas Packings for Jobbing Trade

The time is now at hand when the jobbing trade is alert to connect with attractive lines of Christmas packings, and on another page of THE TOBACCO WORLD will be found the announcement of two very attractive boxes of Christmas goods which can be ordered for delivery for the holiday season.

H. L. Haines & Company, of Red Lion, Pa., manufacturers of these goods, are well known to the trade, and have long manufactured cheaper lines of cigars. The packings of "El Luxardo" and "El Merito de Cuba," mentioned in their advertisement, are very attractive and should take well with the consumer desiring a cheap box of cigars.

These goods will retail from twenty-five cents to thirty-five cents the box of ten. Both are banded and Florida-wrapped. The "El Merito de Cuba" brand is long-filler. These goods can be supplied in several sizes and also in packings of twelve instead of ten to the box. If it is desired the factory will supply an assortment of labels and sizes.

The firm has established a reputation by its fair dealings, and their statement that they guarantee satisfaction is a dependable one.

The firm has a special list for jobbers only and interested firms will do well to order early, as the company is already busy with holiday orders. H. L. Haines & Company employ no salesmen and hence are able to sell at a very low price.

No Decision in Matter of Bonded Stamp Wording

Although it has been announced from time to time that "a decision will be rendered in about a week," the Treasury Department thus far has failed to settle the dispute regarding the wording on the bonded stamp.

New York manufacturers who use "team work" have again urged the department to make public its decision, but thus far no word has been received.

When the argument was in full heat, members of the industry using the "Spanish method" and others using the "team work" process of manufacture met in Washington to present the respective sides of the argument. Some of the arguments were so warm that the censor had to use his pencil.

It seems as if the department is uncertain as to a solution which will be satisfactory. At any rate they are still keeping their opinion to themselves.

New York, Tampa, Chicago and Key West manufacturers who use "team work" are anxious to learn where they stand.

On the other hand some manufacturers who use the "Spanish method," now printed on the stamp, declare they will abandon the plan of the bonded factory if cigars manufactured by "team work" are allowed to use the same stamp.

Meanwhile a whole lot of manufacturers are deciding that they will do no bonding until they find out "which way the wind blows."

Bock-Stauffer Busy With High-Grade Stogie Lines

Bock-Stauffer Company, the well-known Pittsburgh jobbers, are very busy at this time with their stogie line, which includes the cream of the stogie business.

They are expecting a heavy demand for the "Red Label" brand of stogies, hand-made and long filler, retailing at three for five cents.

Bock-Stauffer Company will be glad to furnish prices and samples on application. This is a good time of the year to lay in a line of stogies.

PREPARE NOW FOR NATIONAL CIGAR DAY

October 12th is at Hand—Don't Forget Your Souvenirs—Prepare for the Demand With Fresh Stock

WHILE the American League champions are battling with the Braves in Boston for the championship of the baseball world, and the entire nation is paying tribute to the discoverer of this continent, the tobacco trade will have an excellent opportunity to celebrate the birth of National Cigar Day, October 12th.

The fact that the date is Columbus Day, and that at the same time the sporting fraternity will have its interest centered in the struggle for the baseball championship, lends unusual opportunity to the wide-awake dealer for some catchy cards.

Impress on the public that this is the time to "smoke up," that this is the time to donate cigars to their friends, that this is a day that will become an annual event when the smoker will have his sway.

This is "Father's Day"; this is the date when he is entitled to knock down an extra dime on his pay envelope to invest in a Key West or Tampa smoke to celebrate the event. Tell the fathers this. Go after them. Every retailer in the country can get a good amount of additional business if he will make the effort.

It behooves the retailer to be wide-awake and get all he can; they want to make the war revenue tax on tobacco effective November 1st.

Don't forget to play for the ladies. This is the day for them to remember their husbands, sweethearts, sons and brothers with a box of smokes.

Encourage the consumer to remember his friends.

Suggest that they give a thought to the elevator man, the postman, the janitor, and others to whom a cigar or two is a message of friendship and cheer.

Begin now to advertise the National Cigar Day in your window. Some placard as this will serve the purpose:

OCTOBER 12.
NATIONAL CIGAR DAY.
GET YOUR CIGARS HERE.

You can get buttons, pennants and cigar cutters appropriately marked for a very small sum. Full particulars upon application to the National Cigar Day Association, 21 Spruce Street, New York.

These souvenirs will not only attract trade for National Cigar Day, but will make future trade for you. Don't delay, but get in line at once. When you see how big this event is going to take with the smoking public you will be a disappointed man if you are not prepared to handle the trade.

The newspapers are promising to give wide publicity to the day, and one syndicate which controls newspapers in scores of cities will use a special illustrated service on that day.

Begin on Monday to display a good line of cigars in your window, and tell the public WHY you are doing it. Then when the 12th arrives, put your best foot forward and dress your window up the best you know how, and in keeping with the day.

This is a real opportunity.

John W. Merriam was recently entertained in Buffalo, N. Y., at the Motor Island Club House by Harry Foster, of the Noah-Foster Company. At a banquet numbering 160 covers, Mr. Merriam was the guest of honor, and was delicately complimented in that the cigars smoked were those bearing the "Merriam" insignia.

"Sec. 5. That from and after November 1, 1914, special taxes on tobacco dealers and manufacturers shall be and hereby are imposed annually as follows, the amount of such annual taxes to be computed in all cases on the basis of the annual sales for the preceding fiscal year:

"Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed 50,000 pounds shall each pay $6. Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales exceed 50,000 and do not exceed 100,000 pounds shall pay $12, and if their annual sales exceed 100,000 pounds shall pay $24. Provided, That dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed 1,000 pounds shall be exempt from the tax herein imposed on dealers in leaf tobacco.

"Dealers in tobacco, not specially provided for in this section, shall each pay $4.80.

"Every person whose business it is to sell, or offer for sale, manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall be regarded as a dealer in tobacco; Provided, That no manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes shall be required to pay a special tax as a dealer in manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes for selling his own products at the place of manufacture.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed 50,000 shall each pay $6.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed 50,000 and do not exceed 100,000 pounds shall each pay $12.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed 100,000 pounds shall each pay $24.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed 100,000 cigars shall each pay $6.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed 100,000 and do not exceed 200,000 cigars shall each pay $12.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed 200,000 cigars shall each pay $24.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes shall each pay $24.

"And every person who carries on any business or occupation for which special taxes are imposed by this act, without having paid the special tax herein provided, shall, besides being liable to the payment of such special tax, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $500, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court."

Tobacco Growers Want Aid

LYNCHBURG, VA., September 30.

The Rustburg Union of the Farmers' Co-operative and Educational Society passed resolutions condemning the "buy-a-bale-cotton" movement on the part of local concerns, because local interests have not aided in relieving tobacco growers, whose condition is equally critical as cotton raisers.

This is the first discordant note relative to the cotton situation, and it is not believed that it reflects the sentiment of the tobacco growers, who are dependent largely upon foreign representatives for the sale of their dark tobacco. The planters are being advised to hold their tobacco, which is still uncut, until late in October.

A Splendid "Havana Ribbon" Display

Herewith is a display of "Havana Ribbon" cigars recently shown in the window of a San Francisco retail store. The simplicity of this display, in marked contrast to the overcrowded windows of some of the other stores, attracted wide attention.

Ehrman Brothers & Company are the sole distributors for this brand in San Francisco, which perhaps accounts for the tremendous distribution which the brand has in that section.

Bayuk Brothers, the manufacturers, of Philadelphia, are enjoying one of the biggest years in their history.

Al. Bolton New Eisenlohr Representative

AL. BOLTON has been appointed by Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers to succeed Frank C. Miller as their South Jersey representative. Mr. Miller, it will be recalled, met an untimely death while crossing the railroad tracks in Woodbury some weeks ago. Mr. Bolton will cover the same territory as his predecessor.

Mr. Bolton comes from the National Cash Register Company, and at present is residing in Bridgeton, N. J.

"Havana Ribbon" Sales Heavy

Bayuk Brothers Company report "Havana Ribbon" sales to be most satisfactory, having closed their books for September on the largest month's business ever before experienced by the firm. This condition existed during July and August, but the past month has shown the best figures ever secured, notwithstanding the fact that there are a large number of orders on hand unfilled, owing to the inability to secure sufficient production to meet the increased demand on "Ribbons."

Reports from the various territories are very encouraging; all of the men being very optimistic for a continuance of live business for the balance of this year.

George J. Wemyss, recently appointed to the New England territory, is meeting with gratifying success and is securing a nice increase in business from that section. Mr. Wemyss is presently working with Messrs. Bugbee & Brown, of Biddeford, Me., who are securing a very satisfactory volume of business on the brand.

"Counsellor" Factory to be Enlarged

Work has recently commenced on the addition to the "Counsellor" cigar factory of Allen R. Cressman's Sons, in Allentown, which upon completion will make this building one of the largest in that city.

The present "Counsellor" factory was completed only a few months ago, but the steady growth of the firm's business has been such as to necessitate an immediate increase in the factory's capacity. This addition will conform in height and architecture to the main building.

Harry Boston, of the Wm. Demuth Pipe Company, New York City, was in Philadelphia this week.

Philadelphia Notes

Eugene S. Cochran, representing Geo. W. Cochran, 709 Fourteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., was in Philadelphia.

J. Culver Wolfe, who represents the Waldorf Astoria Segar Company, Ltd., with headquarters in New York, was in Philadelphia this week.

Victor Lopez, who visits Philadelphia in the interest of J. Klorfeim, New York City, manufacturers of "Garcia Grande" cigars, closed some attractive business while here this week.

Chas. L. Staples was in Philadelphia this week, after an extended trip throughout the South and Southwest.

Mr. Staples has had exceptional business on "Hoyo de Monterrey," Havana made, and "Mi Favorita," Key West made cigars.

Morris D. Neumann, of the firm of Neumann & Mayer, manufacturers of "Bella Mundo," "White Knight" and "El Tello," is now on a Western trip, visiting his distributors in the interests of these brands. Mr. Neumann is at present in Nebraska.

Bereavement of Speed S. Goodloe

The many friends of Speed S. Goodloe will regret to learn that the death of his mother recently occurred in Louisville, Ky. She had been in ill health for some time and Mr. Goodloe made frequent trips to her home during the past few months.

Good Demand for "Rey-Oma" Cigars

"Rey-Oma" cigars and "Rey-Oma" ponies are moving very quickly according to the latest reports from Sig. C. Mayer & Company, the manufacturers. Orders for the holiday season are coming in and the factory is busy turning out the goods.

James F. Courtney

JAMES F. COURTNEY, of Madison, Wis., for twenty-five years a travelling salesman for Best & Russell and the American Tobacco Company, and later proprietor of Courtney's Cigar Store at 110 East Main Street, died recently within thirty-six hours after being stricken with pneumonia.

Mr. Courtney was forty-nine years old and had lived in Madison for sixteen years. He was a Mason and prominent in business circles. He was born in Canada and had been engaged in the tobacco business all his life.

The deceased is survived by a widow and four children.

Samuel Gorham

Samuel Gorham, of Providence, R. I., for many years a retailer and wholesaler in the tobacco trade, died recently at his home 236 Knight Street, as a result of pneumonia. He was ill only ten days.

The deceased is survived by a widow and two sons, Judge Howard C. Gorham and Prof. Frederick P. Gorham, of Brown University. Mr. Gorham was eighty years old.

Henry Hamper

Henry Hamper, father-in-law of Robert Mantell, Shakespearean actor, and sales manager of the Globe Tobacco Company, of Detroit, committed suicide on September 13th, by shooting himself at his home, 312 Warren Avenue West. He was seventy years old. Members of his family believe heart disease, with which he had been afflicted for several years, caused him to take his life. Besides the widow, he is survived by two sons and a daughter. One son, Charles M. Hamper, is superintendent of the Globe Tobacco Company, while his brother, Walter Hamper, is general manager. Mr. Hamper had just returned from a six-months' visit at the home of Mr. Mantell, at Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey. In broken health, he had been forced to leave his business last February, but returned home on September 19th, declaring he felt better. A family reunion was being held in celebration of his return. He was born in Ashford, England, in 1844, and has been a resident of Detroit for more than fifty years. About ten years ago he entered the employ of the Globe Tobacco Company as a salesman, and for the last four years has been sales manager. He was prominent in Masonic circles.

Frederick F. Meurer

Frederick F. Meurer, sixty-five years old, a retired manufacturer of cigars, fell dead at Millick and Market Streets, this city, Wednesday afternoon. For years he was in the cigar business at Eighth and Vine Streets. His widow, daughter and two sisters survive. The Meurer home is at 41 North Dewey Street, West Philadelphia.

Last Call for Cigar Day Souvenirs

The National Cigar Day Association, with headquarters at 21 Spruce Street, New York, announces that no souvenirs can be shipped after Wednesday, October 7th. Get in line and send in your orders at once; souvenirs will play a big part in getting the public interested in Cigar Day as an annual event.

tertaining their buyer at dinner that night. Remained about twenty minutes, and just at leaving, with the utmost sangfroid said, "Oh, Mr. Kendrick, I did not get time to get down to our foreign bank this afternoon, and would like you to accommodate me with $50 till tomorrow noon when you will lunch with me." He got it.

The next day the two known victims met on Broadway and their mutual tales of woe and descriptions of the alleged Gallaher tallied exactly. A visit to Mulberry Street was the outcome. The authorities down there say it's a new game on them.

The most amusing feature of the whole thing is this; about fifteen years ago Mr. Kendrick was swindled in Philadelphia out of ten dollars by a young English crook who represented himself to be from Nottingham, England, the son of a prominent advertiser in his textile journal. About one year later, this young crook was arrested in Philadelphia for swindling the late Robert H. Foerderer, the millionaire leather merchant and Congressman, by representing himself as the son of a great hide merchant in Liverpool. Mr. Kendrick identified him in jail, and he served a sentence of several years.

If memory has not played a sorry trick, the alleged Mr. Gallaher is the same dapper young Englishman or Irishman of fifteen years ago, but with about forty pounds of added weight and the consequent maturity of the elapsed time.

In any event, the man is dangerous and the trade is warned to look out for him. He knows the names and many intimate details of the cigar trade and is extremely plausible.

He stands about five feet eight inches in height, weighs about 170 pounds, and when last seen was dressed in gray cheviot suit, soft felt hat. Has light hair, somewhat thin, and can be particularly noted by very bad teeth, the lower teeth set in gold and upper badly decayed. Speaks in a quick, decisive manner and takes the lead in talking, using a pronounced brogue.

KNICKERBOCKER.

W. J. Masury Resigns From Martin Company

William J. Masury, for the past four years connected with the Martin stores in Davenport, Ia., as window trimmer, has resigned his position with that firm and has accepted one with the C. C. Taft Company, of Des Moines. Mr. Masury, who takes his new position on October 1st, will become head trimmer for the Taft stores, which includes a chain of sixteen establishments.

New Manager for Austin, Nichols & Company

Austin, Nichols & Company have recently announced by circular that L. Relyea has assumed management of the cigar department of that firm. The new chief states that the company will continue to concentrate its efforts on the "Charles Denby" and "Traveler" brands, and that the work of these nickel leaders will be kept up until the market in their territory is fully covered. It is also announced that during this campaign no experiments with new brands will be tried. From this statement it seems that the firm intends to push the popular priced lines and obtain as wide a distribution as possible.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

A novel and yet successful appeal for a good mailing list, has been inaugurated by a retail cigar and tobacco dealer, who is located in the residential section of a large city in an Eastern State.

Skipping Rope for Addresses

Situated near one of the public schools, and realizing that the cooler weather meant the return of the skipping rope for the girls, this dealer conceived the idea of supplying this to any girl who would leave the names and addresses of the members of her family who used tobacco in any form.

This list will be arranged alphabetically, and letters will be sent to the addresses given, stating reasons why this particular dealer can supply better goods at the same price than can the dealers located in the expensive downtown sections.

While practically all the popular brands are on sale, there are several brands manufactured under the dealer's private label, and these will be featured as soon as the confidence of the men smokers can be gained.

* * *

There can scarcely be any doubt, but what the giving of kitchen utensils prove a valuable premium for any class of merchants, and the experience of a number of retail cigar and tobacco dealers throughout all parts of the country has led many merchants of this kind to issue coupons for the redemption of these goods.

Kitchen Utensils as Premiums

These are not carried in stock for the reason that the average smoke shop would not permit their proper display, but when the requisite amount of coupons or sales slips have been turned in, an order is given on some store where these goods are carried in a wide number of designs and makes, and the selection of the article is thus left entirely to the person redeeming the coupons.

In the introductory work, letters and newspaper advertisements with a direct appeal to the housekeeper form the principal means of approach, but the value of window cards must not be overlooked.

* * *

A cigar and tobacco dealer, located a number of miles above the Mason and Dixon Line, where the winters are somewhat long and the amount of ice and snow, with its consequent slippery and unsafe walking, has inaugurated the premium idea by offering a pair of new style creepers for pedestrians.

Creepers for Cash Receipts

These safety devices are fastened over the instep with the points directly below between the heel and ball of the foot. This enables the person to secure the best results, as the prongs can be adjusted for any style of covering worn over the foot, and is the first object to receive the weight of the user.

For the return of a given number of cash register sales slips, a pair of the useful articles are given free, and this premium brings forcibly to mind the fact that the adaptability of any gift enhances its value to the consumer.

It requires a considerable stretch of the imagination to connect embroidery and outlined fancy work with the cigar and tobacco trade, but one dealer in these latter commodities will follow the same plan for extending his business as he used for the year 1913.

Tobacconist Appeals to Women

These plans comprise the giving of table covers, doilies, and other pieces to be used for drawn work, the silk and material for center pieces outlined for fruits and flowers, upon the presentation of a given amount of sales slips from the store of this tobacconist.

The introductory work performed last year consisted of letters sent to the women located in the section where the dealer has his store, and secured from the registry list of voters. This tobacconist, by the way, lives in California.

The advent of October is an opportunity for wide-awake cigar and tobacco dealers, who are not content to await the arrival of the regular holidays.

Hallowe'en Favors Win Trade

School children are not immune from the temptation to secure Hallowe'en costumes, favors and articles of personal adornment, for the return of coupons or sales slips which will be given by the proprietor of a smokery where father or brother purchases his supply of tobacco and cigars.

The decoration of a window with these goods, which contains a few attractive window cards, should catch and hold the attention of the prospective celebrants, and from the experience of one dealer resulted in increased business, which ought to be carried permanently.

Monday, October 12th, has been designated as "National Cigar Day" for American manufacturers, and to procure the best results possible and bring the product prominently before the public on this occasion, a well-known clear Havana firm has offered prizes aggregating $500 for the best display of a certain brand manufactured by them.

National Cigar Day Prizes

The number of prizes total twenty-nine, so even though the first prize is not within reach of all, it should spur dealers all over the country to put forth some effort to secure a portion of this liberal offer.

One of the largest tobacco manufacturers in Detroit, Mich., has been conducting a successful publicity campaign by redeeming thirty-five whole coupons and a newspaper advertisement, for silk hosiery. This method not only secures a good distribution of this firm's product, but also establishes the value of this particular newspaper as an advertising medium.

Tampa

"Ignacio Haya" New Sanchez & Haya Product—Figures Show Business Improving—Berriman Brothers Increasing Working Force

TAMPA, September 26.

"BUSINESS Is Good," seems to be the general tone of the cigar situation in Tampa. Reports to this effect emanating from the various factories, may readily be believed by a glance at the following figures: During the week ending September 12th there were shipped from Tampa cigars to the number of 4,200,000, while the week ending September 19th totaled 4,615,000, an increase of 415,000.

E. G. Dunlap, who has been connected with the factory of San Martin & Leon for some time, has been obliged to sever his relations with that company owing to ill-health.

During the week ending September 19th, there were imported into this city from Havana, 953 bales of tobacco, 608 bales on the first boat and 345 bales on the second. During the week ending September 26th, 1213 bales were imported into the city.

Perfecto Garcia & Brothers, manufacturers of "La Amita" and "Perla del Mar," report that their new factory is well under way. The estimated cost of the new building, including the installation of a sprinkler system, it is stated, will amount to about $35,000.

E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez y Haya Company, reports his salesmen out on the road lining up their holiday orders. Mr. Stachelberg states that he is well pleased with the success with which they are meeting. He also states, that since the trouble across the seas began, they have been procuring their lithographed labels from New York, and their bands from Havana, in which line, the Havana lithographers particularly excel.

A recent visitor to Havana for the inspection and purchase of fine tobacco, was Val. M. Antuono, manufacturer of the "Duke of Belcourt" and "C. H. S." cigars. Reports from this factory state business is good.

Berriman Brothers, manufacturers of the favored "José Vila," are very optimistic. They have already begun making up their holiday goods, and found it necessary within the past week or so, to increase their working force.

José Escalante, who bids for trade through the merits of his well-known "Corina," returned to the city on Thursday last from Havana, following an absence of a couple of weeks. He stated that business there was poor, orders being filled only for the United States and South America. While on the island, Mr. Escalante purchased tobacco amounting to between $35,000 and $40,000.

Jerome Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons, is in town, having recently arrived from New York, where he spent some time on business. Mortimer Regensburg is expected here shortly. Mr. Regensburg plans to visit Jerome for awhile and then go on to Cuba to get an idea concerning the prospects for the new tobacco crop.

Sanchez & Haya have started the manufacture of a new cigar in six sizes, to retail at prices ranging from twenty to fifty cents. This new product will be known as the "Ignacio Haya," having been named after Ignacio Haya, a member of the original firm of Sanchez & Haya "No. 1" cigar factory, of Tampa.

Two Changes for Chicago Manufacturers

Two large changes among the Chicago manufacturers developed during the past two weeks. The first has to do with Grommes & Elston, the large West Side makers of "Ben Bey" and other famous brands. The company will close the factory at Tampa, Fla., where the "Bolano" cigar is made, and in the future manufacture the same at the West Side factory where the "Ben Bey" is made. The entire plant of the company will then probably be bonded, as the "Bolano" is a bonded cigar and the company could not well relinquish this distinction. Grommes & Elston will therefore become the first bonded manufacturers in the city, unless several other manufacturers, who have been considering the move, take action before the first-named company. The move was taken because it has been the wish of Grommes & Elston for some time to concentrate their business, as it is believed greater efficiency in manufacturing and shipping methods can be secured if the entire factory is placed under one roof.

The second case has to do with the Cyrilla Cigar Manufacturing Company, which last week announced the intention of erecting a model cigar factory to accommodate the rapidly growing business of the company. "Cyrilla" cigar is a brand which has been forging steadily to the front during the past year. The yellow and black label is seen in most of the first-class cases around the city, and the cigar has certain qualities which appeal to the discriminate smoker. From all reports, the new factory will be the last word in efficiency. The matter of sanitation and convenience for the workers will also receive a considerable amount of attention when the architect comes to draw the plans.

Promising Yield of Bahia Tobacco

There are now about 30,000 bales of 70 kilos (154 pounds each) of leaf tobacco now on hand in Bahia, of which a part, however, is already sold. The total annual crop averages 350,000 to 400,000 bales and has reached 600,000 bales. The price received for the crop just over averages about 13 cents per pound f. o. b. Bahia, the poorest qualities bringing perhaps 8 and the best 18 cents. The new crop to be gathered from November to January promises exceptionally well, both as to quantity and quality.

Operations are now being carried on in the completed extension of the Escalante factory at Palmetto Beach. This extension included an addition of 70 feet on three floors and basement, and brings the dimensions of the factory to 189 by 38 feet. Attention is now being given to the erection of one 35,000 gallon tank and one 10,000 tank in connection with the new sprinkler system in the factory.

Good business is reported at the factory of José Llama Company, despite the fact that it is numbered among the youngest factories in Tampa. Satisfactory orders are also reported by F. Lozano, Son & Company; Salvador Rodriguez and P. San Martin & Leon.

Quite a number of orders for holiday goods have been received at the factory of Celestino Vega & Company, where it is stated that business is very satisfactory.

A. L. Cuesta, Jr., left Thursday for Havana, where he will superintend the opening of Cuesta, Rey & Company's extensive tobacco warehouse in that city. Mr. Cuesta's stay is indefinite. It may be for thirty or it may be for sixty days. He will also look after the purchases of tobacco for his company while in the city.

PERFECTO.

Best & Russell Cigar Company Helping Cotton

THE Best & Russell Cigar Company, of Memphis, Tenn., has joined in the Memphis Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton Plan, which has been adopted by the leading business interests of Memphis. Every cotton-growing territory in the South and Southwest is promoting this scheme in order to relieve the situation caused by the war.

Those who can join in this plan will perform a service for the good of the country, as well as helping many planters who are tobacco growers as well.

The plan as outlined by the Memphis Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton Committee follows, in part:

"If the South should sacrifice its cotton crop at this moment it would sacrifice many millions in wealth which would otherwise come into this country. If the South can hold its cotton crop, which is this year unusually great and unusually good, it will soon find a tremendous market for it at the conclusion of this war.

"The 1914 crop is estimated to be fifteen million bales. Of this the normal domestic consumption is about six million bales. English mills, still open, will take at least two million bales, and our own mills, which are already preparing to run day and night in an effort to capture the foreign trade, which has heretofore been supplied by Germany and France, should increase their consumption at least four million bales. This leaves a surplus of three million bales to be disposed of in some way so as not to depress the market.

"Cotton planters, who are in financial position to do so, are keeping off the market all that they can, but there is an element among our cotton farmers who are unable to do this. They are in debt, and in order to meet their obligations, are compelled to sell at any price they can get. This is what is known as distressed cotton.

"In order to relieve them, the 'Buy-a-Bale-Plan' has been inaugurated. It is the purpose of this plan to buy one bale of this 'distressed' cotton from as many of these farmers who are in absolute need as possible.

"The cotton you are asked to buy will be stored for you in a cotton warehouse, a warehouse receipt will be issued against it showing the weight, the number, and marks on each bale, completely identifying it. This cotton cannot be taken out of the warehouse until this receipt is surrendered to the warehouse. This receipt will be sent to you. It is a recognized negotiable paper and banks accept them as collateral for loans. It may be transferred by endorsement, just as you would a note. The cost of warehousing and insuring a bale of cotton is about one dollar and fifty cents a bale for a year, varying a little above or below $1.50, according to the location of the warehouse.

"Cotton is not perishable. It may be kept for years without deterioration.

"Coupled with our buying plan is an obligation to reduce the acreage in 1915 forty per cent. This will reduce the supply sufficiently to bring it below the normal demand and insure a good price next year. The war over, prices will go up to 12, 14 or perhaps 15 cents a pound. You can't lose, and you may gain, and there is every probability that you will. You are merely asked to lend a little of your money to this great section upon first-class security."

MINNESOTA EDITOR THINKS ALL CIGAR BANDS ARE MADE IN GERMANY AND NOWHERE ELSE

Article in His Paper States They Are About to Disappear—Evidently Never Heard of American Lithographic Houses

IT is with great astonishment that we read in the Rochester, Minn., Post, that cigar bands are to disappear! This wide-awake newspaper states that the European war is making another inroad, and that this time it is to be the elimination of the cigar band, because that article is manufactured in Germany.

This news is very surprising to us, as we find that four of the larger lithographic houses in New York, viz., Wm. Steiner, Sons & Company; Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice; Heywood, Strasser & Voight Lithographic Company and Pasbach-Voice Lithographic Company, Inc., are still doing business and more of it than ever before. The idea of the cigar band being eliminated on account of the war is purest piffle. There are many lines that the war may seriously affect, but it is certain that it is not going to cause the disappearance of cigar bands as long as the battling nations do not bombard New York. The firms mentioned above have served the cigar manufacturers long and faithfully, and far from being eliminated, they are enjoying an era of prosperity such as they have never before experiencd.

Herewith we print the article from the Rochester Post:

"Europe's war is making another inroad. This time it is to be the elimination of the cigar band, because that article is manufactured in Germany.

"Prominent cigar dealers throughout the country are announcing that within a short time the cigar bands will disappear, as it is impossible to obtain any more bands from warring Germany.

"The elimination of the cigar band will not only be missed by those smokers who never know the difference between cigars, except by the bands, but by those who won't buy a cigar, unless it has the dainty circlet."

In direct opposition to this statement we print the following, written by a member of the tobacco trade press to Printers' Ink, and which was published in that magazine in the issue of September 10th:

"As you probably know, the very best work on cigar bands and cigar box labels is done in Germany, and a very considerable proportion of those products used in the United States comes from that country. There are a large number of label manufacturers in the United States, and those in New York, particularly, who benefit extensively from the cutting off of the importation of these goods from Germany. All these New York firms do German Process work, and they are not only advertising the fact extensively at this time, but are actually getting a tremendous amount of business, which in all probability will never go back to Germany, even should the war cease in a very short time.

American Tobacco Company Takes Long Lease

George R. Read & Company announce that they have leased the entire six-story and basement building at 484-490 Broome Street, containing 52,000 feet of floor space, to the American Tobacco Company for a long term of years.

Chicago

Business Shows General Improvement—Chain Store Owners Seeking New Locations

CHICAGO, September 26.

THE past two weeks cover a period of more than the usual amount of satisfaction on the part of local cigar merchants. The main cause for the big smile which adorns the face of the trade is the action of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives in deciding not to place a war tax on cigars. This means that a very embarrassing obstacle has been removed from the path of the entire industry, and the result of this knowledge has led manufacturers to go ahead in a manner which would not have been manifest, perhaps, without the stimulation of this threatened danger and then the happy escape.

"The trade press deserves credit for the prompt and vigorous fight which it made against this threatened blow to our business," said one manufacturer, "and I have no doubt but that the spirited articles and strong news stories which appeared in the various journals were responsible for the comparative ease with which we got together this time and opposed the measure as a unit."

Local manufacturers are preparing for the holiday trade and the old question is up as to whether it pays to get out special holiday goods.

The First National Bank Cigar Store has joined the "buy a bale" movement, and has purchased a bale of cotton weighing five hundred pounds at ten cents a pound, and now has the same on display in front of the store on Dearborn Street. The display of the bale of cotton draws large crowds every day and is proving quite an advertisement.

The J. & B. Moos Company, distributors, have started the fall with two heavy campaigns. One of them is on the "Chancellor" cigar, which is being pushed with window displays and advertisements throughout the city. The cigar is experiencing a revival of popularity as a result. The other campaign is on "Frozen Mint" gum, for which the company has the local rights of distribution. The idea of a cigar firm acting as the distributor of gum is a little new, but it seems to be working out in a satisfactory manner in the case of the J. & B. Moos Company.

The advertising campaign on "Subway" cigar, distributed by Sprague, Warner & Company, the wholesale grocers, continues with unabated fury. The cigar is becoming one of the best five-cent sellers in the city, due largely to the heavy advertising as well as to the real merit of the smoke, which has the distinction of being the largest five-cent cigar on the market.

One of the other five-cent cigars which has been attracting much attention of late is the "Big Six" seller of F. Couthoui & Company. The cigar is manufactured in cans by Arnold Tietig & Son, Cincinnati. F. Couthoui, in becoming local distributors, did not expect such a heavy run as has come on this cigar. It is of a variety which makes a strong appeal to a certain class of trade, and wins steady customers by sheer merit.

Business for the past month was reported excellent at the headquarters of Best & Russell. The salesmen in their various districts in the city all had good reports to make as to the outlook for fall business. Especially was this true in the case of several who have been working the rapidly growing districts on the southwest side. C. A. Paulson, manager of the Best & Russell retail stores, is expected back from his belated vacation this week, and further plans for pushing the line of the company may be expected at that time.

Albert Breitung, one of the largest retail store operators in the city, has recovered enough from his strenuous endeavors to get out of the war zone, when he was left stranded on the shores of Europe a few weeks ago, to place in the window of all of his stores a large and comprehensive map showing the operations of the contending armies. The display has been most successful, drawing the attention of the crowds both to the display and to the fine window decorations which Mr. Breitung is careful to see goes with the map.

Robbers entered the cigar store of the United Cigar Stores Company, 4002 West North Avenue, one night last week, and escaped with fifty dollars which they took from the cash register. The clerk on duty tried to resist, but, before he could reach his gun, was grabbed and choked almost to death by the robbers. The police have discovered no clue.

The William F. Monroe Cigar Company is planning a strong sales and advertising campaign this fall and winter on "Flor de Tadema" cigar, which is made by Arguelles, Lopez & Brother. The cigar will appear, it is understood, in a number of new shapes, and in fancy boxes for the holiday trade. Window displays will be placed in the windows of the various stores around the city, and a number of hangers will further advertise the merits of the cigar, for which the company has been distributor for a long time.

From the Best & Russell Company comes the news that N. P. Sanders, salesman of the company, who was injured in an auto accident at Dixon, Ill., while driving with the manager of the hotel several weeks ago, is not much better, and it is now feared at the headquarters of the company that his hurts may be more serious than was at first feared. He has been confined to the hotel in the Illinois city since the accident, as the physicians refuse to permit him to be moved.

The Nathan Fox Company, distributors, have been making rapid progress popularizing "El Baton" cigar, made by the J. C. Newman Cigar Company. The brand is one which has made a lot of good friends, and has a good established following.

"El Roi-Tan" cigar, distributed by Reid, Murdock & Company, has been making good progress also this far this fall. The cigar department of the large wholesale grocery is already rushed with orders and is pushing the factory for more goods, in order that the holiday orders, which will be coming soon, may be filled in the usual prompt and efficient manner.

Schermerhorn & Company, Inc., a firm operating retail stores, announced this week that several new stores would be taken in the downtown district in the near future. The company is now looking for the locations, and will start the new stores as soon as the leases have been arranged.

United Company's Safe Robbed

The safe in the United Cigar Store at East Forty-second Street, New York, was opened by some one who knew the combination on Thursday night last. The receipts for the day were stolen.

This is the same store which was attacked by thugs about a year ago and defended by the clerk in a most brilliant manner, who drove the robbers off.

A smoking tobacco firm in Milwaukee, Wis., recently offered a briar pipe with each pail of tobacco which retailed for forty-five cents. Either a bent or straight stem could be selected by the purchaser.

A Dayton Display of "La Saramita" Cigars

Eisenberger Brothers, of Dayton, O., recently had handsome window displays on the "La Saramita" brand of cigars, made by the widely known firm of Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland, O.

Eisenberger Brothers have been highly successful with the "La Saramita" brand, and these results have been duplicated by practically all the jobbers and dealers who handle Shields-Wertheim Company's line.

INFORMATIVE ADVERTISING COPY

Manufacturers Doing Fine Work—Using Best Brains On Preparing Advertisements—Good Results

FIVE years have shown a splendid advance in the character of the advertising copy in use by our leading tobacco and cigar manufacturers, and this fact in itself has done a vast amount to raise the general standard and dignity of the industry.

Not only the consuming public, but the small dealers as well, have been taught many things about the tobacco industry in the careful advertising announcements on which our manufacturers have spent such great sums of money. There was a time when thousands of dealers positively knew nothing about Burley tobacco, Virginia sun-cured, or the shade-grown varieties of the several states. Vuelta Abajo was as Greek to the average cigar clerk.

The masterly copy for advertisements now being prepared with such infinite care has done a great deal to change all this, and the beneficial results are accumulating each year.

A noteworthy example of this was the recent answer to Thomas A. Edison's ill-timed attack on cigarettes. James Zobian, who handles the advertising of the Philip Morris cigarette, a house, by the way, just as honorable, wealthy and high-minded in their line as Edison is in electrical affairs, prepared and published in the leading newspapers as an advertisement a scientific, analytical answer to all of Edison's charges, which not only completely refuted them, but made him appear ridiculous in the eyes of thinking people.

The exquisite color plates of the American Tobacco Company advertising the "Omar" cigarettes have done more to educate the consumer of cheap cigarettes concerning the quaint old Persian poet and philosopher than any other medium of which we could conceive.

The Ayer Advertising Agency struck a new note when they started the campaign on "Prince Albert" tobacco. Their work has been along a more homely line, but the copy has been most convincing and sales-helping.

Recently, we have been particularly struck with the extremely telling copy of Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Company on their "Velvet" brand. If the character of "Velvet Joe," both in the illustrations and text, does not wonderfully help in the sales of this smoking tobacco, then our views of advertising must be entirely readjusted. We do not know whether this copy is prepared by an advertising agency, but if it is we wish to pay our respects right now, and reproduce from the page advertisement in the October "Cosmopolitan" the dainty little poem which heads the vigorous announcement.

I hear a sof' footstep behin' me—
A voice in my ear whispers low,
"I've filled up yo' pipe full o' VELVET—Yo' know what I want, Uncle Joe."
An' the fust thing I know thar's the kiddie
A'climbin' up onto my knee,
An' while I'm a-lightin' I ask 'im,
"What sort of a tale shall it be?
Thar's one in my pipe now, a-hidin';
Let's smoke him, and then he will jump
Right out of my pipe like a rabbit,
From his home in a ole hollow stump."
"Yo' pipe is jus' chuck full o' stories;
It's 'most like a book, Uncle Joe."
"Yes, Buddy," I says to the kiddie,
"I reckon that's just about so."

Velvet Joe.

It's a hardened customer, indeed, who would not give "Velvet" a trial after looking at the illustration of "Velvet Joe" and his little nephew, and the dog, and then reading the poem.

KAPPAL.

"Lincoln Highway" a New Cigar

The "Lincoln Highway" cigar made its first appearance in Fort Wayne, Ind., at the Commercial Club, where many of the members smoked it with much satisfaction.

The Wayne Tobacco Company manufactures this cigar and expects to popularize it along the line of the proposed highway.

The label of the box is attractive, showing a map of the United States with a red line designating the route of the highway.

Much attention is attracted by S. W. Trott's six-passenger car throughout the city of Baltimore, due to the elaborate manner in which it is decorated with streamers advertising a well-known brand of cigars. Be is known that Mr. Trott represents with a vim, the Eisenlohrs in this territory, and "Cinco" is the brand in question.

Cigar Business Continues to Show Increase—"Philip Morris" Cigarettes Best Seller in Detroit—Watson Company Now Controls All Hotel Stands Except the Pontchartrain

DETROIT, MICH., September 25.

"A combination of service and quality in your cigar store will increase your business 100 per cent."

IN a report just issued by one of our national banks mention is made of the various manufacturing industries, showing their condition for the first seven months of the year as compared with a year ago. Mention is made of the cigar industry as follows: "Manufacturers of cigars and tobacco report increased sales over 1913." The fact is that business is considerably ahead, and when the thirty-first day of December rolls around, the net increase for 1914 over 1913 should be at least ten million cigars, which will represent an excellent growth in view of the unsettled conditions due to the war, and in comparison to other lines of trade, some of which have not even held their own, while others have shown a decrease in business.

A representative of the Minimum Wage Commission, in talking with a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD, paid a compliment to the cigar industry in Detroit. This commission, which was appointed about a year ago by the Governor of Michigan, has been looking into the wages paid to female employees in order to gauge as to whether or not they were receiving a sufficient amount to be self-supporting. While they found in some cases wages to be below what they should be, this particular member of the commission stated that the cigar industry paid better than any other trade which had been investigated; that the manufacturers in Detroit were to be congratulated, not only for their paying the girls well, but for their efforts in making the surroundings so pleasant for them.

Herman N. Schraeder has engaged in the cigar business at 209 South Union Street, Traverse City, Mich.

The E. M. Harris Company, of Detroit, who now conduct a retail store at 119 Woodward Avenue, and who have been in the cigar business for the past thirty-four years, have incorporated for $20,000, the largest and principal holders of stock being Landers Harris, Frank H. Forrest, Ralph Watkins and Frank Watkins; all of whom, excepting the latter, are active. Of this amount, $10,000 is common and $10,000 preferred stock, all of which has been subscribed and $18,132.80 paid in in cash and $10,567.19 in property. The lease on the present store expires May 1, 1915. By that time, however, the company will be operating another retail store in the new David Whitney Building, at Woodward and Grand Circus Park, which is expected to be ready early in January. The company has also closed a deal whereby it will have another retail store in the six-story building that will replace the present old structure at Woodward Avenue and Gratiot Avenue, the northeast corner. The building will be of white terra cotta and be a handsome one in every respect. It is certain that the Harris Company will have at least two stores, both of which are in excellent locations. Two more are under consideration, making a total of four.

The Wayne Cigar Company, of Detroit, makers of the "Niles & Moser Hand-Made," have given up their plan of starting a branch factory in Pontiac, owing to the European war. However, the idea will be carried out later should the war subside. The Wayne is now manufacturing an average of a million cigars weekly.

Salesmen galore have been visiting in Detroit the past ten days, both in the leaf tobacco field and cigars. Among the leaf men have been Fred Singer, Mr. Quanjer, Harry Nathan and O. W. Sartorius.

Cigar men were: Fred Suss, Steinicke & Company; Jack Kelly, with "Aplomas"; Mort Hammer, with "Lucius"; Hi Hammer, with "Julia Marlowe"; Ben Lesser, with "Lozanos"; Mr. Ackerman, with "Webster," and Mr. Sugar, with the "Uppman" line.

Ben Lesser says the "Lozano" brand is doing fine. The jobbers for the state are Lee & Cady, and Mr. Lesser is more than pleased with the excellent manner in which this concern has had the brand distributed in various parts of Michigan.

Mose LaFond has returned from a motor trip to Chicago. While in the Windy City he transacted some business combined with pleasure.

The Albert Cigar Company, of Detroit, has been incorporated with an authorized capital stock of $5000, of which amount $2700 has been subscribed and paid in in property. The principals behind this enterprise are Arthur F. McRener, Thomas Gollan and William F. Sloan.

William Martz, of the Martz-Oakman Company, of Detroit, cigar manufacturers on Cadillac Square, has presented the city with a live monkey, which has been placed in the Zoo at Belle Isle Park. Mr. Martz, by the way, has been renominated as a representative to the State Legislature.

James H. Daily has opened a cigar and tobacco store at Cedar Springs, Mich.

Edward Lichtig, representative in Michigan and Northern Indiana for the Philip Morris Company, has returned from a campaign conducted in Fort Wayne, Ind., and other nearby places. Talking about "Philip Morris" cigarettes, this brand is positively the best selling 25-cent cigarette package in Detroit today. The "little brown package" has certainly won the heart of our best smokers.

One of the handsomest billiard parlors in the state has been opened at 111 East Michigan Avenue, Lansing, Mich., in connection with which there is a cigar department. The place is operated under the name of the "Majestic Billiard Parlors."

Victor Ettlinger, the genial representative of E. Manuel Hoffman & Son, who makes his residence in Detroit, departed from our city on September 22nd for a three-weeks' business trip through the West and Middle West.

Charry S. Sarluy is back from a trip to New York, where he conferred with his house, F. & E. Cranz, relative to next year's plans. This year has been an excellent one for Mr. Sarluy—much better than he even anticipated.

The free automobile offer of the Mazer Cigar Company, of Detroit, has caused quite a stir and is certainly selling a lot of "Miss Detroit" cigars. The Mazer Company will give a 1915 model Chrevolet five-passenger touring car, selling retail at $875, to the person holding the lucky coupon. The stunt is worked this way; every person having six "Miss Detroit" cigar bands is entitled, upon presenting them at any retail store handling the brand, to one coupon. He writes his name on one part of the coupon and drops it in a closed box. Each day these boxes are emptied by the Mazer Company. On October 31st, there will be a smoker at the company's new factory addition on Grandy Avenue, at which time there will be a drawing. There will be as judges three of the city's most prominent men, and whoever has the lucky coupon will get the automobile. The smoker is to be free and a large crowd is expected to be on hand. The contest is in charge of Henry Mazer, who is spending all of his time at the store of McAllister & Smith, 29 Woodward Avenue, who are the jobbers locally for this brand.

Trade Jottings

C. E. Turner recently visited Jacksonville, Fla., in the interests of Salvador Rodriguez' "Charles the Great."

Tommy Ryan recently visited Lancaster, Pa., where he spent his time boosting the "Girard," manufactured by his firm, Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia, Pa.

Ralph M. Tiffany, Syracuse, N. Y., who features the "Quatility" cigar, reports good business on the "Savarona," manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company.

"John B. Stetson," manufactured by Sig. C. Mayer & Company, Philadelphia, Pa., is being featured by the Phelps Cigar Company, Omaha, Neb.

A. Urban Shirk, of J. G. Shirk & Son, Lancaster, Pa., is back again in the city following his recent visit to Longport and Atlantic City, N. J.

The Harnisfeger Stores, Indianapolis, Ind., are featuring "Charles Denby" cigar, manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.

"Tom Keenes" are going well in Kansas City, according to Lon A. Poinsett, of the Oberholtz & Poinsett Cigar Company, that city.

George E. Waters, Salem, Ore., the well-known jobber, stated that in order to take care of the increasing demand for T. J. Dunn & Company's "New Bachelor," he finds it good policy to have shipments continuously on the road.

The Neudecker Tobacco Company, Baltimore, Md., report that they are putting out a case a day on the well-known "44" cigar, manufactured by the "44" Cigar Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Tom Dean Branyan, representing José Escalante & Company, manufacturers of the well-known "Corinas," was a recent visitor to Omaha, Neb., in the interests of the brand, from whence he departed for Salt Lake City.

T. W. Mitchell is back again in Lancaster, Pa., where it is reported he will engage in the leaf business. Mr. Mitchell was formerly a member of the firm of Mitchell & Ottinger, Florida Havana leaf dealers, Lancaster, but during the past year has engaged in business in Memphis, Tenn.

The Cordove Cigar Company, Denver, Col., has placed its order for Christmas "Osmundos" with Seidenberg & Company, New York. The order is a good one and calls for high-class cigars only, to sell at not less than ten cents and up to $1 each.

Reports from the L. S. Cohn Cigar Company, Butte, Mont., state that splendid business is being done on "Chancellor," "Flor de Baltimore," "La Preferencia" and "Elisardo" cigars, which brands are being distributed by them through Montana, Idaho and a portion of Wyoming and Washington. New accounts are being opened on the four brands each month, and present indications point to their being listed as staples in the not distant future.

Independents' September Meet

THE first fall meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association was held on Thursday, September 24th, at Terrace Garden, and brought out a goodly attendance.

President Ike Ochs presided and stated that the association had some most interesting work outlined for the near future, which should lead to influential results.

One of the most interesting developments of the meeting was the disclosure of the fact that there seemed to be a noticeable shortage of small change in New York City, and the association adopted resolutions requesting the Treasurer of the United States to make an immediate investigation along these lines and have issued more money in small denominations for circulation in this city.

The association instructed its counsel, Henry H. Hunter, to communicate with the new Attorney-General Gregory and learn the status of the investigation of the tobacco industry in general, which was temporarily stopped when Mr. McReynolds was appointed to the Supreme Bench.

Strange to say, the members of the association took a favorable view of the national legislation which will put an additional tax on cigar stores, and passed resolutions endorsing the proposed law.

"Joy" Cigar Has Heavy Call

Arnold Tietig, Jr., of Arnold Tietig & Son, Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of the well-known "Joy" cigar, is very enthusiastic over the new idea which his company has adopted, of packing cigars in tin containers. The new process is what is known as "sanitary inverted packing," which excludes contact with the heads of cigars when one or more is taken from the can. "'Joy' cigars," said Mr. Tietig, "are now being packed in a patented hinged covered can with the heads of the cigars pointing downward. This method permits of the customer extracting one or more cigars from the package without coming into contact with the heads of the other cigars."

American Tobacco Company's "Buy-a-Bale" Offer

The American Tobacco Company is to lend its powerful support in making the "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" idea a success. In a letter to its customers, Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, makes the following offer:

"We will purchase, at ten cents a pound, as many pounds of good middling cotton from each of our customers in the above named states, as the aggregate number of pounds of 'Red J.' and 'Penn's Natural Leaf' plug tobaccos, 'Bull Durham' and 'Tuxedo' smoking tobaccos, and 'Sovereign' cigarettes (counting each thousand of 'Sovereign' cigarettes as equal to five pounds of tobacco), shipped direct to such customer from September 20, 1914, to November 30, 1914."

This letter was sent to dealers in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas. Mr. Hill gave out the following statement:

"It is our plan to render uniform help to our customers in all cotton-growing sections. The brands on which we make this cotton-buying offer have such a large sale throughout these sections that we estimate 10,000 bales of cotton can be bought by our company under this plan."

Robert E. Lane recently visited Portland, Ore., in the course of a Western trip in the interests of the "Partagas" brand.

Plenty of Work in New Brunswick, N. J.

The New Brunswick Cigar Company recently announced through one of the newspapers in New Brunswick, N. J., that it had places for 460 more hands. The exact number of places to be filled were specified as 202 cigarmakers, 101 bunchmakers, 146 strippers and 11 packers.

The company has conserved its space so that it can make room for all learners who apply. Under the system it has recently installed, inexperienced help are advanced as they gain in efficiency before they go on piecework, so that they have an earning power according to their ability before they have advanced in speed.

Futher evidence of better times is found in the announcement that the factory of Janeway & Carpender, across the Raritan in Highland Park, would open on September 21st.

Tobacco Cultivation in German Africa

For some years experiments have been conducted throughout German East Africa in the cultivation of Turkish tobacco for cigarette making, but, up to the present, German manufacturers have been of the opinion that the tobacco produced was suitable only for making cigarettes of an inferior quality. Recent attempts made in Kilmandjaro, however, have had a better result, the tobacco being reported as very good. Moreover, samples obtained at Ouhambara were found to bear comparison with the best grades as regards flavor and combustion. Nevertheless, the efforts of planters in East Africa do not appear to have aroused any interest among German cigar and cigarette manufacturers.

In German Southwest Africa much the same conditions existed at the beginning, but the quality of the product has been improved until, at present, the Protectorate supplies the greater part of the cigars and cigarettes used for local consumption.

Another example of the success of tobacco cultivation may be cited from Kamerun. In 1910, Herr Oldmeyer, of Bremen, placed the sum of $1450 at the disposal of the German Colonial Company as a prize for the first Kamerun planter who produced 100 quintals (22,046 pounds) of tobacco suitable for the manufacture of cigars. This prize was secured in October, 1911, by the Bakossi Plantation Company after the sale at Bremen of 56 bales of the product from that plantation. In 1912 another prize of $725 was offered to the planter who could first put on the Bremen market at least 500 quintals (110,230 pounds) of tobacco grown in the course of one season and sold at a price high enough to assure profits to the plantation. This prize has just been distributed, one-half going to the Bakossi Company and the other to the Kamerun Tobacco Plantation Company, which shipped to Bremen 804 bales and 683 bales, respectively, and marketed them at very satisfactory prices.

There are now seven tobacco plantations in Kamerun, six of which are in the regions of the Manengouba Mountains, served by the Northern Railway, and the seventh in the south, at Yaunde. The exportation of Kamerun tobacco to Bremen has been as follows: In 1910, 56 bales; of the 1911 crop, 412 bales; and of the 1912-13 crop, 1568 bales. Of the latter there are still to arrive supplementary shipments from two or three plantations. It is expected that the crop of the current season will permit the shipment of at least 4000 bales.—Daily Consular Reports.

A good demand for the "Cuesta-Rey," manufactured by Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa, Fla., is reported by the S. G. Russell Company, Seattle, Wash. They are local distributors for the brand.

DETROIT

The Harry W. Watson Company announce the addition of two more stands; one in the new Kresge Building and the Tuller Hotel. The first one should be an excellent proposition; the building itself is eighteen stories high, and is catering only to the most exclusive professional trade; already the very best architects, doctors and dentists have taken space in it, and applications are coming in very fast. The new Tuller, with its 300-room annex, will be one of the largest hotels in the city when it is fully operated, which will be some time this winter. The ground floor is expected to be in readiness by October 15th.

The average person probably does not realize the importance of the Watson Company to the retail cigar industry. Think of it; they now control the cigar stand in every leading hotel in Detroit, excepting that at the Hotel Pontchartrain. They do a jobbing as well as a retail business.

Jay Morehouse, manager of the Oppenheimer cigar store in Battle Creek, Mich., and Miss Violet Welburn, were principals in a very pretty wedding event which took place September 14th. Immediately following the ceremony, the young people left for a wedding trip, which included Detroit and points east. When they returned a week later, Mr. Morehouse's friends had a wholly unexpected reception for him A two-wheel cart had been rigged out and he and his bride were tied together with ribbons, while six of his friends acted as the "horses" and pulled the vehicle down through the main streets. Anyway, it's all over now and Jay is a very much happy married man.

T. A. Wadsworth, cigar box manufacturer, announces that the Wadsworth-Campbell Company succeeds him in the business, the personnel of the enterprise being T. A. Wadsworth, president; John A. Campbell, vice-president; Harold L. Wadsworth, secretary and treasurer, and George Goetz, superintendent.

Sandy Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, is on a business trip through the West.

Joseph Muer, maker of the "Swift" cigar, now has Ike Simons boosting his goods through the States of Ohio and New York.

Among our recent visitors was Herman J. Arens, of the Neuman & Mayer Company, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of the popular "Belle Mundo" brand, which is handled in this territory by the Stahl Cigar Company. After working Detroit, Mr. Arens visited Saginaw and Grand Rapids.

After spending a week at the Mazer factory, which concern he represents in the West, Robert Olive went to Chicago and from there to Kansas City, his headquarters.

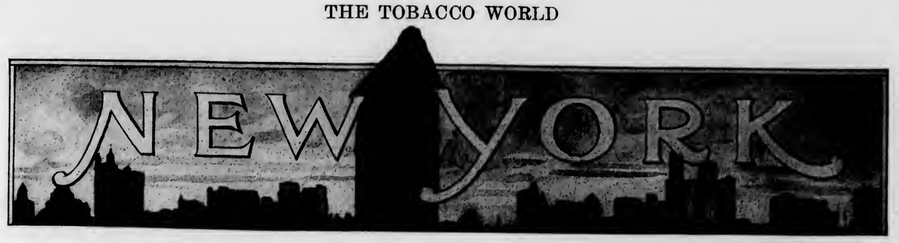
Waltzer & LaPoint, retailers and jobbers of cigars in Mt. Clemens, have opened a bowling alley, which is one of the finest equipped places in the state.

The "Charles Denby" brand, made by H. Fendrich, of Evansville, Ind., is increasing in popularity, especially since Willis Andruss allied himself with the company. He was here recently and did some excellent work in behalf of the brand.

Mr. Pyle, of Pyle & Allen, of Cleveland, was recently in Detroit on his way home from the St. Clair Flats, where he was a guest of George Meigs, Michigan representative for Sanchez y Haya cigars.

E. A. Dixon has been appointed manager of the cigar department at the Edelweiss Cafe, which is now under new management.

AL U. THORNBURG.



Fernando Rodriguez's Illness

THE many friends of Fernando Rodriguez, the general selling agent of the "Charles the Great" factory, and son of Salvador Rodriguez, were deeply concerned last week to learn that he was at the New York Hospital, where he was to undergo an abdominal operation. The operation was a complete success, and on last Thursday Mr. Rodriguez was removed to Port Chester, N. Y., where he is reported to be progressing most favorably.

He was attended constantly during the entire ordeal by his young bride, to whom he was married in Tampa a few weeks ago.

Mr. Rodriguez is one of the most popular members of the cigar trade, and his speedy recovery is the heartfelt wish of his hosts of friends.

F. S. Lucey Back from England

Treasurer F. S. Lucey, of Philip Morris Company, Limited, arrived in New York, Tuesday of last week, from his annual visit to the home offices in London. He returned to America on the "Morgantic" by way of Montreal, and thus was only delayed about a week beyond the time he had planned to be away.

Mr. Lucey is not at all pessimistic about conditions, and his company is doing as heavy a business in the United States as it has ever done. Incidentally, they are also carrying on a most extensive advertising campaign in the newspapers and their copy, which is prepared by James Zobian, it pronounced not only dignified, but most effective as far as results.

Failure of Cohen Brothers

Cohen Brothers, the cigar manufacturers at 345 West Broadway, who have been established for some years, made a general assignment to Hugo Levy, an attorney at 37 Liberty Street, New York, on the seventeenth of September. Jacob M. and Henry Cohen are the members of the firm and they attribute their embarrassment to poor collections.

New Edwin Company's Branches

The Edwin Cigar Company have recently opened two new branches in excellent locations in Manhattan, which are each doing a fine business. One of these is located at the entrance of the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre, on Broadway at Forty-third Street, and they are catching a big line of customers day and night. The other store is at Broadway and 109th Street, practically a new field for this concern, and the reports from this stand are big and promising.

W. B. Cobb, president of the Hernsheim Company, of New Orleans, arrived in New York a few days ago. Mr. Cobb has been doing some fine work in introducing the "King's Court" and "Capulet" brands in the Manhattan market.

Contopoulo Brothers Incorporate

FOLLOWING the recent removal of C. Contopoulo from 26 Park Row to the new store at the southeast corner of Warren and Church Streets, articles of incorporation for Contopoulo Brothers were filed at Albany on September 27th.

The new company is to be known as Contopoulo Brothers, and included in the stockholders is J. Colby, F. Boultree and C. Contopoulo. They have an authorized capital of $50,000, and will not only make two special brands of cigarettes, as previously mentioned in the WORLD, but will also make private brands as heretofore and handle Turkish tobacco.

The showrooms on Warren Street are splendidly located and they have been fitted up in a most ornate manner.

Henry Drucklieb, of the Cado Company, is on his way home from the Pacific Coast, where he has been on a general inspection trip. He has opened up a number of good new accounts on their "56" and "Cado" brands.

Big Demand for Steiner Labels

The war has done much for the house of Steiner in the way of showing the American cigar manufacturers just what an excellent grade of German process cigar labels can be made right here in New York City.

A call at the big establishment at 257-265 West Seventeenth Street, New York, last week, disclosed the fact that Wm. Steiner, Sons & Company are receiving orders daily for several million cigar labels, and they are pushed to the limit to get them out promptly. Punctuality in deliveries is one of the hobbies of the house, however, and they make good on their promises.

The company are also doing a great deal of fine work in cut-out signs, and have recently turned out several most attractive designs in this line, notably the cut-outs for Brummer, Hull & Company, and the Liborio Cigar Company, of Tampa.

H. Duys & Company Get Three Thousand More Bales

Representing the pick of the European market, and to be sold at prices ordinarily prevailing during times of international peace, three thousand bales of Sumatra tobacco, recently arrived, are now in the warehouses of Messrs. H. Duys & Company, the well-known New York importers of Sumatra tobacco. This progressive firm also calls attention to the fact that five hundred bales of Sumatra tobacco are being expected daily via the Holland-American Line.

Elsewhere in this issue, announcement is made to the above effect, and progressive cigar manufacturers who desire to secure themselves against a possible shortage of the tobacco in question, would do well to get into communication with Messrs. Duys & Company at once. The offices of the company, 170 Water Street, are being visited each day by manufacturers anxious to obtain the quota necessary for their needs. The tobacco, as heretofore stated, is the choicest to be found in the European markets.

San Francisco

Buyers Wary of War Tax Measures—European Travelers Slowly Getting Home—"Flor de Moss" Selling Well

SAN FRANCISCO, September 22.

SAN FRANCISCO cigar and tobacco men are again watching Washington this week to see what the final outcome of the proposed war tax measure will be. Reassuring advices had been received a week or two ago, and the local cigar men had come to believe that the tobacco industries would escape the extra taxation this time; but now it looks as though the old habit was too strong for Congress to resist. If, as it now appears, the tobacco trades are to be taxed, the local dealers and distributors would like to know as soon as possible how it is to be distributed and whether or not it will be levied in such a way that it can be passed on to the consumer. Until the matter is finally decided, the uncertainty will have a tendency to make buyers buy as little as possible, this being especially true of manufactured tobacco. Agents for manufactured tobacco lines report that the jobbers have been buying very little ever since the European war broke out and it became evident that this country must levy some sort of an emergency tax. The jobbers do not feel disposed to bear any more of the tax than they can help. There is already an extra charge on Manila importations, due to the war risk and to the increased cost of foreign exchange.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, wholesalers, of Front and California Streets, who fell and broke his ankle about two weeks ago, is mending rapidly, but will be confined to his home for two or three weeks longer. He has a telephone right at hand, however, and is in constant communication with the office and with such members of the trade as have business to transact with him.

The manufacturers' representatives are showing a lot of activity during the last few weeks, and most of them report that the first half of September is running ahead of the same period last year, and is running far ahead of the business done during August. Apparently, the anticipated results from the European war are not to reach California or other Coast states. Prices for Pacific Coast products have risen in most cases and the general resumption of shipping has made the movement of crops easy. Money is not particularly plentiful, but it is certainly not more scarce than before the war started. The only change noted is that payment is now largely made in greenbacks instead of the hard gold which has heretofore distinguished California from the rest of the country.

The San Francisco cigar and tobacco men who were caught in Europe at the outbreak of the war at the end of July are gradually finding their way home, some of them with all sorts of stirring adventures on the road. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan A. Gunst, who were the first to arrive, came in several weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Heyneman, who were in Germany when the trouble started, have just arrived, having spent $2500 in working their way to Holland, to England, and finally to New York and home. Arthur Bachman, at last accounts, had made his way to Rotterdam, Netherlands, and expected to sail for New York on October 3rd. H. Bohls was also last heard from at Rotterdam, but is now supposed to be well on his way home.

A. T. Phillips and C. F. Randall, respectively San Francisco and Los Angeles representatives of the John J. Bagley Company, arrived from the South a few weeks ago for a tour of the Bay district.

H. F. Adams, Western representative of the Benson & Hedges line of cigarettes, has completed his work in Southern California for the time being, and has arrived in San Francisco for a round-up of the trade of this city and its environs.

Al Korn, traveling representative of the "Vega del Rey" cigars, came down from the North last week for a short stay in California. He reports business in the Pacific Northwest as moving along nicely. From San Francisco Mr. Korn will go to Los Angeles, and from that city will go East.

H. Harris, of the office force of H. L. Judell & Company, is now away on a vacation outing. He will return about the end of the month.

Layton & Chase have bought out the cigar and tobacco business of Cornelius & Rauston at Los Angeles, Cal.

Ed Cohen, advertising manager of M. A. Gunst & Company, is now making a tour of the various Gunst stores of the Pacific Coast in company with O. H. Blackman, of New York, advertising counsel for the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. They will be absent from this city till after the first of October.

The announcement of the completion of plans for the H. L. Judell building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds was followed this week by a similar announcement in regard to the M. A. Gunst & Company building. The contract for the construction of the latter will be let within a week or two. It will be one of the handsomest buildings in the "Concessions" end of the big fair.

W. I. Pixley, Western representative for the Dill line of manufactured tobaccos, reports that the fall shows a fair amount of activity, and that, except for the fear of an increased internal revenue tax, the business would be unusually good. Mr. Pixley hopes that the revenue tax matter will soon be adjusted, after which he looks for one of the best falls in a long time.

C. D. Okerlin has succeeded to the business of Okerlin & Kappas at Oakland, Cal.

Herman Moss, Pacific Coast representative of the S. R. Moss cigar factory, who makes his San Francisco headquarters with H. L. Judell & Company, has left for Portland and other distributing centers in Oregon and Washington. He has had a good early fall trade in California, and believes that the outlook is equally good in the northern end of the Coast.

A. Cohen has bought the cigar store of J. E. Colbert in this city.

Ed Marshall, Western agent for the "Rey Oma" line of cigars, arrived in San Francisco this week for a short visit with the local trade.

C. W. McCormick, representing Y. Pendas & Alvarez, has returned to the Coast from his recent trip to the factory. He is expecting to make a record for "Websters" during the remaining months of the year.

The Prize "Watt" Display

A prize was recently offered in San Francisco for the most attractive display of "Watt" cigars, made by Bondy & Lederer, and distributed by the well-known house of H. L. Judell & Company in San Francisco.

The contest was inaugurated by H. L. Judell & Company, and the prize was won by the firm of Wonley, Kompp & Jones, with the display shown herewith.

Pittsburgh

T. C. Jenkins Company to Represent Boltz-Clymer Line—Gilmore Drug Company Doing Well With Its Brands

PITTSBURGH, PA., September 24.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh has shown quite an improvement during the past month. The dealers are getting ready for a big fall and holiday rush.

Reymer Brothers, Fifth Avenue and Wood Street, have four nice window displays this week. They are featuring a full line of Falk tobaccos, "Cortez" cigars, "Stachelberg's Havana Smokers" and "Florencia," two-for-five stogies. They are also featuring Wellington pipes in the twenty-five and fifty-cent sizes.

T. C. Jenkins Company have been appointed representatives for the "El Palencia" and "El Merito" cigars, manufactured by Boltz-Clymer Company, for Western Pennsylvania. Joseph Raubitschek, who is associated with the Jenkins Company, will give his personal attention to these brands.

The W. J. Gilmore Drug Company report business as very satisfactory. This concern has an up-to-date cigar department. They are distributors for the following well-known cigars: "El Verso," "Girard," "Corina," "Gato," "San Felice," "Roig" and "Steber." They also have a big trade on stogies. They are getting ready for a big holiday rush.

Henry Weiss, of Bondy & Lederer, New York, has been in town the past week in the interest of "Tom Keene" and "Little Barrett" cigars. "Little Barrett" cigars are becoming quite popular in this section. L. Goldsmit, Brother & Company are distributors for these brands.

E. J. Webb, who has been in the cigarette game for the past fifteen years, has left this line and will now go on a dairy farm of five hundred acres. We wish him all the luck and success possible in his new venture.

Wm. Mendel, of the Union-American Cigar Company, was in town for a few days. He reports big business on "Rocky Ford," five-cent cigar, and "Famous," two-for-five stogie.

Love & Megown, druggists, of New Castle, Pa., are making a specialty of their cigar department. They have a special man to tend to this end of the business and carry all of the popular brands of cigars.

Sam Rosen, of Oil City, Pa., was in town for a few days calling on his old friends. Mr. Rosen is distributor for the "Havana Ribbon," "A. J. Cassatt" and "Coiner" cigars, and reports good business on same.

B. W. Berriman, representing Liggett & Myers in this district, has put on a new deal on "Fatima" cigarettes. He is giving away a seal leather case with five packages of "Fatima" cigarettes for seventy-five cents. Mr. Berriman has secured some of the best windows in the downtown section this week. Among them are the Afco Cigar Company and the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand.

Riker-Hageman Drug Company are featuring "Camp" cigarettes this week. They have a very nice window display of same.

The May Drug Company have taken on the "El Roi-Tan" cigars, and will feature same in all their stores.

The Jenkinson Company store at 444 Wood Street has a very nice window display on "El Roi-Tan" cigars.

A. Fine, who has the cigar privileges in the Peoples' Bank Building, reports business very good.

The Afco Cigar Company have a very nice window display on "Royal Nestor" cigarettes. This window display is in the form of a fort with six cannons defending it, and is called "Fort Nestor."

J. S. Kerns, who is now in charge of the Antler Hotel cigar stand, says business is satisfactory.

The following visitors were in town: D. S. Mousedale, of Sanchez y Haya; M. G. Sugar, of H. Upmann & Company, Havana; J. M. Cuyar, A. Diaz Company, Tampa; A. M. Lennox, Garcia-Pando Company, Tampa; Leo Schoenemann, Celestino Vega & Company, Tampa; Charles J. Castillo, Liborio Cigar Company, Tampa; A. A. Gumpert, of Gumpert Brothers, Philadelphia; Walter Jones, of H. C. Nolan & Company, Philadelphia; H. G. Solomon, of Solomon Brothers & Stern, New York; C. L. Staples, Park & Tilford, New York; E. A. Waltman, of S. W. Ohmit & Company, Columbia, Pa.; C. L. Dietz, of S. R. Kocher Company, Wrightsville, Pa.; E. W. Klein, of J. W. Merriam Company, New York.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, September 23.

MAKING into consideration the amount of business handled during the past fortnight, we cannot truthfully report any improvement in our market, although we ought to be now in the height of the season with big transactions. That the clear Havana cigar business in Tampa and Key West is not all that it is cracked up to be, according to the reports from these two cities, is best proven by the arrivals of cigarmakers here; therefore, if business was active in those centres, there ought to be no outflow of idle cigarmakers from there, and on the contrary, we ought to send some from here. This is common sense logic. It strikes us, however, as the greatest foolishness for cigarmakers to come here, when our industry is at it lowest ebb and there are a large number still without employment. Of course, if they are Cubans, out Immigration Commissioners cannot deny them to come back to their native country, and we hope for their own sakes, that they have learned to save up some money, and therefore can afford to wait here a little while, until there is really a demand for their services again in Tampa or Key West, because as far as we are concerned, there is no chance to see an improvement in our cigar factories until the European war should have ended and peace be declared once more, or until we should have a new reciprocity with the United States, which should compensate us by considerably larger exports to the United States, to make up at least a good part of our losses to Europe.

In analyzing the movement of our market and comparing the same with the previous fortnight, we find that the American manufacturers and dealers of leaf tobacco have taken less from us; but, on the other hand, the buyers of the Spanish Regie have purchased a little more, as well as our local cigarette manufacturers. Other conditions are virtually unchanged, prices remain partly nominal for some grades, and buyers still have the advantage in selecting their styles, at almost their own figures, although this is not going to last forever. If the next crop is going to be a small one, and which appears more than probable, on account of the reasons stated previously, there is bound to be a reaction next year.

If the farmers, who have still their crops of tobacco unsold, and including the country merchants, should pool their holdings and form a strong association, like it was done with the Burley crop of Kentucky, then we might see a different aspect of affairs in the future, as in such a case our leaf dealers would also be benefited by such proceedings.

The question is whether the Cuban vegueros can wake up from their despondent state, help themselves, as the Americans do, and simply copy them by joining forces, as there is strength in a union. To rely upon help from our government is simply time wasted, as the politicians are now too busy with the coming elections this fall, and while they may promise anything to get the votes, such promises cannot be relied upon. Besides, our government is neither in a condition to spend money, as the war in Europe has also decreased the receipts of our custom house, and ways and means will have to be found to cover the impending deficit, by higher duties, or taxes.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 9453 bales, and which split up into: Vuelta Abajo and Semi-Vuelta, 2830; Partido, 2409, and Remedios, 4214 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 5250; the buyers of the Spanish Regie, 2887; shippers to South America, 170, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1146 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, for the three weeks ending September 19, 1914, totaled 12,820 bales, which were distributed to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 9549; to Toronto, Canada, 5; to Spain, 2820; to London, England, 93; to Amsterdam, 10, and to South America, 343 bales.

Cigars.

The situation of our cigar industry has not improved during the first half of this month, as we have slid back again over five and one-half million cigars, as compared with the same period of last year, and while there have been some shipments besides the United States and Canada, such as England, Australia, South America, and so forth. The greatest surprise to us, however, has been that the United States have cut down their imports from us nearly one million cigars, or almost one-half the quantity of last year. We are usually of an optimistic nature, but in the face of such demoralizing facts we must become pessimistic, and think that either there are some occult, sinister influences working against us, or the conditions in the United States must be far more serious than the trade papers are trying to make us believe they are. What has become of the rich and well-to-do people, can they no longer afford to smoke our cigars? Of course, we can understand that our former good customers, the bankers and brokers of Wall Street, whose business has gone to the dogs through the closing of the Stock Exchange, are unable to smoke imported Havana cigars, owing to the outrageously high protective duties on same, but have nearly all the other rich people become poor also?

H. Upmann, after having been closed for some time, collecting orders in the meantime from the States and Canada, has started up again last week, and is now working with a fair number of cigarmakers.

Romeo y Julieta continues the even tenor of filling the orders which are coming to hand, and has never stopped to work, except that for a time, instead of working the whole week, it did so only for four days each week. The object was to keep the whole force of cigarmakers, and the latter were mighty glad to get at least two-thirds wages, instead of none.

Partagas is one of our busy factories under the changed conditions, being well provided with orders.

Sol has received some fair sized orders from the States, and therefore resumed its interrupted activity in this direction.

Some factories still remain closed, while others are working with greatly diminished forces upon the few orders they may receive. If we can judge by present appearances, the holiday trade this year will be the poorest our manufacturers have ever known.

Leaf Tobacco.

Last year the leaf dealers here had the upper hand, and some contracts which had been made verbally on certain grades, were not kept by some dealers, when the market advanced. This year the boot is on the other leg, and some buyers did not keep their verbal contracts when the market declined. So this is tit for tat and nobody complains. But we heard that some buyers did not want to pay for the goods bought upon the customary payday, alleging that the rates of exchange on the United States were too low, and therefore wanted the leaf dealers to wait until exchange should go up again. This certainly is too sharp a bargain, and is manifestly unfair to the dealers, as the latter must keep their paydays in liquidating their debts, and surely there is no excuse for the buyer when he closed the deal, as he must have been aware of the rate of exchange, and must have figured the difference in the exchange in the price he was willing to pay.

The Spanish Regie has been the savior of some of our leaf dealers in purchasing liberally, through their agents here, Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, of the low grades of Remedios, at lower rates than before the outbreak of the war, but still fairly good ones, and we understand that some 8000 bales have been bought already, although not all registered or shipped yet. This shall be only a small part of the total which the Regie may need. As the only other buyers of these classes were Germany and our cigarette manufacturers, and the former cannot buy any longer and the latter are more or less handicapped, we are correct in calling the Regie the savior.

Don Rafael Menendez, partner of F. Rocha & Company, died on the twelfth instant, after having suffered for some time, in the forty-second year of his age. His funeral the next day was well attended by the leaf trade, and showed that he had many friends who regretted his untimely demise.

Sellers of importance were: Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, 1410 bales; F. Rocha & Company, 724; José C. Puente & Company, 615; Selgas & Company, 500; Herrera, Calmet & Company, 300; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 300, and Sierra y Martinez, 232 bales.

Buyers of importance were: Bernhard Spector, 1027; S. Ruppin, 1715; Matt Wengler, 1000 additionally; Aleck Goldschmidt, 800; José Lovera, 800; Vivian M. Myers, 800, and C. E. Beck & Company, 284 bales.

Shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the last two weeks, ending September 19th, above 200 bales, were:

D. Serabian & Company Incorporate

D. Serabian & Company, manufacturers of the well-known "Narkid" cigarettes, have recently incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts as D. Serabian & Company, Inc. The firm is now located at 23 Central Street, Boston, Mass.

At the present time an effort is being made to place the "Narkid" cigarette in the leading hotels and clubs of Boston, and reports from the firm indicate that they are meeting with success. The brand is making steady progress and the retailers say that the cigarette is making a hit with the consumer. "Narkid" cigarettes are packed ten in a box, retailing for twenty cents.

Tobacco in the Bahama Islands

Pipe tobacco in small quantities is imported to the Bahama Islands from the United States, but the largest stock comes from England. American chewing tobacco of the kind known as "Navy Plug," sells well. Cigarettes made in Bristol and London, of Virginia leaf, are popular. There appears to be very little demand for American cigarettes. Cigars manufactured in the Channel Islands are brought here by way of London; these are made of Borneo leaf. The Tampa cigar is not in favor in this locality. For tourists a certain quantity of fancy Havana cigars and cigarettes finds it way hither. Some Mexican cigars are also imported. Brierwood pipes, tobacco pouches, lighters and ash trays are of English make; a very few American pipes are on sale.

Key West

Business Revival Shows Many Signs—Mallory Line Re-establishes Passenger Service—Martinez-Havana Company Sends Exhibit for International Exposition

KEY WEST, September 25.

WHILE trade is slowly but surely improving as the season advances, the great revival which was anticipated has not as yet set in. Many of the shops have their orders for the Christmas and holiday trade already on file, and judging from the heavy invoices of box supplies which are being received by some firms, there is going to be a general revival at a very early date.

Wolf's Smoke Shop, S. Wolf's Sons, proprietors, will make a display on National Cigar Day with free cigar cutters as souvenirs of the occasion.

The Martinez-Havana Company is the first local concern to prepare a display for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition; the same will be shipped tomorrow, and after making the rounds of the various handlers of the company's goods, it will be turned over to the commissioner. It will, no doubt, attract a great deal of attention wherever shown. It is in the shape of a magnificent cedar cabinet containing compartments for sixty-two sizes and shapes of the "Flor de Luis Martinez" brand, from the one-half-inch "Midget" to the giant cigar of sixteen inches. The cabinet was made especially for the firm by the Charles Stutz Company, of New York City, and shows the highest perfection of the cigar box makers' art.

Sol. M. Gans, of Max Gans & Son, arrived in town this week, calling on the trade in the interest of his house.

Judge Ramon Alvarez, ex-Deputy Collector of Customs and for many years the Key West correspondent of the "New York Herald" and tobacco trade journals, passed away here on the morning of September 17th and was interred the same day. The deceased was born in Havana in 1850 of Spanish and Cuban parents, and was brought to the United States when quite a youngster and received his education in the schools of the North. He came to Key West in 1873 to accept a position in the Custom House and has resided here ever since, filling many positions in that branch of the Government service. He is survived by four daughters.

Messrs. Eduardo H. Gato, senior and junior, have arrived from the North, where they have been spending their vacation at the popular summer resorts. The former has left for Havana, where he will remain until October 6th, on which date his birthday will be celebrated, when there will be a family reunion. Mr. Gato was born at Santiago de Las Vegas in 1846.

O. W. Van Campen, Southern representative, was a caller at the factory last week, and has since left on a tour of the South in the interest of the "Gato 1871" yellow label. The company is adding two new sizes to their galaxy of shapes, which will be known as "Rosa Especiales" and "Mediators," which will be packed under the "Bouquet de E. H. Gato" brand. Secretary Thomas H. Gato will leave tomorrow for Havana.

D. Hevia, the New York leaf dealer, who has been spending his vacation in Spain, passed through the city recently, being en route from Cuba to Northern headquarters.

Business is in excellent shape at the factory of the Cortez Cigar Company. Factory Superintendent Claude H. Roberts left on Monday for Cuba, where he will join Vice-President Vivian M. Myers, who has been in the Cuban capital selecting and purchasing leaf for the use of his house for several weeks. Arturu Ramos, head wrapper selector, who has been in the employ of the company for the past twenty-three years, passed away on the eighth instant after an illness of a few hours.

Peregrino Rey, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, passed through town recently, being en route from Cuba to Tampa.

Harry Nichols, of George W. Nichols & Company, arrived in town on Saturday, and after a short stay at the factory left on Monday for Cuba, accompanied by Factory Manager Arturo Artulo Zago. The two gentlemen will put in a few days purchasing stock for the use of the Solace factory. The company is getting in by each Mallory steamer healthy invoices of box supplies, which forecasts a brisk fall run.

José Escalante, of José Escalante & Company, of Tampa, was a through passenger to Cuba on Friday, where he will spend a few days selecting and purchasing tobacco which will be used in the make-up of the company's "Corina" brand.

Havana Passenger Agent Elgin F. Curry and A. C. Elgin, local agent of the Florida East Coast Railway System and the Peninsular & Occidental Steamship Company, left on Saturday for Philadelphia, where they will attend the launching of the ferryboat "H. M. Flagler," at Cramps' Shipyard. Through train service from New York to Havana will be inaugurated in January, 1915.

Jaime Pendas, manager of Moreda & Company, got back this week from a short business trip to Tampa. At the factory business is in excellent shape, and orders for immediate and future delivery are coming in at a lively rate and recruiting in the various departments is being made each week. The company's new and handsome factory building on the county road will be completed this month and will be ready for occupancy early in October.

J. W. Ross, representing the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C., was a caller on the local trade on Wednesday in the interest of "Prince Albert" crimp-cut, long-burning pipe and cigarette tobacco. He will leave for Tampa tomorrow.

The Mallory Steamship Line will re-establish on October 11th the passenger service between New York and Key West, which was discontinued about two years ago. The resumption of this schedule will give this city two passenger ships per week to and from the North, which will be highly appreciated by our citizens, but more especially so by those connected with the cigar industry. We will now have passenger boats of this line in the port of Key West from New York on Sunday and Wednesday; from Galveston, Texas, every Tuesday, and from Mobile and Tampa every Saturday. Thanks for the resumption of this time-table is due Captain James L. Rish, who ever since he has taken charge of the company's business here has been urging the calling of the New York-Galveston steamers at this port.

Manufacturer Manuel Cruz got back this week from a business and pleasure trip to Northern and Eastern sections. He was accompanied by Mrs. Cruz. Mr. Cruz secured quite a batch of orders during his outing, and as a consequence the force on the cigarmaking floor of the factory is being increased.

The Ruy Lopez Company have received heavy box invoices during the past two weeks, and the force in all departments has been greatly strengthened and the company has now entered on the active campaign of fall. A substation of the United States Weather Bureau has been established at the factory and the various signals and storm warnings will be displayed from the flagstaff on the grounds in front of the factory.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

If the Lancaster tobacco crop now in the shed goes through the curing process satisfactorily, the growers will pocket from the proceeds of its sale at least $2,500,000, because it is generally conceded that not less than ten cents a pound for wrapper goods and two cents for fillers will be paid. Some of the packers think the price will be higher, but everything on this line will depend upon the general condition of the tobacco market when the time arrives for buying the crop.

The new packing—the 1913 goods—has nearly all passed the sampling stage and will be ready for the inspection of the trade early in October. Tests already made indicate that it will prove very desirable, filler goods being of excellent quality, with a fine flavor. As the 1911 and 1912 packings, now nearly exhausted, have been selling all the way from fourteen and one-half cents to sixteen cents a pound, the new packing is expected to command about the same prices.

KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The sales this week show a decided increase over those of last week, and values for both burley and dark tobacco are without material recent change.

Weather conditions continue favorable for the crop, and its outcome has been surprisingly gratifying to tobacco growers. Considerable progress has been made in cutting the crop, but the proportion of the crop now housed varies very much in different sections.

The crop of this year will show more than the usual amount of large tobacco, and with favorable weather conditions for a few weeks longer will, no doubt, furnish much tobacco of desirable quality. At this date last year the tobacco crop of 1913 was to a great extent cut and housed.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

The cool weather during the early part of September has so delayed the ripening of tobacco that the harvest is still under way and is likely to last for a week or ten days. An enormous rain of six inches has flooded a great many fields of standing leaf, doing more or less damage. In localities the storm was a tornado and fifteen to twenty-five sheds filled with new tobacco were destroyed near Cambridge.

Warm weather is maturing the late tobacco as well as assisting in curing the shedded tobacco. Some tobacco undoubtedly has been cut too green during the cool weather when frost signals were sent out, but danger from this source is over for the present.

Some of the new crop has been contracted for in the Orfordville and Footville sections by Janesville dealers, mainly at eleven to fourteen cents and even better for a few choice selections, but the operators have not yet been working.

Growing Demand for Tobacco Warehouse Baskets

News from High Point, N. C., indicates that the tobacco season is a good one and that there is a heavy call for tobacco baskets. The Cecil Manufacturing Company, of High Point, N. C., reports that the continued demand for their product has made it necessary for them to enlarge their plant.

KEY WEST

Francisco Fleitas, of S. & F. Fleitas, arrived on this Mallory steamer from New York. Mr. Fleitas has been visiting the trade in Eastern and Western sections in the interest of his house "Homerica" brand, and was successful in booking many fat orders during the trip. On Monday next a large addition will be made to the force and the factory will be quite active from now till the close of the busy seasons of fall and winter.

The stork visited the following families during the month: A son to Eladio Martinez, vice-president of the Martinez-Havana Company. The boy will be named Luis Eladio, after his father and grandfather. Twin daughters to Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Charles L. Knowles, on twenty-second instant.

M. F. McLeod, advertising manager, and W. D. Tanksley, salesman of the American Tobacco Company, arrived in town today and have inaugurated a vigorous campaign in the interest of "Sovereign" cigarettes.

C. J. Huelsenkamp, formerly engaged in the cigar manufacturing business in this city, but now actively engaged in business in Cuba, arrived in town this week from New York and has since left for Havana.

W. B. Moore, the hustling Southern representative of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, arrived in the city yesterday and is calling on the trade in the interest of "Nebo" cigarettes and other products of his house.

Among the marriages of the month were: Miss Lulu Maria Lopez, to Mr. Joseph S. Watkins. Miss Lopez is a daughter of Quintin Lopez, formerly of D. L. Trujillo & Sons, and is a niece of Remigio Lopez Trujillo, superintendent of the Havana-American Company's local factory. Another wedding was that of Miss Jennie Iermain to Mr. Ulric Gwynn. Mr. Gwynn is a nephew of the senior member of Gwynn, Struss & Company, and is also a valued employee of that concern. Both of these marriages occurred on the evening of the 23rd.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Tobacco Interests Advertising for Protection

In some of the local papers of Virginia and Kentucky advertisements have been noticed in the papers calling the attention of the public to the attacks being made on the tobacco industry. One article published in a Kentucky paper calls attention to the attempts that are being made to make the tobacco business unlawful in Virginia, and urges all persons engaged in the tobacco business "to take action as will protect their tobacco interests against the unreasoning and unjustifiable attacks of extremists."

Another advertisement in a Virginia paper calls the trade to arms against any tax whatsoever on the tobacco industry. It adds, "If there ever was a time when the members of the tobacco industry should step lightly and carry a big stick, that time is right now."

It is quite evident that the tobacco trade of Virginia will not be caught napping.

Extensive Cigarette Trade in German China

The cigarette trade in German China has become very extensive, as it caters to the entire Chinese population. The business is handled for the most part by the British-American Tobacco Company. This company has recently established a tobacco farm at Fangtze, where it is proposed to instruct the Chinese in the cultivation of the tobacco leaf.

The Trade Paper

A good trade paper fills a highly important niche in journalism. Not only does it carry the news of the trade, but bears serious relation to the industry itself. In many industries it wields a greater power than any single house in that industry. It operates not only as an effective means by which manufacturers can talk to the trade about their products, but it also acts as a stimulant to higher ideals of business, and keeps down the abuses simply by turning the light on them. There is no question at all about the importance of trade papers when they are under able editorial management and when they have a business policy that is beyond suspicion.—Printers' Ink.

Girl to Manage Cigar Stand

Miss Ethel Ferguson, who formerly managed the hotel cigar stand in Alva, Okla., has recently been installed as manager of the E. V. Schnoor cigar store in the first block on South Main Street, in Wichita, Kansas.

W. C. Clark, who formerly managed the Schnoor store, has been transferred to the new cigar store which the Schnoor Company has just opened in Oklahoma City.

The Cigar and Cigarette Trade in Central Germany

Owing to the high prices of raw materials and the decreased consumption of cigars in Central Germany, the trade was considerably hindered as in 1912. The trade in cigarettes shows a continuous increase with a growing demand.

The profits of manufacturers have been reduced to a minimum by the increase in wages, the high cost of materials and enormous expenditures for advertising. The profits have also been affected by sharp competition in the trade which has caused lower selling prices.

Daughter of Edward Mosebach Married

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mosebach, of York, Pa., was married on the thirtieth instant, to John F. O'Neill, of 1514 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill will reside at 131 Nippon Street, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Took Cigars With Him

Some time ago, William Selzer, a salesman of Evansville, Ind., remarked jokingly to a friend that when he died he wanted him to be sure and see that some of his favorite cigars were placed in the casket with him.

Mr. Selzer was buried on the 13th, and true to his promise, his friend placed two cigars in the vest pocket of the corpse as it lay in the coffin.

To Reopen Fort Collins Cigar Factory

A deal has been consummated with the creditors of Otto A. Schmidt, of Fort Collins, Col., whereby I. Hagler, of Denver, has secured possession of the stock of cigars and tobacco in the Schmidt Smoke Shop.

Mr. Hagler is a tobacco man of experience, having traveled on the road for the American Cigar Company, as well as having been manager of one of their factories for nine years.

Mr. Hagler states that he expects to open a cigar factory in connection with the store which he has taken over. He expects to do a manufacturing and general wholesale tobacco business.

The Latest Improvement in Electric Cigar Lighters is the

Brunhoff Jump Spark Lighter with Automatic Cutter

Operates with an excellent jump spark coil. The main feature is that the lighter uses electricity only for an instant. No current used or wasted on return into position. This is most important. It saves your batteries —gives them longer life. The front is for your ad or for a mirror. The handle is convenient to light from, for the shortest or the tallest. Pull the handle to you, slow or fast, "you get a light every time."

If you want the best lighter ever made, send us $12.00 and state if wanted with glass or mirror front. Send label if you want us to insert it.

THREE TOBACCONISTS HELD UNDER BAIL ON REVENUE MEN'S CHARGES

Arrests Mark Beginning of Crusade Against Alleged Box-Stuffing—Nets Out for Many More—Manufacturers Have Long Sought Clean-Up.

WITH two wagonloads of empty cigar boxes as evidence, Internal Revenue officers this week arrested Charles K. Sterner, a cigar manufacturer and dealer, with stores at Eleventh and Walnut Streets and Seventeenth and Market Streets, on a charge of refilling cigar boxes and failing to cancel revenue stamps on old packages.

It appears that on October 8th a wagonload of cigar boxes was seized from Sterner, and it is alleged that some of these packages had been refilled and the old stamps not properly cancelled. It is further stated that a visit to the Seventeenth and Market Streets establishment disclosed another large quantity of boxes that showed marks where the old revenue stamps had been soaked off.

Still further it appears that Sterner as a licensed cigar manufacturer had described only two rooms on the second floor as being used as a factory. Investigation showed another room that was not mentioned in the description in the lease, and in this room the boxes were found from which, it is claimed, the stamps had been removed.

This alleged violation is considered the most serious that has come to the Revenue Department in a number of years, and, after a hearing in the Federal Building, United States Commissioner Edmonds held the defendant in $1500 bail for court.

Another tobacconist who was brought before United States Commissioner Edmonds on charges made by Internal Revenue officers was H. Kottlikoff, Delaware Avenue and Chestnut Streets. He was held under $500 bail on three charges, viz.: For not destroying stamps on used boxes, for selling cigars out of boxes that were other than those originally contained in the box, and for selling cigars upon which no Internal Revenue tax was paid.

Continuing the crusade the Internal Revenue officers yesterday brought H. Morrison, of 5809 Market Street, before United States Commissioner Edmonds. Morrison is a tobacconist and was held under $500 bail on charges similar to those on which Kottlikoff was held.

This is not the end of the movement, and it is expected that before the week is out a number of others will be gathered into the net which is being spread for them.

The manufacturers have long wished for such a movement to stamp out the growing evil of box-stuffing and similar violations of the Internal Revenue law, and the present action of the officers meets with the approval of every honest cigar manufacturer and dealer.

Reports from about the city indicate that box-stuffing is being carried on with a boldness as never before. In some cases boxes are stuffed with cigars wrapped with a leaf entirely different from that used by the makers of the original cigar. Those who have been getting away with this sort of stuff should be brought early to justice.

William Cleveland, that Philip Morris man, was in Philadelphia this week.

FINANCE COMMITTEE AGREES TO INCREASE THE TOBACCO TAX

Sum Will Run From $6 to $1,200 Among Tobacco, Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers—Conceded That it Would Materially Increase the Revenue

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 14.

ON an amendment agreed to by the Finance Committee tonight an increase in the tax on tobacco, cigar and cigarette manufacturers is provided.

As the bill stood, manufacturers would be taxed from $6 to $96 according to the amount they produced.

The committee amendment to the tobacco schedule provides that the manufacturer of tobacco whose sales do not exceed 100,000 pounds shall pay $6; exceeding 100,000 pounds but not 200,000 pounds, $12; exceeding 200,000 pounds but not 400,000 pounds, $24; exceeding 400,000 pounds but not 1,000,000, $60; exceeding 1,000,000 but not 5,000,000, $300; exceeding that amount but not 10,000,000 pounds, $600; exceeding 10,000,000 pounds, $1200.

The tax on the manufacturers of cigars would be on every person whose sales did not exceed 100,000 cigars, $3; from that point to 200,000, $6; to 400,000, $12; to 1,000,000, $30; to 5,000,000, $150; to 20,000,000, $600; exceeding 20,000,000, $1200.

The tax on cigarettes would amount for manufacturers whose annual sales did not exceed 1,000,000 ciagrettes, $12; not exceeding 2,000,000, $24; not exceeding 5,000,000, $60; not exceeding 10,000,000, $120; not exceeding 50,000,000, $600; exceeding 50,000,000, $1200.

This, it is conceded, would increase the revenue materially.

It is believed that the tax will be collected by coupons issued monthly, so that the manufacturer will pay the largest tax in the month in which he does the largest business. This, however, is not fully decided. CAPITOL.

New Home for "Counsellor" Cigar

Allen R. Cressman's Sons, manufacturers of the well-known "Counsellor" cigar, will shortly remove from their present home at 512 Pine Street, and some time during November will occupy the new building which they have had erected at 233-235 South Third Street.

The "Counsellor" cigar has had one of the biggest years in its history, and the last few months have seen the sales climb up at an enormous rate.

Fifty Per Cent. Decrease in Unemployed Cigarmakers

That the number of cigarmakers out of work in the United States has decreased 50 per cent. during the past few weeks is the recent statement of G. W. Perkins, president of the Cigarmakers' International Union.

Whether the cigar trade is a barometer of general dependability cannot be vouched for, but the cigarmakers claim that when the cigar business shows a recovery it is a sign that all kinds of business is improving.

"Billy" Heenan has been appointed by M. Melachrino & Company to succeed John Vant as their representative for Philadelphia and adjacent territory. Mr. Heenan is a local boy and is popular among the trade.

Cigar Day offered an opportunity to stimulate interest in the cigar industry as a whole, but unfortunately a great majority of the cigar manufacturers failed to lend any recognition to the day and in the big cities, particularly, it fell below expectations.

The Results of Cigar Day

For many years the dealer has been left to the creation of the interest in his own store, and the dealers and manufacturers have not been working together. A careful study of the plans for Cigar Day would have brought out the fact that here was the opportunity for the manufacturer to work with the dealer. It was an opportunity for a trade manufacturing billions of cigars a year to get a day set aside by the smoking public for boosting the cigar.

Where the Cigar Day idea did take hold it was the result of the work of the trade papers, which unselfishly gave space for the advertisement of the observance of that day. The dealers did their share, but they could only reach their own consumers, who proportionately were but a very few of the entire number that could have been reached by the manufacturers.

It has been with much satisfaction that the cigar manufacturers in this city have observed the recent activities of the Internal Revenue Department as regards the violation of the law in connection with the sale and manufacture of cigars.

Investigating Box-Stuffing

If the cigar trade has suffered from one evil that stands head and shoulders above all the others, it is the pernicious practice of box-stuffing, filling the empty box of an advertised cigar with a brand of inferior quality and selling it for the advertised goods. There may be many offenses worthy of more severe criticism and heavier punishment than box-stuffing, but there is none that outrages honesty and fair practices more.

The good will established on a cigar brand, built up by years of careful advertising backed up with quality products, may be destroyed in a twelve-month by the clever work of box-stuffers. This is not surmised, but is known to have happened to more than one brand.

Practically every nickel cigar, unbanded, that is sold in Philadelphia is substituted on in one place or another. Never before has it been done with such boldness, and never before has the reputation of the Philadelphia retail cigar trade had such aspersions cast upon it, as during the present time. With the growth of the practice of box-stuffing it has been hard to believe that many tobacconists, for years known and respected for their honesty, could ever sink to the level of box-stuffing. There is a day of reckoning at hand.

New Reading Cigar Factory

Latest reports from Reading indicate that a new factory is to be established there shortly and that it will employ more than 300 hands. It is further stated that the deal for leasing a large building in the heart of the city has about been closed.

The firm which has the new location in mind is said to be located at present in the Middle West turning out about 17,000,000 union-made cigars yearly.

Only Cigars and Cigarettes for Rosenfeld-Rovig Company

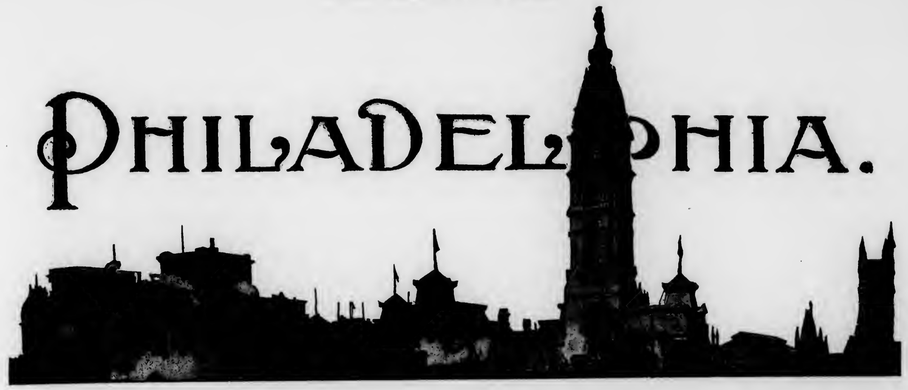
The Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, Seattle, Wash., having recently announced its intention of discontinuing its tobacco business, and since having practically closed up all its trade on that line, will hereafter devote its attention to cigars and cigarettes exclusively. In clear Havana lines, "José Vila" (Berriman Brothers) is the company's leader. "Charles Denby" (H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.) and "New Bachelor" (T. J. Dunn & Company, New York) are among the brands handled by Rosenfeld-Rovig Company.

Newspaper Fund Buying Smokes for "Tommy Atkins"

Complaints voiced in the letters of British soldiers that they are "run shy" of tobacco under the system of allowances fixed by the military establishment have met with a ready response in London. A newspaper has established a fund to buy the tobacco and subscriptions are pouring in. One million cigarettes already have been purchased with this fund and sent to the front.

Cheap Cigarettes in Northwest India

The use of cheap cigarettes is increasing rapidly in Northwest India. There has been an increase recently in the importation of the better kinds of cigarettes, but the native-made article holds the market for cheap cigarettes. They may be bought in the bazaars at the rate of six for 1 pice (½ cent). This includes an attractive paper box.



Portuondo Salesman Off for the Middle West

WARNER SEARLE, the premier salesman of the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, is about to leave for an extended Western trip in the interest of the Portuondo brands.

While in Duluth, Mr. Searle will visit the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, who are large distributors of Portuondo products in the West. This house has well earned the title which it has lately assumed, "Jobbers of good segars!" Their magic touch seems to bring out the best that is in a smoke.

Before going West Mr. Searle will spend about two weeks in New York State.

The Afco Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, has recently taken on the Portuondo line, and the Portuondo Company can be satisfied that their goods are placed in active hands.

Philadelphia Notes

D. Harry Moulsdale, traveling representative of factory No. 1, Tampa, Fla., is in Philadelphia looking after the interests of Sanchez & Haya Company.

Despite the fact that he is now vice-president of M. Melachrino & Company, "Rube" Ellis was on the job every minute when in Philadelphia recently.

Wm. Duncan, formerly a member of the firm of Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, was an interested visitor this week. Mr. Duncan succeeds Ed. Dunlap as local representative for the clear Havana lines of San Martin & Leon.

William Noonan stopped off in Philadelphia recently after a two-years' trip to Alaska and the Northwest. A splendid supply of M. Melachrino & Company's goods can now be purchased throughout this distant territory.

Dusel, Goodloe & Company, 114 North Seventh Street, Philadelphia, are offering an attractive packing of "La Preferencia" cigars. The package contains ten of these widely known smokes and retail for one dollar. This is an ideal carrier for week-end trips, and it is meeting with success among the retailers.

H. H. Leach, of Lilly, Dungan & Company, Baltimore, Md., was in Philadelphia recently and combined business with pleasure.

"La Invencia" Cigars Are Well Liked

BAUM BROTHERS are meeting with general success on their new line, "La Invencia" Havana cigars, made in fifteen different shapes.

They are on sale at the principal cigar stands in Philadelphia and surrounding sections.

Jobbers also report excellent results on this line, and judging from the duplicates the factory receives, the line will be a winner.

L. M. Walters Up-State With "Bold" Cigars

L. M. Walters, the genial representative of the "Bold" cigar, is off on a two-weeks' trip through the coal regions, where he expects to find a nice bunch of repeat orders waiting for him. "Bold" cigars are well known in the coal districts and Mr. Walters has had little difficulty in placing the goods.

Upon his return from that section, Mr. Walters will start on a trip through Southern territory, where the cigar has established its reputation on merit.

Halpern & Walter, Newest Firm

Halpern & Walter is the title of a new firm of Philadelphia cigar manufacturers. Mr. Halpern, who has been manufacturing cigars in Seventh Street, below Arch, has taken L. P. Walter into partnership, and the efforts of both will be devoted hereafter to the popularizing of their "As You Wan," a nickel proposition, and the pushing of other brands. The manufacturing end will be in charge of Mr. Halpern, who was formerly connected with the Valentine factory, while Mr. Walter is to devote his time to the business end of the firm.

"George Fox" Cigars Anniversary Souvenirs

To celebrate their thirty-third anniversary the cigar department of the Finley Acker Company stores throughout the city distributed a package containing two of their well known "George Fox" cigars to customers on Saturday, October 10th.

J. Durbin Acker, manager of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store, reports a splendid increase in business during the current month.

Winston-Salem Man to Locate in Philadelphia

Crawford D. Montgomery, who for several years has been connected with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company in Winston-Salem, N. C., has recently resigned his position. Although he has made no definite plans for the future, Mr. Montgomery is quoted as saying that he will come to Philadelphia in the near future with the idea of locating here.

THE STRENGTH OF LIGHT AND DARK CIGARS

F. R. Hoisington Gives Dissertation on Much Argued Question in Cigar Trade

MOST smokers have the notion that a light colored cigar is necessarily mild or that a dark cigar is necessarily heavy. It is a delusion and a great one. You cannot tell how a cigar may taste by the color of its wrapper. The smoking quality of a cigar, its strength or mildness, depends almost entirely on the quality of the filler, which in turn depends on the locality in which the leaf is raised, the curing, and the proper blending of the different tobaccos.

A cigarmaker is given a certain quantity of filler tobacco and a pad of wrappers. Both filler and wrappers are as nearly of one quality as possible. He rolls them; a selector takes them and assorts them, by the shade of the wrapper only, into light, medium and dark, merely to be able to pack the boxes with cigars having all the same color, and thus get a neat appearance and uniformity in the box. Some of these cigars will be called "Maduro," some "Claro," but the filler is the same in all, and all are of exactly the same tobacco except for the color of the thin wrapper. We are talking, of course, about cigars of one brand and size.

Cigars are made up in many shapes, and the general rule is, the thinner cigars are milder, and the thicker cigars heavier, though made of exactly the same tobacco. If one shape does not just suit your taste, try another.

The lightest wrapper tobacco is either of a naturally flimsy nature or the leaf has been prematurely picked. In either case this light tobacco has no desirable quality and if cigars were made up of this alone no one would care for them, for they are apt to be acrid or bitter.

As a matter of fact, dark colored leaves are usually more mellow and sweet for they have ripened on the stock and have then been thoroughly cured before being made up. In the tropics wrappers are gathered in February and March and the crop must last through the twelve months until the next crop is harvested. The leaf is stored in bales and cures and darkens each month until at the end of the season the tobacco has a much better flavor than at the beginning. "Maduro" is the Spanish word meaning mature or ripe, so a "Maduro" or "Colorado Maduro" cigar is one with a ripe well cured wrapper, and if the filler is not of heavy tobacco the cigar will burn better, taste better, and give much more satisfaction without being heavy or strong. Tobacco men know this. They know that they can raise better tobacco and make better cigars by allowing the leaves to ripen fully before picking them; then the cigar will burn more evenly, the nicotine will disappear in combustion and not get in the smoker's system. But the demand for light colors induces many planters to cut some of their tobacco prematurely in order to get a large percentage of light wrappers.

Porto Rican, for instance, usually runs a little dark when fully matured, but the cigars are not strong; they are mellow and full of flavor, and their combustion is so perfect that the smoker gets practically no nicotine from them.

The only way you can tell the strength of a cigar is by smoking it. When you want a mild cigar, you must depend on the brand and size, not on the color of the cigar. Find your mild brands and shapes by the smoking test; then stick to them regardless of the color.

The El Draco Cigar Company has recently had prepared some very handsome display screens for use in windows where the "Stratford" brand is displayed.

J. B. DUKE STILL AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

Tobacco Magnate Says He Never Had Any Idea of Becoming a Foreigner

THE following will set at rest all reports that J. B. Duke, formerly president of the American Tobacco Company, and now head of the British-American Tobacco Company, had ceased to be an American citizen. The following letters bear interestingly on the discussion. The first is written by Mr. Duke's former business partner, George W. Watts, and the second is a communication to Mr. Watts from Mr. Duke:

"Upon the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, by the United States Courts, Mr. Duke found nothing attractive in managing or directing any of the smaller companies into which the American Tobacco Company had been subdivided. His whole life having been devoted to the tobacco business, and he being recognized as a leader in this line, his services were eagerly sought. The British-American Tobacco Company (whose market is the world) having made him a satisfactory proposition, he accepted the chairmanship of its board, which is equivalent to its management. This requires Mr. Duke to spend six months in each year abroad.

"Mr. Duke, while being one of the most progressive and vigorous men the South has produced, is also one of the most modest, so never makes reply to any newsparper articles reflecting upon him or his business. But I, as his friend and associated with him in business for over thirty-six years, feel that this injustice should be corrected. I am therefore enclosing a letter just received from him.

"Yours very truly,
"GEORGE W. WATTS.

"Durham, September 26, '14."

The letter referred to in the above was written on September 22, and is as follows:

"George W. Watts, Esq.,

"My Dear George:

"I have been told of the articles charging me with having become a British subject, but press of many matters excluded them from my mind until recalled by your letter of the 16th, which is now before me. While these articles are entirely unfounded, as you and my other friends know full well, I did not take notice of them because that has not been my custom. The fact is that I am now a citizen of the United States and will continue a citizen of the United States. I do not contemplate and have never contemplated becoming a British subject.

"So far as the income tax is concerned, I am always ready to bear my part of any tax deemed necessary. You know how I have labored to build up and advance the business and commerce of the United States at home and abroad, and of my abiding faith and interest in this endeavor. To mention no other reason, I have too much at stake in this respect and too much hope in the future of American business and commerce to ever cease to be a citizen of the United States. The result is that as soon as I could after the war was declared, I hurried home because my first interests were there, and have since been giving my whole time to the situation which demands the best of all of us.

"Sincerely yours,
(Signed) "J. B. DUKE."

"Charles the Great" Holiday Offerings

ALWAYS alert, Salvador Rodriguez, manufacturer of "Charles the Great," has once again prepared his annual Christmas Holidays' offerings on this peerless brand. "Lo Mejor Del a Fabrica" is the inscription to be found on a very attractive cabinet of mahogany stained cedar. This contains five different choice sizes of "Charles the Greats." That they are "The Factory's Choicest" is attested by the inscription above quoted. Oval-shaped cedar wood containers in 20ths and 40ths is a packing known as "Ovals." This package carries with it a separate box which aids in keeping the cigars in first-class condition. The third packing coming in 20ths, is known as "Fin de Siglo Varieties," being a new feature in "Charles the Great" line.

Still Another "United" Store Robbed

Another United Cigar Stores Company clerk was robbed recently, making the fourth in three weeks, when Morris Rubin, clerking at the "United" store at 12 Delancey Street, was held up and robbed.

A man entered the store during the evening and asked for a brand of cigars kept in the cases behind the clerk. The clerk opened the case to get the cigars and when he turned he found himself gazing at two very beautiful revolvers held in the hands of another man, who had sneaked in while his back was turned. The robbers invited Mr. Rubin to retire to the rear. He complied with their request with alacrity, as the man with the revolvers began to handle them carelessly. To make sure that Mr. Rubin would not interfere with their plans they then tied him very securely. The robbers then extracted twenty-eight dollars from the cash register, and after picking out five boxes of good cigars they bade Mr. Rubin "good night" and disappeared into the street.

H. Duys & Company Have Received Many Bales

According to the latest information from the house of H. Duys & Company, New York, in addition to 500 bales of Sumatra tobacco now on the high seas, 3329 bales have been received since the outbreak of the war. This well-known firm is fully prepared to care for the demands of cigar manufacturers who are in need of Sumatra.

Y. Pendas & Alvarez Take Third Avenue Lease

Y. Pendas & Alvarez, manufacturers of the "Webster" cigar, of 209 Pearl Street, have recently leased the properties at 801-803 Third Avenue. The properties consist of a four-story building between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets.

Changes at Arabesca Factory

It is announced that E. P. Oakes and Philip King are no longer connected with the Arabesca Cigarette Company, at 1600 Broadway. W. Anagnosi, the proprietor of the company, will in the future handle the sales himself.

John W. Surbrug Sues George J. Whelan

JOHN W. SURBRUG has brought suit in the Supreme Court for $150,000 against George J. Whelan, of the United Cigar Stores Company, alleging damages sustained because the proposed deal in which, it is asserted, Mr. Whelan promised to invest $500,000 in establishing tobacco stores throughout Great Britain suddenly was called off. The plaintiff states that according to the plan Mr. Whelan was to receive 10 per cent. of the capital stock of the new company and all of his expenses, Mr. Surbrug having succeeded in securing the interest of persons abroad in the enterprise.

Mr. Surbrug asserts that the abandonment of the plan has made him an object of ridicule. The reason given by Mr. Whelan, he alleges, is that certain English tobacco corporations put such pressure upon him that he had to withdraw.

Schulte Realty Company Takes Long Lease

The Schulte Realty Company, last Thursday, secured a sixty-three year lease, beginning May 1 next, covering the five-story building at 168 William Street and 39 Beekman Street, New York. The aggregate rental is about $200,000.

It is understood that the premises will be largely subleased. The securing of this corner for a long term of years is along the general policy of the Schulte interests to obtain desirable corners close to subway stations, and this lease anticipates a station to be located between Fulton and Beekman Streets on William Street.

"Made-in-America" Association Incorporated

Articles of incorporation were recently granted in Albany to the "Made-in-America" Products Association with a nominal stock of $10,000. The stock, which will be issued in shares of $100 each, will be subscribed to by manufacturers or distributors interested in furthering the sale of American-made products.

The plan of action is said to call for the raising of a fund which will be devoted to an advertising campaign exploiting American manufacturers. This, it is said, is to be done by a system of monthly dues.

The board of directors, members of which will serve without compensation, includes C. A. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company.

Robert Appleton Again Associated With "Fifty-Six"

It is with much pleasure that Robert Appleton, better known to the trade as "Bob," announces that he has again assumed control of the sales management of the Cado Company, Incorporated, of New York City, manufacturers of the noted "Fifty-Six" cigarette and the less expensive "Cado" brand. It was due principally to the efforts of Mr. Appleton that the "Fifty-Six" acquired its enviable popularity as a twenty-five-cent brand of cigarettes, and now that he has "Cado" retailing at fifteen cents, also a splendid brand, on which to exert his personal magnetism, it goes without saying that sales on both brands will go ahead with a vim. Both Mr. Appleton and the Cado Company look forward to the future with much optimism.

Thomas J. McGrath

THOMAS J. McGRATH, a widely known cigar manufacturer of Waterbury, Conn., died at his home recently, following an illness of four months.

Shortly after coming to Waterbury twenty-five years ago, Mr. McGrath started in the cigar manufacturing business and continued in that line until his death. His most widely known brand was called "The Globe," which had a very heavy call in certain sections.

Mr. McGrath was a member of the Elks, the Independent Order of Foresters and Knights of Columbus. He is survived by a widow and two daughters. Four sisters and four brothers also survive him.

Frank H. Crygier

Frank H. Crygier, one of the best known business men of Hartford, Conn., succumbed suddenly on the sixth instant to a stroke of apoplexy. The deceased was fifty-eight years old.

Mr. Crygier was born in New York in 1856, and came to Hartford about thirty-five years ago. He entered the employ of Benjamin Wood, a cigar manufacturer at 48 State Street. After Mr. Wood's death Mr. Crygier bought out the business and remained in the wholesale and retail tobacco business until the time of his death.

Mr. Crygier belonged to many organizations and was a thirty-second degree Mason.

The deceased is survived by a widow, one sister and two brothers.

John Conrad Grafing

John Conrad Grafing, formerly secretary of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, died suddenly at his home in St. Louis, Mo., on October 6th. He was more than sixty years old and had lived in St. Louis for more than thirty years. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Mr. Grafing is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Ferdinand Klene

Ferdinand Klene, a well-known cigar manufacturer of Quincy, Ill., died recently of paralysis, after an illness of only an hour.

The deceased was born in Quincy, August 28, 1872, and for twenty-one years was associated with his father in the cigar manufacturing business. He is survived by his father and one brother.

Moss Gompertz

Moss Gompertz, a well-known cigar manufacturer of New Haven, Conn., died recently at the Elm City Hospital. He had been ill for some time.

The deceased was born in New Haven and had lived there all his life. He was a member of numerous organizations and had a wide circle of close friends. He is survived by a widow, three brothers and three sisters. He was a Mason.

Bernard Kopf

Bernard Kopf, of the pipe manufacturing firm of Ehrlich & Kopf, of Boston, Mass., died in that city on October 12th, after a lingering illness.

The deceased is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Fred Widmann

As the result of being pinned under his automobile when he lost control, Fred Widmann, of Schoharie, N. Y., is dead, and his companion, Harry Cady, is in a hospital at Albany in a serious condition.

Mr. Widmann was a well-known cigar manufacturer of Schoharie. He was forty-three years old.

The deceased is survived by a widow and six children.

Charles Chandler Sheldon

Charles Chandler Sheldon, one of the leading farmers and tobacco growers of West Suffield, died recently from complications which followed the amputation of one of his legs. He was eighty years old.

The deceased is survived by one son and two daughters.

Apropos of a Good Cigar

Learned doctors have said that even a little cigar smoke injures the throat and lungs, and equally learned doctors have said that cigars may be smoked by mature persons with impunity; but it is not recorded that any one has been so bold or so foolish as to maintain that a good cigar destroys a well fed man's equanimity. A bad one may, but one of the most satisfactory spectacles which life's parade affords is that of the critical smoker enjoying a cigar just to his taste. Each long, slow puff soothes his mind; his thoughts are mellow and his words come deliberately, as if carefully weighed. If alone the smoker is likely to see visions, and each vision seen at leisure exerts its force in times of stress, so that the immediate pleasure is not a mere transient indulgence. It is no longer fashionable to loosen the tongue with spirituous liquors, for it has been seen that a tongue so loosed is likely to wag and finally to wabble; and that levity so stimulated is likely to gush like a tempestuous geyser, intermittent, and not especially useful. A good cigar, on the other hand, encourages a flow of words like a countryside spring—cool and sparkling, and welcome to tired wayfarers. Cigarettes have their devotees, especially among the more nervous; and the pipe has achieved immortality at the hands of Mark Twain and J. M. Barrie, to say nothing of the thousands to whom it is a constant source of inspiration. But the cigar holds its own as the great solace of masculine middle age. Now and then a woman will rise in rebellion, and protest against a habit which leaves the house slightly permeated with an odor which she finds distasteful, but it seldom happens that serious consequences result, for with many husbands a meal without a cigar is a meal only half enjoyed, and the wife soon realizes that whatever adds to his appreciation of her cooking endears her to him.

Globe Tobacco Machines Corporation Files Schedule

The Globe Tobacco Machines Corporation, with offices at 149 Broadway, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $19,565 and assets of unknown value, consisting of machines and patents and eight dollars cash in bank.

Among the creditors are Henry von L. Myer, treasurer, $5,100, secured; Chas. D. Simons, Jr., $5,100, secured, and Edward S. Beach, $2,800.

The factory, which is in Newark, N. J., was recently gutted by fire.

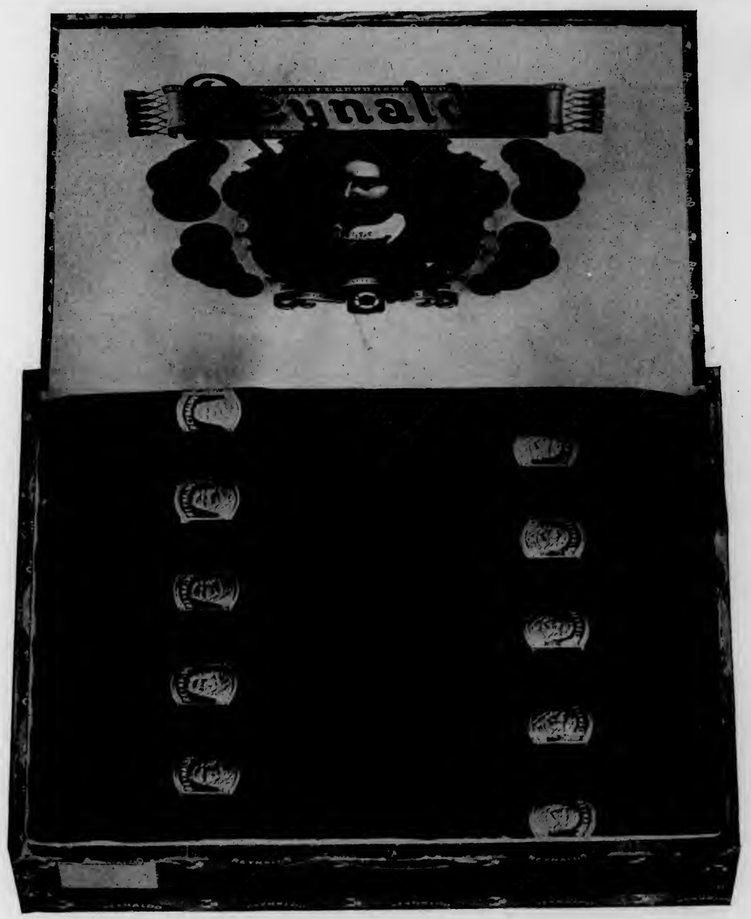
New Coast Representative for the "Counsellor" Cigar

It was recently announced that the Los Angeles representative of the "Counsellor" cigar is now the Max Roth Cigar Company, a change having been made. The George W. Walker Cigar Company, Beck & Company, proprietors, were the former representatives of the cigar.

An Innovation in Cigar Making

Two Cigars in One—An Epoch Making Innovation Originated by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Makers of "Reynaldo"—and Now Being Shown to the Public

IMPROVEMENT in cigar making by hand has, up to now, been considered impractical, but we illustrate below a cigar made by a new method—simple, practical and hitherto unthought of. It produces perfect cigars and, above all, effects a saving in manufacture, whereby fifteen cents will purchase cigar value which formerly cost no less than twenty cents. Similarly, two cigars which now are sold for a quarter can, through this method, be sold for twenty cents.



Expressed in a few words, the idea of this new process is to make by hand (just as the best cigars have always been made) two cigars in one rolling, and selling them as one cigar. The purchaser separates them and makes two cigars out of the one purchase.

It is unquestionably a great invention and is covered by patents applied for not only in the United States, but in all cigar producing countries.

For the present two sizes only will be made:

"Reynaldo" Duets (packed in one-fortieths and one-twentieths), being two ten-cent cigars made as one and costing the smoker fifteen cents, or seven and one-half cents each.

"Reynaldo" Economics (packed in one-fortieths) being two two-for-a-quarter cigars made as one and costing the smoker twenty cents, or ten cents each.

W. S. Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, who invented this process, was seen at his office and asked to tell the most salient facts of his invention. He said:

"I stumbled on this invention in an effort to save for the consumer the increased revenue tax which for a time we thought was going to be put on cigars. It occurred to me that it would be possible to make two cigars in one operation, or rolling, to use the cigarmakers' term. This always effects a saving in any manufacturing process. After much thought and many experiments, I believe we have achieved our object, but, as there will now be no increased internal revenue tax, we can give the smoker much greater value for his money.

"The cigars are made exactly as any properly constructed cigar is made. The wrapper, binder and filler are all laid in the regulation way and the two cigars, when separated, are perfect cigarmakers' products, exactly the same as if they had been made individually.

"I think it will be conceded that this new type of cigar has advantages for everybody concerned. For the manufacturer, for the jobber and for the retailer—it cannot help but stimulate business, and it brings to the smoker the same cigar at a greatly reduced price. This latter is readily seen when it is realized that all labor operations are re-

Cleveland

Business Tends Toward Normal Footing—J. B. Shields Sending in Many "La Saramita" Orders—Son of Max Mendelsohn to Marry Cleveland Girl

CLEVELAND, O., October 12.

ALTHOUGH Cleveland has been hit as hard as any of the rest of the cities throughout the country by the war scare, things are beginning to pick up again and tend to reach a normal footing. The writer has made a resume of the cigar and tobacco interests here which shows that conditions have bettered by a big percentage over the first few weeks of the war and the outlook is more than bright.

E. E. Poole has opened up a cigar store at No. 30 Euclid Arcade. He will carry a full line of cigars, tobaccos and smokers' articles. He will have an entrance into the new building which was just opened up and which should bring him a vast patronage, as well as the entrance into the arcade proper. Mr. Poole has a host of friends in this section of the city and there should be no question about him making a great success in his new location.

Sam Cohn, who formerly operated the Calumet bowling alleys on Fifty-fifth Street, has finally succeeded in securing a location at 5802 Euclid Avenue. He will open up with seven billiard tables and seven bowling alleys. It will be the most complete recreation parlor in this end of the city. Mr. Cohn is saving no expense in equipping his new rooms. Although it has been over a year that Mr. Cohn disposed of the Calumet Alleys, his friends are waiting with eagerness to offer their patronage in his new establishment. He will carry a complete line of cigars and tobaccos, featuring the "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." The opening will be around the 15th.

Trottner Brothers & Zeigler have purchased the cigar store of H. J. Mandelbaum at 311 Superior Avenue N. W. They have remodeled and stocked the store with brands of cigars which they control, and are going right out after all the business in sight. All the boys interested are thoroughly familiar with the cigar business and if they keep up the pace they have already set in their first weeks they should be a big factor in the retail cigar trade of the city.

Mr. H. J. Mandelbaum, who disposed of his cigar store located at 311 Superior Street, to Trottner Brothers & Zeigler, has gone into the motion picture supply business. Mr. Mandelbaum was one of the pioneer cigar men of Cleveland and was located at the above address for the greater part of his career.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is making a swing over the territory, and by the looks of the many large orders coming into the house, one would not think the country was much affected by the war scare.

Locally, both "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" are enjoying a large sale, and their many display windows are continuing to be the talk of the town.

Bill Blashke, city salesman for the Shields-Wertheim Company, has purchased a farm close to the city and claims that he is enjoying country life.

M. E. Loeb, formerly of Canton, is in town and has several different brands which he is selling to the local dealers.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Lillian Greenhut, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenhut, of Cleveland, to Mr. Grover Mendelsohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Mendelsohn, of New York, has just been made public. This announcement is of much interest to the tobacco trade, as Mr. Mendelsohn, senior, is one of our leading leaf tobacco merchants located in New York City, and Grover Mendelsohn is at the head of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, located in Cleveland.

Tinkham Brothers, of Jamestown, N. Y., has just been added to the list of distributors for the Decision Cigar Manufacturing Company by the Mendelsohn Cigar Company.

Fred Buxham has joined the "Omar" cigarette forces and will be located in Cleveland.

Joe Klein, of Larus Brothers, manufacturers of "Edgeworth and "Q-boid" tobaccos, is making a business trip through Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

George Bassett reports business as picking up. He is using display windows with great success, and the many varied and artistic displays are attracting many customers to the store.

T. Jones, formerly with the Gollmar Cigar Company, in is charge of the cigar stand of M. Gluckman at the corner of East Sixth Street and Superior Avenue.

All the stands of the Fred G. Gollmar Company report a very nice business, but the one that has exceeded their fondest expectations is the stand formerly owned by Joseph T. Snyder, at 742 Euclid Avenue. This stand is running far ahead each month over the previous business, and is a source of great encouragement for this thriving concern.

Wichita Wholesale Cigar Company

George W. Foster and J. A. McGuire, proprietors of the Wichita Wholesale Cigar Company, are the oldest wholesale cigar dealers in Wichita, Kansas. Mr. Foster started in the cigar business in Wichita in 1886. In 1894 he and J. A. McGuire formed the Wichita Wholesale Cigar Company. They were in business in the first block on North Main Street about six years, after which they moved to the Means Building, corner of Lawrence and Douglas Avenues, where they remained about twelve years. About a year and a half ago they moved their offices to their present quarters, over 127 South Main Street.

From a small institution the Wichita Wholesale Cigar Company has steadily grown until it is now distributing over 5,000,000 cigars annually. Three traveling men cover Kansas, Oklahoma and Eastern Colorado.

Holiday Offering on "New Bachelors"

T. J. Dunn & Company announce to the trade that they have just recently placed on the market their special holiday package of "New Bachelors." This package consists of a particularly attractive can, 1/40, containing a moistener at the bottom to insure the keeping of the cigars in good condition, and goes to the trade at $35. Already, many of the Dunn distributors have sent in their orders for this offering, and it goes without saying, that it will go with a rush. T. J. Dunn & Company have left no stone unturned to insure the popularity of this favorite brand, and that they have been successful, is attested by the fact that in nickel goods, it is classed among the biggest selling lines in practically every state in the Union.

"Partagas" Cigar Factory Busy

Among the few factories in Havana that are working up to normal is the "Partagas" factory, which is very busy with orders at this time.

Robert E. Lane, the genial United States representative, with offices in New York, has recently been out among the trade and landed some handsome orders on some of the new sizes that the factory recently started making. Christmas packings of "Partagas" cigars are as popular as ever and despite conditions there is a good demand for them.

Failure to Reach the Smoker Hurts Cigar Day

NATIONAL CIGAR DAY has come and gone and brought only indifferent results for those who labored most diligently for its success. Here and there a few bright spots stand out, but in truth they are few. For the greater part of the smoking public smoked through October 12th without the vaguest idea that it marked the establishment of Cigar Day as an annual national institution.

The trade papers did their part in trying to arouse interest and there is no question that as far as the retailer was concerned there was general enthusiasm over the idea. Unfortunately the retailer is not able to make Cigar Day. It requires the co-operation of not only all the retailers, but the jobbers and manufacturers as well.

Most beginnings are failures in undertakings of this kind, but from such failures can be built the foundations for a substantial structure to stand the test of other years.

It is not hard to discover why this event failed to "make good." No effort was made to reach the consumer.

No manufacturer would think of advertising to the consumer with any line of goods unless he had the retailer stocked up, to take care of inquiries. Yet apparently little if any effort was made to educate the consumer regarding Cigar Day. Certainly the trade papers could not do this work alone, but they did reach the jobber and retailer.

Cigar Day should succeed and will succeed as a national event if the cigar manufacturers want it to. The raisin and pineapple people have put their days across "big." Why? Because they not only stocked the jobber and retailer, but they went after the consumer, and got him. And the pockets of the retailers, jobbers and manufacturers are jingling with a lot of extra coin every year as a result.

To make Cigar Day a success money must be spent to reach the consumer and to educate him regarding this event. It is perfectly obvious that in a city where there are from three to ten thousand retailers, that it would not pay the individual retailer to do the advertising to the consumer. One three-thousandths part of the increased sales on that day would never pay him individually for the expense.

But how about a manufacturer with from 2000 to 5000 accounts in a large city? It would be one of the best investments he ever made if he took large space several days prior to the date set for the event and started to educate the consumer to buy his brand on Cigar Day.

It is surprising to find that hundreds of cigar manufacturing firms, whose brands would die a natural death in two years if it were not for their advertising, could fail to see that the establishment of Cigar Day means increased sales for their brands, not only for Cigar Day, but the next day, and next year.

In large cities where a page of space in a daily newspaper cost from $300 up, it would have been an excellent plan for the big manufacturers to have gotten behind this movement and bought a page, distributing so much space to each manufacturer. They could have started several days prior with editorial matter, announcing the establishment of Cigar Day, and followed it up with more educative matter, and then on the morning of Cigar Day could have come out with the advertisement of the brands of the manufacturers who paid for the space, directing the consumer to try these brands.

If fifteen or twenty manufacturers got behind such a movement in each city, at a cost of perhaps $100 or less, to each firm, they would have been surprised at the result. A hundred dollars spent by a manufacturer who had above one thousand accounts in a city like New York or Chicago, would have moved a tremendous amount of goods at a very small expense, on that day.

It is surprising that the newspapers did not make an effort to get special advertising for this event. They could have set aside a page and prepared a special head for it, and then sold the space pro rata to any number of manufacturers.

There may have been some criticism of the newspapers for not devoting space to Cigar Day, but the lack of enthusiasm on the part of the manufacturers was no doubt responsible in some part for this.

What is needed is organization and co-operation. The big advertisers who are at it every day in the year know that the right sort of advertising, properly placed, increases the earning power of the invested dollar.

Educative advertising is bound to bring business to some one else besides the advertiser, but the advertiser who does that kind has already learned that he gets the lion's share which is more than enough to warrant the investment.

One lithograph house presented a manufacturer of a well known cigar with 2000 window posters advertising Cigar Day. The lithograph house saw that the success of this day meant business for them next year. But on the other hand, 2000 posters were as a "drop in the bucket" in a city the size of New York or Philadelphia. This firm realized the need of reaching the consumer. The consumer is still with us. Let's get him next year.

If, as is predicted, the tobacco trade is to be the mark of the reformers after they have subjected the liquor interests, it is not too early to organize for protection.

Instead of giving up because Cigar Day has not been "put across" big, every one should put his shoulder to the wheel and begin now to plan for next year.

No efforts have been wasted. Let no retailer be discouraged. He will be that much ahead of the other fellow next year. Cigar Day has come to stay.

Some have labored under the impression that Cigar Day was conceived for the benefit of the trade papers. A moment's consideration would prove the error of such a statement. As trade papers go, there is not a nickel in the proposition for them. They may gather some extra advertising when the day becomes better established, but they will have well earned all they get.

They started this day on nothing but their belief and knowledge in human nature, and they still have it, with a little additional knowledge.

The trade papers know that this day can be made a success, and they know that a prosperous trade makes better conditions for every one in it. There you have the secret of the trade papers' interest in Cigar Day.

At the Electrical Show which opened last week at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, Phillip Morris & Company, Limited, manufacturers of the famous cigarettes of that name, were represented by a complete miniature cigarette factory.

Chicago

Perry Pipe Display Attracts Smokers—"Rotary" Cigar Is Having Big Run—Head of Taussig & Company Sees Good Winter Ahead

CHICAGO, October 12.

INTERVIEWS with some of the leading cigar and tobacco men of the city on conditions during the past two weeks lead to the conclusion that business is steadily growing better as the holiday season approaches. Beginning with the retailers, who are the true weather-cocks when it comes to diagnosing the state of business, it can be said that trade in both the downtown and the residence sections of the city has been about all that could be asked during the period under discussion. With the smokers of high-grade imported cigars all back from their vacations by this time, the stands in the Loop office buildings are once more doing a fine business. Many new hotels and buildings of one sort or the other are being erected in the downtown district. Work on these is about completed by this time, and many new stands will be added to the large number already in the crowded central business district. On the other hand, the jobbers are not inclined to complain. Business is opening fine for the season, considering the number of outside distractions.

"If conditions were normal," said a prominent jobber to the writer the other day, "we would be having one of the best fall trades in our history. Under existing circumstances, we are experiencing a trade which is about the average, and that is a lot better than we were expecting a few weeks ago, let me say."

The store of Albert Breitung in the Monadnock Building has a fine display of the Perry Pipe, which is about the best which has struck this city in some time. The advertisement shows a cut-out, with an automatic device operated with electricity which smokes the pipe for the man and calls attention to the patent nicotine and slug eliminator in the stem. Large crowds are being attracted every day.

Richard W. Sears, the mail order king, president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, who has been identified with the cigar business as well as most other lines of business on the slate, died two weeks ago. He was the founder of the company which bears his name. Starting in life as a poor telegraph operator, he rose to the possession of $25,000,000 and one of the largest businesses of the kind in the world.

Best & Russell are making a hard campaign on "Robert Burns" cigar. The regular plan of the company in employing special salesmen to cover the city, working on no other cigar but "Robert Burns," is being used in this case, and it is working out with all the success that could be wished.

Charles Kresl, well-known cigar box manufacturer, died last week at the age of sixty-six years. He had been in the business for more than thirty years.

Ben Koral has taken charge of the cigar department of McNeill & Higgins Company, the large wholesale grocers. Mr. Koral is a man of experience in the cigar business, and has been with the house for the past nine years, so that he has the advantage of knowing the class of trade. The effort will be to sell all the customers of the company, who have long been buying goods from the house, but never cigars, for the good reason that the cigar department is a comparatively new thing. The leader of the line which will be handled by the company is "La Estable," by Garcia & Vega, and in the five-cent goods, "1872" and "Cornell," both well-known brands. Special salesmen have been employed for the opening campaign.

E. W. Lilienfeld, of José Escalente & Company, left the city on an extended trip to Tampa this week. He expects to spend some time at the factory of the company and in getting a line on general conditions in the field.

The William F. Monroe Cigar Company is making a big run on the "Rotary" cigar, which is the brand endorsed by all the Rotary Clubs of America. The Rotary Club is a national organization of business men which has hundreds of members in this city, and the displays of the company are making an appeal to them as well as to the general public.

Clayton-Hamburger Cigar Company has added a new store to the string which the company operates in the Loop district. The establishment is located at Madison and Canal Streets, in an excellent neighborhood for high-class trade.

"Jim" Crow, who for many years has been a popular figure in the local cigar trade, has accepted a position as manager of one of the stores formerly operated by Stroud & Jackson, located at Randolph Street and Fifth Avenue. The store is now owned by Rodriguez Fernandez, who acquired the place following the failure of Stroud & Jackson a number of months ago. Mr. Crow was formerly manager of the Daniels Cigar Store at Dearborn and Madison Streets.

Carr & Powers, the retail cigar merchants, at Monroe Street and Fifth Avenue, expect to open a couple of new stores in a few months. They have been most successful with their initial venture, and believe that a little expansion is now in their line.

Albert Korn, with S. H. Furgatch & Company, was in the city for a few days. Mr. Korn called on a number of his old friends and discussed trade conditions as he saw them.

William T. Taylor, representing the Romeo & Juliet Cigar Factory, Havana, Cuba, was in the city last week. He does not get to the city very often these days and his many friends here were glad to see him.

William Taussig, of the prominent leaf firm of Taussig & Company, was enthusiastic this week in discussing leaf conditions throughout the country.

"We have started the fall with a good trade," said Mr. Taussig, "in the city as well as in the country. The small manufacturers in the rural districts are placing orders for stock with caution, but in a manner which shows that they have plenty of confidence in the future. I think we are going to have a good trade this winter. There has been a revival of the cigar business in many of the smaller towns over the Middle West which were harmed a while back by the removal of the saloons under the option law. Now for some reason the trade seems to have come back to these manufacturers. It may be due to the fact that great sections are becoming so dry that the thirsty natives have ceased going to other towns by teams and interurban to quench their thirst. It would seem, if this is the case, that the argument that the loss of saloons from a town ruins the cigar business is not strictly true in all cases, although there is no question but that it does much harm for the time, especially if there is a wet town within hailing distance. These 'buckeyes' ought to be given more attention in the tobacco trade journals. They are thriving little factories many of them, which buy a good grade of stock, and turn out some five-cent cigars which are hard to beat."

Mr. Taussig recently returned from a road trip to local points.

Benjamin Rothschild, of Rothschild, Sons & Company, has returned from a trip to Havana, Cuba, where he bought in the tobacco market. Mr. Rothschild returned with some fine samples. He said that the situation in Havana was poor, owing to the war cutting off a part of the market.

A Display of One of the Big Nickel Sellers

Brands come and go, but the "Bold" cigar continues to move forward with amazing speed. The slogan, "Above All," seems to impress the smokers, for the consumers of "Bold" are on the increase.

Pittsburgh has fallen in line with St. Louis, Mo., and Kokomo, Ind., where the demand for "Bold" cigars exceeds the supply.

This photograph is one made from a window display in the Afco Cigar Store in Pittsburgh, and it brought the smokers into the store in quick order.

Tampa

Manufacturers Optimistic As Orders Arrive—Gunst Cigarmakers Are World's Series Fans—E. J. Stachelberg Visiting Chicago

TAMPA, October 10.

SATISFACTION is being expressed on all sides by the various cigar manufacturers relative to the prospects for fall and winter business. It was thought at first that the present European situation would prove somewhat disastrous to the trade, but the manner in which orders and repeats are being received, leave little room for worry. Jobbers and distributors who showed a tendency to go light on their orders, are again coming up to the standard. In order that there may be no chance of being caught unawares, the local manufacturers are seeing to it that their end is kept in thoroughly good shape. While the shipments of 1914 have not equaled those of 1913, still there is much room for optimism in that the internal revenue receipts for 1914 for the third quarter ending with September, totaled $225,078.55, as against $215,219.21 in the year preceding.

Sprinkler installations seem to be the order of the day. The Morgan Cigar Company is now installing an extensive sprinkling plant in their factory at West Tampa. Good business is reported at the factory.

"I'll have to put a wire in of my own, direct from the World's Series games, if I am going to work full force during the series," said Larry Gunst, of M. A. Gunst & Company. "Many of my men go down to the office of the Tampa Times to watch their electric score-board, which means a decrease in the manufacture of the Gunst products. Mr. Gunst stated that among his cigarmakers a great many of them were very enthusiastic baseball fans.

Though the new four-story addition (30 by 50 feet) to the factory of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, will be completed shortly; it is now stated that in all probability the same will not be occupied until about the beginning of the new year. Business at this factory is picking up, orders for the well-known "Tademas" during the past week or so having shown a very satisfactory increase. While business at this house is not as good as that done during the same period in 1913, the decided increase, as above stated, is regarded as encouraging.

War has not affected the business on the "José Vila" brand, manufactured by Berriman Brothers, according to Manuel Sanchez. Business is still increasing at the factory, and orders are as good as for the same period of last year.

José Escalante & Company, manufacturers of the noted "Corina," have been taking on additional hands lately, and state that their output now reaches a trifle more than 50,000 cigars daily.

E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez y Haya factory, had as his guest recently, R. A. Wright, a salesman, of Birmingham, Ala. Mr. Wright is well known to the Southern trade. Mr. Stachelberg left last week for a few days' visit to Chicago, and also planned to visit Minneapolis.

The Liborio Cigar Company, manufacturers of the popular "Liborio, Cuba's Uncle Sam," will shortly launch a new five-cent cigar, to be known as the "Dime for a Nickel."

Celestino Vega, of the firm of that name, left recently for Havana, where he plans to go over the ground with the planters in order to ascertain what is to be done relative to a new tobacco crop.

Jerome Regensburg has returned again to the factory and reports first-class business, there being an especial demand on the factory's well-known "American." He states that "everything is going nicely and we are well satisfied with the number of handsome orders received recently."

Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, who make the splendid "Henry the Fourth," state that they are much pleased with the incoming orders on this brand. They say that they are now prepared to take care of those dealers who are desirous of placing their orders for holiday packings. PERFECTO.

Detroit

Mazer Cigar Company to Announce Auto Winner at Banquet—Give Credit to Philadelphia for Good Cigars —Sanchez y Haya Representative Shoots Ducks for Friends

DETROIT, MICH., October 10.

"Keeping constantly at it applies to the retail cigar industry as well as any other line of trade, in referring to the reasons for success."

THE education of clerks in the retail cigar business is something that is well worth the attention of cigar manufacturers, jobbers and dealers, particularly in these days where the exclusive cigar store is becoming more and more evident. The day of the loud-mouthed, noisy and boisterous cigar clerk is past; the clerk who makes good today must have these qualifications: First, he must know the business, the different brands and all about them; he must have confidence in his employer, he must be honest and must know when to keep his mouth shut. It is a bad policy of many a clerk to "talk too much." The result is that when he gets conversing with some customer who may be buying a five-cent cigar, the man who wants to buy a box or, say, three-for-a-quarter, has to stand by until the clerk and his nickel customer get through chinning about the world's series, or the weather. This is a condition which arises every day in many of the stores. More than once I have seen men walk away from a cigar stand because of some silly conversation being carried on with the clerk while he was kept waiting. Clerks must talk to their customers, and a clerk who knows how to talk is a valuable asset. But to know "when to quit" is probably the biggest asset of all. This is just one of the many evils of the retail cigar business that with proper attention and education on the part of the proprietors can be eliminated. It cannot be said to be serious, yet every evil that we can wipe out puts the industry on a higher plane.

The Motor Truck Manufacturers, consisting of dealers, makers, owners and accessory manufacturers, convened in Detroit, October 7-10, and held a banquet at the Hotel Cadillac, at which "Melachrino" cigarettes were used.

The Detroit Convention Bureau has booked several conventions as far ahead as 1920, which shows that some associations are so anxious to meet in Detroit that they are not taking any chances.

Ed Jandorf, of Keiser & Boasberg, of Buffalo, leaf tobacco dealers, visited here on October 9th. Among the cigar men were Bill Higgins, of Park & Tilford; A. J. McBlair, of Raymond Ray; T. D. Becker, of Lozer Anguillez; Frank Rowland, of Lopez Hermanez; I. A. Mitchell, of T. H. Hart & Company, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Taylor, United States representative of the Romeo & Juliet factory, accompanied by Fernando Palicio Arguilles, son of the owner of the company manufacturing this brand. Mr. Arguilles was making his first trip with Mr. Taylor for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the dealers and to study the American methods of business. Mr. Arguilles was very well impressed with the progressive spirit of the Americans and the splendid type of men who are engaged in the retail cigar business.

Frank Smith, who for some time has been manager of the Hammond Building stand for the LaFond Company, has tendered his resignation to become effective the fifteenth of October. Frank is to go on the road selling cloth labels for ready-to-wear garments, etc. He was at one time manager of the cigar stand at the Hotel Pontchartrain, which he gave up to engage in business for himself.

The Standard Drug Store will move from 14 Gratiot Avenue, Detroit, to larger quarters at 155 and 157 Woodward Avenue, before November 1st. The name will be changed to Cunningham Drug Store. The new location is much better than the present one. It is right on the main thoroughfare of the city and is where the crowds are the thickest.

Among those who participated in the trade tour of the Association of Commerce in Grand Rapids, Mich., on October 9th, going as far north as Saginaw, were John Dietrich, of the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, and Peter C. Payette, of the Woodhouse Company. The purpose of the tour was to stimulate better trade relations between the merchants en route and the jobbers and manufacturers of Grand Rapids.

The Christy brothers, Peter and Steve, have recently opened a high-class billiard parlor on the second floor of the building at Woodward and Elizabeth Streets, where a cigar department is being operated in connection with it.

Retailers in Ann Arbor, Mich., report business to be increasing. This is due to the fact that the University of Michigan has opened for the coming year, with an enrollment of over 6000 students, a larger number than last year. Ordinarily the population of Ann Arbor is about 17,000, and when this population is increased nearly 40 per cent., it will readily be seen that business in general improves. The retail cigar stores for this month are featuring a full line of pipes and cigarettes, being the favorite smoking products of the students.

Note the following figures showing the results of the cigar manufacturing industry in Detroit for the month of September: Cigars made, 26,890,123; taxes paid, $80,670.37; tobacco, 2,743,280 pounds; taxes paid, $219,462.40.

To compare these figures with those of 1913: Cigars made, 27,278,983; taxes paid, $81,836.95; tobacco, 2,361,560 pounds; taxes paid, $188,924.81.

We fell off only a trifle during September with the same month last year, which is practically nothing when present conditions are considered. Most lines of manufacture have fallen off from 5 to 25 per cent., yet it may be said that the cigar manufacturers have at least been holding their own.

October 31st is the date set for the smoker at the new factory of the Mazer Cigar Company, at which time the winner of the $875 automobile will be announced.

T. H. Perry Company, 502 Scherer Building, who recently engaged in the jobbing trade, are doing a nice business.

The Soper Segar Company feels very fortunate in having secured the services of Frank Hardoin, who was for more than a year connected with the E. M. Harris cigar store.

Harry Bland, of the Sig. Mayer Company, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor. It might be said in this connection that Philadelphia cigars are very good sellers in Detroit. This includes not only those of the Sig. Mayer Company, but a number of other companies as well. While Detroiters are inclined to josh Philadelphia for their slow(?) methods, we must give them credit for making good cigars as well as their excellent business methods. Philadelphia cigar salesmen do not have (at least they do not show) any of the cheap methods used by a great many cigar salesmen, and above all, their word or promise is as "good as gold." Philadelphians have a habit of being sincere in what they say, and when a salesman tells us that his cigar is one of the best on the market for ten cents or five cents, as the case may be, the dealer need have no hesitancy in placing the utmost belief in that statement.

Tom Howard, Flint representative for the Harry W. Watson Company, has recovered from several months' illness.

Trade Jottings

S. G. Russell Company, Seattle, Wash., feature the brands of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa, Fla.

"Charles Denby" (H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.) is enjoying a good deal of popularity in Rochester, N. Y.

"Apex Stubs" and "John Ruskins" have been recently introduced to Tacoma trade by Sam Lavroff. Good business on the brands is reported.

Morris Lester (Antonio Roig & Langsdorf) recently spent a short time in Kansas City, Mo., in the interests of the company's popular "Girard."

Steber & Son, in Reading, report that their leader, "Steber," continues to show progress. In connection with this brand the firm have had some very attractive lithographic matter prepared for their dealers.

Good business is reported from Kansas City and surrounding territory by W. A. Andrews, a well-known salesman, who is making his maiden trip on the popular "Charles Denby" in the interests of H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.

"First Consul" Havana cigars are represented in the Northwest by Thomas Q. Atkins, who is well liked by the jobbers and retailers in his territory, upon whom he called recently, in the interests of his firm, P. Pohalski & Company. Mr. Atkins reports nice business.

Fine orders for holiday trade are being booked by Bernard Lett, of B. Lett & Company, Boston, Mass., on Sanchez y Haya's "Hildanas." B. Lett & Company are the agents in New England territory for the Sanchez y Haya brands.

D. F. Fleck is busier than ever in his new factory at Seventh and Cherry Streets, Reading. The "Courtello" brand continues to win on merit and bring in repeat business. Mr. Fleck has recently returned from the West, where he landed some nice orders.

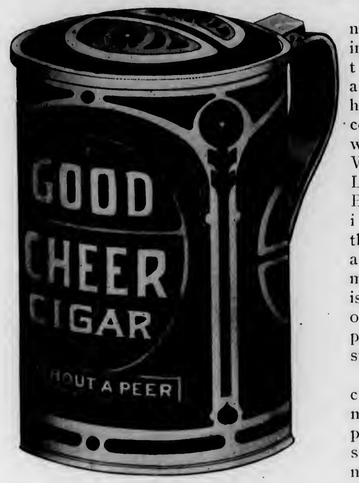
Straus Brothers & Company, Cincinnati, O., local distributors for the well-known "Webster" (Y. Pendas & Alvarez), have sent to the Gutzeit Company, cigar jobbers, Lexington, Ky., a cabinet containing fixty-six different sizes of the "Webster" brand. The Gutzeit Company plan a big display of the brand during the "Trots" at Lexington, when visitors from all sections of the country will be entertained.

Burdsall & Adams Make "Cigar Day" Display

The retail store of Burdsall & Adams, the well-known manufacturers of the "Blanduro" cigar, of Media, had a fine window display on Cigar Day, and gave away souvenir cutters to their many patrons.

Business on the firm's brands shows an increase and they have recently introduced their cigar in several new territories. At the present time they are sending out with shipments on their "Blanduro" brand some very neat match box holders advertising the cigar.

New Tin Stein Cigar Package



One of the newest things in the way of tin cigar packages is the handsomely decorated stein which the Wiedmann-St. Louis Cigar Box Company is offering to the trade, and an advertisement of which is to be found on another page in this issue.

With the increasing demand for tin packages, the stein shape is new and attractive and certainly one that will move goods from the retailers' shelves. This package is useful as well as decorative and the consumer will no doubt buy cigars in this container on sight.

As a Christmas packing for cheaper grades of nickel cigars, this tin stein ought to be a leader. The holiday buyer is always looking for the new and novel things, and such a cigar packing is sure to win attention.

This stein, however, is not particularly designed for holiday goods and it can be used effectually at any time of the year. There are a number of manufacturers who already anticipate using it for brands made to sell in certain sections.

Interested parties should lose no time in getting in touch with the manufacturers, who will promptly furnish prices, etc.

A sample of this tin cigar stein can be seen at the office of THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Pittsburgh Jobber Gets "Rocky Ford" Cigar

The smokers of Pittsburgh and vicinity will now have the pleasure of being able to enjoy a real good smoke for only five cents. The Union-American Cigar Company, who manufacture the celebrated "Rocky Ford" five-cent cigar, at their Newark, N. J., factories, have just made arrangements with the Zeugschmidt Cigar Company for the distribution of this cigar in Pittsburgh. The "Rocky Ford" cigar is well known from coast to coast as a strictly quality cigar, and the Zeugschmidt Cigar Company should be congratulated to be able to launch the brand.

This firm will also handle the "Pittsburgh Famous" stogie and "Improved Manila Sticks," both of which are made by the Union-American Cigar Company.

"Por Larranaga" Head in Chile

Don Eustaquio Alonso, head of the "Por Larranaga" factories, has recently been visiting Chile in the interests of his brands. It is said that he is adding considerably to the outlets for the "Por Larranaga" cigar in that country.

In the per capita consumption of tobacco, it is interesting to learn that Holland leads the world, with Belgium second and the United States third.

W. L. Hazell Heads Richmond Tobacco Trade

Will L. Hazell, for ten years prominent in the local trade, was elected president of the Richmond Tobacco Board of Trade at the annual meeting. Other officers were named as follows: Nat Frazier, vice-president, and Edward Winfree, secretary-treasurer. Board of Governors—W. L. Hazell, Nat Frazier, S. W. Tompkins, J. L. Wingo, Julius A. Hobson, W. W. Morton, T. M. Carrington, R. T. Arrington and L. C. Strause.

"I am glad to be able to report," Mr. Taylor said, "that our loose sales show a substantial increase over the sales of the previous year. From September 1, 1912, to September 1, 1913, 11,317,348 pounds were sold at an average of $8.71. From September 1, 1913, to September 1, 1914, 13,899,362 pounds were sold at an average of $7.54."

Continuing, Mr. Taylor said: "The transportation companies entering Richmond report that for the year, September 1, 1913, to September 1, 1914, they brought into Richmond and delivered to manufacturers and dealers 152,207,000 pounds of leaf tobacco; adding to this our loose sales of 13,899,362 pounds and we have a total of 166,106,362 pounds. Allowing a deduction of 6,000,000 pounds, which is a conservative estimate of what may have been brought in by rail for the loose sales, and we have a total of 160,106,362 pounds, either manufactured or rehandled in Richmond—this is an increase of over 9,000,000 pounds over the previous year, and I think it safe to say that this showing is not equaled by any other tobacco market in the United States, and probably establishes a record for Richmond.

"The dark crop of Virginia will be much smaller this year than usual; a large proportion of this is usually taken by Continental Europe, and the war now raging there will materially interfere with the marketing of it, probably more than with any other type of tobacco grown in our section, but this will present an opportunity for the much-maligned middleman to demonstrate his usefulness."

George B. Hutchins, who recently retired as president of the "Polar Bear" Tobacco Company, will probably engage in manufacturing tobacco on his own account in Cincinnati, according to the latest reports.

A couple called at the Marriage License Office the other day and applied for a marriage certificate; the man gave his name as "Hassan" and the girl "Fatima Murad."

Ed Schauroth, 15 State Street, distributor for "Little Penn" cigars, says he is enjoying an excellent business.

Dean Roberson, clerk at the Pontchartrain Hotel stand, has returned from a week's vacation spent at Long Lake.

George Meigs, Michigan representative for Sanchez y Haya, was in town the other day with a load of ducks which he shot at the St. Clair Flats, where he has a summer home. Mr. Meigs took care of many of his friends in Detroit, but those who were disappointed this time will be taken care of later. George says he will see to it that his gun shoots enough ducks so that all of his friends at one time or another during the fall season have a duck dinner with his compliments.

An Innovation in Cigar Making

duced in cost and that there is a further saving in the tobacco which, in the ordinary process of manufacture, is cut from the ends and goes into scrap.

"In addition, only one box, one set of labels and one band is used when cigars are made in this way, where heretofore two were necessary. We have figured all these savings in fixing our selling prices on the 'Reynaldo' Duets and Economics, and, in addition, a saving of one-half the cost of the revenue tax. Our contention is, that each box of twenty-five of these cigars should pay tax for only twenty-five cigars. The Revenue Office in Washington is going to make us pay a tax for fifty cigars until the matter has been passed upon by the courts. This will soon be done and we are confident of winning our point.

"We feel we have an idea of immense value and are proceeding to patent it in every country where it could possibly be used, employing the best firm of patent lawyers we could find."

May Get Difference in Price of Bonded Stamps

TAMPA, October 10.

A recent report from Washington, D. C., states that the Treasury Department is going to reduce the price of bonded cigar stamps 75 per cent. or more, and that possibly there may be a refund made of the difference between the price to be charged and that of $10 per thousand, originally demanded.

The above, it is stated, is due to a desire on the part of the Treasury Department to charge for the bonded stamps simply the cost entailed in their manufacture by the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

No decision has as yet been made relative to the kind of stamps or the arrangement to be made in the stamping of the bonded cigars, but it is thought that when the decision has been reached, it will not affect the change in the lettering, except that there may be a possibility of the stamps including a type of cigar not covered by the Spanish hand-made goods.

PERFECTO.

"Clear Title," Frank & Company's New Brand

That "Rotten," the peculiarly named brand of D. M. Frank & Company, 214 East Fifty-second Street, New York City, has a mighty following, one will not question, but it will have to look closely to its laurels if it is not to be left behind in the race by the newest product of this company, "Clear Title." This cigar has taken on with a hold, large bunches of orders coming in daily. It is said to be one of the quickest hits ever introduced into New York City by a cigar manufacturer.

"Savaronas," manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, were recently featured in an attractive window display, by Battersby & Smith, the well-known First Avenue retailers, Seattle, Wash.

"Girards" Have Call in Oregon

A report received from W. W. Cowan (Antonio Roig & Langsdorf), Portland, Ore., where he is doing missionary work in the interests of the noted "Girard," states that nice business is being done on the brand. Mr. Cowan is devoting much of his attention to the pushing of the Brokers' size, a ten-cent shape of the brand, this size being new in this district. Lang, Jones & Company are distributors in Portland territory for the "Girard."

Proprietor of Continental Cigar Company Fined

Owing to the illness of his wife, B. J. Hollingsworth, proprietor of the Continental Cigar Company, of Wichita, Kansas, was fined only $250 and costs when he pleaded guilty to operating a scheme to defraud by use of the mails. Judge Pollock, who heard the case, told Hollingsworth that he could tell his wife that he got off lightly on account of her condition.

Hollingsworth through the newspapers advertised for cigar salesmen and charged them a deposit of $10 for sample cases containing cigars. The facts of the case were presented in THE TOBACCO WORLD several months ago.

Hollingsworth's attorney stated to the court that his client did not know his acts were in violation of the law and that he was merely guilty of a technical violation. Judge Pollack, nevertheless, pronounced a fine of $250 and costs and showed a disposition to make the penalty heavier, had not the defendant's wife been ill and in need of his financial assistance.

Reduce Price of Bonded Cigar Stamps

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Peters has decided to reduce the price at which bonded cigar stamps shall be sold. Notice was given today that the stamps shall be sold for $1 per thousand and that all bonded cigar manufacturers who have bought stamps at the old price shall be refunded the difference. This notice was made in a letter to the collector at Jacksonville, Fla.

Of 7,000,000,000 cigarettes made annually in Germany, 52 per cent. are produced in Dresden. Dresden is also the greatest market in the world for Turkish raw tobacco.

United Stores Again Visited By Hold-Up Men

When John McCormack, clerk in a United Cigar Store at 711 Grand Street, Williamsburg, turned around to make change for a customer the other day, he found himself seized and a healthy revolver looking him in the face, as an inducement to him not to make an outcry. Two men then bound him hand and foot and left him for some Good Samaritan to set free. When a newsboy discovered McCormack a few minutes later and set him free, he found the cash register had netted the thieves $97.50.

A day or so after Mr. McCormack's experience, Ross McGraw, a clerk in a United Cigar Store at 789 Second Avenue, was waiting on a customer when two other men came in and poked a revolver in his face. The shooting iron effectually kept Mr. McGraw's voice inaudible and he was pushed into a back room where he was tied fast. The cash register netted only $25, but an open safe beneath the counter which the hold-up men overlooked contained $75.

"United" to Extend Chain in the West

R. L. Ramsdell, vice-president of the United Cigar Stores Company, has recently visited Chicago for the purpose of establishing a chain of agencies under a plan similar to the one recently put in effect in the East. The company contracts with dealers already established, or others, to establish them as agents of the "United."

Cambyses Directors Elect Officers

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Cambyses Company, well-known cigarette manufacturers, the following officers were elected: I. W. Pollard, of Boston, president; George E. Bullard, of Boston, vice-president and manager.

Los Angeles

National Cigar Day Banquet Great Occasion—Mahin Bill Against Smoking Filed—More Than Score Contests for Lovera Prizes

LOS ANGELES, CAL., October 9.

MONDAY evening, October 12, 1914, in the extensive banquet room of the Westminster Hotel, the Tobacco Association of Southern California will tender a banquet to persons interested in the welfare of the cigar trade in general. The entire affair is to be given in honor of National Cigar Day. The Banquet Committee already chosen for this work consists of Ed G. Hookstratton, chairman; I. Weinberger, Louis Gold, H. D. McLean, M. Burke and A. L. Finkenstein. They have already accomplished much towards making this a noteworthy occasion and have engaged a number of gentlemen of renown to deliver short addresses on any subject they have a mind to speak on. Among the speakers to address those in attendance there are the following:

Mr. Carter, Revenue man in this territory, will talk on "Revenue, as Regards the Cigar and Tobacco Trade." Rev. D. McCormack, of the Episcopal Church of this city, will speak on "The Moral Standard as Applied to Cigar Smoking." Mr. E. E. Klauber, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, this city, will deliver an address on the "Wholesale Cigar Business in the Southland Today." Mr. I. Klingenstein, of the Klingenstein Company, of this city, will open the banquet with a speech introducing Mr. Anthony Schwamm as toastmaster for the evening. Mayor H. H. Rose, W. W. Mines, president of the Realty Board of this city, and Mr. Louis Cole, representing the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Los Angeles, will also feature with addresses on well-chosen subjects.

A voluminous petition signed by John C. Mahin urging legislation against smoking in the city of Los Angeles, was considered by the Public Safety Committee of the City Council yesterday. Promiscuous throwing away of lighted cigar stubs, cigarettes or matches should be prohibited, in Mahin's opinion. Many fires are caused by such carelessness, he asserts.

Mahin also attempts to show how much time is lost by the employee who smokes, the inconvenience caused others and the general evils resulting from smoking in public buildings and in public places.

During the consideration of the matter, both Chairman Snowden and Councilman Bryant, of the committee, were smoking. Taking a long puff on a big fat cigar, Bryant remarked that the petition had better be filed.

"So ordered," declared Chairman Snowden. This matter will be given serious consideration in the near future. (?)

The Klingenstein Company are very much pleased by the way Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is taking hold in their territory. They are placing large quantities of fibre signs over a large amount of their territory.

Yocum Brothers' "Y-B" and "Spana-Cuba" are being extensively advertised at this time.

C. W. McCormick, representing the Y. Pendas & Alvarez Company, manufacturers of the "Websters," is here for a few days.

Louis Erdt has been calling on the local trade, working on "Milo" and "Melachrino" cigarettes, and met with good results.

The "Banderos" cigar window display contest, instituted by the José Lovera Company, has had its effect on the retailer of this city, and many have professed a willingness to enter into this contest for the prizes offered. The following have signified their intention of entering into this contest and have already built up some very attractive window displays of "Lovera Banderos." They are as follows:

Van Atta Cigar Co., 614 S. Spring St.; Klein's Pharmacy, 1890 W. Washington St.; Fred Van Dam, 533 W. Washington St.; A. A. Best & Russell Send Orders for Cotton

The Best & Russell Cigar Company, of Memphis, Tenn., have not only been urging its friends to help the "buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement," but have participated in it considerably itself.

An example of their spirit is shown by a recent article in the Houston (Texas) Post, stating that they (The Post) had received a check for $250 from Memphis, Tenn., from Best & Russell, requesting them to buy five bales of cotton. This the Post did, buying from those farmers that were in the most urgent need of help.

Best & Russell expect to buy about fifty bales in Southern territory to assist in relieving the financial situation among the distressed growers of cotton.

San Francisco

Business Only Fair—"Lovera Banderos" Moving Fast—"Webster" Repeat Orders Continue

SAN FRANCISCO, October 6.

SAN FRANCISCO cigar dealers are not particularly pleased with being asked to help pay for the European war losses; but they are bearing the burden with considerable fortitude, having expected all along that they would get the usual rap when it came to paying special taxes. Aside from a little grumbling about the increased taxes, the trade is in pretty good humor. While business is not as yet breaking any high records, it is assuming pretty fair proportions, and it now looks as though the last quarter of the year would be more nearly normal than that portion that preceded it. The weather, both city and country, has been favorable, and retail trade is fairly large everywhere. In the city, the wholesalers are still troubled with very small orders; but in some country districts, where crop money is becoming plentiful, they are buying more largely. The high prices realized for grain, meat, fruit, etc., as a result of the war, are helping out some sections very much.

No big advertising campaigns have been launched recently, though a few special deals have met with good success. The special newspaper advertising of Ehrman Brothers & Company in the interest of their "Optimo," "Centropolis" and other lines is bringing in good returns.

Major Burrows, factory representative of the Lovera Company, is still doubly busy—first, in booking and sending in orders for the Lovera Company's "Bandero" line of five-cent Havana cigars; and, second, in trying to get out the goods fast enough to keep his customers reasonably satisfied. Wellman, Peck & Company, the San Francisco distributors, are more than pleased with the "Bandero" orders that are coming in.

Work will be started in a few days on the Judell Smoke Shop, of H. L. Judell & Company, at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Mr. Judell has already got a lot of valuable advertising out of this concession. Emil Judell, of this house, has abandoned his regular Oregon territory for the moment, and is now taking a run through the Nevada mining region. He is sending in some good orders for "Websters," "Elisardos," "Watts" and "Flor de Moss." Nevada is the only state on the Pacific Coast that is not afflicted by a wet and dry campaign this year. Washington, Oregon, California and Arizona will all vote on state-wide prohibition next month and, by disturbing the future of thousands of saloonkeepers who are also cigar dealers, this has made cigar credits a little uncertain in a big extent of territory.

Headed by William I. Jacobson, well known in the cigar business of the United States by reason of his long connection with Eugene Vallence, of Chicago, the Home Industry Cigar Company has been organized at Honolulu, T. H., to engage in the manufacture and sale of cigars. The company will manufacture high-grade Havana cigars and will also make a specialty of cigars made from Hawaiian tobacco, better known as Kona tobacco. The company will grow at least a portion of its own tobacco. The company will have its headquarters on King Street, Honolulu. Beside Mr. Jacobson, the incorporators include: S. L. Liebman, secretary; M. K. Cook, vice-president; Joseph Kubey, treasurer, and T. R. Treadway, auditor.

The Bercovich Company, which recently gave up the wholesale cigar business for the purpose of going more heavily into the retail business, has now made an effective start by securing one of the highest priced stands for its size in the entire West. The stand is 8 x 8 feet, and is located at the foot of Market Street on the north side—a spot that is probably passed by more people on the average than any other point in San Francisco. The place rents for nearly $100 per square foot per year. As this is the first cigar store passed in the morning and the last passed at night by the crowds of commuters coming and going from the suburban cities on the east side of San Francisco Bay, it is thought that it will have an immense advertising advantage, aside from the large business that will be done.

A. Greenwald, a cigar and tobacco dealer of Sacramento, has been visiting in San Francisco this week.

One of the fine stands in the show section of the city, was opened this week by the Cort Cigar Company, on Ellis Street near Market. This company was recently formed to buy out the business of Sol Levy, who formerly operated in this location. The store has been remodeled and decorated at considerable expense.

G. R. Webb, factory representative for the San Martin & Leon cigars, with headquarters in this city, is now making a tour of Oregon and Washington as far as the Canadian line. He is expected to return in a few days.

F. M. Emerson has bought out the cigar and tobacco business of Crocker & Walkerdine in this city.

J. L. Chivelle, a cigar dealer of Vallejo, Cal., died at his home in that city a few days ago.

Edward Wolf, head of the Edward Wolf Company, wholesale cigar dealers and importers, of Front and California Streets, San Francisco, whose ankle was broken several weeks ago, is now so far recovered that he expects to be back at the office within a few days. Business at the store is going on well, with a good demand for the "Tadema" and "H. Anton Bock & Company" Havana lines, and the "La Prueba" and "La Insular" Manila lines.

A report from the Northwest is that the Westminster Cigar & Tobacco Company, of New Westminster, B. C., is now winding up its business and will discontinue.

C. W. McCormich, Western representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is visiting the trade in the Sacramento Valley this week. He recently returned from Los Angeles and other Southern California points, where he found business greatly improved over a few months ago. H. L. Judell & Company, of San Francisco, distributors of the "Webster" in Northern and Central California, report a large number of repeat orders coming in from accounts recently placed.

Reports from Fresno, Cal., regarding the Turkish tobacco crop in that section, are that the total crop this year reaches about 70,000 pounds.

Find Tobacco in Freight Yard

A man on his way to work through the Wabash Freight Yards in Council Bluffs, Ia., came across two and a half cartons of tobacco which seemed to be without an owner. The police were notified and investigation revealed that they were billed by Liggett & Myers to the McCord-Brady Company in Omaha. Just why they were wandering around in the freight yard in Council Bluffs is still without explanation. Car robbers are thought to have been responsible.

Seidenberg Factory in Millville Closed

The Seidenberg cigar factory, which has been operating in the Dix Building in Millville, N. J., for some time, is to be closed, according to reports from that city. It is understood that although the factory was equipped for about 150 hands, 60 was about all they could obtain. The machinery will be moved to another location where help is more plentiful.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, October 8.

THERE has been a little more life in our market during the past fortnight, which, however, was not due to a larger influx of buyers from the North, but the bulk of the transactions consisted of the low grades of Vuelta Abajo (colas) and Remedios, which were taken by the buyers of the Spanish Regie and the local cigarette manufacturers. One of our important export houses has also operated to the extent of 3500 bales of Remedios, mostly second capaduras, for account of its American customers. While the prices were not high, it has, nevertheless, helped some of our leaf dealers to exchange part of their stocks for cash, and if, perhaps, they suffered some capital loss, they hope at least to recoup themselves later on in the season. The probabilities are certainly greatly in favor of seeing higher figures during the coming year, as there is no longer any doubt but that the 1915 crop will be a very small one. There is a great exodus of poor farmers from the Vuelta Abajo to the sugar cane growing eastern provinces of the island, where, thanks to the more favorable prospect of this staple article, there will be a scarcity of laborers, and good wages will be paid for cutting the cane and all the other work, which may be necessary in and around the sugar mills. Thus the poor farmers can at least make their living, while if they remained in the Vuelta Abajo they might starve without money, or credit at the grocers, particularly as the vegetable crop, owing to the drought, has been a failure also.

The buying of a bale of cotton scheme may be a perfect success in disposing of the surplus of this year's crop in the United States, but unfortunately we could not imitate this with the surplus of our tobacco crop, as the two articles are entirely different. There are too many grades with vast price differences, and what is worst, tobacco is perishable while cotton is not. A large part of the 1914 growth is also too flimsy in character and may lose all its strength, when the northers strike our island in December. We heard the other day, that one-half of the Partido crop is still in bundles in the hands of the vegueros, and if the same should not be packed before the dry season commences, they will be a total loss, or good only for manure. Under such conditions, how is it possible that the farmers keep up courage to raise another crop? In the Santa Clara Province a good many acres are now devoted to the raising of sugar cane, which formerly were planted to tobacco. The vegueros who sold their crops in this province are naturally in better condition than their brethren in the Vuelta Abajo, and possibly some of them might try to raise a crop, but those that have not sold yet, will have no incentive to do so and may prefer to hire themselves out and make good wages instead.

Sales during the fortnight totaled 14,089 bales, which consisted of: Vuelta Abajo, 6628; Partido, 2070, and Remedios, 5391 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6086; exporters to Europe, 3143; shippers to Buenos Aires, 594, and our local manufacturers of cigarettes, 4266 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from September 21 to October 3, 1914, amounted to 11,787 bales, which were distributed to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 5116; to Spain, 6003; to Amsterdam, 221; to London, England, 6, and to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 441 bales.

Cigars.

We submit the following official customhouse returns of the exports of cigars from the port of Havana, during the month of September of the years 1913 and 1914, as follows.

From September 1 to September 30, 1913,	13,761,421	cigars
From September 1 to September 30, 1914,	6,099,946	"
Decrease during September, 1914,	7,661,475	"

The Cuban Market

By countries, the following twelve countries show decreases in September, 1914:

Great Britain and Ireland	3,107,728	cigars
Germany	2,377,470	"
United States	1,177,727	"
Canada	267,078	"
Australia	206,965	"
Belgium	142,975	"
Argentine Republic	100,397	"
Chile	99,680	"
France	92,600	"
Egypt	86,125	"
Spanish Africa	82,775	"
Gibraltar	47,250	"
Total	7,788,770	"

Of increases of some importance there are only two countries, in the month of September, 1914, as compared with 1913:

Spain	72,560	cigars
Canary Islands	56,740	"
Total	129,300	"

The total figures for the first nine months of this and last year now stand thus:

From Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1913,	130,240,156	cigars
From Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1914,	98,318,034	"
Decrease during first 9 months of 1914,	31,922,122	"

Decreases.

Great Britain and Ireland	12,282,134	cigars
United States	8,046,065	"
Germany	4,692,854	"
Canada	2,911,000	"
Argentine Republic	2,046,831	"
Chile	1,379,128	"
France	1,133,217	"
Australia	560,583	"
Total	33,051,812	"

Increase.

Spain	2,447,286	"

The above figures are enough to make anybody pessimistic, but what is the use to complain all the time, it does not improve matters, therefore we have decided to become optimists again, and will grin and bear it, particularly as the United States are going to be wonderfully prosperous in the near future, through the operation of the new banking law, which, as we understand, is to become operative next month, and will give all the currency that the commercial community may require, through the reserve banks. When this happens we ought to get our share in the shape of tremendous orders from the United States, independent of the possibility of a new and more favorable reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States.

H. Upmann & Company are working with full forces, as long as the holiday orders last.

Romeo y Julieta are working on full time during the six days of the week.

Partagas is exceedingly busy, shipping large quantities of cigars each week.

Sol, Castañeda, Punch, Belinda, Hoyo de Monterey, Por Larrañaga and Flor de José Otero are as busy as present circumstances will permit.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez had a splendid month, as they turned over 7500 bales of all kinds of leaf during the month of September, and which includes the bales purchased for account of the Spanish Regie, as well as their sales to other customers here.

José Lovera bought 1200 bales additionally besides his previous purchases.

The Cortez Cigar Company bought in all 2500 bales through Vivian M. Myers.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 350 bales of Remedios from their stocks of low grades.

Ben. Rothschild and Julius Fernbach purchased together 1055 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido vegas.

José Alvarez, the manager of the hotel "La Reguladors," in Amistad Street No. 124, has advised us that in future, or rather from the beginning of October 1st, he will be pleased to receive married couples as his welcome guests. This hotel formerly had made it a rule to allow only male guests to come to the hotel to live, but as this was a hardship on old-time customers, whenever they were accompanied by their wives, it was thought best to wipe out this restriction. We might say, that this hotel is a typical rendezvous for tobacco buyers, manufacturers as well as leaf dealers; it has been newly painted inside as well as outside, has some rooms with baths, an excellent chef, that cannot be beaten, and above all, the prices are reasonable for a first-class accommodation.

Mr. Leslie Pantin is always in the market, even if he should have no customers in town, as he never lacks orders from his numerous clients all over the United States.

Shippers of leaf tobacco above 200 bales, from the port of Havana during the last two weeks ending October 3, 1914, were:

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez	4,749	bales
Maximilian Stern	1,557	"
Mark A. Pollack	732	"
Virgilio Suarez	697	"
Ernst Ellinger & Company	533	"
Leslie Pantin	471	"
F. Rocha & Company	353	"
E. H. Gato Cigar Company	344	"
Rodriguez, Menendez & Company	327	"

Baggage to and from Cuba Now Examined in Key West—Moreda Building Accepted October 6th—Steamship Company Manager, Charles L. Myers, Dead

KEY WEST, FLA., October 10.

THERE has been no change in the trade situation here since last writing. While here and there a few cigarmakers have been seated, the large increases in forces which are usually made at about this time of year have not materialized as yet. A great many of the factories already have on file their holiday and Christmas orders, which will be marketed in ample time for the use of their trade. The holiday package of former years is conspicuous by its absence this year.

Among important happenings since last report, was the transfer of the examination of baggage of passengers to and from Cuba to this port. Chief Deputy Collector of Customs Max N. Oberdofer reached town on September 30th from Jacksonville headquarters, and on the evening of the same date Inspectors Albert F. Schultz and R. B. Pitts, who have been doing duty in the same capacity for several years past in the Cuban capital, arrived in town and the transfer was completed on October 1st.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade, held on the evening of the second instant, Frederick H. Mathews, secretary of the board, was appointed manager of the Key West Information Booth, to be opened at Jacksonville, Fla., on December 15th. This bureau will be kept open the entire winter and is for the purpose of advertising the city and to induce the traveling fraternity to come this way.

The most important trade event of the week was the arrival of C. J. Hyer, junior member of the firm of McGucken & Hyer, contractors and builders, of Tampa, Fla. Mr. Hyer came for the purpose of examining the work on the new building for Moreda & Company, which was completed last week by Contractor W. W. Ward. In company with L. B. Pride, architect of the same firm, who has been stationed here ever since the work of construction was begun, Mr. Hyer, after going over every detail of the structure, made his report to Manager Jaime Pendas, who accepted the building on October 6th. The edifice is of Spanish architecture, with open court in the center, 230 x 119 feet, constructed of solid concrete, steel reinforced, and will easily accommodate 500 cigarmakers with proportionate help in other departments. There is in connection with the main building a fireproof vault with a capacity for 100 or more bales of stock. No date has been set for the removal of the firm into their new quarters.

At the factory of George W. Nichols & Company, business is in excellent shape and they have a large filed demand for holiday and Christmas goods. Harry Nichols and Arturo Artolozago, who have been spending a few days visiting the leaf markets of Cuba and making purchases of leaf supplies, returned last week and Mr. Artolozago has taken up his duties as superintendent of the Solace factory, while Mr. Nichols has left for New York City headquarters.

Thomas H. Gato, secretary of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, left on Monday for Havana to attend the reunion of the Gato family, which event occurred on the sixth instant, on the birthday anniversary of Eduardo H. Gato, Sr., president of the company and founder of the immense cigar business which bears his name. At the factory both main building and annex are in full swing and heavy shipments are going forward by the various routes.

Vice-president Vivian M. Myers, of the Cortez Cigar Company, arrived last week from Cuba, where he had been putting in six weeks in the selection and purchase of leaf for the use of his house. Mr. Myers left this week for Savannah, Ga., headquarters.

Advices received in this city on the third instant conveyed the sad news of the death at Knoxville, Tenn., of Charles L. Myers, general manager of the Peninsular & Occidental Steamship Company, plying between Florida ports, Havana, Cuba, and Nassau, N. P. Mr. Myers had been manager of the company for twenty-four years and was sixty years of age. In respect to his memory, on Saturday all the flags on buildings and steamers of the company were placed at half-mast.

Moses Bustillo, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, makers of the famous "Henry the Fourth" brand of clear Havana cigars, passed through town last week en route from Cuba to Tampa factory headquarters.

It is reported in this city that Walter J. Lightbourne, formerly of the Cortez Cigar Company, who has been residing at Albuquerque, New Mexico, for several years, has transferred his residence to Havana, Cuba. Mrs. Lightbourne and Mrs. James H. Fort, wife and sister of Mr. Lightbourne, arrived in the city last week from New Mexico. Mexico.

The half holiday on Wednesdays which was in force during the summer months came to an end on September 30th. It was highly appreciated by the employees of banks, government service and of stores, and will no doubt be in effect again next year.

Manufacturer Clement L. Knowles, who has been on an extended business trip to Western and Southern sections, got back this week, reporting a successful trip.

M. J. Bloom, of M. J. Bloom & Company, the leaf dealers, arrived in town this week from Fort Myers, Fla., and is calling on the local trade.

The Long Branch baseball team, composed of Cuban players who have been with the major league nines during the season, played a series of three games here on Sunday last. The three local teams which went up against them were the pick of the star players from the army, navy and cigarmakers. They defeated the local players in each game and our boys did not succeed in scoring a single run. The team left for Havana on Monday, where they will meet the best players of the Island Republic.

Val. M. Antuono, the Tampa cigar manufacturer, passed through town this week, being en route from Cuba to factory headquarters.

William Wilkinson, Southern salesman of Austin, Nichols & Company, the New York jobbers of cigars, spent a few days in the city this week in the interests of his house.

Antonio Nales, the maker of the "Principe del Progresso" brand of cigars, was made happy on the evening of the seventh by the arrival at his house of a son and heir.

On Monday, October 12th, will be observed Columbus Day, Red Cross Flag Day and National Cigar Day. Wolf's Smoke Shop is about the only local retail shop which will feature the occasion. They will present every purchaser of twenty-five cents worth of cigars with a handsome cigar cutter.

While large quantities of smoking materials are sold in this section, there are very few cigar stores located here, the bulk of the trade being done by bars, cafes, drug stores and grocers.

Our Cuban citizens will celebrate their Independence Day tonight at a meeting at San Carlos Hall. Addresses will be made by Cuban Consul A. D. Carrasco and other prominent citizens.

Interior of Gibbs Company Store, Pittsburgh

Among the brands on which this stand does a nice business are "Tuval," "F. Lozano" and "Joy." This store also enjoys a fine trade on their stogie lines.

The Gibbs Company report that business is satisfactory and that they are noticing a continual improvement in the trade.

Pittsburgh

Afco Store Takes on "Portuondo" Cigars—C. A. Gibbs & Company Have Display on "Tuval" Brand—Business Shows Some Falling Off

PITTSBURGH, PA., October 12.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh during the past two weeks has been very good. The Pittsburgh cigarists are not showing much interest in the National Cigar Day.

Siller-Narten-Barnes Company are still pushing "Muriel" cigars. They are placing this brand in almost all of the downtown cigar stands.

Bock-Stauffer Company report the sale of "El Roi-Tan" cigars increasing.

Al. Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, has been in town the past few days.

"Robert Burns" cigars are increasing in this city. J. H. Bissinger, of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, is looking after this brand.

"I am in town, mixing with the best people." "Phillip Morris" cigarettes.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand is featuring stogies in their window this week.

A. W. Thielman, of the Hotel Newal cigar stand, is featuring "Flor de S. G. Brown," made by S. G. Brown & Company, of New York.

The Afco Cigar Company have taken on the "Portuondo" cigars. They have a nice window display of same this week. This brand sells very good at this stand.

R. S. Sudgen, representing the Camp Importation Company, has just returned from a trip to New York. Mr. Sudgen covers the territory between Philadelphia and Ohio. He reports business very good.

Reymer Brothers have some very nice window displays this week. They are featuring humidors for the holidays, and also "Flor de Moss" cigars, made by S. R. Moss & Company, Lancaster.

C. A. Gibbs & Company have a very nice window display of "Tuval" cigars. This firm has the distribution for this popular brand.

The Court Cigar Company, who have just opened this stand, report business as satisfactory. They have a large variety of all the popular brands. This stand should be a good one, as it is located opposite the Court House.

An Arctic creation, the work of a master mind, is exemplified in a "Polar Bear" display in the Liberty Avenue window of the Afco Cigar Company, where "Polar Bear" has increased wonderfully in sales as a result. Comments are plentiful and the display will be carried through the National Cigar Week as a feature.

The following visitors were in town: Joseph Geishammer, representing F. Lozano & Son, Tampa. The Afco Cigar Company carry this line. M. M. Schoenwald, representing Calero & Company, New York; Charles Boswitz, representing Gonzalez & Sanchez Company, Jacksonville; W. A. Charles, representing G. S. Nichols Company, New York; S. R. Moss, Lancaster, Pa.; Robert E. Lane, Partagas, New York; P. H. Mayer, representing A. R. Cressman & Company, Philadelphia; Marcellino Perez, New York; Harry Goldberg, representing Eugene Vallens & Company, New York; Ben L. Heine, representing Louis Ash & Company, New York; M. Rosenfeld, representing Salvador Rodriguez Company, Tampa; Harry G. Marcy, representing the Penn Tobacco Company, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Charles J. Moye & Company, of this city, have added the "La Invencia" to their general line for Pittsburgh and surrounding sections. This cigar is put out in fifteen sizes by Baum Brothers, of Philadelphia, and is taking well with the smokers.

Liggett & Myers to Have Premium Depot in Wheeling

Final arrangements have been completed by the Little Pet Stogie Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., to carry a full line of premiums in stock and redeem all coupons given with cigarettes and tobacco. This arrangement was made for the convenience of thousands of customers of Liggett & Myers goods, who heretofore have had to send their coupons by mail to another city to have them redeemed.

J. P. Breitenbach Buys Courtney Stand

John P. Breitenbach has purchased the cigar store of the late James F. Courtney, of Madison, Wis., located at 110 East Main Street. The deal was closed recently and Mr. Breitenbach took possession at once. He will conduct a wholesale and retail business.

The Tobacco Industry in Dresden, Germany

Dresden firms complained of an unprofitable business in raw tobacco, although the supply in general was sufficient. There was, nevertheless, a lack of good grades. Brazil hardly had an ordinary harvest and, like Cuba, made decreased offers. Large amounts from Dutch India were for sale, but the quality of these tobaccos was not satisfactory. Kamerun was able for the first time to offer a good quality, and the local dealers expect that these German colonial tobaccos will be able in time to compete with those from other countries. The German harvest was large and brought good prices.

The smoker still pays more attention to the appearance, the light and uniform coloring, than to the inner quality. For this reason good and darker tobaccos are considerably neglected. Smaller cigar factories were able to buy less tobacco, which, on account of the heavy duties to be paid and the lack of necessary capital, made the situation difficult. The market in cheaper sorts was injured by the increased consumption of cigarettes, and the conditions of payment and credit became harder than formerly. The usual credit of six months was often doubled and trebled. The cigarette factories in Dresden, Meissen and Freiberg also complained of an unsuccessful year.

The use of cigars is decreasing in favor of cigarettes, especially among laborers, who use the cheaper sorts, which, as a result of the ad valorem duty, are becoming more expensive to manufacture. In better sorts, however, it is possible to control the market. Indian raw tobacco is imported at favorable prices. Brazilian sorts are more expensive.

Most Dresden cigarette factories had a satisfactory year and were able to increase their sales considerably. Some firms increased their plants and the number of workmen employed. The prices of raw tobacco rose as a result of the Balkan war. A decrease in the harvest of tobacco leaves and in the quality of the tobacco must now be reckoned with. As the tobacco-growing districts pass into other hands, it is likely that tobacco will not be as carefully grown and treated as previously. The sales increased on account of the increasing popularity of the cigarette.

Exportations of cigarettes also increased, with the exception of those to the northern countries. The export business was, however, far behind that which the size and importance of the German cigarette industry would lead one to expect. Despite the excellent market, the profits were not in all cases satisfactory. Many complained of the lowering of the prices on account of competition. Above all, the cigarette industry was injured by the uncertainty brought about by the struggle still taking place between the British-American Tobacco Company and the other factories that united against it. The lowering of prices and the enormous sums spent for advertising lessened the profits considerably. Wages as well as other expenses increased and payments for purchases were not made as promptly as during the previous year.

According to the statistics of the Saxon customhouse authorities, during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1913, the 205 cigarette factories of the Kingdom had a total output of 5,638,149,000 cigarettes, 1,538,178 pounds of cigarette tobacco, 656,422,000 cigarette tubes, and 174,758,000 cigarette papers.—Daily Consular Reports.

The operatives in New York cigar and tobacco factories are listed as 9995 males and 8751 females. 45.2 per cent. of the population in that great city were following occupations in which they earned money, according to the figures of 1910.

State Will Advance Deficit

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Board of Public Works has pledged the state to stand behind Chief Tobacco Inspector William Wilkinson in advancing the expenses of operating the state tobacco warehouse. The warehouse is carrying 7,000 hogsheads of tobacco, which, when withdrawn, will produce a revenue to the state of $14,000. Because of the war and lack of tobacco exports the growers are not withdrawing their stocks of leaf. This has caused a large deficit in the receipts, which already amounts to $2,000. Inspector Wilkinson proposed to the board that they continue the services of the warehouse employes, paying the expenses out of his own funds, he to be reimbursed out of the warehouse receipts at a later date. The board passed a resolution indorsing this plan and pledging the backing of the state government.

The Maryland tobacco growers are suffering great hardships as the result of inability to market their crops, eighty per cent. of which are consumed abroad.

Big Cigarette Shipment

The Japanese steamship "Panama Maru," which recently sailed from Tacoma for the Orient, carried a cargo of 30,100,000 cigarettes, valued at $17,610. They are packed in 602 cases and make up one of the largest shipments of the kind that ever went out of Tacoma. They are destined for Hong Kong.

Red Wing News and Cigar Store Open

The Red Wing News and Cigar Store, of Red Wing, Minn., has recently opened at 308 Bush Street. Louis S. Marle announces that he will carry a complete line of cigars and tobacco products.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Sargent Cigar Company Adjudged Bankrupt

The Sargent Cigar and Plantation Company, of No. 642 Water Street, Bridgeport, Conn., has been adjudged a bankrupt in the United States Court at Hartford. As Attorney E. K. Nicholson is both an officer and the attorney for the company, the case will not be adjudged by Referee in Bankruptcy J. W. Banks, but by Carlton S. Hoadley, of New Haven, as Mr. Banks is a law partner of Mr. Nicholson.

The cause of the bankruptcy is due to the war conditions in Europe. The firm has 50,000 acres of tobacco land in Cuba, and their last crop was a good one and gathered, but as Europe has withdrawn all its orders for both tobacco and cigars from Cuba, the Sargent Company suffered the same as the others. While the company has sold to Europe and have a large trade there, they have been unable to collect on their last shipments.

According to their schedules their total liabilities are $64,060.38, of which $27,200 is secured by notes and $36,007.38 is unsecured. The following are the secured creditors: Mary A. Stanton, of Bridgeport, $9500; W. H. R. Roots, $9500; Louis C. Loomis, $4200; Singer Manufacturing Company, $5500; Hawthorn Manufacturing Company, $500.

Among the creditors on the unsecured side are McMahon & Wren, $1200; Turco-American Pipe Company, $3700; E. K. Nicholson, $3174.22; First Bridgeport National Bank, $5175; Lincoln Trust Company of New York, $5385; International Fruit and Sugar Company, $6000. The creditors for advertising the firm are numerous.

The assets are $150, which does not include the land in Cuba, on which there are issued bonds to the amount of $55,000.

Stuffing Cigar Boxes in Kokomo, Ind.

Prosecutions have been threatened several cigar dealers in Kokomo, Ind., if they do not desist in putting cigars of inferior quality in the boxes of well-known brands. One manufacturer has gone over the grounds carefully and found numerous evidences of box-stuffing. He had warned those whom he caught that the next time he found such evidence in their stores he would let the law take its course.

Best Factory Building in Far East

The Germinal Cigar and Cigarette Factory, of Manila, P. I., will soon construct a new factory building alongside the present building. The new building will be of reinforced concrete and six stories high, and will cost $125,000. A new concrete and steel warehouse for the factory has just been completed, costing $25,000. When the new factory building shall have been completed it will be the best factory building in the Far East.

New Cigar Company for Syracuse

Papers of incorporation have been recently filed by the Retailers' Cigar and Tobacco Manufacturing Company, of Syracuse, which will shortly open a factory at West Adams and Oneida Streets, that city. Fifty hands will be employed at the start, but it is expected that this number will shortly be increased to one hundred.

The company is capitalized at $300,000. It is the purpose of the company to operate on a co-operative basis. Cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco will be manufactured. The company will also deal in leaf tobacco.

The plan is to sell stock in the company to retail cigar and tobacco dealers, these stockholders to become customers of the company. This plan has been tried by other cigar companies in other sections and has worked out fairly well.

F. M. Dunham, of Baldwinsville, long a well-known buyer and shipper of tobacco, will be president of the new concern. Patrick Donovan, vice-president; Irving Dutcher, secretary and general manager; Walter Tuller, treasurer. These officers are all of Syracuse. Together with G. S. Northrup, of Baldwinsville, these men constitute the board of directors.

New Cigar Factory for Johnstown, N. Y.

Grover Lyke has recently opened a cigar factory at 4 West Fulton Street, Johnstown, N. Y., where he expects to put out three new brands. "No. 72" and "Mike's Monogram" will be the five-cent leaders, while "Japs" will be the name under which a ten-cent cigar will be marketed. The manufacturer is well known in the city and his friends predict a prosperous career for his brands.

H. E. Sprenkle's cigar factory at Bair's Station was recently set on fire by sparks from a locomotive, but timely discovery prevented a serious blaze.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The long-continued drought has proven a serious matter for Lancaster County's new tobacco crop. It was supposed that after having escaped hail and frost it would be safe, but it is not so. It lacks moisture, the air being so dry that instead of curing, it is merely drying out, and much is already taking a yellowish tinge that will depreciate its value. If prevailing weather conditions continue much longer the value of what was looked upon as a $3,000,000 crop will fall greatly below those figures.

The tobacco cut early, mostly Havana seed, which started curing before the drought, has been much less affected than the crops cut later, the start making it reasonably certain that it will cure at least fairly well. The packers had been building high hopes on a fine filler crop from Lancaster County, and they feel much concerned over the outlook.

Filler goods are scarce, and as this county's crop promised to supply the demand, the local packers face losing a lot of business. While this year's acreage in this county is less by 2000 acres than it usually is, the crop was such an exceptionally large one that it was believed it would make up the loss by increased weight.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

Good weather has been a great help for the curing of tobacco during the past weeks, and the heavy dews at night have given the added touch to prepare the leaf for the case.

The late growers have been fortunate in escaping the frost which usually catches some of the late leaf. The warm dry weather has hastened the curing and for that reason has not brought out the best colors, but it is not believed that the quality has suffered to any extent.

So little of the crop has been sold to date that the farmers have been in no hurry to strip the tobacco, as in other years when there was ready money in sight. There are a few buyers riding around, but no contracts of any consequence have been made.

Sales of old leaf are reaching noticeable proportions. Sampling is proceeding slowly.

KENTUCKY

MADISON, KY.

Tobacco housing has been practically finished in Hopkins County and the farmers all say it is one of the best crops ever put up in the county. There is not as large an acreage as usual, but the quality is fine and it will weigh heavy to the acre.

Conditions for maturing the crop and housing it could not have been better.

MT. STERLING, KY.

There has been a noticeable change in the curing of tobacco, and the outlook now is for plenty of good colory tobacco. The work of cutting the weed is practically over in the county, and the housing has been pushed very rapidly this week, with the result that with few exceptions all growers have finished. The weed has grown enormous in height this year and there will be many fields of very heavy production, some of them probably reaching a yield of 2500 pounds. The weed is curing rapidly in the barns, and there will be plenty of the crop ready for an early December market if suitable weather for stripping comes in about November 1st.

CARLISLE, KY.

The last of the tobacco crop of Nicholas County is to be housed this week. There is yet much reported in the fields, although many growers report that they finished cutting last week. The crop is reported the best in quality in years. Many growers are putting fires in the barns to prevent house-burning.

THE CAROLINAS

KINSTON, N. C.

In September 4,236,796 pounds of tobacco were sold on the Kinston market, and to date the sales have totaled nearly 5,000,000 pounds. At this rate, well-posted tobacconists say, between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 pounds will be handled here during the entire season.

Prices during the past week were better than at any time since the opening on September 1st. The grades continue fair, and are now beginning to average up well with last season's offerings. About two-thirds, possibly more, of the product sold in Kinston warehouses this season will be exported.

Plan of Organization for Tobacco Growers

Louis Hancock, of Providence, Ky., has suggested the following plan of organization for the dark tobacco belt of Kentucky and Tennessee:

Let Mr. McAdoo appoint one man from each of the tobacco districts, as follows: Paducah, Henderson, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Hopkinsville and Clarksville, to meet with him and determine the relative value of these tobaccos, which shall be the basis of loans and also the basis of grading. They will prepare a uniform pledge and each in his own district will superintend the circulation of pledges, using any organization that is available to hasten the work. When pledges have been returned, let those who have signed the pledge in each county select a man who will be a member of the district committee in his tobacco district. The chairman of the several districts, with the McAdoo committee, shall constitute an executive board, which shall have general supervision, fix a reasonable price on all types and grades, make contract for sales for loose delivery of all tobacco buyers need, collect and distribute proceeds among all growers in the pool. Should any remain unsold, let the district committee secure houses and employ such help as is needed to handle and store it, under the direction of the executive board.

This is only a brief outline. The executive board can make rules governing details. The plan is intended to bring the new government into practical co-operation with growers in each and every district which will effectively prevent buyers depressing prices in one district by substituting similar tobacco from another district.

Growers have been requested to meet at the court house in their respective counties on October 17th, and pass resolutions expressing their desires in the matter. Mr. Hancock believes that this is an opportunity for the growers to help themselves, and has requested that copies of all resolutions be forwarded to him at Providence. He will forward them to Secretary McAdoo.

Kentucky Tobacco in Danger

Tobacco experts in Danville, Ky., report that much tobacco has already been burned, and a warning has been issued to the growers to put stoves under their tobacco at once. The heavy condition of the tobacco, combined with the rains of a few weeks ago, will cause much of it to be ruined unless coke stoves are put in operation.

OFFERS OF "UNITED" GET FINE RESULTS IN SALESMEN'S CONTEST

Shares of Stock Given as Prizes—First Week of October Standard for Awards—Big Business Gains Reported

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK, October 31.

TONIGHT marks the closing of the most interesting contest in the way of increasing of sales that the United Cigar Stores Company has ever inaugurated, and the results as gleaned from incomplete reports make it the most successful in the history of the company, a history by the way which has included many notable merchandising events.

On October 18th, the General Office of the United Cigar Stores Company sent out to each of its stores and individual salesmen the following:

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

General Office,
NEW YORK, October 18, 1914.

An order is hereby issued to every official in charge of United territory to turn the flank of business in our stores from October 11th up to and including October 31st, 1914, in a general movement to advance sales in October, based on percentages of gains in each of the following territories, commanded by the officials herewith named.

New Jersey Corporation.

Julius Schwartz, General Superintendent.

Metropolitan District — Robert Blakely and I. Radin, Superintendents.

New Jersey (East)—August Simons and M. A. Bouvier, Superintendents.

New Jersey (Southern Division)—David Myer and C. H. Williamson, Superintendents.

Philadelphia—Harry E. Smith, Superintendent.

Illinois Corporation.

J. A. Burns, Vice-president.

Illinois (Northern Division)—D. J. Keeley, General Superintendent.

Pacific Coast.

William A. Round, General Superintendent.

G. H. Raymond, Assistant General Superintendent.

Rhode Island Corporation.

M. J. Hanrahan, Vice-president.

By order of the Board of Directors of this Company five hundred (500) shares of common stock of the Company, of the par value of ten dollars ($10.00) will be set apart as rewards for the best execution of this movement according to a plan of distribution to be duly promulgated, and due notice of which will be given from each territorial headquarters as above designated.

By the Vice-President,
J. R. TAYLOR.

The $5000 worth of stock referred to is in the United Cigar Stores Company of America, and the method of distribution as arranged allowed every salesman to get a fair chance for three, two and one share for his individual property.

PRESIDENT SIGNS NEW REVENUE BILL TO TAX TOBACCO INDUSTRY

Law Effective November First—Tax to Apply Only Once to Each Concern—Manufacturers of Little Cigars in Cigarette Class

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 30.

THE Internal Revenue Department is now busy drafting regulations for the war revenue bill which has become a law with the signature of President Wilson. That section relating to the tobacco trade becomes effective November 1st, and it is hoped to have the rules ready by that time.

Taxes are to be collected as soon as possible for the eight remaining months of the present fiscal year which ends June 30, 1915. It is understood that assessments will be levied on a basis of the sales of the previous fiscal year which ended June 30, 1914.

As usual, every one is wide awake looking for a joker in this section, but there is only one part of the law relating to the tobacco trade that offers any chance for a double construction. This relates to the tax as applied to manufacturers of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, and it is understood that in this case the tax will apply only once to each concern. That is to say, that firms operating a number of factories will not be taxed on the output of each factory, individually, but rather on the total output. The Department of the Treasury will probably be called upon for a ruling, but it is believed that this will be the method of procedure.

The ruling with regard to the assessment for the present year will be advantageous to the manufacturers whose business has shown an increase over the past fiscal year, while it will work a hardship for the firms whose sales have been falling off since then.

The new stamps will be about six inches by eight and will have coupons for each month attached. The coupons will serve as a receipt showing that the tax is paid. The stamp itself has been approved and will probably be ready by the end of the month. They are to be printed on white watermarked paper, the printing to be in black.

That part of the law relating to the tobacco trade is as follows:

"TOBACCO DEALERS AND MANUFACTURERS

"Sec. 4. That on and after November first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, special taxes on tobacco dealers and manufacturers shall be and hereby are imposed annually as follows, the amount of such annual taxes to be computed in all cases on the basis of the annual sales for the preceding fiscal year:

"Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers do not exceed fifty thousand pounds shall each pay $6. Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall pay $12, and if their annual sales or transfers exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall pay $24: Provided, That dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers do not exceed one thousand pounds shall be exempt from the tax herein imposed on dealers in leaf tobacco.

Keeping the New Customer

PERHAPS there is nothing quite so easy of accomplishment as getting a new customer, but to keep him—ah, that's another matter altogether! The advent of a new customer might arise through causes over which you, personally, have not the slightest control—causes which you have never lifted a finger to bring about, either wittingly or unwittingly. Curiosity to examine what sort of a shop you have got; just a sudden impulse to survey unexplored regions; a desire to ascertain what manner of person presides behind the counter; an impelling something induced by a glance at the name over the door; a wish to sample a stranger's products; a word inadvertently dropped by some one else in the stranger's hearing that So-and-So keeps such-and-such an establishment; and last, but by no means least, a sudden realization that yours happens to be the nearest port of call when the pouch or case is empty—any one of these may bring about the patronage of an entirely new customer.

Now you will observe that not a single one of these reasons for his visit may be said to have been due in the smallest degree to your influence. The spick-and-spanness of the shop front, your window dressing effects, the catchy notices, and attractive displays availed nothing; he just entered for either one of the reasons enumerated, or else because of circumstances which affected him alone.

Given the opportunity, then, it is clearly your duty now to make the most of it, to do what you can in the little time afforded to make an impression upon him. And not only does this apply to yourself, but you must do whatever is possible to let the shop and its contents impress him. Naturally, being in a strange place, he wouldn't be human if he didn't evince at least a particle of interest, both in you and in his surroundings.

But not always, of course, does the opportunity arise whereby you are enabled to stamp your own personality and the character of your shop upon him. He may be in a desperate hurry, or too intent upon other matters to care a hang whether you are a pleasant, Mark Tapley sort of individual, or a grumpy old boor; or whether you stock top-notch line or clothes pegs, providing he gets what he came in for. When this is so—and naturally you can readily divine this from his general behavior—then you are perfectly justified in putting him down a mere bird of passage, a storm-tossed barque, driven to the nearest harborage; and all your alluring devices and artful blandishments will be more or less wasted upon him.

But if, on the contrary, you are persuaded that he is in what one might term a ten-minutes-to-spare mood, and shows an inclination to chatter and be chattered to, then it is your duty to make him feel that, although strangers hitherto, it is not going to be your fault if you remain so. Bring all your powers of entertainment to bear upon him. Don't harp too much on generalities, or get him interested in political or social matters—these won't further the end you have in view, or yet bring about a sale. Talk "shop" as much as possible, and keep him well within this groove, for this supplies you with the opportunity of letting him into "the know" concerning what class of goods you keep. It also furnishes you with an excuse to bring forward some of your best lines, not exactly because he may be disposed to purchase today, but because you can impress him sufficiently to keep yourself and your goods in mind when he does require them.

If you happen to sell him one of your own special lines, procurable nowhere else, don't dismiss the sale as you would if you had passed him over the counter an ordinary proprietary article. If, say, it is something special in mixtures, chat to him about the different blends, and attempt to ascertain his particular taste in this direction. Get him, through the medium of a little adroit banter, to make you a half promise that he will give you his opinion upon his purchase, so that you might have an opportunity of changing it for something else if he is not altogether satisfied with it.

This can be done quite nicely, you know, and so naturally that he never suspects you are more concerned with your side of the bargain than his. And, incidentally, you may then also learn if he is likely to be passing your way again, how often, and whether you will be justified in regarding him as a prospective regular customer.

I daresay you have often wondered to yourself why you have lost a certain customer. Perhaps it is one who has dealt with you for years, and all your dealings with him have been quite harmonious. You puzzle your brains to find a reason for his leaving you; you recall the last occasion upon which he made a purchase, and wonder if, by word or deed, you offended him. Yet you now see him pass and repass your shop without ever once darkening your portals, and very naturally comes an ardent desire to know the reason why.

But it is not always easy to find out. Easy, did I say? It is most difficult. You don't like to stop him and put the question bluntly to him, however much you might feel tempted to do so. And he knows you too well to rise to what in others differently situated would be an alluring bait. Moreover, your own dignity is at stake if you employ less open methods of acquiring the desired information. But whatever the reason, you may rest assured that as often as not it will have arisen through some, perhaps, quite unintentional and unthinking action in word or deed on your part.

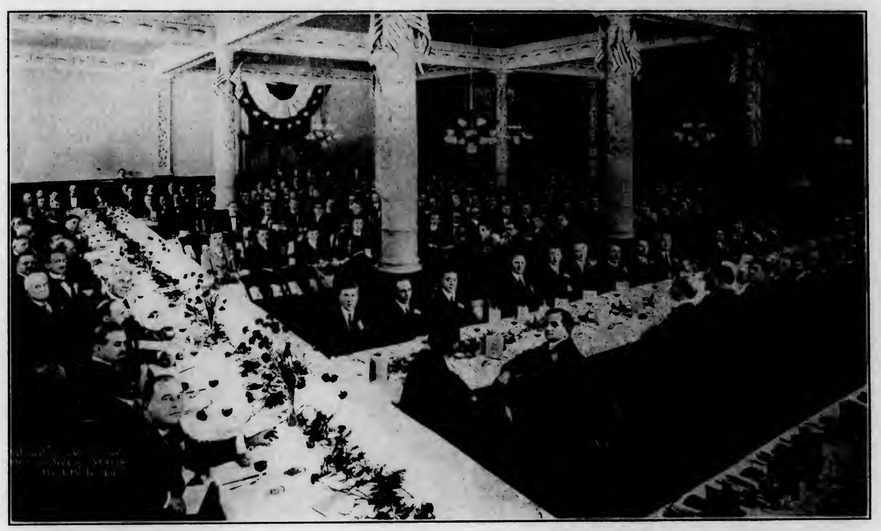
For instance, I once lost an old and valued customer in a similar way—a customer whom I had grown to look upon almost as a personal friend. Not only did he withhold his patronage, but on one or two occasions he gave me the cut. Naturally his actions were, to say the least of it, very disquieting; the more so as I could recall no occasion upon which we had differed in any way. Determined to find the solution, I took into my confidence another old and respected customer, who was on exceptionally good terms with the individual in question, and begging him to use what diplomatic powers he possessed towards getting at the root of the trouble. This he did, and the answer was brought to me that upon a recent occasion the aggrieved one had heard, through a third person, that I had—inadvertently and wholly unintentionally—spoken a trifle disparagingly of this indivudual's—don't laugh—sweet peas, the growing of which was to him more of an obsession than a hobby.

I daresay you will smile at such a display of childishness, but believe me it is perfectly true, and goes to show not only how careful one needs to be, both in word and deed, when discussing another person's affairs, but upon how slender a thread hangs a customer's patronage.—"Optimist," in "The Tobacco Trade Review."

Report received from the E. A. Saunders' Sons Company, Richmond, Va., distributors in four states for the noted "Charles the Great," manufactured by Salvador Rodriguez, states that their salesmen have opened a number of new accounts on the brand. They also report the brand well placed in all the leading local stores.

Report received from A. Reder, of the A. Reder Company, who manufacture the popular "Belvedere" Little Cigars, states that he is much pleased with the success with which he met on his recent trip through Providence, Boston and New Haven. He looks forward to a good season in these places.

Los Angeles Tobacconists Banqueting on "Cigar Day"



National Cigar Day received a hearty reception from The Tobacco Association of Southern California when that body wined and dined the cigar dealers of Los Angeles and the vicinity. The banquet was held in the Westminster Cafe.

NOTABLE EVENTS FEATURE "CIGAR DAY" DINNER

Anthony Schwamm Toastmaster of Evening—Spirit of the Day Features Speeches—Cigars and Cigarettes Donated

LOS ANGELES, CAL., October 22.

ON the evening of October 12th, the Tobacco Association of Southern California celebrated National Cigar Day by tendering a banquet to the cigar merchants of this section. This affair was held in the banquet room of the Westminster Hotel and proved to be one of the most successful attempts to honor the cigar and tobacco industry of the country.

Many notable events were crowded into the evening's entertainment, and not the least of these was the introduction and speeches of a number of political aspirants for office. The fact that there is to be an election on November 3d throughout the state has stirred up the populace, and politicians are as abundant as warts on a pickle. But the banquet on that evening seemed to get the "pick" of all of them. Each of them entered into the spirit of the occasion and helped to make the banquet a huge success.

But there were other factors who had a hand in the affair and Anthony Schwamm, president of the Tobacco Association of Southern California, toastmaster of the evening, stood out as the most formidable of these personages. Mr. Schwamm ran things in his own inimitable manner, and his work is to be commented upon as par excellence. The others who ably assisted Mr. Schwamm were Ed G. Hookstratton, Chairman of Banquet Committee composed of Louis Gold, Morris Burke, I. Weinberger, H. D. McLean and A. L. Finkenstein. The Decoration with W. A. Pickart, Chairman, Frank West and W. C. Henderson, did noble work.

The speakers and their chosen subjects were as follows:

Justice Summerfield spoke for Mayor H. H. Rose, who was detained at home on account of serious illness at a most inopportune time. Justice Summerfield's remarks were appreciated by all present.

"Uncle Sam and the Tobacco Industry," was the topic around which John F. Carter, Collector of Internal Revenue, Southern California District, made his speech. He stated that the people of this section of the country, Southern California, pay more taxes in proportion to their population, than do any two other like sections in the United States. He is instituting a new method of collecting the coming internal revenue tax, and asks the assistance of the cigar merchants of Southern California in collecting this.

Ike Wentworth, representing the Jose Lovera Company in Southern California, spoke about "Bonded Cigars," and it proved to be an interesting article well rendered.

Dr. C. A. Scroggs, "Smoke and Live a Thousand Years."

Very Reverend William McCormack, D. D., "Better Smoke Now Than Hereafter."

Practically all local cigar houses donated cigars or cigarettes to the banquet, gratis.

Of course there were many more speakers on the programme, and every one of them pleased the vast assemblage. The interest manifested by those present that evening proved conclusively that National Cigar Day is to be an annual event in Los Angeles and preparations will be made for even a more extensive celebration for next year.

Tobacco Day in Petrograd

October 18th was "Tobacco Day" in Petrograd, Russia, and large numbers of motor cars drove about the city and the populace threw into them tobacco in all forms, from large cartons to single packages of cigarettes. All these contributions were gathered for the soldiers at the front.

A man is in his most receptive mood when he has time to read. Then he can think and consider. Many a salesman fails because he approaches his prospect at an unfavorable time.

You Can't Get Away From It

Trade paper advertising reaches the man at the right time. It secures an introduction for your products that your salesman might never be able to get. The fact that he has read the ad gives an opportunity for following up the favorable impression; also for correcting any false conception.

The jobber or retailer may not be able to handle your line for a year hence, but meanwhile the trade paper ad is doing its work; it makes a mental impression that can be gained in no other way.

Trade paper advertising decisively influences buying. You can't get away from it. More than one hundred and thirty firms and individuals are using THE TOBACCO WORLD, consistently, because they know they are reaching the right people at the right time.

To those manufacturers who are building for the future, as well as for today, we will be pleased to supply information.

A well-known representative of a leading Cuban factory was in Philadelphia last week calling on the cigar trade, and his splendid optimism should have put many of the people whom he met to shame. Certainly business is not all it should be, but there is much of a hopeful and encouraging nature in present times and the merchant who is able to discern these conditions and profit by them will feel little of the stress of European troubles while his competitor is allowing the waves of pessimism to overwhelm his business craft.

Some Brighter Lights

One year ago, the balance of trade in New York City was against the United States by $2,385,696 for the week just ended. The reports of last week show this year it is in our favor $5,985,549, or over eight millions gain over last year, and it is steadily mounting, as the increase of last week showed over $300,000 more than the week previous.

For the six days ending last Saturday, the exports from the port of New York amounted to more than in any one week for seven months, reaching the fine total of $23,279,981. Our imports, too, are steadily gaining in volume.

These figures point out with telling verity the fact that busines is improving despite all croaking, and the cigar and tobacco trades will have their share.

The tax question is now settled and like everything else the anticipation did more to hurt business than the real tax will. With the pill swallowed, let us hope that the results will make the medicine worth while.

House of H. Duys & Company Have Biggest October

Sumatra-wrapped cigars must certainly be in heavy demand according to an announcement recently made by John Duys, of the well known Sumatra and Java leaf house of H. Duys & Company, who stated that this was the biggest October in the history of the firm.

While the buying spirit is rampant the sales force is making every effort to make this month the biggest November in the history of the house.

"Cigar Day" Brings Treat to Los Angeles Prisoners

Thanks to the thoughtfulness of the Tobacco Association of Southern California, prisoners in the Central Police Station, Los Angeles, received hundreds of cigars, which were distributed to them on "Cigar Day" by Property Clerk "Billy" Matuskuviz. "Billy" was a mighty popular man in the station house, and was the recipient of sincere thanks from the prisoners. "Cigar Day" will be long remembered by the many prisoners who received the smokes to celebrate the event.

Liggett & Myers to Give Away Handsome Auto-Piano

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has inaugurated the novel scheme of giving away a handsome auto-piano to the most popular employee of any railroad, steam or electric, in the State of Kentucky. To vote, one is required to write the name of the candidate on the back of coupons or package fronts of "Fatima," "Piedmont" and "Oasis" cigarettes, and the coupons from "Velvet" and "Duke's Mixture" smoking tobacco. The voting period closes December 24th, the ballot boxes having been placed as conveniently as possible. The auto-piano may be seen at the Taylor-Isaacs Drug Company, Third and Jefferson Streets, Louisville, Ky.

Jack Dumastre (U. Koen & Company) was a recent visitor to Memphis, Tenn., where he stopped over for a couple of days in the interests of the well-known "Webster" cigar, manufactured by Y. Pendas & Alvarez.

Corner Store Chat

THE inter-city jealousy of our country has always been an amusing phase of American national life and I guess this is nowhere more apparent than in the cigar trade. Many and many a first-class salesman has had his reputation split upon the trade rocks of Philadelphia and Boston when he attempted to introduce a New York brand of cigars in those respective markets. By the same token, the popular brands of Philadelphia and Boston have invariably had a very rough passage when brought to New York for approval.

However, Philadelphia boasts one brand which claims distinction for itself all over the United States, and New York retail stores have long since found out that Eisenlohr's "Cincos" are always a steady seller in any part of Manhattan and that "Cinco" smokers want their brand and demand it against all others.

Last Thursday I had the pleasure of seeing the first sale of a "Cinco" in the Riker-Hegeman store at Forty-second Street and Broadway, and it interested me sufficiently to make some inquiries about this brand in New York.

Early in the morning I stopped at the stand to make a purchase and while there a man came up and asked for a "Cinco." The salesman promptly pulled out a new box from which no cigar had been taken and I took the liberty of addressing the purchaser. "A Philadelphian?" I queried. "No," was the reply. "Why do you ask?" "The brand of cigars you smoke interested me," I replied. "Probably you know that the 'Cinco' brand is Philadelphia made." "No, I did not," said the stranger," I am from Jacksonville, Fla., but I have smoked 'Cincos' for years and they are some good uniform smokes," and with a nod he was gone.

Turning to the salesman I inquired of him as to whether there was much of a demand for "Cincos" in New York and he informed me that his company had such a steady call for the goods that they had just stocked them, and that I had witnessed the first sale of them.

It was an interesting little episode for me, and as a Philadelphian I felt a touch of pride difficult to explain.

When the husband weakens to such an extent that he turns over his pay envelope to his wife, and allows her to dole out carfare and lunch money by the day, it is no wonder that he is sometimes hard put to get his cigars without awakening suspicion.

Henry, who belonged to this class of husbands, was suddenly awakened from his evening paper and pipe by his wife, who, after looking over the grocer's bill, asserted that they would have to go easier on potatoes.

"Here," said Mrs. Henry, "the grocer has us down this month for forty-six bushels of potatoes. It's scandalous. It's ridiculous. It's absurd."

"But, my dear," objected her husband timidly, "potatoes are the staff of life."

"No, that's bread!" she snapped. "And what's more, I'm going to speak to the grocer about this bill. Forty-six bushels of potatoes!"

"But think of all the different ways we've had potatoes this month," said he. "We've had them boiled, and baked, and fried and boiled, and scalloped, and boiled, and mashed and boiled, and boiled and——"

"I'm going to speak to the grocer, and I don't want another word from you about it!" she said fiercely.

The next morning when Henry stopped in at the grocery for his cigars, the grocer whispered, "Shall I charge it up to potatoes as usual, sir?"

"No," he whispered back, "better make 'em sugar for awhile."

After reading the recent announcement in the papers that King George of England had proclaimed a general amnesty for the militant suffragettes and that those in prison will probably be released at once, Mr. Thornburg remarked that a good many people in England would feel about this action the same way M. G. St. John, of New York, felt about the action of a judge one time.

Two women, the worse for liquor, started a war of words in front of M. G. St. John's cigar store at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue, one day back in 1910, and it soon turned into a general fight. Finally one of the women, who was evidently acquainted with the gentle art of self-defense, took a swing at her adversary and landed a good, healthy punch where it would do the most good. The adversary doubled up and went straight through one of St. John's handsome plate glass windows with a noise like an exploding bomb. There was great excitement for a moment and then an officer of the law appeared and took both women into custody.

I happened to pass the store the next morning again and pasted to the fragments of hanging glass was the following sign:

This Window Was Smashed by Two Drunken Women.
Window Valued at $250.
Judge Fined the Women $10.
Where the H—l do I Get Off?

The absent-minded professor has to stand for a good many jokes, but this one is said to have been based on an actual occurrence after a night at the club.

A friend who accompanied Professor Blank home to discuss the fourth dimension was somewhat amused to see him trying to unlock the door of his home with a cigar.

"Look here," said the friend, after he had controlled his mirth, "do you know what you are trying to open that door with, Professor?"

The professor looked and gave a start of dismay.

"Gracious," he blurted out, "I must have smoked my latch key."

"In arriving at the amount of license tax to be paid hereunder, and in the levy and collection of such tax, each person, firm, or corporation engaged in the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes (including little cigars), or tobacco shall be considered and deemed a single manufacturer.

"And every person who carries on any business or occupation for which special taxes are imposed by this Act, without having paid the special tax herein provided, shall, besides being liable to the payment of such special tax, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $500, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

"Provided, That the special taxes imposed by this Act, and payable during the special-tax year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, shall be collected and paid proportionately for the period during which such taxes shall remain in force during said year."

OFFER OF "UNITED" GET FINE RESULTS IN SALESMEN'S CONTEST

Every store in the entire "United" circuit from Maine to California has an equal chance in a division of the stock, for the simple reason that the entire plan was based upon a percentage of increase on their own sales for a given period, so that the location of the store, whether a good one or only a medium one, had no bearing on the ultimate result, and yet this plan itself had a loophole of regret in one particular case which a "World" man encountered.

One of the best conducted stores in New York City, in which the head salesman takes a special pride, and which salesman incidentaly has captured a number of prizes, had a particularly splendid day's record on Saturday, October 3d; as a matter of fact, this day proved the very best in the history of that particular store. The terms of the contest provided that the record of the first ten days of October were to be eclipsed during the last twenty days of the month, and this salesman bewailed the fact that his banner day previous to the contest had proved his ultimate undoing in winning a prize. Notwithstanding, he added, my extraordinary hustling every Saturday of the past month, those figures of October 3d looked as big as the Rock of Gibraltar when the other Saturdays' receipts were counted. This comment, however, showed exactly the fine spirit of endeavor which the contest stimulated.

S. L. Lee, of S. L. Lee & Sons, Memphis, Tenn., is back again from his European trip.

"New Bachelor" Cigars Well Placed in City

"New Bachelor" cigars, made by T. J. Dunn & Company, are making a hit in this city and are being placed in every section with good results. Many of the stands handling this line are carrying it in a number of attractive shapes, the Invincible size in particular meeting with popular favor.

An additional incentive is offered the consumer to smoke these cigars through the offer of a triple-plated gold cigar cutter. This is given free to any one returning twenty-five "New Bachelor" bands to the factory.

A. S. Valentine & Sons, now a branch of T. J. Dunn & Company, are distributing the goods in this section at present.

Trade Comment

The William Recker Cigar Company, St. Louis, has become the distributor in that territory for the well-known "Garcia Grande" in seven sizes.

"White Heather," Cuesta, Rey & Company, is being shown in very attractive sizes by the Cruickshank Cigar Company, Atlanta, Ga.

John Ross, State Manager of the Reynolds Tobacco Company, with headquarters in Jacksonville, Fla., recently spent a few days in Tampa.

Fishkin Brothers, retailers, West 181st Street, corner of Broadway, state that they are well satisfied with the business being done. "First Consul" and "Maria Garcia" are among the leaders of this concern.

Andrew Carroll, Park & Tilford representative, is confining his efforts to the upper portion of the city at present, increasing the sales of the "Mi Favorita," which is becoming one of the standbys of that section.

Dave Sulkis was a recent visitor to Indianapolis in the interests of the popular "Rose-O-Cuba." Mr. Sulkis, who is visiting the jobbers of this brand throughout the state, is well pleased with the orders being received, not only for present but for holiday shipment as well.

Quite a demand is being experienced by the Zapp & Short Company at their Fourth Street store, Louisville, Ky., on the well-known "Mi Favorita," manufactured by the Mi Favorita Cigar Company, of Key West. The company recently stocked up on this brand in half a dozen sizes.

Fire recently destroyed at Clarksville, Tenn., the tobacco barn of F. G. Davie, containing twenty acres of fine tobacco. The tobacco, which was owned by W. M. Mabry, totaled 20,000 pounds and was estimated to have been worth about $20,000, insurance covering about one-third the value.

G. G. Gheen, manager of the G. G. Gheen Leaf Tobacco Company, Kansas City, Mo., is very well satisfied with present business conditions. Mr. Gheen states that the demand for Havana and Sumatra are only fair, but that expectations certainly have been exceeded, so splendid is the demand for Georgia leaf. Large amounts of this leaf are being bought by Kansas and Nebraska.

Tobacco as Viewed by Sages

One night in 1875 in the great Metropolitan Tabernacle in London, the noted Spurgeon, whose smoking propensities were well known, said: "If anybody can show me in the Bible, the command 'Thou shalt not smoke,' I am ready to keep it; but I haven't found it yet. I find ten commandments, and it's as much as I can do to keep them; and I've no desire to make them eleven or twelve. I am not ashamed of anything whatever that I do, and I don't feel that smoking makes me ashamed."

Prof. Huxley once said: "There is a certain substantial kind of satisfaction in smoking, if kept in moderation; and I must say this for tobacco—that it is a sweetener and equalizer of the temper."

Said Percy B. St. John: "Truly the Indians proved their wisdom by making the pipe the symbol of peace, for what more soothing? What more consolatory? To all men it proves of service, from royalty to the bone-picker."

A learned Japanese treatise, called Ensauki, enumerates some of the excellences discovered in the use of tobacco:

1. It dispels the vapours and increases the energies.
2. It is good to produce at the beginning of a feast.
3. It is a companion in solitude.
4. It affords an excuse for resting now and then from work, as if in order to take breath.
5. It is a storehouse of reflection, and gives time for the fumes of wrath to disperse.

Jose Cosio to Spend Winter in Florida

Among recent visitors to Tampa, Fla., is numbered Jose Cosio, who formerly engaged in the cigar manufacturing business in that city, from whence he left for Chicago a year or two ago to engage in the leaf tobacco business. Mr. Cosio is just recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia and plans to spend the winter in Florida, upon the advice of his physician. During Mr. Cosio's absence from his business, Mrs. Cosio will take charge.

Tobacco Warehouse of J. F. Stoner & Company Destroyed

Fire, of unknown origin, early Saturday morning destroyed the two-storied frame warehouse of J. F. Stoner & Company, on Centre Street, Warwick, Lititz, Pa., together with its contents, which consisted of a number of cases of 1909 and 1911 tobacco. The building, 24 by 50 feet, was valued at $31,000, and contents at $17,000. The fire was discovered by a farmer driving by, he having noticed smoke issuing from the building.

William Duncan, who will be remembered as having been formerly connected with Terry & Duncan, of Philadelphia, Pa., was recently a visitor to Boston, in the interests of San Martin & Leon, Tampa, whom he now represents.

Ode to "San Felice"

Joseph T. Snyder, of Buffalo, N. Y., is nothing if not original, as will be seen by the following lines which were posted on his window in connection with a recent display on "San Felice" cigars, manufactured by Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, O.:

Smile and the world smiles with you;
Knock and you go it alone;
For the cheerful grin, will let you in
Where the kicker is never known.

Kick, and there's trouble brewing;
Whistle and life is gay;
Smoke a "San Felice" and your troubles cease,
And the clouds all melt away.

Mrs. Hendrik Duys Passes Away

FOLLOWING a few weeks' illness, Mrs. Hendrik Duys, widow of the late Hendrik Duys, founder of the Sumatra importing firm of H. Duys & Company, 170 Water Street, New York City, died about a fortnight or so ago at her home in The Hague, Holland, whence she had gone upon the death of her husband seven years ago. Her children, Miss Nellie Duys and John H. and Henry M. Duys, members of the firm of H. Duys & Company, survive.

Frederick Mount

Frederick Mount, former manager of the Watertown, N. Y., Tobacco Company, and who was connected for eighteen years with that company, only two years ago leaving the tobacco business to engage with his brother, G. C. Mount, in the mercantile business in Three Mile Bay, N. Y., died suddenly of heart failure in his room in Armory Hotel, Saturday morning, October 17. Deceased left Three Mile Bay two weeks ago last Monday for Philadelphia and Boston, where he witnessed three games in the world's series between Boston and the Philadelphia Athletics. The late Mr. Mount banked considerable money on the chances of Boston to win the championship. En route to his home in Three Mile Bay, Mr. Mount stopped at the Syracuse Hotel. Shortly before ten o'clock Saturday morning a bell boy was sent to his room to call him for breakfast. He found the tobacco manager in a dazed and dying condition. Several doctors were summoned, but before their arrival Mount had died. Deceased leaves his mother, brother and one sister, Mrs. Pearl Phelps, of Chaumont, N. Y.

M. E. Schwartz

M. E. Schwartz, one of the oldest pipe salesmen in the country, died last week in Chicago, at the age of seventy-five years. He was an active salesman for William Demuth & Company, of New York, for more than forty years, representing that firm in the West all of the time. A few years ago he retired and was placed on a pension by the company. However, in spite of his burden of years, he was unwilling to leave the harness, and to the last maintained a downtown office in Chicago and kept up relations with the oldest of his customers. He was a man genial in every sense of the word, but with a keen business sense which made him one of the most successful as well as one of the oldest of the pipe travelers. His funeral was attended by many of his old-time friends, some of whom, now located in various cities, came long distances to be present.

Edmund Halladay

Edmund Halladay, aged sixty-two years, one of the best known tobacco growers in Connecticut, and a former member of Gner General Assembly, died at his home in Suffield, Conn., recently, of a complication of diseases.

The deceased was for seven years president of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association.

Mr. Halladay is survived by a widow and three daughters.

Joseph Hollard

Ill health, accompanied by worry attributed to the death of his wife last January, recently resulted in the death of Joseph Hollard, which occurred at his late residence, 835 South Forty-ninth Street, Philadelphia. Mr. Hollard was the founder of the well-known tobacco firm of Joseph Hollard & Sons, located at 2203 South Street, this city.

Frank L. Roast

Frank L. Roast, a cigar manufacturer of Bloomington, Ill., died recently of apoplexy. He died in less than twelve hours after he was stricken. The deceased was forty-one years old on the day of his death, which was his birthday as well, and for which a celebration had been planned. The deceased is survived by a widow and one daughter. Nine brothers and sisters also survive.

William Voige

After an illness of more than fourteen years, William Voige, one of the best known men in Northern Kentucky and for many years the head of the well-known tobacco firm of Voige & Winters, of Cincinnati, died recently at his home in Fort Thomas.

The deceased was stricken fourteen years ago with paralysis. He was fifty-nine years old at the time of his death. He is survived by a widow and four children.

Marcus Wagner

Marcus Wagner, a retired tobacco merchant and a resident of Manhattan for more than sixty years, died on the twenty-sixth instant at his home, 51 East Ninety-sixth Street. The deceased was born in Germany eighty-five years ago.

Mr. Wagner was a member of many fraternal organizations. He is survived by four daughters and two sons.

Lyman Chester Tilden

Lyman Chester Tilden, for thirty-eight years a tobacco dealer of Brocton, Mass., died on the twenty-fifth instant of a complication of heart and kidney ailments. The deceased was fifty-nine years old.

When a boy, he suffered an illness which left him a cripple, but this infirmity detracted none from his cheerfulness. He was well liked by all those who came in contact with him, and his death brought sorrow to a wide circle of friends.

Tobacco for the British Navy

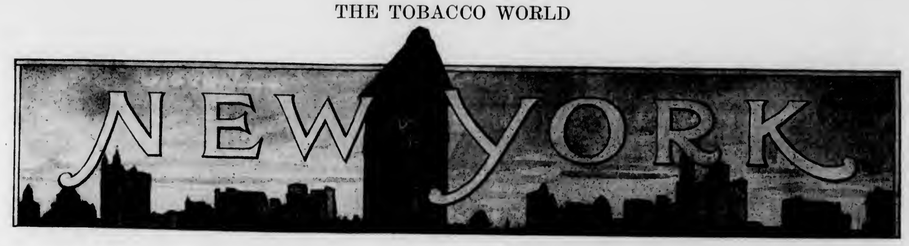
M. Jean de Reszke, the tenor, has given 50,000 cigarettes for the benefit of the wounded of the allied armies and of the British navy "as a memento of his long personal association with England, France and Russia." There was a time when any one sending tobacco to British soldiers would not have been thanked. The Duke of Wellington in 1845 issued this order: "The commander-in-chief has been informed that the practice of smoking has become prevalent among the officers of the army, which is not only in itself a species of intoxication occasioned by the fumes of tobacco, but undoubtedly occasions drinking and tippling by those who acquire the habit, and he entreats the officers commanding regiments to prevent smoking in the messrooms and to discourage the practice among the officers of junior rank in the regiments."

Sam D. Bennett Opens Stand in Tampa

Sam D. Bennett, well known to the smokers of Tampa, Fla., through his several years' connection with Eli Witt, of that city, has opened a cigar stand at 205 Lafayette Street. Mr. Bennett will not only do a retail cigar and cigarette business, but will enter the wholesale arena as well.

Steadily increasing business locally, is reported by the A. H. Hillman Tobacco Company.

A gift of 10,000 cigars was recently sent by the French Colony in Porto Rico to the French soldiers. The colony is now collecting funds for the purpose of supplying 100,000 cigarettes monthly to its soldiers at the front.



E. P. Oakes Joins "Gato" Forces

E. P. OAKES, who was for some years with the Cuba Cigar Company in New York, and who did so much to popularize the "King's Club" brand in Manhattan, and who has been, more recently, sales manager for the "Arabesca" cigarette, has recently joined the sales forces of E. H. Gato and will in future help distribute the famous Key West brand of "1871." It is quite probable that Mr. Oakes will go out to Chicago and take charge of the Gato office in that city, although this has not yet been definitely announced.

A. C. Lemlein, the New York sales manager, and Mr. Oakes made a brief trip to Philadelphia during the past week, and Mr. Oakes also looked over the trade in Atlantic City.

New Firm Opens on Forty-sixth Street

L. Leavitt and H. J. Rothschild, operating under the title of "The Leavitt-Rothschild Company," recently opened for a general business in imported and domestic cigars, at 126 West Forty-sixth Street, New York City. In the imported stock are included such well-known brands as "Partagas," "Upmann," "Romeo y Julieta," etc., while "Irmas" and "Whistler" are the private domestic brands which will be featured. The new company states that the business done thus far has been very pleasing. Mr. Rothschild was formerly connected with the firm of Felbel, Speyer & Company, New York City.

New Location for Interstate Tobacco Company

The Interstate Tobacco Company, dealers and exporters of cuttings, scraps, siftings and dust, formerly located in the Longacre Building, New York, announce to the trade that they are now occupying their new headquarters at 428 East 106th Street, New York City.

"Cosmos" Cigarettes Continue to Make Hit

I. B. Krinsky, manufacturer of the well-known "Fifth Avenue" and "Cosmos" brands of cigarettes, reports that business continues good, despite general complaints to the contrary.

A statement from the office is to the effect that the "Cosmos" brand is making a big hit from coast to coast. This cigarette is said to be taking good hold with the consumer wherever introduced, and the sales force is doing its utmost to make the brand a still bigger success.

"Arabesca" Incorporates

The Arabesca Cigarette Company, located in the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway, New York City, and manufacturers of the popular "Arabesca" cigarette, recently incorporated with a capital of $250,000. The incorporators given are W. Anagnosti, president; L. O. Wilson and J. P. Morrissey. Reports from this company are to the effect that "Arabesca" sales during the past few months have been steadily increasing, the brand being now distributed by many of the best jobbers.

American Sumatra Company's Crop a Winner

RECENT advices from Julius Lichtenstein, President of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, New York, who has been inspecting his company's plantations in Georgia and Florida, are to the effect that the present stage of the new crop bears out the favorable comments which were made during the past summer concerning it. It is stated that the excellence of the burn surpasses even the wonderful crops of 1911, 1912 and 1913. Incidental to the sterling promise of this year's crop, it is expected that a rush of customers will mark the arrival of the goods, repeating the 1913 performance when cigar manufacturers were to be found upon each floor of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company's building in Water Street, inspecting the Florida-Georgia samples. At that time sufficient orders were received to keep the entire force busy for the following three months at least.

Foreign Tobacco Expert to Visit Experimental Stations

Mr. T. O. Kada, Tobacco Expert of the Financial Department, Governor General of Chosen, Seoul, Korea, was a recent visitor to the New York market for the purpose of inquiring into the methods of handling tobaccos in the port of New York. Mr. Kada visited the storage warehouses of F. C. Linde, Hamilton & Company, and is now on an investigating tour throughout the country to ascertain the various methods of culture used in the different experimental stations. He is interested in cigar and cigarette leaf tobacco, in addition to the buying and selling of goods upon authorized inspectors' samples.

Cado Company Opens Uptown Offices

During the past fortnight, the Cado Company, whose factory is located at 26 Park Place, have opened up beautiful sales quarters in the Brunswick Building, at Twenty-sixth and Fifth Avenue. In future, the selling end of the business will be conducted at this point, with Robert Appleton in full charge. The new salesrooms are superbly furnished in the finest mahogany and the general results are most attractive.

"Apex" Is a New Cigar

"Apex" is a new brand recently put on the market by S. I. Davis & Company. W. T. Reynolds & Company, in Poughkeepsie, where one of the company's factories is located, handle the brand in that territory.

The cigar is made to retail at a nickel and it is claimed that the tobacco combination is unusual and that it has taken well with smokers.

The John Nicholas Company, of Brooklyn, N. Y., received a charter at Albany on Saturday, October 31, to engage in the tobacco business. The new concern has an authorized capital of $25,000 and the interested parties are P. G. Stewart, W. B. Gardner and John Nicholas. The address is 349 Clinton Street, Brooklyn.

Robert E. Lane, of Partagas fame, is back again in New York, following a successful Western trip.

Detroit

Banner Cigar Company in New Home—John Duys a Recent Visitor Among the Trade—Oppenheimer Cigar Company Out of Chicago

DETROIT, MICH., October 26.

"Let there be light and lots of it. Apply this to your windows. Also en 'light' en your clerks."

FOLLOWING the article in THE TOBACCO WORLD of October 15th, in which the writer emphasized the importance of "proper silence" on the part of clerks, the Woodward Avenue retailer dropped into the Pontchartrain Hotel and said to me: "Yes, that is very true, Al, but the thing that confronts the retailer these days is, 'How are we going to get better clerks'?" Being able to secure proper help is surely a problem, not only with the cigar retailers, but with most every concern. It reminds me of a remark made sometime ago by L. B. McKittrick, of the Melachrino Company, that only about 10 per cent. of the people actually want to work. Mr. McKittrick meant "work" in its fullest sense, and not simply to put in the hours which an employee is paid for. It would seem to me that two things are necessary for the development of a better grade of cigar clerks; one is, the employer must take greater interest in his clerks and must help them to become more proficient; second, employers should put worthy clerks on a profit-sharing basis in addition to paying them a regular salary. In other words, the longer an employee remains, the more valuable he becomes to the employer, and if the profits of the business are increasing, they should be shared with this clerk. If a cigar clerk is assured of a future and feels that the better he knows the business and the longer he stays the more money he is going to receive, he won't want to change his job and will not feel that his opportunities are limited. The trouble today is that owners of stands have a limit for their cigar clerks; when the clerks reach that limit, they would just as soon have them quit and start in a new clerk at the minimum wage again. After all is said and done, it may be that the cigar business does not actually permit of better wages than are being paid today. If so, let's hear from a few retailers with their views on this subject.

The Banner Cigar Company on October 19th started to manufacture cigars in its new factory at Mitchell and Warren Avenues. It is one of the oldest of the cigar manufacturers in Detroit. In 1889, the building at Randolph and Congress Streets, which it occupied until the removal, was erected. The new building is four stories in height, fireproof and equipped with an automatic sprinkler system. It is of brick throughout, and on all sides are windows, making every floor as near daylight as it is possible to get. In the basement is stored the leaf tobacco; the first floor contains the private offices, receiving and stock rooms and dining rooms for the employees; the second floor is given over to the cigarmakers, and the third floor is used for drying and stripping; the packing and shipping departments are on the fourth floor. The company manufactures the "Royal Banner" and "E. B. Banner," both in many sizes. The officers of the Banner Company are Merrill B. Mills, president and treasurer; Card Garrison, vice-president and sales manager; T. E. Gaghan, general manager and assistant treasurer, and C. J. Davison, superintendent.

On October 16th the Detroit Cigar Manufacturers' Club held a meeting to vigorously protest the special taxes to be imposed by the Government. The association authorized Frank M. Meyer, secretary, to send the following telegram to Congressman Frank Doremus, of this district: "We note a proposed amendment to place a graduated tax reaching twelve hundred dollars on cigar manufacturers. Our industry should not be further burdened, as we explained to you in a previous communication, when there is plenty of field hitherto untouched for tax purposes, from which to raise revenue. Your further assistance in defeating this measure will be greatly appreciated."

A. C. Friedman, in the leaf tobacco business in St. Louis, Mo., is planning to locate in Detroit after the first of the year.

Among the leaf tobacco men recently visiting here were Harry Nathan, Billy Levison, Fred Singer, John Duys, Howard Kinney and Jules Marquzee.

Bert Johnson, of the G. & R. McMillan store, has added a new cigar called the "Rotary," named after the Rotary Club, of which he is a member. This brand is made for Bert by Quiros, Villazon y Ca. Bert has also added seven sizes of R. A. Bachia y Ca cigars.

The raffle for the $875 automobile to be given by the Mazer Cigar Company, Detroit, will take place October 31st, at the company's new addition. A smoker will precede the raffle, and everybody will be invited to smoke "Miss Detroit" cigars as a treat from the company.

Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Company, was in New York the past week on business.

Sandy Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Company, is on a business trip through the Northwest. John Bunting, secretary of the company, reports that orders are coming in at a rapid rate for "Saturday Evening Post" cigars.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, returned October 24th from a two-weeks' trip in New York. Mrs. Worch accompanied him. He states that his company will make in the neighborhood of 65,000,000 cigars for the year ending December, 1914. At present the daily output of this factory is 250,000, all of which are shipped to the jobbers in the West. The company plans to build an addition in the spring and to double its output.

Owing to the increase in business, the Detroit quarters of the Harry W. Watson Company have been remodeled and considerably enlarged.

Al Korn, of S. H. Furgatch & Company, arrived Friday, October 16th. That night he gave a theatre party for Bert Johnson, who the same day was celebrating his third anniversary as proprietor of the G. & R. McMillan cigar stand.

Will Charles, of G. S. Nicholas & Company; Joseph Banker, of the Bouquet de Paris Company; Marcelina Perez and his representative, George Stocking, were among others who visited here the latter part of October.

Manager Bergman, of the New Statler Hotel, has taken up his duties, having opened temporary offices in the building. He announces that the hotel will be ready to open between the first and fifteenth of January. Conventions have already been booked for February. The cigar department, as previously reported, will be operated by Rudolph Seidenberg, who has the privileges at the Statler hotels in Buffalo and Cleveland.

The Oppenheimer Cigar Company has withdrawn from Chicago, and will now devote its attention to the seven retail stores in Michigan, in addition to doing a general wholesale business. Harry Oppenheimer, the general manager of the business, besides having his cigar and tobacco interests, is heavily interested in a moving picture theatre and many other enterprises in Saginaw and Bay City.

During the World's Series at Boston and Philadelphia, the results of all games were given by means of a huge scoreboard erected in front of the Oppenheimer store in Battle Creek, located at 3 East Main Street. A special wire

Manuel Lopez a Recent Visitor

MANUEL LOPEZ, of Manuel Lopez & Company, Havana leaf dealers, at 90 Wall Street, New York, made a quick trip to Philadelphia and Lancaster during the past week. Mr. Lopez stated that the unsettled condition in Cuba had brought into his hands some of the most attractive lots of Havana tobacco at prices which should interest any manufacturer who is looking for strict economy in the production of his goods without slighting their quality. Mr. Lopez, as is well known, was for some years the active head of Calixto Lopez & Company, manufacturers of the "Eden" cigar, but his general training was in the leaf tobacco business, and few are better qualified in the trade to look after the interests of customers.

Leniency for "Cinco" Box-Stuffers

In regard to the Fisher & Ahles case, when same was called for trial on September 24th, before the United States District Court, the defendants plead guilty to the seventeenth count in the indictment, charging them with substituting other goods for "Cincos" in "Cinco" boxes, and were sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs of prosecution.

Leniency was extended in this case on account of Mrs. Fisher's connection with it, she being a poor woman with four children.

Robert E. Lane Pays Trade a Visit

"The 'Partagas' Smile," worn by Robert E. Lane, was much in evidence in this city during the past week when the genial representative of the "Partagas" cigar spent several days here calling on the trade.

"Business could be better," said Mr. Lane, "but it is good right now. I am satisfied with the orders that are coming in and I can point to a number of firms in the country who during the year have almost doubled their orders of 1913. Yes, sir; 'Partagas' is some cigar."

Mr. Lane is an optimist, and unless you want to hear about the splendid growth of the "Partagas" cigar in this country, don't start to argue "hard times" with him.

Good sales are reported on "Havana Ribbon" and "Quaker Pure" cigars, by Charles D. Manning, Syracuse, N. Y.

William J. Noonan, Jr., is the latest acquisition to the selling force of Terry & Duncan, the well-known Philadelphia firm. Terry & Duncan are distributors in local territory for the famous products of the Sanchez y Haya Company. Mr. Noonan will include the "S. & H." brands among his specialties.

Philadelphia Notes

Charles Bobrow, of the firm of Bobrow Brothers, is now on a trip through the New England States, and is meeting with splendid success on the popular "Bold" cigar.

C. Mendez, of the firm of C. Mendez & Company, with headquarters in New York City, spent several days in Philadelphia last week. Mr. Mendez was formerly identified with Mendez & Gomez.

Henry Reisenberg is now in St. Louis, working on the "Bold" cigar in conjunction with the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, who recently became jobbers for this brand in a number of territories.

Morris D. Neumann, of the firm of Neumann & Mayer, is back from a trip in the West, where he was successful in securing some nice repeat orders on his "Bella Mundo" and "El Tello" brands.

Victor Lopez, representing J. Klorfeim, makers of the widely known "Garcia Grande" cigars, spent several days in Philadelphia last week, and as a result an increased quantity of these good cigars will be offered to the smokers of Philadelphia.

The Pittsburgh Stogie & Cigar Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., was ably represented in Philadelphia last week by Mr. Brash. Dealers who inspected the product of this aggressive house were convinced that these goods were about the best offered in the local market, and bought accordingly.

L. M. Walters, representing the firm of Bobrow Brothers, on the "Bold" and "Discriminator" brands, has been spending a few days in the city recently for the purpose of putting his home in order preparatory to becoming a resident of Philadelphia. He will shortly leave on a trip through Ohio.

E. Vanderlip, selling agent for the lines of the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, with headquarters in the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., was in Philadelphia during the past week.

Mr. Vanderlip believes that the fall and winter business of the current year will equal if not exceed the past year, and one significant fact is the increase of sales in the better grade of cigars.

Chicago

Retailers See Good Trade Ahead—National Buffet & Restaurant Company Incorporates—"House That Jack Built" in Receiver's Hands—Special Christmas Packings Conspicuous by Absence

CHICAGO, October 26.

WITH the holiday spirit in the air, conditions in the local cigar and tobacco trade are much improved. The retailers have been doing a good business, and have been made content by the many signs which they can see that the retail trade is destined to be as good this fall as usual, if not better.

The jobbers are busy shipping out goods for the holiday trade and are rushing, taking care of the late demands which are now arriving. Most of the big orders have been received, and now the little ones are being picked up by the salesmen. This applies to the various businesses all over the city which handle a line of cigars. Hotel trade has been good. The approach of the time for collecting city saloon licenses has made collections a little bad in this branch of the business, but as this is something which always happens and which is therefore expected by the jobbers, it has caused little comment or complaint. The manfacturers are all busy and there is an absence of labor troubles in the city, which is most encouraging. The small factories as well as the large ones are pretty much rushed. There is a lot of private brand trade this fall, it is said.

Among the leaf men conditions appear to be about the same. Most of the salesmen are out on road trips which will last up until the holidays, although some of them will pass through the city once or twice, perhaps, in covering their territories.

The weather during the past two weeks has been cooler and has made trade in general much better. All of the usual industries of the city are working and not more than the usual number of men are idle.

As the fall season approaches a number of good window displays can be seen throughout the city. Schermerhorn's store, at Adams Street and Fifth Avenue, has a fine display, featuring "La Corona" cigars. The arrangement is simple, but it is executed in such a manner that it at once attracts attention.

W. F. Richard, a member of the leaf firm of John Staun & Company, has returned to this country after a series of hardships in the war zone of Europe. Mr. Richard was caught in the interior of Germany when war was declared, and like many other Americans, did not know that anything was wrong for some time after the trouble had started. He succeeded in getting to London, where after some delay, he was able to catch a boat to this country. Fortunately, Mr. Richard's trip was shortened only two weeks from what he had originally intended. He looks for a good fall, and declares that the small manufacturers of cigars in the Middle West are slated for a period of great prosperity this winter.

Jobbers of cigars in this city were interested to learn this week that the old Union Hotel, which was formerly conducted by the Hermann Weber Company for many years, and which failed a number of months ago, is about to be reopened as a first-class Loop establishment. Samuel Cohn and James M. Lovelette have taken a lease on the premises for fifteen years at a term rent of $90,000. The hotel will have the same excellent cigar stands as formerly, both in the lobby and in the bar. As far as can be learned, the privilege has not been arranged, although it is understood that several prominent Loop dealers are seeking the same. The failure of the Hermann Weber Company was traced to the prejudice of the proprietor against modern cabarets and music with meals. He wrongly believed that his customers did not want such things with their viands. As a result he lost his trade and the failure followed. Many Chicago jobbers of cigars were hit for large amounts by the failure.

A. Strause, the prominent retailer of Peoria, Ill., was in the city on business last week. Mr. Strause was enthusiastic over business conditions in the Southern city. He said the holiday trade promised better than for years.

Earl Say, who was formerly a member of the sales force of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, has resigned his position to become head of the sales force of this city for the Camp Importation Company, of New York. He will have the "Camp" cigarette in this city and surrounding territory.

The retail stores of the E. Hoffman Company have been making a big window display this week of their "Stein Club." Some of the displays have been most attractive and have succeeded in drawing large crowds.

Produce men who frequent the cigar store at the corner of Fifth Avenue and West South Water Street, will be introduced soon to the line of E. Kleiner & Company, New York, which has been taken on by Mr. Joseph to add to his already extensive stock.

The campaign of the J. & B. Moos Company on "Chancellor" cigars continues to make great headway, and many dealers have given window displays. The revival of this excellent brand seems in a fair way to be complete.

W. E. Fischer, head of the leaf tobacco department of Adolph Frankau & Sons, the Sumatra house, was in the city last week. In conversation with the writer Mr. Fischer said that the situation on imported tobaccos was not nearly as serious as was imagined by some members of the trade throughout the country. The company was fortunate in having a good stock of Sumatra on hand when the war was declared, and this fact has been of great help to them in facing the present situation.

Schermerhorn's stand in the Continental and Commercial Bank Building, the largest building of the kind in the world, is now in complete operation. The building is all filled with renters, with the exception of the two top floors. Owing to a hitch with the Building Commissioners, none of the rooms on the two top floors can be rented. The charge is that the building is a number of feet higher than the ordinance of the city allows. It is probable that this difference will be ironed out in the near future, however.

J. B. Grommes, of Grommes & Elston, has returned from a fishing trip in Wisconsin, which has lasted three weeks and which has been almost as successful as the campaign which has been conducted on "Ben Bey" and other popular brands of the company in his absence. Mr. Grommes, following his usual policy, refused to be quoted to any extent on the details of his fishing trip, but said he had a fine time.

The William F. Monroe Cigar Company is making a run on the "Joy" cigar, the great little five-cent seller, which has long been popular with a certain element of the local trade, particularly in the Loop district.

George Parker, president of Thorwart & Roebling, with his family, is taking a vacation in California, thus escaping the wintry blasts of Chicago, which are beginning to make themselves felt around the corners.

Best & Russell Company have opened a new cigar store at Jackson Boulevard and La Salle Street, which is one of the finest of the many which the company has opened from

Morris Burke Features "Reynaldo" Cigars

The illustration herewith shows the interior of Morris Burke's cigar store at 108 West Third Street, Los Angeles, Cal., featuring the "Reynaldo" cigar and other brands of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb.

Mr. Burke has had phenomenal success with the "Reynaldo" cigar and he states that this display was the means of securing many new customers for the "Reynaldo" brand. Mr. Burke's store is considered to be one of the finest retail stands in Los Angeles, and the manufacturers of "Reynaldo" have been well pleased with the manner in which Mr. Burke has built up a trade on the "Reynaldo," "Copyright," "Piquant" and "Little Reynaldo" brands.

The Mussatti-Boggio Company are the jobbers for "Reynaldo" in Los Angeles and have been unusually successful in opening a large number of accounts.

"Harvester" Brand is Selling Big

An extensive posting campaign will be made in November by the Fay Lewis & Brothers Company, Milwaukee, Wis., on "Harvester" cigars, a twenty-four-sheet poster of attractive appearance being used. As an aid to the campaign, a special holiday window trim is being prepared for distribution among the "Harvester" boosters about the middle of next month. Good reports on the brand have been received from the Winston-Harper-Fisher Company, of Minneapolis, and Clarence Hirshhorn & Company, of Chicago, distributors for the "Harvester" in their respective fields.

Binghamton Firm Send Tobacco to Warring Armies

A large shipment of "B. W." smoking and chewing tobacco, manufactured by Frank A. Bronson, in Binghamton, N. Y., has been started for the front to be distributed among the German, Belgian, English and French soldiers now fighting in Europe.

Mr. Bronson's idea is not to sell, but to give the tobacco free to the soldiers. He believes that this tobacco will bring cheer to the soldiers in the trenches, and that "B. W." will be a welcome reinforcement in both camps.

Made-in-Bond Stamp Output

All told, the sales of made-in-bond stamps, since the law went into effect December 8, 1913, have aggregated about 1,500,000. This, then, is equal to saying that within the last ten months, bonded factories have turned out 1,500,000 boxes of cigars under the new custom. Reports from the various custom houses, place the total amount of sales of bonded stamps, starting with August 1st and up to the present time, at about half a million, an indication that business is increasing in the bonded factories, at least.

As announced, the price of bonded stamps has been reduced, and they may now be had at $1 per thousand. The Department at Washington, however, will make such refunds as are necessary, the first to receive attention probably being those cases where protests accompanied the requisitions for stamps.

Harry A. Levy was in Philadelphia this week looking after the interests of "The Truly Porto Rican House," Calenti & Cobas, 7 Cedar Street, New York City. This firm is rapidly coming to the front as importers of Porto Rican leaf tobacco and cigars.

Pittsburgh

"London Gold Tips" Well Displayed—"Charles Denby" Cigars Enjoy Heavy Call—May Drug Company Doing Well With "Reynaldo" Brand

PITTSBURGH, October 27.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh has not shown much of an improvement the last two weeks. However, most of the dealers are looking for a big holiday rush.

G. L. Storm, of the Tobacco Products Company, New York, paid a visit to Pittsburgh last week.

Somebody has surely been working London "Gold Tip" cigarettes, as many window displays are prominent in and about Pittsburgh. Somebody has said that R. A. Burke, of the Surbrug Company, has been working overtime, as this cigarette is making big progress in this locality.

R. F. Fennemore, representing the El Poderso Cigar Company, was in Pittsburgh with Charles Wilson, representing G. E. Bacharach, of Franklin, Pa., calling on the trade.

George W. Wilson, the popular McKeesport dealer, has just returned from a two-weeks' rest at the Royal Palace, Atlantic City.

L. A. Nimino will open on the first of November the finest cigar stand that McKeesport has ever enjoyed. It will be located in the Peoples Bank Building, Fifth Avenue and Walnut Street. Mr. Nimino is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He is well and popularly known at McKeesport, where he has a host of friends. He will feature "Cuesta Rey," "La Saramita," "Charles Denby" and "New Bachelor" cigars.

J. MacJones, of Washington, Pa., just placed his holiday order for "Saramita," "Denby" and "Cuesta Rey" cigars. Mac is becoming mighty popular with the W. & J. students.

D. S. Levy, who has opened the Court Cigar Store, in the Bakewell Building, is enjoying a nice sale on "Cuesta Reys" and "Saramita Fives."

C. H. Gerling, the popular jobber and retailer, of Martinsburg, W. Va., is enjoying a nice business on "Charles Denbys." Mr. Gerling and Mr. Sharples, of the Shipley-Massingham Company, have just finished some nice business in Martinsburg. V. T. Wolford & Son, of Cumberland, Md., have just opened the finest billiard hall and cigar store in this section of Maryland. "Cuesta Rey" and "Charles Denby" cigars are featured. Mr. Wolford is also jobbing "Denbys" in Cumberland.

Koermer & Hite, of Clarksburg, W. Va., have undoubtedly the finest billiard hall and cigar store in the state. The room is 140 feet long and 40 feet wide. "Cuesta Rey," "Court Royal" and "Charles Denby" cigars are being featured.

T. C. Helms, the old-timer, of Steubenville, O., is enjoying a big "Cuesta Rey" business.

A. S. Walker & Brother, of Cumberland, Md., have just installed a new marble and plate glass cigar case. This case was furnished by the Shipley-Massingham Company. They enjoy a nice business on "Saramitas."

The Hof Brau stand in the Diamond has a big run on "Saramitas."

J. M. Cook, Sons & Company, of Meyersdale, Pa., have just taken on the distribution of "La Saramita" cigars.

At the dinner tendered Frank L. Mulholland, International President of the Rotary Clubs, at the Fort Pitt Hotel, "Cuesta Rey" cigars were on the table.

Leo Spuhler has an attractive "Cuesta Rey" window.

The Antler Hotel is having a nice sale on "Charles Denby."

Sam Cohen, of Washington, Pa., was in town for a few days looking up his old friends and visiting some of the cigar jobbers. Mr. Cohen has the distribution in Washington, Greene and the country districts of Allegheny County on "Sam's Big Havanas," "John Ruskin," "El Verso" and "La Preferencia" cigars. He has an auto truck to deliver his orders. Mr. Cohen has been in the same location for fifteen years.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel is featuring "Penco" tobacco this week. This tobacco has the union label and is showing a nice increase in this locality.

"Muriel" is one of the most thoroughly distributed ten-cent cigars in Pittsburgh today, and from all indications is catching on fast. Siller-Narten-Barnes Company are distributors for this brand.

J. J. Collins, representing W. Duke, Sons & Company, is in town for a few days on his way West. He found a healthy increase on "Piedmont" and "Oasis" cigarettes in this district.

The May Drug Company report very satisfactory business on "Reynaldo" cigars. Mr. W. Arnheim, of the Arnheim-Herz Company, who are distributors for this brand, has shown some nice business on this brand.

Doc Easton, of the Falk Tobacco Company, has been in town for a few days in the interest of the Falk line. He is taking holiday orders on "Serene" and "Tarreyton" tobaccos.

Mr. Lasher, of A. Reuben & Company, calling on the downtown trade, will shortly go with the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company, in the same capacity. Mr. Lasher is well liked by the downtown trade.

The Afco Cigar Company have taken on the "Fifth Avenue" cigarette, made by the I. B. Krinsky Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.

W. W. Jacobs, representing Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, Pa., was in town for two weeks. While in town, Mr. Jacobs had some very nice window displays on "Rameses" cigarettes in the downtown section.

We are sorry to hear that Charles Vigor, representing Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company on this market, had to go to the West Penn Hospital, and perhaps be operated on for a serious ailment.

Reymer Brothers have a very nice window display of "Solace" cigars. They are also featuring "Stachelberg's Smokers" this week.

The following visitors were in town: B. F. Alexander, Fernandez Garcia Company, Havana; C. H. Heath, El Draco Cigar Company, Philadelphia; J. F. Nuntz, La Intridad Cigars, New York; A. Jacques, Simon Batt & Company, New York; S. M. Frank, Pipes, New York; H. Goldsmith, Pipes; New York; Victor Lopez, Garcia Grande, Tampa; H. Mills, Belinda Cigars, New York; C. A. Kutz, Reading, Pa.; B. J. Straus, Perfecto Garcia & Brother, Tampa; M. A. Jacobs, Porto Rico Cigars, New York.

Union-American Cigar Company Declares Dividend

The Union-American Cigar Company has declared its regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. (1¾%) on full shares of preferred stock of the company, to stockholders of record November 1st, payable November 15th.

Good Call for Pipes, Says Mr. Rothenberg

Alexander Rothenberg, manager of the Rothenberg & Schloss Cigar Company, Kansas City, Mo., states that there is a larger demand than ordinarily for pipes, which is probably accounted for by the fact that dealers are fearful of a shortage and a consequent raise in price. He reports that his company is well supplied with pipes and will be able to meet the demand for some time to come, at the old prices. Mr. Rothenberg says that business is very good in all lines.

Trade Jotings

H. E. Chamberlin succeeds to the business of Thompson & Son, at Palouse, Wash.

I. G. Crowe, of the American Tobacco Company, recently visited Lancaster, Pa., territory for the purpose of pushing the cigarettes manufactured by his company.

The Solis Cigar Company, Denver, Pa., is again working with a complete force. The company report that they have had a very good year thus far, and that it is their intention to break previous records, if possible.

Good business is reported on "Flor de Valentine," seed and Havana cigar, "Broadwell" and "Rosadora" brands, by A. S. Valentine & Son, Philadelphia. They report that their factories are running to capacities on these brands.

Peter M. Jacoy, Spokane, Wash., is reported as having risen rapidly in the jobbing ranks, and as doing a splendid wholesale business. His place is located at 402 Sprague Avenue.

The M. Melachrino Company, of Canada, recently declared a 5 per cent. quarterly dividend, which now places it on a 20 per cent. basis. It is stated that all of the stock is owned by the Tobacco Products Company.

A recent visitor to New York City for an inspection of its leaf market, was the well-known John O'Brien, manager of the Monroe Leaf Tobacco Company, located at No. 1 Mt. Hope Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

A good business is reported at Nashville, Tenn., by the Matthews-Phillips Company, wholesale distributor in that territory of the "Charles Denby," manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.

W. Anagnosti, president of the Arabesca Cigarette Company, Incorporated, who has been soliciting the more important New York dealers during the past fortnight, in the interests of the "Arabesca" cigarette, reports that he is pleased with the repeat orders which he has obtained from some of the better class stores.

As the result of a fall from the roof of his residence to the brick sidewalk, recently, at Paris, Ky., serious injuries were sustained by John T. Collins, president of the Bourbon County Tobacco Warehouse Company, and a director of the Burley Tobacco Society. Mr. Collins is a large grower of tobacco.

Frank Rowland, Lopez, Hermanos y Ca., manufacturers of the favorite "Reyes de Espana," was a recent visitor to Boston, Mass., where he spent a few days calling on the trade. In spite of the hard times said to be existing in the West, Mr. Rowland stated that he obtained a fair business response in that territory.

The "International Rotary Cigar," a high-grade Havana, and endorsed by the National Rotary Clubs of America, and sold exclusively to Rotarian cigar merchants throughout the United States, came in for good work at the hands of Frank A. Rian, on his recent visit to Portland, Ore. Mr. Rian, who represents Quiros, Villazon & Company, Tampa, placed the line with Sig. Sichel & Company, Portland, Mr. Sichel being a Rotary cigar member.

Benson & Hedges New Packing Wins on Coast

Harry F. Adams, Western representative of Benson & Hedges cigarettes, who arrived in Portland over a fortnight or so ago, offered to the local trade a new package which is having quite a sale in the California cities. It consists of the regular No. 1 cigarette packed in cedar boxes containing fifty and one hundred of the little smokes. November 1st, Mr. Adams moves on to Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, for the purpose of introducing his cedar packages. He plans to arrive in Los Angeles about the Christmas holidays.

New Wholesale Firm

The Van Antwerp Wholesale Drug Company, Mobile, Ala., has filed incorporation papers. They will engage in a general wholesale business. The new concern, which is already occupying the new four-story building at southeast St. Louis and Royal Streets, has an authorized capital stock of $100,000, of which $50,000 is paid in. The incorporators and officers are: Andrew Van Antwerp, president; S. H. Colvin, vice-president; J. C. Van Antwerp, secretary and treasurer; Garrett Van Antwerp, Daniel Van Antwerp.

"Picadura Imports" Sell Well in Seattle

"Picadura Imports," jobbed by the J. G. Cohen Cigar Company, Seattle, Wash., and recently introduced in that territory by Louis Cohn, of L. Newburger Brothers & Company, Cincinnati, O., are meeting with much success. During the past month a very vigorous advertising campaign has been waged on the brand, seconded by attractive window displays, which have done much for the popularity of "Picadura Imports."

Muskogee Manufacturer Increases Output

P. F. Zipf, a cigar manufacturer of Muskogee, Okla., recently completed a deal whereby the Mid-West Fruit Company will take 10,000 of Zipf's "Hand-Made" five-cent cigars a week. The company will put this cigar out with their traveling men and expect to build up a good trade on this brand in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Mr. Zipf states that should business continue good he will be compelled to enlarge his factory in order to keep up with orders. In addition to the "Hand-Made" brand, the factory produces "Cigaro Del Contento," a ten-cent Havana cigar, and "Oklahoma Punch," which sells for a nickel.

"Charles Denby" Business Growing

According to a recent statement of John Fendrich, owner of the Fendrich cigar factories, business is showing no falling off in their sales. On the contrary, the "Charles Denby" cigar, their well-known nickel seller, is rapidly growing in favor. According to Mr. Fendrich, the business is 15 to 20 per cent. better than last year this time.

Liggett & Myers Get New Cigarette

It has been announced from New York that the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, of 212 Fifth Avenue, has secured the factory and selling rights of Vafiadis & Company, Turkish manufacturers of "Vafiadis" cigarettes. This brand has for several years been numbered among the best known and leading cigarettes imported into this country. This high-grade twenty-five cent cigarette is now being made and introduced by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. The goods come in ten's, plain or cork-tipped, wholesaling at $18.00, and in turn are retailed at twenty-five cents per pack. With the concentrated selling and advertising resources which this well-known company is putting behind the new brand, the "Vafiadis" cigarettes are bound to become more popular than they formerly were.

CHICAGO

time to time in this city. The establishment will handle all of the popular lines of the company, being located in a district which is filled with grain brokers and attorneys, the high-grade lines will be the most featured, however.

William Levinson, of the firm of J. Bernheim & Son, is visiting friends in the local trade this week. Mr. Levinson said that the Middle West conditions in Havana leaf were to his satisfaction.

Commercial travelers are still hot in protest against the increase in mileage rates which has been made by the railroads. Little headway is being made, unfortunately.

The National Buffet & Restaurant Company has incorporated in Chicago for $1000 to transact a business in liquor, beers, wines, cigars and tobaccos. The incorporators are Maurice Gevirtz, Barron V. Baskin and E. V. Bradley. It is understood that the company will select a good location not far from the Loop district and will handle a fine line of imported cigars. Mr. Gevirtz and Mr. Baskin have had some experience in the cigar business.

The cigar stands of the Loop district, some of them, are now featuring Wall's "Court Havanas." This is the first appearance of these cigars in any force in the city. They are being distributed by O. Schrader & Company.

The National Dairy Show has attracted thousands of rural visitors to the city during the past week, and several jobbers' salesmen said that retailers in the neighborhood of the Union Stockyards had been doing a big business. Five-cent brands are in biggest demand by this trade, owing to the sway which the nickel favorites hold in the rural districts.

"The House That Jack Built" has gone into the hands of a receiver. This is the large and elaborate road house that was erected at an enormous cost on the north side several months ago. The public did not patronize the place to the extent that it was expected, and the failure came about as a result of small receipts.

The Consumers' Cigar Company opened for business on Saturady, October 17th, at 228 East Fifty-first Street. The plan is for consumers to buy cigars direct from the manufacturer at "wholesale" prices. The company makes up special orders in any shape or size desired. L. Strauss is proprietor and B. Strauss manager.

Leopold & Mergenthau will leave their location in the Medinah Building, where they have been for some time, in a few weeks. The new location has not been selected, although several are being considered.

Inquiries among the manufacturers establish the fact that there will be fewer holiday packages this year than usual. It has about been decided by the manufacturers that special packages for the holiday trade alone do not pay, and the chances are that fewer will be seen on the market this year even than last year. The manufacturers are coming to believe that the holiday period offers a good opportunity to make their regular brands popular throughout at least half of the year. By putting the same money and effort into advertising these regular brands it is believed that much better results can be secured.

Holiday orders are beginning to pour into the office of E. E. Condax & Company, 222 North State, as the season for the big trade approaches. The demand for all varieties of the famous "Condax" cigarettes is stronger this fall than for a long time. The local demand is particularly brisk, and the cigar stand trade is heavy.

DETROIT

was installed in the store and each play was announced a minute after it was made. The following letter was received a few days ago from Jay G. Moorehouse, manager of the Battle Creek store: "A week before the series we started a guessing contest. To the person guessing nearest to the total number of runs, hits and errors made by both teams during the entire series, we offered to give ten dollars in trade; second prize, five dollars in trade; third prize, three dollars in trade, and fourth prize, two dollars in trade. We distributed thirty-five hundred guessing slips, and out of that number we had twenty-nine hundred and eight guesses deposited at our store. This contest created a vast interest." The Battle Creek store carries a large line of clear Havana cigars, including "Herman Cortez," "La Venga," "La Verdad," "Corina," "La Mega," "Webster," "Ben Bey," "Henry the Fourth," "Charles the Great," "Optimo," "Juan De Fuca," "Bull Dog," "Baron De Kalb," "First Consul," "Garcia Brothers," "Tadema," "La Matilda," "Sanchez y Haya," "Regensburgs," "El Principe De Gales" and "Lopez Espira." Also a full line of domestic and Porto Rican brands. Pretty good line for a small town, eh?

Sam Cohen, who conducts a cigar store at 148 Brush Street, Detroit, was beaten and robbed in his place of business, on October 9th, of $252 in cash and a $500 diamond ring.

An announcement of great interest has been made by The San Etta Cigar Company, 801 Hastings Street, Detroit, controlled by Charles F. and Moses A. LaFond. This company is preparing to conduct a big mail order business, selling twenty-five "San Etta" cigars, packed in a cedar-lined, moisture-proof, metal container, for one dollar, parcel post prepaid. An extensive magazine campaign of advertising will be started about the first of December. The company recently increased its capital stock from $30,000 to $60,000, and is now offering this extra stock for sale at par value.

Jay Marlatt has opened the new Arcade cigar store in the Powers Theatre Building Arcade, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Traveling men for cigar concerns are now endeavoring to place their lines with the new Detroit Athletic Club, which is erecting a million dollar club house on John R. and Madison Streets, and which will be ready in January. Charles A. Hughes is secretary of the club. It will be one of the most exclusive athletic clubs in the country.

H. A. Bercu has been appointed division manager for the American Tobacco Company, succeeding A. J. Racow in Michigan. Mr. Bercu was formerly in the cigarette department, with headquarters at Indianapolis. L. A. Metzger and W. H. Canfield have joined the sales force under Mr. Bercu.

Manuel Boutette succeeds Frank Smith as manager of the Hammond Building cigar stand of the M. A. LaFond Company.

The G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, of Grand Rapids, reports that in six months from April 4th, over 200,000 "Dutch Master" seconds have been sold.

Gaylord Drake, at Kendall and Roseneath Streets, Battle Creek, has added a cigar department to his barber shop.

Edward Clauser and William Caugherty, of Benton Harbor, Mich., have formed a copartnership and purchased the stock of the De Luxe branch of the Columbian United Cigar Store, and will continue the business under the same style.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

A Thanksgiving Premium

Cigar and tobacco dealers who are anxious for something more than the usual increased business that is incident to Thanksgiving Day, might follow the example set by the New England dealer, where this feast originated, and offer a carving set for the return of a given number of sales checks, coupons or cash register receipts.

The dealer whom we have in mind, was the first dealer in the cigar trade to make this timely bid for business, and the percentage of new business was beyond his greatest expectation, and a very fair number of the new customers developed into regular patrons, and have been good boosters for that particular smoke shop.

Cigar Dealer Gives Boudoir Caps

There is one tobacconist that can attribute a certain measure of his success to the giving of boudoir caps. This dealer had gone to considerable expense installing humidors, moistening devices and display cases, that would keep the cigar as nearly perfect as might be, but the residents of the newly built section where the store was located were slow to call and see what admirable arrangements had been made for the care of their favorite brands.

The wife of the dealer spent some weeks in the spring at a nearby summer resort recuperating from an attack of fever that had necessitated the clipping of her hair, and upon her return, she took the air on the porch with the cap worn at the shore.

There was an immediate inquiry from all over the neighborhood, and her husband was quick enough to seize upon the plan of offering a cap when a purchase of one dollar was made.

There was not a great deal of profit from this transaction, it is true, but when the men realized what an up-to-the-minute store was situated at their very doors, and the same prices prevailed as in the downtown sections, they were not long in giving their full support for its maintenance.

School Bags for Coupons

While it is true that an appeal directed to the women members of the smoker's family will bring splendid results, it must also be borne in mind, that a publicity campaign that will benefit the boys and girls of a neighborhood will produce satisfactory results.

One cigar and tobacco dealer in Indiana has advertised that school bags for boys and girls will be given for cash register slips totaling a certain amount.

This offering is timely, for weather conditions warrant the wearing of gloves, and school books are less easily handled when the hands are encased in gloves or mittens, and a receptacle that will properly hold the usual school paraphernalia, and in many instances the lunch, is bound to secure well merited success.

Griddle Irons for Cash Payments

Coincident with the appearance of the buckwheat advertisements are the scrapple and sausage ads, and one cigar and tobacco dealer whose place of business is in the colder portion of the Keystone State, conceived the idea of giving a premium of a cast iron aluminum griddle with the return of a given number of sales slips.

Many of his customers were wage earners who were paid but twice a month, it being the habit to settle all bills when the regular pay days came around, so as an inducement for paying cash for goods purchased on one certain pay day, the added offer of a griddle was made.

To those customers who would sometimes pay but a part of their accrued debts, these offers acted as a stimulus for full payment, for the offer was void unless the entire balance was wiped out.

* * *

Women's Articles Win Trade

The advent of November is not too soon to plan for the annual holiday trade, and many dealers have become aware of the fact that articles for the individual use of the feminine members of the smoker's family have proven good business getters.

Most of these articles are redeemable for the return of coupons or other evidences that goods to the value of a given amount has been purchased in the dealer's store.

In many cases, too, the appeal for business, and the advertising matter has been so addressed as to reach the women, and permit them to offer the suggestion that these articles may be had without extra cost without touching the funds for household expenses.

* * *

Vacuum Cleaner Tobacconist's Offer

Men who have studied premium giving, are unanimous in their opinion that the store which follows this plan should see to it that their premiums are not in any case goods that are sold over their own counters, as this would mean a reduction and loss in the profit to be obtained from the sale of such articles.

This is comparatively easy to cigar and tobacco dealers, though many have pipes that are used for this method. The dealer who conceived the idea of starting an early campaign for the benefit of the housewives of his vicinity, by offering carpet sweepers for the return of a given number of coupons which must be shown to represent purchases from her immediate family, was following this advice to a nicety.

An order for a vacuum cleaner can also be secured upon the presentation of a given number of coupons, this dealer's idea being to secure continued patronage from as many of the smokers in his locality as possible.

San Francisco

Prohibition Agitation Causes Anxiety in Trade—Mattheas & Company Distributing "Savaronas"—Steamer "Mongolia" Brings in Manila Goods

SAN FRANCISCO, October 20.

WITH election day now only a few days off, the wholesale trade is awaiting the issue with a lot of interest, not to say anxiety; and the wholesale houses that are accustomed to do a large business with the saloon trade in California or elsewhere on the Coast are holding in their efforts until after the election is over. Throughout the Coast, in the four states of Washington, Oregon, California and Arizona, the question of state-wide prohibition is up for decision; and some wholesalers are inclined to think that prohibition will carry in some of the states at least, though hopes are general that California itself will escape. Already the prohibition agitation has had a bad effect on credits in the interior, and should the "drys" win it will mean a considerable readjustment in a number of sections.

The completion of the California Northwestern Railroad to Eureka, on the northern California coast, will eliminate the Humboldt County trip as a unique feature of the California cigar trade. Humboldt County has long been a fine cigar market, and its isolated position necessitating a steamboat trip has given added interest. The first passenger train over the completed line will be run this week. It has been chartered by the Humboldt County Association, and the passengers will be limited to two hundred and fifty. Among these will be Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, wholesale cigar men of this city. Mr. Judell has made the trip by steamer many times, and proposes to celebrate the more convenient mode of travel by presenting every member of the excursion with a package of "Webster" cigars. While away, Mr. Judell will call on his trade at Eureka and other points in the Humboldt country.

The arrival of the trans-Pacific steamer "Mongolia" this week from Manila, brought some relief to the San Francisco importers of Manila cigars, who had begun to run decidedly short of their favorite lines. There were considerable stocks of Manila goods in the hands of the importers when the war broke out, and it was generally believed that an actual shortage would be avoided in spite of the interference with shipping. Now, however, the shortage appears to be fast becoming an actuality.

J. F. Nolting, former Collector of Internal Revenue at Manila, P. I., who is well known in the cigar trade and who has been on the Pacific Coast for some time, will return to the Islands on the "Mongolia" in a few days.

Carlson & Lewis have bought out the cigar and tobacco business of Wise & Woodward at San Francisco.

W. I. Wooten, of Modesto, Cal., has been in San Francisco this week visiting the trade and getting pointers on the fall outlook and the best way of cigar merchandising.

F. C. Duncan, a cigar dealer of Livermore, Cal., is spending a few days in San Francisco this week.

H. H. Manley, Pacific Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, is now in Portland on one of his regular tours of the Pacific Northwest. He will go as far north as Seattle, Wash., before returning to his San Francisco headquarters.

Arthur Meyer, Pacific Coast representative of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is now working his trade in Central California, and expects to get away for the northern end of the Coast soon after the first of November. He prefers to wait till after the election decides the prohibition question before making this northern trip.

Edward Wolf, president of the Edward Wolf Company, California and Front Street jobbers, is now getting about on crutches, but has not yet made his appearance at the store. He hopes to get into business more or less next week.

The H. W. Foster cigar business at Los Angeles has been sold to E. O. Thomas of the same city.

C. Maxwell, a retailer of Front and Market Streets, is showing a handsome window display this week of the "Tadema" cigars, which are distributed in this territory by the Edward Wolf Company. Mr. Maxwell is having a good run on the "La Insular" Manila cigarettes.

Henry Esberg, vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, of New York, is in San Francisco this week visiting with M. A. Gunst & Company, of which he is also a director.

Arthur Bachman, president of S. Bachman & Company, and Mrs. Bachman, have arrived in America from their adventurous and rudely interrupted trip to Europe. They will return to San Francisco early in November if nothing happens.

The Bercovich Company, which earlier in the month took a lease on the small store at the foot of Market Street, at one of the highest rentals ever paid here for a similar piece of property, has now secured a lease on what will be its fourth Market Street location. The latest store is on Market Street near First, in front of the Plymouth Cafateria. Considerable alteration of the premises will be necessitated, and it will be several weeks before the new store is open.

R. V. Morrison, traveling man for the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, of Porto Rico, has been visiting this week with Charles Mattheas & Company, the local distributors of the Cayey-Caguas "Savarona" line of cigars.

M. A. Gunst & Company got in a fine big shipment of their "Alhambra" line of Manila cigars on the last steamer, most of which have already been shipped out to waiting customers. This house is putting in some attractive "Alhambra" window displays this week.

C. C. Grantland has the exclusive cigar privileges of the Second Annual Industrial Fair in the Coliseum this week. Mr. Grantland is confining his attention exclusively to the "Webster" cigar of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, which is distributed in this territory by H. L. Judell & Company.

"Life," New Panatela-Shaped Cigar

"Life" is the new cigar recently put on the market by Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, Richmond, Va., and is packed seven in a slide box, retailing for fifteen cents the package.

"Life" is a panatela-shaped cigar and is said to be a short, mild, delicious smoke, and it is these qualities that have been responsible for the instantaneous success of this brand.

The factory advises that it is heavily oversold, but that they are increasing their capacity to care for the growing business, as fast as possible.

Larus Brothers Salesman Weds

William C. Custer, who represents Larus Brothers & Company, tobacco manufacturers, of Richmond, Va., was recently married to Miss Florence Cline, at the home of the bride's brother in Allouez, Mich.

Mr. Custer has headquarters in Minneapolis, but has been traveling the upper peninsula for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Custer will make their home in Minneapolis.

Cleveland

Carnival Week in "Heart of Cleveland"—A. C. Wertheim Back With Big Orders—Pyle & Allen Have Attractive Displays

CLEVELAND, O., October 28.

THIS is Carnival Week in the so-called "Heart of Cleveland," centering around East Fifty-fifth Street and extending from Forty-sixth to Sixty-sixth on Euclid and from Perkins to Carnegie Avenues on the north and south, respectively. This carnival started on the twenty-sixth and will extend through to the thirty-first. Among the merchants interested in this project are Ed I. Polster, with two cigar stores, located one at Euclid and East Fifty-fifth Street, and the other at 5507 Euclid Avenue; Stace & Vincent, 5720 Euclid Avenue; Mr. Winger, of the Winger Pharmacy, located at Fifty-fifth and Euclid; Sam Cohn, located at Fifty-ninth and Euclid, and M. Friedman, at Sixty-fifth and Euclid. This celebration is the result of this section of the city being again opened up for business after being tied up through grade crossing work and street repaving since 1911, and having done thousands of dollars worth of damage to all merchants in this section. The windows are being displayed with all kinds of merchandise, and for the best window there are cash prizes offered. All the above-mentioned merchants have beautiful windows of cigars and sundries and are out for the first prize, as are also The Shields-Wertheim Company, with several wonderful displays of "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" throughout the section.

Business the past few weeks has been nothing to brag about. The only thing you hear around this vicinity is the wet and dry issue which comes up at the election on November 3d. This not alone affects the saloon interests, but involves practically all the interests throughout the city, and is having a great effect on the cigar dealers.

The liquor licenses were issued on the twenty-seventh, and all that were fortunate enough to have previously secured licenses were again awarded licenses with the exception of eight. There will be thirty-six new licenses awarded, due to the increase in population. These names have not as yet been announced.

Chief Rowe has again become active on the state law prohibiting the giving away of pennants, rugs, coupons, premiums or trade certificates with cigarettes. All the dealers have again been warned against violating this law and Chief Rowe states that if any further violation occurs, dealers giving away these premiums will be arrested and fined. The police force has become active and many plain clothes men are scouring the city to locate any violators of the law. This is pretty hard on the wholesale firms here, as in other sections of the state coupons are being given and if they are to be taken out here, merchants will secure their cigarettes from outside dealers, and, therefore, hamper Cleveland's interests.

The week of the nineteenth, Pyle & Allen surprised local dealers by having a most attractive display of homespun cigars in their Hippodrome stand. They had the window displayed with home-spuns and in the center was a Quaker girl running a spinning wheel and dressed in a Quaker garment. This display caused no end of comment and attracted large crowds daily. This week they are displaying "Bull Durham" tobacco and have a man sitting in the window demonstrating how to roll cigarettes. The above-mentioned firm are enjoying a nice business both in the wholesale and retail ends of their business. They are up to the minute in every respect and are showing the merchants of Cleveland a novel way of selling goods both in the retail and wholesale end, as they have a mechanical man traveling with their Mr. Johnson, state representative for the house, advertising the "New Bachelor" cigar, made by Victor Thorsch. Victor Thorsch is here the past week and expresses himself as well satisfied with business conditions throughout this territory.

Stace & Vincent are doing a nice jobbing business on their "Stavinas" and "Percy Haswells," and Burn One Vincent, as the trade calls Mr. Vincent, is sure of burning them up on the above-mentioned brands and also on "Sonadas."

A. C. Wertheim, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has just returned from a short trip in Michigan and brought back an astounding lot of orders for "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." J. B. Shields and Bert Smith, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, are making a campaign throughout the Central States, and by the size of the orders they are sending in daily shows the conditions throughout this section of the country must be normal.

Fred Singer, of S. Rossins & Son, was in town the past week.

Sam Cohn has opened up his new bowling alleys at Fifty-seventh and Euclid and has the finest equipped establishment outside of the downtown district. Mr. Cohn is wide awake and is fast winning a big trade for his new store.

George B. Scrambling, of the George B. Scrambling Company, of 1422 West Third Street, reports business as being good, and that he has already started on his holiday orders, and the way they are coming in looks as though he will surpass his previous high mark of last year by a big margin.

I. J. Mittelberger, local cigar man, has just returned from a trip through the West.

Morris Treuhoft, formerly connected with the London Whiff Cigar Company, is now manufacturing the "Moses Cleveland" cigar.

Lecture Course for Retail Clerks

An announcement that should be of decided interest to the trade was made within the past fortnight, to the effect that a number of Brooklyn retailers have banded together for the purpose of providing a lecture course that will prove of great value to retail clerks and store owners. The retailers who have allied themselves with the movement are Nicholas Ehrlich, Herman Friedlander, L. J. Levin, Harry Greenberg and Charles Freund. It is the intention of the committee to hold one lecture each week for twenty weeks, each lecture to consume one hour, the time to be devoted to topics of particular interest to the tobacco trade. They will embrace, also, the technical details relative to storekeeping, to include buying as well as selling. Plans are now being arranged for the lectures, and it is understood that the lecturers in most instances will be men affiliated with the larger tobacco companies. This list will probably include, also, certain of the managers of the United, Schulte and Edwin chains. The subscription to the entire course is placed at $5.

Henry Deisel, Sr., Heads Lima Club

Henry Deisel, Sr., president of the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Company, manufacturers of the well-known "San Felice" and other brands, has recently been elected president of the Lima Club, of Lima, O.

Rosenfeld, Smith & Company, Portland, Ore., are the new Oregon jobbers of the well-known "New Bachelor" cigar, manufactured by T. J. Dunn & Company.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, October 23.

LITTLE change has taken place in our market since the last fortnight, as the total amount of sales is only a little below the previous two weeks, and the bulk consisted again of the lower grades of leaf in Remedios and Vuelta Abajo, destined for the Spanish Regie and our local cigarette factories. American buyers from the North seem to be still scared to come here, although we cannot understand the reason why they should hesitate from making their accustomed trips to our city. Prices are certainly low enough, and there is a good selection of all the different kinds to choose from, while later on the chances are decidedly more in favor of higher figures, at least for all styles of the better vegas. With any kind of only a fair demand, the buyers themselves will advance the ruling figures at present, as the available quantity of real good leaf is not abundant, the medium and poor grades predominating in all sections.

As far as the coming crop is concerned, we can state that there has been a continuous emigration from the Vuelta Abajo to the eastern provinces of our island, where the sugar crop offers sufficient work and good wages to all comers, therefore it is but natural that the vegueros should flee from a poverty stricken section, where starvation stares in their faces, and flock to the land of milk and honey. The Governor of the province of Havana, in accordance with the ideas of the Secretary of Agriculture, has advised all the vegueros of the Partido districts not to plant tobacco this year, but to devote their fields to the raising of vegetables and fruits, which might find a paying market abroad; or, if not, they can surely count upon our home demand. Half of the Partido crop is still in the hands of the vegueros or storekeepers, which had advanced money upon it, and there are no buyers at almost any price, as the leaf is faulty more or less. The good part has been sold to a large extent. There are even bundles of leaf which may be fit for nothing else than manure. The Remedios crop is also to a large extent still in the hands of the vegueros, or country packers, and as there is a certain percentage of faulty leaf, the good, heavy bodied part will not be sold at too low a figure. The farmers that sold their crops early to our city packers at fair prices might be induced to raise another crop, while the majority that has not yet disposed of its holdings is discouraged, and will not plant this season, therefore Remedios may be also only a small crop in 1915.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 12,765 bales, which were divided among: Vuelta Abajo and Semi-Vuelta, 5106; Partido, 1604, and Remedios, 6055 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 5098; exporters to Europe, 4091; shippers to South America, 425, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 3151 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from October 5th to October 17th, totaled 9035 bales, which were distributed to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 4771; to Spain, 3621; to London, England, 2; to Gibraltar, 40; to Mexico, 50, and to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 551 bales.

Cigars.

So far there has been no change in our cigar industry, although as long as the holiday orders last for the United States and Canada, most of our factories are fairly busy, and after they are filled, it remains to be seen whether something may turn up in the meantime to keep them busy, or whether they will have to close down again, as they did in the month of August. There are some small orders from Great Britain, some of the South American Republics, and Australia, while Spain continues to receive our dark colored cigars, and while everything helps, and small favors are thankfully received, they are, however, unfortunately not uniformly distributed.

H. Upmann & Company have been working comparatively strong, and during the past fortnight they shipped forty-seven cases, containing 282,850 cigars, cleared for Denmark. Some people imagined that this shipment meant the opening up of a new market, but we ascertained that in reality these cigars had been previously ordered (before the outbreak of the war) by a German importer, who did a large trade with the Scandinavian countries, and in order to fill this demand they were consigned to his Copenhagen agent, to be distributed by him.

The Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, shipped about a million cigars to London, which had been made in July already, and which orders were canceled at the outbreak of the war, but the cigars had been placed in the refrigerating plant of the customhouse, to prevent them from becoming worm-eaten, and as soon as the London importers gave the order to forward the cigars, they were taken out of bond and shipped to England.

Romeo y Julieta is working steadily with the same forces as heretofore, having enough good orders to be filled yet, naturally taking into consideration the decreased demand all over the world, on account of the war.

Partagas is also standing in the front rank of our busy factories, having good orders for the United States, Canada, South America and Australia.

Sol, Castañeda, Flor del Fumar, and other factories are working fairly well.

A short time ago, the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, issued its Manual for the fiscal year 1913-1914, and which is replete in its one hundred and forty-two pages of interesting details. This association has completed twenty-seven years of its existence, and has always defended the interests of the cigar and cigarette industry, with more or less varied success, as, unfortunately, our different governments have not always listened to the demands to benefit the second largest source of our national wealth. President Teodore Garbade reviewed in seventy-seven pages the history of the past year, which, unfortunately, owing to the failure of the present government to comply with its promises, has not resulted in the establishment of a new reciprocity treaty between the United States and Cuba (being so badly needed), nor has the modus vivendi with Spain been concerted. There are many voluminous matters, handled in a masterful way, by the board of directors, which, however, may have less interest for American readers, so we omit speaking about them. The treasurer's report shows a balance on hand of about $10,000 in currency and Spanish gold upon June 30, 1914, which is a very fair showing, but unfortunately since the outbreak of the great war, the income of the association has diminished to such an extent that it does not cover the regular monthly expenses, so the outlook is rather pessimistic for the balance of the year. In the Appendix forty-six pages are devoted to the various expositions and messages exchanged between the union, the President of the Republic and the Secretary of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, as well as the President of the Republic of Panama. The last six pages contain valuable statistics of the production of the crop of tobacco in the Island of Cuba, for the last thirteen years, exports and interior consumption, with the weights and values in dollars. This valuable work has been furnished by Don Ramon La Villa, editor of "El Tabaco." Don Teodore Garbade was re-elected as president during the running year; Don Ramon Argüelles was elected as the first vice-president; Don Nicolas de Cardenas, as second vice-president for cigars, and Don Florentin Mantilla was re-elected as second vice-president for cigarettes, while the capable and hard-working Don José C. Beltrons continued as the secretary of the union.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez really deserves the thanks of our leaf dealers, as through their continuous buying for the Spanish Regie, they are supporting the market at least for the lower grades, their purchases during the fortnight reaching a trifle over 4000 bales.

Joseph Frankfort bought about his usual yearly supply for the production of his famous "Rio Vista" cigars, from the genuine old-style tobacco, which he is in the habit of selecting. We understood his purchases reached close on to 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Celestino Vega purchased 890 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf for his "La Venga" brand, which is steadily gaining in popularity.

José C. Puente & Company were sellers of 650 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios leaf to their customers during the past two weeks.

Walter Sutter & Company bought around 700 bales of leaf of various kinds, for account of their customers.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 250 bales of Remedios, of the low grades, to their clients during the last two weeks.

Leslie Pantin, we understand, has made some heavy purchases of leaf for account of his customers in the North, which shall amount to over 2000 bales when registered and received in his warehouse, and upon which work he is now very busily engaged.

H. H. Strater has been a seller of 250 bales of his fine Manicaragua packing during the past fortnight.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez	5,201 bales
Maximilian Stern	1,005 "
Leslie Pantin	865 "
Ernest Ellinger & Company	512 "
Virgilio Suarez	472 "
J. Bernheim & Son	225 "
Allones, Limited	220 "

Consider Union for Machine Cigarmakers

Members of the Cigarmakers' International Union are said to be considering an amendment to their constitution that will make possible the organization of the machine cigarmakers of the country.

It is stated that such an amendment will affect about 80,000 cigarmakers in the United States and Canada.

The amendment provides for the admittance of girls into the union at a reduced rate, and the abolishment of the sick and out-of-work dues now paid by male members. Men now pay dues of thirty cents a week, which entitles them to sick and out-of-work benefits, strike benefits, traveling loans and a death benefit of $500.

The amendment provides for the admission of girls at the rate of fifteen cents a week and provides for the payment of strike benefits, a reduced traveling loan and a $75 death benefit, only.

Key West

No Change in Trade Conditions Here—E. H. Gato Factory Feels Holiday Impetus

KEY WEST, FLA., October 26.

THERE has been no change for the better in the trade situation here since last report. While additions to force has been made at a few shops, at others a large reduction has taken place, something unusual at this period of the year, when all the factories are working at full strength.

M. F. McLeod, representing the American Tobacco Company, was in town recently booming the business of his house.

One of the liveliest of local cigar manufacturing firms is the Ruy Lopez Company. They are daily adding to their force on the cigarmaking floor and are carrying a large force in other departments. Mr. and Mrs. John Wardlow are back from a visit to Cuba. During Mr. Wardlow's stay in the Cuban capital he put in his time in the selection and purchase of tobacco for the use of his house.

The plan to raise $35,000 for a Florida State Building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, which is scheduled to be held at San Francisco, Cal., in 1915, has fallen through. The commissioners who were appointed by the governor to visit every section of the state for the purpose of raising the amount needed, last week made their report in which they stated that owing to the European war and various other causes, that they had found it utterly impossible to awaken sufficient enthusiasm in the people. Therefore Florida will have no building at the show, but there will be exhibits from the state, nevertheless.

At a called meeting of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, held on the morning of the thirteenth instant, for the purpose of going over the plan of a couple of newspaper men for advertising and increasing the demand for the Key West cigars in sections of the country which are now fully covered, nothing definite was done. Another meeting will be called later on, when the matter will be gone into further.

Vice-president Eduardo H. Gato, Jr., and Secretary Thomas H. Gato, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, got back last week from Havana, where they went to take part in the birthday celebration of E. H. Gato, Sr. Frank H. Gato is expected to reach town this week from Cuba. He will be accompanied by his family and they will make a long stay. At the factory the trade status is excellent, and a large force is being carried in both main building and annex. They also have a large force of strippers enrolled and large shipments are being made, especially to the Pacific Coast, to S. Bachman & Company.

Olive-drab uniforms will be worn by all men of the passenger service of the Florida East Coast Railway System in the future. This is an idea of General Manager Morton Riddle, as he considers it a most serviceable uniform for this climate.

Jose Torano, of Jose Torano & Son, is back from a short business trip to Miami, Fla. He reports a successful trip.

President A. W. Arnold, of the Mi Favorita Cigar Company, left last week for Havana, where he will put in several days in the selection and purchase of leaf which will be used in the make-up of the house's famous "Mi Favorita" brand.

The Key West Cigar Factory closes down for a day on Thursday as a mark of respect to the memory of Judge L. W. Bethel, father-in-law of E. M. Phillips, president of the company, who was interred here that afternoon, having passed away on Wednesday evening. Mr. Bethel was one of our most prominent citizens and at the time of his death was judge of the Circuit Court of this district.

The Collector of Customs at this port received orders last week from headquarters reducing the price for bonded stamps from $10 per thousand to $1 per thousand. This was gratifying news to managers of bonded factories, who always considered that the charge of $10 per thousand was exceedingly excessive. It is also understood that the department will rebate the manufacturer for all stamps purchased in the past. This will be quite a neat little sum.

At the factory of the Cortez Cigar Company a large force is being carried in both main building and annex.

Red Lion Firm Reduces Wages

C. N. Foreman & Company, listed among the larger cigar manufacturers of Red Lion, Pa., recently announced a reduction in wages among the bunch-breakers and rollers, the decrease for the latter averaging from six cents to fifteen cents per day, and twenty cents to thirty-five cents for the bunch-breakers. The reduction is one cent on the hundred. Bunch-breakers will hereafter receive eight cents instead of nine cents per hundred. General hard times and the dullness prevailing in the cigar manufacturing business, is given as the reason for the decrease. C. N. Foreman & Company employ about seventy-five cigarmakers, with an output of 75,000 cigars per day.

Tampa

Business Good and Manufacturers Optimistic—Board of Trade Protests Against Foreign Mail Order Business —Charles J. Castillo Back From Successful Trip

TAMPA, October 28.

THERE is no stretching the truth in stating that business among the cigar manufacturers here in Tampa is good. Of course, the receipts for 1914 have not equalled those for 1913, but considering the general depression prevailing, the manufacturers are very optimistic. Though the cigars thus far manufactured are behind, in numbers, those of the previous year, the increase in trade during the past fortnight encourages the manufacturers to believe that the total of cigars manufactured for 1914 will, at least, average the same as in 1913. Another encouraging indication, is that the Jose Escalente factory recently reported 529 men at work, while reports from the factories of Sanchez y Haya, Cuesta, Rey & Company, A. Santaella & Company, S. I. Davis & Company, and others, are to the effect that they are employing as many or more men than they were in 1913. From the Santaella factory, the statement has been issued that thus far, this year, the business done has overlapped that of last year. Surely! good news.

The Jose Lovera Company, manufacturers of the well-known "Lovera" cigar, have placed on the market their beautiful "The Lovera Girl," a pastel, which is being given in exchange for bands from "Lovera" cigars. It is well worth framing.

E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the Sanchez y Haya Company, is back again from his recent trip to Chicago and Atlanta.

George L. Harris, Jr., for the past several years Florida state manager for the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, and one of the best known traveling men in Florida, has returned to his home in Montgomery for a long vacation. Mr. Harris has been in ill health for two or three months and is taking a rest upon his physician's advice.

Frank Diaz, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, manufacturers of the well-liked "La Mega," is back in Tampa, having recently returned from a trip to New York City, where he found quite a satisfactory condition of affairs relative to the sales of "La Megas."

Salvador Rodriguez, head of the "Charles the Great" factory, has returned to Tampa after spending his summer in New York and other points in the North.

Tampa cigars have invaded the United Kingdom. Testimony to this effect is given by A. Ramirez, of A. Ramirez & Company, who received recently from Scotland an order for the well-known "Jules Verne" brand.

We embody herewith a copy of resolutions passed by the Board of Trade, protesting against the proposed bill in Congress which would permit foreign cigar manufacturers to do a mail order business in the United States by allowing them to forward through the mails, cigars in lots of less than 500. The resolutions are as follows:

"Whereas, H. R. Bill No. 18,893, introduced by Mr. Garner, and referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, will, if passed, enable foreign manufacturers of cigars to conduct a mail order business in the United States, which will materially injure the trade of American manufacturers, therefore

"Be It Resolved, by the Board of Governors of the Tampa Board of Trade, in regular meeting assembled, that our representatives in Congress be, and they are hereby requested to oppose said bill."

Manuel Sanchez, of Berriman Brothers, reports very good business at the factory, stating that "Jose Vila" cigars are being shipped all over the country.

Charles J. Castillo, sales manager for the Liborio Cigar Company, has returned to Tampa, following his trip in the East, Middle West and South, and is well pleased with his trip, considering that he was introducing a new brand, and the fact that conditions throughout the country are not as good as they might be. The Liborio Company's "Dime for a Nickel," which this company recently introduced, is being featured as a ten-cent value for a nickel, as the name implies.

PERFECTO.

One of the largest cigarette manufacturers in the country recently gave a war map of Europe for the return of one coupon taken from a package of their higher priced cigarettes.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The recent rain was very timely for the Lancaster County tobacco crop, now curing in the shed. While the tobacco cut early, the Havana seed in particular, which started under favorable weather conditions, looks well, the late-cut crops are curing green. There is time yet for improvement, though much goods dried out rather than cured properly. The packers in considerable number have been riding the county, picking out the best crops, with a view to buying when buying begins, though this will start very late this season.

The packers complain that the growers, almost to a man, refuse to set any price on their crops, and the growers, in turn, say the packers decline to make them any offer. Therefore there has been no buying, though there are packers who would be willing to contract now, even before stripping time, with growers known to be careful strippers, the delivery to be made in February. The question of prices is agitating buyer and seller, but for the present this is held in abeyance. Market conditions at selling time can alone determine this point.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, CONN.

After waiting for nearly two months, tobacco growers were a few days ago rewarded with a "damp" which was one of the best in years, on account of the fog which has prevailed each morning since the rain. The growers of picked or primed tobacco are now able to take down some of the crop daily. Nearly all of the picked or primed tobacco grown in the town has been taken down and placed in the bundle, ready for the dealers.

Very little of the stalk tobacco was taken down during the damp, the buyers preferring to have the growers let the tobacco hang and wait for another damp in order that the colors may become set and materially add to the value of the crop. From present indications nearly all of the warehouses in town will be in full operation this year and give employment to many.

Venezuelan Excise Tax on Cigarettes

A Venezuelan decree of June 3, 1914, imposes an excise tax of 0.75 centimo (0.145 cent) each on cigarettes of cut tobacco manufactured in Venezuela, which is to be refunded in the event of their exportation. A similar tax, amounting to 5 bolivars per gross kilo (43.8 cents per pound), is levied on imported cigarettes, in addition to the import duty of 10 bolivars per gross kilo ($1.37 per pound, including surtax).

American Tobacco Company Go Higher in Fifth Avenue

Desiring greater concentration than that which was afforded by the arrangement of its offices on the lower floors of the Constable Building, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City, the American Tobacco Company is now in the process of moving its effects to the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth floors of the same building. In the new location, architects have laid out the space provided, to the best advantage for the housing of the company's executive, sales and clerical offices. Also, the vast office force employed by the company will be enabled to work more advantageously from the standpoint of additional light and ventilating conditions. November 1st will probably see the completion of the work.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

A Typewriter Free With One Thousand Cigars

One of the most attractive and liberal offers ever made to the tobacco trade is being introduced by H. L. Haines & Company, of Red Lion, Pa., who advertise on another page in THE TOBACCO WORLD that they will give one typewriter free with the purchase of a thousand cigars.

This deal includes either a Remington No. 6 or No. 7, or a No. 2 Smith Premier. Everything in connection with the deal is guaranteed.

A special proposition is open to jobbers, who will find this deal especially useful.

The typewriters are guaranteed, as is everything in connection with the deal. H. L. Haines & Company have carried on this proposition for some time with splendid success and have made good with their customers in every respect.

This deal should prove especially attractive to the dealer who is without a typewriter. He is thus enabled to carry on his correspondence and do his billing with the least amount of effort, and at the same time in a most satisfactory manner. The typewriter becomes indispensable after the dealer once becomes the possessor of it.

H. L. Haines & Company are taking this method of introducing a good line of cigars of their own manufacture to the trade, and although it may seem an expensive proposition, they feel that the merit of the cigars will establish a trade that will make this deal worth while.

W. J. Trick, a cigar manufacturer of Pontiac, Mich., has leased a store at 22 South Saginaw Street and will install there a cigar store and pool room. C. M. Button will be the traveling representative of the factory in Michigan.

Tobacco Monopoly in Italian Libya

Salt and tobacco flourish as government monopolies under the Ottoman rule in Libya and produce considerable income. Their operation was continued by the Italian authorities, but it was not until January 18, 1914, that a decree was issued establishing the status of the monopoly. During the last six months of 1913 sales from this source were as follows: In Tripolitania—tobacco 260,040 pounds, salt 1,040,160 pounds; in Cirenaica—tobacco 132,424 pounds, salt 592,240 pounds; the totals for the colony being tobacco 392,464 pounds and salt 1,630,400 pounds, with respective values of $454,505 and $16,290. Much of the local tobacco is made into snuff (of which the natives are fond) and into cut tobacco for smoking in the narghile. The Arabs are great smokers, and in addition to the tobacco produced locally quantities arrive from Italy to replace that which formerly came through Turkish channels. A report from Rome says: "The consumption of Italian tobacco in Tripolitania and Cirenaica continues with truly flattering increase. In the last nine months of 1913 the royal Italian monopoly has benefited by nearly $1,539,000." Monopoly tobacco does not enter into the customs import figures. It is understood that the government has under consideration the establishment of a tobacco factory in Tripolitania, but all plans for its erection will be made public in Rome.

Jail for Union Cigar Company Man

Francis C. Hollingsworth, an alleged proprietor of the Union Cigar Company, of York, Pa., recently pleaded guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud, and Judge Witmer, of the United States District Court, at Scranton, sentenced the defendant to six months in the York County jail.

B. J. Hollingsworth, proprietor of the Continental Cigar Company, of Wichita, Kans., and a brother of F. C. Hollingsworth, was recently fined $250 and costs on a similar charge.

According to the testimony of the postoffice inspectors, the Union Cigar Company was fiction and the only thing received by those who sent in $10 in answer to the ad for salesmen, was a case, a box of cigars and a book on salesmanship. The latter was supposed to be worth $8.

It was further testified that the two brothers operated in thirty-four states in the Union, and that since June they had "cleaned up" $4000. Since the fifth of October two thousand letters addressed to the Union Cigar Company were returned to the senders from the York postoffice.

F. C. Hollingsworth denied that he was the real head of the scheme to defraud, but pleaded guilty because he was an accomplice and threw himself on the mercy of the court. Judge Witmer sentenced him to six months' imprisonment.

Meyer Jaskulek & Company Members Retire

By mutual consent, the leaf tobacco firm of Meyer Jaskulek & Company, of Dayton, O., has been dissolved and Messrs. Samuel Jaskulek and Julius Kastriner are retiring from the business. The firm, however, will be continued under its old name by Mrs. Meyer Jaskulek, Harry A. Jaskulek and Wilbur W. Henry.

Con Gleason is to open a cigar store in Davenport, Ia., at Third and Ripley Streets, just across from the Columbia Theatre.

CIGARETTE SALES METHODS IN CHINA

Majority Prefer Native Tobacco—Cheap Cigarettes Appeal to the Chinese

IN a trade report of the Chungking district for 1912, published in the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports" for August 30, 1913, the enterprising and successful methods employed by a large foreign cigarette company were explained at some length. This company has devised many schemes by which its sales have increased, and in this province alone its trade has advanced during the past year fully 300 per cent. In this one province there are sixteen foreigners representing the company and even the remoter districts are thoroughly canvassed. Free samples are distributed and a lottery system has been arranged so that Chinese who purchase the cigarettes have a chance of receiving prizes. The first prize is generally a gold watch, and less valuable articles are given to the other winners. In this way the cigarettes are becoming popular and well known.

The competition offered by native tobacco has always been a difficult problem. Many Chinese prefer the local product not only because they are accustomed to its flavor, but because it is cheap. The tobacco company mentioned is therefore turning this inclination on the part of the Chinese to good account. It has purchased great quantities of Szechwan tobacco and is using it in the manufacture of cigarettes in its Shanghai factories, which are able to turn out an enormous quantity of cigarettes daily. Buying the native tobacco even in the form of cigarettes especially appeals to the Chinese at this time when they are anxious to patronize home industry. They realize that much of the money which they spend for cigarettes is used in their own country for the purchase of native tobacco and that the prosperity of the country is greatly affected. And since the native tobacco is exceedingly cheap, it is to the interest of the foreign company to cultivate this form of trade.

The cigarettes manufactured from the native tobacco are sold at the lowest possible rates. They are packed 50,000 to the case, 500 to the carton, and 10 to the packet. The price of a case is $85 Mexican, equal at the present Treasury rate to $38.93 United States currency, and a rebate of $3 Mexican is made on case lots. Cartons sell for the equivalent of 39 cents United States currency. There is no rebate, however, on carton sales. The packets retail to the consumer for the equivalent of 1 cent gold and with each packet a Japanese-made bamboo cigarette holder is given away. While these prices are surprisingly low there is still some margin for profit, as the packets that sell for 1 cent gold cost about four-fifths of 1 cent. In order to introduce this new line of cigarettes the prize system described is freely employed, and the local manager of the company states that the results are extremely gratifying.—Daily Consular Reports.

Mailing Cigarette Papers to Greece Prohibited

According to a recent report, the Postoffice Department has issued orders to its postmasters, prohibiting the sending of cigarette papers through the mails to Greece.

The postmasters are instructed to adopt such measures as may be necessary to prevent the dispatch of cigarette papers to Greece through the regular mails or by parcel post.

It is stated that this order is the result of the action of the Grecian government in prohibiting the importation of cigarette papers.

"Girard" Cigars Sell in Colorado Springs

King & Carrick, the well-known retail and jobbing cigar firm of Colorado Springs, Colo., are enjoying an excellent business on the "Girard," 10 cents and up, and the "Roig," nickel line of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf. In clear Havanas they are featuring successfully the "Elisardo" line. This concern consists of two popular young men who not only have two fine retail stores, including the beautiful stand in the Antlers Hotel, but who also enjoy a jobbing trade within a fifty-mile radius.

Jerome Baum, of the H. Baum factory, manufacturers of the "Lord Carleton," is succeeding rather nicely in the placing in Greater New York of his company's "El Cavallo."

At Your Service

Have you ever taken into consideration the advantages in placing your work with a personally conducted lithographing firm.

Every detail of manufacturing in our factory is under the personal supervision of one of the members of the firm.

We will cheerfully submit sketches of any new subject which you may require or can send you sketches of our own private designs with wonderfully good registered titles for your exclusive use.

Or, on the other hand, send us samples of any labels, bands or lithographic material which you require for immediate or future use, and we will tell you exactly what can be done, you having our assurance that we will make no promise we cannot fulfill.

¶ We can't do that but you can judge of the effectiveness of this tin stein cigar package when we tell you it is handsomely lithographed in four colors.

¶ Manufacturers who use it tell us that it sells cigars where all other packages fail. Being both useful and ornamental it makes a quick appeal to the smoker.

¶ We also have attractive display signs for advertising this package to the consumer.

RETAILERS MUST PAY WAR TAXES THIS MONTH OR STAND PENALTY

Fifty Per Cent. Added for Failure to Pay Before December 1st—Only Dealers Doing Less Than $200 a Year Exempt—New Rulings Issued

Washington, D. C., November 12.

ATTENTION of the trade is directed to a penalty of 50 per cent. for failure to make returns for the new war tax during the month of November. Failure to do so before December 1st will involve the penalty.

While manufacturers show a willingness to pay at once, it is feared that many retailers will fail to make application and thus become liable to the fine.

By making returns regarding the liability for the tax, complications will be avoided. The best way for the retailer is to make immediate application for a license and to pay the $4.80 as soon as it is granted. Only those dealers doing less than $200 a year will be exempt from this tax.

This tax of $4.80 applies to all cafes, hotels, restaurants, bars, barber shops, newsstands, grocery stores and all other places engaged in the sale of tobacco.

It is understood that it is the intention of Congress to have the law regarding the tax on cigarettes apply to the manufacturers of little cigars. In this regard there is some indignation on the part of the manufacturers of little cigars and it is believed that a ruling from the Attorney-General will be asked.

It is understood that the new special stamps for the industry will be ready next week.

Where a dealer has been in business only part of a month taxes will be due for the entire month. It is stated that a refund will be made to individuals and firms where the tax paid is in excess of the actual sales, but there will be no refund for those manufacturers or dealers who have paid their taxes in advance and who go out of business before the period for which they have paid their tax expires.

In regard to the collection of these special taxes, the two following letters have been sent out to the internal revenue collectors throughout the country:

"TO COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE:

"In view of the numerous inquiries that are being made relative to the collection of the special taxes imposed by the Act of October 22, 1914, the following instructions are issued:

"Until a supply of the new special tax stamps is received by the collectors, they should accept and deposit all payments tendered on account of special taxes imposed by said act and advise the taxpayer in each instance by letter, in lieu of receipt on Form 1, that the stamp will be forwarded as soon as received. The amount received and deposited should be entered on Record No. 1 and posted to Record No. 9 in column for collections on 'regular' lists.

"As soon as received, the proper special tax stamp should be issued in each case. Upon delivery of the stamp to the taxpayer, the receipt on Form 1, if such receipt was issued prior to these instructions, should be obtained and

TOBACCO IN NEUTRAL VESSELS SAFE AT SEA, SAYS ENGLAND

Weed is Not Contraband, Says Great Britain—Will Not Seize Shipments Abroad—Tobacco Raiser Uncertain as to What Would Become of Shipments

Washington, D. C., November 11.

FOLLOWING the question of Senator James, of Kentucky, regarding the status of foreign tobacco shipments, the State Department has announced that it has received the assurance of the British Ambassador that the British Government has not placed tobacco on the contraband list, so far as he is advised. It is further stated that the British Government has no intention of interfering with shipments of that commodity in neutral bottoms to any countries in Europe.

This announcement clears the situation for the tobacco growers, some of whom are finding it difficult to market their commodity owing to the existence of war, the inability to obtain war risk insurance and the difficulty of finding ships to transport it to foreign markets.

Following the question of Senator James, Acting Secretary Lansing promised to make inquiry as to whether Great Britain would be willing to place tobacco in the same class with cotton and give assurances that shipments in neutral vessels to Austria and Germany would not be interfered with. This was done with the result given above.

Besides defining the British attitude toward tobacco shipments, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, also notified the State Department that an agreement has been made with Denmark, Sweden and Norway by which goods destined for neutral consumption only will pass freely into those countries if consigned to named persons with certificated guarantee against re-exportation.

The agreement brings to a close negotiations carried on for some time between Great Britain and the commercial interests of the United States and the Scandinavian countries. Representations have been made by the State Department for the purpose of restoring normal conditions in North Atlantic sea traffic. Denmark has been threatened with a gasoline famine and similar conditions in Norway and Sweden, brought about by the detention of ships, destination of whose cargoes were questioned by Great Britain, have caused numerous protests. The State Department has been flooded with demands of American manufacturers that this Government obtain from England some sort of a guarantee that neutral shipments be assured of safe delivery.

"Business Is Great," Says Kansas City Tobacconist

One cannot help but be an optimist when reading the following from B. A. Brink, of the Brink & Dolan Cigar Company, Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Brink reports business as being fine and everyone working at full capacity. "Business is great; in spite of this war talk. Business this year has been much better than it was last, and the prospects are that it will continue to be good all winter," says Mr. Brink.

With the approach of the Christmas season the retailers are making every effort to bring the sales receipts up to last year's records. Some will succeed, many will fail.

Window Displays Important

Among the best methods for stimulating trade is that of the window display. How often it has brought the shekels into the till.

Many tobacconists make the mistake of overcrowding their windows, more spoil any effect that might be obtained by trying to get a package of every line of goods on their shelves into the display.

Concentration on one or two brands pays every time. Careful study of methods employed by professional window trimmers will help much.

If you try trimming the window yourself, stand outside and catch a couple of passers-by and get their opinion You may get some idea of the impression that the display makes from them. Don't ask your customers, they may not want to hurt your feelings.

The better way is to get a professional to do the work. He will know better how to make the appeal.

It is quite evident from a glance at the English tobacco trade papers that English manufacturers and jobbers have learned that in dull times advertising must be kept up in order to retain the benefits that have already accrued from previous "copy."

Supporting the Trade Papers

The advertisement of a cigarette firm is particularly noticeable with the heading "Advertising as Usual." Attention is called to the fact that they are not only doing business as usual, but are advertising as well. Then follows references to the papers and magazines in which full page ads are constantly appearing.

But the last paragraph points the moral which can be taken to heart by many of our own manufacturers. This company calls the attention of the retailers and jobbers to the fact that when times are dull, what business there is, concentrates on advertised brands.

Many of the retailers and jobbers who are complaining just now about poor collections will, if they take account, find that they have considerable money tied up in unadvertised goods, which in poor times are the last brands to be sold. The retailer who wants to keep the money jingling in his cash box sticks to brands which are advertised. There is always a sale for them, and the wise man chooses those lines which are advertised to the trade and the consumer.

A statement recently circulated by the United Cigar Stores Company to the effect that their sales for October were the largest, by a very substantial sum, for any month except December, 1913, in the history of the company, is worthy of careful consideration.

Cigars a Trade Barometer

There have been many years when business conditions were worse than the present one. However, when times are really hard the smoker foregoes his cigars and turns to a cheaper form of tobacco. But the report of this large company does not indicate that there has been a heavy falling off on the part of smokers, or if there has been, there was a remarkable recuperation in October.

Reports from manufacturers of both cheap and high priced goods indicate that business is good, their only complaint being that collections are slow. The general opinion is that the crisis is past and that we are on the way to greater prosperity.

Certainly the report mentioned above does not indicate that there is anything radically wrong with business if the retail cigar trade means anything, and we are inclined to believe that it is a good barometer.

A. G. Wiedmann Sees Good Times Ahead

Arthur G. Wiedmann, of the Acme Veneer Company, of Kansas City, Mo., was a recent visitor in Philadelphia. He brought with him a grip full of optimism and a nice fat bundle of orders to sort of act as a foundation for his references to "very good business."

Mr. Wiedmann has been hitting the big towns all the way from Kansas City to New York, and his fine bunch of orders "speak louder than words."

In connection with the trip Mr. Wiedmann has been doing some work for the Wiedmann-St. Louis Box Company and has landed some good business on the "Good Cheer" cigar packages. Mr. Wiedmann reports that intense interest has been aroused throughout the country in this new tin packing.

AL U. THORNBURG, who is to be found decorating the cigar stand in the Hotel Pontchartrain, in Detroit, says this is a true story. A press agent couldn't do better with this one.

A stranger walked up to the cigar stand in the Hotel Hedges, Pontiac, Mich., and after purchasing two cigars astounded the natives by lighting both of them. Up and down the lobby he went, holding a cigar in each hand and puffing first on one and then on the other. After the performance had been going on for about five minutes, a nervous spectator approached and inquired the reason for consuming two cigars at a time. The human smoking machine replied thus:

"My friend, these cigars are so good that I would smoke more if I had more hands. They are 'Bold' perfectos, made in the good town of Philadelphia where I live."

We might blame this one on Henry Reisenberg, as he is now in the West selling "Bold" cigars like hot cakes.

* * *

Regarding the tobacco advertising now appearing in current magazines, Dr. H. W. Hess, of the University of Pennsylvania, tells a story which speaks for its effectiveness, at least.

A friend of his who is a non-smoker is very much irritated by finding the tobacco advertisements attractively placed in his favorite magazines. It seems that he is unable to resist the temptation to read them and after he has done so is still more annoyed.

"Do you know," said the non-smoker, "after I read those advertisements I am almost convinced that there must be something wrong with me if I do not smoke. These ads are actually making me believe that I am outside the pale of society unless I use tobacco."

If these advertisements can make this impression on a person who is unalterably opposed to the use of tobacco, what a powerful effect they must have on users of the weed. In truth, a smoker after reading the advertisement of certain brands of cigarettes or smoking tobaccos, must sometimes feel that he is indeed a social outcast unless he is a user of that particular product.

* * *

A story is going the rounds of a woman who stopped in a cigar store the other day and wanted to buy some cigars. As the clerk approached her the following conversation ensued:

"I—er—oh, I want some cigars, please," she said, hastening to add: "But—er—not for myself—for my husband."

"Certainly, madam. What kind would you like?"

"Oh, the best—quite the best, please."

"Certainly, madam. Strong or medium?"

"The very strongest you've got, please," she answered, in decided tones. "My husband was complaining only the other day that the last lot he bought all broke in his pocket."

An interesting story in regard to cigar box labels is being told by one of the salesmen of a well-known cigar box manufacturing company.

One morning recently a middle aged man of decidedly foreign birth entered the office of this firm and asked to see the manager. Upon being asked the nature of his business, he stated that he wanted to buy some cigar boxes and labels.

After being turned over to the proper person, the details of the cigar box were gone into and finally settled.

Then the salesman asked, "Do you want us to get up a label for you?"

"Sure," was the reply.

"Well, what kind of a label do you want?" inquired the salesman.

"Oi, I vant a nice label mit a boid on it," said the cigarmaker.

"Well, what is the name you are going to use?" asked the salesman patiently.

"I ain'd got no name yet, I just want a boid," was the reply.

"What kind of a bird do you want?" queried the house representative.

"I want a label mit a regular boid on it like the Cinco boid," was the visitor's reply.

Don't leave your trunk unlocked if it happens to contain a bottle of spirits and some cigarettes. At least that is the advice of Mr. Blank, who received the surprise of his life the other night when he went home for supper.

Mrs. Blank had been lonesome all day and after lunch, to occupy herself, she promised to give her husband's trunk the "once over." The lid was unlocked and she lifted it to see what interesting things she could find. The very first thing she espied was a package of cigarettes, about a hundred of them in a tin box, and the next thing she saw was a black bottle. She pulled the cork out of it and one smell was enough to lead her to further investigation. She got a tumbler and took a drink. She liked it very much and then took another drink. Then she became obsessed with the desire to smoke a cigarette. She lighted one and smoked it, and then another. Then she took a drink. The performance was being repeated for about the fifteenth time when Mr. Blank came in and saw Mrs. Blank sitting among his shirts and collars with an almost exhausted bottle, while curls of smoke rose from numberless cigarette butts about her.

"Where is my supper," he thundered.

"S'no need to eat—hic—s'hav' a drink or cig'ret," said Mrs. Blank.

In the row that followed the police intervened on behalf of the neighbors. As it was the first offense, the judge fined Mrs. Blank $10, which Mr. Blank had to pay.

TOBACCO FOR THE TROOPS IN EUROPE

No Embargo From Any Belligerent—The Weed Recognized as Necessity for Soldiers—Interesting Facts From London

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK, November 13, 1914.

THE assurances of the British Government regarding the treatment of tobacco shipments in neutral bottoms, disposes of a very vexing question and one that has troubled our American manufacturers and shippers more than they were willing to admit. It will allow of the immediate filling of orders for many thousands of cigars which have been held in the United States until the question was settled.

In this connection it is interesting to note the efforts now being made in London especially to provide tobacco, cigars and cigarettes for the troops who are on the continent.

The British tobacconists have put up special packets of fifty and a hundred cigarettes, ½-pound packages of smoking tobacco, pipes and pouches, and all are being sold for half price, and can be purchased in some cases as low as 1s. 6d. These packages upon payment of one shilling will be sent directly to any soldier in either France or Belgium, duty free.

A novel idea in the way of voluntary contributions of tobacco and smokes is the tobacco box which is conspicuously displayed in every theatre, cafe and restaurant in England, with a sign thereon requesting that the reader will deposit any odd cigarettes or cigars that can be spared for the use of the boys at the front.

When the boxes are filled, they are collected, sealed and immediately sent to the base for distribution.

The average man will respond more quickly to a request for a cigarette or cigar than he would for a penny to purchase one, and as a result these boxes have proven a huge success. Our informant states that one box in a prominent place in London collected 7500 cigarettes in one week and that nearly every one averaged over 2000 per week.

In view of these facts it is not at all surprising that Great Britain does not want to interfere with the shipments of cigarettes and tobacco from the United States.

"Rocky Ford" Distributor in Seattle Completes Alterations

Sam Lavroff, the well-known Tacoma, Wash., wholesaler, located at 706 Pacific Avenue, is being complimented on the completion of the alterations to his place of business. His floor space now measures 125 feet by 35 feet, which is devoted entirely to the wholesale trade. Mr. Lavroff is local distributor for the popular "Rocky Ford" cigar, manufactured by the Union-American Cigar Company of Pittsburgh, in addition to doing a large business on "S. & W. Hand-Mades." Mr. Lavroff, also, very recently became the local distributor for the well-known "John Ruskin." This little notice would not be complete without mention of the humidor which is provided especially for the cigarette department of Mr. Lavroff's business.

attached to its stub with proper notation made thereon. See Section 3183, Revised Statutes, as amended.

"On the date of the issuance of the special tax stamp, the amounts previously paid for same should be deducted from Record No. 1 and the proper entries made in Record No. 8. The total of such payments should also be deducted in Record No. 9 from column for collections on 'regular' lists and posted from Record No. 8 to column for collections on 'special tax' stamps.

"In all such cases, it will not be necessary to report them for assessment on the regular list, or to charge them on Form 58, provided the stamps can be issued this month.

"If for any reason stamps cannot be issued in November, the amounts paid should be charged on regular Form 58 for the month of November and accounted for on Form 51B in the 'Advance collections on list for this month.' Stamps should then be issued in December; credit taken on Form 51B in the statement of special tax stamps, column 5, and on Form 68, line 10, 'Issued by order of Commissioner'; and claims on Form 630, modified to suit each case, filed as vouchers.

"Each collector will please acknowledge the receipt of this letter.

"Respectfully,
"W. H. Osborn, Commissioner."

"TO COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE:

"Every person, firm or company liable to special tax under the Act of October 22, 1914, should render a return and pay such special tax, as provided in the case of other special taxpayers. As these special taxes take effect from November 1, 1914, all such returns and payments, for the remaining portion of the special tax year ending June 30, 1915, should be made during the present month, or within the month in which the business is subsequently commenced.

"The returns rendered by such persons, firms and companies will be on Special Form 11A, except in the case of bankers, whose returns will be made on Form 457 revised. Blanks of these several forms, and the required special tax stamps, will be furnished to collectors at an early date. The preparation and issue of stamps of the various denominations, which would be required in the case of bankers, are found to be impracticable, and the taxes due from this class of special taxpayers will be assessed on a SPECIAL BANKERS LIST, as was done in the case of like taxes imposed by the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898.

"Instructions as to the preparation of such lists will also be furnished at an early date.

"W. H. Osborn, Commissioner."

CAPITOL.

"Steady Repeater" is the epithet applied throughout Richmond, Va., to the "Henrietta" cigar, manufactured by Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Decision" is the name of a new nickel cigar being put on the market by William A. Vorhauer & Company, Chicago, Ill. The new brand is being packed loose as well as in packages. Messrs. Vorhauer & Company state that they are well pleased with the distribution attained on the "Decision."

Mitchell, Fletcher & Company Get "La Hermitage" Brand

THE first shipment of a new line for the cigar department of the Mitchell, Fletcher & Company stores was received at the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store on Thursday, November 12th.

This brand is known as the "La Hermitage," and made by the La Hermitage Cigar Company, of New York, and is a seed and Havana product that has proven a splendid seller wherever introduced.

The "Sublimes," packed in one-twentieths and fortieths, retail for $7 the hundred; "Coronas," in the same size packings, sells for $8 the hundred, and the "Imperial Finas," packed in one-fortieths only, can be purchased for $9 the hundred.

A new size in the Mitchell-Fletcher brand is the "Longfellow," packed in one-fortieths only, and will meet the demand for a longer smoke of quality and the price has been fixed at $8 the hundred.

"Hoyo de Cuba" Brand Displayed at Yahn & McDonnell's

The Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell is showing displays of made-in-bond cigars from the clear Havana house of San Martin & Leon.

The Fifteenth Street window displays to advantage the attractive "La Pedida" cigar in several sizes, while in the Chestnut Street window the well known "Hoyo de Cuba" brand attracts the attention of the passerby.

W. D. Duncan, who is the local representative for San Martin & Leon, was in the city and reports business as being in good condition, with prospects for greatly increased trade.

New "Sintoma" Shapes Boost Orders

The Blunt and Club sizes of the "Sintoma" cigar, made by the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, are selling with very satisfactory results throughout the entire Western territory. This ten-cent smoke was originally made in Perfecto and long Panatella shape, but the introduction of the newer shapes has given a healthy tone to the business of the distributors.

Jeitles & Blumenthal Busy With Orders

One local factory at least has not been affected by the wars and rumors of wars, for Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, are running a full time schedule with a full complement of hands.

Orders for "Masterpiece," "Flor de Jeitles," "Tungsten" and "Statesman," are still somewhat behind in shipment, but every effort is being made to keep the dealers supplied.

Boltz, Clymer & Company to Retain Philadelphia Factory

FOLLOWING a report from Tampa that Boltz, Clymer & Company would manufacture "El Merito," "El Palencia Segundo" and "Jefferson Factory Smokers" in Tampa, Mr. John H. Boltz, head of the firm, stated in an interview with "The Tobacco World," that while it is true that they are manufacturing some nickel goods in Tampa at the present time, the factory at Fifteenth Street and Lehigh Avenue will remain in operation. Mr. Boltz further stated that the matter of removing the Philadelphia factory to Tampa was still in the future and that no decision as yet had been reached as to what course would be followed.

Ostrow's Shows "Marie Antoinette" Holiday Packings

Dan Ostrow, the "live wire" dealer at Seventh and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., is in receipt of a shipment of holiday goods known as the "Marie Antoinette," manufactured by E. Kleiner & Company, New York. The cigars are packed in cedar boxes, which take the form of a cigar on a miniature table, and retail at twenty-five for $3. They are an attractive Christmas offering, and Mr. Ostrow stated that he expects to do a good business on them.

Finley Acker Company Stocks "Smokers"

The cigar department of the several stores of the Finley Acker Company have placed on sale a new and attractive package, known as the Finley Acker Company "Havana Smokers."

The package contains five domestic cigars, made in Key West, and retails for twenty-five cents.

The introduction of package goods is a new departure for this firm, but the reports from the various stores indicate that this line will prove one of their best sellers among the cheaper goods.

Yahn & McDonnell have recently been displaying the "Lord Colbeck" brand in the windows of their several stores.

Baum Brothers report that the trade is doing nicely with their newest line, the "La Invencia" brand, which is made in fifteen sizes.

"Stratford" cigars, made by the El Draco Cigar Company, continue to show a steady gain in Philadelphia and vicinity. Several special Christmas packages have been put out this year with most encouraging results.

WORKING TO IMPROVE PHILIPPINE TOBACCO

Industry Menaced by Insect—Treatment of Leaf Not Injurious—Utilize Extreme Temperatures

THE Philippine Bureau of Agriculture is continuing the work of improving and increasing the output of tobacco in the provinces where it is grown. In addition to the efforts to train small farmers as well as large planters, plans are in progress to improve the quality by careful selection of seeds. Preparatory to planting for the coming year the Bureau has already made a free distribution of over 660 pounds of selected seed to approximately 2770 different tobacco growers in the two Provinces of Cagayan and Isabela, in the Cagayan Valley.

The farmers are being urged to plant earlier than usual and to so time the seedlings that they will have young plants from at least three beds sown fifteen to twenty days apart. This would insure different dates of maturity for portions of the crop and would also provide against shortage of plants should the first seedlings fail.

For years tobacco manufacturers in the Philippines have been subjected to considerable loss by reason of the ravages of the cigarette beetle. While it has been impossible to compute the total extent of the loss, there is no doubt in the minds of the growers that it amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not millions. The tobacco products actually destroyed by this beetle each year vary in value from $3000 to $6500 per factory, but this loss is regarded as small when compared with the injury done to the reputation of Philippine cigars in the markets of the world, by infected shipments unwittingly sent abroad. The exports of tobacco products to the United States fell from $1,921,462 in 1910 to $645,904 in 1911, and much of this decrease was attributed to the ravages of the cigarette beetle.

The Philippine Bureau of Science has disseminated valuable information concerning the cigarette beetle (Lasioderma sericorne Fabr.), which is a destroyer of stored vegetable products, especially of tobacco. This beetle damages cigars and cigarettes by boring small cylindrical galleries through the filler and circular holes through the wrapper and leaf tobacco wherever stored. The better grades of tobacco are most frequently attacked, and this makes the pest especially costly to the industry. It has been demonstrated that if 13 per cent. of the approximate annual loss due to the beetle were expended for apparatus, and about 40 per cent. for chemicals and labor, practically all damage could be prevented.

Carbon bisulphide, hydrocyanic-acid gas, or extremes of temperature are effective in destroying the beetle in all stages of its development and do not impair the aroma, taste, or burning quality. In Manila the drying, collecting, boxing and labeling are generally done in one workroom, which may be freed of insects by disinfection with hydrocyanic-acid gas and their reappearance prevented by covering the doors and windows with wire screens. As a further precaution against reinfestation, the manufactured products should be kept in tin-lined boxes—the regular shipping boxes may be used if others are not available. The cost of a tin-lined chest large enough to hold 10,000 ordinary size boxed cigars is $3.25 United States currency. The character of the chemicals used as disinfectants should be thoroughly understood by the manufacturers in order that necessary precautions may be taken. Aside from this, fumigation is very simple.

Tobacco should be treated in the leaf and, after being made into cigars, should be immediately placed in a screened drying and selecting room. It is desirable to treat the leaf tobacco because it is loose and can be handled to better advantage, and also because if cigars are allowed to stand and are fumigated just before shipment any beetles developing will be killed in the cigar, thus lessening its value.

Practically all the cigar and cigarette factories in Manila are equipped with machinery and boilers, and the necessary drum and its installation would constitute the only additional cost in using steam as a disinfectant when it is not convenient to use chemical treatment. In this process care must be taken to avoid mold, which appears very quickly on damp cigars. Experiments show that after steaming leaf tobacco in the drum from a period of twenty minutes at 96 degrees to 102 degrees Centigrade (205 degrees to 216 degrees Fahrenheit) all insects found were dead. Tobacco steamed in this way, placed in a screened room to dry, then made into cigars and kept under conditions to prevent reinfestation, proved good at the end of eight months.

Cold storage is objected to on the ground that it is undesirable to kill insects in the cigars, but when this method is used metal-lined boxes with rubber packing for the lids have been found satisfactory. Eight thousand cigars were packed in a tin-lined box, placed in the cold storage and ice plant in Manila, and left for eight weeks. Upon removal they had not molded and were in good condition, while 1000 other cigars packed in wooden boxes had absorbed moisture to such an extent that they had to be dried.—Daily Consular Reports.

Trade Jottings

The Cuban Cigar Company, Denver, Col., are reported as manufacturing something less than 5,000,000 cigars per year.

The cigar department of the Acker Quality Shop, Twelfth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, report a big demand on the well-known "Blue Peter" cigarettes.

Judy Pratt, representative of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, recently paid a visit to Lewis & Whitaker Cigar Company, Salt Lake City, Utah, relative to the distribution of his company's decidedly popular "Reynaldo."

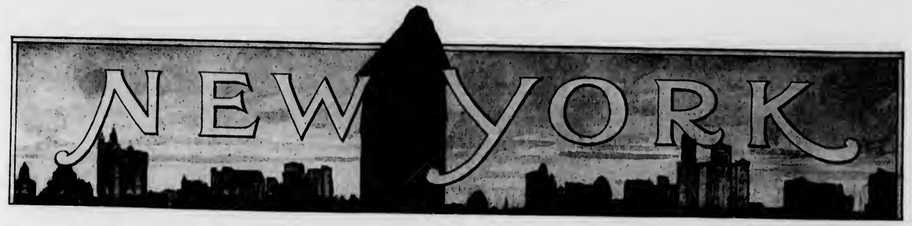
W. S. Lescamp, well known in the Boston market by his long connection with the Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, has resigned from that company, and has taken on the "Cinco" representation in Greater New York for Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, Philadelphia, Penna.

The three well-known brands, "Webster" (Y. Pendas & Alvarez), "Cuesta-Rey" (Cuesta, Rey & Company), and "Admiration" (E. Regensburg & Sons), have been placed with the new Dow Drug Store, Cincinnati, O., by Straus Brothers & Company, of that city.

A recent visitor to Baker Brothers, the well-known Boston, Mass., jobbers, was Charles Weaver, of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, O. Baker Brothers are the Boston agents for the company's "El Verso" and "San Felice." They state that they have just received recently 100,000 of each brand for both immediate and holiday delivery.

The Straus Cigar Co., Richmond, Va., distributor of the products of the Sanchez & Haya factory, Tampa, Fla., in Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, reports the receipt of some sound orders on this brand for holiday delivery. D. H. Moulsdale, of the Sanchez & Haya factory, was a recent visitor to this house.

Winfrey & Parker, cigar manufacturers, Tacoma, Wash., who formerly discontinued, have again resumed. Located at 1223 Pacific Avenue, and known as the Winfrey & Parker Cigar Company, they are manufacturing a five-cent Havana smoker, going to the trade as "Winfrey & Parker's Havana."



"Philip Morris" Ads Arouse Comment

JAMES ZOBIAN, who handles the advertising of Philip Morris & Company, has duplicated the success of his reply to Mr. Edison's blanket criticism of cigarettes with a new advertisement, which has recently appeared in the daily newspapers showing illustrations of two English battleships. This copy has aroused much favorable comment, and it is safe to say that the ad was read practically by everyone who saw the pictures.

F. S. Lucey, of the New York branch office, reports that business is most satisfactory and that the stream of orders flows without ceasing.

"Philip Morris" cigarettes have certainly captured a large number of the smoking fraternity and the continued success of this high grade brand shows that quality and merit are little affected by "psychological depression."

Window Trimming Company Incorporates

Julius Silberstein, proprietor of the National Window Trimming Company, has recently incorporated this company at Albany and has interested with him Walter Marshak.

The company will devote special attention to cigar window trimming, and to lithography for the cigar trade as well. The company with its incorporation has increased its facilities for expanding the business and will be prepared to go after trade in a much larger way than formerly.

With the rapidly growing demand for expert attention to window displays among the retail trade, there is little doubt but what the National Window Trimming Company will be able to handle these matters with satisfaction.

Albert Falk Sees Business Boom Ahead

Among those recently returned to New York during the past fortnight was Albert Falk, president of the Falk Tobacco Company, who came to town after a western trip with optimistic reports.

Mr. Falk stated that the tobacco trade was coming to realize that it had much less reason to complain than some other lines of trade and that while business might have been better, the tobacco trade was fairly well off.

"Jobbers and retailers with whom I talked," said Mr. Falk, "seemed to be of the general opinion that business was good in their line. In fact, many remarked of a slight improvement. Taking all in all the trip was a most agreeable one, and I feel safe in predicting an unusual revival of good times."

The company, of which Mr. Falk is the head, introduced the "Herbert Tareyton" cigarettes and smoking mixture, which is so extensively featured throughout the United States. In a short time the brand has secured an enormous distribution.

Kaufman & Company Change Location

A. G. Kaufman & Company, cigar manufacturers of New York City, have moved to 207-209 East Forty-ninth Street, where they have larger quarters for both factory and offices.

New Packings for G. S. Nicholas & Company

THE fine cigars in handsome packings for the Christmas trade have arrived at the well-known importing house of G. S. Nicholas & Company. The Havana firms seem to have vied with each other in turning out handsome shapes in excellent packages.

"Partagas," "Por Larranaga," "Romeo y Juliet," "H. Upmann" and "Ramon Allones," are among those factories represented in the handsome display at the Beaver Street house.

As was the case last year, boite nature packings are much in evidence and they set off handsomely some fine sizes and shapes which are sure to make a quick appeal to the connoisseur.

Needless to say these goods have had a hearty reception and according to the latest reports are moving nicely. Orders show a tendency to hold up to last year's average, and there is little doubt but that practically all of the goods will be moved by Christmas Day.

New Booklet Shows Latest "H. Upmann" Packings

The versatile Charles Landau, United States representative of the H. Upmann factory of Havana, has recently compiled an interesting booklet for the trade, showing some of the handsome "H. Upmann" packings with brief descriptions. The booklet is remarkable for its colored photographs of actual sizes of some of the finer cigars.

The sanitary methods employed in the H. Upmann factory is given due prominence, while particular attention is given to the great care that is used in the selection of the cigars for packing.

The enterprise of this old house shows that it is out to capture its share of the United States trade in clear Havana cigars, and the favorable comments heard on this new booklet leads one to the belief that the brochure has not only made an impression, but created a sentiment in favor of "H. Upmann" cigars.

"Lovera" Judges Sitting in Judgment

Relative to the contest just closed by the Jose Lovera Company, New York City, for the most attractive window displays on their well-known "Lovera Banderos," the company states that hundreds of photographs have been received. They report that the clever ingenuity utilized and the artistic effects obtained in many of the windows, are remarkable. The photographs are now in the hands of the three judges who were selected from the store window trimmers of New York's leading department stores. The judges are quite busy, but it is hoped that a decision will be reached in time to enable the Lovera Company to make a complete announcement December 1st, regarding the winners.

W. A. Dunn, M. F. Summers and A. G. Wuest received a charter in Brooklyn last week for a new tobacco concern, to be known as the Zorro Tobacco Company. They have an authorized capital of $5000.

Chicago

Loop Dealers Show Lack of Initiative—New "Partagas" Attracts Much Attention—J. W. Vinnissky Petitions in Bankruptcy—"Subway" Cigars Continue to Repeat

CHICAGO, November 11.

GENERAL conditions in the cigar and tobacco trade here are showing improvement as the holiday season approaches. Inquiries among the leading firms in the trade show that business is a little better than normal for this time of the year. Shopping has started early. It is the painful duty of the writer to condemn the loop cigar dealers, on the whole, for their unusual lack of enterprise in not getting proper displays arranged. Few holiday goods have appeared on the counters or in the windows, and the merchants do not seem to be aware that the Christmas buying has already started. Unless they rub the scales from their eyes soon they will find that a bunch of money which might have been spent for box and package cigars has gone into other channels, where the dealers saw the signs of the times and prepared windows and showcases to meet the conditions.

"Partagas," of unusual size, in glass tubes, retailing at $5, were displayed in several windows in the loop district this week. The cigar might be called the "super-banquet" variety, and looks like a knife and fork would be necessary to smoke it. It is fully a foot long, and an inch or more in diameter, but the workmanship is exactly like all other "Partagas." Whatever the purpose of the company in putting out such a large cigar, it is certainly attracting the attention of the public here. The smokers cluster around the windows where it is on display, discussing with each other after the fashion of city folk whether it would be possible to smoke such a large cigar.

Harry Lanfield, of Lanfield & Steele, left last week for Havana, Cuba, where he will look over the crop and make some purchases for the company.

Michael Rosenfeld, who for many years has been a salesman for Salvador Rodriguez, has been seriously ill for the past week, but is now out of danger. He will be able to call on his trade once more next week, according to the doctors who pulled him through.

Efforts to bring back the "26" dice game in order to stimulate the holiday trade have been nipped in the bud. Several ingenious dealers brought out what was really the old army game in disguise. Several plain clothes men tried out the imitations after they had been reported on the South Side. Apparently they did not win, for the dealers were arrested soon after. They made orations in court which got them off without fines, but the judge declared that he will make up by giving them the limit if they are ever haled before him again on such a charge. It therefore looks like the "26" game would not play any considerable part in the holiday trade this year.

One of the finest window displays of "La Venga" cigars which was ever trimmed in this city is now attracting much attention at the store of James H. Wells, the well-known druggist. Practically all of the many sizes of this brand are in the window, and the setting for the display is one of the most unique and cleverly arranged which the writer has seen in some time.

R. M. Granat, of R. M. Granat & Company, York, Pa., was in the city on business last week.

Eugene Klein, of E. M. Schwartz & Company, was one of last week's visitors.

Wohl & Comstock Company has been forced, owing to the rush of business incident to the holiday season, to make a number of alterations and changes in their factory. To expedite the work several departments have been consolidated, with the idea of making more room. Few cigars are holding their own with the fickle taste of the local public any better than "Cisneros," the leader of the factory. The holiday demand for this brand, it was said at the factory, is fully equal to other year-end seasons.

Milton Samuels, who represents Maximilian Stern, is visiting the local trade this week. He is accompanied by George F. Schnath, local representative of the company.

L. Caro, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is again in the city after having completed a most successful trip through Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri.

The Schermerhorn Cigar Store, located at West South Water Street and Fifth Avenue, which is the "hang-out" of the butter and egg kings of the city was burgled the other night by a gang of robbers. The intruders, being unable to secure any money from the place except a few dollars which they found in the cash register, vented their spleen on the furnishings of the place, and caused considerable damage. They took several boxes of choice cigars, but evidently did not come prepared to get away with any large amount of merchandise.

Francis Edler & Company, the prominent pipe house, has purchased the stock of William Reiner, deceased, for a consideration of $25,000. Mr. Reiner died suddenly not long ago and THE TOBACCO WORLD scooped the entire trade press on the news of his death. The acquisition of the stock will be a valuable addition to the already heavy line of Francis Edler & Company, and will help materially in filling orders for the holiday trade, which are still being shipped out by the company.

Celestino, Vega & Company have been having a heavy run on their "La Venga" cigar, and have decorated many fine windows throughout the city in the past few weeks. "La Venga" is one of the few cigars which remains in the popular favor here without much change, except in the increasing orders, from year to year. It is truly a staple of any first-class cigar case.

Several complaints came from jobbers of cigars while the writer was making his rounds this time. One of these was that the saloon trade is not ordering as heavily this year as last. The jobbers feel that the indisposition to place orders is only temporary, and that the trade with the merry mucilage parlors will soon be up to the standard.

One of the largest failures in some time occurred last week, when a petition in bankruptcy was filed against J. W. Vinnissky, the well-known jobber of cigars in this city. The liabilities of the company will run as high as $30,000, it is said, while the assets are known to be too small to pay more than a few cents on the dollar. It was not known in the trade here that the company was embarrassed. Fortunately, few of the creditors were hit for large amounts, the losses being well divided among a number of firms all over the country. The conditions surrounding the failure are not clear, but there is to be a meeting of the creditors some time this week, at which certain persons will be examined with reference to what they know about the affairs of the company.

"Subway" cigars are still having a heavy run in the city, and the advertising which is behind them seems to have been effective in getting the public to try the cigar, at least. Whether it will stick or not is a matter which is causing some debate and not a little worry among manufacturers of five-cent goods with a large distribution in the city. The cigar is the largest weed that has ever been offered for five cents in the city, and the quality of the stock, for a five-cent piece of goods, is excellent. Sprague, Warner & Company, the local distributors, declare that orders have been brisk and are growing all the time.

Something About Cigarette Paper

A GOOD cigarette paper should give no perceptible smell or taste when the cigarette is smoked. This excludes the use of many vegetable fibres, and it may be confidently asserted that the only suitable fibres are those of flax, hemp and ramie. Cotton is particularly unsuitable, as it gives a lamp-wick smell. Wood-pulp is used only for the lowest qualities of cigarette paper.

The three available fibres must themselves be carefully selected, and only those which are soft and supple can be used with advantage. Special caution is required when they have been got from waste, such as dirty rags.

The best of the three is ramie, but it is so scarce and expensive that it can only be used for high-priced cigarette papers.

A good cigarette paper should have a rather bluish color. At the same time, those with a yellowish tinge are generally somewhat stronger, as they have not undergone such a severe bleach.

In some places, however, a colored cigarette paper is preferred to a white one, especially the maize-colored papers, usually produced by the use of salts of iron. These papers naturally give a brown ash. Of late, however, the same tints have been produced by means of coal-tar colors, and give the white ash preferred by many smokers. They impart no taste to the smoke. Iron salts do, and some smokers like the flavor.

Havana brown papers are used for countries where imported cigarettes have to compete with home-made cigarillos, which are just small cigars. They are colored with mineral pigments, or with any coal-tar colors which make the cigarette burn faster.

Pale blue, violet, or pink cigarette papers are very rarely wanted. They are always dyed with artificial dyestuffs.

Cigarette papers are usually divided into the following four classes:

1. Vellum papers, which have a uniform look through.
2. Laid papers, which in the look through show crossing lines, produced, as in similar paper made for writing purposes.
3. Papers with a genuine water mark, lettered or not, formed by the dandy roll.
4. Papers with a mark impressed on the finished paper.

It is impossible to make a cigarette paper too thin, so long as it will hold tobacco, and the best sorts weigh no more than about 150 grains per square yard. At the same time, to get a square yard weighing less than 190 grains, it is indispensable to use very strong fibres, which burn badly. Such very thin papers may be used by cigarette smokers who make their own cigarettes, as the rolling up in the fingers is not such a severe trial to the strength of the paper as machine work is, especially with coarse-cut tobacco.

It is not always true that the thinner a cigarette paper is, the smaller will be the amount of the products of its combustion. At the same time, the idea has found expression in the production of very transparent cigarette papers, which look thinner than they really are. These papers now enjoy much favor in Russia. They cause bad tasting tobaccos to burn in such a way as to improve their flavor, and hence, no doubt, the preference shown them by people who do not know good tobacco.

Besides, the close texture of these very transparent papers make the cigarette go out the moment the smoker stops puffing. This may be a valuable property sometimes, if a man has to interrupt his whiff abruptly, and has plenty of matches.

For ready-made cigarettes, the paper should weigh from 200 to 250 grains per square yard, a weight which permits of their being made with a comparatively loose texture, and of their burning with consequent greater facility.

This varies from 1-1750th of an inch for a weight of 128 grains per square yard, to 1-600th of an inch for a weight of 25 grains per square yard, and it is very difficult to judge of the weight per square yard from the thickness of the paper, especially when the latter is estimated by feeling the paper between the tips of the fingers.

Many judges of paper have, nevertheless, extraordinary delicacy of touch. Porous, rough papers always feel thicker than close, very smooth papers of the same weight per square yard, and this must be allowed for. The weight per square yard is a rough test of the amount of gaseous products of combustion which will come from the paper itself, and reach the mouth of the smoker. Economical smokers will always prefer rather thick papers, as they are more combustible, and there is less waste of the tobacco.

This is an important factor in the case of cigarette paper. The great point to be observed by the paper-maker is to get the structure of the paper as nearly like to the tobacco leaf as possible, so that both will burn at the same rate. At the same time, it must not be forgotten that a very porous paper is a weak paper. Papers of the right degree of porosity do not blacken in smoking, and they insure the full aroma of the tobacco reaching the mouth. Impervious papers cause the smoke to reach the mouth with a bitter taste. Far too little attention is paid to these vital points, simply because it is impossible to make a properly porous cigarette paper at any great speed. Hence, closer papers, which permit of a far greater output, are those most generally made. With such papers it is impossible to make really good tasting cigarettes, be the tobacco what it may.

It is evident that a good cigarette paper must burn freely, and require no relighting, even if laid aside for a time.

Here, however, the tobacco plays an important part as well. There are cigarette tobaccos, or rather tobaccos sold as such, which will not burn well in any paper.

It should also be mentioned that the fact that a paper burns well and uniformly is practically a guarantee that it will not impart any taste or smell of its own to the smoke. The paper should burn without the least blackening or other change of color.

Considerable porosity of the paper is an indispensable condition for proper combustion, for the air must reach the tobacco through the paper as well as from the ends of the cigarette. Imperfect combustion contributes to the formation of pyridines, which blacken the paper (very inferior paper will char of itself), and spoil the taste of the tobacco utterly, so far, that is, as smokers who appreciate good tobacco are concerned. A smoker of shag will possibly prefer the pyridine taste, and think it is a proof that the cigarette is value for money.

There is no error more common in judging a cigarette paper than by the amount of ash, and even experienced cigarette smokers test the paper by setting fire to a bit of it, and seeing if it leaves much or little ash.

When we consider that tobacco itself makes a lot of ash, which, of course, adds itself to the paper ash, and also that none of either ash reaches the smoker's mouth, much less his lungs, we see how false the test is. It is utterly immaterial, so far as the smoker is concerned, whether the paper makes much or little ash. On the whole, papers making plenty of ash are to be preferred, because the more mineral filling there is in the paper, the less will be the amount of gas produced by its combustion—i. e., of gas likely to interfere with the aroma of the tobacco. So long, then, as the paper will hold the tobacco, the more ash it makes, the better.

Something About Cigarette Papers

Certain fillings are essential to secure proper combustion of the paper, and all are perfectly harmless to the smoker, and make plenty of ash. They are mainly carbonate of lime and carbonate of magnesia, and if any of the ash does get into the mouth, it must be remembered that both of these substances are used medicinally to a large extent in cases of indigestion. It is very rare that any other mineral filling is employed for cigarette paper.

Many smokers attach great importance to the look and general character of the ash, as well as to its quantity. In testing a cigarette paper, they light one end of it. Some expect the ash to be very light, and fly up as the paper burns. Others desire the exact opposite, wanting a heavy ash, that falls straight down on to the floor. Some like the ash to cling together, others wish it to fall asunder at once. There are smokers who think ash ought to be white, and smokers who think it ought to be gray.

Now, it must be stated once and for all that the color of the ash is utterly immaterial, and that the burning of a paper cannot be of any use in determining the value of that paper when there is tobacco inside it, when the paper burns without flame and without free access of air.

There are cigarette papers which when lighted give a black ash and a disagreeable smell of saltpetre, and yet the same papers when smoked with tobacco inside give a white ash and no disagreeable taste or odor whatever.

All highly combustible papers containing saltpetre give a black ash and a stifling smell when burnt separately, and tobacco does the same if burnt in the open and the fumes are received without the intermediancy of a pipe or other conveyor. The case is quite different when the access of air is regulated by an enclosure of wood, meerschaum, paper, or tobacco leaf.

The lightness of the ash above alluded to is a perfectly valueless property. It can be easily secured by adding to the pulp from which the paper is made certain sulphates, which are, at least, not calculated to improve the health of the smoker.—"Cigar and Tobacco World" (London).

Blue Cross Society May Jolt Doctor Pease

Doctor Pease, head of the New York Anti-Smoking Society, will find no cause for joy in the announcement of the Blue Cross Society in England. It is stated that the purpose of this society which is composed of juveniles, is to collect smoking material for convalescent soldiers.

Correspondents report that they have seen General French walking along the battle lines in France smoking a cigarette as calmly as if he were on a mere inspection tour on a parade ground.

During the Boer war one of the Christmas presents from royalty to the soldiers in the ranks was a pipe for each man.

It has been found that soldiers who are accustomed to smoking lose some of their efficiency when forced to do without their tobacco.

Partnership of Rodriguez & Teijeiro Dissolved

Rodriguez & Teijeiro, who have been manufacturing cigars at 109 Fulton Street, New York City, have dissolved partnership, the combined business having been taken over by E. Teijeiro. Mr. Rodriguez, it is expected, will shortly open a clear Havana factory under his own management.

"Frat" cigar, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, is being pushed this week by George C. Knight, the well-known Loop dealer. The cigar is the leader of Mr. Knight's five-cent lines and he is pushing the cigar with a window display and interior display, and a behind the counter word to mouth campaign, directed at customers who want "some good five-cent cigar." Mr. Knight has had much success along this line.

Charles L. Miller, one of the largest dealers in the southwest corner of the Loop district, is closing out his pipe department this week, and will give all his attention to regular cigar, cigarette and tobacco business. He has placed a large and excellent line of pipes on sale at low prices, in order to move them out of his store.

Albert Breitung is one of the dealers in this city who is abreast of the times enough to get his windows decorated early for the holiday trade. In all of his stores this week appeared excellent displays, which are as clever as they are carefully designed to advertise goods.

The National Cigar Store, in the First National Bank Building, has always been strong on pipe displays, but the display which is in this week is a little ahead of any which have appeared in the past. It is attracting much attention from shoppers.

Billy Sunday Makes Harsh Attack on Smokers

Whether fierce denunciations are in keeping with religious meetings or not may be a question in the minds of some, but not in Billy Sunday's.

In one of Sunday's speeches in Denver some time ago, he is credited with an attack on tobacco users, in which he is said to have declared that in the final judgment the man who cuts his wife's throat will fare no worse than the man who smokes a cigar.

In referring to Sunday's attack on smokers in Denver, newspapers have printed the following from his speech:

"You are dirty, vile, and the devil has you on the hip. Unless you cease the habit, hell with all its blackened walls and brimstone floors will be your eternal resting place. No better fare or softer bed will be given the man who cuts his wife's throat than the man who smokes a cigar."

According to present plans Sunday is slated to appear in Philadelphia some time after the first of the year, but he will receive no welcome or support from smokers. This sort of cheap abuse has no place in the pulpit and as a contemporary has well said, "Good church men ought to blush for being found in such company."

There are many smokers among lay members of the different sects as well as among the clergy, there are many men who smoke who belong to no religious body, but who live clean moral lives, and such attacks as the one quoted above should not be condoned by those who seek Sunday's efforts for moral and religious uplift.

When it comes to campaigning against the use of tobacco, Sunday should "stick to his last" and leave that part of the work to such past masters in the art as Wilbur Glenn Voliva and Doctor Pease.

Alcock Brothers to Move Uptown

Alcock Brothers, proprietors of the billiard parlor and cigar store, Bever and Liberty Streets, Wooster, O., have made arrangements whereby they will, about December 1st, occupy the Liberty Street location, formerly occupied by the Modern Pharmacy, conducted by Proctor & O'Hail. It is thought that as the new location is in the heart of the business district, that the move is an advantageous one.

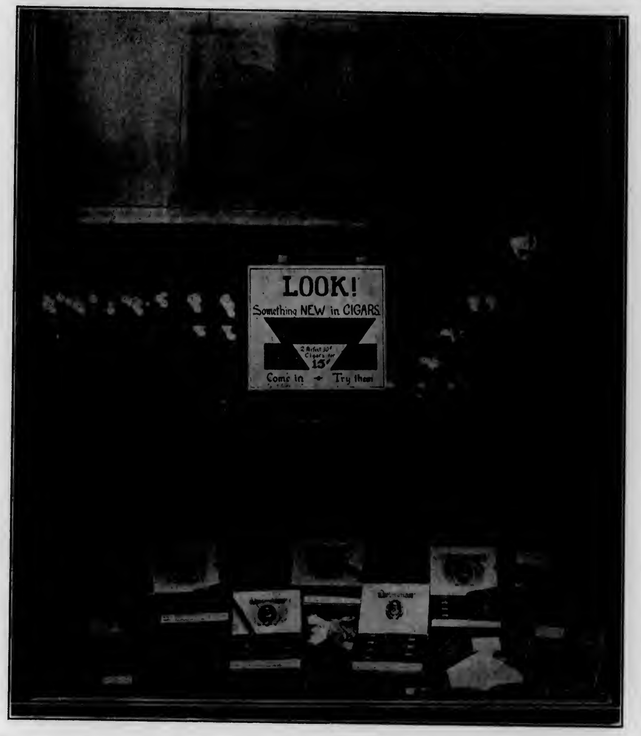
Handsome Display of New "Reynaldo" Sizes

This handsome display of the new "Reynaldo" Duet size, two cigars in one, recently appeared in a window of the well-known New York house of H. T. Dewey & Sons Company, 138 Fulton Street. Needless to say, the results fully justified the display.

Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, the manufacturers of the "Reynaldo" and other well known brands, are highly pleased with the way the new cigar is taking with the public, and its popularity in a big way is predicted.

Aside from being something new in the cigar trade, this size is an economic purchase for the smoker, as the "Reynaldo" which sells for ten cents straight and up, can be purchased in the Duet size at fifteen cents.

Similar displays on the "Reynaldo" Duet are being made in several sections of the country, and the orders to the factory for this size are exceeding expectations.



Trade Jottings

Morris D. Neumann, of the firm of Neumann & Mayer, reports a steady flow of orders on the "El Tello" and "Bella Mundo" brands.

Word is received from the W. A. Davis Tobacco Company, Syracuse, N. Y., that the "Rocky Ford" cigar, manufactured by the Union-American Cigar Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., is proving very successful in that city.

Garret D. Ryan, who formerly worked in the cigar manufacturing business in Northampton, Mass., has opened a cigar factory in the Cote Block, Second Street, Greenfield, Mass.

George Walton, who during the past year conducted a billiard hall and cigar store at Columbia City, Ind., has sold out his business to Albert C. ("Kid") Ross, a wrestler, well known throughout the State of Indiana.

The newest brand to occupy the attention of Oscar H. Gassman, Cincinnati, O., is the "Pinzon," manufactured by the M. Perez Company, of Tampa, Fla. The "Pinzon" is being handled in seven sizes, from five cents to three for fifty cents. Mr. Gassman states that a very satisfactory sale is being done on the brand.

Stamp Tax Rules Ready

WASHINGTON, November 13, 1914.

Regulations under the war revenue tax law have been prepared by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, it was learned today, and will be issued some time next week. These regulations deal with the stamp taxes which become effective on December 1. The stamps are now being prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and a supply will be furnished all the collectors of internal revenue by December 1.

It is understood that the Government will not require wholesalers to place the stamps on the goods they have in hand on December 1, but the wholesalers will be permitted to sell these goods to the retailers untaxed and the Government will hold the retailers responsible for affixing the stamps before the goods are sold to consumers. After December 1 the stamps will be affixed by the manufacturers of the goods.

"United" Gets Burglary Insurance

The New England Casualty Company, through its Boston office, has recently made a contract for writing burglary insurance for about 700 stores of the United Cigar Stores Company. The contract is one of the largest of its kind ever made in this country. The premium is said to be about $16,000.

Maybe the bold New York burglars will ease up on the New York stores of the "United" now.

Shields-Wertheim Busy on "La Saramita" Brand—B. W. Sanborn Stricken With Typhoid Fever—Hi Hammer Gives Town the "Once Over"

CLEVELAND, O., November 12, 1914.

ONE of the surprising features of the cigar industry in this section is the wonderful activity of the Shields-Wertheim Company. It is impossible for them to keep abreast with their fall and holiday business. Many new jobbers were added this summer, and all in all they are keeping the factory taxed to its capacity. "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" in the language of James B. Shields are the same to the dealer as sugar is to the housewife.

A. J. Street, one of the Shields-Wertheim Company's salesmen, just completed a campaign with their jobber, Sam Feiman, at Canton, which was a huge success. Mr. Feiman reports the "La Saramita Tens" and "La Saramita Fives" are the biggest sellers in the territory.

Joe C. Leverance is only hitting the high spots in the West. Joe says this will be the biggest trip of his career.

Bert Smith, the Middle West man, has shown a vast increase and is certainly making the famous "La Saramita" the real selling cigar in this territory.

Fred P. Shields, Eastern representative for the Shields-Wertheim Company, is showing a vast increase in that territory.

Dick Cuthbert and Billy Blaschke, two of the Shields-Wertheim Company's local men, have no complaint to offer as they are getting their share of the business.

Geo. B. Scrambling Company have been showing nice results on the Montoro brand, 10-cent goods, and the Montoro factory smoker, 5-cent cigar. The new 5-cent "Owl" is showing up good; also the "Robert Burns."

Herbert Stace, of Stace & Vincent, reports an increase in business on "La Saramitas" in their retail stores.

E. Schonberger, the cigarist on Bond Street, had a very attractive window display on "La Saramitas" last week.

Mr. Schonberger is one of Cleveland's young cigar dealers and is building up a big business in this locality.

B. W. Sanborn, manager of the Hippodrome Building store for Pyle & Allen Company, has been confined to his bed for the past several weeks with a severe attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Sanborn is one of the best-known cigar men in the city, and his host of friends wish him a speedy recovery.

During the absence of Mr. Sanborn, W. L. DeVerna, his assistant, will be in charge of this stand.

Chas. Schuethelm, with the "smile that won't come off," one of our old and stable cigar men who has charge of the cigar department of the Arcade stand of the Standard Drug Company, reports big increase sales on "Saramita Fives" and "La Saramita Tens."

Eddie Wodiska and Hi Hammer, of Corral y Wodiska Company, were in town the past week.

D. Benninghoven, of Brunhoff Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati, was here the past week calling on the trade.

Trattner Brothers & Zeigler, featuring "La Saramitas" and other brands of the Shields-Wertheim Company, are perfectly satisfied with the sales on these goods and business in general.

Ernie Woodruff, of the Geo. B. Scrambling Company, was in town the past week.

Ben Johnson has leased the rear room of the Hippodrome store of the Pyle & Allen Company and is featuring a high grade line of candies. This store has an entrance into the cigar store as well as into the Hippodrome Building itself.

Baer-Wolf Company report business as extremely good. Among the brands that are enjoying a big sale with this firm are "El Sidelos," "Judge Howell" and "Decisions."

Mr. Allen, of Pyle & Allen Company, was in Detroit the past week.

Ed McKettrick, the "Melachrino" cigarette salesman, was about town last week.

Mr. Wertheim, of the E. M. Schwartz Company, was also in town.

Verne Owen, the youngest cigar store manager in the city of Cleveland in charge of the Fred G. Gollman Company's stand at 742 Euclid Avenue, is fast coming to the top of the ladder and promises to be one of the most popular cigarists in town.

All the stands of the Fred G. Gollman Company are enjoying exceptionally fine business. Especially is this true of the cigar stand in the Arcade managed by Jack Curry. Jack has a host of friends and daily adds to their number.

Morris Glucksman's Leader Building stands were taxed to their capacity election night, as thousands upon thousands of people were jammed all around the building. Election returns were being thrown on a screen here and thus attracted such a vast crowd. Mr. Glucksman reports it as being the biggest day he ever had.

George Bassett is continuing his big success in his Prospect Street store and tells the writer that he contemplates taking a vacation as soon as the holiday business is over. Mr. Bassett will spend a few weeks on his land in the Isle of Pines.

JERRY.

Trade Warned to Look Out for Imposter

A. J. Simpson, treasurer of the well-known jobbing house of Best & Russell, of Chicago, writes "The Tobacco World," asking that the trade be notified to avoid any person representing himself as Harry W. Simpson, and claiming to be his brother.

Mr. Simpson states that such a person, who has been calling upon the cigar, cigarette, tobacco and snuff manufacturers, and in some instances secured money, is an imposter.

The matter is now in the hands of the New York Detective Bureau.

Melachrino & Company Find Cigarette Trade Good

R. M. Ellis, vice-president of M. Melachrino & Company, states that cigarettes of merit such as his firm puts out, moves well with the trade and that the past season has been a satisfactory one.

The Melachrino Company, together with that of the Nestor Gianiclis Company, and the Surbrug Company, have been putting out some advertising literature that has attracted wide-spread attention to the various brands.

The sales on "Milos," "Nestors" and "Melachrino" cigarettes are reported to have been shipped in heavy quantities during the first days of the month, proving that the demand on these well-known brands has not been affected by depression in other lines.

M. W. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, made a quick trip out to their Chicago headquarters last week. Mr. Berriman states that their business has been by no means backward and looks forward to a holiday trade which will be quite up to the mark.

TOBACCO EXHIBIT AT FEDERATION OF LABOR CONVENTION

THE illustration herewith shows the display of the United States Tobacco Company in Horticultural Hall during the Thirty-fourth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Callers at the booth have received many thousand one-half-ounce packages, old and new cut, of "Central Union," "Campbell's Shag" and "Epicure" brands.

On Friday evening during the monster parade more than 1000 packages were distributed. In this connection huge banners were carried in the parade, showing the seal of approval, and creating a stronger demand among the local dealers for these union-made brands of smoking and chewing tobacco.

The exhibit was in charge of "Jack" Fowler. He was assisted by Mr. Osterloh, of the factory, who came along from Richmond to get an insight into the selling end of the business.

During the parade there was a large representation of cigarmakers in line, numbering sections from all factories in the city marketing their goods under the union-made seal.

Another interesting display at the convention was that of Frishmuth & Company, of this city, who exhibited their "Green Goose" and "Rainbow" brands of chewing and smoking tobaccos. This firm is among the largest producers in their line in the country.

The Bloch Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Va., had an exhibit on their "Mail Pouch" brand, which is known from coast to coast. D. T. Dean, representative for Philadelphia County, was in charge. In this connection Mr. Dean can be found at Twenty-sixth and Poplar Streets, where upon request a supply of several kinds of advertising matter for the "Mail Pouch" brand can be obtained.

The Mission Cigar Company, 1322 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wash., report a good business on "Centropolis," A. Santaella & Company's latest product. Nick Poehlamn, proprietor of the Mission Cigar Company, states that the "Centropolis" is a good seller and is keeping well up in the race with some of the more established brands.

J. E. Cruse, formerly manager of the cigar and tobacco department of the Baltimore Bargain House, Baltimore, Md., and said to be an expert in his line, has assumed charge of the cigarette and tobacco departments of the firm of Henry Straus, Cincinnati, O., importers, jobbers and retailers.

Joseph V. Heinzle and John B. Carbonneau, both experienced members of the cigar trade, and formerly identified with the "United," Rochester, N. Y., are now doing business at 254 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., under the firm name of Carbonneau & Heinzle.

In summing up the sales for 1913 on the familiar "Webster" brand, manufactured by Y. Pendas & Alvarez, Tampa, Fla., the Grathwol Cigar Company, Minneapolis, Minn., found that all previous records had been broken. They now state that the sales at the end of the year 1914 will eclipse even those of 1913. There is no need to say anything further regarding the "Webster."

Charles L. Moyer Dead

CHARLES L. MOYER, for the past twenty years engaged in the wholesale and retail cigar business at 235 North Seventh Street, Reading, Pa., died recently of apoplexy at his home in that city.

The deceased was well known and a highly respected business man of Reading. His sudden death came as a great shock to his many friends.

Mr. Moyer is survived by a widow and one son. His mother and three sisters are also living. He was fifty years of age.

Mr. Moyer was a member of a number of fraternal orders.

Mitchell C. Pacholder

M. S. Pacholder, fifty-seven years old, and a well-known cigar manufacturer of Baltimore, Md., died recently at his home in that city from an attack of heart disease.

Mr. Pacholder was born in Germany and came to this country when a child. At the age of thirty-five years he was at the head of one of the largest tobacco manufacturing firms of its kind in the country.

As his prosperity increased, Mr. Pacholder became interested in charitable work and gave liberally to a number of organizations. He was a member of the Amicable Lodge of Masons, and of the Phoenix Club.

The deceased is survived by a widow and one brother.

William G. Baxter

William G. ("Billy") Baxter, one of the best known and most popular cigar travelers in the Middle West, is dead. For many years he was associated with the selling force of Grommes & Elson, Chicago manufacturers of the famous "Ben Bey" cigar. At one time he was a partner in the distributing house of Roper & Baxter, Cincinnati. When that firm failed he went with Grommes & Elson, and soon became one of the leading salesmen. He had a personality which was of material assistance to him in a business way, and hundreds of dealers saved their orders for him, it is said. His brother, Robert Baxter, is a member of a wholesale cigar house in Denver, Colorado. At the Chicago offices of Grommes & Elson on the northwest side it was said that the firm had lost a salesman who would be hard to replace. Many cards of sympathy have been sent to the factory by such friends as have heard of his death.

Ambrose Herkert

Ambrose Herkert, eighty-seven years old, retired cigar manufacturer, known throughout the city as a musician, died recently at his home, 2346 Jefferson Street. Thirty years ago he retired from active cigar manufacturing. He was a member of the Philadelphia Musical Association. His daughter, Mrs. Fred Cannon, with whom he lived, and four sons, George, Frederick, William and Harry Herkert, survive.

Joseph Brothers

Joseph Brothers, a pioneer business man of Cadillac, Mich., and for many years the owner of the Corner Cigar Store, in that city, died recently of cancer and complication. The deceased was fifty-five years old and was one of the city's most popular residents. He is survived by a widow.

Richard C. Brewer

Richard C. Brewer, a cigar manufacturer and dealer of Dayton, O., died recently at his home in that city after a long illness.

The deceased was sixty-two years old and few men were better known among the business men of the city. He was long identified with the cigar business and had a wide circle of acquaintances.

Mr. Brewer was born in Cologne, Germany, and came to this country when but three years old. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Fred B. Perkins

Fred B. Perkins, a former cigar manufacturer of Painesville, O., died recently of asthma, in Cleveland. The deceased is survived by one son and one daughter.

T. E. Stephens

T. E. Stephens, fifty-nine years old and a salesman for the National Cigar Company, died recently from a stroke of apoplexy at his home in Kansas City, Mo.

The deceased is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters.

United Profit Sharing Stock Advances

The spectacle of anything advancing in price at times like the present is too picturesque to pass unnoticed. The "little wonder" which has confounded its critics and pleased its friends is the United Profit Sharing Company, which is an outgrowth of the United Cigar Stores Company of America.

The United Profit Sharing Company is advancing for the broad reason that it is doing an enormous business with a tiny capitalization. It has but 317,890 shares outstanding with a par of $1 each, or $317,890. And it is doing $10,000,000 at least of gross business, with prospects of doing so much more that judicial minded people expect to see its sales reach $20,000,000 within the next two or three years.

The company's business was really organized to handle the premium coupon business of the United Cigar Stores Company, the world's largest chain of retail tobacco stores. But United Profit Sharing has not been content with a solitary customer. It has branched out and within the last six months took an order from the Wrigley Chewing Gum Company for a billion or more coupons in 1915. Swift & Company have also been big buyers of United Profit Sharing coupons. There are a lot of other concerns, including producers of food products, wearing apparel and the like, who advertise United Profit coupons to their patrons.

It is estimated that Profit Sharing is earning today fully $1,000,000 net and that by the end of the first year the annual rate will be $1,250,000. This is obviously over $3 per share on stock with a par of $1 and now selling for $11 on the curb. The company is easily earning nearly 30 per cent. on its selling price.

United Profit Sharing was selling at about $8 per share before the war. Its advance of $3 in the teeth of current conditions is based on strong buying by inside interests who are enthusiastic about the company's future.

Greeley, Col., Cigar Store Changes Hands

H. C. Havener, who has operated a cigar store on Eighth Street, Greeley, Col., has recently disposed of the same to A. B. Noxon, of Colorado Springs. Mr. Noxon has leased a property in Greeley and as soon as alterations are complete the family will remove to Greeley.

Aaron Mayer, S. M. Frank & Company, recently visited Kansas City in the interests of his company's products.

E. V. Schnoor & Company to Cover Six States

THE new wholesale cigar and tobacco house of E. V. Schnoor & Company has formally opened for business and four salesmen have left Wichita to cover six states in the interests of the new firm. The salesmen who represent Wichita's first wholesale tobacco house will cover Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri, New Mexico and Colorado.

The new firm plans to carry a stock of about $60,000, consisting of cigars, tobacco, pipes and smokers' articles. A new humidor with a capacity of 500,000 cigars is being planned in order to keep the stock in good condition. More men will be placed on the road from time to time.

The lines of cigars which this firm will handle include: "La Saramita," "Flor de Langsdorf," "Garcias," "La Venga," "La Afinidad" and Stachelberg brands. In the nickel goods the house will feature "Traveler," "John Ruskin," "Subway," "Leader," "Monogram" and "Little Langsdorf."

Seven years ago E. V. Schnoor came to Wichita from Vinton, Ia., and opened a cigar store at 419 East Douglas Avenue. Two years ago Lewis B. Solomon bought an interest in the firm, after which a jobbing department was added to the business. Since the jobbing line was taken up the firm has grown until it now operates six stores.

Milwaukee House Becomes Distributors for "Cuesta-Rey"

Such a splendid volume of business on "La Unica" cigars was shown to Cuesta, Rey & Company by the cigar department of E. R. Godfrey & Sons Company, Milwaukee, Wis., via the efforts of G. A. Tozer, manager, that the former company have acknowledged their approval by appointing Messrs. E. R. Godfrey & Sons Company state distributors of the "Cuesta-Rey" factory brand. "Cuesta-Reys" will be handled in ten sizes. H. A. Robst, specialty man of E. R. Godfrey & Sons Company, in company with Julius Kahn, factory representative, recently covered the state territory.

New Jobbing House for St. Cloud, Minn.

Charles Peterson, of Estherville, Ia., has announced his intention of entering the wholesale tobacco and candy business in St. Cloud, Minn. Mr. Peterson states that after investigation in the central and northern part of the state, he has decided that St. Cloud possesses many advantages as a distributing point.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoffman Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoffman, of 4710 Grand Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on the ninth of November with an informal reception at the Standard Club.

Mr. Hoffman is the founder of the wholesale cigar and tobacco firm of E. Hoffman & Son, which is widely known throughout the Middle West. Mr. Hoffman has resided in Chicago since 1857.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman were born in Germany.

"Mascot," packed fifty in tins is a new cigar being put on the market by the Mascot Cigar Company, Jacksonville, Fla. They have placed the brand in quite a number of stands locally.

Stickney-Hoelscher Company Conducts Unique Campaign

THE introduction of the "Little Barrett" cigar by the jobbing house of Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company, in St. Louis, aroused considerable interest by the unique manner of conducting the campaign.

October 1st, salesmen were started selling the brand, but notified their customers that delivery would not be made until the end of the month.

On October 28th, six large trucks drawn by four horses each and decorated with bunting appeared on the streets of St. Louis, announcing that the "Little Barrett" was now on sale. Each wagon carried musicians and the procession attracted much attention throughout the city. The demonstration was also carried on the following day.

As a result of the efforts of the salesmen when the public was notified that the cigar was on sale it was found that fifteen hundred stands in the city were prepared to handle trade on that brand on the opening day. The "Little Barrett" is a small edition of the "Lawrence Barrett" cigar, for which the Stickney-Hoelscher Company are sole agents.

The unique features of the campaign were handled by Edward C. Houlette, advertising manager of the Bondy & Lederer Company, of New York, manufacturers of "Lawrence Barrett," "Little Barrett" and "Tom Keene" cigars.

Paul Eaton to be New Wichita Jobber

Paul Eaton, for fifteen years a retail tobacconist of Wichita, Kans., has recently become the Wichita distributor for Niles & Moser, and will shortly open a stock room with a capacity for a $30,000 stock.

Mr. Eaton owns two of the leading retail stores in the city and will retain his office at 108 North Main Street. He will not dispose of his retail holdings.

Among the brands which Mr. Eaton will handle are "First Consul," "Preferencia," "Chancellor," "Cinco" and Niles & Moser's "Hand-Made."

It was with Niles & Moser fifteen years ago that Mr. Eaton started out to learn the cigar business. His new business arrangement with the firm was made after he had considered other propositions, which would have necessitated selling his interests in Wichita and moving away.

New Brunswick Firm to Enter Wholesale Field

Schneider Brothers, proprietors of the cigar store in the Elks' Building, New Brunswick, N. J., have branched out into the wholesale cigar and tobacco field and announce that they are now prepared to fill orders for cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

This new move by the firm was made after extensive preparations and investigation of the field, and they announce that they are now prepared to handle all orders speedily.

Seattle Wholesaler Gets New Retail Stand

A. Phillips, a wholesale and retail cigar dealer of Seattle, Wash., has recently secured the location at W505 Riverside, and will open the place for business about November 10th.

The store will be entirely remodeled by Mr. Phillips and a new set of fixtures installed.

Detroit

Clerks Hold Meeting for Saturday Night Closing—David Wallace Dies Suddenly—New Hotel Tuller to Open November 17th—Mazer Cigar Company Gives Big Smoker

DETROIT, MICH., November 10.

LAST Friday night, twenty-five hundred Detroit retail clerks met at the corner of Adams and Grand Circus Park and paraded in a body to the Light Guard Armory, where a mass meeting was held, and enthusiastically refuted the theory that indoor employment has a detrimental effect on the lungs. With horns of tin and throats of brass they gave vent to their feelings. It was a demonstration arranged to give added impetus to the Saturday-night-closing movement, to infuse new energy into the ranks of its proponents, and it succeeded. While most of the clerks were from department stores, there were at least two dozen employed in cigar stores. While the Saturday night closing movement was one of the main features of the demonstration, other things talked of were: getting clerks better acquainted with one another, creating friendlier feelings, and binding them together into one strong, solid organization for the improvement of the trade, better working hours and better wages. It is planned to hold these meetings frequently this winter, and if possible to effect a permanent organization of 10,000 clerks.

Detroit's reputation as one of the leading centers for cigar manufacturing has once more been sustained. The month of October was the best so far this year for local manufacturers, and broke the year's record. During that period 29,009,100 cigars were made and 2,027,307 pounds of chewing and smoking tobacco. The actual receipts by the Internal Revenue Department show $87,027.30 for cigars and $162,384.58 for tobacco. As compared with last year, local manufacturers made during the same month: 30,914,863 cigars and 2,481,318 pounds of tobacco. Fell off a little this year, but really nothing in comparison to general conditions. It certainly proves beyond a doubt that Detroit-made cigars have a big following and that irrespective of times, smokers will stand by their favorite brands.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed ten days ago by the Klip Cigar Company, jobbers and manufacturers of cigars and confectionery, at 880 Grand River Avenue, Detroit. The schedule filed with the petition indicates assets of $4279.48 and liabilities of $1132.97. Most of the liabilities are to confectionery concerns. The company had three brands that seemed to be taking quite well with the small trade: "Klip," "Havana Luxury" and "Havana Crest."

Frederick T. Stimson, of Ann Arbor, Mich., filed a petition in the United States Bankruptcy Court on October 28th and was adjudicated. Mr. Stimson conducted a cigar emporium and a billiard hall. His statement as filed shows assets of $3404.69 and liabilities of $7075.74.

David Wallace, age seventy years, senior member of the firm of David Wallace & Sons, grocers and cigarists, on Woodward Avenue, died suddenly last week at his residence. He was in his usual health in the morning and in the afternoon went out into the country. Returning home at dinner time, he went into the basement of his home and shortly afterward was found dead on the floor by members of his family.

The opening of the new addition to the Hotel Tuller has been set for November 17th. At that time all of the floors will be finished and ready for use. The Tuller will then have over 600 rooms, and will be the second largest hostelry in the city.

The store of M. L. Tobias on Woodward Avenue, just north of the park, is exhibiting in its window the autopiano which will be given free in a contest for railway employees. The Tobias store is Detroit headquarters for all Liggett & Meyers premiums.

On the basis of $4.80 a year for retail tobacco dealers doing a business of $200 a year, Detroit will contribute a good share towards the war tax fund. It is doubtful if there is any city in the country with as many retail cigar stores (size of the town considered) as Detroit. Take our downtown district; it is actually dotted with cigar stores, and new ones are constantly being added.

The Hotel Pontchartrain carries the "H. Upmann" brand in ten sizes. It is one of the best selling brands, particularly among those who want selection and quality.

Ben Lesser, of F. Lozano & Company, passed through November 2nd, on his way East. Ben has finished his year's work and now plans to rest up and prepare for the 1915 season. He will start out for the new year immediately after January 1st. "This is the best year I have ever had, and this is really a surprise to me when I take general conditions into consideration," said Mr. Lesser.

Charles C. Hinz has opened a factory for the manufacture of cigars in Munsing, Mich. It will be on a small scale to start with.

By the first of December, the E. M. Harris Company will have another store in operation on West Fort Street, in the Moffat Building. A long lease has been taken on the store formerly occupied as the bond section of the Security Trust Company; a few slight alterations will be made on the front, making it more presentable, and the fixtures will be installed so as to be ready for opening the first of the coming month. This store will in reality be No. 3 and will replace the present Woodward Avenue store, which the Harris Company vacates by May 1st next, owing to its lease having expired. The two other Harris stores will be located in choice sections of Detroit; one will be in the new David Whitney Arcade, and will open about the first of the year; the other will be in a new building which is to be erected at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Gratiot; the store will face Gratiot Avenue, and be a stone's throw from the corner. The Harris Company has three members who are all active in the work, and it is very likely that each man will be responsible for one store.

T. H. Perry Company, 602 Scherer Building, Detroit, comes out with the announcement that he will sell 100 "Broadway Wonder" cigars for $1.50, by parcel post, prepaid. In his announcement he requests that goods be ordered by mail, and that in fact, the offer is good only through the mail.

Fully up to expectations was the smoker given by Henry and Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Company, at their new factory on Grandy Avenue, Saturday evening, October 31st. Although the affair was not scheduled to start until eight o'clock, there were several people on hand as early as seven o'clock. By the time the doors opened, there was a crowd of a thousand people, and by eight-thirty the crowd grew to such large proportions that they were being packed in like "sardines." The affair was an occasion for two events; one was the opening of the new addition to the Mazer factory, which doubles the capacity of the plant; and the other was the awarding of the $875 automobile in the contest which has been conducted for the past eight weeks. A Highland Park fireman was the winner of the automobile. The choice was made by drawing envelopes,

The Salesman's Point of View

NOTHING is more important in all departments of merchandizing than the mental attitude of the salesman or employe. Self-confidence begets confidence. The employe who has confidence in himself inspires confidence in others. Suggestion is one of the most powerful agencies in existence. It is only necessary to suggest lack of capacity or power to bring all its baneful influences into action. No one is ever rated any more highly than he rates himself.

This is particularly true in dealing with customers. The customer is quick, to detect signs any of lack, of confidence or a suggested lack of capacity in dealing with any of the problems of salesmanship. This is a long remove from the self-conceit which is usually the outcome of ignorance. This variety of confidence is aggressive and unpleasant and strikes at the very root of successful salesmanship. The ignorantly aggressive clerk, does not get very far before his pretensions are discovered and his last condition is worse than his first.

The customer, however, enjoys dealing with a salesman who is well informed, not only generally, but in the particular line with which he is engaged. Customers often require information and advice, and will soon learn to avoid the salesman who volunteers haphazard information. The well-informed clerk not only inspires the confidence of his trade, but in nine case out of ten will sell a larger bill of goods than the clerk who is not able to assist the customer in his selection.

Even in a general way a confident manner is contagious. Employers do not always have the time or opportunity to delve and discover a salesman's abilities. The person who is always underestimating himself will usually be underestimated. If he does not let others know what he can do he has only himself to blame if he is not asked to fill a responsible position. If a man is able to fill the job ahead he should show himself willing and ready to do it. Confidence of the proper sort begets not ambition, but the energy and the courage to make it a reality.

There are many proverbs in circulation to the effect that "a rolling stone gathers no moss," and that steady plodding counts. These scraps of advice, as usual, require to be taken with many qualifications. Plodding, for instance, to be most effective must be combined with the exercise of brain power, energy, foresight, and the other faculties which go to make up success in any line of commercial activity. "Steady dropping may wear away a stone"; but there must be no diminution in the continuity or the amount of force which is being exerted. The danger with the steady dropping process is that it may become a drag unless enthusiasm is at the same time kept up to concert pitch.

A change is often a good thing. In fact, it is sometimes the only way to discover one's proper field or to secure the proper remuneration for one's services. The person who is continually changing, however, is constantly beginning over again and is losing the accumulated results of efforts already made. Circumstances may arise where a change is advisable, but there should be no self-deception in this respect, and the necessity should be most carefully considered.

Dependability in one's daily work is one of the sure stepping stones to success. There are lots of salesmen who will work when the boss is looking, but who are perfectly willing to take it easy when no one is in sight. Salesmen of this variety forget that they owe a duty to themselves as well as to the proprietor. Growth is only possible by the exercise of the faculties. How to make the most of one's self is a much more worthy ambition than to see how little one can do for the salary received. The proprietor, too, soon learns to know whom he can depend upon to take an interest. This often furnishes the secret of deferred promotion and salary advancement. To do a little more than is expected of one is not such a bad principle after all. The exact measure idea is fatal all along the line. It simply means than an employe cannot be depended upon in an emergency.

It is not at all hard to find employers who do not appreciate an employe's best efforts. Suggestions are looked upon with suspicion, and the whole tendency of the institution is to make one feel that he is of small account, or lacking in mental capacity. Anything that looks like originality is squelched at the very first indication. The proprietor evidently has a mania for being regarded as "the whole works." Any energy which is exerted must be along certain lines approved of at headquarters. Nothing alse will be entertained for a moment.

Energy or push are impossible under such conditions. The very essence of inventiveness and versatility are their spontaneity. There must also be an air of cheerfulness and encouragement in order that these shall be at their best. Grouchiness and suspicion chill enthusiasm at once.

Employes, like people in other situations in life, grow by the measure of responsibility which is placed upon them. The muscles grow only by exercise and the same is true of the mental powers. The salesman who finds himself in such an establishment can depend upon it that little or no mental expansion is taking place, and that he is not getting the most which should be got from such a position in the way of useful experience. "Grow or Go," is a very good motto in such instances.

In many of the big stores the clerks set their own salary after the start. In other words, the clerks are judged by results and rewarded accordingly. Of course, you are judged on other things besides sales, but the amount of your sales is of utmost importance.

You must feel that your store is the best store, your merchandise the best, your business methods right. This feeling of confidence gives a fortress of strength.

You must make an impression upon your customers. Get to know their wants, their names and addresses.

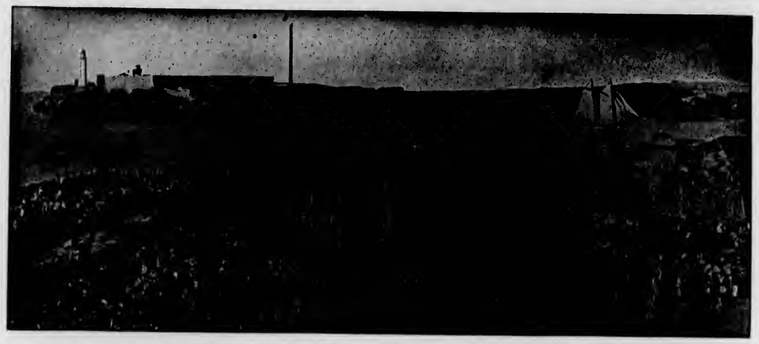
Remember that the relationship of employer and employe cannot be too close in a business sense.

"Havana Ribbon" Gets Boost in Milwaukee

Quite a good deal of publicity locally, has been accorded the well-known "Havana Ribbon," manufactured by Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., by the Knell & Prengel Company, Milwaukee, Wis., who have been advertising this brand to a large extent through street car signs and window displays. The Knell & Prengel Company were ably assisted recently in their work on "Havana Ribbon" by C. W. McFarland, of the Bayuk Company, who spent ten days in Milwaukee in the interests of the brand.

Bobrow Brothers' Products Featured in Buffalo

Bernhard Miller, 152 Exchange Street, Buffalo, N. Y., is a live booster for Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Miller is featuring for holiday trade the company's well-known "Bold," twenty-five packed in an inviting tin. "Buddies," "Discriminators" and "Recall," manufactured by Bobrow Brothers, are jobbed by Mr. Miller in Erie and Niagara Counties. Mr. L. M. Waters, of the factory, recently paid a visit to Mr. Miller in connection with his company's brands.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, November 7.

THERE has been more animation in our market during the past two weeks, if we look at the number of bales sold, but the bulk of the transactions consisted of low grades, such as Vuelta Abajo colas and loose leaves of Remedios, which were taken for export by the Spanish Regie, and our local cigarette manufacturers. Prices for these classes have advanced, and may go higher still in the course of time. American buyers evidently are delaying their visits to our market, perhaps in the hope of being able to purchase more advantageously after the turn of the year. While of course it is impossible to forecast the market with absolute certainty, we cannot deviate from our previously expressed opinion, that we are looking for a better demand in 1915, and with a corresponding rise in figures, as soon as we shall see a larger influx of American buyers in our city.

We have not heard of any transplanting having commenced, although undoubtedly there will be some setting out of seedlings during this month. The reason given to us why this has not been done before, was that some seedlings were destroyed by the frequent rains last month, and also that the grounds had been too wet to admit of planting. In any event, the acreage planted to tobacco this season will be very small, as the monetary conditions have not changed and there is no enthusiasm as in former years to try and raise a crop in 1915.

A couple of American leaf buyers have been our principal buyers, while the American manufacturers have continued their policy to lay in just enough stocks to cover their most pressing needs. Trade with South America is very slack, also owing to the financial crisis in those countries, and even Canada has not commenced to purchase its usual supplies of our leaf, while of course Germany is entirely out of the race, as England has made it impossible to ship goods through the neutral countries. The buyers for the Spanish Regie appear anxious enough to secure more goods, but unfortunately they are handicapped by the scarcity of steamers to carry the bales of leaf. We have heard that hey have 4000 bales, duly marked and baled with cloth, but that the Spanish steamer "Buenos Aires," of the Transatlantic Line, which arrived here from Vera Cruz, bound for Spain via New York, refused to take any cargo here, as she would be able to obtain better paying freight from New York. As this company receives a subvention from the Spanish Government, it is hard to understand why it refuses to take government tobacco from here.

Buyers were: Americans, 4704; the Spanish Regie, 4000; shippers to South America, 100 and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 7220 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from October 19th to October 31st, amounted to 6799 bales, which were distributed to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 6448; to Canada, 104; to South America, 229, and to the Canary Islands, 18 bales.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez bought and sold 6389 bales of leaf during the month of October, which includes their purchases for the Spanish Regie.

Abe Haas, the well-known tobacco planter of Camajuani, Santa Clara Province, has come to Havana for a short stay.

Jose C. Puente, senior partner of Jose C. Puente & Company, received the sad news by cable on the twenty-sixth ultimo, that his father, Don Andres Puente, had entered into rest, in Covadonga, Asturias, at the age of ninety-one years. Don Jose has the sympathy of all his friends, and in which we join sincerely.

The Cuban Market

Senator Manuel A. Suarez y Cordoves deserves the thanks of cigar manufacturers and leaf dealers for his indefatigable and disinterested labor in our Senate, pushing through his project of allowing a bonification of $10 per thousand cigars exported by the manufacturers, and 5 per cent. on the value of leaf tobacco exported by dealers, as well as guaranteeing the war risk to shippers of merchandise from here, up to the extent of 75 per cent. of the cost, free of charge.

Leslie Pantin was the biggest shipper of cigars, per steamship "Havana," to the tune of 104 cases, or 371,250 cigars, naturally excluding the Trust. He also bought 575 bales of leaf in the last two weeks for account of his Northern customers.

The Holland-American Line has advised its clients that it will receive freight to the Netherlands, but the shipper will have to swear that the goods are intended bona fide for consumption in Holland, and cannot be exported to any other country. This knocks the idea of being able to ship to Germany in the head.

Cigars.

We herewith submit the figures of our exports of cigars, from the port of Havana during the month of October this year and the previous one, according to our official custom-house returns:

From October 1 to October 31, 1913,	20,390,700	cigars
From October 1 to October 31, 1914,	8,903,755	"
Decrease in October, 1914,	11,486,945	"

The decrease by countries in the month of October, 1914, has been as follows, viz.:

Great Britain and Ireland	4,816,083	cigars
United States	3,217,264	"
Germany	1,649,383	"
Canada	1,167,260	"
France	902,400	"
Argentine Republic	270,110	"
Belgium	82,375	"
Austria	70,010	"
Uruguay	60,094	"
Italy	52,500	"
Bermuda	38,250	"
Australia	37,800	"
Total	12,363,529	"

The increase by countries in the month of October, 1914, was as follows, viz.:

Spain	444,264	cigars
Denmark	329,700	"
Spanish Africa	77,410	"
French Africa	42,500	"
Gibraltar	39,745	"
Total	933,619	"

The total exports of cigars from the port of Havana, for the first ten months of both years, are as follows, viz.:

From January 1 to October 31, 1913,	150,630,856	cigars
From January 1 to October 31, 1914,	107,221,789	"
Total decrease during the first ten months of 1914,	43,409,067	"

Our nine principal consuming countries, which import over one million cigars from us annually, now show the following changes, viz.:

Decreases.

Great Britain and Ireland	17,098,217	cigars
United States	11,263,329	"
Germany	6,342,237	"
Canada	4,078,260	"
Argentine Republic	2,316,941	"
France	2,035,617	"
Chile	1,380,793	"
Australia	598,383	"
Total	45,113,777	"

Increase.

Spain	2,891,550	cigars

From the above figures it can be seen in what sore plight our cigar industry is still put in, and that the heralded prosperity of the United States has not come our way yet. Our smaller factories naturally suffer the most, although we have heard of one exception. From reliable sources, we have learned that the "Belinda" factory has shipped 20 per cent. more cigars to the United States during the first ten months of this year, than in the entire twelve months of 1913.

H. Upmann, Romeo y Julieta, Partagas and Punch are working strong, considering the changed conditions, as they have still enough holiday orders on hand to be executed, but all the other factories are suffering from the want of orders, and there is no relief in sight, unless the European war should come to a close sooner than most people think of.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez	3431	bales
Virgilio Suarez	1349	"
Leslie Pantin	862	"
Manuel Suarez	823	"
Maximilian Stern	643	"
Havana Tobacco Stripping Company	624	"

Big Fire Sweeps Yocum Brothers Factory

A portion of the large cigar manufacturing plant of Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., was recently gutted by fire, when a blaze which started in a nearby lumber yard burned several shops and dwellings and the cigar factory, totaling a loss of $130,000.

The factory of Yocum Brothers had four hundred men, women and girls working in it at the time the fire was discovered, but owing to the efficiency of their fire drill all were removed from the building without difficulty. Yocum Brothers' loss is estimated at $100,000. This is practically all covered by insurance and it is expected that within ten days the factory will be working again.

Tampa

Cuesta, Rey & Company Enjoy Fine Business—"Jose Vila" Orders Keep Factory Busy—Big Leaf Shipment Reaches City

TAMPA, November 9.

GIVE the smoker what he wants and the sales will take care of themselves," is the doctrine of the Morgan Cigar Company, manufacturers of the well-known "Juan de Fuca." Mr. Morgan states that he always endeavors to procure the tobacco which will give the best results in the manufacture of the company's product. That the doctrine mentioned has been successful, goes without saying, if one is to judge by the popularity of the brand in question.

Cuesta, Rey & Company recently closed one of the most successful weeks in the history of the company. "Hard times may exist somewhere," said B. J. Mays, of the company, "but this is not indicated by any decrease in demand for our cigars."

A number of holiday orders is being booked by F. Garcia & Brothers.

Rush and bustle is the order of the day at the big factory of Berriman Brothers to keep up with the numerous holiday orders coming in on the company's very popular "Jose Vila." Matthew and Edward Berriman are kept busy at the New York and Chicago headquarters, with Manuel Sanchez, of the factory, attending to the local line-up.

Celestino, Vega & Company are very much gratified with the number of orders being received on the "La Venga," known as "A Real Havana Cigar." They state that 1914 will show extremely satisfying gains.

Corral, Wodiska & Company, manufacturers of the splendid "Julia Marlowe" brand, report that they are now manufacturing 50,000 cigars a day, the majority of them being packed under the "Julia Marlowe" label.

Some nice orders on "Van Dyke" cigars are being received by M. A. Gunst & Company.

E. D. Moore, formerly in the employ of Val M. Antuono, at Tampa and Lafayette Streets, has been appointed to the managership of the three cigar stores of Eli Witt. Mr. Moore, in addition to being one of the most successful of the younger cigar salesmen in the city, is also one of the most popular.

Relative to the trouble recently experienced between Val M. Antuono and his workmen, the same has now been adjusted, according to Mr. Antuono. He states that an agreement, satisfactory both to himself and workmen, has been reached whereby he will pay $17 per thousand for the new cigar which was the source of the trouble. Those employees who were discharged have been reinstated and it is hoped that everything will go on satisfactorily from henceforth.

Numbered among recent visitors to Tampa was Tomas Mederos, of Tomas Mederos & Son, large leaf dealers in Havana, Cuba.

Twelve hundred bales of tobacco recently arrived here on the steamship "Olivette" from Havana, the same being the largest amount of tobacco imported from Cuba by local manufacturers, for the past three or four months.

PERFECTO.

Henry Riesenberg, of Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., recently spent a week in St. Louis, Mo., in the interests of the "Bold."

Tobacco Recognized as War-Time Necessity

THE value of tobacco in active service is now so well esteemed by the military authorities that today one sees the British Government doing what it has never done before, supplying free tobacco to the troops, and in France the factories of the Regie working at full pressure so that the French soldiers will not lack smoking materials.

Only with comparatively recent times, however, has this necessity been officially recognized. Wellington condemned the practice of smoking as being "a species of intoxication occasioned by the fumes of tobacco." Perhaps his dislike arose from an unpleasant experience of his own on the only occasion on which he attempted to smoke a pipe. The weed proved no respecter of the Iron Duke and the man who ended Napoleon's career had to succumb to its disturbing properties as any schoolboy. Even Napoleon himself, although an habitual snuff taker, was defeated by a pipe of tobacco.

Official efforts to discourage the use of tobacco were completely negatived in the Crimean War. The privations suffered then by the troops resulted in officers and men taking to the panacea adopted by their French and Turkish allies, and by its aid their discomforts were so alleviated that ever since the practice of smoking on active service, if not actively encouraged, has been at any rate passively countenanced by those in command both in the army and in the navy.

In consequence tobacco has played a notable and beneficial part in the wars of the past century—in fact, from Waterloo to South Africa. Probably its solacing and inspiring qualities were never so strongly manifested as in the Franco-Prussian War in 1870. It might be said, indeed, that the crushing defeat inflicted on the French was due largely to the soldier's lack of tobacco, added, as it was to the breakdown of the commissariat, whereas on the German side the authorities did all they could to inspire the troops being plentifully supplied with the weed. An association, headed by the Empress, raised tobacco subscriptions in every town to enable the fighters of the Fatherland to keep their pipes filled.

What a friend in need "sublime tobacco" proved to the fighters in the war of 1870 was indicated by the correspondent of the "Daily News" before Metz. In his accounts of the campaign he said:

"In every letter we read of the exhausted soldiers, prisoners and maimed victims of battle eagerly begging for it sometimes, finding a solace under the hardships of weather, of hunger, of disease, finding it enables them to endure the painful searches and amputations of the surgeons."

He related how the Pay Sergeant of one company smoked his cigar while a doctor cut a bullet out of his back, and again how a maimed soldier lying upon the battlefield, with the dead and dying around him and in bodily agony, asked for but one relief—a cigar. And thus it has been in every war.

The maimed and shattered on the field of battle piteously cry for tobacco; the poor wounded in the hospitals appeal not for bandages or medicine, but for tobacco; the troops in the trenches undergo any hardship if they have but the comfort of tobacco and even in the midst of the conflict, fighting their way through a mass of foes, the soldier, pipe in mouth, calmly stands shoulder to shoulder with his comrades and bears the shock of battle.

Big Fire Destroys Tobacco Warehouses

Fire recently destroyed several tobacco warehouses of the American Tobacco Company, at Framville, N. C. A number of other buildings were burned. The total loss is estimated to run from $500,000 to $750,000.

New Cigar Box Made From Palm Tree Leaf Sheaths

Victor E. de Castro, Neptuno, 109 Havana, is seeking to interest American capital in putting on the market a new cigar box, of which he is the originator and patentee. He says of it:

"These boxes are made from the leaf sheath of the Royal Palm tree and are better adapted for keeping cigars in good condition than the ordinary cedar wood boxes. My box is a natural automatic humidor, as this material fibre absorbs moisture from the atmosphere, not allowing cigars to dry out in over a year's time, and at the same time being a safeguard against vermin. Besides, this material has a natural skin on its inner face which is of great merit in making the box air-tight. These boxes are much lighter in weight than the ordinary cedar wood, saving in cost of freight and duty, besides being made whole from one piece of material, not being necessary to attach a cover after the box is made; also not a nail is used in their construction—only metal binding on the corners, which makes them very strong. These boxes can be made more economically than those of cedar wood, and sold cheaper. At the last meeting held by the Independent Cigar Manufacturers of Havana, on September 3rd, some of these boxes were opened that had been filled on September 14, 1913, and the cigars were found to be in excellent condition. Another great thing in my favor is that cedar wood is getting scarcer all the time."

The "Saturday Evening Post" Boosts Trade Papers

That the management of the "Saturday Evening Post" appreciates the value of trade papers and believes that a subscription to one or more of them is a profitable investment, is shown by the following item, which appeared in a recent issue:

"When a man begins studying a field of business in trade journals and technical books, he will soon be led further if he is really interested. These books give him general principles and current news, tell him what the trade is driving at, who the men are that count in its activities, and he will soon want to know some of these men.

"The young fellow who selects a field of work because he likes it and studies therein for the purpose of developing his own personal value, has every right to profit by what the best men in the field can tell him, and they will be always glad to help him if he is intelligent and tactful.

"Leaders in every field of business are continually laying themselves open to his approach. They work out new methods. They build up organizations. They speak at trade gatherings. They expound their opinions, and it all appears in the trade journals devoted to their work.

"Mighty few men are too busy or too big to pay attention to trade journals."

Curb Market Gets a Thrill

NEW YORK, November 10.

Yesterday the curb market got its first thrill since the war began.

The stock of the United Profit Sharing Company, which has been selling around $8 a share, suddenly jumped to $11 a share and maintained the price during the greater part of that day, closing at $10.75 a share.

This corporation is an offshoot of the United Cigar Stores Company, whose coupon business it has taken over. There are 300,000 shares of stock, which were originally issued to stockholders of the United Cigar Stores Company at $1 a share.

The company has never paid any dividends, but the advance yesterday was due to the report that there is to be a stock issue of ten shares for one.

KNICKERBOCKER.

Upon the occasion of a visit recently to the store of Daniel Frank & Company, Boston, Mass., a customer stated in calling for the "Cabanas" brand, that during the past forty-seven years he has always seen to it that he had some of the brand in question on hand.

Regarding Sugar in Cigarettes

The following letter recently appeared in the "New York Times" and is self-explanatory:

To the Editor of "The New York Times":

We have read the letter of Stephen T. Byington in your edition of November 4th in which he maintains that "The London Lancet" attributes the injurious effects of cigarettes to the sweetening of same with sugar, which on combustion in combination with tobacco produces "furfuroil," a dangerous poison.

We wish to make the statement that in all of our experience in the handling of Turkish tobaccos which are used in the manufacture of Turkish cigarettes, we have never heard of the use of sugar in connection with the same. Whether or not this is used in connection with the manufacture of cigarettes made of other kinds of tobacco we are not aware; but if "The London Lancet" ever made such a statement it should have qualified same by stating the kind of tobacco which it had analyzed. There is no sugar or any other foreign substance used in the manufacture of our cigarettes, and we are ready at any time to prove this statement to any one who sees fit to visit our factory; and we would further mention that a large concern also using exclusively Turkish tobacco in its product advertised for several months continuously that the door of its factory was always open to any visitor who wished to investigate the method employed in the production of its goods.

We do not desire to enter into a discussion or controversy as to the merits or demerits of the use of cigarettes, but the above statements are facts which can easily be substantiated, and we would thank you to give publicity to same.

and the one having the word "Automobile" drew the prize. Fully 1200 envelopes were called out before the winner was located. It was an evening of good fellowship and sociability; everybody smoked Mazer brands and without any introduction, men rubbed elbows and got acquainted.

The warehouses of the Liggett & Meyers Company and the American Tobacco Company have been abandoned in Detroit; all goods now are shipped to customers direct from New York.

Charles F. LaFond has returned from an extended trip East. His wife accompanied him.

Victor K. Ettlinger, of Emanuel Hoffman & Son, and Isaac Goldberg, of the Lillies Cigar Company, have returned from Connecticut, where they inspected the crops. Sam Goldberg has practically decided to have his family spend the coming winter in the South instead of California, where they have been going for the past two seasons. He picked out a very desirable spot in North Carolina and in all probability will establish his folks there.

Latest visitors in the past ten days have been: Nate Shapero, of M. A. Gunst & Company; L. B. McKittrick, of the Melachrino Company; Jesse G. Powell, of P. Pohalski & Company; Thomas Healy and Antonio Allones, of the Ramon Allones factory; H. Weller, of George W. Nichols & Company, and Frank Lopez, of Garcia & Vega.

Brewster Opens Store in Seattle Sky-Scraper

One of the "live wires" of Seattle, Wash., is James R. Brewster, who recently opened his third cigar store, the newest being located in the forty-two-story L. C. Smith Building. Mr. Brewster's store has the counter at the right of the entrance extending across the store. Special cigar cases line the left wall, while built in the wall at the rear, are the pipe display cases. Back of the counter is located the humidor, which is stated to be one of the best. A believer in publicity, Mr. Brewster advertised as a particular feature, a free trip to the observation room in the tower of the very tall building in which the store is located, would be accorded to each purchaser of fifty cents worth of cigars or over on opening day. As the day proved a very pleasant one, many who had never been to the summit of the building took advantage of the offer. Mr. Brewster has a strong liking for the well-known "Juan de Fuca" brand, manufactured by the Morgan Cigar Company, Tampa, and features it strongly in his three stores. He devoted two of his windows to a display of the brand on the opening day.

"El Dallo" Orders Keep Factory Busy

So vast is the number of orders coming in to Wertheimer Brothers, Baltimore, Md., manufacturers of the popular "El Dallo" cigar, that the factory not only works full time, but has been compelled to abandon temporarily the Saturday noon closing, working until late in the afternoon, to facilitate the splendid business being done. Reports for the month of October showed a very satisfactory increase in this company's sales, while the business on the "El Dallo" locally, has shown an increase of gratifying proportions.

Frank H. Clarke, Detroit, Mich., formerly with Boltz, Clymer & Company, has joined the selling forces of the "44" Cigar Company. Mr. Clarke will cover Middle Western territory embracing eight states, in addition to calling on the jobbing trade and doing missionary work in the State of Michigan.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Heavy Demand for Sumatra in Local Markets

According to recent reports, the Sumatra leaf importers of New York are enjoying a strong demand for Sumatra at the present time. So active is the call for these goods that it is believed that heavy inroads will be made in the supplies in the importers' hands by the first of the year.

Although the fall inscriptions have not been considered in this country as important as the ones in the spring, their suspension due to the war, together with the existing conditions, has caused many manufacturers to buy for their future needs in a liberal way. The mining of the North Sea, which makes it extremely dangerous for shipping and which in fact practically closes the ports of Holland, has been a cause for further activity among the users of Sumatra.

Fortunately, several of the New York houses anticipating this heavy call for wrapper leaf, made early arrangements for large shipments and are now well prepared.

H. Duys & Company are among those firms who made preparations to meet the present needs of the manufacturers.

Cigarette Leaf Imports May be Curtailed by Turkey's Act

With Turkey at war with the Allies, importers predict that the cessation of imports from the Ottoman Empire may curtail the importation of cigarette leaf considerably, although much of the leaf comes from districts now under Greek and Bulgarian rule.

According to a report of the exportations of Turkish tobacco in 1912, the districts now under Turkish rule exported to the United States 11,140,651 pounds of leaf, as against 9,338,758 pounds which have since come under Greek, Bulgarian and Servian domination.

The total exports in 1912 from the districts still controlled by Turkey at present were 38,506,476 pounds, as against 46,031,531 from the districts that have since been ceded to other nations as a result of the recent Balkan war.

The highest priced tobacco comes from Xanthi and Cavalla. Xanthi has passed to Bulgarian control, while Cavalla is now under the rule of Greece.

Last year the total imports of Turkish leaf to the United States amounted to $5,037,189.

Latest Tobacco Crop Report

The recently issued report of the Bureau of Crop Estimates shows that the tobacco crop is much superior to that of last year, the production at the present writing being figured at almost 30,000,000 pounds over 1913.

The average yield per acre in 1913 was 784.3 pounds, as compared with 853.8 pounds as the latest estimate in 1914, and as against a 10-year average of 823.8.

The total production is given as 982,715,000 pounds for 1914, against 953,734,000 pounds in 1913.

The quality is compared in percentages as 86.4 for 1914, against 84.7 in 1913.

The tobacco production by states follows:

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company to Increase Stock

Directors of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company have voted to increase the capital stock of the corporation, which now stands at 100,000 shares of common stock with a par value of $100, by the issue of 25,000 shares of $100 each of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock.

This stock is offered to stockholders of record of the company on November 24th at par, in the proportion of one share of preferred stock for every four shares of common stock then held by them. This offer remains open until January 2, 1915, after which the unsubscribed stock will be offered for public sale.

Scrip certificates heretofore issued by the company in lieu of dividends will be accepted at par in payment of the new preferred stock from those who are entitled to subscribe therefor, if such certificates are placed in the hands of the Equitable Trust Company of New York on or before January 2, 1915. Interest on certificates so used will be paid by checks mailed to stockholders in the regular way.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company announces that its new preferred stock, as well as outstanding common shares, will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

New Cigar Store Opens in Birmingham, Ala.

A second cigar store of the W. C. Patterson Cigar Company is the latest arrival in the retail tobacco field in Birmingham, Ala. It has recently opened at Third Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

On the opening day souvenirs were given away to the visitors who crowded the place to admire the handsome mahogany and marble fixtures and to test the quality of the many fine brands the firm is handling.

Mr. Patterson's assistants in the new location consist of R. V. Patterson, Ed Mackey and Charles Hochstadt.

Coony-Bayer Company Increases Capitalization

The Coony-Bayer Company, of Fort Wayne, Ind., have recently filed a notice with the Secretary of State that it has increased its capitalization from $15,000 to $85,000.

There will be no change in the officers of the company, and it is stated that the advance in capitalization was merely to bring the stock up to its real value. The company was incorporated ten years ago.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

Good coloring features the late tobacco crop which is now curing with the fine weather that is being experienced.

There is a little buying of the new crop at prices ranging from eleven to twelve cents for binder grades and three cents for filler.

Packers are now ready to show their sampling of last season's crops, but at present there is an absence of buyers.

The abnormal amount of moisture in the tobacco received by dealers last year makes it very probable that they will insist on not accepting tobacco in as high case this year. So little of the new leaf has been sold that the grower will have himself to blame if he does not take extra care with the new crop when it is taken from the curing sheds.

THE CAROLINAS

KINSTON, N. C.

Approximately eleven and one-half million pounds of tobacco have been sold on this market to date and local tobacconists say that the season's total bids fair to approach closely the record of the market made in 1902, when eighteen million pounds were handled here. A million and a half pounds were sold last week. During the past ten sales days the breaks have been heavier than in any like time in years, but in spite of the tremendous quantities marketed there was no slump in prices.

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The leaf trade here reflects the atmosphere of the cigar trade and as a result orders are weak. Although there is time left for a big impetus to take hold of the holiday trade which would have a very healthy reaction on the leaf market, it is believed that the situation will be but little changed between now and the holidays.

Unfavorable weather is holding back the curing of the new tobacco crop, and the result will be late stripping, as the growers refuse to enter into contracts for their crops until they are stripped. The outlook is that the tobacco will not be ready for buyers until the winter is well advanced. Even if the curing process was over, the weather has been so dry that no stripping would be possible. As the packers refuse to name any prices for the new crop, the growers are quite in the dark as to what their tobacco is likely to be worth to them, so the situation in tobacco circles is unsatisfactory all around.

Alleged Swindler Caught in Scranton, Pennsylvania.

A. B. Watson, whose list of aliases was the list of salesmen of a big Southern tobacco company, was recently held under bail in Scranton, Pa., on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences.

It is alleged that Watson came to Scranton and called on the Imperial Tobacco Company, claiming that he was the agent of a Southern tobacco company, and under these pretences secured about $25 worth of goods which he claimed he would use to boost their business.

He has left a track of operations through several states and got his start in Winston-Salem, N. C., where he worked for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. It is said that when he left the employ of this company he retained books, papers and order blanks which enabled him to work his game. Warnings against a bogus agent had been sent out by the Reynolds Company.

Cigar Factory for Bradentown, Fla.

A new industry has begun operations in Bradentown, Fla., since Sawyer & Company have begun the manufacture of cigars in that place. They are occupying quarters at in charge of the factory.

Pine and Adams Streets; Carl Baker, late of Key West, is

The members of the firm are Samuel Sawyer, for a number of years associated with the cigar industry in Havana, and S. T. Knight.

The new concern will manufacture only clear Havana cigars from tobacco imported from Western Cuba, noted for the production of the finest tobacco leaf known to the trade.

New Cigar Factory for Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A modern cigar factory to cost $40,000 will shortly be erected at the corner of Lewis and Calhoun Streets, Ft. Wayne, Ind., by the Coony-Bayer Cigar Company. The company has outgrown its present quarters at Wayne and Barr Streets.

The new building will have a frontage of 40 feet and will have a depth of 140 feet. It will be one of the most complete factories of its kind in the country. Special attention will be given to advanced methods of sanitation, ventilation and humidors. Mr. Bayer has made several trips to visit new cigar factories in different sections, and the plans of the new building embody the best features that have been observed in other plants.

Imperial Tobacco Company Ready to Buy Big Crop

According to a statement recently made in Henderson, Ky., the Imperial Tobacco Company, now barred from purchasing tobacco in the state while awaiting a new trial, will be in the market for 5,000,000 pounds of tobacco if they win the suit.

The Imperial Tobacco Company was indicted by a Henderson County Grand Jury last year on the charge of fixing and controlling the prices of tobacco in restraint of trade. The case was venued to Union County and the Imperial was tried and found guilty. The conviction called for a revocation of the license to do business in Kentucky. A motion for a new trial was heard before Judge Hanbery during the March term of court and was refused. The case was then taken before the Court of Appeals and is to be heard that they have 4000 bales, duly marked and baled with the decision of the lower court is sustained, the case will be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Election Eases Minds of Cigar Jobbers—Increase in Experiments in Tobacco Growing—Edward Wolf Able to be at His Desk Again

SAN FRANCISCO, November 5.

SAN FRANCISCO wholesalers and the Western representatives of Eastern lines, and more particularly those who have enjoyed a lucrative trade with the retail liquor dealers, are not a bit more than half pleased with the result of the election as regards the prohibition question. With only about one-fifth of the returns in for California, it seems tolerably certain that this state will remain "wet"; but elsewhere in the West, it looks like a clean sweep for prohibition wherever the question was up for decision. It looks as though Washington, Oregon, Arizona and Colorado have voted themselves "dry" by quite substantial majorities. Just what permanent effect this change will have on the cigar and tobacco trade of the Coast is problematic; but it is certain that for the time being it will be a cause of considerable confusion. Cigar men here hold that in the end as many, or nearly as many cigars will be smoked as before, but it will require some time for new connections to be made and for new credits to be established in place of the saloons which have heretofore controlled a large trade. In spite of all this, however, a renewal of activity as compared with the conditions of the past few weeks is bound to result immediately. The entire trade seems to be pleased that the uncertainty of the situation has cleared.

Notwithstanding some adverse experiences in tobacco growing in California, the experiments in this line are constantly increasing in number. While the rather extensive growing of Turkish leaf in Fresno and nearby counties proved a disappointment last year, it is understood that the growing of a smaller acreage will be continued. The State of California is growing tobacco at two of the state institutions, and the State Board of Control is considering the matter of growing sufficient leaf to supply the inmates of the state institutions with chewing and smoking tobacco. During the last fiscal year the state's outlay for tobacco was over $35,000.

The Western States Tobacco Company, which has just been organized here, plans to not only grow tobacco but to make up the product into cigarettes. The company is controlled by T. P. Eliopolis, Dr. A. W. Luders and S. H. Deyot, who own considerable land in Stanislaus County on which they have been growing leaf with what is claimed to be satisfactory results.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Company, is back in San Francisco again after a short trip to Spokane, Wash., and other points in the Pacific Northwest. He brought with him Edward Cohem, head of the company's advertising department, who has been spending the greater part of the fall in New York getting pointers from the publicity work of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. The Gunst people are now getting things in shape for the usual winter and holiday business. As has been the custom in recent years, no special holiday packings will be offered this year.

Bert Maul, a well-known Fresno dealer, has been visiting the San Francisco trade this week.

H. H. Manley has left for the South with the lines of the American Cigar Company. His advices from that section led him to expect a big business in Los Angeles and vicinity on the present trip. Mr. Manley reports that all over the Coast there has been an improved demand for the "Chancellor" line of the American Cigar Company.

S. C. McVey has bought out the cigar and tobacco business of N. M. Carlton at Los Angeles, Cal.

M. A. Gunst, president of M. A. Gunst & Company, who some days since was so unfortunate as to break his leg from a fall, is now reported as getting along nicely. He will be confined to his home for several weeks, but hopes to be out again early in December.

Emil Judell, junior member of H. L. Judell & Company, has been keeping on the move recently. Last week he returned from a short trip to Eureka, Cal., where he was present at the "Last Spike" exercises which marked the completion of the California Northwestern Railroad and opened up the Eureka country to the outside world by rail. This week Mr. Judell started for Southern Oregon, where he is expecting to do a rather better business than usual, owing to the fact that the pre-election uncertainty had led some of his customers to order lightly for some time.

D. Frankel, president of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, San Francisco cigar manufacturers, returned to San Francisco a few days ago from a trip through Oregon and Washington.

Edward Wolf, who is back at his desk this week after and absence of a month or more while he was nursing his broken ankle, reports that the business situation seems to have improved more or less in the interval. He believes that the bad effects of the war scare have pretty well worn off, and that the Pacific Coast at least is about to experience a decided revival in business. There is still a little anxiety as to the ability of the trade to supply all of the Manila cigars in the better grades that may be demanded, owing to the limited shipping facilities that have resulted from the war.

C. "Webster" McCormick, the "Webster" promoter in this section of the country, has been doing a lot of effective work in the larger towns of the great interior valley during the last few weeks. He reports that the placements in the interior have been more than satisfactory. The "Webster" is distributed here by H. L. Judell & Company, who seldom miss a chance to give the line a favorable send-off. In recent weeks they have made a display at the San Francisco Industrial Fair and did effective work on the occasion of the opening of the California Northwestern Railroad.

Glaser Brothers, who recently took on the distribution of the "Bachelor" cigar, have had such a good run on this line that they are now obliged to hold up a little in order to get in additional supplies.

MAY FIND ENGLISH MARKET FOR AMERICAN LITHOGRAPHIC WORK

Should Be Considerable Demand for Labels Now—Manufacturers Urged to Discontinue Their Use Rather Than Buy From "The Enemy"—Firms in United States Have an Opportunity

WHILE the business world is engrossed with the consideration of ways and means to teach the great American public to buy goods "Made in U. S. A.", many manufacturers are looking about to see if they cannot find an outlet for their goods in either South America or some of the warring countries.

Probably for the reason that they do not consider American tobacco and American workmanship on a par with the products of Havana factories, cigars made in the United States have not yet found a market abroad, despite the fact that so great was the market for Havana-made cigars in Europe that the war has closed many of the Cuban factories and seriously crippled the output of others.

However, perhaps there is an opportunity now for some of the lithograph houses to secure a foothold in England for their goods. According to a recent report from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, a large manufacturer of cigars in England states that there should be a considerable demand for the highly embossed cigar label, and which the American lithograph houses should have a chance to bid on if they can do as well with the embossing and printing work as those now on the market.

With the war on goods "made-in-Germany," England no longer gets the high grade bands and labels for which the German factories are famous. The English tobacco trade journals are waging war against the use of machinery or any other product used in the trade which is manufactured by "the enemy." They have even gone so far as to suggest that the cigar label be discontinued for the time, if necessary, and instead print a notice in the box stating the labelling has been discontinued for the present, as their labels have been coming from Germany.

It has been suggested as a second course that the labels and cigar bands should be continued and thus afford encouragement to the English printing trade.

However, the fact remains that there is an opportunity for some of the lithograph houses in the United States to submit samples to the English manufacturers. While it is true that the banding of cigars in England is said to be on the wane, nevertheless such workmanship as some of the firms in the United States are able to turn out would be bound to make an appeal.

It is hardly probable that manufacturers of widely known cigars in England will want to discontinue the use of labels and bands because of the war. The label and band mean much to the consumer and especially in the case of an established brand.

A number of our houses do German process work and there is little doubt but what considerable business could be secured from England if the proper effort were made.

It is needless to point out that should English manufacturers look kindly on the work done by firms in the United States there is no reason why such accounts should

REVENUE OFFICES SWAMPED BY IMMENSE THRONG TO PAY TAXES

Clerical Force Unable to Handle Crowd—Six Thousand Struggle to Buy War Stamps—Tax Returns to Be Dated November 30th

New York City.

BECAUSE a sufficient clerical force was lacking at the Internal Revenue Offices in the Custom House in New York, a crowd of people twelve blocks long waited in line in an attempt to pay their special taxes or buy revenue stamps.

Because it was an impossibility to handle the crowds, a special ruling by W. H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, permits all tax notices to be dated November 30, until further notice. The ruling follows:

"By special ruling of W. H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, I will date all special tax returns November 30, until such time as the office is able to handle applications promptly, except in cases where I find that the special tax payer has made no effort to file his returns prior to that day. In all cases where merchants are unable to secure documentary stamps for bills of lading, this office will permit shipments to go forward, providing the shipper shall keep a careful record of the same and the stamps can be affixed or cancelled when received. This ought to completely relieve the railroads and other shippers."

This relieves tardy payees of the penalty of fifty per cent. added to the taxes of delinquents.

Deputy Collector D. S. Wendell, who has been in the service forty-six years, was taken ill as a result of the work on Monday.

Beacause of the ignorance of the law regarding the use of stamps, fifty per cent. of the working time was wasted by answering and explaining questions.

Many men who were forced to stand in the triple line formed in the corridor of the Custom House, complained at the failure of the Postmaster and Assistant United States Treasurer in charge of the Sub-Treasury to avail themselves of the provision of Section 10 of the new war tax measure, which permits these officials to sell war tax stamps. It was pointed out that if stamps were offered for sale at the General Post Office and Sub-Stations, as well as at the Sub-Treasury, much of the annoyance now being experienced by those waiting to buy stamps at the Internal Revenue Collector's office would be avoided.

Jose Pendas Visits Cincinnati

Jose Pendas, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, made a social visit last week on Straus Brothers, Cincinnati, O., local distributors for the firm's brands. It was Mr. Pendas' first visit to Cincinnati in fifteen years. He was accompanied by Mr. Ackerman, representative in this territory for the company's brands.

Leonard Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Brothers, manufacturers of "El Dallo" five-cent cigars, was a recent visitor in Boston.

"Warning, Railroad Crossing." How often do we see that sign or one which reads, "Look out for the Locomotive"? In traveling through the country by motor or afoot or on horseback this sign confronts us. It is there permanently. The railroad company would not think of removing it.

Warning! Railroad Crossing

There are many firms that say, "We have a splendid business now and are growing rapidly. We do not need to do further advertising."

The railroad company could just as well afford to take down their warning signs at a crossing as a successful business house can afford to discontinue advertising. There are new people in the neighborhood of grade crossings every day and it is necessary that the railroad maintains its warning sign.

Just as in the case of the railroad the tobacco trade is constantly changing and the house that desires to maintain its progress must persistently advertise.

When you put your advertisement in a trade paper today and take it out tomorrow you run as much risk in a business way, as the railroad would if it took its sign down at the end of a week and depended on having warned the entire country.

The secret of poor trade in many a retail tobacco shop is due in many cases to the proprietor himself. A dingy window and an ill-kept shop do not encourage another visit from a stranger.

Where the Lights Are Bright

People like to go where the lights are bright. With the scores of recent inventions in electricity and gas lighting it is possible to illuminate a tobacco store with the brilliancy of a theatre entrance at an additional cost of a dollar or two a month. The added expenditure will more than pay for itself in increased trade.

A well-lighted shop with a well-dressed window and neatly arranged display cases brings the sort of trade that pays. In addition, where the clerk or proprietor is busy with customers coming and going, lounging is promptly discouraged. The clerk will have no time to talk. In a poorly lighted shop where trade is generally dull at night you will find two or three loungers leaning up against the counter discussing the welfare of the nation. If a customer comes in he has to break through the line to get his wants supplied. His reception does not encourage a return call.

* * *

While complaints are still heard that business is far from normal, it is a pleasure to look about and find that a great number of concerns in the cigar and tobacco trade have been but little affected by war and politics.

Winning on Merit

No one can help but feel encouraged when they talk to salesmen and hear them say that business is up to standard. And it is not mere bluff on the part of some of those who tell you that their October and November orders are way ahead of last year.

The man whose goods have been hit hard by conditions generally makes a grimace at such statements and intimates casually that you are lying. Admitting that many stretch the truth, the fact is that there are some manufacturers whose business is even better than they lead you to believe.

The cigars that have been built on merit and that have been advertised to both the trade and the consumer are, generally speaking, more than holding their own. Those manufacturers who have the confidence of their customers have not done much worrying amid the complaints of their competitors.

Honest goods sold at a fair price, honestly advertised to the trade and consumer, continue to keep the lead among the biggest selling cigars in the country. Proof of this statement lies in the fact that the nickel and ten-cent cigars that have been persistently advertised throughout the depression of the past year, remain practically unshaken in their output, while a few have beaten last year's figures.

"David Warfield" in Londres and Perfecto sizes has been placed with the Daniel Stewart Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., by Arnold Tietig & Son, of Cincinnati, O. The "Warfield" brand will be featured in addition to the "Joy" brand, for which the Stewart Company are the distributors in Indiana.

The visit of the Army and Navy men to Philadelphia on Saturday gave quite an impetus to the better brands of cigars and cigarettes. There was a good call in the hotels and restaurants for the finer sizes in cigars. Among the Army officers Benson & Hedges' cigarettes were demanded by a majority.

Lovera Company Announce "Banderos" Prize Winners

HEREWITH are printed the names of the winners of the twenty-nine cash prizes offered by the Jose Lovera Company for the best window displays on their "Banderos" cigar, made between August 12, and October 12, 1914.

Hundreds of retailers in all parts of the country made efforts to win prizes, and the committee had a large number of photographs to make their decision from. Photographs of these displays had to be in the hands of the committee of judges by October 31st.

The different sections of the country covered by the winners give some idea of the extent of the competition

The prize money amounted to $500.00, of which amount $100.00 went to the winner of the first prize, George E. Cays, Cincinnati, O.; $75.00 was the amount of the second prize, and was won by W. A. Jamison, of St. Paul, Minn.; Charles Kelly, of Dayton, O., won $50.00, the amount offered for third choice; The American Drug Company, Eighth and Spring Streets, Los Angeles, Calif., won fourth place and $25.00. Twenty-five others received $10.00 each.

The judges of the contest were window trimmers of three of New York's largest department stores.

S. O. S. Means "Send on Smokes"

Our London contemporaries will no doubt verify the following story which has made its appearance in several of our daily newspapers:

"Motor delivery vans of one of London's largest tobacco firms have been equipped with wireless apparatus in order that help may be rushed to needy smokers on receipt of the signal S. O. S.—meaning 'Send on smokes.'

"This firm claims to be the only one in the world using the wireless in its delivery system. The firm communicates through a station on the roof of the building. Aerials are placed on the vans, manipulated by an operator inside. As a time-saver the wireless is said to more than save its cost. Very few messages are missed because of atmospheric disturbances.

"An instance of its usefulness, one of the wealthy West End clubs ran out of tobacco supplies at 5.40 o'clock in the afternoon, within twenty minutes of closing time for the firm. The S. O. S. signal flashed from the roof on receipt of the order. At 5.59 the motorvan, after a mad race up the street, threw on its brakes in front of the club. The wireless, therefore, not only saved a large order but relieved the clubmen from distress."—Exchange.

The American House cigar stand, Reading, Pa., recently displayed "El Palencia" (Boltz, Clymer & Company) in popular sizes. It also carries "Bold," "Girard," "Courtello" and "Muriel" cigars.

Humler & Nolan Incorporate

The financial difficulties of Humler & Nolan, Louisville, Ky., referred to elsewhere in this issue of "The Tobacco World," have been satisfactorily adjusted and all the creditors have agreed to accept thirty cents on the dollar.

The company incorporated under its old name Friday, November 27th, with a capital stock of $20,000, divided into two hundred shares of the par value of $100. The new concern is authorized to incur an indebtedness not to exceed $40,000. Bert Humler, Joe M. Humler and Wm. J. Nolan, each holding three shares, are named as the incorporators.

The new firm will continue to operate the general wholesale and retail cigar and liquor business at Fourth Street, near Market, besides maintaining its branch stands in the Louisville hotels.

Nashville Store in Bankruptcy

The Flag Cigar Store of Nashville, Tenn., has had involuntary petitions in bankruptcy filed against it in the Federal Court. S. J. Mankin, C. E. Griffith, Jr., and the Southern Bank and Trust Company, of Nashville, are named as petitioners. D. J. Hanifin and H. S. Kirk are proprietors of the bankrupt concern.

Alexander Herbert, vice-president of Philip Morris & Company, was a recent visitor in St. Louis on his way to the Pacific Coast.

The Value of Advertising

TWO classes of advertising are requisite in the building up of a successful cigar and tobacco business. The manufacturer or wholesaler should make a point of utilizing the journal of his trade to bring his goods before the distributing portions, and the latter either on their own initiative or in conjunction with the manufacturer or wholesaler should interest the smoking public in the goods they have to sell. This matter of outside publicity is one very often undertaken by the wholesale sections of the trade themselves and this method undoubtedly helps to create a demand, a fact highly appreciated by retailers. It is, however, the combination of trade journal and daily or weekly newspapers which produces the maximum of results.

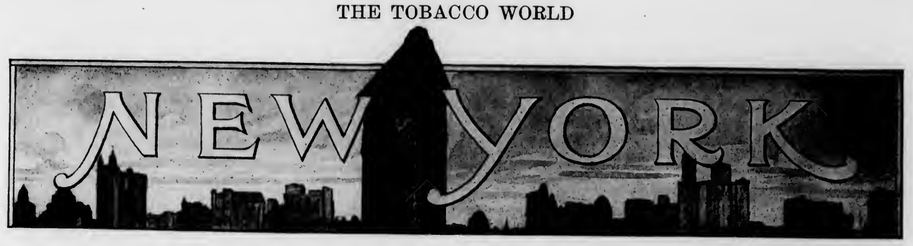
How often does not the traveling salesman testify to the beneficial effect upon his work of his leading lines being featured in the trade journal? It saves him time, and also his prospective customer's patience when the latter has at least some little knowledge of the goods through the medium of the trade journal. If the latter is an organ conducted upon right lines, it is read by every retailer who wishes to succeed in his business, and it thus follows that the advertisements are not overlooked either. As a matter of fact the bulk of the trade journals today are looked forward to by their readers and are carefully studied from cover to cover. The advertising announcements which appear in them cannot fail to reach the people for whom they are intended. They are special announcements, designed to advertise specific articles to certain buyers, and the trade journal is the special vehicle which conveys the information about these articles to the people who alone will buy them. As a contemporary remarks: "Every good traveling salesman testifies that when he reaches buyers well posted through the trade paper, he finds his work already half done and secures quicker and better results." If the producer of an article wishes therefore to have his goods put into consumption he should first of all make sure that the distributing sections of the trade are sufficiently interested to stock his goods. An absolutely unknown article has not the same chance of success as one which is regularly put before the trade in an attractive fashion.

One of the main characteristics of trade journal advertising should be a plain, straightforward and convincing story about the goods desired to be sold. Fine phraseology is one thing, and "freak" stunts another, but no small part of the function of trade journal advertising is that it should supply retailers with salient facts and apt arguments which he can use with his customers either through the medium of his own local advertisements or conversationally over the counter. Misstatements or exaggerations should therefore be eschewed, as these have an awkward knack of coming home to roost sooner or later, and the results are—well—unfortunate in the extreme. A statement of fact which coincides with the intrinsic merits of the goods themselves, can never go very far astray, and once both dealer and customer are convinced upon this important score, the battle is pretty well gained. The same remark applies to announcements in the daily press. If these are of the "spread eagle" type, a little fleeting popularity may result, but the essential matter of permanence is lacking. To put it plainly, the public may be fooled for a little time, but to use a well known phrase, "You cannot fool all the people all the time." Plain statements of fact may thus not be so flamboyant as taller forms of talk, but they have a wonderful habit of working out the salvation of the article which they advertise. When along with these is combined a further fact, namely, that the advertising manufacturer has brought home to the distributor that the latter can by regular and satisfactory sales add to his profits, and his reputation as well, by handling the goods of the former, the end aimed at will have been secured, and the fundamental virtues of advertising once more established.

The same contemporary from which quotation has already been made has another highly suggestive remark: "Every house," it says, "ought to create an individuality which will distinguish the firm or their products from others of the same class. That distinctive mark supported by the saleability of the goods and by judicious advertising to the trade is the best foundation for a successful and established business." This is very true. "What's in a name?" is a phrase which is specially applicable to a product in daily consumption, and the selection of a handy, attractive name for brands of cigars, cigarettes or tobaccos is a matter of considerable moment. Anything cumbrous, forming too big a mouthful for the customer to pronounce readily militates against the constant use of the article. The happy thought which has evolved a telling cognomen for, say, a brand of cigars is in itself an advertising factor of great value inasmuch as it gains the great advantage of what may be termed the friendly familiarity of the customer, and the advertising force of personal recommendation has an effect altogether its own. A great deal is to be said in favor of a distinct individuality on the part of the firm or its products. We do not mean anything in the nature of eccentricity, as that is often a bit risky, but rather the creation of an atmosphere of business practice which should be as original as possible. The packages, window cards, folders, circulars, etc., are all matters which should partake of this flavor of originality, and all these items should be attractive in every way in order to secure the maximum of results. Quality is an advertising asset, the value of which it is impossible to overestimate, but however outstanding the merits of an article may be, unless these are proclaimed abroad, the one solitary fact of quality will not cause that article to move out of stock. The old days when merchants who prided themselves upon not advertising are now for ever passed away and any survivors of that period are now stranded high and dry. The mountain no longer comes to Mahomet, Mahomet has to go to the mountain, and publicity is now more than ever necessary. This is a fact which is generally recognized, and the general practice is to regard advertising not as an excrescence, but part and parcel of the regular working costs, and one which should never be neglected but kept fresh and up to date.

We end as we began by emphasizing the value of publicity of the two-fold kind, namely, that which has to be done to the trade and that for the public. The one is incomplete without the other, and those firms which systematically look after both are reaping the harvests of well planned and properly directed endeavor.—Canadian Tobacco Journal.

That it is not necessary to fill a window full of goods in order to make it attractive was recently demonstrated by Tom Sweeney in the window of the Dyckman Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn. The space was a small one, but Mr. Sweeney by his clever arrangement of a few pipes, several packages of cigarettes and a very small number of boxes of cigars, easily carried his point. Here is something by which other dealers might profit.



Wm. Demuth & Co. Get Many Pipe Orders

SALESMEN for Wm. Demuth & Company, the well known makers of the famous "WDC" line of pipes, are sending in attractive orders for the holidays, according to a recent report from the office.

Through the extensive advertising of the "Wellington" pipe in newspapers and magazines with a national circulation the retailer has found it well worth while to carry a stock of "WDC" pipes. The "Wellington" pipe has become quite popular with the pipe-smoker, due in a great part to the national advertising that has been done.

Helios Factory Strike Settled

Recent advices from Manila to the well known house of Horace R. Kelly & Company state that the strike which has been in force for some time at the Helios factory is at an end. Horace R. Kelly & Company are the sole agents in the United States for the Helios factory. The satisfactory settlement of this strike will be good news to many jobbers who handle the well known "Helios" brand.

Homer Theocaridis Married

Homer Theocaridis, head of the long established cigarette manufacturing house of D. Theocaridis, was married recently to Miss Beatrice Hortense Raissi, and is now receiving the congratulations of his many friends.

Homer Theocaridis is a nephew of Militrades Melachrino, founder of M. Melachrino & Company. Mr. Theocaridis has been identified with the manufacture of cigarettes practically all his life.

Midtown Premium Station for "United"

Following the report in September, 1912, of the leasing by Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor to the United Cigar Stores Company of the five-story building, 45 x 98.9, at Nos. 28 and 30 West Thirty-fourth Street, at an annual rental of $23,500 net, it is announced that after January 1st the lessee will convert the premises into a midtown premium distributing station, similar to the establishment now maintained in West Eighteenth Street, near Sixth Avenue. The premises will be altered extensively.

B. F. Alexander Supplies Luncheon Cigars

The cigars smoked at the recent banquet given by the Merchants' Association of New York to the officers and executive committee of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York were supplied by B. F. Alexander, the well known representative, who furnished the "La Flor de A. Fernandez y Garcia" brand. The luncheon was served at the Hotel Astor.

A. Garten Gets "Las Palmas" Brand

A. Garten, cigar jobber, 269 Bowery, New York City, has been given control of the "Las Palmas" brand of Manila cigars, manufactured by the Manila Commercial Company, and will hereafter act as sole distributor for the States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Numbered among Mr. Garten's trade are large firms, who dispose of quite a quantity of Manila cigars.

Justin Seubert, Inc., Starts Campaign on "Optimates"

SELLING campaign which is attracting considerable attention is that recently started by Justin Seubert, Inc., on the "Optimates" brand. This cigar is a Havana with a broadleaf wrapper.

"Optimates" have been made by the Seubert factory for almost half a century, and during that period they have won a place in the best stores in the country. The Middle West has shown a liking for the brand and it has been a very profitable investment for many tobacconists in that section.

The cigar has held its customers for many years, and although only recently introduced in New England it has proved a winner.

With the present selling campaign in operation it is a fine time for dealers to take on this line. It is understood that there is some open territory which a few "live" dealers can secure by communicating with the factory.

Heard on Broadway

John O'Neill, assistant to the vice-presidents of the United Cigar Stores Company, has returned to New York after a trip on the Pacific Coast and elsewhere.

W. T. Taylor, representative of the "Romeo y Julieta" Factory, has returned from an eight weeks' trip to the Coast and reports that conditions are more favorable than for some time.

"Por Larranaga" Nicionales are noticed in many of the best stores in the city, and it is stated that the popularity of this brand is beyond expectations. The same cigar in other sizes has a heavy call in the trade.

Rhode & Company, who have been manufacturing cigars for a number of years at Third and Broadway, Cincinnati, O., are preparing to move to Pearl and Main Streets, having taken a lease on building at that location.

December 12th is Double Certificate Day at the United Cigar Stores. Many holiday specials are already being shown at the different stores. There is a large variety of imported goods that is attracting the attention of the consumer.

An attack of grip has kept Rudolph Waldner, president of the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company, away from his office for a few days, but he is now reported to be "on the job" again.

According to report received from the factory of E. Kleiner & Company, New York, N. Y., their well known and popular "La Famosa" five-cent brand is oversold for four months. This company also report that they are oversold on very popular sizes of the "Marie Antionette" clear Havanas.

BANDITS SATISFIED WITH "REYNALDO" CIGARS

Morris Burke and A. Mussatti Lose Good Smokes—Highwaymen Well Satisfied With the Quality

Los Angeles, Cal., November 28, 1914.

MORRIS BURKE, the well-known Los Angeles tobacconist, and Angelo Mussatti, of the progressive cigar jobbing house of Mussatti-Boggio, of the same city, recently paid a visit to San Diego in the gasoline buggy belonging to Mr. Mussatti. After spending all their money in San Diego, they decided that the only thing left to do was to return to Los Angeles, where they could go off in a corner and sing "Gee, Ain't I Glad I'm Home Again," a la Victor Moore.

Once on the broad highway, the gentlemen took no account of their surroundings but burned up the trail, happy in the thought that Los Angeles was only a five-hour drive.

After driving a considerable time they slowed up to take bearings, and were preparing to start off again when two men appeared from the undergrowth and suggested that they delay their departure. One of the men emphasized his remarks by rubbing the barrel of a 38-automatic around the tender portions of Mr. Burke's stomach. The masked faces of the men and the gleaming revolvers made both the men in the car feel mighty glad that they had spent their hard-earned shekels in San Diego. Mr. Burke says there is nothing so painful as parting with the "long green" at the point of a revolver.

The two men searched Messrs. Burke and Mussatti but to their disappointment found only three or four "Reynaldo" cigars in their pockets. (Mr. Mussatti's firm distributes this brand in Los Angeles and adjacent territory.) One of the highwaymen lighted a "Reynaldo" and after a few puffs declared it a fine piece of goods. It was very unlikely said the other highwayman that the gentlemen would carry their money in their grips but if they at least had filled them with this fine brand of cigars they would feel repaid for the search. They searched the grips and stocked up with all the "Reynaldo" cigars in sight. This is a splendid recommendation for the brand, as highway robbers are said to be good judges of cigars.

In departing, the highwaymen stated that they were highly pleased with the brand and that in the future they would do all they could to boost it. To show their further good will, the highwaymen informed the gentlemen that they were about one hundred miles from the road to Los Angeles.

After a thirteen hours' ride, the two knights of the grip reached their home town. Mr. Mussatti says that he is well satisfied with the time lost, as he is sure that he has found a new placement for "Reynaldo" cigars.

J. B. Moos Retired From Jobbing Firm

Joseph B. Moos, for many years head of the well known Chicago jobbing house of J. B. Moos & Company, has announced that he will retire from active participation in the affairs of the firm on January 1, 1915. His financial interests in the company will remain.

It is understood that Mr. Moos will devote his time after the first of the year to the affairs of Albert Pick & Company, in which he has an interest, and is chairman of the board of directors. Albert Pick & Company are in the hotel and restaurant supply business.

Mr. Moos is a comparatively young man, being only forty-seven years old, and is one of the most widely known men in Chicago. Mr. Moos has been in the cigar business practically all his life and is to be named among those cigar and tobacco men who have made Chicago famous.

not be permanent, as it is highly improbable that the English manufacturers would purchase any German products if it could possibly be avoided.

It has been customary for the foreign makers to reserve one design for each customer in any one country, but by running the same designs in different countries they have been able to produce labels at a lower price than the English printers.

The war has done much for the lithograph houses in this country and many of the salesmen report a lot of new business as a result of the curtailment in German imported bands and labels. If the firms which have benefited are awake to the possibilities of their business there is no reason why, even should the war cease in a short time, our manufacturers should not continue to buy goods "Made in U. S. A."

Haworth & Dewhurst Get "La Saramita" Account

IT is with considerable interest that the trade learns that the account for "La Saramita" cigars, made by Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland, in Pittsburgh and adjacent territory, is no longer handled by the Shipley-Massingham Company, but has been transferred to Haworth & Dewhurst, Limited, reckoned as one of the "live wire" cigar houses of the "Smoky City."

W. F. Sharples, who for some time past has managed the cigar department of Shipley-Massingham Company, has severed his connections with that firm and will in the future represent the Shields-Wertheim Company in territory including Pittsburgh, on "La Saramita" and other brands.

Alexander R. Darragh, manager of the cigar department of Haworth & Dewhurst, and Mr. Sharples are now busy outlining their plans for a big campaign on "La Saramitas" to begin the first of the year. Mr. Sharples will devote the major part of his time in the interests of Haworth & Dewhurst, and with the co-operation of their six cigar salesmen and thirty-eight grocery salesmen, his efforts should prove highly productive.

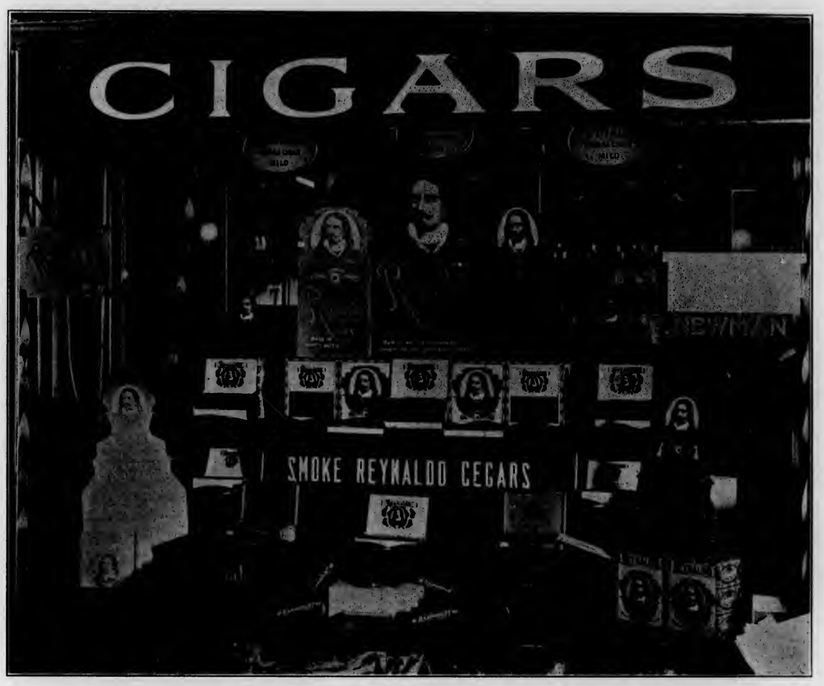
New Cigar Factory for Winston-Salem

George A. Williams, for the past thirteen years superintendent of the manufacturing department of the American Cigar Company, and connected with the J. D. King factory of Winston-Salem, N. C., before going with the American Tobacco Company, has returned to the Southern town of manufacturers and made application to the United States Revenue Bureau for license to operate a cigar manufacturing plant. Mr. Williams, who is considered one of the best cigarmakers in the South, will immediately secure a location for his factory, which he hopes to open in a few weeks.

New Jobbing House Has Standard Brands

Report received from the Hinden Tobacco Company, 279 Plane Street, Newark, N. J., newly established jobbers, is to the effect that they are well satisfied with the results so far shown. The leading brands are "Bold," "Philadelphia Hand-Made," "El Salero," "Garcia Grande" and "El Dallo." In addition to these, the company distributes the products of the American Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company, the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The officers of the company are Max Hinden, president; Max Lowenstein, vice-president and treasurer, and George R. Lowenstein, secretary.

"Reynaldo" Display in Washington Retail Store



This display on "Reynaldo" cigars recently appeared in the window of one of the leading retail cigar stores of Washington, D. C. The proprietor of the store is J. B. Newman.

United Profit-Sharing Stock Still Climbs

The advance in United Profit Sharing to about 15 Tuesday emphasizes the size of the dividends that have been made to United Cigar shareholders. This stock cost United Cigar shareholders one dollar per share and, with the six per cent. cash dividend that the United Cigars is paying, makes a return of twenty per cent. for the past year with the fourteen dollar profit on the Profit-Sharing concern. The directors of the United Cigar Stores meet January 15th for the dividend, payable February 15th, and while it was expected some months ago that the depression in Wall Street, where the company has forty stores, would with dull business make doubtful the showing for the year, it can now be stated that the company is in a position to increase the dividend from larger earnings the past year. In fact, for the whole year the company has earned one per cent. more than in the previous year. There has been no falling off in business in the South and for the whole country there is a gain in gross earnings, the whole of which has been reflected in the net.

Gunst Company Sells Stores

Two of the stores of M. A. Gunst & Company in Portland, Ore., have recently been disposed of. The one in the Multnomah Hotel was sold to Oscar T. Olison, while another at Broadway and Morrison has been purchased by John Gilbert.

New Pittsburgh Stogie Factory Busy

The third factory to be operated by the Standard Cigar Company was recently opened in Pittsburgh at the corner of Liberty Avenue and Fisk Street. "Dry Slitz" stogies forced the building of this new factory, and with its capacity of 150,000 of them a day five hundred employes have been kept busy.

The factory is a modern four-story buff brick building, with a frontage of seventy-two feet on Liberty Avenue and one hundred feet along Fisk Street. Sanitation, comfort and convenience have been the watchwords of the Standard Cigar Company in the construction of their new building and every effort has been put forth to have the building equipped with the most modern appliances for work and comfort.

Smokers of "Dry Slitz" stogies would appreciate the splendid conditions under which these smokes are made if they could see the new home.

Reid Cigar Company Opens in Columbus, Georgia

Robert Reid, formerly proprietor of the Reid Pharmacy in Columbus, Ga., has recently opened a cigar store at 1230 Broad Street, under the title of the Reid Cigar Company. In addition to the cigar and tobacco business, Mr. Reid will retain the agency for Liggett & Myers' premiums, and several other articles.

San Francisco

Business Shows Improvement Since Election—Jobbers Will Have to Make Adjustments to Meet Conditions in Other States—Dealers Take Up Scrip Advertising

San Francisco, November 20.

SAN FRANCISCO wholesalers report that business throughout California has improved materially since the late election. This is due in part to the defeat of the prohibition movement in this state; but it is also due in part to the general improvement in financial matters which is manifest throughout the Far West. Probably the wholesale situation in other parts of the Coast is not quite so active as here, owing to the prohibition successes in both North and South. It is recognized that there must be a considerable adjustment to meet new conditions by the jobbing trade of Portland and Seattle; but as the prohibition laws in both the Northern States do not become operative until January 1, 1916, there is left more than a year to complete the necessary changes. The extensive trade of Los Angeles wholesalers with Arizona is also affected by the dry victory in that state; but Los Angeles and other Southern California cities and towns are counting on the big tourist trade of the coming winter to more than offset any losses in Arizona.

Major Burrows, the factory representative in Central and Northern California for the Lovera Company, is in receipt of a long delayed shipment of "Bandero" cigars over the Panama Canal route, and he is now getting these into the hands of Wellman, Peck & Company for distribution to the retailers of this section. This shipment was caught in the late landslide at the canal, and the delay caused considerable inconvenience. Other lots are, however, now due, and Major Burrows is now counting on making November and December by far the biggest "Bandero" months of the year.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, who left for the Rogue River Valley and the Coos Bay section of Southern Oregon immediately after the election, has returned to San Francisco with rather cheering reports. He finds that the cigar trade of that region is not wasting any time grieving over the prohibition victory. Those dealers who are not allied with the liquor trade are naturally not injured, and those who are plan to make the best of the matter. Mr. Judell did a good business and found collections better than he had anticipated.

"Bat" Nelson, traveling man for the "Schinasi" cigarette line, is now on his way North for a run through Oregon and Washington. He will work the trade of the Northwest for about six weeks, and will get back home in San Francisco about Christmas time.

Marc Brunner, traveling representative of E. Regensburg & Sons, is again on the Coast in the interest of the "American" line of clear Havana cigars. Since arriving in San Francisco he has made his headquarters with Charles Mattheas & Company, Pine Street jobbers, who have for many years looked after the distribution of the "American" in this territory.

C. W. McCormick, Western representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, who left for the North shortly after the election, is now in Montana on his long swing over his Northern territory. He reports doing a good "Webster" business all along the line.

C. H. Schmidt, vice-president and manager of Tillmann & Bendel, wholesale grocers and tobacconists of San Francisco, left a few days ago for a visit to the company's factory connections along the Atlantic. Some time will be spent with Sanchez & Haya and with T. J. Dunn & Company. Mr. Schmidt will return to San Francisco about the end of the year.

Arthur Bachman, president of S. Bachman & Company, who was in Europe at the time of the outbreak of the European war, but who returned to America several weeks ago, has now reached San Francisco. He is once more at work getting acquainted with the situation as it has developed during his long absence.

E. M. Elam, factory representative of the Sanchez & Haya line of cigars, is now looking after the San Francisco end of the trade, having completed his round-up of the Southern California trade.

David Feifer, of the firm of B. Feifer & Company, of New York, is in San Francisco this week looking after the Feifer interests in union labor sections of town.

C. Sorg has bought out the cigar and tobacco store of Ed Eppstein, at Oakland, Cal.

Some of the San Francisco cigar dealers have taken up with the "Scrip" scheme of advertising under the impression that they can give "A mile in travel for a dollar in trade" without seriously interfering with their profits. The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has come out against "Scrip" and is urging the various retail organizations affiliated with that body to urge on their members the advisability of letting the new scheme alone. As it happened, some of the officials of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association had been among the first to take to the new advertising, notwithstanding the fact that the Association has always been officially opposed to all forms of premium coupons. After some little agitation, the officials resigned, preferring to give up the Association rather than the advantages which they believe are resulting to them from "Scrip." The new officers of the Association who have been chosen to fill up the vacancies are: President, Robert E. Donahue; first vice-president, Fred Prince; and J. C. Connor, second vice-president.

L. A. Sawyer is back in San Francisco after a trip through the mountain counties of the southern half of California. In this so-called Southern Mines section of the state Mr. Sawyer found the situation improving, the general feeling being that financial matters would mend considerably from now on.

Sam Caro, an old-time cigar traveler, who was obliged to give up his line and take a rest for the benefit of his health several months ago, is again about town looking much better. He expects to be entirely recovered before long.

Matt Foeller, a retail cigar man of Portland, Oregon, died at his home in that city a few days ago.

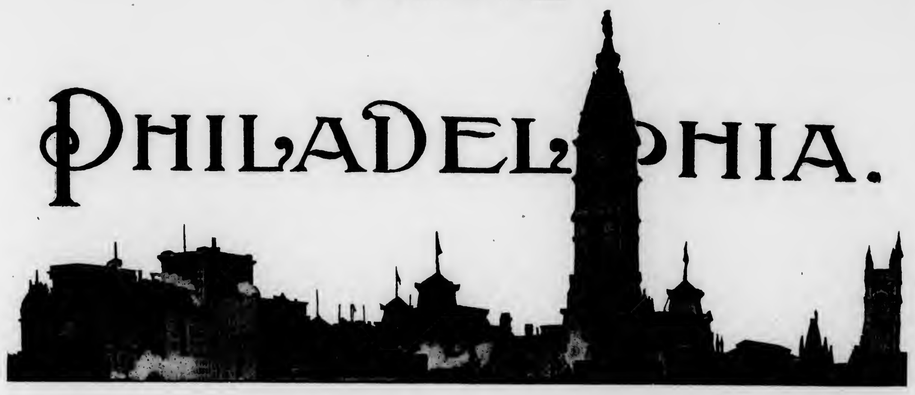
John C. Young has bought out the De Luxe Cigar Stand at 426 Thirteenth Street, Oakland, Cal., from E. R. Seaman, the former proprietor.

M. A. Gunst & Company report a splendid beginning of the early holiday trade on "General Arthurs." They are selling nothing smaller than fortieths this season.

ALLEN.

As the result of the splendid work of E. W. Bethel and his crew of men from M. Melachrino & Company on "Royal Nestors," this brand of cigarettes in ten-cent packages is reported to be achieving remarkable success.

Victor R. Newman, who recently visited the retail and jobbing trade of Lancaster, Pa., in the interests of the Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va., reports that he found a very satisfactory increase in that territory in the sale of the company's "Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed" smoking tobacco.



Christmas Goods Feature Yahn & McDonnell Displays

YAHN & M'DONNELL, whose headquarters are located at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, are daily receiving shipments of holiday goods and packages which will be placed on sale during the current week.

A glance over the list of special packings shows three shapes of Upmann, two sizes of "Romeos," six varieties of "Espana," and a choice selection of "Infinata," "Hoyo de Cuba," "Por Larranaga," "San Martin & Leon" and "Muriel."

Cigarettes of the better grade are not overlooked, as the "Condax" in mahogany boxes of ninety and two hundred and fifty and the special opal boxes of "Herbert Tareyton" occupy a prominent place in the display.

A new brand which has recently been added to the lines carried by this firm is the "Villazon," made by Quiros, Villazon y Ca., Tampa, Fla. This cigar is of Spanish workmanship and comes from a bonded factory.

New "As You Like It" Package a Winner

Godfrey S. Mahn, cigar manufacturer and importer with headquarters at Eleventh and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, is meeting unparalleled success with the metal package in which he is now marketing his "As You Like It" cigar.

Mr. Mahn has secured the patent rights for the United States and Cuba for this particular style of packing. The construction of the case makes each package a humidor, which will keep the cigars in better condition than any other means now known.

There are thirty-two sizes of these cigars and three sizes are packed exclusively in the new style metal boxes.

Lawrence Gunst to Come to Philadelphia

A new member of the staff of Theobald & Oppenheimer Company will arrive about the first of the year, when Lawrence Gunst comes to this city to take up new duties with the above firm. "Larry," as he is better known, has been looking after the interests of M. A. Gunst & Company in Tampa for a number of years. Many friends in Southern territory heard of the contemplated change with regret, but this promotion to larger opportunities has brought many messages of congratulation to Mr. Gunst.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, are still working their factory on a full handed, full time schedule, and the orders which have been received for shipment after January 1st are the largest ever received by them for distribution at this time of the year.

Philadelphia Notes

George Kraus, representing Samuel I. Davis, Tampa, Fla., gathered some attractive orders while in Philadelphia last week.

Sam Frank, of the well-known pipe firm of S. M. Frank & Company, 928 Broadway, New York City, was in Philadelphia last week gathering last-minute orders for pipes for the holiday trade.

J. L. Hoffman, sales manager for the Falk Tobacco Company, 171 Water Street, New York City, spent Thanksgiving in Atlantic City. On the return trip Mr. Hoffman made several calls among the dealers in Philadelphia.

Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, have received the first shipment of goods for the holiday trade. Among the better known brands are the one-fortieths packings of Sanchez & Haya Company, "Websters" and "Savaronas."

Wm. T. Duncan, who represents the well-known Tampa firm of San Martin & Leon, was in Philadelphia last week and collected a goodly number of orders for "San Martin & Leon" and "Hoyo de Cuba" brands, manufactured by this firm.

A new cigar which the several stores of Mitchell, Fletcher & Company have added to their line is the "Equlaidad," made by El Sanchez & Company, Tampa, Fla. These goods are packed fifty in a box and sell for $6.00 the hundred, and in smaller quantities at four for 25 cents.

Acker Company Has Unique Package

The cigar departments of the Finley Acker Company stores are daily receiving shipments of Havana and Key West cigars for the holiday trade. One special packing which has attracted widespread interest is one which represents a library table.

The top of the package can be raised and contains fifty cigars with inside humidor lining, and which can be utilized for a long period.

What is said to be the first cigarette advertisement to appear in the "Saturday Evening Post" will be that shown in the December 12th issue. It will feature a double-page spread in the interests of "Camel" cigarettes, manufactured by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Something For The Man Who Sells

PERSONAL appearance in business, as in social affairs, is more than half the battle. Appearances may be deceptive, but the very fact that they are deceptive shows that they exert an influence over those with whom we come in contact. There is no disgrace in poor or shabby clothing, but we cannot wear these and at the same time advertise ourselves as a success. To be a success we must look successful, as success inspires confidence both in the dealer and in his lines. It may be a poor trait of human nature, but no one wishes to deal with a merchant or a salesman who looks down at the heel and as though his business ventures had not turned out well. Not only should the store and its appurtenances present as good an appearance as possible, but the salesman or merchant himself should put up a good front. A neat appearance has carried many a man a long way toward success. Expensive clothing is not essential. In fact, foppishness may be regarded as the opposite extreme to untidiness. Dusty shoes or clothing, coat collar covered with dandruff, face covered with a whisker of three or four days' standing, untidy linen or finger nails; all these things are inexcusable in dealing with the public and are a barrier to success in any case. No matter how persuasive a salesman a man may be, the attention of the particular customer is distracted from the subject in hand by the discordant note in the salesman's appearance, and ten to one the customer will resolve to go where conditions are more attractive. The items mentioned do not by any means exhaust the list of defects which may neutralize the salesman's efforts and alienate trade both from himself and from the store. A millionaire who wears shabby clothes and cultivates personal peculiarities may be called eccentric, but the public will not be nearly so lenient with the man who still has his fortune to make.

The critical point in salesmanship is no doubt in knowing how and when to close a sale. The same principle is at the bottom of the fact that the country boy with a small sapling for a pole and the crudest of fishing tackle will often catch more fish than the city individual with jointed rod and the most up to date appliances which money can buy. Many a salesman talks himself into a sale and out again without being aware of the fact. This does not imply that the salesman should begrudge the time spent in giving explanations or in describing fully the qualities of the goods. The public are often repelled as much by over-anxiety to sell when they come in to look around as they are by a grouchiness or inattention to inquiries. The salesman should know intuitively when he has reached the right point to make a sale. This may be less a matter of natural aptitude than the result of a careful study of human nature, particularly as applied to salesmanship. The economy of time in salesmanship is of more importance, perhaps, in the large store than anywhere else. There should be no appearance of undue haste, but the salesman should make a careful and accurate study of the amount of time necessary to bring the customer to where he is ready to purchase. This may, as in mechanics, be called the point of greatest economy in salesmanship. It is a mistake to mention or show other goods as a possible choice after the customer has carefully considered and selected his purchase. Without loss of time, yet without being unpleasantly abrupt in his manner, the salesman proceeds to look after other customers, making sure, however, that the previous customer receives his parcel or change, and also to show his appreciation of the customer's patronage by a polite method of taking leave as the customer takes his departure.

A good memory is beyond question a most valuable factor in business. It is human nature to warm up to those who pay us the compliment of remembering us by name or otherwise. Names are harder to remember than faces or personal incidents. One dealer suggests making a check list or a memo. of the store's dealings with each customer, and also of any other facts which are obtainable. For instance, he enters John Smith's name on his book, also a memo. of the goods purchased, together with the date. He also notes the names of other members of the family, the fact that he has five children, that one son is at high school, or that a daughter is interested in music. Only the most important facts, of course, are noted. This book may be kept in a convenient place and reference made at any time by means of an alphabetical arrangement, and in this way, at a moment's notice, the dealer can place himself in possession of a number of important facts. This may suggest inquiries which lead up to trade. At any rate, the customer is put in a good humor and becomes ultimately a firm friend of the store which appreciates his trade. Some try to make system take the place of memory, and in this way become overloaded with detail. While many things can be safely entrusted to memory, important details should be recorded. The man who trusts his record of accounts or business transactions to memory may find himself hopelessly entangled. No less unwise is the salesman or merchant who cherishes memories of personal slights and continually has a grudge to vent against some one. The salesman should keep in mind that when he is working for another he has no right to cultivate or give vent to little exhibitions of animosity. His services during business hours belong to his employer and the interest of the latter should be the prime consideration.

Much has been said and written of habit. It has, in fact, formed a most prolific subject for both reformers and educators of all sorts. Very little light is thrown upon its meaning by a reference to the origin of the word, beyond the fact that it is connected with the Latin word "habeo," to have. Strangely enough, the manner in which habits are recorded or stamped upon the organism has remained very largely a mystery, owing, no loubt, to the inherent difficulties of studying the human brain at work or in its functions, the brain of the subject after death showing no observable trace of the workings of habit, or in fact, of any kind of mental operation or development, the only indication of superior brain power being, perhaps, the possession of a slightly larger brain or one with a few more twists or convolutions. The external manifestations, however, are sufficient for the present purpose. One of the most prominent characteristics of habit is the necessity of repetition to fix the impression, after which the habit is said to be formed. Another marked feature is the fact that habits once fixed are hard to break off, showing the strong advisability of the formation of correct habits only. For ordinary, every day purposes a good habit is one which is beneficial to one's self or to some one else or to both. A bad habit is, of course, the reverse. In modern business life, with its strenuous and strongly competitive conditions, the application of habit is evident. Habit makes for economy both in mental and physical effort. With correct business habits more work can be done, since many things can be done almost automatically and with little expenditure of brain power. Only those habits which make for greater efficiency are cultivated, and those which are wasteful of time or energy are avoided. Good habits are essential to success. All bad habits retard success and some are fatal to it. Among the most important good business habits may be mentioned promptitude. This applies to being prompt in meeting business engagements of all sorts, to getting down to work on time in the morning, to waiting on customers promptly and without unnecessary delay, to attending necessary duties about the store or establishment. Promptitude at quitting time or in asking for a raise in salary will re-

CREDITORS OF LOUISVILLE CIGAR FIRM RECEIVE OFFER OF 30 PER CENT SETTLEMENT

Those Holding Claims Aggregating $54,000 Said to Have Agreed—Total Indebtedness, $70,854—High Rents Blamed for the Disaster

CREDITORS of Humler & Nolan, a Louisville (Ky.) cigar and cafe concern, have received letters from attorneys of the firm in which a settlement is offered on a basis of thirty cents on the dollar. It is stated that most of the larger creditors have agreed to the plan. High rents for hotel cigar stands in other cities formerly controlled by the local firm are blamed for the condition that prompted the letters.

The total indebtedness is given at $70,854, creditors being a New York cigar manufacturer, with rediscounted notes of $48,295.65; the Second National Bank of Louisville, with a secured claim of $8000; the National Bank of Commerce, $2500; a Louisville factory, $3644.50; a Tampa factory, $2414, and open accounts running between $4000 and $5000.

It is stated the assets include stock, furniture and fixtures in the Fourth Street house; a dwelling house occupied by Mr. Humler on Third Street, probably worth $5000; equity of $2500 in a house occupied by Mr. Nolan, subject to a $6600 mortgage, and liquors and cigar stock in trade estimated to be worth $16,000.

It is explained that the firm has a lease on a cigar stand in The Seelbach which may or may not be taken by a trustee as an asset. The attorneys point out that if it were taken and sold the proceeds would be offset by the depreciation of the assets if handled through a bankruptcy court. This lease has an annual rental of $9000.

The lease on a stand formally conducted by the firm in the Old Inn, it is stated, recently was surrendered on the advice of the attorneys. Since that time a suit for the remaining rental of $30,000 for six years has been filed, it is explained, and the outcome is problematical.

According to the attorneys, friends of the firm have come to its assistance and a settlement of thirty per cent. cash in full can be made. Holders of the rediscounted notes and the cigar manufacturers who are creditors, it is stated, have agreed to this basis as settlement. They represent claims aggregating $54,000.

Taft & Company Open New Store in Des Moines

C. C. Taft & Company have opened their newest cigar store in Des Moines, Ia., in the S. & L. building at Fifth and Walnut Streets. The store has been well supported by the public and bids fair to set a record. A full line of standard brands are carried.

The room is finished in mahogany and onyx. The floor is of tile and an indirect system of lighting makes an attractive interior. The store will be conducted by W. J. Masury, who has been connected with the Martin Cigar Company, of Davenport, for the past four years, and Frank Brown, an employe of the Taft concern for four years.

Milwaukee's New "Smoke Shop" Now Open

"The Smoke Shop" under the direction of H. W. Moering and H. A. Collins, known as Moering & Collins, recently opened for business at 396 Eleventh Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis. The new store fixtures, which are attractive, include settees in the front and a comfortable card and lounging room in the rear. Messrs. Moering & Collins carry a splendid line of cigars, among which are "Webster," "San Felice," "New Bachelor," "Cinco," "El Sidelo," "La Verdad," "Originator" and "Savarona." Mr. Moering was the former owner of the Transfer Store at 400 National Avenue, Milwaukee.

COURT OF APPEALS DISMISSES ACTION BROUGHT AGAINST THE IMPERIAL TOBACCO COMPANY

Big Company Said to be in Market for Five Million Pounds of Leaf—Verdict Returned Against Them December 2, 1913

Frankfort, Ky.

THE Court of Appeals has followed its opinion handed down this week in the case of the International Harvester Company and directed the Union Circuit Court to dismiss the prosecution of the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Kentucky and England, which were fined $3500 each under indictments charging them with being in a "combination to depress the price of leaf tobacco below its real value." The indictments were returned in Henderson County, and a change of venue was taken.

The opinion in the Imperial Tobacco Company case was brief, simply referring to the Harvester decision and saying this is controlled by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Harvester suit. "Under the principles laid down in that opinion the judgment must be reversed and the action dismissed."

Lawyers are still at sea as to the status of the Kentucky anti-trust law. Formerly it forbade combinations in restraint of trade, but after the enactment of the Crecelius law, permitting farmers to pool, the court, in an effort to harmonize the laws on the subject, said indictments thereafter must allege that the conspiracy was to depress or inflate the price of articles below or above their real value. The Supreme Court of the United States, to which the Harvester Company appealed, held the law as construed unconstitutional, and the charge of depressing or inflating prices illusory and impossible of exact definition.

The Commonwealth in these cases took the position that the Crecelius Act was nullified and the law should remain as construed by the Court of Appeals prior to that time, and, furthermore, that the allegations as to the purpose of inflating or depressing prices could be treated as surplusage, and the indictments and convictions still remain good as to that part necessary to be proven under the law, as it was prior to the Crecelius enactment.

The Court of Appeals, however, held that these cases as they stand, in the light of the Supreme Court decision, should be dismissed. Judge Hannah wrote the opinion.

"Kilkis" Name of New Cigarette

The friendship tie between Greece and the United States is being strengthened by the Capital City Tobacco Company, of Atlanta, Ga., in a new cigarette which is just being put upon the market, named "Kilkis," after Greece's new battleship, which was formerly the "Mississippi" of the United States navy. With each package of "Kilkis" goes a handsome felt flag design of the Greek and American flags intertwined.

The new cigarettes are packed in attractive boxes, the covers of which are reproductions of an American marine and a Greek sailor. On the interior of the box cover is shown a photograph of the battleship.

H. W. Robare Forms New Connection

Harry W. Robare (V. Guerra, Diaz & Co.), who will be remembered for his splendid work in the placing of this company's "La Mega" in the Northwest, covering the greater portion of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, has severed his connection with V. Guerra, Diaz & Co. and become city salesman for Allen & Lewis, Portland, Ore. Mr. Robare at the present time is devoting his attention to the distribution of "El Sidelos."

Something For the Man Who Sells

quire no special cultivation. Cheerfulness is another important business habit. No one likes to do business with a grouch. Some employers are affable with those who meet them upon an equal footing and are nasty with those beneath them. This is cowardly. No man ever built up an efficient working or sales force upon such a principle. Cheerfulness is just as necessary to get the most out of an assistant or employe as it is to attract and cement business. Attentiveness or alertness is another requisite to success in the best sense of the word. Business requires watching or it will slip away. Customers may wait once at the counter while an employe finishes a conversation or dwadles about over some trifling occupation, but ten to one he will register a resolve to go somewhere else next time. The successful salesman is the one who is on the alert for every bit of business which comes his way. If customers show an interest in some line of goods he is ready to show these promptly and cheerfully, whether a purchase is made upon the spot or not. Nothing is too much trouble. In this way business friends are made. These are the kind of clerks people inquire for, and are the kind which will generally be found totalling up the largest bill or list of sales at the close of the day. Habits relating to personal appearance are of the greatest importance. Among these may be included cleanliness of the person, the hands and nails well cleaned, the clothes brushed, laundry clean and shoes polished. Odors of perspiration, tobacco, or liquor of any kind are all offensive. Inattention to these details helps very materially to make the non-successful salesman. The employes' habits outside the store are almost as important as those inside. Wholesome recreation is essential. Sport, of the kind which builds one up physically and makes him stronger, fresher, more clear-headed, and fitter for his daily occupation—this is a practical necessity for best results. The sedentary person, who would rather sit indoors, reading or smoking, but at any rate without sufficient exercise and fresh air, is placing a handicap on his chances for the success which belongs only to the strong and the energetic. If simple inactivity be a barrier to success, how much greater is the injury done by the cultivation of dissipated habits. A portion of one's leisure should unquestionably be applied to self-improvement. The self-improvement habit is a good one to acquire. Never be content to remain at a standstill intellectually. The highest positions, as a rule, are awarded to plodders only. Learn, not only your business, but all around it and above it, this is the only way to fit one's self for advancement. Business managers and others in high position are selected from among those who have mastered all the details of the business and perhaps many others besides. Last, but not least, the cultivation of correct business habits excludes and prevents the formation of those which are improper and prejudicial to success.—Exchange.

Wm. A. Stickney Company Takes New Stands

The two cigar stands of Edward Kaufmann, located in the Railway Exchange Building, St. Louis, Mo., have been taken over by the William A. Stickney Cigar Company and will in future be operated by that company. The stand at the Locust Street entrance will be under the direction of George J. Blair, formerly with the cigar department of the Johnson Brothers Drug Company. The name of the manager of the stand at the Olive Street entrance is to be announced later.

"Sanchez & Haya" in various sizes is being featured by the Cobb Cigar Company, Atlanta, Ga.

The greater portion of last month was spent by W. E. Colton, representative of the Havana-American Company in Florida in the interests of the "El Principe de Gales" and "La Preferencia." Mr. Colton also recently paid a visit to Atlanta.

Trade Comment

Satisfactory business is reported by Bergman Brothers, cigar manufacturers and retailers at Troy, N. Y.

Satisfactory business is reported by D. F. Fleck, Reading, Pa., on his well known "Courtello" cigar. He reports operating with a full force at his factory on Cherry Street.

The stores of the Levenson Cigar Company, Richmond, Va., have been displaying the well known Boltz, Clymer & Company's "El Palencia" recently.

In addition to "Tom Palmer" cigars in four sizes (clear Havana) just recently added, W. T. Franklin, St. Paul, Minn., is showing some attractive offerings in Benson & Hedges' cigarettes.

Dan Junk is doing some notable work locally on the very popular "El Roi-Tan" cigar for F. A. Davis & Sons, Baltimore, Md. The cigar, covering fifty-two sizes, has gone with a rush and has secured a large distribution.

H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., manufacturer of the widely distributed "Charles Denby" cigar, recently paid a visit to Lancaster, Pa., where he devoted his time to an inspection of a number of new crops.

Henry Keith, New Orleans, La., agent for "La Mega" cigars, V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, reports that this brand is being satisfactorily received in the various portions of the city.

Recent window displays in the windows of the South Illinois Street store of L. G. Deschler Cigar Company and the Huder Pharmacy, Indianapolis, Ind., on the well known "Savarona" brand, manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, attracted much attention.

I. Samuelson & Company, Memphis, Tenn., report business good at their principal store, opposite the Peabody Hotel, and at their stands located in the various portions of the city. They state that they are experiencing very nice sales on "Julia Marlowes" (Corral, Wodiska y Ca.), in addition to a good demand from country trade for their five-cent "El Cubo."

"D. & F.," Perfecto Shape, Seed and Havana, is the title of a new cigar that is now being put on the market by the Friedland Cigar Company, of Denver, Colo. It is the intention of the company to continue the manufacture of the present two for twenty-five cents size until a sufficient demand has been created for three for twenty-five cents and ten cents straight sizes.

Through the efforts of Lewis Cohen, of L. Neuburger & Brother, and C. N. Trivett, of the J. G. Cohen Cigar Company, local distributors of "Picadura Imports," Tacoma, Wash., November 16-21 inclusive was set aside as "Picadura" week, several windows having been devoted to attractive displays on the brand.

Situated in the heart of the real estate district, the cigar stand of John L. Streszewski, located in the International Life Building, St. Louis, Mo., is numbered among the successful stores of the city. Mr. Streszewski carries the following well known brands: "Sanchez & Haya," "La Mega," "Webster," "El Palencia," "El Roi-Tan," "Tadema" and "La Garnita," also others. His private brand and leader in nickel goods is the "John L. S."

An Attractive Display of the Popular "Webster"

This fine display of "Webster" cigars recently appeared in one of the windows of the House of Quality, 215 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Tobacconist Gets Results From Ceylon

P. E. Cox, a Fall River tobacconist, has received from Ceylon a letter which, besides furnishing some pretty interesting data as to the Epicureanism of a tobacco user, contains evidence that if a Fall River man casts his bread upon the waters as far away as London, it will ultimately return to his home town. It is written from "The Manor House, Singapore, Straits Settlements," and says:

"Dear Sir—I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Owen Reynard in London and was very much delighted with the brand of tobacco he used (here he mentions an old favorite of many). I enclose the equivalent of five dollars and would be obliged if you would send me that value, less postage, to the above address. There is no duty in the Straits Settlements, so the transaction is quite in order. Yours faithfully."

Accompanying the letter is a money order for fifteen rupees, eighty-four annas, which is "the equivalent of five dollars" referred to.

Johnson Gets Store Lease

H. W. Johnson, who operates four retail cigar stores in St. Paul, has secured a five-year lease on one of the best ground floor store rooms in the new Merchants National Bank building, Fourth and Robert Streets. A concealed balcony office and an automatic moisture arrangement for stored cigars are two new features.

Bill Cleveland, Philip Morris & Company, Ltd., recently visited New Orleans where he succeeded in opening some new accounts on the "Philip Morris" cigarettes.

Trade Jottings

A good cigar trade is reported by Nathan Fullerton, druggist, Roseburg, Ore.

Retail stands at Memphis, Tenn., of the Best & Russell Company recently featured "Sanchez & Haya" cigars in several sizes via window displays.

The United Cigar Stores Company has leased the store room at 58 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa., and will install their regulation store front. They plan to take possession April 1, 1915.

Alexander Herbert, vice-president of Philip Morris & Company, Ltd., accompanied by George W. Buckingham was a recent visitor to St. Paul, Minn., following which Mr. Herbert left for Montana and Idaho.

Some splendid work is being done in Boston on "Hunter" and "Brand M," little cigars of S. Monday & Sons, by Mr. Bally, sales manager of the company. The brands in question are well distributed throughout the territory in question.

So successful has been the reception accorded the "Schaetzel Hand-Made," a new nickel cigar, manufactured by the Schaetzel Cigar Factory, Denver, Col., that the company are now employing more help in their factory than they have been since 1907.

William H. Gehr

W. H. GEHR, a member of the firm of A. C. Henschel & Company, of Chicago, manufacturers of cigar boxes and cigar box labels, died on November 15th at his home in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Gehr was widely known in the trade among cigar manufacturers and the news of his death has been received with deep regret by his many friends.

Abram S. Lokerson

Abram S. Lokerson, a retired cigar manufacturer, died recently at the age of ninety, at his home in Long Branch, N. J. Until a year ago he taught a class in the Methodist Church of that city. He is survived by a widow.

William A. Crouse

William A. Crouse, forty-three years old, who for the past twenty years has conducted a cigar store and lunch room at 150 Cabot Street, Beverly, Mass., died recently. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Moritz E. Ruther

Moritz E. Ruther, a well known cigar manufacturer of Holyoke, Mass., died recently at his home, 17 Glen Street, that city. Mr. Ruther was fifty-seven years old.

The deceased was born in Germany and came to this country at the age of fifteen. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Harry P. Davy

Harry P. Davy, a prominent cigar manufacturer of Dayton, O., died recently of diabetes at his residence, 679 South Main Street.

Mr. Davy had been a life-long resident of Dayton and was well liked for his generosity and congeniality. He had been a cigar manufacturer for fifteen years.

Mr. Davy was a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of a number of fraternal organizations. He was forty-six years old.

John H. Fisher

John H. Fisher, formerly connected with the retail tobacco trade in Canton, O., died recently of heart disease. The deceased was seventy-two years old.

Mr. Fisher was born in Martinsburg, Va., and had been a resident of Canton about twelve years. He was a member of several fraternal organizations.

One son, J. G. Fisher, of Cleveland, survives.

M. J. Sellers

M. J. Sellers, a salesman for a Canton tobacco firm, met his death recently when he attempted to board a moving train at Elmwood, Ill. His foot missed the step and he fell beneath the train, the last coach passing over his body. He survived only a few hours after the accident.

The deceased was a resident of Yates City and is survived by a widow and one daughter. He was thirty-five years old.

Napoleon B. Hieatt

Napoleon B. Hieatt, for many years a tobacco merchant of Brooklyn, N. Y., died recently of acute indigestion at Assonet, Mass. The deceased was born in Boone County, Kentucky, February 22, 1843. He is survived by a widow and one sister.

$77,032,443 IS TOTAL OF BRADY ESTATE

Estate Was Thought to Have Been Worth More—Bulk Holdings in Tobacco Stocks

New York, November 28, 1914.

IN the recent filing at Albany, N. Y., of the transfer tax appraisal of the estate of Anthony N. Brady, it was shown that the total value of Mr. Brady's estate at the time of his death, about fifteen months ago, was $77,032,443. While this is some millions of dollars less than Mr. Brady was believed to have left, it is a few millions more than was claimed by the executors at the time of the filing of the claim.

The gross estate eliminating debts, administration expenses, etc., is reduced to a net estate of $72,125,863, the sum to be distributed among the heirs. Of this amount, the widow is to receive certain personal effects, the home in Albany, $1,000,000 in cash and an income of $60,000 a year. Of the residuary estate, divided into six parts and amounting to about $71,000,000, almost $12,000,000 each is left to Mr. Brady's sons, Nicholas F. and James C. Brady, and to his daughters, Mrs. Margaret Brady Farrell, Mrs. Mabel Brady Garven and Mrs. Marcia Brady Tucker. A granddaughter, Marcia Ann Gavitt, also is included in this distribution for a like amount.

The bulk of the Brady estate totalled $67,307,301 in securities, of which the greatest part was Mr. Brady's holdings in the American Tobacco Company and subsidiary companies. It is stated that the income from this source alone is estimated at more than $5,000,000 per year. Next in value were his interests in the United States Rubber Company, totalling $8,064,643. Following is the list of the tobacco and subsidiary stocks held by Mr. Brady:

32,344 American Tobacco Company, common	$6,792,240
12,844 American Tobacco, new preferred	1,155,960
288,335 British-American Tobacco, Ltd.	5,190,030
16,795 Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, common	3,442,975
3,933 Liggett & Myers Tobacco, preferred	393,300
12,680 Lorillard Company, common	3,442,975
2,773 Lorillard Company, preferred	277,300
1,100 Porto Rico-American Tobacco Company	214,500
4,149 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company	975,015
6,311 American Snuff Company, common	990,827
2,290 George W. Helme Company, common (snuff)	309,150
2,290 Weyman - Bruton Company, common (snuff)	504,120
1,753 MacAndrews & Forbes Company, common (licorice)	289,245
411 Conley Foil Company	110,970

David Boyer

David Boyer, aged seventy-two, and for many years a cigar manufacturer of Dayton, O., died recently after a lingering illness of paralysis. Mr. Boyer was born in Germantown and went to Dayton twenty-five years ago. For fifteen years he conducted a cigar factory on Torrence Street.

The deceased is survived by a widow and one daughter.

John B. Dreyer

John B. Dreyer, a native of Detroit for many years and a well known cigar manufacturer, died recently after an illness of about two months in Salinas, Cal. The deceased was fifty-eight years old. He is survived by one brother and one sister, both residents of Detroit. Interment was made in Detroit, to which point the body was shipped.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business

In planning his holiday exhibit, the cigar and tobacco dealer who offers premiums for the redemption of certificates, coupons or sales slips, or who sells the various novelties that are usually carried at this season of the year, should in all cases mark the price plainly and in full view of those interested.

Window Displays Demand Study

Where these objects are to be displayed in the window, particular attention should be paid to the decorating of this tremendous selling force, and much care should be taken that the articles are not jumbled or massed in such a manner as that the passerby catches but a glimpse of pipes, cases, holders and a miscellaneous assortment that will not appeal directly to his desires.

The most successful window decorators of the present day have learned to simplify their exhibits, and at the same time group or classify them, so that even the most casual observer can detect a display of a number of articles that may appeal to his fancy as something for his own use or for the use of a friend.

In connection with this display, window cards can be used to good advantage, especially if there is insufficient opportunity to display the entire lines, and these can be purchased at such a nominal cost that it bears no weight when the results are considered. In many cases the cards can be purchased with whatever lettering desired. In fastening window cards the best results are obtained by using the small circular sticker that has been plentifully supplied with gum.

* * *

The arrival of December, which heralds the approach of the holiday season, affords the retail cigar and tobacco dealers an opportunity for increasing their revenue and profit, which few can afford to pass up.

Silver Cutter Got Box Trade

One dealer, located in a section where box trade had been conspicuous by its absence, conceived the idea of introducing the one-fortieth packings, and of offering a silver-plated cigar cutter for every box of cigars sold during the month of December as a premium.

This was first tried during December of 1913, and will be repeated again this year, as the number of smokers who came across for these packings during the year has warranted the manufacturer in lending assistance to the retailer, and in making this cigar in this size packing a regular product.

* * *

A novelty that is bound to meet with success with dealers who carry this class of goods in conjunction with their regular stock of cigars and tobacco, is a smokers' stand that contains places for match box, smoking tobacco, cigar or cigarette rest and smoking tobacco receptacle.

Smokers' Stand Wins Trade

The stand has a base of seven and one-half inches, which is sufficient to prevent it from being top heavy, but standing on a base instead of four legs, it occupies far less room than the average smoking table requires.

There is a strong friendly rivalry between the clerks of a cigar store located not a thousand miles from Philadelphia, for the proprietor has announced that the salesman whose work shows the greatest percentage of gain over December of last year will receive an extra half-holiday during the months of January and February.

A Premium on Knowledge

The plan is computed upon points outlined by the proprietor, and it is not necessary to make a sale to secure a given number of points. This is due to the salesman sometimes being stacked up against a customer who looks at every brand in stock and then suddenly decides that he will return to some other store where he has made purchases of a brand not carried by the store mentioned.

This naturally would cause the particular salesman considerable loss of time and sales, so if to the mind of the proprietor the fault lies with some other object than the selling ability of his men, they receive a given number of credits for the knowledge of their brands, their selling talk and their courtesy.

* * *

Experience has taught the average cigar dealer that the palming off of dead stock to women customers who desire to purchase cigars for their men friends, is a mighty poor business policy.

Handling the Woman Customer

One finely equipped smokery that handles almost every article needed for the smoker, from the nickel cigarette to the $30 meerschaum pipe, has divided a portion of their sales room for the accommodation of women customers.

When a selection of cigars is to be made, the salesman endeavors to learn as nearly as possible what brand has been favored by the gentleman for whom the gift is intended, and either the same brand is supplied, or as nearly as possible a duplicate, so that when Christmas morning comes around the victim is not called upon to try out some weed that has been made especially for his disgust.

* * *

There is one cigar dealer located in the Middle West who has been able to hold and increase his box trade among the office buildings by distributing a cigar and ash holder which can be placed upon the desk of a smoker.

How Tact Won Trade

One of this dealer's best customers absolutely refused to purchase any more cigars, and the salesman and proprietor could not understand just why this indifferent attitude should be maintained.

A little "Sherlock Holmes" deduction disclosed the fact that an important paper had been slightly burned by the former customer when laying the lighted end of a cigar on his desk, and he forthwith vowed that he would swear off until he was big enough not to suffer damage through carelessness. The dealer promptly secured a consignment of ash receivers and trays, and this little act of business acumen solved the problem for a renewal of business relations.

Detroit

Brisk Demand for Holiday Goods Apparent—Double Size of Hotel Tuller Cigar Stand—"La Saramita" Cigars Well Placed—Stork Pays Another Visit to Charlie Spietz

Detroit, Mich.

DETROIT cigar retailers are busy making up their lists of possible Christmas prospects and already many are sending out circulars calling attention to the fine holiday packages which they will have this year. Some retailers have even put out solicitors, believing that the "early bird catches the worm." Indications point to a brisk demand for holiday goods. Inquiries are already coming in from large manufacturing concerns, and dozens of people who placed good-sized orders last year are again assuring retailers that their order will be equally as large, if not larger, for this year.

Toy E. West and Earl S. Tucker have opened the Empress Smoke Shop in the new Empress Theatre Building, Grand Rapids, Mich., which is located at the corner of Lyon Street and Bond Avenue.

For some time the police department have been watching cigar stores who have permitted the use of punch boards and other gambling devices, and in a number of instances have cautioned the proprietors. Last week raids were made on the following places: Zeman's, 85 Broadway; McMillan's, 15 State Street; Burns & Johnson, 20 Monroe Avenue, and the Watson stand in the Hotel Berghoff. The punch boards were confiscated, as was the merchandise.

In the matter of Fred D. Lane and Edward Nolan, copartners as the Benton Harbor Cigar Company, Benton Harbor, Mich., an order was made for the first meeting of creditors, which was held November 19th. At that time claims were filed and a trustee elected.

The McAllister-Smith Company, wholesalers in cigars and tobacco, at 31 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, has changed its name to the Peninsular Cigar Company.

H. W. Labbe, of Cadillac, Mich., has sold his cigar and tobacco stock to J. D. Greenman, who has already taken possession.

To meet the increased trade as the result of the new addition, the cigar stand at the Hotel Tuller, Detroit, has been doubled in size. The new hotel addition contains 300 rooms, making a total of 600. The dining room, which is on the main floor, is one of the most beautiful in the Middle West, and is enjoying a big patronage, particularly after theatre. Patrons are entertained with a high-class cabaret and are also permitted to dance in an elegant ballroom which adjoins the hotel. The new dining room will accommodate about 1000 persons. The roof, formerly used as a cafe, will be devoted to conventions, special gatherings, etc. The hotel is owned by Lew W. Tuller, who has made a phenomenal success of the same since it was built, originally as an apartment house, eight years ago.

Among recent visitors in the trade were: Joe Carlisle, of A. Santaella & Company, boosting "Optimos"; Frank J. Horning, of H. Anton Bock & Company, in the interests of "Don Antonio," jobbed in this section by Claude E. Howell; Nate Shapero, of M. A. Gunst & Company, with "Van Dycks"; Ben Straus, of Perfecto Garcia & Brothers, manufacturers of the "La Amita" cigar; Perry Bland, of Sig. C. Mayer & Company, of Philadelphia, boosting the "Rey-Oma" brand; Joseph Wertheim, of E. M. Schwartz & Company, whose goods are handled locally through C. J. Holton; H. G. Alces, of Simon Batt & Company, and L. B. McKitterick, of the Melachrino Cigarette Company, who was here to confer with his Michigan representative. We will probably have a lull until after the first of the year, when Detroit will again be the Mecca for cigar salesmen.

Sid Berger, of the T. H. Perry Company, cigar jobbers, who are located in the Scherer Building, reports an excellent trade on the "La Saramita" cigar, made in Cleveland, by Shields & Wertheim. The Perry Company has taken the Detroit agency for this brand, and already has placed the brand in nearly every store in the city. The smokeshop at 41 Broadway is owned by the Perry Company, and is used for their retail emporium. This week a very attractive display of "La Saramita" cigars is in the window. T. H. Perry and S. Berger are partners in the T. H. Perry Company.

The Banner Cigar Company feels elated in having recently secured the services of W. A. Yochem, who is now covering the South and Middle West. Mr. Yochem is well known in the trade, having spent a lifetime in the cigar selling end of the industry.

Commodore Merrill B. Mills, of the Banner Cigar Company, was a recent visitor at the factory in Detroit. Mr. Mills comes to Detroit two or three times a year for a few days only, most of his time being spent in his yacht. The winter months he spends in Southern waters, and is now on his way Southward.

Charles Spietz and Albert Worch returned to Detroit the middle of November from Kansas City, where they went to appear as witnesses in the Federal Court against four druggists who have been indicted for "refilling cans." The cases have been postponed until January or February.

Charlie Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company, has been receiving the congratulations of his friends on the strength of a new baby girl which landed at his residence November 5th, making his fifth, and all girls.

It is estimated that there are 6500 people employed in the cigar industry in Detroit, and the annual payroll is more than $2,500,000. The approximate value of cigars produced last year was $10,000,000. Generally speaking, Detroit has the reputation of having some of the finest equipped and most sanitary cigar factories in the United States. Every device that adds to the comfort and general welfare of the employees, as well as the most modern equipment for the making of cigars, has been installed.

E. M. Harris & Company, Detroit, will open their new store on West Fort Street, adjoining the Penobscot Building, about December 1st. Their new store in the David Whitney Building will be ready soon after the New Year, while it will be some months before their proposed new store at Woodward and Gratiot Avenues will be in readiness.

Roy Larkin has sold his cigar store in Jackson, Mich., to G. W. Franklin.

Lee Murphy's cigar factory in East Jordon was recently destroyed by fire. Loss was partially covered by insurance.

AL U. THORNBURG

"United" to Open New Store in Des Moines

The third United Cigar Store in Des Moines, Ia., was recently opened at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Locust Street. This will be used as a premium station as well as being the central store. S. Wolpe, of Boston, has been installed as manager.

The new store is finished in excellent style. The fixtures are of mahogany. The floor is of tile and the large show windows are especially attractive. A full line of fine cigars, pipes, tobacco and cigarettes will be carried. As a special feature of the opening every purchaser received double trade certificates and a metal match book holder as a souvenir.

Los Angeles

Heavy Call for Bayuk's "Philadelphia Hand-Made"—Entire Owl Drug Chain Displays "Cinco" Cigars—Smokers Play Havoc With Big Shipment of "Reynaldo" Duets

Los Angeles, Cal., November 21.

BUSINESS conditions have been running on the normal plane for some time hereabouts, jobbers and retailers feeling no decided depression or expansion. Summer weather in winter is one of the chief factors aiding the cigar man in pushing his goods at this time of the year.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company report a heavy demand for Bayuk Brothers' "Philadelphia Hand-Made" five-cent cigar. This house distributes some of the really big sellers in this market, among which are the following: "Permits" and "Chancellors," of the American Cigar Company; "Pippins," H. Traiser & Company; "Optimos" and "Centropolis," A. Santaella & Company, and the local-made cigar, "La Abilidad."

The Owl Drug Company displayed Eisenlohr's "Cinco" in their entire string of stores the past week. Several of these displays could not be excelled from an artistic standpoint.

Marc Brunner, visiting here, just left for San Francisco. Mr. Brunner is looking after the affairs of E. Regensburg & Sons in this state and called on the Klingenstein Company, the Southern California distributors.

J. W. Hoyt, representing A. Davis' Sons & Company, of Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of the "Don Remo" cigar, has been in this city for the past five weeks covering the entire territory of M. A. Newmark & Company, in company with the entire force of salesmen of this house. A number of attractive window displays are to be seen since Mr. Hoyt's visit, "Don Remo" being the cigar displayed. The cigar is getting a general distribution. Joe Goldsmith and Fred Cowell deserve much of the credit along with Mr. Hoyt for the progress being made with this cigar.

S. Bachman & Company have opened a branch in San Diego, in which they will feature all of their leading brands, numbering "Gato," "R.-B" and "Flor de Baltimore" brands.

Anthony Schwamm is representing the Federal Cigar Company on the Pacific Coast, manufacturers of the "Rosa de Valle" cigars. The Max Roth Cigar Company are the Southern California distributors of this cigar. Mr. Schwamm, since handling this line, has been getting far better results and a more general distribution than realized before he took hold of the line. Mr. Schwamm is leaving tomorrow night for the Imperial Valley in the interests of the "Rosa de Valle" cigar.

The "Copyright" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., has just reached the retailer in tins. Woodward-Jones-Johnson report an increasing demand for this style of packing. "Copyright" can now be seen in practically every first-class cigar store in this city and surrounding territory.

The new packages of "Reynaldo" called "Duets" and "Economics," are causing quite a splurge hereabouts. Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company are working very hard on these two sizes and report a steadily increasing demand for them. They have received one large shipment of them and it vanished almost as quickly as it came. Another order has gone in to fill up back orders. This house is now selling twelve sizes of "Reynaldo" cigars.

Tampa

Many Factories Pushed to Fill Orders—Demands for "Webster" Cigars Exert Heavy Pressure—About a Dozen Factories in 5,000,000 to 20,000,000 Tax Class

Tampa, November 25, 1914.

DESPITE the fact that trade, in certain sections of the country, is stagnant, many of the factories here in Tampa are finding themselves hard pushed to keep up with the demand for orders. Though the holiday orders this season were somewhat later than usual in coming in, they have not abashed the manufacturers, but have acted as a spur to greater effort to complete all shipments. From present indications, the remaining weeks of the season give promise of much heavier shipments than some of the manufacturers had at first believed. In various factories here the picking and packing rooms are now kept open on Sunday, and it is expected that additional factories will follow.

From the standpoint of sales by the Internal Revenue Office, locally, November 16th last, is reported as having been the largest day within the past two years, the sales of tobacco stamps on that day having totalled the sum of $9,345.99.

John M. Carlisle, representative of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, spent a few days here recently in the interests of his company.

Ramon Fernandez, well known in local cigar manufacturing circles, left within the past fortnight via the Seaboard Air Line, for a business visit to New York City.

George F. Wiedeman and T. D. Fisher, of the Sheip-Wiedeman Cigar Box Factory, left the city for Cuba, recently, in order to purchase a supply of cedar for manufacturing purposes for the coming year. It is not generally known that the manufacture of cigar boxes is one of the big industrial things of this city, and that thousands of dollars worth of Cuban Cigar logs are imported annually for the purpose.

A recent report is to the effect that 300,000,000 cigars are made annually in Florida. Of this number, it is stated that one Tampa factory manufactures 20,000,000 yearly.

Tampa manufactures many excellent brands of cigars. One of the most excellent is the "Webster," manufactured by Y. Pendas & Alvarez. Report from this factory is to the effect that so great is the demand for this well-known product that every department of the factory is kept on the alert in order to keep up with the pace that is being set by the incoming orders. Furthermore, it is stated that never before in the history of the factory, has the demand for "Websters" been of such vast proportions.

With reference to a statement recently published in error, locally, relative to the collection of the emergency tax from cigar factories, to the effect that in Tampa probably not more than four or five would be called upon to pay the $600 tax levied on factories selling between 5,000,000 and 20,000,000 cigars yearly; a corrected statement has since been issued by the same publication. This states that the number of Tampa factories coming within this category is not less that twelve and not more than fifteen at the outside. According to A. L. Cuesta, Jr., of the Cuesta-Rey factory, there are at least twelve factories in this class, the Cuesta-Rey factory being among the number, which factory is credited with having manufactured in 1913 in the vicinity of 18,000,000 cigars. According to Captain Scarlett of the Internal Revenue Office, authorities on the annual output of Tampa-made cigars, estimate the number of factories manufacturing between 5,000,000 and 20,000,000 or more cigars yearly, to vary as high as twenty.

PERFECTO.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

Havana, November 23.

THE market has been exceedingly dull during the past two weeks. Only very few American buyers have arrived here, and their purchases have been restricted to their most pressing needs, thus demonstrating that the wave of prosperity in the United States has not reached the cigar manufacturers yet, or at least those that are using exclusively our leaf for the production of clear Havana cigars in bond, as well as those which are making Seed and Havana goods. Therefore, if business has improved, it must be ascribed to a greater output and consumption of stogie cigars or possibly to seed fillers and Sumatra wrappers, which retail for five cents each. As our prices for second and third capaduras are low enough to be employed in the manufacture of five-cent cigars, we cannot understand that the enterprising and wide awake manufacturers do not flock here in order to lay in sufficient stocks, as surely we have reached rock bottom figures, and in all probability prices will react in the year to come. Some of our leaf dealers have the blues and are anxious to sell, so it is an excellent time to come here and pick up some real bargains at present.

The Spanish Regie buyers are only buying slower, as there is not sufficient freight room offering, although we understand they have been making some fair purchases direct in the country from the vegueros. The inquiry for South America is only limited, as it seems the monetary troubles have not passed yet. Our cigarette manufacturers continue to buy moderately, although the Trust, it is said, has stopped purchasing for the present, not on account of the prices, or quality of the goods, but because they have no more room in their warehouses to store the bales.

The Holland-America Line is initiating a monthly service direct from Rotterdam to Havana, and one of their steamers, the "Andjyk," has engaged already a little over 2000 bales of leaf. The former drawbacks have been canceled, and the bills of lading are issued regularly, as before the war. It is surmised that the bulk of these shipments will finally go to Germany, as Great Britain has placed no embargo on tobacco, as the same is not in the list of articles which are considered as contraband goods. There is the danger of mines in the North Sea, which England has declared as being in the war zone, and there is also the impossibility of selling exchange in our market, when drawn upon Germany. Therefore, we hardly think that Germany will be able to buy largely of our leaf until peace shall be restored.

As far as planting is concerned, we heard that Don Avelino Pazos has commenced to set out some seedlings in his famous farm, La Lechuga, near Hoyo Colorado, on the ninth instant, but perhaps only half the quantity as compared with last year. There may have been some isolated planting done in the Vuelta Abajo, while it is positively stated that all the seedlings have been destroyed in the Santa Clara Province by the excessive tropical rains during the last two weeks, so a great deal of valuable time will be lost before new seedlings can grow, and then the young plants may be caught by the prevailing drought during the months of January and February, which would stop their growth. In any event, the next crop will be very limited in quantity, while it will depend upon the atmosphere how the quality might turn out, and as no artificial fertilizer has been employed, it is a mooted question what class of leaf can be produced upon an impoverished soil. Fortunately for the manufacturers, there is enough leaf still to be had from this year's crop to go around for quite awhile.

Sales during the past fortnight only totaled 5690 bales, which were divided between: Vuelta Abajo and Semi-Vuelta, 2236; Partido, 813, and Remedios, 2641 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1400; exporters to Europe, 1655; shippers to South America, 401, and our local cigarette manufacturers, 2234 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from November 2nd to November 14th, totaled 8873 bales, which were shipped to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 6319; to Spain, 1033; to Lisbon, 994; to Canada, 95; to Nottingham, 31, and to South America, 401 bales.

Cigars.

Our cigar industry is in a very deplorable shape, as with the execution of the pending holiday orders most of our factories may be compelled to close for want of any new orders. Our daily press reported on Saturday that the H. Upmann factory would close on that day, that many of the Trust factories might do the same, and it mentioned also the Estanillo factory, while others would discharge the majority of their cigarmakers, or eventually also close entirely in a short time. It stated that over 13,000 cigarmakers were without work and dependent upon charity. How long the closing of the factories should last will depend upon the possibility of getting new and sufficient orders again, but the present outlook is really disheartening.

Owing to the European war we cannot expect any orders of importance, excepting from England, and these when they do come are mostly for the lower priced shapes, which leave no profit, if sold in conjunction with the higher priced ones, while if they had to be turned out alone, they would net a loss instead of a profit. Of course this refers to the Vuelta Abajo factories, as the Partido ones can produce cheaper cigars and still eke out a small profit.

Regarding the demand from the United States, we are really anxious to learn when there will be a change for the better, but as long as the barometer stands low at Tampa and Key West, we dare not hope for an improvement from this direction. The raising of the duty in the Dominion of Canada has had the predicted effect of curtailing the importation of our cigars. The South American Republics are also hit hard by the war, and now it seems that Australia is also beginning to feel the effects, as the calls for our cigars are getting less and less. Our only hope lies in the making of reciprocity treaties, and with this object in view our Union of Manufacturers has been urging our President again to take the necessary diplomatic steps at Washington principally. The last act of our Congress to relieve the distress of our cigar industry by giving it a bonus of $10 per 1000 cigars exported, apparently will not be carried out, as the laws of the United States and Great Britain are opposed to such a bonification, therefore the commission appointed to study the carrying out of the act of our Congress has reported unfavorably.

Leaf Tobacco.

Bernabe Diaz, the buyer for F. Lozano, Son & Company, of Tampa, who generally has his headquarters in Havana all the year through, left for Tampa on the fourteenth instant in order to supervise the output of the cigars to be made from his latest purchases, which were of an exceptionally fine character from choice lowland vegas of the Vuelta Abajo. He expects to return here during the first half of January, and we learned that the factory of F. Lozano, Son & Company is doing a very satisfactory and increasing business, notwithstanding the generally dull times in the North.

Harry Landfield, of Landfield & Steele, Chicago, was a buyer of 350 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf during his stay in town.

Jose C. Puente & Company were sellers of 250 bales of Partido and Remedios leaf during the past fortnight.

We learned to our regret that H. H. Strater, the leaf dealer and packer of Manicaragua and Remedios, who had undergone a rather dangerous operation in the United States, and from which he has not yet recovered, induced his nephew, Frank Strater, to leave hurriedly for the States on the fourteenth instant. We hope, however, that Mr. Strater may regain his former good health ere long.

J. F. Berndes & Company are reported to ship nearly 2000 bales of leaf for the Netherlands, by the Dutch steamer "Andjyk," now loading in our harbor for Rotterdam.

The Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company shall have received 1945 bales of Vuelta Abajo colas, on account of previous purchases made for its cigarette factories, during the last two weeks.

"Made in Seattle" Product Well Received

"Flor-de-Rico," a "Made in Seatle" product, and manufactured by the Pacific Tobacco Company, of 219 Columbia Street, Seattle, Wash., is being well received by the trade. According to Ed. O'Keefe, who is located on First Avenue, the new brand is competing well with the more extensively advertised brands. Mr. O'Keefe states that he is selling a goodly number of the "Flor-de-Ricos" daily.

United Cigar Store for Lancaster

The store at 58 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa., has recently been leased by John G. Forney to the United Cigar Stores Company. This is the first time that an effort has been made by this chain to establish a store in Lancaster and it remains to be seen how the proposition will turn out. It is said that independent cigar dealers are up in arms over the invasion.

President Entertains Forty-five Tobacco Salesmen

Following a custom of years, Mrs. J. M. Harms, president of the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Company, of St. Louis, Mo., recently gave a banquet to forty-five of the company's salesmen. This custom has been in effect since 1897. The dinner was given in a banquet hall built into the Harms home at 3627 Flora Boulevard, especially for this function. Both the salesmen and their wives were invited.

The Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Company has been established since 1868, and handles some of the best known brands of cigars and tobacco in the country.

Good business on Picaduras, Roig five-cent lines and the better lines of "Girards" is reported by Lang, Jones & Company, of Portland, Ore., who are now occupying their larger quarters.

Chicago

Business Remains Good, Say Travelers—To Change Band on "Francisco Goya" Cigar—"San Etta" Smoke Is Making Hit—Department Stores Have Attractive Cigar Displays

Chicago, November 26.

TRAVELING men say that business has remained good, although most of the travelers have returned from their last road trip before the holidays. Collections are getting better right along, according to the credit managers of some of the largest firms in the city, and there is a marked tendency to settle obligations before the first of the year. In this connection the manager of one of the large wholesale houses here, which has a big trade with the Chinese merchants of the city, recited the following interesting story:

"If you will notice, the Chinese always make a great effort to pay all their bills before the beginning of a new year. This is a part of their religion. They believe that if they fail in this obligation that they will never taste of the pleasures of heaven after they are dead, which is putting the matter the other way around the stump, to say the least."

Another cigar man, who was standing near, and whose experience with Chinese trade had apparently not been entirely successful, added a commentary by remarking that if that were true "h—— must be full of Chinamen."

The opening of the Federal Reserve Bank under the law recently passed is destined to prove a landmark in all lines of business here. It means that increased capital will be attracted to the city and that there will be plenty of money for new enterprises. In talking of this matter the other day, a well-known manufacturer of cigars said:

"Within the next few years it is probable that many new industries in the cigar and tobacco line will locate in Chicago. The Federal Reserve Bank and the general feeling of confidence which its presence will create will have much to do with this result. Then, again, manufacturers with whom I have discussed the problem tell me that the plant which is located in the city proper has many advantages over the plant which is located in some small town at a distance. Land is cheap here, and there are vast expanses of prairie in the very heart of the city almost, which could be secured at a low price per acre. Labor troubles when they are all summed up, are no worse in the city than they are in the country. They are of a different sort, that is all. The shipping facilities when a factory is located directly in a city like Chicago, are much superior to what they could be on the outside."

Charles Strauss, who travels for C. H. Grote & Son, talked in an encouraging manner on the leaf tobacco situation not long ago.

"The year-end trade has been all that we could wish," said Mr. Strauss, "for while the orders have been rather small in size, some of them, they have been numerous, so that the aggregate did not suffer. I have found that manufacturers are becoming more discriminating in the sort of tobacco they buy. In particular is this true in the smaller towns, where the five-cent trade is the biggest. I suppose that the increasing cost of producing a five-cent cigar during the last few years is responsible for this additional care in stock selection. However, the manufacturers have been disposed to buy when they were shown what they wanted at a right price."

Much comment has been caused by the recent campaign of the Randall-Landfield Company telling the public the reasons for the change of color on the bands of "Francisco Goya." A notice is being distributed from the cigar stores around the city as follows:

"To our Friends—the Trade: The 'Francisco Goya' clear Havana cigars are now banded with red bands, as the green ink of the old bands makes the Havana wrapper appear green-spotted. We shall use the red bands as soon as they come from the press, but can supply the old band if your trade insists upon it. And, too, the green band with the portrait necessitates its being made abroad. We prefer patronizing home industry when possible. We thank you for all past favors and await your future commands. Very truly yours, Randall-Landfield Company."

One of the best five-cent cigars which has struck the city in a long time is the five-cent seller of Best & Russell, known as the "San Etta" cigar, and made by the San Etta Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit. The distributing house is featuring the cigar in some of the stores and in all of them it is being given more or less publicity through window and counter displays.

A. J. Power, the well-known manufacturer of "Santa Clara" cigar, and other brands familiar to the smokers of Northern Indiana, was in the city last week on a trip which combined business and pleasure.

J. P. Dubridge, who was formerly a member of the sales force of Morrison, Plummer & Company, and James Clark, well known in the local trade, have been added to the sales force of Grommes & Ullrich. They will cover the territory formerly covered by William G. Baxter, who died several weeks ago.

Walter Sutter, who represents Jacob Sutter & Sons, and who has been in Havana on a buying trip, is expected back in the city in a few days, according to an announcement made at the offices of the company last week. Mr. Sutter has been gone for several months, and his old friends here in the city are looking forward to his return with some anticipation.

Post C, of the Travelers' Protective Association, held a meeting at the Grand Pacific Hotel last week. More than four hundred were present and the event was one of great enjoyment. Many cigar and tobacco travelers belong to this organization. One of the main topics of discussion was the action of the railroads in increasing the rate on mileage books to commercial travelers.

Among the department stores of the city the cigar departments are receiving more attention as the holiday season approaches. The Boston Store, the Fair, and Siegel, Cooper & Company, all have new displays. Siegel, Cooper & Company have arranged a "North Pole scene" on the fourth floor which is attracting the attention of elders as well as children. The effects are all secured with the use of electricity. Live polar bears, seal, deer and other animals have been secured from a local Zoo. One of the main features is a "stage snowstorm," which is in constant operation. The cigar department has the advantage of being located not far away from this attractive scene.

Rothschild & Company, the large department store at State and Van Buren Streets, has moved its cigar department to the first floor of the building, and now has a much better location. Increased attention has been given to the department by the company, for under the efficient management of Tom Pennell, manager, a remarkable showing has been made during the past year. The new position on the first floor, which is visited by something like 100,000 people a day, will give the department further chance to expand.

H. M. Schermerhorn is doing a great deal in window display work at present. He is featuring the "El Sidelo," for the most part. The display in the window of the store at Adams Street and Fifth Avenue is one of the best which the writer has seen in some time. The arrangement is simple, but most effective.

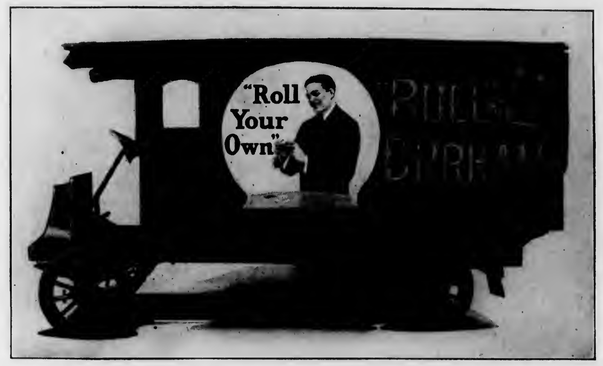
Tobacco Company's Trucks Win Auto Prizes

THE climax of New York City's Tercentenary Celebration was a monster automobile pageant held on Wednesday, October 28th last. Thousands of automobiles were in the parade, and prizes valued at more than $5000 were awarded to the winners of the various divisions of the pageant.

In the division for Advertising Motor Trucks, the American Tobacco Company carried off both first and second prizes with their "Omar" Cigarettes Truck and "Bull" Durham Truck. These prizes were for the best appearing vehicles carrying advertising other than merely the name and address of the owners.



Winner of Second Prize in New York City's Tercentenary Automobile Pageant

The "Omar" Cigarettes Truck won the first prize trophy, a handsome silver loving cup, valued at $150. The "Bull" Durham Truck won the second prize, a beautiful bronze statue, valued at $100.

These two auto trucks were easily the handsomest advertising vehicles in the entire pageant. All along the line their appearance was received with applause by the hundreds of thousands of spectators. The judges quickly decided that the first two prizes belonged to these two trucks, but had some difficulty in deciding which deserved the first prize.

The photographs of the two trucks herewith reproduced cannot do justice to their strikingly beautiful appearance. The sides are of glass, brilliantly colored and illuminated by electricity. These glass sides are alternately lighted up and darkened, which attracts attention instantly and greatly adds to their effectiveness. Without a doubt these two trucks of the American Tobacco Company are the most artistic commercial vehicles ever designed.

These two handsome trucks are familiar sights along New York City's famous Great White Way and other thoroughfares at night. They are always the centre of interest and admiration, and have undoubtedly helped the steadily increasing demand for the two popular brands of cigarettes and tobacco they advertise—"Omar" Cigarettes and "Bull" Durham Smoking Tobacco.

Trade Jottings

The S. E. Rice Tobacco Company, of Greenville, Ky., has increased its capital stock to $40,000.

The Matthews-Phillips Company, Nashville, Tenn., report successful sales on "Charles Denby," manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind.

The cigar stand in the new Gwynne-Vanderbilt Building at Sixth and Main Streets, Cincinnati, O., has been leased by E. V. O'Doud for a period of five years.

Bauer Hess recently paid a visit to Portland, Ore., for the purpose of boosting "Centropolis" cigars for A. Santaella y Ca. While in town Mr. Hess called on Lang & Company, who reported good sales on the brand.

The cigar stand in the Tyler Hotel, Louisville, Ky., which for the past two years has been operated by the Criterion Company, has been taken over by S. B. Fisher, who will in the future do business as the Tyler Hotel Cigar Stand. Mr. Fisher will carry a full line of high grade cigars.

"San Felice," "Optimo," "Centropolis," "Chancellors" and "Nevandas" are prominent among the brands of the cigar department of the National Grocery Company, Seattle, Wash. Business in this department is said to be very nice, according to I. M. Cohen, who is in charge. He also states that a very active business is being done in the pipe department.

CHICAGO

One of the finest new hotels in the city, as well as one of the largest, will be completed in a few weeks in the New Morrison, which has been erected immediately to the east of the old Morrison Hotel, for many years one of the best known hostelries in the city. John J. Dolan will have the cigar stand privilege, which he has held for a number of years.

At the factory of Grommes & Elston the entire force is busy getting out Christmas orders for "Ben Bey," the leader of the firm. The demand has been excellent on this brand all fall, and a sincere effort on the part of the company to maintain the quality of the cigars, combined with intelligent sales methods, has resulted in remarkable success.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, Detroit, was a visitor to the city last week.

"Centropolis" cigar is a brand which has been little known here, but which has come to the front in a remarkable manner during the past few weeks. This cigar is now handled by many of the leading stands in the larger office buildings and is really becoming a prime favorite.

The Chicago Association of Commerce held a regular meeting at the Hotel La Salle the other evening, which was well attended. The cigar and tobacco trades are well represented in this organization. Matters connected with the commercial expansion of the city, particularly in the direction of South America, had much to do with the discussions. Several tobacco men said that there was a distinct field for American scrap tobaccos in the Latin Republics.

No Change in Bonded Cigar Stamps

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27, 1914.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Peters has issued the following decision in connection with inscriptions to be placed on cigar stamps used on cigars made in bonded manufacturing warehouses from imported tobacco:

"The Department has concluded, after careful consideration of the briefs submitted and oral representations made by various parties interested in the manufacture of cigars in bonded warehouses, that sufficient reason does not exist to justify a departure from the previous rulings made relating to the inscription placed upon stamps to indicate the character of such cigars, as required by the provisions of subsection M of section IV of the tariff act of October 3, 1913.

"The Department will, therefore, continue to furnish such stamps upon application therefor with appropriate wording to show the place of manufacture, the origin of the tobacco from which made and the character of the cigars according to the method of manufacturing the same."

"Pure Gold" to be Manufactured in Statesville

The Pure Gold Tobacco Company, of Greenville, Tenn., whose plant was recently destroyed by fire, has contracted with the J. H. McElwee Tobacco Company, of Statesville, to produce its brand of smoking tobacco known as "Pure Gold."

Tobacco Being Stolen in Wholesale Quantities

Scranton, Pa.

Wholesale robberies of cigars and cigarettes from the platforms of local railroad freight houses during the last few days have been reported to the police department.

The detective bureaus of the railroad companies are also making rigid investigations into the reported robberies, and they have called in the aid of the police department in an effort to apprehend the guilty persons quickly.

In all 16,000 cigars and 5000 cigarettes have been stolen to date from the freight houses of the two railroad companies. One case stolen contained 5000 "Charter" cigars, another 25,000 "Sweet Caporal" cigarettes, and the last case reported as missing contained 11,000 "Tom Keene" cigars.

Railroad detectives found that they had to deal with an organized band of thieves who were making a specialty of stealing cigars and cigarettes.

WARNING TO THE TRADE

Neumann & Mayer, Philadelphia, Pa., owners of the "El Tello" title for cigars, herewith notify the trade against the use of this or similar titles or names. All infringements will be promptly prosecuted.

To Manufacture Cigar-Vending Machines

Arrangements are being completed by the National Cigar-Vending Machine Company, recently organized in Canton, Ill., whereby they will manufacture cigar-vending machines to retail at about ten dollars.

At the present time the inventor of the machine, C. L. Hughes, is having the manufacturing work done by a Chicago firm. Mr. Hughes is now arranging with them to build special machinery for the manufacture of the vending machines. The machinery when ready will be moved to either Lewiston or Canton, where the vending machines will be manufactured.

German Governor Levies 100,000 Cigars a Day

A recent dispatch from Amsterdam states that Baron von der Goltz, the German military governor of Belgium, has served notice on the municipality of Antwerp that it must support a garrison of 57,000 German soldiers and furnish daily 100,000 cigars and 2000 bottles of wine, in addition to a heavy money levy.

Ten Million Cigarettes for Warring Soldiers

Through the generosity of P. Lorillard Company, the American Red Cross Society last week received a donation of 10,000,000 cigarettes, to be sent to the warring camps of Europe.

The gift was made through Miss Anne Depew Paulding, of the Westchester County Chapter of the Red Cross, while W. W. Fuller, of the law firm of Nicoll, Annable, Lindsay & Fuller, represented P. Lorillard Company in the transaction.

One of the salient facts of the war has been the steady call for tobacco. It seems to be the one thing above all others, except food, desired by the soldiers. This splendid gift of P. Lorillard Company will undoubtedly bring great comfort to hundreds of warriors under tents and in trenches on the great battlefields of Europe.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

Lancaster, Pa.

After the rains that broke the twelve weeks' drought, it was reasonably supposed that Lancaster County's new tobacco crop would be speedily stripped and that the buying of the crop would then begin, grower and packer having all along declared that there would be nothing done until the tobacco was stripped.

Much to the disappointment of everybody concerned in the tobacco industry, stripping has not become general, for the very sufficient reason that a large percentage of the crop is not ready for stripping. It has not cured yet, late as it is, because it was held back by the long dry spell. While the bulk of the crop has colored well enough, a great deal has taken on a dirty yellowish tinge that will materially lessen its value if it holds that color until cured.

The growers believe that the later curing process will improve the tone of the leaf, but the packers do not think so. The last week a few crops were sold around Maytown for nine and one-half cents a pound, but it is not believed this is a sure indication of the price that will prevail this season. The various farmers' associations are impressing upon the growers the necessity for holding out for prices above ten cents a pound, one organization even declaring that fifteen cents must be paid, but the packers declare they will be unable, because of present market conditions, to pay as much as ten cents a pound.

Under the present outlook the tobacco will be very late selling. It is a matter that greatly concerns the business interests of Lancaster and every town in the county, as the sale of the crop would turn loose at least $2,000,000 in ready cash.

CONNECTICUT

Suffield, Conn.

From present indications the opening of the tobacco warehouses will be delayed on account of the weather. Growers are unable to take down the crop. Last Monday a damp started which looked like a real one, and the growers made a hustle for help in Suffield, Thompsonville and Windsor Locks, and telephoned employment agencies in Springfield to send men. During the day it was estimated that about 1000 men were employed taking down the tobacco, when the storm suddenly ceased and a brisk northwest wind came up, while the mercury dropped twenty-five degrees in a few hours. The wind dried the tobacco, making it impossible to take it down, and in many instances drying out some that had been taken down, which had to be left in the pile to await another damp. The bulk of the crop is sold, and growers are anxious to get the crop down. Buyers, too, are anxious to get the crop into the warehouses, and tobacco sorters, a large number of whom have been out of work since the tobacco was housed, are anxious to get to work.

WISCONSIN

Edgerton, Wis.

A number of buyers have been out among the farmers, but the contracts closed have been few in proportion. Even the largest buyers are acting along very conservative lines and the buying movement has slackened appreciably.

The new crop is cured out entirely even to the stalk, so that buyers this year will not be purchasing an excessive amount of moisture. The chances for damage in sweat when the leaf is packed under proper conditions should therefore be small. The tobacco is hanging in such a dry condition that thus far there has been no opportunity to get a fair idea of its merits. It will take a long damp spell now before the leaf can be removed from the curing sheds.

KENTUCKY

Louisville, Ky.

Although sales were of a comparatively small volume, dealers report an improvement in the local tobacco market. There is a better tone and prices have reached good levels on burley and dark.

There was but one hogshead of the 1914 crop of burley on the market. The new weed will not be moving in great volume until a good general rain falls over the State. Moisture is absolutely necessary to the handling and packing of the tobacco and until it comes little or no amount of the crop will be shipped.

A special from Carlisle, Ky., says good prices have been obtained for the first sales of tobacco during the present season in that section, sales being reported from Robertson County at ten to twelve cents per pound.

Owensboro, Ky.

The four leaf tobacco houses in Owensboro are ready for the opening of the tobacco market on December 1. The farmers are now waiting for a good season so that they can strip the weed. Thomas Gallaher, of the Gallaher Limited, of Belfast, Ireland, is in Owensboro and says that good prices will be paid for good tobacco this year. He does not fear the least trouble in exporting tobacco on account of the war.

JAMAICA

Kingston, B. W. I.

The crops harvested in Jamaica this year have not been up to standard, possibly our reapings all around will not net more than 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco. With the short crops of 1912 and 1913 it looks as if there is not a pound more of tobacco stored by the manufacturers than for their immediate requirements. This will mean very early drawings from the 1914-15 crop, for which the outlook is not very bright at the present writing. Owing to a severe drought, which has only lately been broken, the seedlings are about six weeks late.

RESSIL.

Barn and 1000 pounds of tobacco belonging to R. J. Downer, Elkton, Ky., were destroyed by fire recently, the loss totaling $1500.

Fire of unknown origin at Lexington, Ky., also destroyed the tobacco barn of W. Roser, Bryan Station Pike, containing a four-acre crop of tobacco, the value of tobacco and barn having been estimated at $2000. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Duquesne Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, has recently been doing some missionary work in their stogie lines in the vicinity of Toledo, O.

BOLD AND SUCCESS

Two Words With But a Single Meaning

¶ EIGHT MILLION (8,000,000) increase in 1914 is the wonderful record of BOLD cigars. Those who were compelled to telegraph for goods, and were kind enough to accept part shipments and delayed orders know that this startling proof of the popularity of BOLD Cigars was beyond our expectations.

¶ To all those who assisted us in making this splendid increase, who were so considerate and indulgent during the rush period, we wish to express our sincere thanks and to assert our deep appreciation.

¶ Our force has been greatly augmented and our facilities increased for 1915 promises even greater growth than 1914.

¶ Go to it! We are back of you and nothing will be left undone to make 1915 live up to its every promise.

The following paragraph taken from an Editorial recently appearing in this Journal, we feel will be appreciated by our many friends in the Trade, as in fitting with our mutually successful year.

"Honest goods sold at a fair price honestly advertised to the trade and consumer, continue to keep the lead among the biggest selling cigars in the country. Proof of this statement lies in the fact that the nickel and ten cent cigars that have been persistently advertised throughout the depression of the past year, remain practically unshaken in their output."

We take this opportunity of extending our thanks to the trade for many courtesies received throughout the year and offer our sincere wishes for a most prosperous ensuing year.

From the Annual Internal Revenue Report.

The following statements and tables are taken from the annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The figures given herewith relate exclusively to cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff manufactured in the United States:

Manufacture of Tobacco Products, Calendar Year 1913

The total number of cigar manufacturers for whom accounts were rendered for the calendar year 1913 was 20,288, which includes 447 manufacturers of cigarettes.

The total number of cigars made weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand was 7,571,507,834, an increase of 527,250,599 compared with the production of 1912.

The total number of cigars made weighing not more than 3 pounds per thousand was 959,409,161, a decrease of 95,782,334 cigars as compared with the production for the previous year.

The total number of cigarettes made weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand was 15,105,776, a decrease of 1,494,608 from the previous year.

The total number of cigarettes made weighing not more than 3 pounds per thousand was 15,555,692,661, an increase of 2,388,599,146 over the previous year.

The average quantity of unstemmed tobacco used in making 1000 cigars weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand was 20.96 pounds; in making 1000 cigars weighing not more than 3 pounds per thousand, 4.40 pounds; in making 1000 cigarettes weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand, 9.17 pounds; in making 1000 cigarettes weighing not more than 3 pounds per thousand, 3.62 pounds.

Tables Nos. 3 and 4 relate to tobacco and snuff.

There was an increase of thirty-one in the number of tobacco and snuff factories operated during last year as compared with the previous year.

There was a decrease of 16,598,282 pounds unstemmed leaf and increases of 4,915,297 pounds stemmed leaf tobacco, 1,317,443 pounds scraps, cuttings, and clippings, and 172,983 pounds tobacco in process, a decrease of 1,313,158 pounds stems and increases of 973,780 pounds licorice, 2,507,191 pounds sugar and 2,372,033 pounds of other materials used in manufacturing tobacco and snuff as compared with the previous year.

There was a total decrease of 5,652,713 pounds of materials of all kinds used as compared with the previous year.

There was an increase of 4,090,315 pounds of plug, decreases of 637,344 pounds of twist and 72,035 pounds of fine-cut chewing, and increases of 3,479,279 pounds of smoking tobacco and 1,534,405 pounds of snuff manufactured as compared with the previous year.

Snuff was manufactured in nineteen districts; the district of Tennessee produced 16,320,313 pounds; the fifth district of New Jersey produced 8,538,037 pounds; the first district of Illinois produced 5,520,073 pounds, and the district of Maryland produced 2,090,461 pounds, the aggregate production of the districts named being 32,468,884 pounds, out of a total production amounting to 32,898,056 pounds.

Tobacco.

The receipts from the tax on manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, and cigarettes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, amounted to $79,986,639.68, an increase over the collections from these sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, of $3,197,214.93.

There were in operation during the calendar year 1913, 19,841 cigar factories and 447 cigarette factories, this being a decrease of 714 cigar factories and 22 cigarette factories.

There were also registered 2766 establishments producing manufactured tobacco, 68 producing snuff, 4004 dealers in leaf tobacco, and 591 retail dealers in leaf tobacco in the United States.

No change is noted in the very limited sale of unmanufactured leaf tobacco by retail dealers in leaf tobacco.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in securing reports of dealers in leaf tobacco for each quarter and in keeping a check on such dealers and on their transactions reported in book 59. A dealer in leaf tobacco is now, and has been, required only to register with the collector of the district on commencement of business. Section 3360 of the Revised Statutes provides that dealers in leaf tobacco shall return the book furnished by the government, in which record is kept of their transactions, at the end of each and every year and upon discontinuance of business during any year. Reports on book 59 are required quarterly instead of yearly, for the purpose of tracing sales of leaf tobacco to manufacturers and other dealers in leaf tobacco just that much earlier than would be possible with only a yearly report. A dealer in leaf tobacco has never been required to give a bond, nor is an inventory required by law to be furnished. There are a number of dealers in leaf tobacco who

The Office Boy's Contribution

IT was a gay crowd that gathered one Christmas Eve many years ago at the old Pall Mall Hostelry in the pleasure loving city of San Felice. The Host, F. Lozano, who never failed to regale each and every guest with the fact that he was of royal lineage, being descended from the Reyes de Espana (Kings of Spain), had been decorated but a short time before with the Havana Ribbon in honor of his gift of 44 boxes of Copenhagen Snuff to Henry the Fourth. In recognition of this, he had sent out invitations broadcast for a revel to be held in the famous King's Club room, where in times past, monarchs had been wont to gather when they desired to fling aside for awhile, the cares of state. The list of guests included a King and Queen, Lords and ladies and even Statesmen from foreign lands had signified their intention of being present.

The night at last arrived and F. Lozano, standing at the head of the wonderful marble staircase, awaited the coming of his guests. Soon the voice of Courtello, his butler, was heard announcing the arrival of the Elite. Charles Denby, the American, known in San Felice as the New Bachelor, was first on the scene. He had been Bold enough to bring with him his friend John Ruskin, relative to Girard and Webster, a delightful fellow who was a frequent visitor at the Pall Mall. Denby in his own country was known as the Union Leader, the highest position of honor in the Central Union. Shortly after representatives of London Life in the persons of Lord Salisbury and Lord Sterling appeared. There was but a short intermission when a whisper went the rounds that Devesa de Murias, the famous beauty was below with her maid Lovera. There was a rush to the balcony but their efforts to see the charming beauty went unrewarded as she had gone out to welcome her dear friend La Mega Sintoma whose engagement had but recently been announced to Prince Albert of Melachrino. Presently the two of them ascended and were greeted by Graham Courtney of Fifth Ave., who was acquainted with them, he having met them on the Oasis adjacent to Sanchez & Haya. Their Majesties, Charles the Great and Queen La Saramita, were the next in order accompanied by their jester Cinco. Our Principal guests having arrived, said the host, we may as well enjoy the cabaret show which I have provided. Robert Burns who juggles Fifty-six Camels at one time will now proceed to amuse you. Burns having finished his act, Omar and Fatima enraptured their audience with the famous balcony scene from Romeo Y Julieta. This was followed by El Roi-Tan the successor of H. Upmann, the famous magician. The Rocky Ford Quartette consisting of Partagas, Gato, Bachia and Cremo then came on and having finished their act amid frequent encores, the guests were invited to the banquet board. Upon the conclusion of the Feast, La Famosa, the dancer, supplied all with small glasses of Castaneda wine in which a toast was offered the host for having supplied the company with such a merry evening.

The Connecticut Cigar Company, Inc., New Haven, Conn., Hermann Bower, president and treasurer, and William Bower, secretary, announce to the trade that they have removed their factory from 190 Commerce Street to 80 Commerce Street, where they are now doing business.

Tobias Bluestein, Incorporated, to Manufacture Cigarettes

Tobias Bluestein, Incorporated, is the title of a new corporation recently organized at Chicago, Ill., for the purpose of manufacturing Russian, Turkish and a certain type of English cigarettes. The corporation is fostered by prominent business men of Chicago and it takes its name after the president, Tobias Bluestein, who has been connected with the cigarette manufacturing business for quite a long time.

The officers and directors are Tobias Bluestein, president; Dr. Philip B. Chancellor, vice-president and secretary; J. Allen Haines, of Kean, Taylor & Company, treasurer; Ray L. Evans, of Kisell, Kinnicutt & Company, managing director; T. J. Hickey, of Kean, Taylor & Company, assistant treasurer. The directors include the officers and Rosecrans Baldwin, of Curtis & Warren; Charles S. Dewey; A. S. Peabody, of Peabody, Houghteling & Company, and James MacVeagh, of Franklin, MacVeagh & Company. Clarence Dewitt, the old Yale football player, is to manage this new company. A large up-to-date factory has been recently opened and the trade name of "Boulevard" for the cigarettes has been adopted.

New Hazardville Warehouse Opened

"Comfort and convenience" was the slogan which I. D. Woodworth held before his eyes when planning his new tobacco warehouse at Hazardville, Conn. That this has been strictly adhered to is testified by the new building, which is a two-story and basement structure, one hundred and fifty feet long and forty-eight feet wide. It is not only well-lighted during the day, but is equipped with electric lights as well. In addition to this important feature of a tobacco warehouse, an elevator has been installed together with those features necessary for convenience of employes. The new building is supplied with two sweat rooms, where the tobacco is kept when cased. The opening of the warehouse was celebrated recently by a dance held in a large room on the second floor, the guests numbering between three and four hundred. Mr. Woodworth employs about one hundred and twenty-five people.

Galena Cigar Company Succeeding

A little more than three years ago, at Galena, Ill., John McHugh established himself in the cigar manufacturing business. His first brand was known as the "Educator". This found a quick sale with the local trade. The following August Mr. McHugh associated with him George Williams, the firm then becoming known as the Galena Cigar Company. The business has steadily grown until today a nice wholesale manufacturing business is enjoyed. Having succeeded along this line, Messrs. McHugh and Williams opened a retail store in connection with their factory, installing a full line of tobaccos and smokers' articles. Their popular 5-cent brand is known as the "Smokrite", this having a good distribution throughout the northwestern part of Illinois. Their "Lord Kenmore" is a 10-cent cigar and is said to be one of the best of its kind.

"Turkish" Tobacco Now a Misnomer

When the war between England and Turkey was announced the tobacconists and their customers immediately clamored for a boycott of Turkish cigarettes. A tobacco expert soon cleared the atmosphere and saved the day for "Turkish" cigarettes.

As was pointed out in a recent issue of "The Tobacco World," the choicest Turkish tobacco comes from the provinces of Xanthi and Cavalla. The former is now under Bulgarian control, while Greece dominates the latter. Greece, Bulgaria and Servia now control a large part of the Turkish leaf provinces.

Another Lovera "Banderos" Prize-Winner

United Profit Sharing Corporation Opens in Philadelphia

Early in January the extensive premises 809-811 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., formerly occupied by John and James Dobson, the well known carpet people, will be occupied as a premium station by the United Profit Sharing Corporation. Upon the completion of the alterations which are contemplated the premises, it is said, will be not only the largest distributing point of the United Profit Sharing Corporation, but the most important as well.

So enormous has been the growth of this business dealing with the interchanging and redemption of coupons, that it has been decided to open this latest station in Philadelphia. Relative to the offices of the United Profit Sharing Corporation, this organization was formed to take over the coupon business of the United Cigar Stores Company, which will issue coupons interchangeable with those accompanying a considerable aggregation of trade-marked goods bearing a national reputation.

Portuondo Factory Working Overtime

The arrival of late orders for special Christmas packages compelled the J. F. Portuondo factory, 1111 Sansom Street, to keep their employes overtime a part of last week. Shipments could not be made as fast as the orders were received, but the firm have guaranteed that all goods will be shipped in time for holiday business. The perfecto shape is in greatest demand, but conchas and especials are receiving their quota of attention.

"Charles Denby" Man In Nashville

The Matthews-Phillips Company, Nashville, Tenn., wholesale grocers and local distributors of the "Charles Denby," manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., was recently visited by Mr. Patterson, special representative of the "Charles Denby" factory, who made that company his headquarters while working among the local trade. Mr. Denby was fortunate in securing several nice accounts while in Nashville.

J. H. Weller, known to the trade by his connection as Western and Southern representative of George W. Nichols & Company, New York, has severed his connection from that company. Mr. Weller has not yet announced his plans for the future.

"44" Cigar Company's President in Havana

Mr. B. Lipschutz, president of the "44" Cigar Company, together with Mrs. Lipschutz, recently celebrated their Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary with a trip to Cuba.

While in Havana, Mr. Lipschutz combined business with pleasure, and it is reported that he has made some very fine leaf purchases for the factory.

Sale of Leaf Tobacco in Norway

Official statistics of Norway's imports of leaf tobacco in 1913 have not yet been made public, but from figures gathered for this consulate it appears that the imports of such tobacco at Christiania last year amounted to 3,158,488 pounds, of which the United States supplied 1,830,864 pounds, Germany 972,719, the Netherlands 236,397, the United Kingdom 115,826, and France 2682.

There are no jobbers in leaf tobacco in Norway. The largest manufacturers here send their Norwegian representatives either to the plantation or to the centers where tobacco is sold to obtain supplies for their respective factories. However, the bulk of the trade is conducted through local import agents, who call regularly on purchasers throughout Norway. Such agents sell only to responsible firms, they being in position to know the financial standing of their customers at all times. It would seem that American growers could best build up a trade with this market by appointing an agent in Christiania to represent them here. An attempt to establish a trade with local manufacturers by direct correspondence would probably meet with little success.

Lists of Christiania import agents and of manufacturers using leaf tobacco, also of mercantile agencies from whom credit ratings can be obtained, may be had upon application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce or its branch offices.—Daily Consular Reports.

Joe Byrnes, who represents Gonzalez & Sanchez in certain of the Southern States, was a recent visitor to Jacksonville, Fla., where he declared that his business for November past was the biggest he ever did. The "Gonzalez & Sanchez" products are being shown in Jacksonville in holiday packings and from all reports are proving good sellers.

We join with the "Springfield Republican" in suggesting that one should be extremely guarded in saying that a certain percentage of crime is caused either by drugs or by cigarettes.

Smoking and Crime

It is certainly obvious that the use of cigarettes is not confined to the criminal classes—far from it—and it is certainly most unjust to those who use cigarettes, who cannot by any possible methods of deduction be included in the criminal classes, to intimate that their use is a mark of degeneracy or crime.

The cigarette, when excessively used, may have a detrimental effect, the same is true of the cigar or pipe for that matter. The medical profession pretty well agrees that smoking is largely a matter of the individual.

The study of crime indicates that there is much more than drugs or smoking back of it. A man is not a thief because he smokes cigarettes. The clubman who smokes his cigarettes is not referred to as being particularly vice-ridden, but the person of unwholesome associates who smokes cigarettes is generally looked upon as being four jumps from jail.

Environment, hereditary tendencies, home influences and a score of other reasons complicate the study of vice and its relation to crime. The young crook is always referred to as "an inveterate cigarette smoker." We also know that there are thousands of successful business men who smoke cigarettes and who have as yet shown no inclination to rob a bank or shoot someone.

We therefore join in suggesting that one should be "extremely guarded in drawing general conclusions, and particularly in interpreting figures in terms of cause and consequence."

* * *

Because the financial gain of 1914 has not been equal to or greater than that of 1913 should be no cause for discouragement to those who may be tempted to feel downcast. To have been a winner in 1914 means something. Commercial and financial perils and political upheavals have made a devious and dangerous path for the unwary business man to tread.

A Christmas Thought

This has been a year where cumulative values have made themselves felt. The efforts of previous years backed up by the same persistent efforts in the face of discouragement have brought more than one firm home a winner in the race of the year. To those who have succeeded in greater accomplishments than ever before we offer our heartiest congratulations. We repeat—it means something to be a winner in 1914.

Regardless of how the year has gone, IT HAS GONE—let us look to the promise of the New Year.

This is the season of Christmas when the spirit of Peace and Goodwill is abroad in all its might and power Let us show a grateful heart and give deep thanks that we alone of all the great nations of the earth are at peace with the rest of the world.

No failure or discouragement should be so great as to make us forget the blessing of Peace. With many nations in arms, the flower of European manhood under the sod of in hospitals, a million homes desolate and an entire nation homeless, surely we are not to weigh financial loss or gain against mankind's greatest gift, the blessing of Peace.

* * *

An Indiana editor with a peculiar sense of humor has recently made comment on the possibilities of establishing an English market for American-made cigar bands.

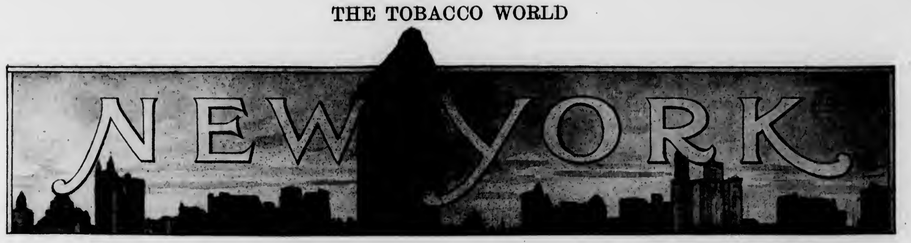
Cigar Bands Are Important

This editor states that the success of such a plan should be a cause for rejoicing, as it would enable the American smoker to buy cigars without bands and to feel at the same time, that the loss of the sale of cigar bands to him would be taken care of by the new market in England.

As a matter of fact, the cigar band is the greatest protection the consumer has. Unbanded cigars continually suffer by the work of box stuffers, but the banded cigar is seldom, if ever, attacked in this manner.

It follows that the higher-priced cigars have the better grade of cigar bands, but it adds very little to the actual cost of the cigar, and the consumer who is used to paying twenty-five or fifty cents for a cigar, knows that he is getting his money's worth so long as the cigar can be identified by its particular band.

The label and cigar band industry in the United States totals millions of dollars. It works for the protection of the smoker as nothing else that has yet been invented can do.



"Fifty-Six" Christmas Packing Popular

THE success of the "56" cigarette 100 Christmas packing has proven to be as popular this year as it was last and the beautiful white and gold cover with its two long rows of fifty plain tips and fifty cork tips within is making an irresistible appeal to discriminating cigarette smokers all over the country.

Robert Appleton, in charge of the selling end, states that the sales on this special packing have exceeded his anticipations. Certainly this Xmas special of the "56" is one of the handsomest on the market and one cannot help but fall a victim to the lure of this beautiful packing.

"Royal Heads"—New Offering of S. Monday & Sons

"Royal Heads," a little cigar, in an attractive package, selling seven for fifteen cents, is the title of a new brand of little cigars just placed on the market by the firm of S. Monday & Sons, Brooklyn, N. Y., reputed to be the most extensive independent manufacturers of little cigars in the United States. The new product carries a shade grown Connecticut wrapper, with about seventy-five per cent. Havana filler. "Royal Heads," numbering one hundred packages to the carton, should prove an attractive offering.

"Fifth Avenue" and "Cosmos" Brands in Demand

A recent visit to the factory of I. Krinsky in Brooklyn, N. Y., found the factory unusually active with a heavy call for "Fifth Avenue" and "Cosmos" cigarettes, two of the firm's leading brands. The unusually high grade of Turkish tobacco which the firm has been putting in its new "Cosmos" brand has resulted in a heavy call for the same, and the popularity of the brand is constantly on the increase. The trade will, no doubt, be interested to learn that the Krinsky firm will soon place a new five-cent brand of cigarettes on the market. It will be manufactured in both the plain and cork tip. The name will be announced shortly.

T. F. Gray Goes With Ruy Lopez Company

Thomas F. Gray, for many years connected with the firm of Garcia, Pando & Company, will cease his connection with that firm at the end of the present month, and on January first will take on the representation of the line of the Ruy Lopez Company. Mr. Gray's territory will cover east of Buffalo and Pittsburgh. Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington will be included.

Philip Morris Birthday Club Meets

The annual dinner of the Philip Morris Birthday Club was held last Saturday evening at the Wool Club, West Broadway and Franklin Streets, where two hundred and fifty guests were present. Mr. William Curtiss Thompson, of London, president of the English concern, was among those present.

M. Rodriguez to Open Cigar Factory

According to a recent report, M. Rodriguez, formerly a member of the firm of Rodriguez & Teijeiro, plans to open a cigar factory in New York after the first of the year. Mr. Rodriguez has recently been a visitor in Key West.

"Lord Romeo" Cigars Going Well.

A RECENT visit to the Kraus Cigar Company at Seventy-fifth Street and Avenue A, revealed the fact that there is no let-up in the call for "Lord Romeo" cigars, manufactured by this company and packed seven in a box retailing for fifteen cents.

The "Lord Romeo" package is having quite a heavy call throughout eastern territory and its popularity is attested to by the fact that a number of other manufacturers are already putting out similar shaped cigars similarly packed and retailing at the same price.

Mr. Kraus told a representative of "The Tobacco World" that this line of goods is repeating nicely and that the results of the campaign on "Lord Romeo" have been satisfactory.

This company manufactures a number of other brands of cigars of a high grade.

Good Call on Manila Cigars

Sidney J. Freeman, 123 Liberty Street, representing Kuenzle & Streiff, Inc., of Manila, P. I., reports that trade on these goods is holding up well during the holiday season.

Among the brands manufactured by this firm are "Magallanes", "La Union", "Puntacima", "El Tamarindo" and "La Hondradez".

American Sumatra Tobacco Dividend

The September dividend of 3½% on American Sumatra Tobacco Company preferred stock that was deferred until February 1 for payment on account of business conditions, is to be anticipated, owing to the current improvement, and will be paid on January 2 to stock of record December 20.

Heard on Broadway

Julius Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, is planning to go south in a few days to inspect the extensive plantations of the company. He has recently returned from a short visit to Connecticut.

J. M. Diaz, president of the Preferred Havana Tobacco Company, is expected to arrive in this city for the Christmas holidays. He has recently been visiting in Havana and will call at Tampa on his way north.

Simon Batt & Company, report a good call on the "La Verdad" brand. H. C. Alces, of the sales staff, is back in town and together with the other salesmen will take a vacation until the first of the year.

Mr. Davis, of S. I. Davis & Company, is reported to be convalescing at his home and is expected to be in his office shortly after the first of the year. The products of the Davis factory had had a splendid year and preparations are now under way for 1915 campaign.

CIGAR PRODUCTION FOR 1913 SHOWS BIG INCREASE OVER 1912

have taken advantage of this situation by selling leaf tobacco to unscrupulous manufacturers, reporting a less quantity sold than is actually delivered and taking credit as shrinkage for the excess delivered and not reported, and also by carrying fictitious balances forward in their books 59 from quarter to quarter. In the latter case, such leaf dealer may disappear, leaving no trace of the tobacco, which is manufactured into cigars and finds its way to consumers without being tax paid. Therefore, the recommendation made in the two previous annual reports is again urged—namely, that every dealer in leaf tobacco should be required by law to give bond, the penalty of which should be increased according to the quantum of business proposed to be done, and which penalty should be fixed by the collector of the district, with right of appeal by dealer to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in respect to the amount thereof. Every dealer in leaf tobacco should be required to make a true inventory of stock on the first day of January of each year, and power should be given the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to call upon dealers in leaf tobacco to show cause against assessment for tax on tobacco not accounted for and to make such assessments where explanations are not satisfactory. Dealers in leaf tobacco should be required to render report of transactions quarterly, monthly, or for such periods and in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall prescribe.

Manufacturers of cigars, manufacturers of tobacco, dealers in leaf tobacco, and retail dealers in leaf tobacco should be required by law to register only on commencement of business and not annually thereafter on the first day of July. It has been pointed out in recommendations made in the two previous annual reports that this will relieve collectors of internal revenue of considerable unnecessary labor and will effect a considerable saving in printing and stationery.

The increase in the number of cigarettes manufactured and removed tax paid during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, does not quite equal that pointed out in the previous annual report; but is extraordinary, amounting to 2,132,895,976 cigarettes, the receipts from the sale of stamps during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, showing tax payment on 16,409,667,136 cigarettes.

INTERESTING COMPARISONS OF THE YEARS 1912-1913

Following are some interesting figures regarding the cigar and tobacco industry, taken from the report and compared with the same figures for 1912:

The four States producing the greatest number of cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand and the production of each during the calendar year 1913 are as follows:

	1913	1912
Pennsylvania	2,103,080,684	1,962,460,574

Ohio	711,142,443	655,376,164
New Jersey	546,018,599	499,343,142

The two districts showing the largest production of cigars are:

	1913	1912
Ninth Pennsylvania	904,611,037	848,493,441
First Pennsylvania	810,475,456	748,555,111

The States showing the greatest production of little cigars (weighing not more than three pounds per thousand) are:

	1913	1912
Maryland	478,545,850	521,646,210
Pennsylvania	236,486,050	244,610,690
New Jersey	145,145,440	*

The greatest production by districts is as follows:

	1913	1912
Maryland	478,545,850	521,646,210
First Pennsylvania	235,833,680	243,734,840
Fifth New Jersey	145,145,440	76,427,940
First New York	40,915,620	§

The States of New York, Virginia, North Carolina, New Jersey, Louisiana, California, and Pennsylvania, in the order named, show the greatest production of cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds per thousand:

	1913	1912
New York	7,843,099,672	7,085,728,676
Virginia	2,628,466,670	2,586,596,180
North Carolina	2,004,921,000	1,547,268,500

California	247,087,581	161,224,510
Pennsylvania	108,869,556	109,479,475

The three districts showing the greatest production of little cigarettes are:

	1913	1912
First New York	2,683,856,360	2,491,654,128
Second Virginia	2,624,719,670	2,578,487,780
Third New York	2,585,351,332	2,332,179,923

New York produced the greatest number of large cigarettes in the Third and Second Districts as follows:

	1913	1912
Third New York	10,158,560	10,599,130
Second New York	3,403,040	3,588,760

*Virginia was third in 1912, with 132,660,630.

§Sixth District of Virginia was third in 1912, with 128,312,980. Fifth New Jersey was fourth.

GOVERNMENT TO HELP GROWERS

Experimenters to Co-operate With State College—Slight Increase in Federal Tobacco Appropriation

ACCORDING to a news report, funds are assured to enable the United States Department of Agriculture to continue for another year its active co-operation with the Pennsylvania State College authorities in conducting tobacco growing experiments and demonstrations in Lancaster County and other cigar tobacco communities in Pennsylvania.

The appropriation for Federal tobacco experiments was reduced $6600 last year, but this year the amount to be appropriated by Congress will be increased from $25,000 to $27,000, thus enabling the Washington authorities to spend an amount equal to that appropriated by the Pennsylvania Legislature, which was $3000 per annum.

Representative W. W. Griest, who originally secured the co-operative work begun in 1909, has looked after the appropriation annually and last year protested against the action of the Federal department when the tobacco appropriation was decreased, while great increases were made in the appropriations for cotton and other farm staples. Mr. Griest has been assured that farmers, tobacco packers and manufacturers are co-operating in the scientific research made by the experts of the Federal and State Governments and it is expected that the experiments will in a few years result in the solution of some of the most difficult problems which confront the cigar tobacco industry. While the work now being done costs but little compared with the great financial value of the tobacco crop, it is thought large financial benefits will ultimately result, especially to the growers.

"Pilgrims" Visit Waitt & Bond Cigar Factory

There were about a hundred members of the Pilgrim Publicity Association of Boston in the party on the "sixth little journey," which took them on a most interesting tour of the Blackstone Cigar Factory of Waitt & Bond, Inc., in that city recently. The party was received by President William E. Waterman, Vice President Charles B. Waterman and Marcus Conlan, advertising manager of the company. The girls employed in the factory were enjoying a dancing party, which is provided each Monday by the company, and some of the Pilgrims took part. This was the first time that men have participated in these Monday parties, as the men employed in the factory are not admitted.

The Pilgrims were divided into groups of fifteen. Headed by officials of the factory, these parties were conducted through the establishment. They saw the bunches of leaves as they are shipped to the factory and witnessed the process of manufacturing from that time till the leaves came from the hands of expert makers in attractive cigars. One of the officials said that this is the largest union cigar factory in the world. It has an output of sixty million cigars a year. The party was impressed by the excellent conditions provided the workmen.

After the tour of the factory luncheon was served in one of the rooms on the second floor. Major P. F. O'Keefe, of the Pilgrims, presided and Harry S. Rothschild, of New York, told the party of conditions in the tobacco industry. A cabaret was also provided.

Emil Judell, of the well known jobbing house of H. L. Judell & Company, of San Francisco, was recently registered at the Knickerbocker. He visited Tampa prior to his stop in this city.

The States of North Carolina, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, New Jersey, and Michigan, in the order named, were the States reporting the largest manufacture of both chewing and smoking tobacco, the quantity manufactured being as follows:

	1913	1912
North Carolina	104,329,283	96,546,019
Missouri	76,130,566	73,216,666
Ohio	42,545,140	41,895,848
Kentucky	36,364,056	35,646,610
New Jersey	33,270,930	35,114,631
Michigan	27,744,025	25,578,282

The districts producing the largest quantity were:

	1913	1912
First Missouri	76,019,849	73,086,059
Fifth North Carolina	73,995,993	61,835,494
Fifth New Jersey	33,252,872	35,098,429
First Ohio	31,512,083	32,729,121
Fifth Kentucky	31,431,744	.....
Fourth North Carolina	30,333,290	34,710,525

Hillier & Thomas File Bankruptcy Petition

Hillier & Thomas, the well known cigar manufacturers of this city, located at 112 Pine Street, have recently filed a petition in bankruptcy showing liabilities of $43,532.92, with assets approximating about $9000.

The liabilities include $40,197.92 in unsecured claims; notes, etc., $125; secured by law, $210; secured accounts, $3000.

The assets are: Money due on open accounts, $7702.84; bills receivable, $125; stock in trade, $516.90; bank balance, $3.20; machinery and tools, $1165.12; other property, $4.65.

Part Pay For Black Patch Tobacco

Paducah, Ky.

The tobacco markets of the western district of Kentucky and Tennessee have been open for trading for about a week, at Paducah, Owensboro, Henderson and Mayfield in Kentucky, and at Clarksville and Union City in Tennessee, and other smaller receiving centers in both States. The houses at Hopkinsville and several other points opened Wednesday. Trading during the past week has been of a nature never before seen in the "black patch." Buyers, in most instances unprepared with a market for their purchases, have simply accepted the tobacco, put it in storage and given part payment, with the understanding that when it was sold the balance will be paid. There are a few exceptions to this rule in the case of buyers who are purchasing direct for a government, shipments to which can probably be made in the near future.

The taking of tobacco in any form and under any conditions is an upset to earlier calculations, which were that there would be no sales this year. The result has been brought about only by the heartiest co-operation of bankers, who have agreed to advance all possible funds to buyers actively engaged in buying. This arrangement prevails in Paducah, in Owensboro and in Clarksville and has proved a great stimulus.

The English buyers have announced that they intend to make shipments within the next forty days. The chief obstacle encountered by these buyers at present is securing tobacco at a price that makes its handling yield even a slight profit, many producers being inclined to hold their product on the theory that tobacco like other commodities should bring high prices.

"MIKE WRIGHT" BACK IN SEATTLE AGAIN

Factory Opened for the City's Old-Time Favorite—Citizens Form Combination to Supply Demands of the Northwest Territory

Seattle, Wash., December 7, 1914.

BACKED by a combination that intends to make the "Mike Wright" cigar known throughout the Puget Sound country, the Mike Wright Company has established headquarters in the Trimble Building, at 1810 Westlake Avenue. Mike Wright himself is back and has Albert A. Piller associated with him in the new company. Mr. Piller has had thirty-two years' experience as a cigarmaker and in addition is a prominent figure in labor circles. The new Mike Wright Company will manufacture under union conditions and its products will carry the widely-known blue label, which guarantees that the cigar is made by union workmen.

The new factory is now turning out about 100,000 cigars a month with a force of thirty hands and the output is showing a steady increase.

Mike Wright has recovered his health and is again in harness to bring the famous "Mike Wright" cigar back to its old popularity. President Wright has invited the public to inspect his plant that they may see for themselves the kind of tobacco used and the conditions under which the "Mike Wright" cigar is made.

The "Mike Wright" cigar is a clear Havana, of exceptionally high grade, made of very fine tobacco. For a "bit" cigar, it holds as high a place as anything made in America. The "Mike Wright" staple is known as the hundred-dollar size, for it is sold to the trade at one hundred dollars a thousand. The company is now getting in its samples of the 1914 crop, which have been submitted subject to approval.

Seattle offers perhaps the best market of any city of its size in the world for clear Havana cigars. The new factory will not only supply the Puget Sound country, but it will reach out for trade into Eastern Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Northern California.

NORTHWEST.

"La Integridad" Has Call In Portland, Ore.

A big demand in local territory is being experienced by the Campbell-Frank Cigar Company, Portland, Ore., on the holiday packings of "La Integridad" cigars. This company states that the "Tirador," a new Broadleaf cigar retailing at 10 cents straight, and which they plan to distribute throughout the Northwest, is proving a popular attraction, the first shipment having been sold. They also report heavy selling on "Rosadoras" and "Havana Tastes" packed twenty-five and twelve in a box.

Detroit Show Case Company Has Good Year

Report has been received from the Detroit Show Case Company that they are about to close what they feel has been a very prosperous year, despite the fact that there is so much talk prevalent relative to mighty hard times. The report is to the effect that while business for 1914 does not equal that of 1913, which was a decidedly good year, still it is not far behind. It is announced that this company is preparing to offer to the trade, a show case to be used by cigar dealers for the display of candies, etc.

Cincinnati Man Makes New Connection

John Ebrenz, Jr., who for the past several years has been identified with the Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company, has accepted a responsible position with E. R. Toe Water, the Cincinnati buyer for Liggett & Myers.

STORES PREPARED FOR HOLIDAY DEMANDS

Domestic and Clear Havana Lines Compete for Trade—Pipe Displays Mingle With Holiday Packings

THE retail cigar dealers located in the central shopping district along Market and Chestnut Streets received the first installment of their holiday trade on Saturday of last week.

Weather conditions of the earlier part of the week doubtless had some effect on the week-end business, as many of the stores report a steady buying demand during afternoon and early evening.

Terry & Duncan, at Tenth and Chestnut Streets, as usual are displaying every kind of pipe, from the imitation briar at two bits up to and including the Calabash and gold-banded meerschaum with case. One portion of the store has been devoted exclusively to these goods and the customer has little difficulty in securing just the article desired.

The Acker stores, at Twelfth and Chestnut, and Twelfth and Market, have very attractive displays of cigars and cigarettes, which range from the small package of ten to the packages of fifty and one hundred. Aside from their own private packings, a choice selection of domestic, Tampa and Havana made goods can be noticed.

The stores of the M. J. Dalton Company, specially noted for their clear Havana lines, are showing many of the usual holiday packings in their stores, at 111 South Thirteenth and at Fifth and Chestnut Streets, and the many clubs which this firm supplies swell their sales to a very gratifying sum.

The Manhattan Cigar Company, 111 South Broad Street, have an attractive window display, wherein can be seen most of the widely known clear Havana goods, as well as products of some of the local manufacturers.

The Mitchell-Fletcher Company stores, at Chestnut and Twelfth Streets, have specialized on some of their private label packages, but the clear Havana lines are not overlooked.

Yahn & McDonnell throughout their stores are featuring Tampa made cigars and their own private brands. Cigar and cigarette cases, pipes and a full line of smokers' articles are also placed advantageously for the customers' inspection.

Waterloo, Iowa, Firm Warns Against Poor Cigars

A jobbing cigar and tobacco house in Waterloo, Ia., has come to the front with a warning to its customers against purchasing from the transient salesman who offers cigars for cash.

It appears that many dealers in that section have recently been visited by salesmen who claim to be selling clear Havana cigars. It is said that they will indicate two or three in a bundle which turn out to be excellent, but the rest are said to be quite inferior. It is also claimed that these salesmen represent that the cigars which they are selling can be exchanged through the local house for a staple brand in case they fail to sell.

The warning advises the dealers to examine the boxes for the importation stamp when they are tempted to buy. As all such sales are for cash the dealer has no recourse in case the cigars prove to be of inferior quality.

The Harry C. Jacobs Company, Dayton, O., distributor for the popular "Rose-O-Cuba," manufactured by the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa., states that this brand is well liked by the local trade, and that he is much pleased by the fact that the sales on the "Rose-O-Cuba" are showing an increase.

San Francisco

Retail Cigar Dealers Elect Officers—Cigar Trade Anxious for Opening of Exposition—Exodus of Cigar Men to Southern Part of State

San Francisco, December 5.

DECEMBER has started out rainy in California; but, while this makes getting about a little disagreeable, especially for traveling men, it adds a lot to the prospects for a good winter and spring sale of cigars in San Francisco and throughout the State. The holding off of the usual fall rains until so late a date had begun to cause some uneasiness for fear that a dry year would be added to the war scare and financial depression. The rains have, however, been general; and there has been a general revival in winter activity throughout the farming sections as a result. Cigar men who have been out on their travels since the beginning of the rains, note a better feeling and larger orders in many places.

There seems to be quite an exodus of San Francisco cigar men for Southern California this week, due party to the weather and partly to the presence in the South of the usual crowd of winter tourists. H. H. Manley, head of the San Francisco office of the American Cigar Company, is now in Los Angeles on one of his regular trips to that city; G. R. Webb, Pacific Coast representative of the San Martin & Leon Company, is also in Los Angeles, and will visit other Southern towns before coming North again; and Arthur Meyer, factory representative of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is just leaving for a visit to his connections in that territory. T. Cohn, representing the Flor de Mendel, has already completed his trip through the South and is now somewhere in the Rocky Mountain section of the country.

San Francisco cigar men have been shaking hands this week with M. J. Sideman, who for many years was one of the leading wholesale cigar men of San Francisco. Mr. Sideman was formerly senior partner of the firm of Sideman, Lachman & Company, who were in the wholesale business here during twenty years preceding 1903. Mr. Sideman's last visit to San Francisco was in 1906, when he happened to be present at the earthquake and fire of April, 1906. He has now returned to stay, and now has plans under way to engage in business here.

Emil Judell has completed his final trip over his territory in Southern Oregon; and, with Coast affairs in good shape, has left for the East for a visit to the H. L. Judell & Company connections on the Atlantic Seaboard. Mr. Judell found his Oregon friends in pretty good spirits notwithstanding the fact that the State had gone dry.

George Weider, a retail cigar man of Woodland, Cal., has been visiting the local trade during the last few days. He reports that prospects in his vicinity have been vastly improved by the rains, as well as by the easing up in money matters.

At a meeting of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, called for the purpose of electing officers to fill the positions left vacant by the resignations of those who chose to put in "Scrip" premium offers at their stands, the following were elected: R. E. Donahue, president; Fred Prince, first vice-president; J. C. Connor, second vice-president. Bert Marx and Joseph Thorpe were added to the Executive Committee, and J. Ward to the Board of Trustees.

R. H. Sawyer has bought out the business of Max Schlueter.

The well-known Crystal Palace Cigar Store, at 19 Kearny Street, has passed into the hands of Tobe Rinaldo, a former resident of San Francisco, but more recently in the retail business at Santa Cruz, Cal. Mr. Rinaldo knows the trade from A to Z; and, as the Crystal Palace has one of the prize locations of the city, success seems as certain as such things can be.

With the opening of the Panama-Pacific Exposition only two months off, the cigar trade is turning its attention to the Exposition and the effect of its opening on the local trade. In the Exposition itself, the buildings of M. A. Gunst & Company and of H. L. Judell & Company are nearing completion and are promised to be in full readiness by the time the grounds are thrown open to the public. In both cases rooms will be provided in which the trade visitors from the East and from foreign countries will be able to make themselves at home, write letters, rest and read the trade papers. There will also be a liberal featuring of the special lines distributed by the two houses. So far as now known, no other San Francisco wholesalers are counting on securing cigar concessions on the fair grounds.

Advices from San Diego show that the Panama-California Exposition at that city is practically complete already, and all reports concerning it are of the most favorable sort. The tourist influx at Los Angeles, San Diego and other Southern California points is now beginning, and should be at its height by January 1st, when the San Diego show is opened. As the San Francisco Exposition is not to be opened until February 20th, it is expected that the first two months of the San Diego Exposition will be among the busiest it will have. Cigar men report that the Southern cities are improving rapidly from a business point of view.

James A. Thomas, of Shanghai, China, managing director in China for the British-American Tobacco Company, has arrived in San Francisco for a short stay before leaving for his Oriental post. Mr. Thomas believes that the opportunity is at hand for a splendid increase in the trade between America and the Oriental lands.

Proprietors of retail cigar stores at the foot of Market Street are deeply interested in the proposition to run a bridge over The Embarcadero to the foot of Market Street. The stands at the foot of Market Street are among the most costly in the city from a rental point of view, and there is naturally some uneasiness as to a possible shifting of the immense pedestrian travel which supplies the bulk of the trade. If the proposed bridge carries the ferry arrivals any distance up Market to a point past the corner cigar stores, there will doubtless be a big drop in values. The importance of this can be realized by remembering that one of these microscopic stores (less than eight feet square) recently rented for something more than $450 per month.

"Gene" J. Stolz, Western representative of the Cortez Cigar Company, and J. McGinn, a well-known city and traveling salesman for cigar lines, have united their fortunes and have organized the McGinn-Stolz Company, to act as Pacific Coast representatives for Eastern lines. As a start, the lines to be carried are: "Cortez," the "El Tello," "Bella Mundo," "Habeneros" and "Ruy Suarez." The office of the new company will be in the Marvin Building, San Francisco.

ALLEN.

John E. Tuckett & Son Suspend

The well-known tobacco manufacturing firm of John E. Tuckett & Son, Chicago Street and Clark Avenue, Freeport, Ill., has been forced to suspend operations owing to the business depression, according to a recent report from that city.

This well-known factory was organized in Danville, Va., in 1888 by the late John E. Tuckett.

December Crop Report on Tobacco

The report of the Bureau of Crop Estimates on the acreage, production and value of tobacco up to December 1st, shows the acreage to be 1,223,500 in 1914 as against 1,216,100 in 1913, and 1,225,800 at the same period in 1912.

The production per acre is averaged at 845.7 pounds on December 1, 1914, as against 784.3 pounds for 1913 and 785.5 at that period in 1912. The total production for the same period in 1914 is estimated at 1,034,679,000 pounds as against 953,734,000 in 1913 and 962,855,000 in 1912 at the corresponding period.

The average price per pound is 9.8 cents, which is below 1913, when the average price was 12.8 cents, and also below 1912, when the average was 10.8 cents.

The enormous production, together with existing conditions, has reduced the value of the crop to figures considerably under that of both 1912 and 1913. The valuation for the 1914 crop is placed at $101,411,000 as against $122,481,000 in 1913 and $104,063,000 in 1912.

"Say So" to Be Launched January 1st

"Say So" is the title of a new six-cent cigar of distinctive quality which will be launched January 1st, 1915, by the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa. This new brand, which is encased in a sanitary package (five cigars to the package), will be sold five cigars for a quarter. It is stated at the factory that they have received quite a number of orders on the new product and that a sum exceeding a million cigars will be shipped the first of the year. The "Say So" is composed of clear imported Havana table shorts.

Reorders on "7-20-4" Coming in Rapidly

If R. G. Sullivan, the Manchester, N. H., manufacturer, ever had any doubt relative to the popularity of his "7-20-4" cigar, such doubt has been dispelled by the rapidity with which reorders are coming from his distributors for the 1/40th package of this brand made especially for Christmas patronage. The factory is compelled to work overtime to keep up with the demand, and reports from distributors are to the effect that the "7-20-4" Christmas Special could, with profit, be marketed ordinarily.

Tobacco Company Officer Says "Business Better"

H. M. Whitaker, of San Francisco, a vice-president of the American Tobacco Company, made St. Louis tobacco men feel better when he was there on a visit recently, by telling them business conditions all over the country are showing a marked improvement.

He said that the European markets will have to depend more or less upon American products, and the demand for American-made goods will keep the factories busy.

In his estimation the question of prosperity is simply a problem of demand and supply. The war creates the demand for American goods.

An Ocean Hold-Up

On a recent voyage from Liverpool to New York, the steamer "Ansonia," while nearing mid-ocean, about three o'clock in the morning and apparently the only liner riding the waves in that particular place at that particular time, was suddenly surprised to find her decks the focus of a brilliant stream of light. Halting, she perceived in the gloom the faint form of a British man-'o-war.

"Got any smoking tobacco?" came from the warship.

The reply was in the affirmative. Cigars and tobacco in goodly quantity were placed in a water tight receptacle and passed over the side. A boat from the warship picked them up.

Soon the voice in the darkness bellowed its thanks and the warship steamed away.

Winfrey-Parker Cigar Company Reorganized

Following bankruptcy proceedings, the affairs of the Winfrey-Parker Cigar Company, Tacoma, Wash., have been lifted from the custody of the receiver placed in control by the Federal Bankruptcy Court by a number of Tacoma business men, who have taken the concern under their patronage and reorganized the same. Under the new regime, J. E. Winfrey is retained as manager, Clarence Parker having severed his connection with the company. The former factory of the Winfrey-Parker Company will be utilized as the present quarters of the company, and the brand names given publicity through their affiliation with the old company will be carried. We quote Mr. Winfrey as follows:

"The company has been reorganized and is now owned and operated by Tacoma business men," Mr. Winfrey declared Saturday. "We expect to have a large number of cigarmakers employed and intend to make this one of the large cigar manufacturing establishments of the city. It is not generally known that the climatic conditions of the Puget Sound country are ideal for the keeping of high grade tobacco leaf and the manufacturing of high grade Havana cigars.

"The atmosphere contains just sufficient moisture to retain the flavor of the tobacco and to prevent its deterioration by dust, dryness and parasites. Tobacco stored in Puget Sound warehouses keeps better than in any other section of the country. When this fact becomes generally known, it will mean that some day the Puget Sound country will become one of the greatest cigar manufacturing sections in America."

Tobacco-Cutting Machines in New Greece

As previously reported, the manufacture of tobacco in New Greece is no longer in the hands of the French syndicate known as Regie Cointeressee des Tabacs de 'lEmpire Ottoman. Following the advent of free competition in the manufacture of tobacco, but under direct government control, some sixty concerns engaged in this business. Most of these, however, possess very small capital. Up to the present eleven tobacco-cutting machines have been placed in operation. These machines vary in capacity from 650 to 1300 pounds per working day of ten hours. Ten of these cutters are of English origin and cost from $450 to $850 each. More cutting machines are required.

The manufacture of cigarettes is done entirely by hand. There appears to be an opening for the introduction of cigarette manufacturing machinery. This consulate has an inquiry from a firm for catalogues, prices, etc., of machinery suitable for the manufacture and printing of cardboard cigarette boxes. They now have an antiquated machine of German origin and are contemplating the refitting of their plant. All kinds of machinery entering into the manufacture of tobacco may find consideration by the firms mentioned in the accompanying list (which may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce or its branch offices). —Daily Consular Reports.

New England Tobacco Company Incorporated

William Rubin, Morris Jacobs, Rebecca Rubin and Edith Jacobs are named as the incorporators of the New England Tobacco Company, which recently filed with the Secretary of State through its attorneys, certificate of incorporation for the purpose of doing business in New Haven, Conn. The company will manufacture and sell a cigar to retail at three for five cents, the same said to be a new feature in this territory, and as far as is known the only one outside the State of Massachusetts. The company is capitalized at $10,000, the capital stock being divided into four hundred shares, with a par value of twenty-five dollars each.

Chicago

Wm. Taussig Optimistic Over Leaf Situation—Dolan Has Stand in New Morrison Hotel—Illinois Taxpayers' Alliance to Keep Down Taxes

Chicago, December 11, 1914.

GENERAL conditions in the cigar and tobacco trade as the holiday season approaches are showing even more than the average amount of improvement which is usual at this time of the year. The box trade for the holidays has been fully up to the most optimistic expectations, according to the loop dealers.

From the first the cigar men of this city have felt that they were being subjected to an unwarranted pressure in being forced to pay additional tax on an article which is already well taxed. They thought that the automobile or some other industry which has been fattening on the national prosperity should have been included before the cigar business. As usual in such matters, though, the manufacturers have paid the tax and charged it up to profit and loss. Fortunately business has been good enough that the blow in no case has been severe enough to do any real damage, outside of injury to the feelings of the manufacturers involved.

William Taussig, of William Taussig & Company, talked in regard to the leaf tobacco situation in the West last week:

"We have had an excellent business for the past month," said Mr. Taussig, "and both orders and collections show a marked improvement as the year approaches the end. I confidently look for a good winter and spring trade. The manufacturers have been buying their stock close, and I believe that they will be ready to place large orders after the first of the new year, since it is now apparent to all that there will be no season of serious dullness this winter."

The cigar department of Reid Murdock & Company, now fully established in new quarters in the home recently erected by the big wholesale grocery concern across the Chicago River, has been rushed as usual with holiday orders this year, the demand from dealers being particularly brisk on "El Roi-Tans," "Julianas" and the several good five-cent lines handled by the department.

All of the Albert Breitung stores here have placed special window displays for the holiday trade, and some of them are among the most attractive to be found in the city. Pipes are largely featured.

Best & Russell are conducting a city-wide campaign on several of their leading brands, following the method commonly in use by the company of putting special sales ambassadors out over the city, with each one working on one brand alone, and moving from territory to territory. After the trade is worked up in one section of the city it is turned over to the regular man for that territory.

At the headquarters of A. Hussey & Company, leaf tobacco jobbers at La Salle and Lake Streets, business was reported excellent, with the extensive line of Wisconsin binders of the company in fine demand on the part of manufacturers. The company has rearranged the stock, and is making up some fine new samples for salesmen for the first of the year.

W. F. Richard, of John Staun & Company, Cincinnati, was in the city on business recently. He said that the trade of the company with the manufacturers of the South was rapidly improving owing to the fact that new channels are being found for disposing of the cotton crop, which could not be moved for a long time on account of the war.

One of the features of the past two weeks was the opening of the New Morrison Hotel, which is now one of the largest and finest places of the kind in the city. The cigar stand was one of the first departments to be in readiness when the doors were thrown open, and trade started at once. The New Morrison Hotel has been built directly east of the older and smaller building famous all over the country as the Morrison Hotel. The cigar stand privileges have been secured by John Dolan, who had the rights in the old building. Two stands will be maintained, one in the old structure, as formerly, and one in the new.

Efforts which were made last week to revive the old game of "26" were sternly suppressed by the police, who are much on the job at present owing to the serious graft charges which are being pressed against the force. Charles Mullen, William Hartley and Thomas Rainey, all dealers on the West Side of the city, were fined twenty-five dollars and cost in the municipal court on a charge of operating their game. One of the dealers said that he thought that in view of the closeness of the holiday season some latitude might be permitted to dealers to make money, particularly when it is considered that the times have been none too good.

The store of Charles La Grue, the well known West Side retailer, was entered by three armed men late one night last week. The proprietor and a clerk were forced to hold up their hands while the thieves took one hundred and fifty dollars in cash from the drawer and a number of boxes of fine cigars. They escaped in a stolen automobile.

Cigar and tobacco merchants give hearty approvals to a new organization which was formed last week at a meeting of loop business men in the Hotel La Salle. The name of the new body is the Illinois Taxpayers' Alliance, and its purpose is to protect members against excessive taxation. Offices have been taken at 220 South La Salle Street. By paying a dollar a year the member secures the benefits of the expert legal counsel employed by the organization for a year. If he believes that his taxes are too high all he has to do is to file a complaint, and the case will receive prompt attention. The new alliance fills a long felt want and the cigar men who own property subject to taxation are not hesitating in becoming members. J. L. Kesner, a former official of the Fair, one of the largest department stores here, has been elected president for the first year.

Charles Strauss, of C. H. Grote & Son, Pittsburgh, was in the city last week and called on the writer. He is finishing up a good year-end on the road, and declares that conditions in the leaf tobacco trade are getting better right along. He is of the opinion that stocks of manufacturers all over are low and that there will be a brisk buying of case lots after the first of the new year.

John Allen Underwood, the well known advertising expert, designated the trade paper as the best medium which can be used by the advertiser with a limited amount of money to spend in an address which he delivered before the Executives' Club, an exclusive business organization, at a meeting which was held here last week in the Hotel Sherman. "The retailer is the center of distribution and should therefore be the center of advertising," said Mr. Underwood. "He can best be reached by the trade paper, which eliminates all surplus readers and charges the advertisers only for the service of reaching prospective customers. Concentration is the secret of success in advertising. If a manufacturer, or a jobber, let us say, has only a small advertising appropriation, he should not try to cover too much territory. It is better to spend the amount well in only one direction than to spend it niggardly and poorly to cover a wide area. The latter practice will bring no results, while the former is a certain investment."

Martin Cigar Company Open Ninth Store

The Martin Cigar Company, Davenport, Ia., recently opened its ninth retail store, in the Masonic Temple, Third and Main Streets, that city. Picture of the same is shown herewith. Established nine years ago in a small place on West Second Street, the business of the Martin Cigar Company has flourished to such an extent that it now requires nine stores to handle the same.

The latest acquisition, the fitting up of which was personally superintended by George Martin, head of the firm, is stated to be one of the finest cigar stands in its section of the country. All the fixtures are of Circassian walnut and plate glass, the walls being painted to represent a woodland scene. The lighting system is practical and up-to-date and consists of a number of new nitrogen incandescent globes, each of which supplies several hundred candle-power, diffusing a soft white glow, which makes for an attractively lighted store.

Plate glass art signs on either side of the corner of the building, decorate the exterior, while the well-known Martin electrical sign appears above the door on the Third Street side. There were a number of visitors on the opening day, those of the gentler sex receiving a choice box of candy, while the gentlemen were favored with cigars and other souvenirs.

"Mecca" Cigarettes Set Advertising Record

The first big gun in this epoch-making "Mecca" campaign is the double page advertisement in the December 12th issue of "The Saturday Evening Post." This is the first cigarette advertisement to appear in "The Saturday Evening Post" for a number of years and marks a new era in the enormous, steadily growing popularity of "Mecca" cigarettes—the largest selling brand of cigarettes in America today.

Following the opening "Mecca" double page, full page "Mecca" advertisements and other large "Mecca" copy will appear in frequent issues of "The Saturday Evening Post," continuing the "Mecca" campaign right through 1915. Many of these advertisements will be in color—all will be striking in appearance and forceful in text.

This is the biggest, most comprehensive campaign ever done on cigarettes in any single medium and is bound to establish a new record for results. The circulation of "The Saturday Evening Post" is now over 2,000,000 weekly, which means that from six to ten million people will read every one of these "Mecca" advertisements. As the "Post's" circulation is national, dealers in every section of the country will be benefited by this "Mecca" campaign. Wide-awake dealers everywhere are already preparing to take care of a greatly increased demand for "Mecca" cigarettes.

This 1915 "Mecca" campaign is a fitting follow-up of the wonderful 1914 campaign in colors in the Sunday Magazine Sections and other mediums, that kept "Mecca" cigarettes well in front through the past year.

"Mecca" is distinctly a quality cigarette, regardless of the moderate price. "Mecca" quality appeals to millions of smokers. That the stupendous "Mecca" success has been built entirely on Quality, is a recognized trade maxim, just as "Perfect Satisfaction" is a slogan that American smokers have permanently associated with "Mecca" cigarettes.

That is why "Mecca" quality plus far-reaching, persistent, effective advertising should bring results never before approached in magnitude by any other cigarette.

Joseph B. Moos Figures in Big Real Estate Deal

One of the largest real estate deals which has been closed in the cigar and tobacco trade for some time took place last week, when Joseph B. Moos, of the J. & B. Moos Company, Chicago, Ill., purchased the leases and buildings at 139 and 145 South Fifth Avenue, just north of Adams Street. The property fronts forty-eight feet, with a depth of ninety feet, improved with two five-story buildings under leases to various tenants. Each of the leases has about ten years to run, the ground rent being $4950 per year. Mr. Moos, who also owns the Textile Building at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Adams Street, near the site of his recent purchase, is said to have paid about $100,000 for the leaseholds and buildings. The success of Mr. Moos in closing the deal is regarded with mingled admiration and envy by the other members of the trade here. The location of the buildings, which will be used, it is understood, for the purpose of the company, is considered one of the best for the cigar business in the entire city. While Fifth Avenue is spoiled, in a way, by the fact that the elevated structure of the Union Loop, with its incessant noise and dirt, passes above that thoroughfare, none the less there are probably more fine cigar stores on Fifth Avenue in proportion than on any other street in the city. Ben Straus to Sell "Optimos"

Announcement is made to the trade that Ben Straus, well-known through his connection with Perfecto Garcia & Bros., Tampa, Fla., has severed himself from that company and has allied himself with the well-known manufacturers of the famous "Optimo" cigar, namely: Santaella Y. Ca. Mr. Straus, who, it is stated, has secured an interest in the latter company, will on January 1st next, assume full control of the selling end of the business. He has an extensive acquaintance in the trade being known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and is said to be a first-class salesman in every respect. His friends, we are certain, will wish him every success.

Los Angeles

Business Shows Increase as the Year's End Approaches—Wentworth Planning Campaign on "Lovera" Cigars —W. A. Yocum Joins "Royal Banner" Forces

Los Angeles, Cal., December 6.

ONCE again the cigar man is confronted with the proposition of handling the Christmas business. Schemes, odd devices and other methods are used by the retailer in an effort to attract customers. It appears at present that the jobbers are exerting unusual force through the medium of local newspapers, which speaks well for the cigar trade in general. Business is most assuredly increasing as the Yuletide season approaches and everything points to the most profitable year-end business the wholesale and retail cigar man has experienced here.

The M. A. Gunst Company's numerous stores are displaying "General Arthur" and "Van Dyke" cigars very effectively in all their windows.

Haas-Baruch & Company report business on "Banderos" five-cent cigar on the increase. W. R. Veith is working hard on "Lovera," distributed by Haas-Baruch & Company. Ike Wentworth, representing the Jose Lovera Company in this section, is mapping out the campaign on "Lovera" cigars for the coming year. Without a doubt it will be a rousing one with Ike at the helm.

M. A. Newmark & Company inform me that business on "Don Remo" is more than satisfactory. They are working window displays with telling effect.

"Reynaldo" Duets and Economics, the new sizes put up by Luckett-Luchs-Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, and which are causing no end of discussion in the Eastern cities, are sure to cause as much noise out here. Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company received just recently several thousand of these new sizes, and they disappeared as if by magic. The consumer certainly took advantage of the fact that he was getting two ten-cent cigars for fifteen cents and two fifteen-cent cigars for twenty cents.

Anthony Schwamm, representing the Federal Cigar Company, has just returned from San Diego, where he worked in the interests of the "Rosa de Valle" cigar, distributed by the Max Roth Cigar Company, of this city.

Angelo Mussatti, of the Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company of this city, left on the Kite-Shaped trip in the interests of "Reynaldo" cigars.

W. A. Yocum, formerly with Bayuk Brothers, is a new arrival to this city, having brought with him a new line of cigars and a new line of talk that goes with the cigars. The "Royal Banner" cigar is the new brand, and is manufactured by the Banner Cigar Company, of Detroit, Mich. The line is distributed by the Mathews Candy Company, of this city, at the present time.

Woodward-Jones-Johnson, of this city, have received their shipment of fifty thousand "Copyright" cigars, manufactured by Luckett-Luchs-Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., and the same went out on back orders. This brand is getting some good licks at the hands of the sales force of this house.

George Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., manufacturers of the famous "Y-B" cigars, is in Los Angeles and expects to be with us until next April. He has purchased a new ladder and overalls and we shall presently see George tacking "Y-B" signs on all telephone poles and old barns.

Morris Burke has sold this week for the Henry Weinz Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., one million stogies for next year's delivery. The entire lot of goods are to Los Angeles jobbers.

The Klingenstein Company, distributors of the "Y-B" cigars in Southern California and Arizona, are enjoying a most successful business on this brand.

"New Bachelor," distributed by the Max Roth Cigar Company, of this city, is moving nicely. Charles Bennett, one of the city salesmen for this house, recently broke the previous record of this house by selling 40,000 "New Bachelor" cigars in a single day. His sales were made in his city territory.

J. B. Bonhaus, traveling salesman for Klauber-Wangenheim Company, has added the Kite Shaped Track to his already enormous territory. Mr. Bonhaus has been working very hard on "Chancellors," "Optimo" and "Pippins," and shows some very good results.

Figures just made public from Sacramento, the State Capitol, show that the "wet" vote in California in the November election was 524,803 and the "dry" vote 350,802. This makes a net "wet" majority of 174,107. Los Angeles County voted "dry" 103,645 and "wet" 111,249. San Francisco County voted "dry" 21,678 and "wet" 105,271. Fresno, the nucleus of the wine industry of this State, voted "dry" 12,056 and "wet" 13,941.

The Morgan Cigar Company report increased business on all their brands. They are distributors of "Cuesta-Rey," "Generalidid," "Waldorf," "La Sabo" and "Cuesta-Rey Seconds." They are working hard on all these brands.

J. A. Neides, with J. J. Gans Brothers, has just returned from the San Joaquin Valley territory and is leaving for Nevada in the interests of "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene."

Tobacco Dividends

The George W. Helme Company has declared the regular quarterly dividends of one and three-fourths per cent. on the preferred and two and one-half per cent. and an extra dividend of two per cent. on the common stocks, payable January 2nd to stock of record December 20th.

The Weyman-Bruton Company has declared its regular quarterly dividends of one and three-fourths per cent. on the preferred and three per cent. on the common stocks and an extra common dividend of ten per cent. in scrip, all payable January 2nd. The scrip will be put out on that date. The dividends will be paid to stock of record December 12th.

The American Tobacco Company has declared its regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. on the preferred stock, payable January 2nd to stock of record December 12th.

The American Tobacco Company has declared its regular quarterly dividends of one and one-half per cent. on its preferred stock, payable January 2nd to stock of record December 15th.

The P. Lorillard Company has declared its regular quarterly dividends of one and three-fourths per cent. on the preferred and two and one-half per cent. on the common stock, payable January 1st to stock of record December 15th.

The American Snuff Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. on the preferred and a quarterly dividend of three per cent. on the common stocks, payable January 2nd to stock of record December 12th.

Announcement is made to the trade that Max. Hirschburg, who is now connected with S. Rossin & Sons, will sever his connection with said firm on January 1st, 1915, and identify himself with G. Falk & Bro. whom he will represent in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

Handsome Fixture for Tin Cigar Packings

WITH the transformation of the tin can to a highly useful as well as decorative container for cigars, the entire trade will no doubt take deep interest in the announcement that the inventive genius of P. A. Becker has resulted in his giving to the trade a practical display and humidor device for the tin can packing.

This newest work of art by the Becker Company is entirely original, as well as being modern and distinctive. The new humidor for display case for tin cans is made to hold either one or two or more cans. In this fixture, Mr. Becker has allowed space at the bottom for the tin lid, which in accordance with the law must remain in contact with the container until all the cigars are sold. The can itself is held firmly in place by two harmoniously decorated bands which hold the container both at the top and bottom. The crystal glass lid exhibits the cigar, while the tin placard at the hinge attracts further attention.

Since the introduction of this new and novel creation for the display of cigars in tin packings, it is understood that the sales by such methods of display have broken all records. The inventor, P. A. Becker, of 132 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., states that dealers have tried the same brand side by side, one in the new humidor device and the other without any additional sales-help, and that while cans placed in the new device were sold many, many times, the plain can remained absolutely untouched. This, Mr. Becker points out, proves that cigars effectively displayed are half sold.

The illustration herewith does not do justice to the article. While the photograph shows many of its features, the beautiful blending of harmonious colors and the artistic effects of the same, are partly lost. The individuality and originality of this latest invention of Mr. Becker is so inviting that, as a smoker recently remarked, "it makes you buy a cigar when you have no desire to smoke." These new humidor cigar display cases are now made by the Becker Company in the most magnificent designs, and are square, oval, round, etc., in shape. One of the most practical advantages of this new invention is the convenience of serving the cigars by the automatic crystal lid, which is a sanitary feature as well.

The construction of this tin can display case is both strong and neat. It is one of the characteristics of the Becker Company to avoid the use of clumsy and cheap constructions, which, in the end, prove detrimental to cigar sales. Like all the recent devices of this firm, in the matter of cases, lids, fixtures, etc., this newest article has the same air of dignity, neatness and simplicity as has characterized the Becker Company's previous efforts.

This new humidor cigar can display case is unquestionably one of the most novel, as well as one of the most useful inventions offered to the cigar trade in recent years. The sale of cigars in tin cans has grown rapidly during the past year, particularly in the West, and there is no question but what this new Becker invention will create a market in the East for those brands whose owners are far-seeing enough to use such an effective sales-help.

"The Denby Girl"

This office is in receipt of a copy of "The Denby Girl," the work of the well-known artist, P. Stanlaws. This beautiful picture assumes the form of a large poster framed in white enamel. The winsome maiden depicted, will, we are sure, win many friends for the famous "Charles Denby" cigar which is manufactured by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., who is favoring the trade with copies of the attractive poster.

Big Leaf Shipment to Wayne Cigar Company

What is said to have been the biggest shipment of leaf tobacco ever made at one time to any Middle Western manufacturer, was that forwarded a few weeks ago to the Wayne Cigar Company, Detroit, Mich., by Julius Marqusee, the well-known New York leaf packer. The shipment which consisted of 1400 cases of Ohio filler required for transportation purposes, ten cars apportioned 140 cases to the car. Mr. Marqusee has received from the same company an order for 1500 cases of binders.

Johnstown Cigar Company Has New Quarters

The Johnstown Cigar Company, of Johnstown, Pa., has removed from its original location on Pearl Street to new quarters in the Brady Building. The entire interior of the Brady Building was remodeled to meet the requirements of the cigar company.

Manager Cupfer, of the company, is also in charge of the branch which has been established in Youngstown, O., and he spends much of his time there.

Trade Jottings

A newcomer in the trade is G. E. Stevenson, who has opened a retail cigar store at Genesee and Montgomery Streets, Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Stevenson carries a fine line of Seed and Havana goods.

The cigar factory of Boltz, Clymer & Company, at Perkasie, Pa., the manufacturers of the ever-popular "El Merito," was entered recently by thieves who were successful in securing 1000 cigars.

Reports received from the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo., are to the effect that they are well pleased with the satisfactory business being done on the standard sizes of the well-known "El Roi Tan."

Through the offer of a gold cigar cutter with twenty-five "New Bachelor" cigar bands, publicity being given to the same by local advertising, Rosenfeld, Smith & Company, La Grande, Ore., are doing quite a business on the well known popular five-cent cigar of T. J. Dunn & Company.

Julius S. Kahn (Cuesta-Rey & Company) recently called on the House of Crane, Indianapolis, Ind., in the interests of his company's brand. Mr. Kahn's visit was for the purpose of conducting a short campaign on the "Cuesta-Rey" brands in that territory.

OBITVARY

Dutton Ortley Wright

DUTTON ORTLEY WRIGHT, sales manager of the American Tobacco Company and one of the best known figures in the industry, died on the 12th instant from heart trouble at his home, 611 West 114th Street, New York City.

For more than a year Mr. Wright has been in ill health and had not taken an active part in business, but his death was quite unexpected and a great shock to his many friends.

Mr. Wright was a man of extraordinary constructive ability, original and clean in his methods, and a great trainer of young salesmen.

When a young man Mr. Wright became associated with James B. Duke in the tobacco business and came to New York. When the American Tobacco Company was formed in 1890, Mr. Wright was manager of the Duke factories. He was married in 1895 to Miss Jean C. Caughey.

Mr. Wright was born in Oxford, Chester County, Pennsylvania.

Besides his wife the deceased is survived by two sons, Robert and William, and a daughter, Virginia.

Clayton C. King

Following a fractured skull contracted by falling from the top of a barn on his father's tobacco farm, Suffield, Conn., while assisting his brothers and hired help taking down tobacco in its damp condition, Clayton C. King, forty-four years old, died within the past fortnight at the Springfield hospital as the result of his injuries. Mr. King was born in Suffield in 1870, being the son of Daniel King, one of the largest tobacco growers of that place. Mr. King's education was obtained in the public schools and the Connecticut Literary Institute. He is survived by his parents, four brothers and three sisters.

James Wallace Nicholson

James Wallace Nicholson, life-long resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., and for the past seven years manager of the B. L. Specht Cigar Company, died recently at his home in the East End, Pittsburgh.

James Pittaway

James Pittaway, president and founder of James Pittaway & Sons, cigar importers, of Chicago, Ill., was killed by a train on Tuesday, December 8th. Funeral services were conducted at the Englewood Masonic Temple.

Julius G. Miller

Julius G. Miller, a director of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company and formerly identified with the tobacco firm of Wise, Bendheim & Company, died last week of heart disease at his home, 411 West End Ave., New York City. The deceased, who was sixty-five years old, is survived by a widow and three children, Arthur G. Miller, Mrs. Selig Berg and Mrs. Leonard L. Stein.

August Seemland

August Seemland, eighty-five years old, a retired cigar manufacturer, died recently at his home, 304 Market Street, Camden, N. J. The deceased was a veteran of the Civil War.

John M. Judge

John M. Judge, fifty-one years old, a retired tobacconist of Springfield, Mass., died recently at his home after a short illness. The deceased is survived by a widow and one son. Three sisters and two brothers also survive.

Roy Victor Dressner

Roy Victor Dressner, of 82 Willow Street, who was engaged in the wholesale cigar and tobacco business, at 183 Fulton Street, succeeding his father, the late Henry T. Dressner, who died two years ago, died recently following an operation for appendicitis, in the Long Island College Hospital. He was taken suddenly ill and was operated upon the following day. The interment was made in Salem Fields Cemetery. Mr. Dressner was born in Brooklyn and was in his twenty-first year. He was educated at Polytechnic Institute which he left to enter business at his father's death. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Ray Dressner; a brother, Mitchell, and a sister, Clarisse Dressner.

Cigar Salesman Takes His Own Life

Oscar A. Engelhardt, a widely known cigar salesman of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, recently killed himself at his home at 209 North Fourth Street, St. Louis, Mo.

According to Engelhardt's business associates he was worth about $20,000 and drew down a salary of about $5000 a year. He was familiarly known in the trade as "Diamond King," due to the fact that he always wore diamonds. They were valued at $3000.

No motive can be assigned for the suicide other than that he was temporarily deranged when he took his own life. He had been suffering from stomach trouble for several weeks.

The deceased was about forty-six years old and is survived by a widow.

Trade Jottings

Theobald & Oppenheimer's brands are being displayed by the Edmondson Drug Company, Atlanta, Ga.

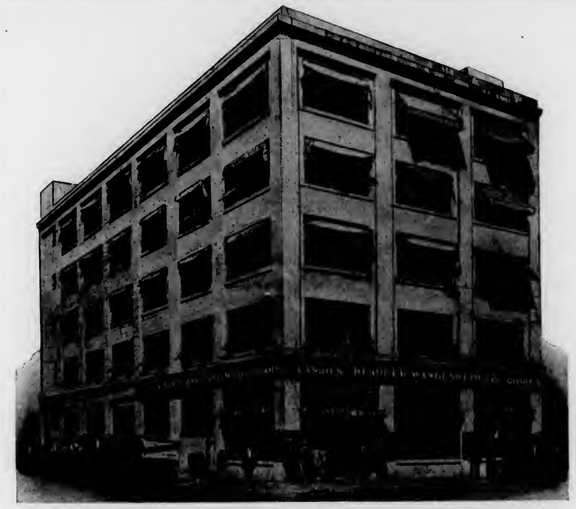
The Forsyth Company, Jacksonville, Fla., are showing the ever-popular "Savaronas," Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, packed in glass tubes, five to the package at 25 cents each, and report that they are going well.

Albert M. Momenthy, manager of the Codman Cigar Company, Boston, Mass., reports that the "El Cita, Jr." cigar, which he recently featured, has been among the big hits in the trade.

Owing to other plans, Alfred H. Kapp, who represents Kapp & Peterson, Ltd., Dublin, Ireland, manufacturers of pipes and smokers' novelties, and who has been in the East, will not visit the Western Coast as had been previously arranged.

A recent glimpse at the Christmas stock of the Snyder stores, Toledo, O., revealed the following well known brands: "Upmann," "Hoyo de Monterrey," "Romeo y Julieta," "Partagas," "Van Dyck," "Sanchez & Haya," "Cuesta-Rey" and "Webster."

Mason, Ehrman & Company, Portland, Ore., report that the new five-cent cigar, the "Sa-So" is sold extensively throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho territory. They also state that they are just beginning to line up with the demand they have been having on this excellent brand.



Home of Klauber-Wangenheim Company

This firm handles many of the best-selling cigar brands in the country and stands high among the big jobbing houses of the Pacific Coast.

"Philadelphia Hand Made," "Optimo" and "Chancellor" are among the big-selling brands which the firm carries.

The Cigar and The Humorist

THE cigar was invented several hundred years ago by some man who had lost his pipe. While the general shape has shown very little change, the contents is often more or less varied, including in addition to the tobacco filling such odds and ends as shingle-nails, a stray horse-hair, or the like. I have known times when I have been quite put to it to imagine just what it was that was in a cigar besides the tobacco.

All are familiar with the regular commercial variety of cigar, all tasting and smelling alike, and distinguished one from another by the price, shape and gilt-band only. But we are not just now concerned with these; it is the unusual, the unique in cigars with which we are interested.

Take, for example, a stogie. Here's a match. There, she's lighted. Now tell me candidly, of what are you most vividly reminded? A formaldehyde candle and a piece of smouldering golf-cape?

Great care should be exercised in preparing a stogie for smoking. After biting off the end blow all the dust out of it. Don't bite off the wrong end or the darn thing will unwind like a spring and hit you in the eye.

Fight shy of the Italian stogie! There is no hole through it. No ordinary American can successfully smoke one of these without recourse to the old trick of placing a strong mustard plaster on the back of the neck.

Considerable success in character reading is possible if one watches a smoker. For example:

One man will hold a cigar in the corner of his mouth, tilted up; the eye on this side is kept almost closed by the smoke. This man is the kind who can tell beforehand which wards will go Democratic. When the time comes he will brush right by St. Peter.

Another man holds a cigar very much as if it were a fountain pen; he puffs daintily at intervals. He is the kind who would say he was happy no matter to whom he was married; he always votes "Aye" at directors' meetings. He plays a ripping game of croquet.

Still another keeps one-half of the cigar continually clenched between the teeth on one side of his mouth. Evidently a man of vacillating temperament. He can't make up his mind whether he will chew or smoke, so he does both.

Then there is the man, smoking on an open trolley-car, who is so careless about his ashes that most of them blow either down your neck or into your eye. Such a man should be hamstrung. Or, perhaps, he could be pushed backward into a mortar-bed.

Many men buy two classes of cigars—the kind they smoke, and the kind they give away. Under such circumstances it is customary, in offering a cigar, to say, nonchalantly: "Have a rotten cigar?" or "Have a torch?"

This tends to avoid misunderstanding.

Oftentimes, during a crush at the Bridge, or in the Subway, a man will be seen to emerge from the crowd, stop suddenly and place his hand anxiously to his breast, a look of alarm on his face. This is not because he has heart trouble, nor because he has felt a sudden sharp pain in his thorax. He is merely feeling in his vest pocket to see how many cigars have been broken.

So it is. If there is anything that is nearest to a smoker's heart it is the cigars in his vest pocket. To many men the climax of the day is to tuck in a rousing dinner, light a good cigar and push it before you briskly up or down Broadway.—"Puck."

Yahn & McDonnell Prepared for Holiday Rush

Yahn & McDonnell, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, have profited by the experience of former years, and have supplied dealers handling their lines at an earlier date than in any previous year. Being distributors for so many brands, the distribution and retail business has sometimes caused confusion, but this year plans were laid for the earlier shipment of goods to dealers before the arrival of the holiday counter business, and this will leave the salesmen free to give the retail customers more time and attention than ever before.

Detroit

Holiday Business Ahead of Last Year—Crowds Attend Opening of New E. M. Harris Store—New Factory Law a Menace, Say Manufacturers

Detroit, Mich., December 10.

HANDLE the very best line of cigars that is made, whether it be nickel goods or ten-cent and upwards, is my message to any retailer in the cigar business, and I base this on the experience at the Hotel Pontchartrain stand. There is hardly a day that some traveling man doesn't come up to me and say "I never saw such a fine lot of cigars. Even in my own home town retailers do not handle as good a line of cigars as they should," is usually the assertion. Friends are necessary in business both for the cigar salesmen and the retail cigar store, but there is such a thing as letting your friends "put one over." I have often seen a salesman supposed to be a good friend of the retailer deliberately load him up on a class of goods which could never be sold except to the man who did not care what he smoked; the result was this retailer would have most of the stock on hand as long as he remained in business. There is one thing that retailers do not study enough about, and that is the quality of the goods they buy. Most retailers take the salesman's word, but do not find out all they can about a brand which they may intend to add to the line. Not long ago a man called at our cigar stand and wanted me to put in his line; it looked good, and he left a few samples with me. I made it a point to place these samples in the hands of customers who were used to smoking that class of goods, and asked them to let me know what they thought of the brand. A few days later, they came back and spoke very highly and said it was even better than the class of goods they had been used to buying. Result was the salesman got an order. Now, on the other hand, if these customers had given just the opposite report and said they were a bad smoke and not worth the money, inferior to other ten-cent cigars, etc., most likely I would have dropped the matter. It is not always advisable to take the customer's word for the quality of a cigar, because many times he doesn't know himself, but in most cases a retailer can get a pretty good idea of values between his own judgment and that of his customers.

From the way the season has started out, the holiday business should be considerably ahead of last year. Since early in November, I have been reminding our trade as they called that our Christmas goods were in and ready for inspection, and requesting that they look them over at their earliest opportunity. The rush started December first and it is really so that already we have taken more orders than we did for the same period last year for Christmas goods. And I have noticed that buyers of cigars are getting to know values better than they used to. So it is up to the retailer to keep constantly in touch with the tobacco situations and learn of the latest crop conditions, etc., which he can do by reading the trade journals. It is surprising the questions that customers ask in buying holiday goods, such as "What kind of tobacco is this?" "Do you think the color makes any difference?" "What constitutes a mild cigar?" and "Where is this tobacco grown?"

The new E. M. Harris cigar store at No. 29 West Fort Street, held its grand opening on Saturday, December 5th. There was a constant string of people dropping in until the very last minute at night. Everybody who called was the recipient of a toy brass spittoon, as well as a "Roi-Tan" cigar. There were many beautiful bouquets as a fitting stage for the opening, the same being sent by friends in the trade. Ralph Watkins, the new member of the E. M. Harris Company, was in charge in the morning, and in the afternoon he was assisted by Frank Forrest; Mr. Harris was busy alternating between the two stores. The Woodward Avenue store will be continued until the lease expires in May; after that the Fort Street store will be downtown headquarters. A sign has already been placed in the window of the new store in the Whitney Building announcing the fact that "E. M. Harris Company will occupy this store as soon as completed." This will be in February some time. The Fort Street store is a good stand during the day, as it is in Detroit's "Wall Street" section, where crowds are passing morning and afternoon. At night, however, there is little doing, as well as on Sunday.

J. F. Morrison has sold his cigar stand in the Houseman Building, Grand Rapids, to B. J. Brogger. Mr. Morrison will continue to operate his stand in the Klingman Building during the furniture season. He has purchased a large stock of Havana cigars and will devote his time to the box trade.

Guy Haney, of Durand, Mich., has sold his cigar stock and poolroom to Frank Tubbs and Homer Allen, who will continue the business at the same location, 121 Saginaw Street.

Gordon Bailey, who is still traveling in the western part of the State for Lee & Cady, reports a very good business. Gordon has "selling ability" that will make him a success in any line.

Guy Caverly, representative of the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, of Grand Rapids, recently dropped in to see me. He said that his firm was selling an average of 200,000 seconds a week. The G. J. Johnson Company will close the year with the best business in their history.

Harry W. Johnston, one of the oldest traveling salesmen in the United States, died November 26th. Death was caused by pneumonia. Mr. Johnston was for many years employed with various Detroit cigar manufacturers; probably his longest stay was with the LaGora Fee Company, which concern he represented for fourteen years in the State of Michigan. The company named the "Harry W. Johnston" cigar after him as well as a number of other brands. A widow and one daughter survive him. He was seventy-two years of age.

Ed Battie will become a representative of the G. J. Johnston Cigar Company, after January 1st, and will make his headquarters in Milwaukee.

At the first meeting of creditors of Fred D. Lane and Edward Nolan, doing business as the Benton Harbor Cigar Company, Benton Harbor, Mich., they appointed Ara Weldon as trustee.

George Pyle, of Pyle & Allen Company, of Cleveland, representatives of R. A. Bachia y Ca, was a recent visitor here in the interest of that brand.

A very important matter has just been called to the attention of the cigar manufacturers. It is a proposed amendment to the State labor law which is to be presented at the coming session of the next legislature, which will require that no factory can employ a girl under sixteen years of age, and girls up to that age must attend school. Thousands of girls are employed in Michigan factories under that age, and many in the cigar factories. They are not the class of girls with wealthy parents, but rather of the poor families where financial aid is a necessity. It is estimated that more than a half million dollars in wages will be lost to the poor families if this new amendment is passed. Cigar manufacturers and those who employ young girls are getting busy and hope to have this amendment defeated. They intend to prepare arguments showing that such an amendment would be a menace to the community rather

Tampa

A. L. Cuesta Looks After Crop Conditions in Cuba—"Julia Marlowe" Cigars Have Good Year

Tampa, December 11, 1914.

THE customs house is just in receipt of stamps for cigars manufactured in bond to the number of 250,000. This will enable the return of the stamps borrowed from the customs house at Key West, from where the necessary stamps were secured to tide over the local manufacturers during the shortage which was prevalent recently.

John W. Ross registered at the Hillsboro recently, spending several days here. Mr. Ross is Florida state manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Another tobacco man who registered at the Hillsboro also was William Solomon, well known through his connection with the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company. He spent a week in calling on local jobbers.

Still a third tobacco man who registered at the Hillsboro was the man known to the commercial world as "George Washington," but otherwise identified as H. E. Hauser, of the R. J. Reynolds Company, Winston-Salem, N. C. Mr. Hauser, who enjoys a nice popularity among the trade, devoted a week of his time locally to the business of his company.

Harry Roberts left last week for a short stay in Jacksonville. Mr. Roberts is head of the J. W. Roberts & Son cigar factory.

Not only are they satisfied with the business done during the past year, but the Erlich Manufacturing Company state that they are gratified with the increase which has been shown.

At the "Julia Marlowe" factory—Corral, Wodiska & Company—much satisfaction is expressed with the business of the past year.

Satisfaction is also expressed at the factory of the Morgan Cigar Company with the dole of 1914. It is needless to attribute success to "Juan de Fuca."

Among the recent visitors to Havana in the interests of their companies were F. P. Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, manufacturers of the popular "Tadema," and A. L. Cuesta, Sr., of the Cuesta-Rey Company. As this is the time for planting the tobacco in Cuba, Mr. Cuesta is personally visiting the various tobacco districts to keep himself well informed relative to the promise and outlook of the crops.

Berriman Brothers, more familiarly known as "Jose Vila," state that their business is giving them decided satisfaction, and that the business of 1914 so far has increased over 1913. They state that they look for a much better year in 1915.

"Magnificent" is the only word that fittingly describes the volume of business being done on the well known "Admiration" cigar, E. Regensburg & Sons. It is stated that the output for 1914 will run into some very high figures.

PERFECTO.

"United" Leases Another Chicago Store

John R. Magill & Company, representing Joseph B. Moos, has recently leased the United Cigar Stores Company the corner store in the building at the northeast corner of Harrison Street and Fifth Avenue, opposite the Grand Central Station, Chicago, Ill. The lease is for a term of ten years, at a rental aggregating $24,000. This gives the United Cigar Stores Company 105 stores in Chicago.

Waltzer & LaPoint Acquire Large Stock

WHAT is said to have been one of the largest deals consummated in Mt. Clemens, Mich., in a long time, although the amount involved is not stated, was the recent acquisition of the complete wholesale cigar and tobacco business of the Trombley & Groesbeck Company, of Pearl Street, by Waltzer & LaPoint, of Gratiot Avenue. It is estimated from the thousands of boxes containing cigars and stogies, fine cut and plug tobaccos, that more than 1,000,000 cigars figured in the transaction.

The firm of Waltzer & LaPoint, which is composed of Hugo Waltzer and Archie LaPoint, started in business June 2, 1912, with a small cigar stand operated in connection with an attractive pool and billiard parlor. This was followed later, in a small way, by branching forth in the wholesale business. For this purpose, a large humidor was installed. So successful have been the efforts of Messrs. Waltzer & LaPoint along this line, that they are contemplating doing business on a larger scale than ever before. The acquirement of the Trombley & Groesbeck Company will enable them to compete favorably with many of the larger jobbers in the country.

As soon as an adjustment can be made of the affairs of Trombley and Groesbeck, Mr. Trombley will devote his attention to his present retail stand. Mr. Groesbeck retires. His plans for the future are not known.

"44" Cigar Company Has Splendid Year

Among the encouraging reports resulting from the summing up of the year's business, is that of the "44" Cigar Company, which announces that their business for the year has been beyond their expectations, and that on some of their brands they have been oversold for months.

The company is now running all of its factories to capacity in order to fill the orders for "44" and "Adlon" cigars. The new "'44' Hand Made" tin can packing has had a splendid reception throughout the country, and for some months past the company has been unable to keep their output on this particular brand up to the orders that have been placed for it.

George M. Lex, business manager of the company, is now arranging for the care and entertainment of the firm's salesmen while they are in the city for the holidays. A banquet will be held at the Manufacturers' Club, and it is understood that they will be entertained there extensively. The men will return to their territories about the first of the year.

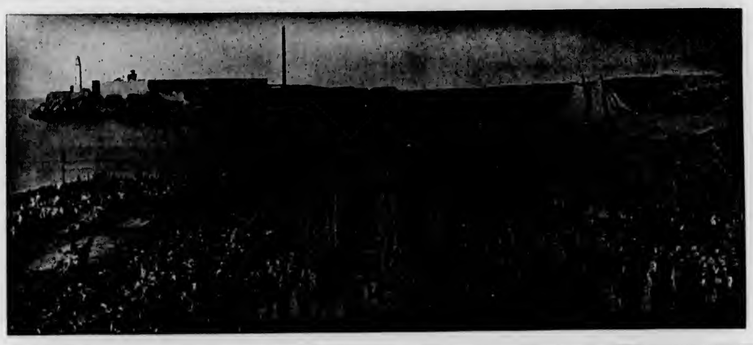
M. A. Funk, in charge of the sales department, has recently added to the force by the addition of F. W. Clarke, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Clarke is said to be a very capable man in his line, and to be a splendid addition to the strong and able force over which Mr. Funk now exercises control.

W. M. Charles, representing the company under Mr. Nicholson in the South, will shortly be promoted to Eastern territory, and in the future will work out from New York City.

The "44" Cigar Company states that from reports which it received, the outlook for 1915 is good, and that a tremendous business is expected on the "44" brands during the coming year.

Kaiser's Cigar Helps Red Cross Fund

A cigar was recently sold at auction at Henley in aid of the London Red Cross Hospital, which brought the sum of $72.50. The unusual price paid for this cigar may be accounted for by the fact that it was once presented by the German Emperor to Lord Lonsdale. It was later given by Lord Lonsdale to a resident of Hambledon. A firm of butchers bid it in at the auction for $72.50.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

Havana, December 8, 1914.

THE market has reacted during the past fortnight, as at last the American buyers have woke up to the real situation, and supplied themselves to a larger extent at the current low rates, which unfortunately have left no profit to our leaf dealers, but on the contrary severe losses. Buyers for Europe have also continued to make more inquiries in our market, besides purchasing in the country a number of bales for export. The trade for South America still moves along in small quantities, and the demand for local consumption has also been only limited during the past two weeks.

From a party, who has traveled all over the tobacco districts of our island, we hear the news, that the tobacco still in the hands of farmers and country merchants is almost worthless, as it is wormeaten to a terrible degree, and at most may be only fit for our cigarette manufacturers. If this news is correct, then our heralded large crop may be reduced at least thirty per cent., which would leave it below a normal crop, and with any kind of a demand from the United States, prices should advance sharply, during the coming year, for all good and sound vegas or escogidas.

As a rule tobacco left in the country, after having been packed, is liable to become wormeaten, as the vegueros have no adequate warehouses for storing tobacco, nor do they handle the freshly packed leaf, as we do here in the city of Havana. As our market has been dull since the beginning of August, owing to the European war, perhaps the vegueros and country packers thought to save the expense of carrying the bales to Havana, and paying the storage and handling charges, and now they have "to pay the piper" for their shortsightedness in this respect.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 10,124 bales, which consisted of: Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, 3916; Partido, 844, and Remedios, 5364 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 7382; exporters to Europe, 1598; shippers to South America, 400, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 744 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from November 16 to November 30, 1914, totaled 7980 bales, which were distributed to the following countries, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 4759; to the Netherlands, 2598; to Gibraltar, 78; to Liverpool, 20; to the Canary Islands, 25, and to South America (Buenos Aires and Montevideo), 500 bales.

Buyers of Leaf Tobacco That Come and Go.

Arrivals—From New York: Marceline Perez, of Marceline Perez & Company; Manuel Ridriguez (and son), of Rodriguez & Tejeiro; Jose M. Diaz, president of the Preferred Havana Tobacco Company; David Simmerman, of David Simmerman, and Allie Sylvester, president of the American Cigar Company and chairman of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd.

From Philadelphia: Louis H. Eisenlohr and Charles H. Eimerbrinck, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers.

From Tampa: Salvador Rodriguez, of Salvador Rodriguez, owner of the "Charles the Great" factory, and Facundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother.

From Chicago: August Kuttnauer, of Rothschild Sons & Company and also the United States and Canadian representative of the famous "Punch" factory.

From San Diego, Cal.: August Sensenbrenner, of August Sensenbrenner.

Departures—To New York: Joseph Mendelsohn, Aleck Goldschmidt and Hermann Diehl.

To Chicago: August Kuttnauer.

To San Diego: August Sensenbrenner.

Returned—Venancio Diaz, of Sobrinos de Venancio Diaz and silent partner of Muniz Hermanos; Venancio Sierra, of Sierra & Martinez; Francisco Arango and Wm. J. Lightbourne.

Receipts of Leaf Tobacco From the Country.

	For week ending November 26, 1914.		Since January 1, 1914.
Vuelta Abajo	2,488	bales	196,055	bales
Semi Vuelta	645	"	36,236	"
Partido	193	"	13,626	"
Remedios	4,724	"	171,868	"
Oriente	1,355	"	3,097	"
Total	9,405	"	420,882	"

Very little can be added to what we have published so far about the next crop, although there has been some planting done in the Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and Partido region, which may comprise an area of a third of the ground under cultivation last year, and while the weather conditions up to now have been favorable for the setting out of seedlings, everything will depend upon the future temperature. We have not heard of any planting in the Santa Clara province, although it is possible that some vegueros have commenced in a small way already. At all events we are one month later in the season than is customary here for beginning the setting out of seedlings.

Cigars.

The situation in our cigar industry is virtually unchanged, and while we have not heard of any more factories having closed entirely, most of them are only working with greatly reduced forces, or otherwise on limited time per week. The following statistics of our exports of cigars during the month of November tell the tale most graphically:

From November 1 to November 30, 1913,	14,338,921	cigars
From November 1 to November 30, 1914,	8,523,410	"
Decrease during November, 1914,	5,815,511	"

The Cuban Market

The following countries show decreases in the month of November, 1914, as compared with the same month of 1913:

United States	3,100,756	cigars
Germany	1,120,166	"
Great Britain and Ireland	868,980	"
Canada	467,150	"
Chile	233,911	"
Argentine Republic	203,600	"
Italy	189,500	"
Australia	183,304	"
Belgium	64,000	"
France	49,050	"
Total	6,480,417	"

There are three countries which show increases during the same period, viz.:

Spain	512,791	cigars
Gibraltar	125,950	"
Spanish Africa	61,500	"
Total	700,241	"

The exports since the first of January up to the end of November compare as follows, thus:

From January 1 to November 30, 1913,	164,969,777	cigars
From January 1 to November 30, 1914,	115,745,199	"
Decrease during the first eleven months of 1914	49,224,578	"

Of the nine principal consuming countries, which import at least over one million cigars from us annually, there are eight which have imported less this year, as compared with the year 1913:

Great Britain and Ireland	17,967,197	cigars
United States	14,364,085	"
Germany	7,462,403	"
Canada	4,545,410	"
Argentine Republic	2,520,541	"
France	2,084,667	"
Chile	1,614,704	"
Australia	781,687	"
Total	51,340,694	"

The only country which shows an increase is:

Spain	3,404,341	cigars

One of our leading cigar manufacturers is going to spring a scrap size on the trade. He is going to make two large sizes, hand (not machine) made, and with a long filler, not scraps. One will cost the dealer seventy-five dollars and the other ninety dollars per thousand, so as to leave a reasonable profit when retailed at ten and twelve and one-half cents respectively. The manufacturer told me not to mention his name and brand, but the next time I may be able to give details. I tried some of the new goods and found them very mild, sweet and of excellent burn.

Leaf Tobacco.

Ventura Blanco, of Philadelphia, arrived here on the 24th ulto., as usual about a week ahead of his principals, as he is the broker in the purchases of leaf for the great firm of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, of Philadelphia. As prices are very reasonable this year, we should not be surprised if they should acquire perhaps double the quantity of leaf which they are in the habit of using in their eighteen factories which are turning out the famous "Cinco" cigars.

Salvador Rodriguez, or as his friends call him, Sama, has invested in 1017 bales of choice old (1913 crop) Vuelta Abajo fillers, we heard say, and if this report should be correct, we congratulate him sincerely, as we fully believe he will not be able to duplicate this purchase three months from now.

Michaelson & Prasse were buyers of 1644 bales of leaf for account of their customers during the past fortnight.

Aleck Goldschmidt purchased 1685 bales of leaf for his house of A. Blumlein & Company, of New York, consisting of prime vegas, and at reasonable figures.

Mr. Joseph Mendelsohn came here principally to look over his packings, although he did not leave empty handed either, having added to the holdings of their firm of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Company.

From a good and reliable source, we have learned that Mr. August Sensenbrenner, of San Diego, Cal., shall have selected 800 bales of leaf for his growing factory.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez has 0000 bales of leaf ready to be shipped by two of the Spanish mail steamers for Spain.

Jose C. Puente & Company were sellers of 2457 bales of Remedios from Partido from their choice packings.

We were very sorry to learn of the untimely death of young Edgar W. Pollack, in the thirtieth year of his age, and which is a heavy blow to his brother Mark A. Pollack, and to whom we extend our deep-felt sympathy. The funeral on the 7th inst. was attended by almost the entire tobacco trade, over one hundred and fifty coaches following the hearse.

Shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana over 200 bales during the last fortnight were:

J. F. Berndes & Company	1,652	bales
Maximilian Stern	1,340	"
J. Bernheim & Son	598	"
Seeler, Pi & Company	544	"
Leslie Pantin	530	"
Sucesores de Diego Montero	300	"
H. Upmann & Company	264	"
Manuel Suarez	256	"
M. Meneses	242	"
Garcia & Company	222	"
Virgilio Suarez	214	"
Ernst Ellinger & Company	202	"

ORETANIV.

Garrett H. Smith in Cuba

In a recent communication from Havana, Cuba, where he is making a ten days' visit to the factory of the Compania Litografica de la Habana, for whom he is American and Canadian agent, Garrett H. Smith, of the National Lithographic Company, New York City, states that he has been accorded a splendid reception, and that his visit is proving a pleasant one. Mr. Smith states that the work produced by the Compania Litografica de la Habana is the best imported lithographing made. Also, that the paper and materials used by the company in the manufacture of their product could not be better. Following his visit to Havana, Mr. Smith leaves for Tampa and Northern points.

Cigar Company Partnership Dissolved

F. L. Hopkins, who, with Louis St. Marie, comprised the Red Wing News and Cigar Company, Red Wing, Minn., has purchased Mr. St. Marie's interest in the company and will conduct the business himself in the future. Mr. St. Marie will go to St. Paul, where he will be associated with his father in the cigar business.

Cleveland

Many Window Trims Feature Holiday Season—Stace & Vincent Dissolve Partnership—George Bassett Laid Up With Blood Poisoning

Cleveland, O., December 11.

THE holiday season is once more in full blast and the dealers have practically completed their stock for the holiday rush. A great many of the firms have prepared special holiday packages which are attracting more than ordinary attention. This is specially true with the cigarette concerns, who are featuring all kinds of novelties in cigarette humidors. Dealers are also starting to trim their windows for the holidays and many very attractive displays are to be seen.

Dave Laux, formerly located at 1470 West Twenty-fifth Street, has just moved into his new building located on West Twenty-fifth Street, near Detroit Avenue. Mr. Laux has opened up one of the finest cafes and bowling alleys to be seen on the west side of the river, and with his aggressiveness and vast acquaintance he is destined to be one of the leading merchants of this section of the city. Mr. Laux was fortunate to be awarded the Ohio Bowling Tournament, which takes place February, 1915. This is the first time that this big feature has ever been staged on the West Side alleys. The Ohio Bowling Association met here recently and awarded the Laux alleys this much sought after tournament. Mr. Laux has greatly improved his cigar department with the many popular brands he is displaying, and with the up-to-date fixtures he has installed he is second to none in the city. The window displays for the opening week were put in by Dick Culbertson and attracted wide attention. The display was on "La Saramita" cigars and was one of the finest ever seen in town.

The firm of Stace & Vincent have dissolved, Herbert Stace taking over the retail business and Mr. Vincent the wholesale end of the business. These boys have been in business here together for several years and are both entirely familiar with the lines they now intend to follow. Previous to their partnership they were connected with the R. & W. Jenkinson Company, which a few years back sold out to the Joseph T. Schneider Cigar Stores Company. Mr. Vincent, better known as "Burn One Vincent," has been very successful placing on the market "Stavinas," "Percy Haswells" and "Sonadas," and should continue for himself as successfully as he did under the old firm name. Herbert Stace has also a big following in the retail end and has built up the stores so that they are now recognized as among the best in the East End.

Mr. Landbom, manager of the Hippodrome Building cigar stand, owned by the Pyle & Allen Company, is fast recovering from his attack of typhoid fever, and it is hoped that he will be seen again in action within a very short time.

The window display that created the most talk the past week was the "New Bachelor" display in Pyle & Allen's Hippodrome stand. In the centre of the display were two live white mice on an old straw hat suspended about three feet in the air. The hat was so balanced that whenever the mice would move the hat would rotate and the faster they moved the faster the rotation of the hat. These mice afforded much amusement to the vast crowd that surged by during the day.

George Bassett, retailer, located at 826 Prospect Avenue, scratched himself on a nail recently but paid no attention to it as it caused him no particular inconvenience or pain. This scratch became infected and has resulted in blood poisoning. Mr. Bassett is being treated at Huron Road Hospital and the physician in charge claims that he has checked the poison from spreading. Mr. Bassett's many friends and customers wish him a speedy recovery.

The Federal Bowling Alleys, owned by Sam Cohn and located on Euclid Avenue opposite East Fifty-ninth Street, have more than made good. They have filled a long-felt want for a high-grade billiard hall and bowling alleys and also a cigar store of merit. Mr. Cohn has demonstrated his ability to draw the crowds and should have no trouble in holding them.

Trottner Brothers & Zeigler, successors to H. J. Mandelbaum, are enjoying much success in their new venture and should without much difficulty secure the bulk of the cigar business in this section of the city. They are wide awake and are fast winning the friendship of their numerous customers.

Glenn Ettinger, who owns the barber shop located in the Union National Bank Building, informs the writer that after the first of the year he will open up a high-grade barber shop and cigar stand below the American five- and ten-cent store on Euclid Avenue.

The war tax that was put on has already cost the tobacco interests here thousands of dollars, and if same continues it will run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

Joe Klein, of Larus Brothers, Richmond, Va., manufacturers of "Q-Boid" and "Edgeworth" tobacco, is in town and expects to remain here for several weeks.

E. E. Pooles, located at 30 Euclid Arcade, reports business on the increase.

JERRY.

American Can Company Has Prosperous Year

The present outlook is that the American Can Company will close a very prosperous year on December 31st. Aside from the fact that the fruit canning season has brought a larger volume of business than usual, and that the salmon pack on the Pacific Coast has kept up to the average, the use of tin cans in the cigar industry has shown a considerable growth and during the past year a number of large accounts have fallen to this company. With a steadily increasing market for the tin can as a cigar packing, the outlook for this branch of the business is bright.

It is stated that improvements have been made recently to the American Can Company's Adding Machine which will increase its serviceability and lead to further development of this branch of the business, which is still in the experimental stage.

Should net earnings for 1914 merely equal those of last year, with no change in depreciation and improvement charges, there will be a surplus after preferred dividends of over five per cent. for the common stock. This would compare with a surplus of two and two-thirds per cent. last year, when the full discount of $1,050,000 on the debenture bonds was charged against earnings. It is also probable that the item "purchase of patents, improvements to plants," etc., which amounted to $621,762 in 1913, as compared with $483,886 in 1912, and nothing in 1910 and 1911, will be considerably less for the current year.

"Daniel O'Connell," New Meriden Cigar

Julius Kuntze, the well-known cigar manufacturer of Meriden, Conn., is introducing to the trade a new ten-cent cigar called the "Daniel O'Connell." This cigar is made of clear Havana filler with a broadleaf wrapper, and at present is made in the Conchas Regalia shape.

In selecting the name for this cigar, Mr. Kuntze has departed from his usual custom of naming his locally made cigars after something pertaining to Meriden. The label for the cigar box is said to be unusually attractive, it bearing the likeness of the Irish patriot surrounded by the American and Irish flags, a figure of Justice and the American Eagle.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Important Organization Perfected

A large number of firms throughout Belmont County, and, in fact, throughout the State of Ohio, have recently formed an organization known as "The Ohio Stogie Manufacturers' Association." The initial meeting was held at Bethesda, O., on Monday evening, December 7th, in the office of the T. M. Kildow Cigar Company. The officers are: W. T. Bolon, president; and L. R. Carman, of Belmont, O., secretary. Many enthusiastic representatives were attracted from various parts of the State, among whom were Mr. Coulter, of Swisher Brothers' Factory, Newark, O.; Messrs. H. H. Kildow, of the Kildow & Lynn Company; Charles Heed, of the Heed Stogie Company, Barnesville, O., and C. E. Acton, G. W. Kelly and L. R. Carman, of Belmont, O. In all, fourteen factories in the Eleventh and Eighteenth Districts were represented. Numbered among the objects of the organization, are better legal protection from infringements and a wider range of mutual interests in all phases of the industry solidified by unity of action.

The Committee on By-Laws presented their efforts, which were unanimously adopted. Communications from Pittsburgh, Pa., and several Indiana towns engaged in stogie manufacture, were received, signifying intentions to affiliate with the Ohio organization.

After all matters of interest had been disposed of, the meeting adjourned. December 16th was the date set for the next meeting, to be held at the Rogge Hotel, Zanesville, O., at 7 P. M., at which time it is expected that representatives from Columbus, Dayton, Ironton, Greenville, New Madison, Urbana, Tiffin and other stogie towns will attend.

It is predicted that there will be a rush for admission into the organization. All stogie manufacturers or their representatives are urgently invited to attend the next meeting at Zanesville.

Advertising Is on the Increase

When approached recently relative to advertising, certain members of the Executive Committee of the Associated Advertising Club of the World, which met at Chicago, Ill., last week, stated that the same is increasing, testimony to this effect being based on the fact that already heavy contracts in various sections have been placed for the fore part of 1915.

An investigation of business conditions in one hundred and fifty cities of the United States, November 1st last, as compared with the preceding year, to ascertain whether business is on the increase or decrease, has been made by the Executive Committee of the Associated Advertisers. Although the report has not yet been completed, it is known that the retail demand for the last few months has been on a par or even a little better than that of a year ago.

Big Tobacco Firm May Locate in Reading

Rumors persist that a large cigar manufacturing firm in the Middle West is contemplating opening a factory in Reading in the near future. It was learned from the Chamber of Commerce that the firm in question is expected to announce its decision any day.

It is said that representatives of this firm, which is believed to be at present in Detroit, have been frequent visitors to Reading during the past few months and it is understood that suitable quarters have been found in that city for the location of a large factory.

The last tobacco factory burned a few days ago at Nebo, Ky. Nebo once had six factories and was once a famous tobacco town, but of recent years seems to have nearly abandoned the tobacco business.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

CONNECTICUT

Suffield, Conn.

Nearly all the tobacco in town has now been taken down and is being stripped from the stalks and placed in bundles, ready to be shipped to the tobacco warehouses for sorting. Many of the farmers who have a few days more work in stripping worked all day Sunday in an effort to get the tobacco in the bundles before it dried up. All the available help that could be secured in town was hired by the tobacco growers in the hope of finishing up the work by night. At the Karl Kulle plantation in West Suffield two wagon loads of men are carried each morning to the plantation, where 150 hands have been kept at work since the damp began a few days ago.

WISCONSIN

Edgerton, Wis.

Buyers do not seem in any hurry to contract for crops at present and some of the large firms have taken their men out of the field altogether for the present. This is unusual, as some of these operators generally take over large quantities of stock at this time, but just now they appear to be indifferent.

From all indications the new crop will yield an unusual quantity of cheaper grades, but what they will bring is problematical, as the price of old stemming stock has dropped about two cents.

Owing to broken leaf and short sizes it is hard for the buyers to tell just what percentage of available binders they will be able to pack. The crop of the Vernon County district is somewhat hail-cut and broken, so that there should be plenty of stripping leaf available after the binder crop has been purchased.

NORTH CAROLINA

Greenville, N. C.

November was a great month on the Greenville tobacco market. Contrary to the general impression that all the tobacco is out of the country, it poured into this market and farmers went home with money in their pockets. There were really only two sales days last week, but those two days meant the passing of over a million pounds from the farmers to the buyers. About the highest prices ruling were up in the forties, but averages of from twenty to thirty cents for good sized lots were not far between.

Among the November sales were a number by the different warehouses that sound good. There is much common tobacco now coming on and considerable scrap, too, which is included in the following breaks. One house sold over 100,000 pounds at an average of just a little over sixteen dollars, another sold 110,000 at just a little under seventeen dollars, another sold a little over 60,000 pounds at figures so close to seventeen dollars and fifty cents that it would pass for that, and another sold 174,957 at an average of fifteen dollars. The total sales to date have been 15,546,715 against 11,611,000 last season, the sales to date being half a million pounds more than last season's entire sales.

Trade Change in Grand Rapids

The cigar and confectionery stand in the Houseman Building, Grand Rapids, Mich., formerly managed by J. F. Morrison, has been taken over by B. J. Brogger. The stand in the Klingman Building, owned by Mr. Morrison, will continue to be operated by him during the furniture season. Mr. Morrison has purchased a goodly stock of Havana cigars and will centre his attention on the box trade.

DETROIT

than a help; that it would not only take financial aid away from families who need it, but would also put a big obstacle in the way of many manufacturers who would find it difficult to put grown people in the places vacated by these young girls. A number of women's clubs have already sanctioned the new amendment, although they did so without giving the manufacturers' side the least consideration.

The Mazer Cigar Company announce that H. H. Lichtig will be associated with them as salesman in the Middle West after January 1st. For the past eight years, Mr. Lichtig has been selling for the American Cigar Company. He is the son of William Lichtig, factory superintendent of the Porter Street factory of the Lillies Cigar Company, and a brother to Ed Lichtig, Michigan representative for "Philip Morris" cigarettes.

A new store has opened at 527 Woodward Avenue; it is owned by Chester Massie.

Bill Freligh, representative in this territory for Best & Russell, has the cigar store concession in the Henry Clay Hotel, which has just been doubled in size. It is a family hotel and located at John R and Center Streets. "Bill" also has the drug store privilege where cigars are sold. Needless to say, that "Best & Russell" brands are being strongly featured.

"Business is holding up fine," said Mel Soper, at the Soper Segar Store. "If anything, it is getting better every day. Our interior lobby store is also doing a good business. We can't say that we have noticed any depression."

No Appeal in Imperial Tobacco Company's Case

S. P. Dickson, Commonwealth's Attorney of Henderson, Ky., who prosecuted the case against the Imperial Tobacco Company, has recently issued a statement to the effect that there will be no appeal made to the Supreme Court. Mr. Dickson is in receipt of a letter from the Assistant Attorney-General of Kentucky, stating that the State has lost every point in the International Harvester case, and that if the court adheres to the doctrine announced, Kentucky is without anti-trust laws. It is further stated that no effort will be made to prevent the Imperial from buying tobacco.

Red Cross Seals on Pipes

Out in the Northwest country, a physician has recently advanced an idea for a new use of the pipe. He considers that the use of the pipe for the solace of the individual alone is somewhat selfish, and to atone for this shortcoming, he is urging that smokers of pipes buy one of the Red Cross Christmas Seals to paste on the bowl of the same. The physician thinks that by aiding this campaign fund which is used to fight the white plague, the smoker may atone for his selfishness.

At any rate, this is a new idea for raising money, but the suggestion is not offered at this time for the benefit of the Federal Government.

Nashville Cigar Manufacturers Have Christmas Packings

Englehardt Brothers, one of the largest cigar manufacturing concerns in Nashville, Tenn., have prepared to supply demand in their locality by marketing some handsome Christmas packages containing from ten to fifty cigars.

"Englo" is the ten-cent leader of this firm, and the demands last year for this line in small packages was so heavy that the manufacturers were unable to take care of it. This year the company has made special efforts to supply the "Englo" in holiday packages holding from ten to fifty cigars each.

"La Edna" is the nickel brand of this firm and has been prepared in special packings of twenty-five and fifty cigars each for the trade at this season.

Women Roll Cigarettes for Soldiers

Rolling cigarettes for relatives, sweethearts and friends on the firing line now is the occupation of many women in London, who believe that such cigarettes will be more appreciated as Christmas gifts than packages of the ordinary manufactured brands. It is not an uncommon sight to see women rolling them in the lounge rooms of some of the widely known hotels. Many women temporarily have given up knitting to make cigarettes; nor are nicotine-stained fingers avoided, for it is considered a worthy pursuit.

Symmetry, of course, is not much in evidence in these productions, which often swell out toward the centre like cigars, but Tommy Atkins is a gracious person and probably will be able to smoke them, despite their shortcomings.

There is grumbling among some tobacconists, but in the long run they do not lose, as the tobacco has to be purchased to furnish the "makings." One philosophic manufacturer on the Strand said recently that he was pleased, because so much tobacco would be wasted in the process of manufacture that there would be an increased sale.

Smoke Talk №7

Save that All-Havana

for twilight—your leisure hour. You can't do justice to your work with shaky nerves. Chances are it is nicotine that's making you yawn and feel "dopey." Mild Havana leaf, when blended with harmless domestic, is satisfying and doesn't irritate the nerves.
